

Work Program Is Officially Disposed of—WPA Goes Into Rest, It Is Hoped to Stay—Ringling Circus Surfers' Holocaust—Farm to Market Roads—Skeletons—Before Election.

After an existence of nine years, the WPA passed out June 30. It was created to supply jobs during the depression, and it cost a total of $10,688,249.00. The resulting service was sometimes useful, often next to worthless. Workers seemed to understand that having something to do and receiving liberal pay for it was more the plan than the demand for improvements, and thus leaning on novels too often and too long became a source of jest and often serious criticism.

Having faded out as no longer needed in the presence of wartime demands, it is hoped the future will see no ground for the WPA's return. It is believed private enterprise will be able to furnish sufficient postwar employment. It is not healthy to rest on the government or turn to jobs that, if war-torn, should be provided by communities benefited. The WPA did not inspire pride in accomplishment. It often made workers think they were accepting pay for doing little of nothing of value.

Postwar work may become a perplexing problem if the policy of big pay and little accomplishment continues. The government is now paying higher wages than private industry could stand. Large manufacturing centers, controlled by unions, have reacted with wage scales that would paralyze small businesses in rural communities. High living costs of high-priced localities modify advantages. Otherwise, the exodus from farms and small towns would become a calamity.

Private enterprise will do its best from the top down, and can no doubt meet all requirements if the government does not allow wages and costs of living to soar beyond endurance.

Home-Front Tragedies. Thursday's dailies reported more home-front tragedies than usual. Besides a mine disaster in Ohio and a fatal train wreck in Tennessee, an appalling catastrophe was the fire that swept the crowded big tent of Ringling Brothers' circus at Hartford, Conn., causing a death toll of 159 and injuring more than 200 others. The great, circus audience was suddenly turned from gaiety to horror. Attempts are being made to fix responsibility, but they will not restore the lives lost nor repair damage to the world's leading amusement industry.

There are other circuses, but none to compare with the gigantic Ringling aggregation. It had absorbed Barnum's and Bailey's, and nothing was left to approach it in size or quality. The future of Ringling's is uncertain. Most persons, young and old, have seen this circus and had been thrilled by it.

No one is too old to forget that circus day was a high light in community life. Especially children were delighted, and their elders were not far behind. Bands playing spangled vehicles and colorfully gowned performers, with professional clowns and dancing high-wire artists, checked into memories never-forgotten experiences. But ruin and death stalked in the path of the world's remaining big circus, and what turn will be taken in that line of amusement remains to be seen.

For More Convenience. The importance of hard-surfaced farm-to-market roads is emphasized during seasons of unusual rains, resulting in almost impossible travel difficulties. Not much gravel is required to make roads passable, and the cost is light compared with that involved in using asphalt or cement.

The convenient ranks with gassing farms with electricity, thus facilitating work and removing much drudgery. Soil conservation is another farm necessity stressed in wet years when, without restraints, the rich top soil is often washed away. Improvements need to be made to make farming more attractive as well as more profitable.

May Be Imaginary. Even if family skeletons are not dragged out to delight idle gossips, they are a source of annoyance for those immediately concerned. It is better to exclude skeletons from one's planning, and then one may devote more time to worrying about more creditable things. A cousin once gave me a creepy, creepy sense of guilt. It does not do that if it is not a skeleton, and contrary to fears, it could stand exposure to public knowledge. Skeletons are often largely imaginary.

Preparing the Way. The purpose of things done or avoided preliminary to an election should be too apparent to influence results. People are not so dumb they do not see or understand. Persons angling for popular support often place a too low rating on the thinking ability of the voting masses.

Area Is Visited By Heavy Rains

Moisture for Half Year Is More Than Total for 1942 or 1943.

Clouds gathered early Monday morning to bring northeast Nebraska its second soaking within a few days. The rain registered .98 inch in Wayne and 1.24 at Albert Watson's north of Wayne, where an inch of this fell within 15 minutes. The gauge at Carroll registered 1.25, at Winside 1.15 and at Wakefield .86. Norfolk reports 1.19 coming within 50 minutes. The area extending as far as Neligh, Yankton, South Sioux City and West Point had from .75 to 1.5. Skies cleared Monday noon, but clouds massed again Tuesday morning when they brought heavy showers registering 1.4 in Wayne.

Heavy rains fell in Wayne Thursday afternoon and evening and early Friday morning. The State National bank gauge registered .8 inch Thursday and .15 inch Friday. Farmers report washing in some fields and some small grain went down under impact of the heavy rain.

Travel was not interrupted by the rain Thursday, but traffic was rerouted several hours Monday afternoon when flood waters covered the spillway south of Wayne. Buses and trains were mainly on schedule.

Logan creek was out of its banks Thursday and Monday. Railroad tracks west of Wayne were under water and only damage was washing of gravel.

The Thursday rain was general throughout northeast Nebraska. Concord reports 1.5; Laurel, 1.3; Norfolk, .8; Plager, .35; Randolph, .75; Fremont and places in that section reported but a sprinkle.

Flash floods caused by overflow of Perry creek in west Sioux City, resulted in an estimated damage between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 in that city. It is thought about 300 homes were damaged or destroyed by the waters. No deaths were reported, although a number of residents were hospitalized. Sioux City air base sent 43 trucks and all available enlisted men to help in rescue operations. At least eight boats were brought by the army to rescue persons stranded in water too deep for the trucks.

Shop in Flood Area. The plumbing shop of Harry Armstrong, son-in-law of Mrs. A. A. Welch of Wayne, was in the area of flood water in Sioux City. The shop, on west 7th street had some flood water in the basement and some on the first floor. Mr. Armstrong scooped four inches of mud from the first floor. Streets in that region were deep in mud. No loss was caused at the Armstrong home in Morningside. The city was without electricity a day and a half as result of the storm.

Exceeds Two Years. Figures at the government gauge maintained by Albert Watson, four miles north of Wayne, show that moisture this year is already above that for the entire years of 1942 and 1943. The amount to July 10 was 20.08. In 1942 the total for 12 months was 20.02 and in 1943 it was 18.79.

The 1942 record of 20.02 was scattered as follows: January, .16; February, .39; March, 2.25; April, .47; May, 2.17; June, 3.91; July, 2.23; August, 3.34; September, 3.81; October, .46; November, .25; December, .58.

The 1943 record for 1943 came as follows: January, .11; February, .39; March, .28; April, .92; May, 3.47; June, 4.05; July, 2.40; August, 1.87; September, .82; October, 1.61; November, .80; December, .03.

Recordings totaling 20.08 all ready for 1944 are: January, 1.50; February, .44; March, .56; April, 4.20; May, 5.85; June, 4.19; July, up to the 10th, 3.34.

Rainfall the latter part of the week brought the total for July to Wayne to 2.82 inches. July 3, 1.38 inches fell and 52 inch fell the fourth Monday and Tuesday rains increased the total to 4.40.

Showers Tuesday morning registered 1 inch at Winside.

