Will Tell of Work In Leprosy Mission

Rev. Harold C. Etter, the marvelous work of evangelizing and healing among depressed Telugu lepers of India and the immediate vital needs for segregating and ministering to outcast and refugee lepers in the Burma road area of free China will be told by Rev. Harold C. Etter, general director of the international Christian leprosy mission, at First Presbyterian church here Monday, September 25, at 7:30. This timely address will be illustrated with remarkable pictures of war conditions in China under which missions work. It will also show leprosy work in India.

Leprosy exists in practically all lands, but India, Burma and China are regions of very high incidence. One person in every 400 in the world is a leper, yet only three per cent have been reached with physical care or the gospel. In India, with the Canadian Baptist foreign mission board, ICLM supports two free clinics, a boys' leprosy home and native evangelists and medical attendants to lepers. An excellent staff of missionary doctors assists native workers. The new Pithapuram clinic reports five discharged in about a year as symptom free. In Yunnan, free China, ICLM is caring for lepers wandering about in the infective stages. The pitiful and alarming condition is a threat to public health and a real danger to members of the armed forces of the united nations who may contract leprosy and bring it back. Many can be healed and the majority become Christians. This service is supported by free will gifts. The American office is 4857 SE Sherman, Portland 15, Ore.

Harold C. Etter, general director of the International Christian Leprosy Mission, will be the guest speaker. The public is invited to hear this message and see these pictures. The series of Bible studies presented by the pastors will be on the theme of Prophecy to Israel. The men and their subjects will be as follows: Tuesday, Rev. H. H. Hazzard, on the prophet Amos; Wednesday, Rev. O. B. Proett on the prophet Obadiah; Thursday, Dr. Victor West on the prophet Hosea; Friday, Rev. S. K. de Freese, on the prophet Jonah. Hillman THE Norfolk Daily News quotes Edward K. Flaherty, representing the A. F. of L. in Washington, and the Labor Unionist, official organ of the Dayton, Ohio, central labor union, as denouncing Sidney Hillman, CIO boss, as a threat to American unity. He would be dangerous to labor as well as to other groups if the fourth term were adopted. The Daily News concludes:

"This is a sample of what is being said not only by labor spokesmen, who have the interests of the labor movement at heart, but also by others who are alarmed at the thought that Sidney Hillman might, as the result of this campaign and the tremendous power his millions of dollars in political funds give him, build himself up as one of the most dangerous personalities in this country."

"It begins to look as if President Roosevelt, by making an alliance with Hillman and his crowd, has antagonized more voters than he has attracted. Hillman's veto of James F. Byrnes as vice presidential candidate, after the president, at the request of the bosses, dropped Wallace, has built up a deep distrust in the minds of many democrats as to his value to the fourth term ticket."

"It would not be surprising if the president, even at this late date, should try to kick him down the ladder as he has others who became liabilities to his fourth term ambitions."

Cordial STRANGERS who move to town, like to be recognized and made to feel at home. They are welcome, but they would relish proof of the fact. Then when they meet fellow-travelers, they like to be spoken to and not experience a chill north wind. This inadvertence - not intentional neglect - has been called to our attention.

Some years ago the Business and Professional Women's club carried out a plan to greet new-comers and extend evidences of hospitality. It worked well. It made contacts with strangers easy, and contributed to valuable community fellowship. Some organization should undertake this helpful service. It would seem in line with the work of the Chamber of Commerce, but if not, some other group should act in that direction.

Families who come here to locate and often invest, should be given to understand they are wanted - as they are - invited to join business, church and social units and given the glad hand without formal introductions. Strangers appreciate manifestations of friendship. Cordial treatment always makes one modify complaints and emphasize desirable points. Wayne does not feel smug, but it should warm up and avoid the appearance.

Safe HOPE for heading off dangerous inflation rests with the election of Road Gov. Thos. Dewey whose record has been sound and whose public statements are reassuring. Concluding editorial treatment of the subject, the Omaha World-Herald makes this comment:

"Not once since 1933 has the Roosevelt administration balanced its budget, despite almost innumerable pledges to do so. Presently it does not even discuss the subject. Its pleaders and advocates talk of the billions they will put. Among them are unusually favorable weather, the willingness of farm families to work harder and longer, and the great improvement in farm efficiency. The extent of this improvement was revealed in a recent report on county-agricultural-agent work. From 1890 to 1910, the increase in food production per farm was sufficient to feed 7 of one additional person per farm. But from 1910 to 1940 the increase would feed 5.1 more people per farm. Since 1940 there has been another marked advance. Power machinery, research resulting in better crop varieties and breeds of live stock, agricultural-extension work, soil conservation and a more skilled and informed farm population, all have a part in this progress. New Deal restrictions on production partially concealed it. The needs of the war brought it out in full measure."

