There is a general extension of time for filing estimates to January 15, 1945, according to G. W. O'Malley, collector of internal revenue.

Individuals other than farmers may make a new estimate on or before December 15, 1944, either increasing or decreasing the estimate filed before March 15, 1944.

Farmers may file an estimate on or before December 15, 1944. They may also file the final return on or before January 15, 1945, paying all of the tax due for the year.

Farmers filing estimates on or before December 15, 1944, will not be required to file the final return until March 15, 1945. The revenue office does not have the personnel to assist all farmers between January 1 to 15, so the collectors ask that they make use of the December dates. The special meeting here for farmers Monday was attended by 36.

Choosing Vocation Is Topic of Talk

Miss Eleanor V. Gants Is Speaker for College Program Tuesday.

Miss Eleanor V. Gants, traveling secretary for the student volunteer movement, a guest at the college campus the first of this week, spoke in convocation Tuesday morning on "Choosing Life's Vocation." She was introduced by Lucille Blank, YWCA president.

Miss Gants mentioned that most people have self-centered reasons for selecting life's work. The main reasons usually prevailing are: To gain authority and prestige; to follow a family tradition; to live at home for reasons of sentiment and economy.

The speaker urged more thought in selecting vocations. She mentioned other standards which might well be followed as guides: To pick work that contributes the most good to the greatest number of people; to achieve and apply Christian principles; to inquire what is God's plan for the individual and fit into it.

In connection with service, Miss Gants told that one doctor working in a city of a million has more opportunity to serve than one of four in a city of 10,000. Regarding Christian principles, she noted that preaching, religious teaching and missionary work are not the only lines in which Christian principles guide. She suggested that Christianity can and should be practiced in teaching, social service, farming, art, literature and many other fields.

Miss Gants stated that God uses the technique of the 20th century to speak to the people of the 20th century. The cost of one great battleship, she stated, is more than has been spent by America in all time in missionary work. She predicts a great increase in missionary service after the war.

While at the college Miss Gants was a guest at several gatherings and also conducted conferences. At chapel Prof. Russel Anderson led in the singing of carols, "O Come All Ye Faithful" and "Silent Night." Patricia Sloan was accompanist.

Postwar Employment THE Norfolk Daily News quotes the Railway Age's query as to what the new deal will do to handle postwar employment, whether it will allow private business to function with fewer restraints, or whether it will try to take up the slack through extravagant expenditures from the federal treasury. The News comments:

"Railway Age points out that in the decade 1920-29 inclusive unemployment averaged only 16.20, or 3.6 percent of the labor force, but in the decade 1930-1939, including three years under Hoover and seven under Roosevelt averaged 8.468,000 or 16.5 percent of the labor force, and in the seven years of it under Roosevelt averaged 9,030,000, or 17.3 percent of the labor force. Yet under the Roosevelt regime spending increased from an average of $14,434 million in the decade ending in 1929 to an average of $15,550 million in the seven years under Roosevelt.

"The point Railway Age seeks to make is that unhampered private enterprise provided 97.2 percent of the labor force with jobs in the thirty years ending with 1929, and did it without huge government expenditures, and while occasional depressions produced distress periods of unemployment were always short, until the New Deal administration tried to cure them with large expenditures and regulation of business.

"Railway Age has made a point, and one that probably will be well taken. But we shall emerge from our habit of thinking of government spending as the way to guarantee jobs, very slowly. We have been taught lately to depend on Uncle Sam and we shall not feel quite free to abandon that dependence, until we have had a new demonstration of our ability to use our own legs.

"So we may look for large projects, expensively financed by federal money, for the next few years to reassure us that we are not going to fall into another pit."

Experience PATHFINDER magazine quotes Paul V. Maris of the farm security administration as suggesting that there are two kinds of farming, real farming and dream farming, and he advises city boys in the armed forces to watch their steps if they contemplate going into the country to raise crops and livestock. The comparatively independent life on a farm, amidst rich vegetation and sleek animals, is alluring, but, in reality it means careful planning, hard work and many risks. Like any line of work, it requires successful experience, and this may be realized by patient application. Mr. Maris says among other things:

"The real farm, though, is no dream. Farming, in fact, is a hard way of making a living. There is much physical labor for the farmer, his wife and the children, despite all modern machinery and labor-saving devices. Whether too hot or too cold or too wet for comfort, frosts, floods, drought, weeds, pests, diseases to blast hopes of bountiful harvests and big profits. Farmers cannot leave home and return at will. Livestock must be cared for at the right time and the right time is every night, every day in the year. Not all farm homes are equipped with conveniences. Cash returns are likely to be disappointingly small.

