

Of Opposition to Congressman Stefan Unfounder... Listen Saturday Morning, 7 o'clock - Postwar Planning.

A report brought to Wayne by republican leaders, here for a meeting Wednesday evening of last week, was that the Herald had been leaning away from Congressman Karl Stefan, republican nominee to succeed himself in congress.

No matter how capable or well intentioned the candidate by petition may be, it is plain even to a dumb editor that every vote for him is virtually a vote for the democratic nominee and therefore a vote to perpetuate the new deal regime.

No one who looks with aversion on Washington's flood of new deal playboys, has reason to desert Stefan. On the contrary, every reason exists to support him.

As to the candidate-by-petition-for-congress movement, the York Republican makes this comment: "Political observers of long experience know the dangers that threaten when a petition candidate invades the campaign field."

"Before the third district campaign gets far the bid situation will be made very apparent to all who read or listen. Karl Stefan has made a good congressman; is at the height of his influence as a member of the lower house, for according to seniority rule he will head the appropriations committee should the house go republican in the November election."

Next Saturday morning, September 30, 7 o'clock, the W. G. Skelly award for superior achievement in agriculture will be received by a Wayne county farmer who was chosen by a local committee for the honor as typical among many hereabouts.

In all lines of endeavor, outstanding efficiency and production are frequently rewarded. That is true in 4-H club work. It is true in innumerable avenues of life.

Live communities are planning for the future. They are on the alert for new industries. They are alive to the need of taking up the slack in possible postwar unemployment.

SIXTY SECOND YEAR

National Honor Is Coming to County

Walter Herman to Receive W. G. Skelly Achievement Award Saturday.

National recognition has been won by Walter Herman, Wayne county farmer, for being one of America's outstanding wartime beef producers.

Herman will receive the W. G. Skelly award for superior achievement in agriculture Saturday, September 30. He and his son Leland operate a complete "beef factory" on their 428-acre farm which this year will yield 200,000 pounds of beef.

The Hermans raise their own feed, too, and this year their farm has produced 175 tons of alfalfa and brome hay, 175 tons of silage in trench silos and 175 acres of corn which is expected to yield 75 bushels an acre.

The family is also active in local civic affairs. The Skelly award is presented to farmers who are civic leaders, who uphold the best traditions of the soil and who are outstanding wartime food producers.

Mr. Herman's son, Leland, has graduated from 4-H clubs with high honors, and the two are well-known among cattlemen. Their Polled Hereford have been consistent blue ribbon winners at Denver, Ak-Sar-Ben, Sioux City and other livestock shows.

The award will be broadcast over a national network at 7 a. m.

Roosevelt Buffoonery
PRESIDENT Roosevelt's opening campaign speech Saturday night sorely disappointed those who expected a dignified appeal. He answered criticisms by belittling them. Drawing in Hitler's Mein Kampf and the despised Dr. Goebbels for comparisons was a justly resented affront. Charges of fraud splashed mud on loyal Americans, many of whose sons are fighting in foreign battle arenas to save free institutions. Saying he could not "talk out of both sides of his mouth at the same time" sickened memory that harked back to twelve-year-old pledges to reduce expenses, cut out government bureaus and balance federal budgets. The story involving his pet dog denied nothing and explained nothing, capping the climax of quip-throwing with abysmal triviality.

In contrast with the president's wisecracking and bold flippancy, Gov. Thos. Dewey, opposing presidential candidate, took the new deal apart in his speech Monday night, and step by step exposed the president's role in a reprehensible record, kicking the ground from under misleading statements and untenable positions. Dewey hit straight from the shoulder and wasted no words. He quoted from the record to show the fallacy of the new deal's peace-time policies, and he fastened more responsibility on the president than he is accustomed to take. He is usually shielded by shifting major blame to accompanying bureaucrats.

Gov. Dewey made plain that he will occupy as high ground in the campaign—consistent with the seriousness of world problems—as his opponent will permit him to take.

