New Club Head Takes Up Duties

R. K. Kirkman Is Successor To Dr. J. T. Anderson for Kiwanis Group.

Kiwanis policies for 1945 were outlined Tuesday for the local club by R. K. Kirkman, new president, who took over duties of the office Tuesday. Mr. Kirkman asked that suggestions of Kiwanis International be adapted to local circumstances, that each committee set definite objectives for the year, that groups meet at least once each month and make reports monthly to the secretary. He presented suggestions of Kiwanis International at the following relations: E. L. Blair, inter-club chairman; J. G. Miller, house; W. H. Beckenbauer, music; Rev. O. B. Proett, program; C. L. Pickett, attendance and reception; Dave Theophilus, classification and membership; Prof. O. R. Bowen, Kiwanis education and laws and regulations; Dr. J. T. Anderson, support of churches and their spiritual aims; W. C. Corvill, agriculture and public affairs; Dr. Ray Bryan, vocational guidance and boys' and girls' work; P. L. March, underprivileged child committee.

Pin Is Presented.

At the request of Mr. Kirkman, H. E. Simon gave the past president's pin to Dr. J. T. Anderson, mentioning that this represents his service to the group. Mr. Simon gave assurance that Dr. Anderson's record will serve as an inspiration to the new president, and he expressed certainty that the retiring president will wear the button with much credit to himself and with honor to the club.

Appeal from Bureau.

One of Kiwanis' objectives for 1945 is to exert influence to establish and maintain world peace. In speaking on this Tuesday, F. S. Berry said it is difficult to make suggestions as to how individuals or even groups can achieve this goal when so many laws and regulations are today established by bureaucrats. Mr. Berry mentioned that bureaucratic government started 30 years ago. He told that lawyers, who met in Omaha last Thursday and Friday, agreed that they would like to see established the right of appeal to courts from the decisions of boards and bureaus.

Financial Reports.

Financial reports, which will be audited soon, were presented. A. V. Reed read a record of the new fund for Mrs. Herman Lundberg's report as treasurer for the general fund was read by Dr. R. P. Cull as the former was unable to be present. R. L. March reported a week earlier for the underprivileged child fund.

Member Is Honored.

Prof. O. R. Bowen mentioned the honor coming to E. M. Cahill who has been appointed member of the state board of education, and the club joined in expressing appreciation for the recognition of one of its members.

IMPROVEMENTS TO BE REALIZED WHEN WORLD WAR II ENDS

END of the war in 1945 is confidently expected. This is the belief of many careful observers. The conflict over reconstruction will start. Restrictions that have hampered improvements will be removed, and a veritable building boom will be on. The longer the practice of restraint, the greater will be the rebound to satisfy accumulated demands. It is recalled that the automobile industry speeded prosperity in 1920 following World War I, and it promises to do even more in that direction after the present war. People have been driving old cars, many of them near wrecks, and they will be on the market for new ones as soon as they can be produced and sold. The automobile industry will be one big source of employment and business on the return to peace. Also comparatively few new buildings have been put up, and many new ones are being planned and will be undertaken when the brakes are removed. Of the thousands of new buildings in prospect, it is expected Wayne will receive its share. Many are needed. The dynamo for improvements will be turned on when hostilities cease.

MANY FARM SALES ARE HELD IN ALL PARTS OF COUNTRY

NUMEROUS farm sales are not restricted to Wayne county. Newspapers in all parts of the state bear announcements of farmers who are selling their chattels to move or retire. Some are influenced by prospect of increased labor shortage, sons who have been helping, having been called into the armed forces. Others are quitting on account of advancing age and declining health. So, after getting a bumper crop out of the fields, the farm sale season started, and it will continue until March 1. A flood of farm sales is not unprecedented. During the few years following World War I many sales took place. Farmers retired and turned responsibilities over to their returned soldier boys. Changes and readjustments in large number will be the order for a few years, and the start has already begun. If farming receives from government sources the fair deal it deserves it will be very desirable, because an impoverished world will need all the food supplies that can be produced.