"This increased farm productivity has proved a blessing in wartime and will constitute a challenge when peace comes. Unless it is matched by expanded industrial production and employment, there will be counsels for farming to throttle down again."

IT JUST AIN'T SO. (Norfolk Daily News) The mercury dropped to 40 degrees here Wednesday night and came within 8 degrees of making a weather prophet out of Jake Rach-spend in maintaining a world bank, in financing the UNRRA, in governing and regulating the occupied areas, in setting up something resembling the WPA on a worldwide basis, in undertaking grandiose projects at home to "take care" of the veterans and the unemployed. If they ever entertain so much as a single vagrant thought on the subject of saving the taxpayers' dollars, they have not confessed it in public."

"Plainly, if there is any hope for a balanced American economy - an economy in which the dollar is worth today what it was worth yesterday and will be worth tomorrow - it rests with Governor Dewey. By his actions as governor of New York, and by his published statements, he has shown himself a believer in sound public finance - and therefore a true and effective enemy of inflation."

Notable SPEAKING of September's historic events, Nation's Business says:

"Henry Hudson discovered the Hudson river 335 years ago in September, the First Continental Congress began on September 5, 170 years ago; Perry won the Battle of Lake Erie in September, 'Old Ironsides' was launched, Balboa discovered the Pacific ocean, and our constitution was finally adopted - all in September."

"We are not sufficiently psychic to foretell what this September will bring but we can hope that this September may add another notable date to the string."

"We know what you have in mind, and we, too, and everybody else hope the same thing. But if it comes in September, it will have to hurry along as only ten days remain. Thus, following end of the European war, we will strengthen hopes in the direction of defeat of the new deal - which defeat, however, will have to be postponed until November."

"We doubt if anyone in the middle west has a better understanding of agricultural and stock-growing problems than Samuel McKelvie, former Nebraska governor, and we know no one who has clearer or more practical ideas along the lines mentioned. We doubt if he has in mind a place in the national administration in case of Dewey's election, but we do believe if he were called to serve as secretary of agriculture he would inspire confidence in all farm groups everywhere. He is sound, square and knows."

"The politically uncertain state of Washington was the setting for Gov. Thos. Dewey's speech Monday night, and what he said in the large labor union center of Seattle could not fail to meet the approval of any unionists who are disposed to be fair and inclined to take a forward-looking view of their own interests. He was as logical and convincing as he was in former speeches."

"Discussing what to do with defeated Japan at the Town Meeting of the Air program Thursday night, one speaker with first-hand information about the Nipponese advocated putting affairs largely in the hands of the women of the islands after making freedom from the military machine complete. He expressed some confidence in the women."

"Senator Truman's reported connection with Kansas City's political machine makes one wonder if he isn't more of a liability to the new deal as a vice presidential candidate than the present incumbent would have been, despite the latter's fanciful ideas including a quart of milk to everybody every day."

"Private capital represents work and planning, and without it only the government could furnish jobs which mean regimentation. Naturally independent persons prefer to rely on individual resourcefulness rather than on government paternalism."

"Gallup polls and other political surveys are so close that they squeeze the cocksureness out of both sides. It will take the election to decide."

"An article in the dangers of inflation appears in the current Nation's Business. The author points out how cheap money and soaring commodity prices may cause the very thing people fear and the government is endeavoring to avoid. Inflation would be particularly severe on persons with fixed incomes. But the writer closes with these encouraging words: 'However, there is no serious danger of a runaway price spiral if we have the courage to keep our budgetary deficits to an absolute minimum. If hard times come in postwar days and we listen to the demagogue who says, 'Let us not put property rights above human rights,' in his argument for bigger budgetary deficits and currency inflation, we must have the necessary insight to distinguish between safe and dangerous monetary policy. This does not mean that the budget need be balanced every individual year, but it does mean that over the course of years, the budget must be in substantial balance. Above all, we must not permit monetary manipulations, when the economic machine gets out of balance, to substitute for the necessary price and cost readjustments which will again allow enterprise to march forward. There are no miracles in economics and we must not let the demagogue or politician mislead us."

