It is probable that straightening the Logan would not meet all flood dangers, but it would certainly modify them.

Many towns were hit by flood waters, notably Norfolk whose proximity to streams draining large areas resulted in a total loss of more than a million dollars.

As a transportation center, Norfolk's traffic suspension delayed mail deliveries to points in this part of the state.

If we knew what the weather proposed to do next, we might raise some safeguards, but on the other hand, we would engage in a lot of worry with nerves keyed high.

Losing one's voice. Losing one's voice is a distressing experience in these days of answering telephones and trying to communicate with neighbors about business, war or politics.

Directors of the Blue Book of the World, published in Oxford, England, have chosen Mrs. Grace Welsh Lutgen of Wayne, to appear biographically in their new edition which will be printed when labor and paper stock are available. The revised edition will, along with the usual recognition, give mention of her work.
The directors chose Mrs. Lutgen, Nebraska poet laureate, for her authorship of the Nebraska state song, "Nebraska, My Native Land," also for her book of poems, "Tumble Weeds," and her book of pageants, "Goldenrod Sprays," both of which are in their third edition. They also noted her work as lecturer, mentioning that she speaks in six midwest states when she is chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Directors also recognized Mrs. Lutgen's activity as author and director of pageants which are now being presented in universities and other schools and by groups throughout the country. Just this week Mrs. Lutgen's pageants were featured in six Nebraska and eight eastern cities. About four-fifths of the libraries and schools in this state now have Mrs. Lutgen's writings in their shelves.

Earl Hines Plays At Military Ball

An early broadcast from the Grand Terrace in Chicago, Pearson noted Hines' fatherly attitude toward his musicians, particularly that he addressed each as "Son." So he began announcing "Fatha" Hines and "His Boys" to radio listeners.

The artist first applied the theory of solo improvisations to a piano keyboard in the same fashion that a trumpet player would improvise with the support of the rhythm section. At the piano it is executed by playing a melodic line of single notes with the right hand while the left hand provides harmonic and rhythmic bass. This requires tremendous technique.
Cadey Fleet Quisenberry.
Voting to select the given will be restricted to aviation students of the detachment, and their selection will be the only factor in choosing the queen. Nominations will be received and final election will follow.

Prizes Are Given In Rural Contest

Much Scrap Paper Gathered Through Drive Finished In County Schools.

District 13 took first, district 1 took second and district 46 third in scrap paper drive just completed among Wayne county rural schools. District 13 gathered 2,811 pounds to earn a prize of $10. No. 1 collected 1,290 pounds for second prize of $5, and No. 46 gathered 991 pounds for prize of $2.50. Winning school is taught by Miss E. Gustafson and the second by Miss Jean Gustafson, cousins. No. 46 is taught by Miss Eva Jones.

Other rural schools participating in the drive and the amount of scrap collected follow: No. 20, 744 pounds; No. 65, 584 pounds; No. 42, 860 pounds; No. 56, 851 pounds; No. 57, 308 pounds; No. 33, 542 pounds; No. 34, 204 pounds; No. 24, 639 pounds; No. 24, 746 pounds; No. 13, 653 pounds; No. 51, 548 pounds; No. 5, 830 pounds; No. 48, 443 pounds; No. 28, South, 457 pounds; No. 63, 777 pounds; No. 40, 790 pounds; No. 45, 103 pounds; No. 36, 192 pounds; No. 66, 412 pounds; No. 61, 600 pounds; No. 47, 874 pounds.

More scrap was turned in by some districts but could not be counted as no dealer's slip accompanied the amounts. One requirement of the contest was that weight slips from paper buyers should be turned in with scrap.

Town schools conducted their own contests. Wayne school pupils gathered 14,240 pounds, Hoskins 23,230 and Carroll 3,500. Winslow's and Wayne prep's reports are not yet in as their drives continued longer than others.

Day Is Dedicated To Merchant Marine

Monday, May 22, is Maritime day, dedicated to honor the service of the mighty United States merchant marine.

Historically, Maritime day is the 125th anniversary of the first ocean crossing by a steam-propelled vessel, the merchant ship S. S. Savannah, which left Savannah, Ga., for Liverpool, England, on May 22, 1819.

That lone paddle-wheeled steam and sail ship is a far cry from the warlike merchant fleet, where 160-ship convoys daily deliver the goods to fighting men and allies overseas. Like the navy, the merchant marine is now the largest in the world.