Church Edifice To Be Discussed

Offer of Building Site Is Made to Our Redeemer's Congregation Here.

The proposal to build a new church edifice on a site near the southwest corner of the court house will be considered by Our Redeemer's Lutheran congregation at a meeting Sunday, January 7.

One of the members, whose name is not disclosed, has offered to buy the site, the former June Conger property from Albert Bahe, at a cost of $1,800 and give this to the congregation providing that a new building is erected as soon as war restrictions are lifted.

In a letter sent to members by Martin L. Ringer, who is acting on his own initiative and at his own expense, it is pointed out that the present church structure on West First street is inadequate to serve the growing congregation. It is also noted that the church is in poor physical condition and that eventually it will have to be replaced.

Doctor Plans to Mo Southwest Pacific Co. New Church Improvement Housewives Kick Pay to Presidential Electors Norfolk Daily News Has New Home in Prospect Look Out for Grasshoppers. Wayne is going to lose a good doctor and useful citizen next fall. Dr. C. T. Ingham who has practiced medicine here since October, 1913, recently sold his modern residence and is otherwise planning to set sail for southern California to live in retirement near his sons and daughters. Members of his family located on the southwest coast several years ago, like the mild outdoors and mountain scenery, and they have become so used to the California environment and habits that naturally they want to stay there. Naturally they want to be with their parents. The feeling is mutual. So, Dr. and Mrs. Ingham will reluctantly separate from wanted friendships in the coming autumn. They will spend the remainder of their days in the southwest. In his retirement, Dr. Ingham will have the benefit of a valuable hobby. He is skilled in woodcraft, and in the past when he felt the need of extra recreation, he has found it in fashioning innumerable useful things from wood. This hobby will accompany him, and when he grows weary of conversation, he will find relief in his familiar lath which cannot talk politics or brag about the climate. Dr. Ingham lived at Coleridge and practiced medicine in Cedar county 20 years. He traveled the countryside and treated the sick before the days of automobiles or telephones. It was before cow paths and deer trails had become easily passable roads. Blizzards and floods invited perils for the doctor when he was called to make a hurried night-time visit to a sick family in the country. Service transcended other considerations. When Old Dobbin heard the barn door open in the night, he knew some one in the distance needed attention, and he was ready to go. Pioneer horsemen like to ride. Dr. Ingham was always alert to such orders. They could not move leisurely. Under primitive modes of travel, greatest possible speed was necessary to fight disease and relieve distress. For a time Dr. Ingham gave a share of his time at Coleridge to banking. Afterwards he spent a year in the office of Drs. Coniff & Sibley in Sioux City. Dr. Ingham succeeded to the practice of Dr. Naftziger in Wayne in 1913. Dr. Ingham has served in numerous public places, and he and Mrs. Ingham have been valuable community assets. Their many friends will deeply regret that they have found removal to the southwest coast advisable, but will wish them a hundred years of contentment and pleasant memories. Building Prospect. An important improvement is in prospect for Wayne, according to copies of a letter addressed by Martin L. Ringer to members of Our Redeemer's Lutheran church. A generous member has offered to buy and donate the former Conger residence property site west of the court house to the church for a new building of sufficient size to accommodate a growing congregation. The present structure is found inadequate, and a new one is needed. It is proposed to raise funds for the purpose. A congregational meeting is to be held January 7 to consider the proposition. Thus, another modern church building is in prospect, and all citizens interested in Wayne's future will be glad. Invalidating Points. Housewives who have been saving food points and using them as needed, eschewing the practice of hoarding as contrary to sound public policy, know that it is vitally important to the Christmas order to invalidate certain points. They complained that the ones they bought extra supplies, gained advantage. On the other hand, it is argued that the order to prevent shortage was unavoidable. Sometimes not always those who follow regulations faithfully get hurt. Perhaps in time hoarders will be penalized. The Israelites who hoarded manna which allegedly dropped from heaven in response to an acute food shortage while traveling through the wilderness, had a lot of spoilage on hand. Usurious Expense. We have discovered that Nebraska's presidential electors receive $5 apiece per day or fraction thereof for time served and four cents per mile traveled. And what a useless expense! We think sound post-war economy would be to abolish the electoral college and plan to set to presidential elections according to the popular vote. Newspaper Plans to Build. The Norfolk Daily News announces that a new modern building will house its plant after the war. Ground measuring 11 by 176 feet, located on Sixth and Norfolk avenue, has been purchased for the (Continued on Page Four)