HERSHEY'S BREAK One soldier's group has been heard from in regard to the quoted remark from Gen. Lewis B. Hershey that "We can keep people in the army about as long as we could create an agency for them when they get out." Captain signed by 111 overseas soldiers and presented in a withering parody, was published in the Stars and Stripes and ordered entered in the Congressional Record. It suggests that the soldiers would like to have the general share with them a "slit trench" in the front lines. It suggests the feeling of every mother, father, sweetheart and wife who has a man serving overseas. Writing ironically, the soldier letter concludes: "Our only wish is that we can have an end to this dreadful talk of demobilization, this awful spectre of returning home over the storm-tossed waters of the gray Atlantic. We want to stay here forever and forever among our pleasant European friends. We are certain that none of us would ever consider returning home to America and taking work away from the poor fellows who have so nobly stood up under the strains of gasoline rationing, cuffed trousers and union scales."

LETTER FROM PAUL Hoskins, Neb.

Dear Editor: Well me and Marthy took in the fair and it was a good fair considering its being war time. There was one thing that was missing and that was all our young men and we sure hope we have them all home again by another fair time. Seems the new dealers has a plan a cooking to keep the boys in the army a couple of years after peace comes to save expense of looking after them unemployed. Well us farm folks want our boys home, when the war ends, the quicker the better, and I reckon there will be farms a plenty too. These farmers that's been trying to farm the whole neighborhood, can by public opinion, be made to let go of the extra farms they have been farming and then there's others that took up farming cause there was a draft blowing their way that's longed to get back to their city life. All the boys won't be wanting to set out for themselves for a year or two either, as some of them will be needing a good rest. Seems like there's a lot of things that don't make sense these days. Joe Stalin, he's too busy keeping his Russian armies on the march to take time to go to Churchill and Roosevelt's tea parties. Roosevelt is too busy running the war to make any campaign speeches but takes time to go to Canada to visit Churchill and the surprising thing being that Eleanor got to go along. We'd rather think that Marshall and "Ike" and Mac Arthur and the rest of the top ranking generals was still running the war. We don't want Roosevelt to take over the running of it now when they are really going places. Seems like all the boys in the Pacific was needing was ammunition and supplies and now we are on the way back to taking the Philippines. And it seems now that they were "asleep at the switch" in Washington instead of Pearl Harbor causing us to lose our navy and the Philippines. There's boys and girls of ours, prisoners, that's going to be mighty glad when the flag flies over Bataan again if they're still alive to see it. Sincerely, Paul

"FOR US THE LIVING..." (Industrial Press Service) 74,000 dead! In the U. S. army alone, since we entered the war - 74,000 dead. Yes, our victorious troops drive on. The news of our advances makes big black headlines. But, in small factual type, the war department announces: "74,000 dead..." Let us pause there a moment. Let's forget the movies, the radio, shows, the crisp unrealities on which we feed. Let's remember there are 74,000 who will never again feel the cool, sharp glow of an autumn morning, nor the glow of the noonday sun. Let us remember that they are dead - so many of them before they had fully lived. They are white crosses on a hundred far fields; they are small gold stars in windows; they are memories in the hearts of mothers. Victory cannot bring them back. Nor can our prayers, or our remembering. Then it is for us, the living, in Lincoln's immortal words, to be dedicated to the unfinished work which they have so nobly advanced; for us to be dedicated to the great task remaining before us - "That from these honored dead we take increased devotion... that we wholly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Explosion at Naval Depot in Hastings

Seen by H. E. Space
Homer Space, who is a supervisor of station 89 at the naval ammunition depot at Hastings, writes his mother, Mrs. H. S. Space, telling the story of the destruction of depot 98 in the explosion which occurred Friday, September 15.

The Wayne youth says that about 9:15 in the morning a man was wheeling a torpex, one of the highest explosives handled in the plant, into a railroad car. As he hit the spanner with his two-wheeled cart, the bomb exploded throwing fire into the car. The flame flashed out again and bounced against the wall of the depot ricocheting in both directions. This much was witnessed by several people so the cause of the explosion seems to be pretty well established.