"Yet, in spite of difficulties, life on a farm has its compensations. A good farm home is a good place to bring up children. The farm has produced its full share of men and women who have made their mark in various fields, and it may be expected to do so in the future."

Freezing social security payments at one per cent, as apparently favored by congress, would give a measure of relief while other taxes are high and war demands are strong. Abundant lack of reason for the increase is found in the fact that only a fraction of money thus far raised has been needed or used for the purpose. But a disquieting note is sounded in the report that the president is opposed to the freezing and is likely to veto any attempt in that direction.

Six THE National Association of Manufacturers announces a six-point program to insure jobs and a high standard of living in the postwar period. It proposes to enable Americans to earn more, buy more and have more. Here are the six points: 1. Offering better values for consumers by improving production and distribution methods, which will make available more and better goods and will stimulate employment. 2. Insistence upon full and free competition to reduce prices and to encourage the establishment of new enterprises, again stimulating increased employment. 3. Bold investment of risk capital to back new enterprises and expand production, which will also make more jobs. 4. Adherence to wage policies which give workers a fair reward for work accomplished. "5. Providing better tools and improved working conditions as an aid to higher production and fatter pay envelopes for individual workers. "6. Keeping open all possible advancement opportunities for the individual worker, to encourage initiative and greater production by assuring that such personal effort on the part of workers will be rewarded."

When two persons or several members of a family say "I see it!" or "I done it!" or otherwise massacre the English—all in happy harmony—one sees possibilities of changing by extension incoherent to correct usage. Butchery of the language merely counters popular convention, and if enough do it to out-vote those who have learned hitherto accepted forms, it would cease to be butchery. It would merely push off the track students of modern grammar. College graduates have been caught misusing words and flinging them together with no apparent thought of where they belong or what they mean. Eighth graders are often exactly correct. Lincoln with no schooling knew how. Results no doubt largely depend on association and application. Carelessness may kill what one has been taught. Eagerness to learn and alertness to absorb may score high. Future of the language may depend on majority usage. If enough persist in saying "Them was the days!" ideas of correctness may have to be changed.

"I want mama" and "I want daddy" are intensely meaningful and heart-breaking cries uttered everywhere in this tragedy-stricken world. Father has gone to war, and his little youngster at home yearns for his fond caress. Mother may be working in a defense plant, or otherwise trying to do a man's job, and her dependent little boy or girl feels a void that no one else can fill. Worse for children is the condition in war-blasted Europe where families are frequently separated and where the ruthless march of conflict often leaves slight chance for reunions. The cries of helpless children add to the anguish of mothers in the terrific toll taken by grim war.

Probably people are naturally lazy, and the forced habit of eating and keeping warm was no doubt invented to prevent devouring inertia. Necessity is mostly the force behind achievement, though it derives some help from sense of pride. Without the spurring fire under need it is likely little or nothing would be accomplished. The laws of creation looked out for a lot of things beneficial to the human family.

What to do with Germany on restoration of peace to prevent the Prussian element from preparing for a third world war will require careful judgment on the part of the victorious allies. If one proposed plan to divide the country into three parts under supervision of the United States, England and Russia were adopted, it would work best to herd all the Junkers together under the soviet union.

Word from Hollywood says Cecil B. De Mille who handles the Lux radio program for $5,000 per week, has been notified that he must pay $1 in a union assessment or surrender his job. He says he will quit rather than yield to what he believes is a wrong American principle. We hope he sticks to his ground, but we wonder if he will have the courage to do it.

Especially the French in Quebec are raising a row over the proposal to conscript men for overseas duty. Canada is as close to England and France in sympathetic ties as the United States, and our northern neighbors should be impressed and influenced by our orderly acceptance of the draft as an essential in winning the war.

Buying government bonds is a quiet, unostentatious way to serve the armed forces and at the same time provide for postwar wants. It helps win the war and looks out for improvements needed and possible after peace has been restored. A bond is just as sound as money and more desirable because it bears interest.

The death of Albert B. Fall who was in the Harding cabinet and who was connected with the oil-lease scandal, held to the last that time would bring him complete vindication. If he yielded to tempting mammon, as evidence indicated, he paid a heavy price for his weakness and folly.