Thinks Hell Win
THE Sioux City Journal saw in President Roosevelt's campaign speech Saturday night evident confidence in his ability to capture a fourth term. His friends pretend that he is indispensable, and while he does not openly admit the same thing, his utterances arouse suspicion that he is thinking seriously in that direction. The Journal comments:

"Beyond a doubt, Mr. Roosevelt expects to be reelected in November. Obviously, he does not give Gov. Dewey and Gov. Bricker an outside chance to defeat him and Senator Truman. And while it may be true that some new dealers are uneasy over the outlook, which undeniably is for a close election, Mr. Roosevelt is not one of them. He makes it patent that he considers himself invulnerable

AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

There is controversy in Washington as to whether R. E. A. is to remain under control of the department of agriculture, or if it is to be restored to individual status as an independent agency. Many R.E.A. projects in the Third district are being held up pending the release of such strategic materials as copper conductors, transformers, etc.

Capt. Robert Short of Norfolk, a West Point appointee of the Third congressional office, writes from a German prison camp as follows: "Thank you for notifying my friends of my safety. Prison life is no picnic, but I have my health and what is more important—my life. That is more than many of my buddies have—so I am thankful. Hope I am home before I receive your reply."

Nebraska last year produced over 3,000,000,000 pounds of milk, about 100,000,000 pounds of butter and 2,500,000 pounds of cheese.

When testifying before a congressional committee in support of the CIO representative, a CIO representative stated that but or should be rolled back 25 cents a pound. He further testified that, in his opinion, during this time the country would be much better off if they would stop producing butter altogether. Members endeavoring to protect the farmer who milks cows, disagree with this philosophy and are endeavoring to protect the market for Nebraska's great output of dairy products.

Beginning October 1, full responsibility for the disposal and sale of surplus army and navy aircraft will be taken over by the reconstruction finance corporation. Heretofore, the CAAA has been in charge of disposing of the aircraft.

and his position impregnable. He fairly bubbles with self-confidence, not at all strange for a man who has had three terms in the White House and has been renominated for a fourth."

In Free America
WRITER Louis Bromfield says there is no proletariat in America as there is in Europe and as communist radicals try to make the world believe there is here. Granting existence of poverty—often wretched poverty—in America, Bromfield draws this distinction: "What Sidney Hillman is likely to forget is that every American working man is forever looking forward to the day when he can leave the union and be independent, as a contractor or the owner of a small business or a piece of land. It is, of course, the intent of the big union organizer to keep him from doing so. Even the handicapped 'poor white' whom the CIO farmer's union has tried so desperately and so unsuccessfully to organize, is the most cantankerously independent man in the nation.

"The truth is that the fundamental cure for poverty lies in better soil, better diet, better facilities for education, better human stock, better relations between the minorities which together make up the nation. It does not lie in charity, graft, doles and bureaucracy imposed upon the independent-minded man who prefers his hound dog and musket to any proletarian organization on the Gerraan plan."

Editors Chilled
WHEN Franklin D. Roosevelt took over the presidency in 1933 he was surrounded by friendly newspaper reporters. When he deplored national indebtedness and declared he would decrease government costs, they thought he meant what he said. When he acted in opposition to pledges, he chilled the confidence of newspapers. Multiplied inconsistencies widened the breach between editors and the chief executive. Increasing government control over agriculture and other activities created alarm. Newspapers noted the trend to peace-time regimentation, and feeling responsible to their readers they have sounded warnings and have found themselves inevitably against many vital White House policies. Most newspapers are therefore arrayed in opposition to a fourth term, not for personal gain, but to serve their readers faithfully.

Most people prefer to believe America is still in its prime and still able to accomplish wonders. The way it has been able to meet and drive back designing totalitarian foes is proof. Its genius is awakening to new achievements that will improve peace-time living conditions. America is still young in ideas, and under its free initiative, it will lead the world.

Fulton Lewis, jr., columnist, has little confidence in election forecasts, but guesses that the 1944 presidential race is going to be close with no cinch for either side. He believes the result cannot be determined in advance.

Minority nations have been in a tough spot. They have been helpless victims of Hitler tyranny, and they could not defend themselves and throw off yokes of depression until the allies were able to give assistance.