7 exciting ways to use bread!

Remove crusts from bread; cut bread into 1/2 inch cubes; place on bottom of well-greased shallow baking dish; sprinkle with cheese. Beat eggs well; add milk and seasonings. Pour over bread cubes and cheese. Let stand 30 minutes. Set in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 30 to 40 minutes or until silver knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cut in squares and serve topped with creamed meat or vegetable. Serves 6 to 8.

For soup croutons, to float on any soup, cut bread into small cubes and brown in heavy frying pan in butter or margarine.

For cinnamon toast, brush hot toast with melted butter or margarine, then sprinkle with cinnamon-sugar mixture (1 tsp. cinnamon to 4 tbsps. sugar) and if you're using the currently popular imitation cinnamon, measure it carefully; broil 1 minute or until sugar melts.

For melba toast, to serve with soup or salad, trim crusts from day-old white bread (as thin-sliced as possible), toast in very slow oven, and store in dry place to keep crisp, till eaten.

For poppy seed toast, to accompany salads, toast bread on one side only, spread unloasted side generously with butter or margarine, sprinkle with one teaspoonful of poppy seed, place under broiler till butter or margarine bubbles, cut in strips.

Retrospect and Prospect Looking back over 1944 which it rightfully terms the most critical year in American history, and anticipating the post-war world, the Schuyler Sun deplores the tendency to deny on the government rather than on individual planning and effort. The Sun says: "Millions expect government to furnish their jobs, to guarantee peace-time prices, to protect them from the insecurity of competition. They should remember that the more they ask of government, the less freedom they will have. If government ends by owning most of industry and employing most of the people, as well as regulating the lives of the remainder, freedom will become a mockery. As Robert S. Henry, eminent writer and historian, observes: "The right of nonconformity is ultimately the most important of human rights, but I doubt if it can long exist independently of the right of private property. After all, the man who owns nothing, and has no hope of owning anything for himself, is under a terrible handicap in expressing untrammelled individuality. He is without a place for his foot to stand upon, in opposition to the conforming forces of the collectivist state."

"Our people could lose everything of material value as the price of victory in this war and still have a bright future. However, let too much government destroy the freedom and hope of the individual to build again and there is no future. The right of ownership is more important than ownership itself."

The year has been without parallel in the sacrifice of human life. It had no equal in bereavement and sorrow. In mid-summer prospect for surrender of Germany

STARK tragedy rode high and hard during 1944, and writers brand it the most appalling year known to men. The war led in never-to-be forgotten losses and pains. Many comparatively minor tragedies happened. The fire that destroyed Ringling's circus at Hartford, Conn., July 6 and killed 168 persons was among accidents that shocked the home front. The year has been without parallel in the sacrifice of human life. It had no equal in bereavement and sorrow. In mid-summer prospect for surrender of Germany