LAST WEEK'S FLOOD HAD COUNTERPART IN AN EARLY DAY

RIVERS and creeks running through or near low areas are attractive and useful, though sometimes, swollen beyond building capacities, they become sources of destruction and loss. Sioux City and Ponca were among severest sufferers from last week's torrential rains. Ponca, which called on different towns to help pump water from flooded basements, reports the worst flood in its history. It was in 1881 when the Missouri river inundated low lands in Dakota Territory, that Army creek bordering Ponca, was sent on a rampage by water from rapidly melting snow. Of that water experience, the History of Dixon County says: "In Ponca, on that occasion, people had to leave without going away from home. A large part of the town appeared as though built in the sea. Four spans of the new railroad bridge went out, and 80 tons of mill-rail track were demoralized and in part carried off. Sidewalks rose from their foundations and settled away and piles of wood were distributed in all directions. Cells generally were filled and many residences and some business houses had water from one to four feet deep above the lower floor. It was unpleasant except to those who enjoyed watching the streets on parts, but it was nothing compared to the loss and suffering on the Missouri bottoms."

Has Foot Wound From Jap Sniper

Pvt. Stanley Gamble Doing Well on Hospital Ship in Pacific Region.

Pvt. Stanley Gamble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Gamble of Wayne, writes June 24 from a hospital ship in the Pacific that he is recovering nicely from a left foot wound inflicted by a Jap sniper's rifle. The ship surgeon told the Wayne youth that he thinks the wound will heal all right without being touched. Two bones are smashed, the fourth toe and the tarsal bone. The Wayne infantryman tells that he is well cared for on the ship. He has a comfortable bed with inner-spring mattress, and crutches for getting about. Capable doctors and nurses, and the patient and good meals are provided.

Opinion Given In Land Action

Ruling of District Judge Is Entered in Lueders and Luschen Matter.

Ruling that a deed is not a valid and enforceable instrument, District Judge F. H. Pollock here Friday found for the defendant in the land ownership action brought by Chris Lueders against John Luschen, et al. The judge ruled, however, that Mr. Lueders is entitled to judgment of $500 with interest and costs. The plaintiff on Monday filed motion for a new trial.

In his written opinion, the judge mentioned that the evidence established the fact that Mr. Luschen bought a 240-acre farm in Wayne county in November, 1912, for $14,400, paying $1,000 to bind the deal. It was shown that Mr. Luschen and Mr. Lueders agreed orally to share the deal, the former to buy the improved 120 acres for $7,800 and the latter to buy the unimproved 120 for $6,600. Mr. Lueders gave Mr. Luschen a check for $500 as his share of the down payment. The check bore the words, "First payment on farm."

Plaintiff charged that defendant refused to convey the land as agreed. "I find that the plaintiff has proven by clear and convincing evidence an oral agreement of the defendant to sell and convey to him the east 120 acres of the farm for $6,600. This evidence is amply corroborated," wrote Judge Pollock. Then the judge quotes statutes that provide that "every conveyance of real estate, or contract for sale of real estate, shall be void unless the contract or some note or memorandum be in writing and signed by the party."

Since the plaintiff's check did not contain a description of the real estate or terms or conditions of the agreement, the judge ruled that it is not a sufficient memorandum to be a binding contract. Judge Pollock ruled that Mr. Lueders is entitled to recovery of his $500 with interest at 6 per cent from December 2, 1942, and costs of the action. Since evidence shows that the land has increased in value, this decision denies plaintiff opportunity to profit as he could have if the contract had been enforceable, the judge stated.

H. E. Siman is attorney for Mr. Lueders and Fred Deutsch for Mr. Luschen. Mr. Deutsch succeeded R. W. Bartels who went to Omaha.

Survey Territory In Drainage Plan

Meeting of All Interested Will Be Called Soon to Consider Reports.

Surveys of the territory east of Wayne, in connection with widening and straightening Logan creek to take care of flood waters, were started Thursday and Friday last week. Gary Bost, soil conservation service engineer from Lincoln, was here last week working with men from the soil conservation district in Wayne.

The plan is that this material will be assembled in Lincoln and will be sent to the soil conservation office in Wayne in the near future. As soon as that information arrives, all persons interested in the surveys will meet. As yet, however, no date for the meeting has been set.

Flooding of Logan valley during heavy rains this season prompted action to improve drainage.

Capt. Tom Cavanaugh Calls Parents Sunday and Is To Arrive Soon.

Capt. Tom Cavanaugh, Flying Fortress navigator, who was reported missing in action April 25, telephoned his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Cavanaugh of Wayne, from New York Sunday evening. The young man expects to arrive here about Friday on a leave.

The officer had been based in England since January. He had completed seven missions by April 13, one of them being the big raid on Berlin March 4. While in England this spring he earned the air medal and his promotion to captain in March.

Capt. Cavanaugh was flying his original crew April 25. Others returning from the same flight thought all had parachuted to safety.

Plan Cooperation In Dairy Breeding

Wayne Herd Owners Expect To Meet Soon to Form New Organization.

Wayne Dairy Breeding association, which now has 90 agreement contracts signed by dairymen who report 655 cows on hand, plans to cooperate with Norfolk association in order that both may operate more economically. However, Wayne association is planned as an independent organization, except as its board of supervisors and members may choose to cooperate by contract or otherwise with the Norfolk group.

Agriculture committee of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce held an organization meeting for the proposed artificial dairy breeding association in the Norfolk trade territory Wednesday evening. The Norfolk association will probably establish a bull-herd as soon as possible after it is officially organized. Wayne Dairy Breeding association plans to call an official organization meeting in the near future.

Any dairymen within 20 miles of Wayne may cooperate as a member in the Wayne association. Any dairy man interested in additional information should see the Wayne membership committee composed of Wm. E. Von Seggern, chairman, Wayne; Clarence Beckler and Joe Beckenbauer, Wakefield; Raymond Langemeier, Ralph Beckenbauer and Wayne Gilliland, Wayne; Donald Healer, Wakefield; Gail Sellen, Laurel; or Walter R. Harder, county extension agent. Earl Anderson, Randolph, is also assisting in securing membership in the west part of Wayne county.

Investments During Month Are Expected to Bring Amount Up Some

Dixon county this week had invested about $285,000 in bonds in the Fifth war loan. The quota is $385,000. The county's purchases are expected to increase as E. F. and G bonds bought any time during July count in the drive. Robert Anderson of Wakefield, is chairman for Dixon county.

Railroad Battalion Getting Experience

The track platoon of a railroad operating battalion from Ft. Snelling, Minn., who have been here the past few weeks helping repair the railroad damage caused by the flood as a part of their military training, will be here awhile longer. These men are preparing for their future duties by learning to build and re-build bridges, tracks and other railroad equipment.

The Wayne youth has two brothers in service. Sgt. Ronald Grunke is with the air corps and has been in England the past 14 months. Cpl. Marvin Grunke has been in Alaska nearly a year.

Calvin Grunke, in defense work in Newport, Ore., arrived July 5 to spend a month at home. He came at this time especially to see his brother, Lester.

WAYNE COUNTY IS FAR OVER THE TOP IN BUYING BONDS

IT IS highly gratifying to learn that Wayne county went well over the top in meeting its quota in the late war loan drive. Sensing both the government need and the soundness of the investment, rural precincts and towns responded with refreshing promptness and generosity. Many citizens realize that in loaning to the government, they are also saving to handle post-war improvements. As these bonds trickle back into circulation after the emergency, they will sustain prosperity. Liberal bond investments and an all-time high in local bank deposits speak well for this county's finances and for its cash reserves that will be available in the postwar reconstruction period.

Arm Is Fractured On French Coast

Pfc. John W. Groskurth Has Second Injury Serving With Infantry.