At this juncture with no frost to cut down the corn prospect, the crop promises to be the largest in the history of the county. A coming problem will be to find enough pickers to take care of the crop.

Now that inflammable Harold Ickes has begun sputtering and throwing out verbal lava one may conclude the presidential campaign has been duly launched.

Those interested in purchasing surplus airplanes should write to the R.F.C. in order that their names may be added to the mailing list. The house of representatives has adjourned (11 November) Much important legislation is now held up until that time. The National Educational association is continuing its campaign to pass the bill H. R. 2849 which has as its purpose federal aid to education. The educators claim that so many schools have closed and so many teachers have left the teaching profession that education in the United States is in danger unless some assistance be given by the federal government.

The Third district office has appointed to Annapolis two future admirals and to West Point, two future generals. Charles E. Martin of Fremont, and Malcolm E. Phares of Central City, were appointed to the naval academy, and Robert C. Holland of Tekamah, and John E. Ike of Norfolk, were appointed to the military academy. All four are now in the armed forces. Twelve alternates were appointed, six of whom are also in the armed forces.

Robert Holland of Tekamah, who is to become a cadet in the military academy, is a private in the army, and took his examination on board a transport enroute to some unknown destination in the south Pacific. He writes that he took his examination while the crew were engaged in target practice and while the ship was being painted at sea. Although he doubted his grades would be high, the civil service commission, which grades the papers, reports that Holland's grade was tops by 15 points.

RADICALISM
Pointing out the old-time radicalism of the middle west as contrasted with the present determination to keep free from new deal radicalism, the Norfolk Daily News explains that the old-timers fought to overthrow individual monopoly and are now just as determined to head off government monopoly. It is evident consistency of the part of the area mentioned. The News says in conclusion: "The so-called 'liberal' of the new deal is quite a different kind of 'savior' as the mid-westerner sees him. To the mid-westerner it seems that the new dealer is offering to save him by slipping the halter of an overpowering bureaucracy over his head. The new 'liberal' proposes to save him from the ills of free enterprise by delivering him gagged and bound to big government, and he doesn't care for the remedy. What the average mid-westerner wanted in the days of Theodore Roosevelt and LaFollette was freedom and what he wants now is freedom. In the early 1900's it was freedom from industrial overlords he was seeking. Now it is freedom from government overlords. The mid-westerner seems to be one of those individualists who objects to having his hands tied, even if the person who ties his hands offers to keep and feed him. He yearns for the liberty that free enterprise gives him, even if it does involve some hazards. He may be crazy, but that seems to be what he wants."

FROM PAUL Hoskins, Nebr.

Dear Editor:
Me and Marthy has been reading about the United Relief Fund campaign that's due to start soon, and not that we would be presumptuous but we been wondering if it was to set a goal of $5 for every farm family if it wouldn't maybe bring in a little more money and be a little more evenly divided in the giving. Seems like last year it was 60 cents for each member of the family and like with the Jones family, the amount was $4.80 which they gladly gave, making it even $5. But the bachelor a living across the road, and who has done right well for himself the last few years and being deferred as a farmer, well he gave a dollar and felt proud that he didn't take back the 10 cents change when if he had given according to his and Jones' means he would have given $25. There ain't no worthier cause in keeping up the morale of our boys and girls in the service than giving all we can to this United Relief Fund. We see by the papers that F. D. R. is going to give the boys in service trips sightseeing over Europe when the war ends, and some of them is even going to get to go to school in England. But what we can't see is why we should have to keep any army at all in England when the war is over, and ain't they got soldiers of their own to fill up the colleges over there? As for them sightseeing tours instead of getting started home, we can't keep from thinking of Bob, Mary's boy, who parted from his young bride to go overseas, and wondering what he would think of galloping over Europe to see the wrecks of their cities, and such expeditions, when his wife is anxiously waiting his return, to set up the home they have never had. We don't want them home from Europe until the nazis are defeated, but then bring home, what ain't needed to lick the Japs and police the boche and let them live their own lives for a change. We quit worrying about a kill-