Northeast Nebraska has been more fortunate than most other parts of the state this week if lack of snow and icy highways is an advantage. Overcast skies suggested evil elements in the offing, but nothing of an ugly nature developed up to this writing.

A Time for Surplus.

Although he is probably as fearful as the next man of what huge agricultural surpluses might do to farm economy at the end of the war, Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, had no choice but to risk surplus over shortage in 1945. He said as much in his recent request to farmers to maintain 1945 production on as near this year's level as possible. He also revealed by his request that WFA is assuming continuance of the war in Europe until next summer or fall. Thus there is afforded no prospect of a let-up in the hard pace farmers have been setting.

Well, even if farmers themselves had been doing the planning, it would have been the same. No farmer, unless he is in failing health or otherwise unable to carry on, has contemplated relaxing his schedule just because American troops made amazing progress through France. None thought of easing up because quick-triggered optimists said Germany would quit. The way to insure victory is to keep on producing full blast until victory has been won. In war no one can dispute the fact that a surplus is better than a shortage.

TAXES. December not only gives emphasis to buying government bonds and getting ready for Christmas, but it is the time to remit the quarterly income tax dues and prepare for another annual report based on earnings. Another allotment of special security taxes will be totaled this month for payment in January. If anyone can get his mind off tax requirements and sundry other material problems, he may be able to absorb the Christmas spirit. Touching the tax business, the Lincoln Journal says this among other things: "Most taxpayers have discovered by this time that abandonment of the victory tax was in name only. The 3 percent paid last year now looms up as a 3 per cent normal tax, but these additional deductions are allowed in computing it. In figuring out the surtax, which is the big item, a new treatment of allowable exemption credits is made. Instead of a $1,200 exemption for married persons and $850 for dependents, these exemptions are now $1,000 for married persons and $300 for dependents. The exemption of $1,000 can be claimed only if a joint return is made in cases where one spouse's income was less than $500."

College

(Continued from Page One) my power to build a world of justice and of brotherhood. But of what avail is the vow unless I do something about it? "What can I do? Well I can give token gifts this Christmas and contribute the amount saved to China relief. I can get ready to help the boys who will be returning. I can call in the lonely homes of service men. I can do dozens of things. "For my sons, therefore, I shall seek to give myself to others. That is my resolve for Christmas, this war year. And in the giving I shall live more richly. That is God's law that He sent His Son, on that first Christmas morning, to reveal."

MESSAGE FROM MARTHA Hoskins, Neb.

Dear Editor: Sometimes I get to worrying for fear us farm women, not being used to anything but the simple life of the country, is in danger of getting simple minded too, just from too much of the sameness. We got so many pretty feed sacks all summer and me and the girls had planned uses for most of them but there was some red checked ones among them that reminded me of the table cloths we used when we were young ones. Only my table cloths was the same pattern on both sides so it could be turned over when us children got one side dirty. Me and the girls had seen pictures of some kitchen curtains that looked like the same stuff. We didn't have any small windows that them kind of curtains would fit, since farm homes mostly have long windows so as to let all the outside light in that's possible, but my sister-in-law, Rose, Will's wife, has them kind of windows so me and the girls made them up, trimming them with white ric-rac and white muslin, figuring on giving them to Rose for Christmas. We was down to see Will last week as he had been ailing, and the first thing we noticed was Rose had her self some new parlor and dining room curtains. They was really beautiful, lavender flowers on a silvery white background, and all the pinks and blues and yellows of the rainbow, or from one of our Nebraska sun sets that we watch from our kitchen windows. The goods was rayon or nylon. Rose didn't know which, and she said she had paid six dollars a panel for them, being seven in all, as the dining room windows was narrow, having one to a window. Me and the girls about laughed ourselves sick coming home, at the thought of giving Rose, curtains made of feed sacks to hang

HOME-TOWN NEWS.