Pfc. John W. Groskurth, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Groskurth of Wayne, suffered a fracture of the upper right arm late in June while serving with the infantry in France. The injury resulted when "one of our planes strafed by mistake." The youth had suffered facial wounds when in Sicily.

The arm fracture is between the elbow and shoulder, and the member has been placed in a cast. The youth is in a hospital in England and writes June 25, with his left hand, that he is "feeling well and eating well." He asks his folks not to worry as he "is fine except for the weight of the cast." In a later letter the youth tells that a 50-caliber slug was taken from his arm June 28 and the cast was removed. The wound will require about two months to heal.

Pfc. Groskurth wrote from England June 7 and from France June 13 so he must have gone over between those dates. A letter posted in France June 22 was in his right hand and the one June 25 was written with his left hand from England. Late word mentions that the June 22 letter had just been written and was in his pocket ready to be sent when he was injured. Buddie mailed it for him when he was flown back to England to a hospital.

During the two weeks the Wayne soldier was in France, his parents received 11 letters written there.

War Bond Total Well Over Goal

Wayne County Investments Surpass Quota Assigned In Fifth Loan.

Wayne county "went over the top" in the Fifth war bond drive which closed Saturday with a total of $650,000. The quota was $476,200.

Credit for attaining the goal is due to both rural and town districts as all did well in helping attain the goal. As a whole all parts of the county did better in this drive than in previous ones.

All E, F and G bonds bought during July will count on the Fifth war loan so the total will likely be substantially increased.

Change Effected In Farm Program

Revision Is Made in Plan To Increase Supply of Seeds for Planting.

To meet the critical need for grass and legume seeds, changes in the AAA conservation program have been made. These changes include removal of the 25-acre limit on payments for harvesting these seeds and exemption of payments for this practice from the farm allowance. The revised plan also calls for special payments of 3/2c per pound, cleaned basis, for red clover seed, and 2 1/2c per pound, cleaned basis, for alfalfa and alsike clover seed harvested. These payments will be in addition to AAA acreage payments, states T. P. Roberts of the local committee.

The seed payments are provided as a result of the inclusion of 12 1/2 million dollars in the department of agriculture appropriation bill.

Seeds for which the need is particularly acute are red clover, alfalfa, alsike, sweet clover, Ladino clover and sudan grass. Since Pearl Harbor, this country has used more of these seeds than it has produced, and imports have declined. Unless everything possible is done to increase the harvest of these seeds this year, the available supply will fall far short of requirements. Domestic forage supply and conservation practices cannot be maintained unless more seeds are harvested.

Barn Is Destroyed By Lightning Fire

A. T. Cavanaugh Property Is Lost During Early Storm Monday Morning.

The barn on the A. T. Cavanaugh farm three miles south and a half east of Wayne was destroyed by fire which started when the structure was struck by lightning in the early Monday morning storm. The building is valued at $1,000 and is insured. Some hay and a small amount of equipment were also lost.

Wayne fire department responded and prevented spread of the blaze to other buildings. The barn burned fast and was practically gone by the time firemen arrived.

No one is living on the farm at present. Mrs. Ed. Frevert, who resides near, saw the fire and notified Mr. Cavanaugh.

Plan Cookery Clinic Here on Wednesday

A pressure cookery clinic will be held at Wayne city hall Wednesday, July 19, at 1:30, according to County Agent Walter R. Harder. The clinic is available to homemakers who may call Wayne county extension office for reservation. Enrollment is limited to 12 women who own and will bring their pressure canner to the clinic.

Miss Mary Runnalls, state home management specialist, will discuss care and operation of pressure canners; she will also supervise cleaning and adjustment of the safety valves on lids, as well as testing of pressure gauges.

Miss May Beth Herndon, district home demonstration agent of Wayne, Dixon and Cedar counties, will assist Miss Runnalls with the clinic.

Small Grain Uneven In Dixon County

Small grain in Dixon county is uneven and much of it very short, according to Agent Howard Gillaspie. Combines are limited in number and Mr. Gillaspie urges farmers to make arrangements for use of one at a time.

Cats and barley combined before they are fully ripe are likely to heat in the bin resulting in loss in feed value, lowering of the grade and damage to germination. If permitted to ripen completely, shattering may occur and danger of weather and insect damage is increased. These problems may be largely overcome by windrowing the crop at the stage normally accepted as proper for handling. Windrowing may be done with the binder or header. When cured the crops may then be threshed with a pick-up combine. This method of harvest requires less labor than shock threshing and often results in a better quality grain.

It is important that the width of the cut when windrowing be no wider than can be handled by the pick-up combine. Unless the stand of grain is light, the width of cut should be the same as the width of the swath taken by the combine.

Unless the grain is very ripe when cut and the weather quite hot, dry and windy, it will need to cure three to four days before it is ready for the combine and for safe storage, states Mr. Gillaspie.

"Home-Made Windrows," a short circular of the Nebraska agricultural extension service, gives pictures and description of three types of windrowers made from old binders. L. E. Larsen prepared the circular from his experiences with farmers in South Dakota and Nebraska. Copies are available at each county extension agent's office.

Easy Ways to Quench Thirst

ON A HOT JULY day, everybody feels like tipping up a whole bucketful of cool thirst-quencher! But there are simpler and far more interesting ways to do it. For instance:

Iced Tea and Iced Coffee—the important things to remember, of course, are that both tea and coffee must be brewed in double strength, and should be freshly made, if you want good flavor when they're iced.

Orange Egg Milk Shake is satisfying and easy to make: combine 1 1/2 cups each of chilled orange juice and milk in a shaker or mason-type glass jar; add 1 egg (slightly beaten), 3 tbsps. sugar and 1 tsp. grated orange rind; put lid on jar and shake well.

For Children, make "Singing Sam Sticks" by pouring fruit-flavor carbonated beverage into refrigerator freezing tray; after about 1 hour's freezing, insert wooden meat skewer into each cube and continue freezing until solid; serve as lollipops.

Coffee Cool is delicious for dessert, or with a midday sandwich: half-fill tall glass with shaved ice; add scoop vanilla ice cream, and fill nearly to top with steaming hot coffee; stir until smooth and frothy.

Conduct Test Plot Exhibition Monday

Result of Experiment in Small Grain Planting At Wausa Shown

Albert Watson and Ralph County Agent W. R. Harder Monday evening attended a regional oat and barley test at the Sherman Flansel farm located six miles south of Wausa. Nine oats, nine barley and six fertilizer treatment test plots were examined.

Results of the test showed Tama and Boone oats the most adaptable for Cedar, Knox and Pierce counties. Marican oats showed up favorably. Bevelon, Eron and Spartan varieties of barley were recommended for that section of the state.

Osage, Ventura, Bikota and Clinton varieties of oats were also tested. All varieties except Tama, Boone and Marican were rusted. Wisconsin 38, Minnesota 184 and Treval varieties of barley were also tested. Wisconsin 38 and Minnesota 184 seem to be top late for that particular section of the state.

Of interest to farmers were samples of 123 oats. Seed was taken from Cedar, Knox and Pierce counties. These samples were tested for purity and adaptability. It was found that many oats were being grown under wrong names. Quite a mixture of barley and other seed in the samples will lower the market price when the grain is sold.

Fertilizer tests gave no special favorable results. A test corn plot has been set up on the Flansel farm. This was not visited as it was too early in the season.