Homer gives an account of the experiences of Gunnar Anderson, under whom he had worked for several weeks. He is known to be a fine gunnarmat as well as a brave officer. It is not certain where Mr. Anderson was at the time of the initial explosion, but he immediately rushed to the dock toward the car which was burning. He failed in his attempt to halt some of the burning men and had to fight the fire alone for a short time. These men had been working around the torpex heads, war-heads, bombs of many sizes and the torpex for many weeks. No one had much time for any deep thinking.

Mr. Anderson, upon seeing that he could do nothing more, ran for the barricade, which is a long dirt embankment about 20 feet high which runs the whole length of the depot on each side. When he reached the top of the embankment, the final explosion blew him into the nearby field where he was found unconscious a short time later.

Mr. Jones is the timekeeper for depot 98. Everitt Reas went to school with him and Homer Space knew him as the laundry truck driver from Norfolk who stopped in Wayne every once in a while. Jones was in the front office when the first explosion dropped some of the ceiling into his lap. He and two other men rushed out of the office and up the road as fast as they could. They were well over a half mile away when the final blast knocked them down.

There seems to be some doubt as to just how many explosions there were in the eight-minute period between the first fiery blast of the torpex and the final explosion.

Some heard two, others four and one claimed to have heard five. Mr. Space was on the north end of the depot and was between a high stack of empty 40-mm. cartridge boxes and the wall. His first thought was that he was trapped, but he started to run to the other end where the mule-skinner were loading a car. He had gone but a short way when the final explosion occurred and he saw the huge cloud of smoke in the southeast. Mr. Space stated that his mind seemed quite calm and his eyes observant, though he knew he must have been highly excited at the time.

Each thought it was his own building. In the depot in which Homer is working, are two mule-skinner who were in the bomb and mine explosion of last April. One was frozen to her mule with fear. The other flashed through a box car she was loading and reached the top of the embankment mentioned before. All this happened about 9:20 a. m. Employees took their smoke period from 9:30 to 9:45. No work was done and at 11:00 all were dismissed for dinner. Work was resumed at 12:00 and production was about normal.

In describing both depots 98 and 99, Mr. Space states that they were built from the same set of plans. Both stood about as high as a four and a half foot dock. The walls are concrete about six inches thick. The roof is slate metal and is supported by steel girders. Four 50-foot lightning rods are on each side of the building and the barricade is on the other side of the road on one hand and on the other side of the tracks on the other. Depot 98, which was 600 feet long and 98 feet wide, was completely demolished. Many piles of cement about the size of an infant's head are scattered around. Two twisted and broken steel girders are by the wreckage. All this gave an indication of the building which had once stood there.

Barricades were plowed up and nearly level. Tracks and road were completely buried. This explosion gives one an idea of the events and happenings which many Wayne boys are witnessing in service. To the people at the plant the demolition of so large a concrete and steel structure was something new and different and quite tragic.

FIVE YEAR PLAN

(Lincoln Journal)

Included in the five-year plan adopted at the Nebraska farm bureau federation conference at Hastings for consideration at the annual meeting is a proposal that the war plants in Nebraska which will not be needed by the government be diverted to peacetime production of goods the raw materials of which shall be supplied by the farms of the state. Along with this it is proposed that the farm lands adjacent to these plants be turned back to private ownership with returned servicemen being given priority of purchase. Both proposals are sound. The presence of these plants within the state provides a golden opportunity to do something about which Nebraskans have been talking for years, the location of industries within the state to make use of the surplus products of its lands. It is not too early to initiate a movement that has every promise of success.

Home on Furlough.

Pvt. Lloyd F. Obst arrived Saturday from San Antonio, Texas, to spend a 21-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Obst, of near Sholes. This is his first visit home in a year. Pvt.

made an instructor after graduation among the top 10 per cent of his class because of particular aptitude for this type of work. The men whom Pvt. Lessman has helped to train in this school are now rolling up scores against the enemy in all combat theatres of the world.

Has Best in Australia.

S. Sgt. Bob Merchant is back in one of the south Pacific bases after six weeks' rest in Sydney, Australia. He really appreciated the stay in the modern city after spending many months in the jungles of New Guinea. Sydney is much like Dundee section of Omaha and the Wayne youth found the people exceptionally friendly. Horse races on beautiful tracks provide one of the chief diversions.