The value of the home-town newspaper to soldier and sailor boys scattered over the world is emphasized by an editorial in the current Saturday Evening Post. It quotes the Olive Hill, correspondent of the Superior, Neb., Express, as saying she had "seldom seen corn look better than this year." Then the correspondent went on to tell about a club meeting, mentioning the ones on the program, explain what was served and how the decorations looked. The Post concluded with this comment: "It is easy to believe that men in foxholes and barracks all over this warring planet are glad to read the news from the Olive Hills of America, gathered and sent in to the editor by correspondents who love their communities and unerringly give the readers the news they want to hear. Anyway this is what our correspondent says the boys want more of. Some home-town papers make special rates for subscriptions for soldiers, and we go along with the idea that an awful lot of morale goes to a soldier overseas when he gets his home-town newspaper, even if it doesn't have news written in the friendly, My Day manner of Mrs. C. W. Roe of Superior, Neb."

in a room next to eighteen dollars worth of curtains, so we will just leave them in the dresser drawer come Christmas, and instead buy some more of them China gimcracks for Rose and Will that their house in already full of. But I just can't forget them beautiful curtains of Rose's. They would be beautiful enough for a bridal gown or even for a dress for the burying of a tired worn out old woman. Would be wonderful to have just one of them panels to hang up where a person could rest their eyes, but we still have the sunsets with all their colors and they are free.

Sincerely, Marthy

Interest in Terracing Increases. The construction of field diversion terraces as shown in the above picture is becoming popular among Wayne county farmers who are looking for better methods of reducing soil and water loss from their fields. The office of the local soil conservation district has helped 13 farmers construct terraces in recent months.

A "whirlwind" terracer was recently loaned to the Wayne county soil conservation district and has been used by Franklin Rees and Don Podol. This machine consists of a one-bottom 18-inch plow and an auger that is turned by the power-take-off of tractor. The "whirlwind" auger throws the dirt as it leaves the plow moldboard.

Several farmers have informed the soil district technicians that they plan to build terraces in 1945 both in fields and to divert water away from farmsteads. The technicians urge that grass be established in waterways where terraces are to drain before the terraces are constructed.

Permits Are Required.

Reinstatement of the provision requiring that shippers and carriers obtain government permits for the movement of petroleum and its products in tank cars for distances 200 miles or less, has been announced by the office of defense transportation. The order was originally enacted at the beginning of the war and was relaxed September 22, 1944, to reduce the 200 mile restriction to 100 miles. Critical shortage of tank cars, which has developed recently, is responsible for the restoration of the 200 mile limit.

Miss Lois Bute, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elgie Bute of Lincoln, and Lt. Howard McDonald of Hampton, were united in marriage November 23 at the Christian church in Lincoln. A number of the bride's relatives from Wayne attended the ceremony.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white shapper satin, fashioned with long sleeves and full skirt which fell in a train. Her bouquet was of white roses. Mrs. Arthur Wolcott, acting chairman, formerly of Wayne, and cousin of the bride, served as matron-of-honor and her floor-length dress was of light fuchsia and was made with long sleeves, fitted bodice and ruffled, full skirt. She carried an arm bouquet.

Judy Meyer, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Meyer of Wayne, cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl. She wore a floor-length light blue crepe dress.

Captain Hanna of Lincoln air base served as best-man. Both men wore regulation army cut corps uniforms.

Successful Year Brought to Close

Nebraska's 1944 pasture-forage-livestock program, concluded last week when 100 farmers from 30 counties met in Omaha, emphasizing labor saving in getting the war job done. Copies of a 32-page booklet with 100 labor saving ideas for the farm, published by the extension service, were distributed in Omaha. Copies are also available at the county agent's offices in Wayne and Lincoln.

Attending the Omaha meeting were 21 farmers who had been in the first pasture-forage-livestock program 10 years ago. Since the plan started in 1935, thousands of farmers have participated in the program.

Louis Bromfield, lecturer and writer, told in Omaha that the world has two kinds of soil, living and dead. He said that soil is a living thing. When soil goes down the drain, people go with it. Dr. O. E. Reed of the department of agriculture, warned that dairymen are going to have to increase efficiency of production in the post-war period to meet changing conditions.

Wayne county was represented in Omaha by Owen P. Owens and J. P. Roberts of Carroll. Ray Roberts of Wakefield, August Kay and Agent W. R. Harder of Wayne. Those attending from Dixon county are Vern Jones, Reynold Anderson and Paul Koester of Allen, and Lonus Ring of Wakefield.

Deficiency Found In Diet of Many

Riboflavin is the first and calcium the second danger point in American diets today, according to nutritionists. Those lacking riboflavin are nervous and feel tired. Vision is blurred.

Research indicates that people who eat large amounts of fats, sugar and starches require a corresponding increase in riboflavin. Milk is the most important source of riboflavin since it supplies half the need of this vitamin in the national diet. Heavier milk is not the most concentrated source. Liver, kidney, cheese, eggs and some greens like kale are rich. Other sources are meats, fish, poultry, dry beans, dry peas and peanuts. Riboflavin is included in flours and breads labeled enriched.

