

Being Signed for Permanent Airport—When Boys Return—Worthy Project—Newspaper's Tough Job.

Petitions have been in circulation asking the city council to call an election to vote bonds for the purpose of owning an airport, and numerous signers indicate popular approval. In calling an election the city council would have to work out a feasible plan in accordance with requirements and the law. Looking to the future, Wayne should and doubtless will provide a place for itself in coming air transportation.

The fact that demand for houses in Wayne far exceeds the supply shows steady growth, and it is plain that no lack of enterprise should be allowed to interfere with continued growth. A permanent airport is in line.

At the late War Dad meeting Fred Dale, chairman of the county's selective service board, explained the government's proposed leadership in restoring returned soldiers to civilian life, and he has chosen a committee from different local groups to shoulder the responsibility. The duty of the home front is plainly evident, and it will involve some courage and much tact. Serving the purpose successfully will tolerate no sidestepping. Members of the committee are qualified for the task, and it is confidently believed they can be depended on.

The change back to civilian employment, though eagerly anticipated, will not always be easy. Boys will have preferences, and they will be aided as far as possible.

Regretfully, some will not come back. Others will have suffered wounds or nerve disorders that will require relief and rehabilitation. The committee will act in harmony with needs, and employ its best judgment.

For an Honor Roll. People will be glad to know a War Dad committee will undertake provision for a suitable and publicly placed honor roll for Wayne county's soldier group. This would keep the public apprised of the names of duly honored service men. How to raise the necessary funds for the purpose will be figured out by the committee.

Fellow Traveler Observes. In discussing the undesirability of holding federal jobs, we were reminded by a fellow-traveler and careful observer that in comparison the newspaper fills the hardest niche in the world. He suggested that in serving the public and dishing out the truth without bias, kicks and numerous and unavoidable, sometimes getting far enough under the skin to hurt. If an editor's hide is thick enough to be impervious to stings, he is likely to be inconsiderate and unsympathetic. His news columns must serve friends and enemies with equal fairness in order to win readers and justify support.

As pointed out by our observer, facts reported should be omitted, in the judgment of one group. Facts overlooked are left out through ulterior motives, according to another group. A fellow who forgets to mention his shirt, loses his car keys, leaves the light on and the gas jet open, forgets to feed the cat and does sundry other things that show his memory is out of gear, is disposed to short announcements on the editor if the family newspaper makes a mistake. In an eight-column page, there are 6,600 characters. Think of that when you run your fingers through your hair, (if you have any), or light a cigar, (if you have one), and lead back in the detailed contemplation of a mis-statement of word of a damning sentence.

The schedule of places and times for signing for the AAA community committee, will be conducted the coming week. Farmers may report at places most convenient to them.

Long, who passed away at 12:30 last Thursday morning at the age of 75 years, 6 months, 6 days, were conducted Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Hypse funeral home and at 2:30 at the Presbyterian church, Rev. Plan Is to Help In Rehabilitation

Honor Roll for Veterans of County Is Suggested as Local Project.

Prof. Fred Dale, chairman of Wayne county draft board, explained the part selective service will play in rehabilitation work, at the War Dad meeting held at the youth center Thursday evening.

The speaker explained that the rehabilitation program is nationwide and is formed under the federal re-training and re-employment administration. One of the first steps to be taken is the establishment of the selective service board as an information center where returning veterans can go to find out where to direct their job applications, claims for hospitalization, applications for schooling, or how to attack any rehabilitation problem. Prof. Dale stressed the fact that any one having an honorable discharge from service should first report to the information center at the county selective service office. The board clerk will check and give him a letter of introduction. The individual will then be referred to a veteran's service committee.

The veteran's service committee is composed of a group of men acquainted with problems soldiers may have. They will help the vet

Must Face Trial On Iowa Charges

Wessling Brothers Will Be Brought Here Later in Mines Store Action.

Extradition proceedings to bring Charles Wessling and Marvin Wessling to Wayne for trial in connection with the recent attempted robbery of the Paul Mines jewelry store, were heard in Des Moines last Thursday. Since both men are also wanted in Iowa on grand larceny charges, Governor Bourke B. Hickenlooper ruled that they must first face trial in Iowa before their removal to Nebraska. The action in connection with the attempted Wayne robbery is continued until the state of Iowa is through with the men.

County Attorney Burr R. Davis and Sheriff J. H. Pile were in Sioux City Friday to appear before municipal court in presenting a fugitive from justice complaint against the Wesslings. Charges were dismissed since the governor failed to issue a warrant for their return until they face trial in Iowa.

The Wessling brothers are under $5,000 bond to appear in Des Moines this fall on grand larceny charges. They are accused of robbing a Fort Dodge jewelry store, and Thelma Fritz, who was in Wayne with the pair, was identified in connection with the Fort Dodge robbery.

Charles Wessling has been out on parole six months, and because he broke his parole the governor of Iowa issued a warrant September 1 for his return to the penitentiary. Mr. Pennington of the Pinkerton detective agency in Minneapolis, together with his witnesses from Fort Dodge, was in Sioux City Friday when he identified the Wesslings and Thelma Fritz as being involved in the Fort Dodge robbery.

Sgt. Robert Conrad Missing in Action

Two Weeks to See Corn Over Frost Danger Hereabout

WITH sufficient moisture in the ground to insure a big corn crop, farmers are now looking wistfully to freedom from a killing frost too soon. On what Wm. Roggenbach bases his prophetic vision, we do not know, but he says if we can get over September 7 and again over September 14, frost dangers will have passed, and the crop will be safely on its way to satisfactory maturity. From whence William draws his critical dates, he has not explained. But he appears positive, and if we land on the other side of September 14 without killing elements, we will gladly concede that he knows. On the other hand, if a hard frost happens somewhere along between, we will suspect him of just talking. Farring a freeze, many predict a record corn yield. We heard one farmer of long experience say that his maximum production was 75 bushels to the acre, but that if nothing interferes, his fields will surpass that top this year.

Sgt. Conrad was born April 1, 1922, at Schuyler. He was graduated from Schuyler high school in 1939. He enlisted in the air corps in October, 1942, while a student at Wayne college, and reported for cadet training at Ellington field, San Antonio, Tex., March 23, 1943. He received his gunner's wings at Harlingen Field, Tex., the following October. He spent nine weeks at Lowry General hospital in Denver with a case of pneumonia. He took his crew training at Boise, Idaho. Sgt. Conrad has been overseas since about July 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad received the telegram from the war department August 25. The last letter they had from their son was dated August 6 and sent from somewhere in Italy. It reached them August 17.