The growth of the merchant fleet has also seen a great increase in American merchant seamen. It is their heroic record of service in the war to which all give honor. They have gone down to the sea from every state in the union. In 1913 alone, 2,308 men joined the maritime service and the merchant marine cadet corps from Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska. Even more men, 26 and above, are needed.

On Maritime day, 1934, many will honor the 5,500 merchant seamen dead or missing in World War II, and raise a cheer for the 150,000 mariners now serving on the convoy lanes of all the free waters of the world.

Freedom of Will
SPEAKING OF THE freedom of Americans to express honest opinions and vote their convictions, uninfluenced by labor bosses or captains of big business, the Omaha World-Herald offers this in the course of editorial comment:

"The great body of workers in all lines of endeavor are not members of any Green or Murray or Lewis group, and the great body of employers owe no allegiance to big business and are free from its control. They recognize no bosses. The immense majority of our people do their own deciding.

"And that majority we believe desire neither a union labor government at Washington nor a big business government. They want a representative government, dealing fairly and impartially with all interests and all groups, well disposed toward all, and recognizing alike the rights and needs of labor and the rights and needs of owners and managers. For only under such government can our country hope for stable prosperity and orderly well-being."

Fears Gone
THE fear felt a few years ago that Nebraska would revert to a desert has been knocked out during recent weeks. When dry weather prevailed and grasshoppers added to the destruction, it is recalled that university authorities on soil and insects shook their heads dubiously over any prospect for successful agriculture in this mid-west area. Dry years had brought insects to finish the devastating work of drought. Dist bowls developed, and withered fields answered in the negative the cry for crops. Disheartened, many left the state.

But conditions have changed. Moisture has been ample, setting at naught the forebodings of bulging university brows. Fears of perpetual drought and everlasting dead vegetation have been effectually extinguished. Former residents who left the state in discouragement a few years ago, will no doubt return if they are able to do so. Former Nebraskans usually yearn to come back.

Coming Battle
LINES of political battle seem to be forming between union labor and other groups. Leaders of the former seem eager to dominate the country at the sacrifice of other necessary interests. It appears to be overlooked that investors in agriculture and industry are quite as indispensable to production and prosperity as are labor forces. Giving to no one group a lion's share of power, but to each a reasonable proportion, should be recognized as essential. But labor union agencies have been flushed with success under new deal leadership so long that they appear unwilling to make concessions that would balance the economic ship and insure equal advantages.

One columnist suggests that if republicans were permitted to name the vice presidential nominee of the democratic party they would name Wallace in the belief that he would weaken the ticket. It is reported that the CIO is friendly to Wallace and would give its support to him. Henry's theories of government as expressed through the years put him in harmony with the group leaders who would relish new and enlarged restrictions on business. The World-Herald calls him the "quart-of-milk-per-day dreamer," and many people like the implied promise even if it means nothing.

Governor Dewey of New York and Governor Warren of California disclaim being presidential candidates, each sticking to gubernatorial responsibilities, and looking with outward indifference on looming national honors. But the question involving Dewey's political destiny seems definitely disposed of by popular demand, and Warren may land in second place if he does not finally and peremptorily refuse. If the latter happens, some other strong man, advantageously located, will no doubt be chosen.

Brig. Gen. Guy Henninger of Lincoln, issues an explanation to cure what he says were erroneous impressions gathered from draft changes previously announced by Washington headquarters. The Lincoln correction alters somewhat the interpretations placed on the Washington order. General Henninger increases liability for men between 26 and 37. It is probable that uncertainty and confusion in draft rules which officials wish to clarify, will not cease until after the war ends.

Floods threaten evil consequences beyond immediate destruction. Contaminated water is a source of danger, and it will be guarded against by inhabitants of stricken districts. Nurses and doctors have been busy at Norfolk immunizing children and adults against possible typhoid. Also citizens have been warned to be on the lookout for germ-infested foods. The trials of recovering from devastating floods like the one that visited Norfolk are many and great.

Gallup does not lack for subjects on which to pin nation-wide surveys. His latest pertains to price ceilings, and he finds a large majority in favor of them.

A good deal of feverish anxiety could be avoided if one could justify results of faulty judgment on the ground of noble intentions.

What makes poor or indifferent service worse is not to give a darn.