A diet which contains little milk is almost sure to be short in riboflavin. Because light destroys riboflavin, milk should not be allowed to stand in light, particularly bright sunlight.

Library News

"Peace on earth to men of good will!" This age-old message seems far from fulfillment this Christmas but we can do much to bring it nearer. By accepting our responsibility as Christians and citizens, we can make a lasting peace come true for future Christmases. But you cannot become an intelligent, well-informed citizen by reading "Visit your public library."

Reading about the problems which men of good will all over the world must tackle, before we have a lasting peace, know what plans have already been proposed, and work for the plan you believe in. The Wayne public library is an arsenal for peace and recommends especially such books as "Caesar and Christ," by Will Durant, "Verdict on India," by Beverly Nichols, "A Time for Greatness," by Herbert Agar, and "They Dream of Horbe," by Niven Bush. This last book is a novel concerning a returned soldier and should be read by every American. The book will help you to understand the problems facing these returned men and their state of mind. They are returning from things we only vaguely can appreciate and our attitudes and theirs will be hard to reconcile unless we can meet on some neutral ground. This story will make you think about these things.

For relaxation come in and look at our selection of cartoon books. Two new ones are "A Good Man and His Good Wife" and "Small Fry."

Few Tires Off Ration.

The Sioux City district OPA office has announced that, because of their poor quality and spotted distribution, the few grade III or used passenger car tires still in the hands of tire dealers were removed from rationing December 5.

Most of these tires are the residue of the 6,800,000 used tires purchased from motorists by the defense supplies corporation two years ago. Most grade III tires need repairs and recaps to make them serviceable, another reason for removing them from rationing.

Used truck tires and new passenger tires will continue under rationing. All tires are under price control.

Chimney Catches Fire.

The chimney at the Gordon Beckner home on east Seventh street caught fire last Wednesday evening. No damage resulted.

Arm Amputated For Young Flier

Lt. Dean Jensen Undergoes Operation After Injury In European Area.

Dean Jensen, second lieutenant with the army air corps, prisoner of war in Germany, has had his left arm amputated because of an injury. Word to this effect came last week from the provost general through the American legation at Berne, Switzerland.

The young man was flying from England and had a number of missions to his credit when his ship was downed near Farris last June 22. The officer was first reported killed and later word told that he was a prisoner. Letters have come from him and in one recent one he mentioned that he had suffered injury to his left arm.

Lt. Jensen is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Jensen of Coleridge, and attended Wayne college three years.

Sugar Continues Scarce.

Consumers will have to further budget their sugar in 1945, warns the OPA. There is a scarcity of labor in the Louisiana area, and Hawaii is unable to maintain full production because of labor and machinery shortages. By late fall of 1945 conditions may be alleviated so that a slight increase in sugar may be granted.

No Change in Values.

No changes will be made in food point values that have been in effect the last 60 days, it was announced this week by M. E. Rawlings, Sioux City district OPA director. Supply of meats in December is expected to be 5.4 per cent more than the average in November.

Pfc. Allen Rewinkel, son of Mrs. Kate Rewinkel of Wakefield, has been moved from Florida to Salina, Kan., where he is with the reconnaissance service of the air corps.

Leaves for Kansas.

Sic Kirwan returned Sunday to Hutchinson, Kan., after spending a leave here in the A. J. Kirwan home. He appreciates home news gained through the Herald.

Louis Meyer who had been training for the navy at Farragut, Idaho, received a medical discharge and returned here to be with his wife and three children. He is associated with his brother, Elmer Meyer, in the service station.

On Way to Station.

Major Don K. Theophilus who had been attending school in Washington, D. C., arrived Tuesday to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Theophilus, enroute to his station at Ft. Robinson, Neb. Mr. and Mrs. Dave Theophilus went to Sioux City Sunday and brought here Mrs. Don Theophilus. David and Dornie who had been visiting at Smithland, Ia. Major Theophilus' family will accompany him to Ft. Robinson.

Likes Texas Camp.

Pvt. Melvin A. Johnson writes that he likes his training at Camp Wolters, Tex., where he is learning about use of light weapons for the infantry. The camp has three theatres showing latest pictures and three service clubs. Class A and week-end passes are available for the asking.

Weather in Texas is cool, much like October in Nebraska. Pvt. Johnson appreciates home news through the Herald.