Wayne county has a similar regional test plot on the Roy Sundell farm. D. L. Gross, state extension agronomist, announced that no field day would be held to inspect the oat plots. This is due to the shortage of men to help. They may be a field day later on to inspect grass plots. Wayne county plot is in charge of J. D. Webster of Lincoln, experiments at station. He is a brother of Jason Webster of Wayne.

Henry Returns
VICE President Henry Wallace is back from his trip to China and Siberian Russia, and in a speech on his arrival in Seattle he declared he was more than ever an American. He said the more he examined other countries, the more he was convinced that the "American way of life is the best way for us."

Then why has he encouraged communism which would break down the individualism which for 150 years has sparked and sustained the governmental system which he now lauds? All agree on the cooperation with other countries which he proposes, but not many agree that his philosophy qualifies him for leadership. Not many are convinced that his ideas, put into practice, would maintain the American way for which his trip led him to express an ardent liking. But that he will be renominated at the instance of certain powerful labor union groups, despite the opposition of prominent Jeffersonians, there is little doubt.

Looking Ahead
OVER-OPTIMISM is not wise if it causes people to relax effort. On the contrary, it should stimulate eagerness and action to hasten the knock-out blow. Pathfinder's magazine of July 2 quotes high authority as predicting the European war will be over by September. In a recent visit with Gen. Charles de Gaulle, Gen. John J. Pershing expressed the belief that the war is nearing its end. The current Publishers' Auxiliary reports that the Saluda, Colo., Rotary club, in its next six-month program set apart September 11 as the date for memorial services for one tyrant, Adolf Hitler.

Simultaneously, people are warned not to be too confident of early victory. Some fix the war's end in 1945. Conflict of opinion from equally reliable sources is evident. One cannot feel absolutely certain, but everybody is at liberty to hope, and that helps.

Norris Speaks
SENATOR Geo. W. Norris, in retirement at McCook, Neb., issued a statement on his 83rd birthday in support of the fourth term movement. He thinks this is the wrong time to change leaders. He will perhaps contend that it would have been the wrong time four years ago, and that it would be the wrong time four years hence.

Nebraska did not agree with the former senator's indispensability when it decided to displace him by electing Senator Wherry a few years ago, and it is hoped the nation will show similar wisdom in not agreeing with him in the choice of a national leader. Nebraska has not suffered by choosing Wherry, and manifestly the nation will not suffer by electing Dewey.

War production seems to have caused dispute over release of restraints on small industries that can no longer be used in the war effort, permitting them to employ otherwise idle plants and men in the manufacture of civilian goods. The action is opposed on the ground that it would hinder production for the war. Chairman Murray of the small business committee was quoted as saying: "If small plants cannot be used in the war effort, and materials and man power are available, we must not keep them out of civilian production. A head start for small business is the most common sense method of reconversion." Senator Truman charged that opposition to resumption of civilian production by small industries is aided "by selfish groups that want to see their competitors kept idle until they finish war contracts."

It is doubtful if any group in the world has the clear understanding of world affairs possessed by Washington's newspaper writers—doubtful if any group is more faithful to the performance of duty, and yet the public frequently suffers the sickening spectacle of looking on while they are treated like children by high officials who are superior neither in knowledge nor in judgment. The writers seldom retaliate because they are on hand to serve, not to quarrel. What many office holders and all politicians want most is publicity, but for show, they often try to belittle the ones charged with the responsibility of handling publicity.

It is true that all kinds of people are required to make a world. It is no doubt also true that some apparently get by with too little effort, while others plug along laboriously with disappointing results. Some have to work too much, others too little. There seems no sure way to even things up, no sure way to create a fair distribution of leisure and work, rewards and hardships. What the post-war world plan offers in the direction of straightening out inequities, we have not heard.

President Roosevelt has definitely stated that while he would prefer to retire, he will run in answer to demand. The November finals will reveal strength of the popular urging. At this juncture the president had carefully avoided committing himself on the vice presidential nomination. He could consistently support Wallace as a believer in the things he believes. As mentioned editorially by the World-Herald, the "doctrines and ideologies of the one are equally those of the other."

The beautiful but crooked Logan was a little slow in getting out of its banks following Monday morning's downpour, but it made it in time to renew reminder of what invariably happens to the loss of precious soil from neighboring areas. It is hoped land owners and others interested will not let up in efforts to straighten the stream's course and raise other advisable safeguards.

The democratic national convention opens in Chicago next Wednesday, and the nomination of President Roosevelt for a fourth term is a foregone conclusion. Some sharp disagreements threaten over the vice presidency, especially delegates from the south expressing opposition to another term for the present incumbent.

The first of the week distances to Berlin were recorded as follows: From Russian front, 470 miles; from Italian front, 610 miles; from Normandy front, 635 miles. Unobstructed, the trip would not take long.

Senator W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas, denies that he has violated PWB rules in supplying his newspaper at Ft. Worth with news print. He thinks Washington bureaucrats do not like what he has been publishing.

We like Westbrook Pegler's column because he strikes from the shoulder and tells things that, if true, we think ought to be told. For that same reason some others do not like it.

When Gallup's surveys run contrary to personal bias, the tendency is to build arguments against them with secretly entertained fears they might be right.

Local Kiwanians have figured a way to reduce abdominal dimensions. They have voted unconditional surrender to abbreviated noonday luncheons.

If one were not sometimes disappointed in what neighbors say or do, he would soon run out of imitators that tend to keep up arterial circulation.

Less intense heat and fewer flies are added wet weather compensations.

Democrats Then and Now.

(Sioux City Journal)
The democratic leaders of today who are clamoring for a fourth term may be somewhat embarrassed to have a matter concerning a third term of some 16 years ago called to their attention. That is to say they would be embarrassed if they were as jealous of their reputation for probity as they sometimes protest they are. One for example is Senator ("Dear Alben") W. Barkley of Kentucky, majority leader in the United States senate, whose ringing tones only last February proclaimed that:
"There is something more precious to me than any honor that can be conferred upon me by the senate of the United States, or by the people of Kentucky, or by the president of this republic, and that is the approval of my conscience and self respect. That self respect and the rectitude of that conscience, I propose on this occasion to maintain. If the congress of the United States has any self respect left it will override this veto of the president."

Now, to go back to February of 1928 and recall another utterance to which this same senator, Kentuckian subscribed along with 86 other democrats, one finds an excellent opportunity to make a comparison, not exactly complimentary to some members of that party still in public office. The utterance was the language of a senate resolution, passed by that body 56 to 26. That was done before Calvin Coolidge had issued his famous declaration that he did not "choose to run in 1928." The democrats were worried about the president's intentions. He had served the major portion of one term as a result of the death of Warren G. Harding in office, had been elected in his own right and was hearing the end of the full four-year term. This was the resolution:

"Resolved, that it is in the sense of the senate that the precedent established by Washington and other presidents of the United States in retiring from the presidential office after their second term has become by universal concurrence a part of our republican system of government, and that any departure from this time honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

Senator Barkley was one of the democrats who voted for that resolution. He was for a third term by Franklin D. Roosevelt, and he is now blatantly calling for a fourth. No doubt if "Dear Alben" and Mr. Roosevelt both are alive in 1948 and the one wants a fifth term the Kentuckian will be in there yelling his head off in support of it.

If one rereads the statement made by Senator Barkley last February and notes how concerned he was lest someone think he would not protect his conscience, his integrity and his reputation, one will wonder just what adjustment the Kentuckian would make in explaining away his ready support of the 1928 anti-third term resolution. It is certain that the Kentuckian senator has his conscience under perfect control and that he did not have to wrestle with it as he chose to turn his back on what he voted for in 1928. Some politicians are that way.