FOR COOPERATION. Enlisting in the movement for full employment and national prosperity following the war, the American Farm Bureau Federation, at its recent national convention, adopted a number of recommendations with this statement among others: "Farmers want an economy of abundance and they stand ready to join with industry and labor to achieve such abundance through price policies and wage policies geared to a maximum level of consumption." In that connection the Industrial Press Service makes this observation: "Full use of America's limitless energy and ambition, together with a liberal, forward-thinking policy on the part of business and cooperation on the part of the public, can usher in an era of plenty when the peace is won. Business is pledged to do its part — by increasing the opportunities for all to earn, for all to buy. It pledges a just and enlightened wage policy, and proposes making use of the technological 'know how' accumulated during the war to market the finest products at the lowest prices. Accomplishment of business program for the future will require the public's cooperation, for legislative action will be needed. The public's action can encourage post-war tax policies that leave sufficient funds for expansion, laws that clearly prevent unregulated monopoly, and labor policies that establish the responsibilities of both labor and management."

and for peace in Europe gave hope and buoyancy. Then suddenly the enemy precipitated a terrific counter-offensive that spread disappointment and gloom. Thus, people entered the holiday season with trailing spirits, and there was little inclination to feel high-hearted or cheerful. But the allies are regaining lost ground as the new year begins, and it is only reasonable to believe that Germany is now using most of its reserves and will fail and surrender before 1945 is far spent. That is the hope as the new year begins.

Proposed Measure A disturbing report comes out of Washington to the effect that a bill proposed for enactment by congress for peace-time service would authorize the president to invade job prospects, and then provide government projects to take care of any deficiency. More government planning and more individual restraints would appear still to be important in influential new deal minds. Touching the idea, the Omaha World-Herald comments: "If America intends to proceed on its old, free way it will have to rely upon the private initiative of the people to supply the bulk of the needed post-war jobs. If that is the purpose the government should be planning now to increase, rather than decrease, the incentive for investment and business expansion. If on the other hand this country has had enough of freedom and is disposed to distrust the system under which it became great, then it might as well go all the way to collectivism at once. There is no visible virtue in such in-between measures as the Murray-Revercomb-Tromb proposal."

Every nation is beset by wild-eyed ambitions, and if they take control by threaten control, they cause serious trouble. After peace has been restored, plenty of visionaries and power-seekers will appear with plans to make an earthly paradise. They will simply clog the wheels of orderly government and hinder putting into effect the freedom for which the allies are now fighting.

New Year's day was biting cold, and roads were made slippery and dangerous by previous thawing and freezing. It tended to adjust inhabitants to possibilities. They will be in time to reflect on the January 12, 1888, blizzard which was the toughest on record.

The total spent by Nebraskans during 1944 for charities, taxes and war bonds was, as estimated by the Omaha World-Herald, $415,305,800. Mention is made that federal taxes in this state rose from four millions twelve years ago to 238 millions in 1944.

Suspending race meets for the duration and cutting out disportment of athletes may or may not speed the war, but the action will have a beneficial influence on people's minds.

Cash benefits to Montgomery Ward stores through government action may or may not be greater than losses suffered by reason of restraint and suspension.

Russia is charged by writer Constantine Brown with failure to make cooperation work both ways.

PROMISING

The Saturday Evening Post calls attention to the research institutes that are endeavoring to find new and profitable uses for the products of the south and midwest. It is noted that the areas mentioned suffer lack of balance between agriculture and industry. Raw materials are shipped long distances to be converted into finished products. Excess flow largely to large, remote industrial centers. The hope is to establish more industries where raw materials are grown. The Post says in conclusion: "Each region has particular needs for more industries and more sources of jobs. In the south, they are necessary to relieve the heavy pressure of population on the land. The agricultural problems of this region are hardly susceptible of solution until it obtains these added opportunities for people to make a living. The midwest needs more opportunities to hold the young people at home and educate. Its loss in this respect is perhaps the heaviest of any part of the country. The two research institutes suggest promising possibilities for both areas."

To Warrant Alarm

Entomologists have discovered enough grasshopper prospects under the Nebraska soil to justify alarm and the taking of preventive measures. Wherever chances exist for insect pests to hatch, there is ground for fear and the need to exercise proper means of extermination.