FREEDOM'S COST

A boy who loses his life in the war, has given all he could give. Parents who have lost a son in battle, cannot be relieved of agonizing sorrow by the thought that casualties were unexpectedly few. Touching that suggestion the Saturday Evening Post says: "In the homes which have been darkened by the death of a soldier, or which have welcomed back the shattered remnants of vigorous youth, the burden of war's tragedy is little lightened by assurances that it might have been worse. Already there is a heavy toll of sacrifice. On almost any street you pick can be found a home already visited by bereavement. There will be many more before the final accounting. Nevertheless, there are grounds for hope that the awful price will not be as great as many believed. The June invasion of Franco cost the United States $9,526 casualties, including 11,926 killed, as against the 'half million' casualties' freely predicted in certain quarters at home. The soldier in England who said to a visitor, 'I don't mind going over there, but I don't want to be counted out in advance,' is at least vindicated by the result. There is no cause for overconfidence. Undoubtedly there will be other Tarawas and Saipans in the Pacific. But the over-all result so far makes it plain that the business of landing in enemy countries, preparatory to rolling ahead in a 1944 adaptation of the 1940 blitzkrieg, was accomplished with less loss of human life than even the most hopeful prophets believed was possible. For that fact, which in no way lightens the sorrows of the victims of war's grim lottery, we can all be grateful."

Unique Record As Weather Observer Held by C. W. Long

Wakefield has one of the oldest government weather gauges in northeast Nebraska. C. W. Long, pioneer druggist here, being responsible for this record. Mr. Long became interested in weather as a young man, and as a result of this hobby he has kept a government weather gauge and record at his drug store here since 1889. He has faithfully recorded the temperature and precipitation for Wakefield each evening during these 55 years without compensation.

Mr. Long came to Wakefield March 1, 1885. During the first four years his interest in weather manifested itself in a daily record which the druggist kept on personal papers.

About 1885 I. H. Weaver moved from Ohio to a farm northeast of Wakefield. Mr. Weaver had kept a government gauge in Ohio and had become so much interested that he requested that Nebraska establish one at Wakefield. This was done, Wakefield's gauge being one of the first in the state. When Mr. Weaver decided to discontinue this gauge, Mr. Long requested that he be designated observer.

So it was in 1889 that Mr. Long began his career as weather reporter. The original recorder is still being used. It has been modernized with storm gauges and other equipment and has been repaired from time to time. During the first 28 years here Mr. Long had his store and the gauge north of the present Carroll grocery. In 1915 he moved to his present location. Since then the gauge has been located back of the drug store.

There are few such gauges in this territory. Besides Wakefield, West Point, Norfolk, Hartington and Sioux City have observers.

A complete weather record is sent to Lincoln each month. From April 1 to October 1 precipitation amounting to more than .01 inch is telegraphed to Omaha.

The present war made quite a difference in the reporting of weather information. No temperature or rainfall figures could be released to publications till seven days had elapsed. This restriction was lifted about a month ago.

"Bush" Patterson Relates Events of Early Day Period

Theodore Patterson, known to his many friends as "Bush," can relate many experiences about pioneer days in Nebraska. He has operated a barber shop in Wakefield about 45 years, and when one is delving back for events of the early 1900's he can provide graphic descriptions.

The winter of 1880 stands out vividly in the mind of this early-day Nebraska resident. Bush was but a youth of 10 and October 15 found him herding cattle for Mike Kelly, who lived two miles north and nine west of Lyons. He was barefoot and had his pants legs rolled up to his knees for comfort. About 2 o'clock a fine hail began falling. In a short time it developed into a full-grown blizzard. It was three weeks before Bush could get to Lyons, where his parents lived and where he attended school.

Beginning with the blizzard and lasting into late spring old man winter delighted in playing havoc. Mr. Patterson relates that one seldom saw a cornstalk sticking up during the winter. There were few trees in this section at that time. In fact Nebraska was not thickly populated, so one saw nothing but level stretches of snow in every direction.

Mr. Patterson believes the blizzard October 15, 1880, was worse than the famous 1888 blizzard because folks were unprepared. The fall had been beautiful. Consequently many people did not have a supply of fuel or feed for their stock. Many cattle were still on the range and as a result were killed during the storm. Mr. Patterson remembers seeing many dead cattle being skinned by the Indians, when he drove into Lyons three weeks after the storm.