IMAGINATION
We wonder if modern editors lack the imagination of pioneer writers? Old-timers wrote columns, properly embellished and based on little or nothing. They did it to fill space and enliven interest. Not much real news happened in the sparsely settled middle west in the early days. Editors had to dish out small happenings in length, and in doing it they cultivated imagination. A story that would now be dismissed with a few lines would then be stretched to a column. Deaths were few, and fatal accidents, without automobiles, were rare. An occasional crime excited community life and called for lengthy write-ups. Court trials, especially criminal actions, were centers of widespread interest, and were treated at length by the local newspaper. So many things happen in these days to fill a rural newspaper that there is small incentive to exert imagination.

Council in Session.
Wayne city council, in regular meeting Tuesday evening, allowed bills and certified the roll tax list.

Discussion Groups.
Thank you for your open invitation to readers to write in expressing their ideas and opinions on current matters of concern. It is almost impossible for a normally busy person to keep abreast of the vital issues of today which affect everyone of us.
I believe that the members of each community should have regular meetings to study and discuss current affairs. Each group could form its own policies, but I would offer the following suggestions:
1. The group would meet once a week in the evening at the home of one member.
2. The group should be kept small enough so that discussion would be free and informal.
3. Individuals could make reports on certain topics designated before hand by the chairman.
4. Members should not endeavor to agree; indeed, differences of opinion should be welcomed.
5. The group should not, as an organization, support any certain issue or individual.
6. The purpose of the studies should be to help each person to form clear and accurate opinions of his own based on fact so that he would be a better citizen and a wiser voter.
7. Near the close, the meeting could turn into a social affair by the host and/or hostess serving a simple beverage and cookies.

I have some excellent up-to-date source material that I would be glad to loan for use by such a study group.

Much Help Needed In China and Italy

As China enters its eighth year of war against Japanese aggression, American help continues to flow to these people. And although military authorities are providing great quantities of food and supplies for liberated Italians, more aid is needed, according to word coming to C. P. Harrison, Wayne county chairman of the national war fund.

"We are indebted to the Chinese people," says Former Governor Chas. Edison of New Jersey, chairman of the China relief. "In spite of the long years of war, devastation and horror, the people of China keep on fighting and in fighting they inspire all freedom-loving peoples of the world to a new determination to fight until Japan is crushed."

The program of American relief to Italy includes services to undernourished children, the aged and the sick. Juvenal Marchisio, New York, chairman of relief to Italy, says that "caring for the people of Italy is not only a worthy expression of human sympathy but will restore goodwill and aid world peace."
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baker spent Sunday at Herbert Perry's.

IN DEWEY'S SPEECH.
In his speech accepting the republican presidential nomination, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey reflected the fire of trained youth and the judgment of successful experience. "We republicans are agreed that full employment shall be a first objective of national policy," said Dewey. He said among other things: "What does the present national administration offer here? In 1940, the year before the country entered the war, there were still 10 million unemployed. After seven years of unequalled power and unequalled spending, the new deal had failed utterly to solve that problem. It was left to be solved by war. Do we have to have a war to get jobs? What are we now offering? Only a dreary prospect of a continued war economy after the war. For 150 years America was the hope of the world. Here, men believed passionately, in freedom because we were what we were, good will flowed toward us from all corners of the earth. It is the new deal that tells us that America has lost its capacity to grow. We shall never build a better world by listening to those counsels of defeat. As America sold and went out, as the new dealers tell us? Look to the beaches of Normandy for the answer. Look to the reaches of the wide Pacific. I say to you: our country is just fighting its way through to new horizons. The future of America has no limit."

YOUR NUTRITION COMMITTEE

presenting FOOD FOR FOLKS in cooperation with STATE AND NATIONAL NUTRITION PROGRAM

It's cheering to know that some of the foods that for years one has been using in abundance turn out to be not just plain old food, but actually a lot assets to the family diet. For many years the potato went unappreciated, although in all its degrees of glory it graced many family tables at least once if not twice a day.

Not at all uncommon is the homemaker who plans her menu for dinner each day and begins with potatoes in some form to go along with meat or vegetables to form the main course of the meal. Though she may include potatoes liberally because of their "filling" qualities, she is unwittingly supplying her family with one of the most common energy foods.

Two Main Virtues about potatoes are that they are practically an energy food and that they are an inexpensive food. Penny for penny they have more energy-giving value than any other vegetable. At the same time they aren't extremely high in calorie content.

One medium-sized potato has about 100 calories no more than an apple or banana, and only half the calories of a medium-sized piece of pie. Because of their starch content, white and sweet potatoes should not be served in the same meal. The same holds for nut serving potatoes and corn together.

When harvested, potatoes contain a good deal of vitamin C, that vitamin so important in preventing scurvy, and keeping up body resistance. Although the content is low in comparison to some foods, the amounts of potatoes eaten by many families make them important carriers of vitamin C. The bureau of human nutrition and home economics found that potatoes contributed almost 1-3 of the total vitamin C in the average diet during 1943, figured on the raw basis. The actual amount of vitamin C they contribute, however, depends partly on the way they're prepared for eating.

When potatoes are eaten in large amounts as they are in most low-cost diets, they carry a good bit of iron, which is richest in the skin and the part of the potato nearest the skin. Potatoes also contain small amounts of the B group of vitamins and minerals other than iron.

Selection of Potatoes. When buying potatoes don't select them blindly. Choose firm clean potatoes that are free from cuts, decayed spots and with only a few shallow eyes. Don't buy sun-burned potatoes for the greenish flesh will taste bitter.

After selection, proper storage comes next in importance. Potatoes should be kept in a place that is cool, dark, moist and well-ventilated. Best potatoes for storing are the late crop. Sort them before storing and take out any that show signs of decay. Set aside any bruised or cracked ones to use up first.

Keep them cool but not cold, at temperatures between 40 degrees and 60 degrees F. but don't let them freeze. Stored below 40 degrees potatoes may take on a sweet taste because some of the starch will have turned to sugar. Sometimes the flavor can be brought back by putting the potatoes in a warmer place for a week before using.

The reason for keeping them in a dark place is because light gives them green spots which are harmful to eat. Sprouted potatoes can be eaten if they are peeled, but sprouts should not be eaten because they contain the same harmful substance contained in the green spots of potatoes that have been exposed to the light.

Storage periods should not be too long because potatoes lose about 50 to 70 per cent of their vitamin C during 12 months of storage. Loss in the winter and late spring months is very heavy.

In the Kitchen. Success in cooking potatoes depends on using the right kind for each definite purpose. Mealy ones are best for baking and mashing. Waxy ones hold their shape better so they are more suitable for salads and for creaming.

Specialists in the bureau of human nutrition and home economics advise that the best way to get the most food value from potatoes is to cook them in their jackets. Boiling conserves more vitamins than baking. Losses of vitamin C in cooking may range from 16 to 86 per cent according to the method used, so it is wise to start with potatoes boiled in their jackets whether you're serving them buttered, mashed, creamed, hash browned, or in salad.