S. Sgt. Merchant visited the botanical gardens in which are trees and shrubbery from all parts of the world and the zoo which is the largest in the world. Spring season is just starting in Australia. While in Sydney the Wayne youth had charge of preparing a squadron book for his unit and he came in contact with very modern printing plants in the city.

The trip to Australia was the greatest relief Bob has had in his long service overseas.

On Guam, the first populated United States territory recaptured from an enemy power, three such camps provided food, shelter and medical aid for some 20,000 liberated native chamorroos.

As to politics, Lt. Johnson says that two years in the navy have removed him from home-front politics. "We are so far away from politics out here that I find myself unable to keep track of the latest political issues."

For the time being, Lt. Johnson is carefully avoiding any discussion of his postwar plans.

Asked if he intends to run for some state office in Nebraska after the war, he replied: "All I know now is that I don't expect to get back to the states until the war is over. But it's definite that I'll return to Nebraska."

During his absence, Mrs. Johnson and their four children will make their home at Clarkson, Neb. Until recently they were with Lt. Johnson in New York.

One of the first persons Lt. Johnson met upon his arrival in Pearl Harbor was his old friend of the unicameral legislature, former State Senator Ernest Blome of Sidney, who now is serving as a Red Cross director with a task force.

With the Pacific offensive gathering momentum at an unprecedented rate, the civil affairs staff works night and day. But the diet of hard work seems to agree with Lt. Johnson. He is 33 pounds heavier than when he occupied the office of lieutenant governor in the Nebraska state house.

Despite the fire, the lieutenant continued his mission, killing or wounding two of the enemy who appeared and then by clever strategy with hand grenades caused the remainder of the company to flee, leaving behind a great amount of material.

Lt. McMaster, a graduate of an officer candidate school, was trained as a paratrooper after going overseas. He was in the invasions of Africa, Sicily and Italy.

After spending a year on a battleship in the Pacific where he had a hand in invasions of the Gilberts, Marshalls and Marianas, S1C Jesse Horrell arrived home Monday for a 27-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horrell. The young man is on a ship which is part of one of the great fleets knocking out enemy installations before American troops go ashore. His special duty is to identify enemy planes.

The Wayne navy man reports that Jap installations are strong but Americans are doing an excellent job in blasting them. He was in the force that shelled Guam for 17 days before the landing. He went ashore on Quagellan atoll to find that the work had been effective. He feels, though, that the Pacific job is so big that it will require at least a year and a half to finish. He hopes to get into Tokyo on his next trip.

The Thompson brothers of Wayne, John and Charles, were on a ship in the same task force with S1C Horrell. John lost his life on the ship last June and as far as Jesse knows, Charles is still on the same vessel. The Wayne youth saw Jack Penhollow and Edwin Hatfield of Wayne, some time ago. He had been with the Thompson brothers on one of the island bases.

Jesse likes the navy and will report to the west coast to join the crew of the same ship after his leave at home.

Qualifying Tests Given in Wayne

Young Men from Five Towns May Meet Air Forces Board Next Week

Qualifying mental examinations for army programs open to young men as enlisted reservists will be given Wayne county youths at Wayne city school September 25 and 26 by a traveling army air forces examining board from army recruiting headquarters in Omaha.

Youths attending high school at Winside, Carroll, Hoskins, Wakefield and Wayne training school have been invited to take the tests at Wayne high. Arrangements for the meeting and tests are being completed by Wayne high principal.

The board will be headed by Capt. Vergil McIntosh, air corps former adjutant of the army glider base at Tucuman, N. M.

Captain McIntosh will speak to youths at Wayne city school Monday afternoon, September 25, outlining the army programs open to young men of 17. No enlisted reservist is called to active army training until after reaching the age of 18. Tuesday morning, September 26, the board will give the qualifying mental examination to interested youths, starting at 8:30 a. m.

Opportunities open to young men of 17 are: Air corps enlisted reserve; army specialized training reserve program; air corps enlisted reserve plus ASTRP.

Air corps enlisted reserve applicants must be 17 but under 18 years of age on date of enlistment for the air combat crew training as gunners, bombardiers, pilots and navigators. These future army fliers are called for training after they become 18. If in school on their 18th birthday, they may be authorized a delay in draft until the end of the term.