Saunders' Record.
(Lincoln Journal)

Dale Clark, state chairman of the war finance committee, says that in Saunders county bank deposits increased $1,900,000 and that war bond sales totaled $1,750,000. Saunders county is the one where the former county war finance chairman, Emil Placek of Wahoo, favored putting special pressure on those who had the money but refused to buy the bonds. The fact that Saunders county bought in bonds almost her entire savings would indicate that Placek did a very good job despite the "skinflints."

Motor Accidents Increase.
(Omaha Journal-Stockman)

Motor vehicle fatalities in urban districts are reported "rising at a dizzy pace". A sharp increase is found for the first quarter of the year, but during the same period rural accidents decreased slightly. Automobile insurance companies find this condition reflected in heavier losses. Several reasons are assigned for the increase in fatal accidents. The presumed speed limit is widely violated; there is more night driving in conjunction with war work; and more pedestrians are on the streets, older people being involved in both cases; cars are not in as good condition, with both labor and repairs costly and difficult to obtain; and, perhaps most important of all, war emotion has given rise to a don't-care-what-happens attitude among many people.

The Job Maker.
(Omaha Journal-Stockman)

Along with simplification of the individual income tax, now certain to be accomplished, Congress will give attention to the corporation tax. There is much sentiment for a measure of relief on that to permit business concerns to make some provision for reorganization, so that they will be in position to continue employment through what promises to be a very difficult period in the national economy. Full functioning of the job makers of the country is obviously highly important. Of the job maker himself one writer says:

"The job maker plays the most constructive role in our economy. Upon his willingness and ability to take risks and assume responsibilities for the mobilization of men, money and materials depend the welfare of all. He should be rewarded commensurate with the risks involved and services rendered. He should be provided with a favorable climate in which to operate, and he should not be harassed and harried at every turn, nor his prerogatives so interfered with that he cannot perform his essential functions. He should be looked upon as a benefactor and not as a malefactor, as he was branded in the 1930's."

In that connection it is worthy of reflection that the American farmer, in the aggregate of his operations, is one of our biggest job makers.

Secret Sessions.
(Norfolk Daily News)

Editorial Research Reports, a service to which this newspaper subscribes, is making a survey to determine how general is the practice of holding secret or executive sessions of city councils and school boards.

It announces that replies from sixty-three cities show that in twenty-three, councils regularly hold executive sessions. In eight others, including Norfolk, there are "occasional" or "rare" secret sessions. Some school boards hold closed sessions when they discuss the qualifications of teachers, insisting that secrecy enables them to discuss delicate matters more freely than they could in open session.

Newspapers generally oppose these secret sessions, because of the belief that if they become common they will be abused. An editorial in the Roanoke, Va., World-News discusses a secret session of the council in which a proposal for the city to buy the street car company was discussed. As a result, the paper says, "one is left to do his own guessing."

It adds that "secret sessions of the council are as unnecessary and unwise as is the proposal that was considered at this secret meeting."

We think that most of us would say that a matter as important to the people as the purchase of a street railway company would better be discussed openly and above board. Any other course leads to the suspicion of dark things that have to be hidden from the public knowledge.

There might not be the same unanimity in regard to a meeting of the St. Louis city council, at which, reports said, plans for the annual picnic were discussed. Next day it developed that aldermen had also discussed a bill to permit Negroes to eat in municipal lunch rooms. "This," the report says, "was considered too controversial for open discussion." That may be true, but the fact is that the purpose of the meeting was to prevent public discussion of an important measure. A few days later the bill was passed without debate, but at least one alderman criticized the secrecy with which the subject was decided.

Secret sessions, even when held in good faith, arouse suspicions that may do more harm than would open discussion.

MARTIN DIES.

It is reported that Martin Dies, chairman of the Dies investigating committee, has expressed an intention not to run for congress again, but to retire to his Texas home and engage in private law practice. As seen from this distance, we believe retirement of Congressman Dies and dissolution of his committee would be a serious misfortune. It has seemed to us his service in detecting acts of disloyalty has been a valuable aid to the FBI and a genuine contribution to sound and orderly processes. He has of course aroused enmities and opposition, and he may be weary and disgusted, but he should be persuaded not to be driven from his post of duty. We firmly believe the Dies committee and the FBI have brought to light real grounds for complaint and have prevented the suspicions and injustices that often trailed the course of World War I.

apartments of slum-clearance projects. The physical appearance of that neighborhood had been improved, but the moral fiber of the residents had not.

The Food Supply.