Claim Disallowed In Sullivan Estate

The claim of $1,000 attorney fees filed by C. H. Hendrickson against the estate of Phillip Sullivan was disallowed by Wayne county court. Through Mark Ryan, Mr. Hendrickson claims that he is entitled to the sum of $1,000 for attorney fees during 1930 and 1931 and until H. S. Ringland's death November 9, 1932.

F. S. Berry, attorney for the estate, held that whatever services, if any, were rendered by claimant during the period mentioned were fully paid for by said estate or by H. S. Ringland, trustee, prior to his death and there was nothing due or owing to said claimant at the time of the death of Mr. Ringland. He further held that the claim is not legal or valid and is not a liability against said estate. In addition the claim was not filed until April 18, 1944, after it was barred by the statute of limitations, having accrued more than 10 years prior to the filing.

Urges Cooperators To Seed More Brome

Jason S. Webster, work unit conservationist, urges cooperators of the soil conservation district to seed more brome this fall. He suggests that eroded hilltops and steep slopes be seeded for pasture. He also advises the seeding of gullies and drainage ways. He recommends the use of a light seeding of oats or barley with all fall seedings of brome as a protective cover for young seedlings.

County Agent Walter R. Harder states that this fall is an exceptionally good time to seed brome. He further explains that a certain amount of moisture present in the soil seems to be an actual factor in getting brome to start readily. Brome fields should be seeded immediately and before the middle of September if possible. Later seeding should be delayed until sometime in November or December.

County Agent Harder states that brome seed is being sold rapidly. Wayne county farmers planning to seed should secure good seed immediately from old fields that are free from downy brome and hairy chess or any noxious weeds to be used for their permanent brome fields. If possible, the seed of the Lincoln strain should be used. Farmers having frame seed should have it tested immediately for purity and germination so that they can furnish their buyers with a thorough analysis of the seed. This service is available free to farmers through the county extension office or by sending a sample directly to the state seed laboratory at Lincoln.

Family Gathering Observes Birthday

Henry Nicholasen, who makes his home here, was surprised on his 80th birthday of Monday when eight of his nine children came for a family gathering Sunday in the Carl E. Nicholasen home here and another Monday in the Clifford Largen home at Creighton. Henry Nicholasen, jr., of Spokane, could not be present because he was unable to get train or plane reservations. The last time the family was together was in 1939 when Mrs. Henry Nicholasen passed away.

With Mr. Nicholasen were five sons, Dr. F. M. Nicholasen, physician and surgeon of Chicago, Dr. W. H. Nicholasen, dentist from Chicago, E. H. Nicholasen, efficiency expert with U. S. Aircraft corporation in Chicago, G. E. Nicholasen, machinist in a defense plant in Chicago, and Carl E. Nicholasen of Wayne, and three daughters, Mrs. Clifford Largen of Creighton, Mrs. Madge Barsley and Mrs. Christine Dillon who make their home here. The four Chicago brothers arrived Saturday and all left Monday excepting Dr. F. M. Nicholasen who will stay for some time. Mr. and Mrs. Largen came from Creighton Sunday, and the same group spent Monday at Largen's.

All are full brothers and sisters but three of the sons have changed their names to Nicholasen. Ensign Kay Dillon, daughter of Mrs. Dillon, on duty at McIntyre clinic at Great Lakes naval training station, spent several days last week here but was unable to remain for the family gathering. She left last Wednesday. Carl E. Nicholasen's children were unable to be here at this time. Miss Carol is taking cadet nurse's training in Chicago. Miss Nan is with her grandmother. Mrs. C. W. Meitner in Creighton, and Bernard and Jack are with their aunt. Mrs. Wm. Madsen at Milliken, Colo. to attend school this year.

Plan Is to Help In Rehabilitation

eran study his problem and suggest ways for solving it. Mr. Dale explained that such a veteran's service committee has been organized in Wayne. ## Favor Honor Roll

Members of the chapter voted in favor of an honor roll bearing the names of Wayne county men in service. Ben A. Jivers was appointed chairman to see what might be done in this line. He will pick others to assist him. It was pointed out that most counties have large outdoor honor rolls.

The chapter passed resolutions of condolence in the passing of Cpl. Arnold Gerleman, son of Otto Gerleman who is a member of the chapter. These were prepared and read by Rev. S. K. de Fresse and are as follows:

"Because we realize to the fullest extent the benefits which our organization and the entire community have derived from the supreme sacrifice of this young man, and because of the Christian ideals represented in a kindly and unselfish life: be it

"Resolved, that we inscribe upon our records a tribute to his memory that future generations may know and appreciate his unselfish devotion to mankind and his country. That we respect and esteem his memory which has inspired us.

"Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to his family, together with the assurance of our sincerest sympathy. May our Heavenly Father console them in their present sorrow, and may these words of appreciation and high regard be a solace in the years to come. 'No greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends.'

Looking to THE Omaha World-Herald voices the opinions of most "V" Day people in regard to the manner of welcoming victory day. It would not have members of the home front celebrate at the fount of Bacchus. Rather, it would have the occasion one of relief, devoted to problems of peace and reconstruction. The World-Herald comments:

"The San Francisco taverns that are displaying signs offering free drinks from 5 to 6 on 'V' day are doing that city a signal disservice.

"For if ever a day in history called for a sober celebration it will be 'V' day, despite the joy that will be in our hearts.

"Their thoughts still with loved ones in foreign graves, or with maimed veterans in far-away hospitals, or with the millions in the armed forces still facing the full-time job of liquidating Japan, many thousands of Americans will rightly resent any raucous, disorderly hailing of victory.

"Much better is the voluntary plan under consideration in Omaha, New York and other places, calling for the temporary closing of bars and customary places of sophisticated entertainment so that the serious-minded majority of Americans may welcome the approach of peace in a manner befitting the occasion. Churches, not bars, are the more appropriate location for victory celebrations."

Born to It IN the old days preachers sometimes declaimed with a good deal of heat about members of the human family being "born in sin" and having to work out of it. We would prefer to say, with better chance of clinching proof, that they were born in laziness, and if they work out of it, they overcome tough barriers of natural restraint. And no doubt mental laziness is harder to campaign against than physical laziness. What boy in school who would dodge his home chores, does not highly relish bringing a pail of water or fixing the fire if it relieves him from a problem in mathematics? He little notes that the drudgery of study brings later compensations. He does not look far down the vista of time. He revels in or recoils from the immediate. The reason we do not handle this subject at greater length and in more convincing detail is because of a deterring hang-over from primal inertia.

Dewey GOV. Tom Dewey will open his speaking campaign for the presidency at Philadelphia this Thursday evening. He should be heard; and his line of reasoning carefully weighed. He has so far favorably impressed the public with his broad understanding of international as well as national problems. He has conferred with leaders of world thought, and he is further flanked by active and successful experience in public service. His triumph over racketeers in New York is an omen of what will happen to flagrant evils and injustices on his elevation to the nation's chief office. Assurance is given that he will, in the event of election, surround himself with men capable of sound thinking and fair, impartial dealing. He should be heard and his utterances measured realistically.