Mr. Patterson remembers the time Wakefield people thought oil had been discovered. It was in the early 1920's. A well located near the light plant on the east edge of town began to pump oil. Everyone was excited and samples were sent to Lincoln and men were called here from Kansas to make tests. Then it was discovered the oil was distilled and upon further investigation it was found that seepage from the light plant caused all the commotion.

Mr. Patterson barbered in Lyons and Wausa before coming to Wakefield. He has had his shop in many locations while in Wakefield, first being under the present bank building, next to his present location, then to the building which now houses the post office, then in a location across from the post office and finally back to his present location.

Soil Conservation Practices Are Featured in Course at the College

Jason S. Webster and Frank J. Lansing (above) demonstrate the manner in which contours are planned for a field.

That teachers and pupils must get acquainted with their surroundings and use these surroundings to enrich their educational experiences is the basic theory for one of the courses featured at Wayne college August 7 to 25. The course in use of community resources, used in 1943, was expanded in 1944 when 130 students were enrolled for the work given by Dr. Ray Bryan and Prof. G. W. Costerian. Soil conservation was a new unit of the work, added this year, and the plan is to continue this feature. The aim in the whole college program is to expand and adapt training to fit the needs of students. The unit on soil conservation was based on materials from the local soil office, texts from the library and films from Lincoln. A field trip to the Albert Watson farm four miles north of Wayne August 18, as pictured above, was included. Arthur W. Emerson of Lincoln, Paul Evans, Jason Webster and Albert Watson conducted a one-day institute for the class and a field trip to the Watson farm followed. Besides the soil conservation instruction, the course included these units: Philosophy of education, characteristics of small communities, educational resources of small communities, excursions, community helpers, and development of a teaching unit using community resources.

"Picked myself a cup of wild blackberries and put sugar and milk on them. They tasted pretty good. A person could live exceptionally well if he just had bread. Can get eggs, fruit, chickens, potatoes and everything but surely miss the bread. I've never eaten at any French home yet, but lots of the boys have. People treat us well. I was first up around here this morning and a farmer came along with a bucket of milk and gave me a cup. It was all right, the first I've had since we came overseas. Well, that's about all. Everything is going swell and there's nothing to worry about."

Mrs. Lutgen Speaks To Woman's Group

Wayne Club Opens Fiftieth Year of Federation with Large Membership.

Mrs. S. A. Lutgen addressed members of Wayne Woman's club on "The Cost of Common Things," Friday afternoon at the club rooms when the group convened for the first meeting of the year. Mrs. F. S. Morgan introduced Mrs. Lutgen, who is poet laureate in the state federation.

The speaker told that "we often accept many things in life without thinking of the cost of acquiring them." Examples of these things are freedom of speech, freedom of press and free education. These privileges were acquired by hardship and are accepted without question.

Mrs. Lutgen told that each home is a small democracy. No nation can rise higher than the individual homes of the community. She also pointed out that one should stress the qualities needed for leadership.

The speaker pointed out that charter members of the Woman's club had initiative and courage and put in a lot of hard work to bring the club to its present high standards. Mrs. Lutgen said it was the duty of present members to uphold these standards, to make new members feel welcome and to give and take so that all will be inspired.

Members must get behind leaders in order that this may be done. Mrs. Lutgen suggested that perhaps present members could absorb some of the qualities of early members. She urged women to use their right to vote during these urgent times.

Mrs. Lutgen pointed out that now is the time to prepare for V-day and other important events. She closed her address by reading a poem she had written, "Let Us Be Kind."

This year is the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Nebraska Federation of Woman's clubs and the 25th anniversary of the founding of the local club. The theme for the federation is "Cooperation for Victory" and "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself." The local theme is "United for Service; Carry On." Stanton and Wayne Tie in Game Here

Strong Norfolk Eleven Is Meeting Wayne Friday On Local Field.