(Omaha Journal-Stockman)
There is no way to know, but it is highly important that this be a good crop year. A continued plentiful supply of food is a vital factor in the war program. Food stocks are now large, and it is fortunate that improvements in preservation and storage make possible holding many kinds of food for a long time without serious loss.

The government's attitude on the food situation has changed almost overnight. "On one day," observes one commentator, "there was the appearance of scarcity, with many foods rationed. On the next day, there was the appearance of glut, with food rationing largely abandoned." Back of this was large accumulation, coupled with, or at least gambling on, the expectation that this would be another good crop year.

In that connection, great emphasis is again being placed on victory gardens, and a home canning program. In the aggregate, gardening makes a vast contribution to the home food supply, relieving commercial canners (to supply the needs of armed forces and lend-lease. The need for continued home canning is reflected in the announced program (calling for the setting aside of 50 per cent of commercially canned vegetables, against 25 per cent a year ago, and 70 per cent of commercially canned fruits, against 50 per cent last year, for military use and lend-lease.

There is much optimism in high military circles with respect to the favorable outcome of the war, and at a not too distant date, and now if the weather will just take a favorable turn to insure our food supply, we can be humbly thankful. One thing certain, the farmer will do his part, to the last ounce of his energy.

Softness.

(Omaha World-Herald)
In the early days of the war there was a good deal of talk about softness and some questioning of whether we had the fiber to carry us through a long, hard, grueling conflict with implacable foes. That was when Guadalcanal, New Guinea, Tarawa, Iwo Jima, Sicily, Cassino, and Anzio were still just places on the map, instead of shrines to American valor. Of late the question has been brought up, but some evidence of an interesting nature has recently given out at an army airfield.

While preparing for a review of troops at Chanute Field, Ill., it was discovered that a meadow lark with four young were resting where the flag was to be planted. She complained bitterly against having her housekeeping disturbed. In deference to her wishes the review was moved to another part of the parade ground.

That undoubtedly is softness of a sort. But taken in connection with the evidence of toughness that has come from the landing

FOR PROTECTION.

One way to prevent legislation in congress is to let a bill die of old age in committee. A measure now said to be languishing in the congressional judiciary committee is designed to protect private enterprise, and its enactment is now urged. The Industrial Press Service mentions it is this way: "Whatever the outcome of the Montgomery Ward seizure by federal government, it has focused attention on a congressional bill long pending for consideration. The Gwynne fair government practices act, introduced by Rep. Gwynne of Iowa, it aims at protecting constitutional processes and civil liberties, at preventing usurpation of authority by the executive and his agencies. It would require the holding of hearings, the compliance with 'orderly processes' and review by the courts. Arbitrary extension of the war power act to cover seizure of a mercantile concern would be declared illegal. All in all, the Gwynne bill would seem to be putting the law behind the assertion that 'this is still America.'" beaches and the foxholes, it is the kind of softness that we must admire. Bold as lions in the presence of shell fire, bombing bombs and enemies with guns and grenades in their hands, gentle as doves in the neighborhoods of a meadow lark's nest.

Not Gold Enough.

(Lincoln Journal)
Noting that an Arizona local draft board telegraphed the senate military affairs committee which is considering a proposal to pay members that "there is not enough gold in Fort Knox to buy us today," a Lincolnian who has been on a board from the beginning asks that we say those are also his sentiments.

The pride draft board members derive from performing a patriotic duty is all the pay they want. To offer to pay them is more insulting than flattering. It is not the long hours spent on a thankless job and sacrificing personal interests, but the knowledge that doing the job equitably causes heartaches in many homes, that makes it a depressing task which only patriotism can impel a man to perform.

Pass Pension Bill.

The senate in Washington, D. C., passed a bill boosting pensions for disabled veterans of World Wars I and II from $100 to $115 a month, where disability is severer-connected, and from $40 to $50 monthly in case nonseverer-connected disability. The measure was sent to the house.

Corn Needed To Save Lives

Lives of wounded American fighting men are being saved by the corn grown on American farms!

Penicillin, the drug that acts with miraculous speed and curative power, depends on corn to keep it moving to the fighting fronts. Its use in the manufacturing process has already quadrupled production.

But the War Food Administration reports the possibility of serious curtailment in this, as well as many other vital war production jobs, unless processing plants receive more corn immediately. The Army and the War Production Board have joined with WFA in asking that growers get corn moving as rapidly as possible from farm to refinery.