The passing of Senator George W. Norris, 83, is a reminder of militant independence during 40 years of service in the two houses of congress. In his many years of public life he made strong friends and equally strong enemies. He was first elected to congress in 1902 as a regular republican. He soon developed opposition to elements in the party with which he was affiliated, but he was reelected from term to term despite such opposition. He was among the few who voted against entrance into World War I, but he gave assent to the present conflict. He had been an ardent supporter of the president's new deal. Notwithstanding strong left-wing philosophy, those who could not go along with him, gave him credit for the desirable things he accomplished.

With the opening of schools come increased hazards to children who thus make more frequent use of streets and highways. Motorists cannot afford to be careless. The death of a child under the wheels of an automobile not only darkens the lives of a bereaved family, but casts an endless shadow into the life of the one who is guilty. Mothers who send their little tots to school must take every precaution to insure against harm while they are gone. Officers must be on the alert to suppress added drivers who have no other idea than to fan the air. Summary forfeiture of a driver's license possessed by a reckless fellow at the wheel might prevent serious consequences.

The Sioux City Journal's editorial writer elucidates with some enthusiasm on the success of science in developing hybrid onions and making them 50 per cent larger and retaining all the characteristics of the milder onions. In knowing what science is doing to it, the onion will swell with pride, but feel tickled with doubts over the suggestion of being mild and sweet.

Under-age boys and girls drawn into work channels during vacation from school to modify the labor scarcity lead the Omaha Journal-Stockman to conclude that young persons, thus employed, may be benefited rather than hurt by the experience. It says in part: "They have had the satisfaction of doing work necessary and helpful in the war industry; they have been well repaid for it, and they may even have gained experience that will be fully as useful to them in later life as some of the lessons they learn in school. Could it be that there's the germ of an idea here for the educators as they plan the school curricula of the future?"

Labor day reminds us to honor the cause of labor without respecting union leadership that has for ten years carried on a program of intimidation and coercion. Now labor bosses are exacting money from members to support the new deal's fourth term ambition in the name of education which, as a matter of fact, is a screen used to get by the law. People would preserve labor union's rights, but they would not have the rights of other equally deserving groups outraged by unfair practices.

To keep businesses open is not merely to reap extra simoleons, but to be on the alert to serve. Buyers are nettled when they find locked doors between them and their needs. We are glad closing for the fair was reduced to one afternoon. More suspension of local trade privileges manifestly would not help the big county show, but might seriously militate against shopping plans. That's just our opinion.

We have heard in one breath of the magnificent job labor unions have done in producing for the war, and in the next breath of the workers striking. Most laborers have been faithful, but enough have been indifferent to cast a deep shadow!

We wish radio commentators would pronounce French and other foreign names clearly and not slide over them and spit them out as though they were too hot to manage!

Assurance Needed.
 (Industrial Press Service)

In order to set up funds for reconversion and the postwar expansions that mean maximum employment business needs prompt assurance against future competition from government-owned war plants. The government is said to have a controlling interest in three-fourths of the country's new industrial plants. Built with public funds, these projects for the most part have been operated by private management in our almost miraculous production for victory.

Government operation of these plants after the war would mean, in effect, that private industry was being taxed to subsidize tax-free, publicly-owned competitors. Facing such unfair and ruinous conditions, manufacturers would get a cold reception from the investing public.

Venture capital demands the possibility of a fair profit to offset the possibility of loss. If unfair competition renders profit unlikely and loss almost certain, wise men will not risk their savings.

To clear the road so that business and industry can create a better postwar economy, congress should give assurance now that all government-owned plants not needed for national defense shall be leased or sold to private owners.

The Professor Hollers for Help.
 (Saturday Evening Post)

Distrust of the professor is no invention of the New Deal. It goes deep into what professors would call the "mores" of our civilization. To be sure, the pre-New Deal feeling about professors was more tolerant, largely because a man who is always losing his glasses or appearing in class with a string around his finger is not regarded as a menace until he is put in charge of the railroads, or the currency. Nevertheless, the average American has always been pretty leery about professors in so-called practical affairs.

Prof. Eugene Van Cleef, of Ohio State University, thinks this is not only unjust but illogical. "If professors are such starry-eyed creatures," he asks, "why do businessmen, who obviously classify themselves as practical, hardheaded men of affairs, send their children to our universities and expose them to the teachings of these unrealistic and theoretical professors? Why do so many businessmen give financial support to the industrial foundations established within the walls of our universities? Why is it that business firms entice professors from their laboratories and classrooms to head their research divisions?"

The answer, of course, is that businessmen do not regard professors as crackpots in their own fields of activity, unless the field happens to be economics. Even as undergraduates the businessmen admitted that, although old Fuzzy Morris was likely to forget to put on a necktie, he did know plenty about Chaucer. The professor of physical chemistry may contribute something epochal in steel treating, but that wouldn't reconcile the businessmen to letting the learned expert write an income-tax law. The New Deal's crime against the professors was to cast them in the wrong roles. A man who was carrying on experiments in the crossbreeding of chickens is asked in to reform the gold standard. Small wonder that the currency flutters about as if it were hatching a china egg.

We go along with Professor Van Cleef's conclusion—namely, that professors vary much the way other people do. "There are good men and bad men, optimists and pessimists, geniuses and average men, broad-minded and narrow-minded, much traveled and provincial men. Professors make mistakes not because they are professors, but because they are men."

Now, if we can get professors to concede that much about businessmen, instead of regarding them as character parts written for Charles Coburn in the moving pictures, maybe we can have peace.

POSTWAR LOANS.

We are advised by the secretary of the Nebraska Bankers association that this state's bankers are planning in accordance with a nation-wide policy, to give financial assistance to persons in need of new equipment in the postwar period. Within limits of credit safety, it is proposed to help meet long-deferred needs. The association's secretary says in part: "This field of banking activity is not new to bankers in Nebraska, but during the war, rationing and priorities have shut the door on the greater volume of such loans. Bankers everywhere not only expect a general resumption of established consumer credit operations, but a big increase in this general field of credit. It is pointed out that this type of lending is naturally suited to private banking accommodation rather than through any specially devised bureau of the government. Compiled figures for 1940 show that the majority of the people had no mechanical refrigerator; 60 per cent had no central heating plant and 28 per cent no electricity. Automobile loans are expected to increase by leaps and bounds, and more and more banks are planning to expand personal loan services."

THE SURPLUS.