To Move to Milwaukee.

Lt. Jig Donald C. Simpson, who had been at Cambridge, Mass., for special study at Harvard, will be transferred to Milwaukee to take charge of disposal of navy surplus goods. He reports for his new assignment December 23 and will have a two-week leave this month. Lt. and Mrs. Simpson and son expect to spend Christmas here at Ft. S. Morgan's. Lt. Simpson then goes to the navy materials redistribution and disposal office.

In Mississippi Camp.

The officer writes, "I'm going to cook in officers' mess hall for six weeks and then will probably be transferred again. I completed my eight weeks' basic training yesterday."

Sgt. Cook expresses appreciation for the Herald and says he enjoys receiving it very much. "Merry Christmas to all."

French Are Friendly.

Every G. I. is justly treated as a liberator, writes Pvt. John Einung November 7 from France where he is radio operator with Gen. Geo. Patton's 3rd army. Many Frenchmen have been killed by Nazi snipers while bringing treats to Yanks through the front lines or while phoning them passing through cities. All the G. I. admire the unrelenting spirit of the French.

France is gay in spite of four years of terror. It is filled with beauty, history and tradition. Pvt. Einung tells that French cities are modern, while villages remind one of the 16th century. Horses and buggies are still the main means of transportation among the peasants; although the bicycle is used quite a bit. Catholic church steeples seem to mark every small town like pins on a map. Homes are of rock or stone and some are adobe with that barn joining the house. Most of these villages are nestled in valleys with winding roads leading to them. In some cases they seem to be walled in by mountains.

The French language is difficult. But with two years of French in high school, I manage to get by. I can coax them to speak slowly. Generally I wind up using the sign language."

Pvt. Einung sends appreciation for the Herald.

Completes Course. Cpl. Donald W. Powers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Powers of Wayne, completed an orientation course designed to bridge the gap between training in the states and combat soldiering against the enemy in Europe.

At the European air service command Cpl. Powers attended lectures given by veterans of the command. These included instructions on chemical warfare defense and pertinent tips on staying healthy in a combat zone. His next station will be one from which America's fighting planes cover the advance into Germany.

Get on entering the army air forces.

Cpl. Powers was learning.

WINSIDE YOUNG MAN WITH UNUSUAL GOUP

T. J. James, W. Selders, somewhere in France, sent a clipping to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Selders at Winside, telling of the duties and organization of the first special service force in southern France, of which he is a member.

"Censorship release of the presence in southern France of the joint American-Canadian first special service force partly lifted the curtain on one of the most hush-hush organizations in the United Nations warfare.

"It is a hard-striking spearhead of specialists in versatility who are trained in snow warfare, amphibious warfare, mountain warfare, airborne warfare and bitter infantry fighting.

"The first special service force was activated at Helena, Mont., July 20, 1942. It was under the command of 37-year-old Maj. Gen. Robert Frederick of San Francisco. Like the 20th air force, which has been operating against Japan, the first special service force, whose men fall in simply the force is employed on a world-wide basis, being attached to various armies at the discretion of the combined chiefs of staff.

"Officers toured the camps seeking outdoor men with excellent physiques—cowpunchers, miners, trappers, lumberjacks. At Helena they trained for winter warfare with the weasels; they took parachute training at Fort Benning, Ga., and finally received mountain and amphibious training at Eijah Allen, Va."

The youth expresses appreciation for receiving the Herald in a letter to his parents and says he enjoys the paper even though it is two months old. He sends Christmas greetings to all.

Break All Records Unloading "Melons"

"Whistling watermelons" are the pride of T. Sgt. Wm. D. Misfeldt on his "bomb farm" in England. The Winside soldier is in charge of a crew of air service command bombusters at a large ordnance depot in the heart of the English countryside.

Sgt. Misfeldt's crew has broken all overseas records for unloading bombs shipped from the U. S. Frequently the big melon-like missiles which he and his men unload are screaming down on Nazi territory, 24 hours after leaving their hands.

John R. Keith Is Area Director in New Guinea Base

Today is one of those multiple anniversaries: Seven months since I left Wayne, five months since I saw Peggy (Mrs. Keith), four months overseas and three months in New Guinea," writes John R. Keith, American Red Cross director, November 10.

"The past three months have been spent as a recreation supervisor for the Red Cross' installations on this base. I started with several clubs and the first of the month we were operating 21. Now we are beginning to close a few. I've had as high as 70 girls so I now know what it is to be dean of women.