Army specialized training reserve program is a pre-induction college study program. It requires that applicants must be 17 but not over 17 years and 8 months of age on date of mental examination and also must be graduated from high school before reaching 17 years and 9 months of age. The college study, in terms of 12 weeks each, is given at leading colleges and universities with tuition, textbooks, medical care, clothing, transportation, board and lodging at military expense. The sooner a youth can qualify after becoming 17, the more college study he gets as his college ASTRP training continues until age 18.

Air corps enlisted reserve plus ASTRP is a new feature of the air corps program in which air corps reservists, if they are under 17 years and 8 months of age on date they enlisted, and will graduate from high school before reaching age 17 years and 9 months, attend college as ASTRP students before flight training.

A youth may determine for which program he qualifies by taking the scheduled mental examinations. If not qualified for any of the programs, he may enlist in the enlisted reserve corps unassigned and will be called to active duty after reaching 18, but if in school at that age, he can be deferred to complete the term.

Residents along the Scribner-Oakdale branch of the Northwestern railroad are elated over the news that the line will be rebuilt. It is reported that the railroad company will expend about a quarter of a million dollars on the rebuilding of the east end of the damaged road.

The hearings in connection with the survey of the entire Elkhorn river and its tributaries have been concluded. Col. D. B. Freeman of the United States engineers plans soon to have survey parties in the field. When the survey is completed a report is expected. If the report is favorable, legislation will be introduced in the congress for some actual flood control work by the federal government in the Elkhorn valley.

The "Infant Care" book issued by the government for the purpose of helping to eliminate infant mortality is also available in limited number.

If conferences on the surplus property disposal bill agree to the house bill, no plant in which the government has a million or more dollars invested may be disposed of without further action by congress. This action was taken because of fear that foreign cartels may be at work endeavoring to induce Uncle Sam to junk our synthetic rubber plants.

The Third district office has many complaints that enough corn picking machines will not be available to harvest the new corn crop. The WPB has been advised of these complaints.

Thousands of farm radios in the Third district are not in operation because batteries and tubes are hard to get. There is no quota on the batteries but army requirements are so great that it may be some months before sufficient batteries can be secured.

The Argentine government is sending out news releases to members of congress intimating that she is now helping the allies. The last Argentine release states that Argentina has donated 3,700,000 bushels of wheat and 5,000 tons of beef to feed people of France.

According to some experts, when the war ends, about 11,000,000 men will come back from our armed forces, and another 11,000,000 will be demobilized from war factories. According to some of these experts, the reconversion bill is aimed at laying the foundation to expand free American enterprise so that it can take care of about 20,000,000 people in peace time—people now employed in the war effort.

According to testimony presented before the post-war economy committee, there are 5,800,000 people receiving overtime wages. There are about 5,200,000 old men, young people and extra women who are not employed normally who are doing work in war industries

A party line is a partnership. You share the cost and you share the line. A good telephone neighbor thinks of the other fellow.

If you're on a party line, and a great many more folks are these days of war shortages, please limit the length of your conversations as much as possible. Another courtesy is to allow time between calls when you've several to make.

These suggestions are for the other fellow, too. But, you'll find your own courtesy is "catching."

and receiving large salaries. All of these figures were taken into account in debates on the reconversion bill. Experts say our national income today is around $157 billion per year. In 1938 and '39 our national income was only $67 billion. Some experts believe that the national income should be around $130 billion when the war is over.

Members who are home in their districts are told they are on call and should the war in Europe terminate suddenly, they will go back to Washington.

The billion and a half post-war road bill may come up for action soon if Senator Hayden has his way in the senate. The house committee has already reported out the bill. It is being held up in the rules committee. If the senate acts on the road bill the house may also act.

All four Nebraska house members and Senator Butler attended the gathering at the Sam McKelvie ranch 18 miles south of Valentine. These Nebraska members held a conference regarding future legislation on post-war roads, on aviation and on flood control.

Those attending the barbecue at the McKelvie ranch witnessed 30 or more pieces of beef, each piece weighing 10 pounds, in the process of cooking. The cooking was under the direction of an expert from the Nebraska college of agriculture. Each piece of meat was wrapped in cotton cloth and also in burlap. It was cooked in a giant water tank which was placed over hot coals in the ground and then the entire pot was covered with sand for 12 hours.

The members of the Nebraska aviation committee held a monthly meeting at Ainsworth during which they conferred with members of various towns in western Nebraska. Many Nebraska officials are interested in the post-war aviation program. A new airport expansion bill is now being written by officials in Washington.