Reconversion following the war will involve disposition of huge quantities of surplus property. Pathfinder magazine reports that the value of such surplus is estimated at from 50 billion to 125 billion dollars, and includes "everything from 75-cent clip boards to $35,000,000 war plants, from coats and mosquito nets to completely furnished houses." The report says the government has acquired 34,000,000 acres of land during the war at a total cost of $565,385,816. A SWPA official reports finding in one mid-west depot thousands of automotive parts, and at another a big lot of gauze bandages left from World War I and overlooked by army officers. Also Pathfinder mentions the official's discovery of 700,000 pocket compasses that have never been used. The SWPA has appointed different government bureaus as selling agents. Chief one is the treasury procurement division. Speaking of selling activities, Pathfinder says: "It has placed thousands of items on the bargain track. Nine thousand army trunks already have been sold, another 9,000 are 'in sight.' All are 'used,' some battered. Sale of a large quantity of life rafts was completed recently. Most were sold to a Boston department store for $99 each for resale. The manufacturer, caught by a cutback order, had a surplus of these rafts, too, but he got only $39 each. Treasury procurement has a list of items for sale. Included are shoes, tons of mosquito netting, radios, fur-lined jackets, some plumbing, heating and air conditioning equipment, tractors, farm implements, road machinery, bulldozers."

Has Special Course.

Samuelson of Wayne, recently completed an orientation course designed to bridge the gap between training in the states and combat soldiering against the enemy in France. Lt. His next station will be one from which America's fighting planes cover the liberation of occupied Europe.

Mrs. Larson and son spent Tuesday in Sioux City with relatives. The academy student, who left Wayne to enter training, enjoys home contacts afforded through the Herald.

Posthumous Award To Wayne Stater

The late 1st Lt. Walter B. Thompson of West Point, who attended Wayne State Teachers college a few years ago, has been posthumously awarded an engraved certificate from the British government. Lt. Thompson lost his life in a plane crash in New Guinea. The award, which came to the young man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Thompson of West Point, says: "By the king's order the name of 1st Lt. Walter Bion Thompson, air corps, United States army, was placed on record on December 4, 1943, as mentioned in a dispatch for distinguished service. I am charged to express his majesty's high appreciation. Signed (F. M. Fowle, minister of state for the army.)"

The certificate came through the prime minister's department of Canberra, Australia, and was made a matter of record in the United States war department. Lt. Thompson flew wounded back from the battlefield.

With Patton Army Liberating France

Lt. Eugene Johnson, with General Patton's 3rd army in France, writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom W. Johnson of Wayne, that he and his "platoon recently liberated a French town. The Germans evacuated just before we got there so it wasn't too hard. The French people really went crazy. They cried and laughed and screamed, 'Vive la Amerique!'"

Lt. Johnson continues, "Dirty and unshaven as we were they kissed us—men, women and kids. They gave us wine, eggs and fresh fruit. The mayor came out to meet us and took us right to the city hall."

The young man says, "War is pretty bad, but when we see things like that it makes us realize what we are fighting for."

Lt. Johnson receives letters quite regularly. He says he receives the Herald and "reading it seems to kind of take me out of this strange nightmare world and back to things I knew about a million years ago."

Lt. Johnson believes the nazis are on the "run and we're going to keep them that way."

Are Providing Well For Men Overseas

Every effort is made to provide service men overseas with the best possible in housing, food and recreation, according to Pfc. Everett Davis of Carroll, home after serving 26 months in Alaska and the Aleutians. In the Aleutians, where the youth spent all but two months, galvanized steel huts which come in sections are put up for the men. Six theatres are on the island where he was stationed. A post library and plenty of post exchanges serve the group. Food is good. Candy and cigars are plentiful, quite different from supplies on the home front.

Motion pictures are often released in the outposts before they are in the states. Pfc. Davis saw Bing Crosby's "Going My Way" last April and "Two Girls and a Sailor" four months ago.

President Roosevelt's party visited the Aleutians when the Carroll youth was there, touring the base in a car. Weather is the principal element in the Aleutians. It is usually bad. It is always changeable and seldom nice. Fog is the main handicap, and Pfc. Davis has seen planes hover over an area four hours trying to find a break in the fog so they might reach a landing field. Rainy season starts now and continues two months. It comes again in February and March. One winter there was fairly agreeable and the other was bad with lots of snow.

He is assistant to a surgical unit in the station hospital, The Carroll youth was stationed only a half mile from Jay Drake of Carroll, before the latter was brought to California. He also saw Barton Bailey while there.

The Herald reached the young man regularly. Sometimes it came in a week or two and other times in four weeks, depending on boat connections. It was always welcome, whether old or new, he found.

The young man, who reports September 28 to his new station at Camp Haan, Cal., after his first furlough in over 28 months, says one would never know a war is on from the great amount of travel on the west coast. He noted the packed highways there and the very few cars on roads in this area. Trains leaving the west are always more than full.

Vast crops of beautiful peaches, apricots and other fruits on the west coast are going to waste, the young man found, because of lack of pickers.

Foxes Are Raised On Colson Place

Because of the need for larger quarters, Myron Colson recently moved his fox farm from west of Wayne to a 46-acre tract near McCook lake, S. D. Mr. Colson is keeping his turkey raising industry on the farm near here.

Mr. Colson started his fox venture in 1937. Carroll Elyen is in charge of the Colson fox industry. Foxes are nervous and high strung. Even the keepers do not know the number of pups in the litters until they are several weeks old and come out of the pen of the season.

The pupping season is from March until July 1, and during that period visitors are not allowed around the pens. After August 1, persons may go to the pens to see the baby foxes.

Animals are fed only once a day during the pupping season. The diet consists of horse meat formula containing carrots, apples, liver, deer and bone products. Each pair receives two pounds daily and this is increased to seven pounds after the pups arrive.

The female fox carries the food into the privacy of her den. The amount taken usually furnishes some indication of the number of pups in the litter which may vary from one to five.

The pupping season begins in late November and runs into December. Animals are put to sleep painlessly by hypodermic injections. Pelts are shipped east for sale.

Mr. Colson specializes in black, silver, platinum and white foxes. Each pair has an individual den which is surrounded by fence. Fencing extends 18 inches below the ground and covers the top. No green plants are allowed to grow in pens as these often cause illness if they are eaten by the animals.

County Declared Accredited Area

Cool Nights Suggest That Winter is Approaching in Early Days.

Early Days from the Wayne Herald for September 6, 1928:

Wayne county has been declared an accredited area in tuberculosis eradication. Herds have been tested and all cattle are free from tuberculosis.

The advent of September with cooler nights suggests that winter is not far off. People are preparing for the new season. The harvest promises to be abundant.

College, city and rural schools are opening a new term. Mrs. L. W. McNatt and son and Miss Maurine Bald were injured slightly when cars driven by the women collided in Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire of Wakefield, pioneers of the county, observed their 56th wedding anniversary. The former is 88 and the latter 76.