Coach Wm. Steckelberg's Wayne high Knights and the Stanton eleven clashed at the college field here Friday night, battling to a 13 to 13 score.

The game got off to a good start when Wayne kicked to Stanton's 40-yard line. Stanton fumbled and Ellis recovered. Wayne was able to make the first and 10 on the first play, but was penalized for being off side. Kanzler carried the ball and the Knights again drove through to the first and 10. After two plays Kanzler again got the ball and carried it 15 yards to go over for a touchdown. The Knights elected to pass for the extra point and it was good, making the score 7 to 0.

During the second quarter Ellis passed to Bahe and the latter went over for a touchdown. The attempted pass for extra point was incomplete so the score stood 13 to 0.

Wayne kicked to Stanton's 48 at the beginning of the second half. Stanton drove through the center, but was stopped by Hogan. Shortly after Stanton was able to make a touchdown, and the attempt for extra point was good. The Stanton eleven scored again at the beginning of the fourth quarter, but that time the attempt for an extra point was not good. During the last five minutes Stanton tried the sleeper play, but this was blocked. Bahe intercepted a pass during the last minute of the game and the final signal sounded when the teams were tied.

Starting line-up for the Knights was Paul Powers, Dick Sund, ends; Darrell McPherran, Charles Horrell, tackles; Jim Cooper, Don Tomme, guards; Bill Allen, center; Allison Bahe, Fritz Ellis, Don Hogan, Don Kanzler, back fielders.

"We arrived in London about 12:30 and went directly to a cafe for lunch. It was as nice a restaurant as I have ever visited. We had sausages and mushrooms besides mashed potatoes. It was all good."

"Then we walked through Piccadilly Circus, which is the business and recreation center of the city. We visited the London Tower, a castle where Mary Queen of Scots was beheaded. It is medieval in structure, having a moat around it. The architecture is beautiful."

"Westminster Abbey was what impressed me. We walked down the main aisle to the altar, which is done in gold. We saw the damage which was done during the bombing but all it amounts to now is new bricks and steel beams. I was impressed with the greatness of this monument. Graves of Charles Dickens, Charles Darwin and other great men were other sights we saw."

"Of course we saw Big Ben and stopped before it just as it struck 2:30. We then went to Buckingham Palace, Downing Street, St. Paul's Cathedral, London bridge and other places where visitors always go. We brought our day of sightseeing to a close by going to the show, 'Going My Way' with Bing Crosby."

"It had been raining but Saturday morning promised to be nice so we took off for Lock Lomond. We arrived at Bullock, the place where we caught the side wheeler steamer, a little early so we had lunch at a restaurant. We asked for sea food and got bacon, eggs, percolated coffee and iced water. We left on the 12 boat, traveled the full length of the lake and then spent three hours in the countryside at the end of the lake. Sheffield and I climbed to the top of the mountain, where the little stream starts, took some pictures, basked in the sun, picked some heather and picked up a few rocks for souvenirs."

"The lake has high mountains on each side covered with pines, grass and flowers. Nestling in the caves are the summer resorts and homes of the settlers. We had dinner Sunday with a friend I met while at school. He had to work so we visited with other friends and with his wife until he came home. They surely are fine folks and have a nice home in Dunbarton, a suburb of Glasgow."

"I was able to get a few things for you but due to the rationing stamps needed for clothing, was only able to get two scarfs and some handkerchiefs. With the address of a lady who runs a curio shop we will be able to get some Scottish plaid goods after the war when rationing ends."

"Edinburgh has a lovely park in the heart of town with a clock of flowers that not only is supposed to keep accurate time but also represents the colors of all allied nations. The Edinburgh castle stands in the background with sheer rock cliffs on the side facing the town. We took some snapshots to make our pictures complete."

An unexpected contact with home furnishes a thrill that can be appreciated only by those who have had such an experience. In a letter to Walter Lerner, RM2c L. H. Strehle, who used to be employed by Mr. Lerner, writes September 16 from the navy as follows: "I was very pleasantly surprised today and thought I would drop you a line and let you know about it. It has to do with cigars. As I walked into the chow hall this noon one of the fellows was at the door giving out cigars. Well, I took my two packs and as always looked at the stamp to see who the good people are who sent them down. Really you cannot imagine the thrill I had when I saw the words, Wayne, Neb., on the stamp. The good old American Legion post No. 43. I can say this much, wait, and I know I'm saying it not only for myself but for all the rest of the fellows: Your efforts are really and truly appreciated by all of us."