When potatoes must be peeled keep the peeling thin, and peel them just before cooking. If they are peeled ahead of time they should be put in salted water immediately. The best way to serve potatoes is quick-cooked and steaming hot, for the longer they stand exposed to the air, the more vitamin C they lose. Whole boiled potatoes then provide more vitamin C than light fluffy mashed potatoes. If you have potatoes left over, save them but keep them covered so as to keep all air out. Put them in a cold place.

Recipe of the Week. Since one realizes that more of the nutrient and vitamin value of the potato is left in the potato when it is boiled whole in its jacket, why not try them that way? The specialists suggest scrubbing the potatoes first, then dropping them into a kettle of boiling water, enough to cover them. Cook covered until tender; drain at once so the potatoes won't get waterlogged. Peel and season with table salt, meat drippings or gravy, salt, and pepper to taste. Or eat skins and all if potatoes are small and new.

And to help the homemaker in using potatoes at this rate, and to help her avoid the monotony the bureau of human nutrition and home economics of the United States department of agricultural has published a bulletin called "Potatoes in Popular Ways." It may be obtained by writing to the office of information, U. S. D. A., Washington 25, D. C.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION FROM SOUTHERN VIEWPOINT

John S. Knight, editor of the Miami, Florida, Herald, following observations at the late republican national convention...

Chicago, Ill.—It was a curious political convention. There was none of the wholesome and exuberant Midwest enthusiasm such as was shown for Alf Landon in 1936 nor did it contain any of the persuading fervor and spontaneity which enabled Wendell Wilkie to capture the presidential nomination...

This time the identity of the Republican candidate was never in doubt. For months state after state had been lined up for Dewey with the mechanical precision of an automotive assembly line. Every part fitted perfectly into place. Dewey's pre-convention campaign was as carefully planned as a D-Day military operation. Not the slightest detail was overlooked. Forthright, honest John Bricker's amateurish campaign managers were outmaneuvered at every turn...

But without, there was a certain dignity about this convention that seemed to me to be in keeping with the times. The delegates appeared to be constantly conscious that a time when millions of the sons and daughters of America, serving their country overseas, noisily horseplay and shoddiness were definitely out of place. I have never seen a national convention of any sort conducted with greater propriety and seriousness.

Call it dull if you will but the proceedings of the convention just ended were marked by a restraint and thoughtfulness both proper and wise. I don't believe that John Bricker actually recognized the full effectiveness of the Dewey organization until two days before the balloting started. Ohio's frank and trusting people had met with such a friendly reception in his speaking tour through the 26 states and his aspirations were encouraged by so many of their governors that the early refusal to get aboard the Dewey bandwagon gave him quite a shock.

He had reason to expect strong support from Governors Warren of California and Green of Illinois, but in never materialized. The Dewey managers had seen to that. Since Bricker is essentially a party man believing strongly in party organization and responsibility, he recognized the inevitability of the situation and fell in line without bitterness or outward disappointment. His good sportsmanship made a tremendous hit with the delegates because they are men and women selected by the same processes that gave John Bricker his political advancement in Ohio.

The ticket of Dewey and Bricker is in many ways the strongest the republicans have offered since Mr. Roosevelt came to power. Dewey has none of the ponderosity which characterized the affable Alf Landon and Bricker is a more seasoned campaigner than Landon's running mate, the late Col. Frank Knox. Dewey is a far better radio speaker than Wendell Wilkie and there will be no room for political amateurs in his organization. Few people now recall that the late Senator Charles McNary of Oregon was vice presidential candidate on the Wilkie ticket because his contribution to the 1940 campaign was virtually nil.

Bricker has been of great assistance to Dewey in the Midwest. He knows his people and they feel closer to the tall, distinguished and friendly politician than they do to the charmingly governor of New York. With Dewey handling the major speaking assignments, Bricker should complement him very nicely in the secondary role. He is a horse for work and unlike McNary, everyone will be well aware that he is in the thick of the fight. How do I rate the republican chances of success this fall? The answer, I believe, depends upon three factors in the following order of importance:

- 1—The trend of the war.
2—Mr. Dewey's campaign.
3—Wendell Wilkie.
As I said several weeks ago, the American people will think twice about making a change if we are well along the road to victory in November.

Gov. Dewey has said that he has no intention of making a change in our present military setup and that Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff and Admiral Ernest King, commander in chief of the U. S. fleet, are doing a "superb job."

Should we meet with unexpected reverses in Europe and in the Pacific, the political situation could conceivably shift very rapidly, but there are few Americans, and Mr. Dewey is certainly not among them, who actually believe there are many prolonged setbacks in store for us. So the trend of events will virtually dictate that Gov. Dewey's campaign must be made on the domestic front. How well he succeeds depends upon the vigor, logic and intelligence with which he presents his case.

This is no year for fishing up the warmed up slogans of previous campaigns. Heavy, sonorous speeches about saving "the American way of life," preserving the "free enterprise system" and warning of the dangers of "bureaucracy and regimentation" won't change a single vote in the year 1944.

The republican candidate must present a concise and telling bill of particulars against the Roosevelt administration. He must be convinced that there is real hope for the future of the country and offer constructive, definite and well-considered policies which he intends to carry out. He must discard generalities and say most definitely just what it is that he proposes to do if elected. In his Chicago speech of acceptance Gov. Dewey made a fine start in this direction when he said:

"To Americans of every party I pledge that on January 20 next year our government will again have a cabinet of the ablest men and women to be found in America. Its members will expect and will receive full delegation of the powers of their office. They will be capable of administering those powers. They will each be experienced in the task to be done and young enough to do it. This election will bring an end to one man government in America!"

That is the direct, unequivocal kind of talk all good citizens can understand. The governor was also effective when he referred to the Roosevelt administration as having grown old, tired and quarrelsome in office.

Dewey has the opportunity in this campaign to be refreshingly frank and vigorous. He is free from any pledges, promises or commitments. Not many candidates have been in so fortunate a position. Dewey's opportunity lies in convincing the American people that he would give them an efficient, youthful administration in contrast to a tired, enfeebled and cynical one. It is also in convincing them that when the war bulge bursts, he can offer something more in the way of statesmanship than another gigantic WPA.

The challenge is strong, the obstacles great.

What Gov. Dewey has to say in the next two months will demonstrate whether or not he is equal to the task.

The third factor which I mentioned as having some influence on the outcome of this national election is an unpredictable gentleman named Wendell Wilkie.

Personally, I feel that the republicans made a grave mistake in not asking him to address the convention in Chicago. Here is a man who received more votes than any other republican presidential nominee in history. He is the one national figure in the republican party who might have some influence with the negro vote. He is a vital, temperamental, explosive and articulate man. At least two million of the '22 who voted for him in 1940 still believe in Wendell Wilkie. In short, he is a spot man to have on your side.

The excuse for not inviting him to Chicago was that some of the leaders were "afraid" of him. Would it not have been better to have had a showdown then if one was needed and a general clearing of the air than to risk bolting the ticket.

One day the Old Guard republicans will learn that things are not run as they were in Mark Hanna's time and welcome the infusion into the party of progressive ideas and younger members. It would not be fair to attribute the Wilkie bobble to Candidate Dewey. He is much too shrewd to allow any personal feelings to interfere with practical politics. But as a candidate, he can hardly afford to let the McKinley tariff boys mess things up. That is why a new national chairman of Dewey's choice has replaced the blumling Harrison Spangler who still thinks that Joe Pew is the greatest political genius of the age. Insofar as his political future is not shaped by destiny and the developments of a cataclysmic war, Tom Dewey's career is largely in his own hands.