W. R. Larson and Frank Korf of Wayne, were elected president and secretary of the northeast Nebraska firemen's association which met at Emerson. Wakefield had the prize for largest attendance.

H. V. Richardson, aged 52, died September 1, 1928. Miss Katherine Strickland of Wayne, and G. C. Tillquist of Chicago, were married August 29, 1928.

Wayne's new hotel will be named the Stratton.

Rev. E. J. Moede of Sheridan, Wyo., has been called to serve Altona church.

An Al. Smith club was formed by Wayne county democrats with J. H. Kemp president.

Precipitation for 1928 is behind that of 1927 but ahead of 1928. Up to September 15.41 fell this year, and the record was 22.81 for last year and 13.21 for 1926.

Miss Florence Blaker of Wakefield scalded her legs when she tripped a teakettle of hot water.

W. B. Wells, Miss Rachel Bracken, Miss Helen Norton, Miss Eleanor Isom and Miss Mamie Isom are teachers at Shoes.

Wm. Koch is building a new house east of Winside.

Evan Hamer of Carroll, is in a Norfolk hospital.

Francis Jarvis and son, the former a nephew of Francis brothers of Carroll, were killed in a cyclone at Red Oak in August, 1928.

Miss Helen Grier of Carroll, fell from a step and broke an ankle. W. C. Everett of Carroll, has gone to Rochester to consult specialists.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Landanger of Carroll, August 27, 1928.

Theo. E. Bernhardt, 78, early resident of Hoskins, died August 27, 1928.

Cyril Templin, Hoskins Civil War veteran, was honored on his 91st birthday August 28, 1928.

Happenings in Wayne. From the Wayne Herald for August 29, 1908: J. L. Beaton has been appointed postmaster at Shoes. Lee Buker is playing with a Des Moines band. Dan Harrington went to New York to buy merchandise.

Danberg sold his threshing machine to Marshall Anderson for $1,200. Prof. F. M. Gregg and Mrs. M. A. Phillips are instructors for Wayne county teachers' institute.

Fred Reppeborn bought the C. Benschopf residence in Winside. The Oscar Ramseyes have been on a claim near Phillips, S. D., and have now returned to Winside.

Dave Leary was chosen Winside school custodian. John Getman and Miss Celia Buck suffered minor injuries when a team ran away and threw them from the buggy.

Herman Lundberg and Miss Anna Lund were married August 20, 1908. John T. Bressler, O. F. Evans, Geo. R. Wilbur, David Cunningham, Dr. R. B. Crawford and Mrs. Charlotte White were elected officers of Wayne county old settlers' association.

The picnic was held at Bressler grove northwest of Wayne. The committee in charge of next year's observance includes Mrs. J. M. Pile, Mrs. J. T. Bressler, Mrs. White, Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Anna Bright.

Dixon County Events. From the Northern Nebraska Journal, Ponca, for August 13, 1891: Ponca council advertised the sale of $10,000 worth of water bonds issued by the city, these having been issued for building and maintaining a water system for the town.

A mile race course for Ponca is a surety. A fair is planned at Wayne in September. S. P. Mikesell of Ponca, will open a store in Osmond, one of the new towns on the Short Line railroad.

Lee Windrem will edit the Coleridge Sentinel. G. L. Tenney of Iowa, will start a new paper at Allen. The dull noise of the threshing machine awakens the echoes from early dawn until the curtain of night is securely drawn.

These are the days of flies and hungry-snouted mosquitoes. They are very industrious beings and do not subject themselves to Nebraska's laws regarding working hours.

Wayne is enjoying quite a building boom. Ponca mill ground out 400,000 pounds of flour for the Indians. A small inflated object seen in the heavens was believed to be a balloon sent up from Sioux City. A steamboat came from Bismarck to Ponca, bringing oats and flour. Fire destroyed the Geo. Hawley blacksmith shop and the G. N. LeValley lumber and lime house in Wakefield and damaged the Noah Weaver wagon shop with a loss estimated at $1,000.

North Nebraska racing circuit will sponsor races at Wakefield this fall. Dixon county expects to have a big display at the Sioux City corn palace. Dan Curry's home and all the contents were lost in fire. The weather has been the hottest of all season. Old Sol seems to have concentrated the tropical elements and saturated our atmosphere with his best caloric brand. We were made to realize the great value of our shade trees and to appreciate the excellent water in our wells.

Library News

The library is now open in the evenings until 9 o'clock. The regular closing hour went into effect the first of the month.

We are now calling all high school students! Whether you're a "hep-cat" or a "big brain," now's the time to make with the books. And when you go to the public library to get books on your school reading list just take a look at the books for 'teen-agers who read for fun! We have been selecting books this summer with you in mind.

Are you planning your club's program for the year? In program planning, in conducting meetings, in helping your fellow members along, the Wayne public library can help you to be a good leader. And don't forget that public library service to you and your club is free.

In a pamphlet put out by the Junior Literary Guild we came across an article which told of a recent Swedish Gallup institute poll which revealed that Gone with the Wind, by Margaret Mitchell, Behind the Steel Wall, by Arvid Fredberg, with Marguerite Steen's The Sun Is My Undoing and Richard Wright's Native Son as runners-up, are the most popular books in Sweden.

Elmer Davis has said that books have a service to perform which cannot be taken from them by the newspapers or the radio, or even the motion pictures. Reading the list of the most popular books in Sweden makes us realize how much books do mold public opinion the world over.

New books catalogued at the library this week include The Devastator, by Arthur Stringer, The History of Rome, by H. A. Hodson, Joseph Stanley Pennell, Green Dolphin Street, by Elizabeth Goudge, Time Must Have a Stop, by Aldous Huxley, and Valley of the Sky, by Hobert Douglas Skidmore.

Mrs. Ira Lyon and Betty Jane of Norfolk, spent Friday here in the Judge J. M. Cherry home.

Miss Opal Penn began teaching Monday in the Barelman school six miles south and six east of Wayne.

Mrs. Mabel Barrett, who had been here with Miss Edith Barrett and Miss Maxine Barrett, left Thursday evening for Manville, Wyo., where she teaches.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pfeiffer and son of Nickerson, came Sunday to visit the P. C. Crocketts and Ralph Crocketts. Mr. Pfeiffer returned the same day and his family remained for this week.

The L. F. Goods moved last week to the house east of Wm. Beckenhauer's on west Ninth. Fred Risk, high school instructor, who had rented the property, moved to one floor of the Seymour apartments near the court house.

Miss Emma Dennis returned to Lincoln Saturday to resume her teaching after visiting here in the home of her sister, Mrs. J. O. Wentworth. The latter went to Lincoln with Miss Dennis to visit about a week. The two accompanied Mrs. Chas. McEachran and daughter as far as Geneva where the latter are visiting.