Starch manufacture takes the largest amount of corn used commercially for war products. Armament and airplane manufacture, lifeboats, parachutes, and camouflage cloth need it. Even the paper that protects food and other supplies, and the corrugated and V-board containers used in floating supplies ashore to invasion troops take starch.

Syrup made from corn plays an equally important role. The Army K-Ration depends on it. The drug industry needs it. And so do scores of other war items such as textiles and brake linings for war plants.

Refining plants require less than one out of every 24 bushels of corn grown in the United States last year, but any break in the movement of corn to the processing plants could have a serious effect on the entire war program, says WFA.

Farmers: Help Prevent Inflation
by Asher Holston
Chairman, Dept. of Agricultural Economics
University of Wisconsin

FARMERS remember the "Silk Shirt" era of the last war. That era was marked by 75 cent butterfat, 20 dollar hogs, and 100, 200- and in some states 300 dollars an acre for farm land. Farmers also remember the "no shirt" era of the Thirties — 25 cent butterfat, 5 dollar hogs, and land so low the mortgagee took it. One way of keeping one's shirt after this war is not to buy too many silk shirts now, so to speak.

There is an old saying to the effect that he who sleeps on the floor never falls out of bed. None of us want to sleep on the floor, but we should see to it that our beds are not so high as to cause serious injury in case of fall. Unduly high prices are likely to be followed by unduly low prices. That is one reason why most people in responsible walks of life appreciate the necessity of acting now to prevent inflation. Farmers are equally concerned.

Inflation is another term for unduly high prices. Inflation has a younger brother. He is a bad actor. His name is deflation. He has a habit of following his brother inflation. Deflation often means serious unemployment, lower property values, more tax delinquency, and mounting foreclosures. Add these together and the sum is farm relief. That is not the answer farmers want.

Farmers can well afford to take steps now in an attempt to avoid that sort of a situation. But inflation is not easily handled after it arrives. One cannot build a cyclone cellar after the old deluge begins to roll. Then one has time only to grab the baby and run — with no place to go. Something like that is apt to happen when inflation strikes. The best way to handle inflation is to prevent its striking.

What can farmers do? They can help keep prices from getting out of hand by helping to hold prices down now. If prices are to be held in line, the pressure under prices must be removed. The Government cannot do this job alone. There are no anti-inflation white rabbits in the magician's hat. Only the concerted efforts of you and me can turn the trick.

The forces causing prices to go up may be summarized in the statement that there are more money available for spending than there are goods and services to be bought. This is another way of saying that the demand for goods and services exceeds the available supply. Let us be specific. At the end of 1943 it was estimated that there were 42 billion dollars of spendable income in this country in excess of goods and services to be bought at the then existing prices. A year earlier the excess was 38 billion dollars. If prices are to be held in line this excess must be brought down to the level of the supply of goods and services, or the supply of goods and services must be boosted in keeping with purchasing power.

Farmers are doing their utmost to increase the supply of agricultural products. In this way they are helping to prevent inflation. The other way in which they may help is to buy less. In general there are two ways of reducing consumer purchasing power. They are:

Heavier taxes
Voluntary savings

The greater the voluntary savings the less the need for more taxes. Let us do it the voluntary way by buying more WAR BONDS and holding those bonds until maturity. power, plant capacity, and raw materials are available for increasing the supply of consumer goods. Spending then will be less likely to boost prices through the ceiling. Saving has always been an outstanding farmer trait. It is now outstanding farmer trait. It is now a patriotic duty.

Australia Is Nice And Folks Friendly

Lt. Ruth Summers, who is stationed in Australia, writes her parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. T. Ingham, that the country is beautiful and reminds her of the United States. The climate is much like that of this country. The winter season is just beginning, and days are getting shorter.

People of Australia are friendly and are much like those in the United States. Many are talented, especially along musical lines. Many fine programs are presented.

Lt. Summers receives most issues of the Herald, even though they are four or five weeks late.

Hospital and Home Are Built Overseas

When Sgt. George W. Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Iler Hansen of Winslow, left the United States some months ago to serve overseas with the 29th general hospital, he went with an organization comprised of some of the most skilled doctors, nurses, administrators and technicians available.

Sgt. Hansen entered the army three years ago and has been in the medical department of the army since entry. Serving first at Lawson general hospital, Atlanta, Ga., he was then transferred to this organization where he is a platoon leader and duty noncommissioned officer.