Thus far he has made a fine record in public life. Youth and energy are on his side. But his real stature is still to be determined in the next few months to come. Win or lose, the country will be the gainer if he demonstrates during the course of the presidential campaign that more than one man in America is equipped to occupy the White house.

Soil Conservation—Whose Job? (Omaha Journal-Stockman). Soil conservation has established itself as a major agricultural enterprise. Not that there is much new about it. Competent farmers have practiced soil conservation ever since the soil was tilled and many of them successfully. But in its modern dress it has been widely and effectively publicized, till many uninformed people think it is a modern invention and providing funds for its continued promotion has become a legislative must. So jobs multiply, and will probably continue to do so.

It is perhaps not surprising that under the conditions two public agencies have been set up to promote soil conservation, doing essentially the same work. These are the Extension Service supported in part by federal grant-in-aid appropriations and in part by state and local funds and having a large measure of state and local control, and the Soil Conservation Service supported entirely by federal appropriation with supervision from Washington through regional offices and with much less opportunity for state and local voice in the development of policies or the selection of personnel with whom the citizens of the state must work.

"One of this situation comes a pertinent question," says Dean Rusk of the Illinois College of Agriculture. "Can these two agencies performing essentially the same or identical service, continue to function under such radically different administrative directions without developing dangerous strains on relationships with the fundamental programs and personalities involved? I believe that it is not too early to be beginning to look about how these unnecessary strains may be avoided. Can the work of the Extension Service and of the Soil Conservation Service be better integrated at federal, state and county levels? What steps should be taken to coordinate or combine the administration of the two services and provide more opportunity for state and local voice in the control of the soil conservation district and its working relationships? The future food supply of this nation and the prosperity of which are engaged in its production as well as the maintenance of democratic procedures are involved in the answers to these questions."

As a general rule, the closest administration of such affairs as to the local community, the more effective, the more economical and the more acceptable it is. We should therefore hold in this case, and will take a bit of uprooting to bring about a change, although its effect would be simplification and conservation of taxpayers dollars.

Plan for Feeding Grain Is Explained. It is difficult to give exact directions for feeding milk cows on pasture, states Agent Howard Gilaspie, but under practical farm conditions, even when pasture is at its best, it is usually well to feed grain to those cows giving more than 20 to 30 pounds of milk per day, depending on the breed. For the higher testing breeds such as Jerseys and Guernseys, grain should be fed to cows that are producing more than 20 pounds of milk. Cows of other breeds that are producing more than 30 pounds per day should be fed some grain if maximum production is to be maintained. The amount of grain to be fed depends on the amount of production, the stage of lactation, and condition of the pasture. When cows are first turned on real good pasture, they will eat very little if any grain, but as the pasture grass becomes short and tough, grain will be needed to maintain maximum production.

Cows going dry in a short while and giving a small flow of milk need no grain. Fresh cows and those producing large quantities of milk should be given careful attention to maintain their milk flow as pasture begins to grow short. A suitable grain ration may be made up by mixing 400 pounds corn and 600 pounds soybean ground oats, and 100 pounds soybean meal for each 100 pounds of milk produced, depending on condition of the pasture. Fair to good pasture will require one pound of grain for each four to six pounds of milk produced. Pasture poor to fair will require one pound of grain for each three to four pounds of milk produced.

Later in the season it may be necessary also to supplement the pasture by feeding some hay or silage unless special pasture such as sudan, is available. It is more economical to maintain production at a good level than to try and bring it up again following a slump due to lack of feed and care.

Miss Nina Lamkin, director of the Nebraska division of public health, and Glenn Gidersleeve of Dover, director of music education in the state of Delaware, spoke for college convocation Wednesday morning.

She advised medical check-up for children and correctives when needed. Immunization against diphtheria and smallpox were also stressed. Miss Lamkin explained that simple screening tests are available which enable any teacher to test children's hearing and sight. Checking with the state engineer regarding purity of water was also suggested. Miss Lamkin pointed out the advisability of cooperation with physicians, dentists, child welfare workers and county health directors in getting school children in good physical condition for the new term.

Mr. Gidersleeve finds a definite relationship between the speaking and singing voice. He calls singing "slow-motion" speech. The speaker enumerated five characteristics common to speech and singing: Pitch, tone, projection, rhythm and precise pronunciation. Regarding pitch, he begins with middle C and works both ways, dealing especially with the low or chest voice. He mentioned the news commentator, Lowell Thomas, as having good tone in his voice. Low-pitch voices are favored. In projecting the voice, he mentioned the need to work with the rib case and diaphragm. He mentioned poetry as producing good rhythm, when it is read correctly. In pronunciation he urged use of tongue, mouth and lips to get best results.

Major Attractions Coming to College

John Gurney, Southernaire Are on Concert Stage in Wayne This Month.

Two major musical attractions are scheduled at Wayne State Teachers college on successive evenings July 24 and 25. John Gurney, the great American bass, and the Metropolitan opera stars Monday evening. The Souths are the group winning popularity through broadcasts over NBC, make a personal appearance on the concert stage here Tuesday night.

His Unusual Record.

This is Mr. Gurney's eighth tour of this section within 11 years and the fourth time he has come to Wayne. Ten years had elapsed before his return last year and during that decade the artist had gone into the music world. His strength and personality had taken him into halls of fame throughout the world. He is now one of the great singers of the Metropolitan opera. Those who heard him last summer will recall with pleasure the charm and beauty of his program.

Since summer opera has become popular and concerts "under the stars" are attractive to American audiences, voices such as John Gurney's are in demand. All will want to hear this artist's golden voice with its deep powerful resonance.

During the past few summers John Gurney has sung with practically all big summer opera projects in this country and Mexico. When his present tour is finished he will be leading bass-baritone for three weeks with the Dallas Summer Opera Co. From there he returns to New York for two more weeks of summer stadium concerts.

On his tour Mr. Gurney will sing to large audiences of soldiers, sailors, "aggies" and just ordinary folks at A. & M. college of Texas.

Mr. Gurney's program here this summer embodies the best opera and excerpts from light opera. By special request he will sing many old favorites that he made famous.

Are Radio Artists.

The Southernaire, appearing here July 25, have been a favorite radio feature since 1929 and have appeared in concerts all over the United States and Canada. They rank among the greatest of local ensembles heard today on the air and concert stage.

As their name implies, these colored singers are true sons of the South, singing melodies of their native soil with an artistry that has seldom been equaled.

With nearly 2,000 songs in their repertoire, the Southernaire's programs are full of variety. Their repertoire covers three centuries of Negro music, including African chants, spirituals, slave songs, popular Negro songs of contemporary time. They interpret other kinds of vocal music also, presenting duets and ballads as effectively as they do songs of their own race.

Personnel of the Southernaire includes William Edmonson, bass; Ray McNeil, tenor; Jay Strom, tenor; and Spencer Odum, accompanist and arranger.

Death and Injury Brought by Storm

Property Loss Mounts High In Ponca's Worst Flood In Town's History.

God, Bergerson, trucker and father of five children, was killed, and Orin Knerl and son, Phil, suffered severe burns early Friday when an explosion occurred in the Hart & Knerl garage during Ponca's most serious flood in history. Two other Ponca residents were affected by sharp lightning, and many sustained minor injuries in trying to help during three fires and high water. Martinsburg, nine miles west of Ponca, also reported the worst flood in history. Damage to property at both Ponca and Martinsburg runs into thousands of dollars.