Awarded Bronze Star. Second Lt. Evank G. Meier, Norfolk, former Wayne college student, a member of the 91st infantry division, has been awarded the bronze star for heroic achievement under enemy fire on the Fifth army front in Italy.

Meier, who commands a platoon in an infantry company, was caught with one of his squads near Casaglia in what appeared to be a trap of enemy machine gun small arms fire. However, with cool courage and levelheadedness, he was able to extricate his squad and lead it back to his company. The award was made by the division commander.

When the officer and his squad were caught and cut off from their company, Meier ordered his men to remain in position while he attempted to contact the company. Several times under fire within 100 yards of the enemy's main positions, the lieutenant moved forward until he ran into an entrenched enemy machine gun position which commanded the entire area. However, by maneuvering himself up to a ridge he was able to shout orders to his platoon sergeant on the other side of a bank on a train heavily machine gun fire on the enemy line while, one at a time, he shuttled his men out of what would have been a certain deathtrap.

Meier entered the army November 28, 1942.

Queer Mannerisms Acquired by Youths

Jack D. Fowle, of Norfolk, East coast relative of Mrs. C. J. Perrin writes the latter, apologizing for any "queerisms" or mannerisms he, as well as many other fellows, may have acquired in the China-Burma-India theatre of war. The young man states it will take a while for the men and women returning home to readjust themselves. Fowle explains the queer acts as follows:

"If we pick up the pillow from your sofa, we are not checking on the quality of it, but merely assuring ourselves that no scorpions or mice are lurking in the warm darkness of the chair. If our first act at the dinner table is to wipe the silverware on the napkins, it isn't that we doubt the cleanliness of your household. It's a habit we acquired through necessity. The fact that we start to eat immediately instead of waiting for the others to be served is not a mark of ill manners, but a carry-over from the days when eating was a task to be done as quickly as possible and not a pleasant ceremony to be lingered over.

"When we smell the butter before taking any, and taste the food before actually eating, please accept it as a once necessary preliminary, not an insult to your table. Should we examine a slice of bread diligently, perhaps it is because many moons have passed since we last had a bug-free piece. When the luscious piece of home-made apple pie is put before us and we just sit and gaze at it, set our jaw action down as a compliment.

"After dinner you may suggest that we sit out on the porch to enjoy the cool evening breeze before retiring. As we enjoy the best piece of porch furniture, we aren't being obstinate. That camp-bottom chair brings back many painful memories, and embarrassing ones too. In the land of the China-Burma-India theatre, these camp-bottom chairs are ideal breeding places for bed bugs and other small creatures which bite. It is just damn annoying.

"Our searching planes into your box of candy is not born of curiosity, but out of a memory of ants who sought out every piece of candy we ever possessed in this country. "As the evening shadows deepen the restlessness of your guest comes not from boredom, just a longing for the critter that once waited for darkness before crawling across the porch and up your shoe tops to attack stockingless legs.

"When you ask for the ash tray on the table beside us, expect us to light a match first. It isn't night blindness, nor is it just that they are adhering to the unwritten law never reach for a thing in the dark. You see a cobra or a krait might not like to be disturbed.

"When we go to bed we peer around the bedroom corners and under the chest of drawers. It isn't just we are looking for bed snakes and other venomous creatures.

"The fact that we stay in the tub longer than any human has the right to, doesn't mean that we have to soak off the dirt. We are just making up for the days when hot water and a shower were pleasant memories, and a tub almost a forgotten myth.

"Our restless tossing means but one thing. After the rope beds in India, an inner-spring mattress is the comfortable for a war-weary body. In the morning, our little ceremony of hitting the back of the shoe on the floor isn't designed to disturb the members of the household, but to dislodge those spiders and centipedes.

"Breakfast will bring to light other short comings, such as that boarding house reach we developed out of self defence, searching the sugar bowl for ants, running our inquisitive finger around the coffee cup to determine if yesterday's sugar is all gone from there. If a fly commits hara-kari in the cream pitcher, don't be shocked at the callousness with which we 'fish out' and use the cream. It was once a case of share it with the flies or do without.

"We shall make blunders during the short visit, and when we leave, it will be still harder for us to find the right words to say 'thank you'."

ROOSEVELT UNEMPLOYMENT (Norfolk Daily News.)

Keynoting the democratic national convention, Governor Kerr of Oklahoma invited some adious comparisons when he said:

"I take it that none here is too young to remember the tragic years of 1929 through 1932 (and the awful depression and republican unemployment of those four years).

President Roosevelt also referred in his address to "the abyss of 1932." Both Governor Kerr and the president have invited a look at the record of unemployment during the hard years before the war set everybody to work.

The years 1929-32 were bad years. That no one can deny. There was a world-wide depression which created distress in all countries, no less than in this country. Official figures show during those years that an average of 6,207,000 persons were out of employment. But in the first four years of the Roosevelt administration the average of unemployed was 10,066,000, an increase of more than 66 per cent over the previous period.

As the New York Herald-Tribune points out, the phase of the depression under Hoover was world-wide. In the other countries, as in this one, conditions began to improve during the last year of the Hoover administration until after the election of November 1932 made Mr. Roosevelt president-elect.

Then while most of the other countries kept definitely on the road to recovery, the employment situation in this country continued to deteriorate under the new deal policies until the number of jobless reached a peak of 12,744,000.

In the best year of the 30's, 1937, the number of unemployed was still 6,572,000, which was 185,000 more than the average number under Hoover. This improvement, it to be remembered, was achieved only by an inflation of prices from a level of 126 early in 1934 to a peak of 228 in June, 1937. At that point commodity prices crashed and fell to 130 and carried business and employment with them.

"In short," the Herald-Tribune points out, "unemployment, which had been only a recurrent phenomenon prior to 1930, became chronic under the new deal, and remained so until the war came along and removed the problem for the time being.

"The only surcease came when the government deliberately pumped billions upon billions of dollars into the economic system, and that relief lasted only as long as the spending itself lasted.

"In consequence, although Mr. Roosevelt had warned the nation on March 10, 1933, that the then accumulated deficit of $5 billions 'has accentuated the stagnation of the economic life of the American people and has added to the ranks of the unemployed,' the nation found itself at the outbreak of the war, after seven years of the highest taxes in its history, not only saddled with an accumulated deficit of nearly $50 billions, but with unemployment apparently permanently 'stabilized' at around 9,000,000."

There is the record. It isn't anything the new deal orators should care to open up to the public gaze at this time.

VISIONS AND THE LEGION (Industrial Press Service)

Our fighters in the front lines and the fox-holes are fired by no such futile fanaticism as characterizes the Japs and the nazis. Our men have a job to do, they're doing it because they want to finish it off and get home.