When the 29th arrived at their site, they found a lush, green valley, but little else. Doctors and skilled technicians "pitched in" with a unit of engineers in the unfamiliar work of actually building a hospital and a home. Wards, laboratories, mess halls and living quarters rose from the ground. Medical technicians poured concrete; laboratory technicians built their own work benches and furniture; clerks built their desks, chairs and filing cabinets. Packing

Flying Fortress Travels Unknown Route Four Hours
Just where one new Flying Fortress from the Sioux City army air base traveled for about four hours Tuesday night last week will likely always be a mystery. One engine of the ship caught fire and the crew of 10 and an instructor bailed to safety in the vicinity of Carroll and Wayne about 10:15. The plane maneuvered about in the skies, probably over Nebraska and Iowa, until 2 a.m. Wednesday when it crashed and was wrecked on a field on the Emil Vogt farm two and a half miles west of Denison, Ia.
From Wayne to Denison by direct air route is about 100 miles. However, cruising at the rate of about 200 miles an hour, the Fort must have covered about 800 miles from the time it was abandoned until it crashed.
The last minutes of the ship's flight raised the hair on the heads of many in Denison for the Fort thundered over the town only a few feet above the water tower.
When first heard by residents of Denison, the plane was going northeast. Beyond Denison, the ship turned.
After the plane came down, the propellers chopped holes in the ground and the ship bounced twice, then hit a bank, skidded along and stopped. The propellers were sheared off; motors were torn loose and the fuselage was ripped in two. From the point where the Fort struck the ground to its stopping point was 172 yards.

Loss Is Greatest In Norfolk City
Logan Creek Overflows in Wayne Vicinity After Heavy Rains.
One of the most damaging floods in history of northeast Nebraska last Friday resulted in loss estimated at a million, and a half dollars in Norfolk. No lives were lost, but many people had to be rescued from low areas. Norfolk's rainfall Thursday night was only 2.85 inches, but walls of water from points north and west, as much as 7 inches at some places inundated the city's business district and rose as far west as 8th street. Swirling torrents, carrying tons of fine silt and all kinds of loose objects, filled basements and reached well up on main floors of stores in Norfolk. Poles and other debris in the water broke windows and allowed merchandise to float away. That which remained was covered with debris. At one time water was three feet deep in the lobby of Hotel Norfolk and furniture floated about at will. One of the heavy losses was in the Norfolk News plant where large paper stocks and much equipment is housed in the basement. The paper issued a four-page edition Saturday on stocks that happened to be upstairs.
Strikes Early Friday.
The wall of water struck Norfolk about 1:20 Friday morning and fire sirens were sounded then and later to warn residents of the impending danger. The telephone office had to suspend service at 1:37 when water filled the room in which three operators were at work. Art Thomas, manager of radio station WJAG, tried to get the station operating at 4 but water in the hotel basement prevented this. He then directed getting the station into operation from the transmitter station west of town. This was the only means the city had of contacting with the outside world throughout Friday.

Library News

Librarians' Symbol of Peace.
We all look forward to the day when everywhere the guns will cease.
And even in his peculiar way makes private plans to greet the peace.
Then women look to hail their men,
And boys may plan for play or school:
The girls who worked the graveyard shift
Lay down hard hat and heavy tool.

But I, like all librarians, wait
The day the longed-for task is mine—
To close the gap, to fill the space,
Of "World War, 1939."

From the Wilson Bulletin
During the summer a new project is to be started with the help of the young readers. This is a picture file and at this time we are making a plea for pictures. Since magazines at the library cannot be cut because they are kept on file, we cannot utilize that source of material. So, anyone having pictures on any subject whatever could help by bringing them into the library. The pictures will be mounted, indexed and filed in alphabetical order. We also hope to make scrapbooks for soldiers in hospitals. Won't you look around your homes and see what you can find that we might use? Tell your friends about it too, so that they can bring in theirs.

Two books recently purchased are Yankee from Olympus, by Catherine Drinker Bowen, Great Stories from Great Lives, by Herbert Prochnow, What Became of Anna Bolton, by Louis Bromfield, Radio Material Guide, by Alstead and Tutthill, A Haunted House and Other Stories, by Virginia Woolf, and The Columnists, by Charles Fisher. The book last mentioned is a surgical survey of most of the leading newspaper columnists including Lippmann, Winchell, Pegler, Clapper, Eliot, Kent, Dorothy Thompson, Lyons, Lawrence, Pearson and others. They are called the High Priests of the Press and the liars who they are, with their backgrounds and what their prejudices are. The book is witty and acidulous and probes into the personalities and minds of these American columnists with deadly effect.