"Tomorrow the area director is going on leave so I'm taking over as acting area director. Have a welfare supervisor, hospital supervisor, supply officer, administrative assistant in charge of personnel, an active recreation supervisor and two secretaries. I don't see why I keep getting into these situations, especially at my age when I should be resting.

"I had a month in Australia during which time I heard lots of good music, made some interesting friends, visited some schools with the director general of education for Queensland and attended an educational conference. In the next month I'll be eligible for a short leave in Sydney and maybe by then I can go direct to the Philippines. I'd be willing to skip all that just to be home.

"The days are quite warm but the evenings always cool. I live in a pyramidal tent with a good floor and a salvage parachute as a false ceiling to keep it cool. At 5 o'clock in the morning I go to the beach just 50 yards away to pick up shells for my collection. At noon I clean and polish them. Several sets are on their way to Peggy for necklaces and brooches. Have been to three native labor camps and villages. The labor camps operated by Australian New Guinea administrative unit (Angau) are quite idyllic after seeing so many tents, barracks and dusty roads.

Have two native wuzzy belts and two tapa cloths. The tapa cloth is garment. Found one stungster at a native village who knew the tune of Battle Hymn of the Republic but couldn't make out what the words were.

"Peggy is also with American Red Cross at army and navy general hospital, Hot Springs, Ark., doing hospital recreation. She wants to be assigned over here, why I don't know, but maybe there's a reason."

New Tribe Found In New Guinea by American Airmen

Discovery of a newly found native civilization on a high plateau in New Guinea has been made by U. S. airmen flying over the area. It was in 1933 that Jack Hides, Papuan government officer, learned that such a colony existed. He made expeditions into the interior but died in 1938 before he finished his explorations. In 1936 he and Ivan Champion, Australian explorer, had flown over the region and discovered a large lake, 10 miles long, about 3,000 feet above sea level. Hides made his last trip in 1937, looking for gold. A series of disasters forced his party to return and outbreak of the war put an end to explorations.

Chief Petty Officer Edward Jenkins writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Jenkins of Carroll, about the "find." He is with the seabees in New Guinea.

This year the crew of an American C-47 plane, pioneering a new transport route over the island, discovered what the men believed to be a hidden valley populated by light-skinned natives. Description of the country and people fitted the Hides report, and there seems little doubt but that the regions are the same.

In flying over a 16,000-foot range, Major Myron J. Grimes, C-47 pilot, and his crew came upon the hidden valley. "It is about five miles wide and 20 miles long. We dropped down to within 200 feet of the valley floor for a detailed close-up and flew up and down the valley several times. It turned out to be a veritable Garden of Eden. The valley was in a high state of cultivation. Most of the plots were irrigated with ditches fed from the stream. They were lush with vegetation. Other areas were green with short grass and many of the gardens were terraced up the mountain sides. On our first flight into the valley, we counted more than 100 villages. We estimated the population at between 50,000 and 75,000."

After the discovery, Major Grimes radioed headquarters and Col. Ray T. Eismore, director of transportation for 5th air force, flew over several times for inspection. Col. Eismore stated that each village was surrounded by high, wide walls that were first believed to be stockades or some sort of fortification. But later the officer concluded that they were retaining walls to keep the pigs' enclosed. The airmen reported that they saw pigs that were of enormous size, four feet high and weighing at least 1,000 pounds. "They looked like ponies." No other animals were spotted in the valley. Crew men said they did not see a single coconut tree. From what they could make out, sweet potatoes seemed to be the principal crop.

Description of the natives seen by airmen seems the same as those discovered by Hides. Col. Eismore described them as taller, more finely built and lighter skinned than the usual New Guinea Fuzzy Wuzzies.

On a subsequent trip the American fliers dropped a parcel containing beads, coconuts, mirrors, cloth and other trade goods. The package lay untouched for several days and then disappeared. So far as is known this was the first contact made by the Americans with the natives.

Amelia Earhart There.

An edition of the New Guinea Guff, paper issued by the service men, tells that the last stop in Amelia Earhart's ill-fated round-the-world flight was Lae, New Guinea. She took off from Lae, heading northwest, for Howland island, a pinpoint atoll just east of Tarawa in the Gilberts, and was never seen again. One theory about her disappearance is that her plane might have crashed over Japanese-controlled territory in the Marshalls and she and her navigator, Fred Noonan, captured or killed on a pretext that they were spies. The theory was revived recently when U. S. marines, capturing Japanese Saipan, found an album of photographs connected with her flight.