Mr. Bergerson was sitting in the Hart & Knerl garage when fumes from gasoline ignited and an explosion resulted. The blast blew out the front of the garage. Mr. Bergerson tried to escape through the front of the building but was unable to do so. Mr. Knerl and son made their way out the back after they too had been burned in the explosion.

Firemen stood in fires and a half feet of water to fight the blaze. The work of boys who got in the path of the gasoline flames on the water and threw water onto them to keep the blaze from spreading to other buildings was highly praised.

The garage fire started when water seeped into gas tanks, causing gas to seep out and ignite. Workers were able to keep the flames in the building even though fighting it was difficult because hydrants were under water. The garage was almost completely destroyed.

Another fire started when a house was washed from its foundation by the flood. When it broke away from the gas line the gas ignited. The building was destroyed. Fire started in another small house which burned.

All basements in the business district and in the residential district below Main street were flooded. Over a foot of water covered the court house floor. Water rose above the first floor in some cases. When waters receded about a foot of mud covered the streets.

Walter S. Bressler and Martin L. Ringer took Wayne city's pumping equipment to Ponca to assist Friday and Saturday with pumping out basements. Allen, Emerson, Wakefield and Laurel also sent pumps. Basements of business houses were pumped out by Saturday morning.

Sioux City army air base sent six trucks and 20 men, under the direction of Capt. J. E. Loftis, Jr., to the flooded town Friday to assist in rescue work.

Most business men were fortunate in getting merchandise out of basements and to places of safety in their stores. They were forewarned of the approaching flood waters.

The 8 1/2 inches of rain fell Thursday evening from 3 to 9 o'clock. Water running down from hills caused two creeks to go out of their banks and flood. This heavy rain was the third torrential downpour received in Ponca within 30 days.

Rain came down so hard that many crops were washed out. Bridges were taken out. Two state patrolmen were in Ponca Friday and Saturday to help direct traffic.

Boy Escapes Unhurt.
Rodney, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Monk, Laurel, escaped unhurt when he released the brake on a tractor and the machine rolled down a hill, pinning him beneath it.

Time to Vaccinate.
Now is the time to vaccinate spring pigs for cholera, according to the county agent. The job should be done when pigs are small and easily handled, also when they take relatively small doses of serum and virus which keeps costs down. The extension service also urges arrangement with a veterinarian to give the chick embryo vaccine as a preventive treatment against sleeping sickness in horses.

Library News

In a speech given on Book day, the provost of the University of California said, "If you have saturated yourselves in the world's great literature, you will have the best of tomstones to determine the worth of the writings of the present. Books help you build up a philosophy for your own life; they make the great of the past ages and distant lands your friends; they give you a deeper understanding of your own land; they enable you to judge writings of the present."

It is indeed hard to decide what to read when choosing from the veritable flood of books available today. The first thing to keep in mind is don't read a book merely because others are reading it. If you attempt to keep up with the many-headed Jones', you will find that you have tried an impossible race. Each week's list of best-sellers would keep you in a nervous state if you sought to read them before the next list appears. Besides, you would quickly realize how much sawdust is very consuming, and sawdust is not very nutritious. So read good authors, regardless of when the book was written. We cannot exclude everything contemporary from our reading nor should we. If we want information on the war, we cannot go to Grotto, but in choosing those of the present, pick the greatest: read Pearl Buck, Willa Cather, Lin Yutang, and you will not have any reason to feel regret at your choice.

New books this week are Land Navy Chosen by Elin Berlin, who by the way is the wife of Irving Berlin the song writer; and Presidential Agent, by Upton Sinclair. This book is historical and completes a series.

Story hour for the children continues during the month of July.

YOU CAN'T TURN ON HEARING LIKE A RADIO

"Nothing is more misleading or harmful to a person with unsatisfactory hearing than the belief that owning a hearing aid is all there is to better hearing. We had that same idea years ago," stated H. Richter, Chief Consultant of Sonotone's District offices, "but we very quickly realized that what a person with unsatisfactory hearing wants is not just a hearing aid but UNFETTERED HEARING! And that, judging from our experience with many thousands of cases, means careful, scientific, INDIVIDUALIZED FITTING, sympathetic advice and assistance in the adjustment period, and willing, unflinching service afterwards."

And so a new figure has developed in the past ten years, the Sonotone Consultant, the man who is not a salesman, but a trained technician schooled and equipped with the one idea of seeing that you get the best hearing that present day science can give you... and keep it for the rest of your life! NEBRASKA IS PROUD OF HER MODEL LIQUOR CONTROL LAW

I think perhaps many of our citizens take our liquor control statutes for granted. Actually, these laws are probably as well drawn and as effective as any in the entire country. They are often considered the model by legislators of other states. The wisdom of our law-makers who, back in 1935, studied the state's problems and devised our comprehensive and practical liquor control legislation, has been well proved.

Thanks to this law, conditions in Nebraska are good. Where occasion arises, however, this Committee cooperates closely with the authorities, taking action against any who abuse their license privileges.

Yes—Nebraskans can be thankful for wise and enforceable liquor control laws.

Shortcake Worth Trip From Pacific

Americans Find Brothers Watch on an Officer At Normandy Beach.

What worried Gordon C. Wright most as he sped home to East Hartland, Conn., on liberty after two years of naval service was that he would be too late for the strawberry season. Talking later about his first meal at home, he said: "Yes sir, made it. And that strawberry shortcake was worth coming all the way from the south Pacific to get."

Cpl. Chester L. Lester captured a Nazi officer as his infantry unit advanced along the Normandy coast. He examined a wrist watch worn by the prisoner and noted that it was engraved "Arthur B. Lester." Questioning revealed the officer had taken the watch from Lester's brother when he was held for a short time by the Germans during the campaign of north Africa.

Kansas milling company officials, with 129 cars of new wheat to unload and a shortage of labor, called for volunteers among the office force at Wichita. No. 1 volunteer: D. S. Jackman, vice president and general manager.

In Italy Pvt. David Thomas, Lorain, picked out a nice roomy dugout where he had held four Nazis a few hours earlier. He carried in his bed roll, rifle and equipment and prepared to clean the place. When he came to an old worn-out shoe, he decided to throw it out. The shoe started kicking; the sleeping body attached to it awoke and started yelling. Dave went into action. Result: One more captured Nazi.

Demand for shark liver vitamins has revitalized the shark fishing industry in the Gulf of California, off Mazatlan, Mexico, so much that a shark fair with a shark queen has been planned. Thus far there have been no candidates for the title, "Miss Shark."

At Great Falls, Mont., plumber Edwin Johnson said he couldn't attend the luncheon. A woman had called and asked him to fix a leak. "Oh let it go until after lunch," said Club Member Carl Lehman. "Some women expect you to jump at the drop of a hat." When he returned to his office he had a telephone call from Mrs. Lehman. "Where have you been?" she demanded. "I called the plumber, but he didn't show up. Our water pipes have broken, and the basement's flooded."

As the Chicago street car approached an intersection the motorist fainted and slumped to the floor. The trolley shot ahead through a red light and the runaway car headed for huge truck. Harold Harrison, 14, stepped to the controls, shut off the power and applied the air brakes. The car succeeded in a stop inches from the rear of the truck. Harrison, who has always wanted to be a street car motorman, said, "Ah, it wasn't much. I didn't even get a chance to ring the bell."