Grateful Appreciation.
Through the ever available generosity of our home town paper, we wish to acknowledge many thoughtful deeds. To those who called, to those who sent cards, letters and beautiful flowers, to the good neighbors and other friends for food and for many kindnesses and especially to the Wayne Herald for thoughtfulness and consideration, to all of you in this, our deepest sorrow, we wish to express our sincerest thanks. . . Dr. and Mrs. C. A. McMaster.

J. W. Gries was taken quite ill last Wednesday while working at his service station in Randolph. Mr. Gries' son, Frank, moved from Wayne to Iowa recently.

Cultivation Helps With Young Trees

Though this has been a good spring to start trees in Wayne county, the little trees put into the ground probably will need all the moisture they can get in July and August.

Therefore, County Agent Walter E. Harder suggests that it would be well to keep the weeds from stealing moisture from the trees. Such cultivation will be valuable in insuring success with the trees. Records in the county extension office show that at least 5,800 trees were planted in Wayne county this spring. Most of the plants are for farm woodlots and the farm home and buildings in the winter.

Loss Is Greatest In Norfolk City

folk by telephone and could not find in the city. Because of interference in the city the Wayne Herald was asked to telegraph to Norfolk radio reports and relay them by phone to Omaha.

Red Cross, police and Legion set up stations to help stranded people. A Red Cross disaster unit came from St. Louis, and soldiers came from Burning air base to assist. Neighboring towns have helped pump water and clean up the city.

Wayne Sends Pump.

Mayor Herman Lundberg and Fire Chief M. L. Ringer decided that Wayne should help Norfolk in its flood emergency, and Mr. Ringer, N. H. Bruggar, L. B. McClure and W. S. Bressler took a pump there Saturday to help move flood waters from buildings. They stayed until 7 Sunday morning after army men arrived to aid Mr. Ringer and reports the loss much heavier than appears. Large quantities of kerosene stock are ruined and cannot be salvaged except for fuel.

Al. Lucders, who went to Norfolk from here a few months ago to operate a grocery, is reported to have lost about $8,000 worth of stock in the disaster.

Wayne firemen pumped water from the basement of the Al. Lucders store. They also pumped out the basements of a bakery, jewelry and furniture stores.

Flood waters moving on down the Elkholm Saturday inundated parts of Stanton, Pilger and Beemer but the damage was not great.

The heavy rains, which followed several weeks of intermittent showers, resulted in the overflow of Logan creek through Wayne county but losses here were comparatively light.

Logan Valley Flooded. Logan valley from near Carroll to Wayne was a sea of water about a half mile wide in places Friday morning. The swirling water carried much silt as well as corn stalks, planks and other loose objects. The spillway at the south edge of Wayne was inundated early Friday and travel was halted for several hours. The creek also went out near the railroad on the highway near the railroad track between Wayne and Wakefield, and that road could not be used for travel until Saturday.

The creek south of Concord failed to carry the drainage and the valley south and east of Concord filled for a time. Water from the creek north of Wakefield rose to the depot there.

Dog creek north of Wayne about two miles, ran bank deep, but the channel and lagoons alongside were able to hold the water.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fredrickson, whose home is near the service station two miles north of Wayne, took their children, Elaine, Gene and Clove, to the James Mcintosh home Thursday night in case of possible danger. Mr. and Mrs. Fredrickson remained at the station. The flood waters reached the top of the creek banks but did not spill.

Rainfall Heavier West. Rainfall Thursday night registered 2.48 inches in Wayne, but flood waters from points north-west added to the amount. T. P. Roberts reports 7 inches in containers that sat outside his place southwest of Carroll. The creek within that vicinity was the highest within his recollection.

Water ran over the highway between Wayne and Carroll Friday morning at a depth of about four inches and soon went down. But a wall of water had gone over the road earlier.

Fences were piled high with corn stalks and other debris. Some stacks of stalks, hay, planks, railroad ties, etc., were so deep that they resembled hay stacks.