Officer Jenkins writes that he believes much reclamation will be done on New Guinea after the war. The native resources are immense.

Enemy Garb Goes Unnoticed Here

Man Hires Prisoner of War Who Turns Out to Be His Own Nephew.

Merchant Seaman Jim Crooks of Bellingham, Wash., wanted to see if anyone would recognize an enemy soldier. So he donned a Japanese officer's coat, pulled a Nipponese tropical campaign helmet down over his face and marched in broad daylight down the most crowded streets in Portland, Ore. No one challenged him.

A storage and moving company placed the following classified advertisement in a Chicago newspaper: "Our help are all tired — so unless you need anything real bad, do not come this week."

At Lovell, Wyo., Carl Hesselthaler reports a German prisoner of war assigned to work on his farm is his nephew.

The Emporia, Kan., Army Mother's club started a canteen at the Santa Fe station December 31, 1942, by giving away two boxes of candy bars to service men. Since then, figures the club statistician, they have distributed two cartloads of magazines and 864,000 cookies.

Sixty tons of coal were shoveled into a north side Chicago basement but there were complaints that smoke and fumes seeped into apartments. The janitor called the landlord and he in turn called the board of health, the fire department and a consulting engineer, who said the coal would be aird. The 60 tons of smoking coal were shoveled out of the basement into the alley by two men. Now landlord Henry Wilansky says he hopes the shovelers won't quit before they finish the two-way job on the fuel.

At Vancouver, Wash., A. E. Robinson, 77, and his wife, 76, were sadly surveying the fire-blackened ruins of their little farm home. A stranger came up, handed them $100 and walked away with: "Just consider that it came from the Lord."

The tables have been turned in Oklahoma City, Okla. House-hunters have been amazed because of their inability to rent the home of Mrs. Hugh Clark unless they have children. Mrs. Clark, mother of a child of 2, explained that she couldn't see why a perfectly good sandpile and a baby bed should go unused.

A professional man at Kearney, Neb., remarked at a household goods auction that a lamp offered for sale was similar to one in his home which he would not sell for $100. The lamp sold for $10. When the man arrived home his wife informed him it was their lamp which was sold.

Courthouse Secretary Cora Fisher at Los Angeles stopped typing but the noise in her desk continued. After Miss Fisher became nervous because of the constant vibration, an investigation was made. An army of wood bayers, termite's cousins, was found gnawing in the desk.

A Los Angeles streetcar's opinion crew ended an argument with a passenger by stalking angrily off the car with: "I quit." Downtown traffic was snarled five minutes until a substitute operator could be rushed to the abandoned car and riders.

At Wichita, Kan., Judge Ross McCormick has received a gift of a hand-made ash tray. It was made by Carmen Mejia, Mexican, whom Judge McCormick several years ago sentenced to life imprisonment for killing another Mexican.

Squeak of chalk on slate blackboards is due to become as out-moded as McGuffey's reader in New York schools. A glass surface on which a specially designed dustless chalk will be noiseless is being considered in a reconditioning program for schools.

Borough President James A. Burke of Queens, N. Y., found the solution for a baby carriage traffic jam. Protective barriers erected on a viaduct narrowed sidewalks so there wasn't room for passage of two carriages. Mothers who met in mid-viaduct exchange-ed angry words. Burke's solution: two signs, one reading, "This walk for east-bound baby carriage traffic only," the other, "This walk for west-bound baby carriage traffic only."

It was bad enough, says Russell Patterson, East Liverpool, O., that rabbits ruined his victory garden, but the last straw came when he saw his cocker spaniel running for dear life, yelping at every step, with two bunnies in not pursuit.

At Indianapolis a burglar, apparently not satisfied with his loot, decided to steal a shoze — that was his undoing. Police, answering an alarm from a jewelry and loan firm, found the intruder snoring away behind a counter—his pockets bulging with $800 worth of valuables.

A Philadelphia laundry firm is advertising on its trucks: "The news is traveling fast—we now accept new customers."

It was a poor sale even though the first pair of shoes David Cohen of Chicago tried on one of his customers was the right fit. While Cohen waited for payment and a ration coupon, the customer drew a gun, took $93 from the cash box and scampered out of the store—wearing the unpaid-for shoes. However, the thief did forget his old shoes.