"Well after having been down here in South America for 15 months, I can say that I am ready to come home any time. I have found out one thing since I have been in the navy and that is that there is no place like the good old U. S. A."

"How is everything back in Wayne? I hope the family is all well and be sure to give them all my regards and also tell Bill Baker hello for me, will you?"

In closing the young man encloses the Wayne Legion stamp which appeared on his gift packages of cigars.

Political Rivals Share One Room

Younger Generation Proves To Officers That It Is By No Means Soft.

James P. Boyd and Homer C. Martin, both of Paris, Mo., applied for rooms separately at a Jefferson City, Mo., hotel. "Sorry," said the clerk, "nothing here, unless you'd care to share a double room." So Boyd, democratic nominee for state representative from Monroe county, and Martin, the republican ditto, shared.

Undersheriff Hayward Shook of Hamilton, Mont., says he doesn't believe the younger generation is soft, particularly the younger generation of first Americans. Indian Jim Vinson reported his two grandsons, 4 and 5 years of age, were missing. They finally were found, hiking happily along. They had huffed it 25 miles through the wide open cattle country, and still were going strong.

Lee Dungan's homing pigeon, released at Bakersfield, 105 miles north as pigeons fly, finally has flown home to Los Angeles. Attached to his leg was a note signed by S2c Jack W. Anderson: "To whom it may concern—This bird landed on our ship last Sunday. He was all tired out so we cared for him and are releasing him today, a week later, and hope he arrives safely. Would you please let us know what happened? We are at sea."

Five Los Angeles policemen complained that a sneak thief invaded the city hall and stole a $75 watch from the head of the burglar squad, two guns and a holster from two detectives, a $50 desk clock and a large bottle of mineral oil from two deputy chiefs of police.

Pvt. Robert T. Young, one of the first Chicagoans to enlist in the marine corps after Pearl Harbor, arrived home after 21 months in the south Pacific and made only one request to his mother: "Please, mom, no coconut and no pineapple for me. Give me the raspberry." Raspberries are out of season, but Mrs. Young said she managed to supply her son with all he can eat.

At Wewoka, Okla., Jimmie, 10, and Dearn Martin, 11, saw something moving in the grass, and dived at it. The object happened to be a five-foot rattlesnake. Boy, their little dog, was quicker. He leaped ahead of them, took two venomous bites intended for his young masters. A veterinarian thinks Boy will recover.

In Forrester City, a laundry worker in Independence, Kan., was fined and sentenced to 10 days' confinement for violation of traffic regulations. Judge Holden had the public's interest in mind, however. He stipulated that the 10 nights must be spent in the county jail and the days at City's usual work in the laundry.

Claude J. Donovan of Indianapolis, got caught in his own trap. He painted the marks on pavements which city police use in timing automobiles for speeding. Officers said they clocked Donovan's car at 44 miles an hour. He paid a $10 fine on a speeding charge.

At Kalispell, Mont., Pete Sherner, a truck driver, heard a mighty thump as he rounded a curve. He stopped and found a 400-pound black bear had run smack into the side of his truck and killed itself.

William V. McIntosh and Tony Ventura sang together in the Salt Lake City glee club three years ago. Sgt. William V. McIntosh passed a few days ago outside an army installation in France where an entertainment was being given. He thought he recognized a voice. He wrote his parents at Salt Lake City and found that he had heard Pvt. Tony Ventura.

Police called to investigate an attempted burglary of a safe at the A. Lucas & Sons Iron dealers at Peoria, Ill., were convinced the bandit became discouraged with his progress. The burglar had made four attempts to cut open the safe's door, as four holes in the safe's door indicated. A welding torch was used by the amateur safe cracker and as soon as it pierced a hole, the welding rod would seal it up.