Harrowing Experience. The Dale Bruggers and James Mabens had a harrowing experience at the crest of the flood about 1:30 Friday morning. They were returning to their homes west of town after attending a party at J. H. Bruggar's. Mr. and Mrs. Bruggar, Dorothy, 4, and Norman, 4 months, were in the car leading Mr. and Mrs. Mabens, Norma and Shirley were in the other. At the railroad crossing about three miles west of Wayne they had gone through a stretch of water-covered highway and saw that the road ahead was deep so they turned their cars around on the tracks and started back to Wayne. The Bruggar car swayed toward a ditch, water covered the lights and the engine stalled so they decided to transfer to the Mabens car and return to Wayne. The children were moved safely. Mrs. Bruggar then stepped out to go from her car to the other and the rushing water, then knee deep and filled with debris, made the transfer hazardous. Mr. Bruggar was holding to the back of the Mabens car to help guide it through the water. Within a few minutes a wall of water rose to his arms and he could no longer hold onto the car. The Mabens machine did get through the water and Mr. Bruggar managed to wade to safety. The two families returned to Wayne. The Mabens stayed in the E. A. Larson home and the Bruggers at N. H. Bruggar's. The experience was harrowing one. Besides the swirling water that had gathered dirt and loose particles filled their garments.

The Bruggar car, abandoned until the next morning, sat in the midst of corn stalks, mud, water, wagon boxes, planks and pheasants.

Mr. Bruggar and Mr. Mabens were able to go to their homes early Friday to take care of stock.

Perry Stock Saved. Though Herbert Perry was fearful Thursday night that he had lost some of the livestock in his pasture, the 37 cattle and 16 calves were saved by neighbors (soup) and east of town. Strong currents in flood waters carried the livestock down stream. Fences stopped the animals, and neighbors who were out all night to guard against losses rescued the animals and put them on higher ground.

The Perry land along Logan creek was badly washed and has a deep deposit of silt and rubbish. The ground had been so wet from earlier rains that it had not been plowed as yet. All fences were taken down.

Home Is Vacated. When Mr. Perry was unable to cross the swollen water, to see about his stock, he helped the Merle Peterson family vacate their home at D. Hall nursery grounds where the dike broke and flooded the grounds. Water filled the basement of the Peterson home and rose into the first story rooms. Overstuffed furniture was placed on tables, and Mr. and Mrs. Peterson and four children went to the Jess Peterson home about 3 Friday morning. As they left, the brick basement walls caved in. A green house car near the Peterson home was completely submerged.

D. Hall plans to build a home for his nursery caretaker on higher ground, likely at the south edge of Main street south of Elms Sunday.

Nursery Stock Lost. Mr. Hall reports the flood waters the highest in 25 years. When water flooded his nursery grounds at the south edge of town, thousands of plants and much nursery stock involving a lot of money and labor, were inundated and destroyed. Mr. Hall will likely convert the grounds into an orchard and establish his nursery on higher land.

Tom Johnson had about 30 cattle in a pasture east of the airport Friday when the flood struck. Some of the animals were safe on higher ground east of the creek and others were in the flood waters west of the stream. Stanley Fuller and others at the airport helped get the stock to higher ground and no animals were lost.

Worst in Ten Years. The rendering works east of Wayne on Logan creek was flooded worse than in 10 years, according to John Stull who has been employed here for that length of time. Water filled the basement of the plant and rose three feet in the boiler room on the first floor. For the first time it got into the tankage shed which is separate and on higher ground. Water entered the basement of the home of Bruce Chevy, plant manager, who lives nearby. About 3:30 Friday morning Mr. and Mrs. Chevy realized the possible danger and took their two daughters, one a small baby, to the Walter Woods home.

The rendering plant resumed operation Saturday after men pumped water from the building and scooped out about 18 inches of mud.

Silt Covers Runways. Wayne airport runways were covered with flood water Friday but by Saturday the water receded and only three small pools remained around the buildings. Water reached the floor of the shop but leaks in the roof did most damage. Rain coming through the roof caused some equipment to start rusting. Water reached to within six inches of the "ready" room, but did not get into the room.

Flays Over Norfolk. Mr. Fuller was able to take off in a plane Friday afternoon from near the hangar and flew over the flooded area at Norfolk. He saw lots of cars and trucks that were inundated on Main street. Oil covered the water at the south edge of the city.

Three Washouts Here. Railroad bed and tracks were washed out on the main line between Wakefield and Wayne, also between Wayne and Winside and on the branch line between Wayne and Carroll. About two miles east of Wayne a half mile of track was washed into a meadow and the bed out in many places. The wash on the Wayne-Winside sector is near the curve just west of this point. About a mile of track was taken out on the Carroll branch where one railroad bridge is also missing. Section men report this break about four miles west. Another washout was near Pender.