Neither emperor worship nor hero worship appears in their dreams of glory; they dream, in moments between pulverizing the enemy of the jobs they'll come home to, the families they have or will have, and most often of the little shop or business they will start for themselves and be their "own boss."

Perhaps no one knows all this better than the men of the American Legion, for they once were soldiers themselves and now are the dads of the lads in the ranks. Thus the postwar program just announced by a Legion commission commands, as it should, the attention of all who sincerely have at heart the welfare not alone of the returning servicemen but also of the country they went forth to defend.

The Legion advocates "employment fostered by a system of free enterprise embodying the greatest encouragement to individual initiative and to every sort of sound business leadership, along with an effective implementation of a national program of fair and impartial treatment for both management and labor."

Of unquestioned patriotism, from a background both military and parental, and with a quarter-century of experience behind it, the Legion speaks—and makes sense!

Pvt. Delmar Elgert, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Elgert of Waterbury, was killed July 5 in France.

Washington, D. C. August 24, 1944. The bill to affirm the intent of congress that the regulation of the business of insurance remain within the control of the several states and that the Sherman and Clayton acts be not applicable to the business of insurance, was passed by the house. It is now stalled in a senate committee. House members are urging senators to act on the measure.

Leo Crowley, foreign economic administrator, has not drawn his government salary for several years. He tells friends that he is anxious for the emergency to be over so he can go back to his Wisconsin home.

Feelings are being put out among house and senate members on lend-lease after the war. These feelings come from British people interested in British postwar economy.

Many members feel that lend-lease was to meet the emergency and to aid our allies to win the war. They want the operation stopped when the war ends. They believe that the countries that have shared in the benefits of lend-lease should be willing to make at least some repayment to the United States. Another popular opinion in the house is that the amounts of claims against the United States for destruction of property in war operations should be set off against lend-lease.

Where beauty softens grief. The Beckenhauer Service of "early September or by October" continue to be whispered about and the warnings about a long war are fewer and fainter. Then there are numerous conferences on what is to be done in Europe and with Germany.

The conditions to be imposed upon Germany may not be fully determined in advance. Representatives of Britain, Russia and the United States seem to have outlined a program that may be completed when the war ends. What the program may involve can only be guessed from the leaks from conference rooms. Included may be the joint occupation of Germany by Russia, Britain, France and the United States, each to have its section for occupation. Then may quickly follow disarmament, including the destruction of all armament factories, chemical plants, aircraft plants and all else of German industry that might start another war. Possible, also, is joint control of all German industry and commerce for a term of years. Much else is possible, including reparations and the restoration of Poland, parts of Russia and other countries devastated by axis warfare. Neither the house nor the senate is having any part in the present inter-governmental discussions.

Lord Beaverbrook returned to London after the oil conference. The state department releases the news that our own oil corporations were consulted as to their share in the distribution of the world's oil fields, but the real facts as to the distribution await still another conference. The big oil monopolies of Britain, Holland and the United States may be having conferences of their own. Russia still is to be heard from. The allotment of the big fleet of tankers built by our government for war purposes may also be an important subject of conversation when the oil kings assemble.

Not least in importance in the secret conferences set up to arrange postwar trade pacts is that now being held on the future supply of rubber for all countries. Our own country has become independent in rubber due to the construction of many large plants for the synthetic manufacture of rubber from petroleum and grain alcohol. Those plants now are turning out several millions of tons for making tires for army and navy uses and for limited civilian uses. Incidentally, in connection with the employment situation when the war ends, it may be mentioned that several hundred thousand men are employed in the synthetic rubber industry.

But the international cartel or monopoly that controlled the principal supply of natural rubber from Malaysia and the East Indies before the war is not inclined to lose its monopoly controls when the plantations are freed from Japanese domination. It has long been one of the most profitable of all monopolies and when our country started to set up a huge stock pile before the war, our purchasing agents were compelled to pay fancy prices for raw rubber, prices exceeding those for which the same raw rubber was sold to Japan before the war. Any trade agreement as to international commerce in rubber may involve the entire new synthetic rubber industry established in the United States with war funds. The natural rubber barons are not inclined to favor the use of our surplus grain as material for synthetic rubber when their monopoly is threatened. The cartel has important connections with financial circles. The outcome of the conference on rubber will be well worth watching. Dumping our surplus wheat abroad, as was done before the war, to prevent its being made into truck and tractor tires, might be one interesting development.

There is Argentine gold in the hills of Kentucky, safely stored away in the big government vaults at Fort Knox. According to the state department, it is going to remain there. It was stored there for safe keeping and it is going to stay safe, even though Argentina may want it worse now than ever before. Ever since that country's dictator government commenced dictating up and siding with the axis powers in the war, it has tried to withdraw its gold from this country. It succeeded in obtaining one shipment of some $53 million after it had been held aboard ship in a southern port a few weeks while the state department deliberated. Eventually, it went on its way. But the leaders of Argentina have become more obstreperous of late, so now Argentina can't have its much-wanted gold. Some of it might be applied on the $171 million in loans from our federal treasury before we entered the war. When the getting was good, some of it might be applied on the interest due on the hundreds of millions in loans in Argentina obtained to pay our exporters for goods and materials after the first World War. The exporters got their pay and business boomed for a few years, but those who bought the bonds, still have the paper. The big point is, our country has the gold and will keep it for a while at least.

After all of the argument about turning industries back to civilian production, the war production board is quietly encouraging it. There may be further war goods needed later on, but if that need does occur, it will be met. The war department and the navy department are reducing orders on some lines and changing demands for others. But through trade channels comes the information that civilian goods may become more plentiful soon. Some big lumber holders holding large stocks seem to be clearing their shelves in anticipation of something not generally known. Donald Nelson says that production for civilian purposes may reach 1939 levels soon after the war in Europe ends. The war department may reduce contracts by 40 per cent and that would mean by about $30 billion or more.

No one is permitting himself to be lulled on the prospective end of the war, but the big rapid-fire victories in western Europe and on the east front are rapidly bringing the end nearer. The earlier guesses

Dairymen Making Plans for Future

Strict Sanitation Is Seen As Certainty in Milk Production Soon.

Postwar planning for dairy farmers has begun, according to County Agent Howard Gillaspie. Many suggestions have been made by various dairy experts over the country. Both producers and processors are looking ahead to the possible changes which will need to take place to meet postwar conditions. Many problems are expected to arise, some major and some minor.

Postwar conditions are not expected to demand the amount of milk and milk products as are needed at present.

Creameries and other dairy produce processors will probably need to diversify their processing. This may include bottling of milk cream, processing of various cream and butterfat products, drying condensed milk and skim milk, buttermilk, etc., within a single plant, rather than each plant's being set up for one or two or three purposes. Smaller country plants may not find it practical to include a wide diversity, but will probably have to widen their services.

The dairy farmer will have to rid his herd of all boarders of low producing cows. The low producing cow requires the same attention or time and labor, the same housing, pasturage, fencing and nearly as much feed as a cow of higher production.

Good pastures are going to be a great factor in maintaining a good dairy market. Good pastures are good ensilage and reduce grain requirement for milk cows. The dairy farmer will have to plan rotation pastures to keep good pasture production. Many farmers are already establishing good broom and crested wheat pastures. The demand for seed this summer has been extremely great. Good pasture provides the feed for livestock.

It has been found that alfalfa hay can be improved by more careful selection of cutting time. Agricultural experiment stations have been making studies of alfalfa hay cut at various stages.

The shortage of farm help has caused the use of labor saving devices and the rearranging of barns and equipment to reduce the time needed for the chore.

Many new farm buildings are planned after the war. Careful study should be given before building. The dairy and milk shed will have to be built for greatest convenience.

Improvement of quality of milk will almost be a certain program for every producer. It is believed that all cows will have to pass health tests often in order to supply for the human public. Today some communities, some associations and institutions are fast adopting rulings that every cow providing dairy products within their limits for human consumption must be tested for T. B. once each year and tested every six months for bangs. And all reactors must be taken to market within a few days after reacting. Sanitation laws will become quick and rigid, the county agent believes.

All of these things and maybe more will have to be given careful consideration in the dairy program of tomorrow. Postwar planning can begin now on the farm to get your dairy herd on what is thought to be a postwar profit basis.

FROM PAUL Hoskins, Neb.

Dear Editor: Me and Marthy has been worrying about this prohibition business being brought up right now when so many of our boys is where it ain't going to be handy to vote, being as it don't seem quite honest like. We ain't got no use for liquor but we don't want prohibition back again if it means that our decent little towns and cities is to be dirtied up again with the bootlegging business. There was families in every little town that had been poor but honest for several generations, but under prohibition they joined up with bootleggers from big cities and brought in a stain of shame and filth and disease that won't be gotten rid of for a good many years. There was young folks and older ones that went to these joints that ordinarily wouldn't have ever wanted that kind of stuff. If folks is going to have to have that kind of stuff it had better be sold out in the daylight and not up the alley on a side street. If the dealers that's handling liquor nowadays was just to paint a sign across their windows that women customers wasn't wanted, I reckon there would be less objection to it now than there is. There ain't nothing more disgusting to most of the men customers that goes in for a drink of beer than to see some female dipped over a chair or a stool, giving a leg show or worse, maybe trying to bum a cigarette or a free drink. The little towns ain't bothered so much with that kind of customers but the bigger places would do well to clean up that kind of trade too, especially the ones that cater to the working man. ## Food For Folks

In cooperation with

Mrs. R. M. Carhart, county nutritionist.

Saving Vitamins in Foods.

It has been recognized that vitamin values vary in foods when they are harvested because of differences in variety, maturity, soil, fertilizer, water and sunshine. After harvesting the values will change under storage conditions and in preparation and cooking procedures.

Reduction of vitamin losses has long been the concern of the bureau of human nutrition and home economics and as a result these specialists and many others have made extensive studies seeking the solution to this problem. After some detective work these nutritionists have come up with the following suggestions to put an end to the mystery of the disappearing vitamin:

Let oranges, tomatoes and berries ripen in the sun to increase their ascorbic (vitamin C) acid content.

Save the green outer leaves of vegetables. . . they have more vitamin A value than the bleached inner leaves from the same head.

Avoid cell or tissue injury. Sound strawberries may hold their vitamin C well for two days, but if injured or bruised, they will lose about half of their vitamin C by the end of the first day and all but a trace after the second day. Finely shredded cabbage loses more ascorbic acid than when served as wedges.

To Soak or Not to Soak.
Do not soak vegetables. This is one of the firsts in saving vitamins in fruits and vegetables. Soaking dissolves some of the vitamins out in the water. Soaking peas dissolves out some of their thiamine; soaking leafy vegetables dissolves part of their riboflavin; soaking potatoes dissolves some of their ascorbic acid, but if potatoes must be prepared ahead of time and soaked, be sure they are put in salted water.

Air or oxygen will rob foods of some of their vitamins, especially ascorbic acid and vitamin A. Potatoes have been known to lose two-thirds of their ascorbic acid when whipped until light and fluffy. For this same reason it is unwise to cut excess vegetables into foods while they are cooking. For this reason also it is better to prepare all fruit and vegetable salads just before serving and to leave the fruits of vegetables in fairly large sections rather than finely divided pieces.

Do not use soda in cooking green vegetables.

Some do's for cooking foods include: Raise temperature to the boiling point as rapidly as possible; avoid overcooking as the longer foods are cooked the more vitamins are destroyed; use as little water in cooking as possible because the more water used the more vitamins are dissolved out of the food.

Avoid straining foods through metal strainers whenever possible.

Avoid copper kettles for cooking foods rich in vitamin C, such as tomatoes or cabbage.

Did You Know That?

The liquid from canned foods has some of the thiamine, ascorbic acid and riboflavin dissolved from these foods.

Frying foods destroys vitamin A, thiamine or ascorbic acid.

You should start cooking frozen foods while they are still frozen.

Raw frozen foods should be served immediately after thawing.

Foods should be served as soon after preparation as possible, because they lose additional vitamins when held on the stove, in the warming oven or on the steam table, or when reheated as leftovers.

Pointers About Storage.

Storage losses may be avoided by using vegetables and fruits as quickly as possible. Even products from the home garden may suffer vitamin losses, the extent of which depends upon the storage conditions and vitamins concerned. Recent experiments showed that:

Beans held in the refrigerator for 48 hours lost 60 per cent of their ascorbic acid.

Cabbage loses ascorbic acid rapidly in about one week in an electric refrigerator.

Onions lose about 20 per cent of their ascorbic acid after one month of storage and about 45 per cent at the end of three months.

Peas can be held in the pod for as long as 8 hours with little or no loss of ascorbic acid, but after that they lose about 10 per cent of it. When shelled and held at room temperature the losses are more rapid, with as much as 24 per cent lost in 24 hours.

Losses of ascorbic acid from potatoes in storage in the winter and late spring months are heavy. From January through April the loss amounts to 40 to 57 per cent.

Turnip greens held at room temperature for 24 hours may lose 21 to 32 per cent of their ascorbic acid, but if held in the refrigerator the loss may be reduced to about 3 to 6 per cent.

Berries that have not been bruised or injured may be held at room temperature for two days with little loss of ascorbic acid, but thereafter some berries lose their vitamin C rapidly so that only a trace remains by the end of the third day.