FARM HELP SHORTAGE BECOMES MORE ACUTE

Farm help shortages probably will be more acute in 1945 than in any previous year, in the opinion of Walter Heiman, Wayne county stockman, who was in Omaha market last week. Not only has the production rate on farm boys into the armed services been stepped up recently, but some young married men who have been operating farms of their own are being taken, he reported to the Omaha Journal-Stockman.

On the basis of present indications, the number of cattle fed there will be about the same as it was in 1944, Mr. Heiman believes. Ages of the cattle put into feedlots probably average a little older than last year, he added. Farmers have just about finished getting the big 1944 crop of corn out of the fields. On the whole, it seems to be storing safely.

Library News

A message to boys and girls from the Wayne public library beginning Saturday, January 6, the library will resume its regular weekly story hours for children at 3 o'clock, in the library's children's room. Mrs. E. J. Hughes will start off the year by telling the stories and from all the good new books to choose from they are bound to be a sure-fire success. Last year at least 75 children went to the library story hours each Saturday. Were you one of them? Well, you'll want to go every Saturday this winter because the members of the Wayne Mother's club are sponsoring these programs and are going to try to make them the best story hours we have ever had.

Would you like to learn to square dance or do a polka? Come to the library for the directions in the new Country Dance Book made for the people who want to revive the old dances.

Robert Benchly fans will be glad to know that the library now has his book, 'My Ten Years in a Quagmire.' There have been several requests for the book but it was quite a little while before we could buy it.

A most entertaining book is 'Try and Stop Me,' by Bennett Cerf. It is just a collection of anecdotes gathered from the author's memory and from other writings, some of which you may have read before, but all of which are good for a laugh and there are hundreds of them.

Artist in Iowa is a biography of Grant Wood. At this particular time the English classes at both schools are reading biography so some of the students should be interested in this story of the one of our great artists.

Do you like historical novels? Then you will like 'Captain from Castile,' by Shellabarger. The movies have already bought the rights to this one and it will probably be spectacularly filmed as it is a tale of love and adventure at the time of the conquest of Mexico by Cortez.

The Chris Nielsen family wrote from Seattle, Wash., where they now make their home, that a light snow fell there recently. That is unusual for that part of the country.

Four Crewmen Bail To Safety Nearby

Acting on the pilot's orders, four crewmen in a bomber based at Casper, Wyo., bailed out of the big plane and landed safely about three miles northeast of Wisner Friday morning. The men were unhurt except that one bruised a hand.

The crewmen said that the bomber started to lose altitude so the pilot ordered the men to bail out. The pilot then was able to get the ship back to normal flying and headed for Casper where he landed the plane safely with the rest of the crew.

The four returned to Casper from Wisner.

Conservation Work Is Helpful in Area

Technicians Can Help with Practices that Save Soil and Water.

Practices that keep water in fields where it is needed and prevent floods in valleys, that save rich soil from being washed away, that prevent great gullies in erodible land and that protect soil from damaging winds are stressed by conservation districts. Both Wayne and Dixon counties offer services of technicians who can help avoid these losses.

Millions of acres of land are now in a serious condition for production because of erosion, state the conservationists. Some of the hills are now furnishing to bottom land soil of much poorer quality than is in the bottom. Clay hills can be seen throughout the hills of the east and southeast, hills here are workable even though the productive soil is gone. In the east the hills have eroded down to rock. But in northeast Nebraska it is possible to work the subsoil and build a productive soil on hill tops. The soil technician can give advice on this.

Hills that are not protected by conservation practices probably lose 80 per cent of the moisture that falls on them. Not only is the moisture lost, but great quantities of good soil are carried away and huge gullies are left.

When water is made to walk instead of run down hills, it is possible to save 80 per cent. Different problems require different practices and in this also the soil technician can help. One demonstration farm in Dixon county saved nearly 100 per cent of the rainfall on that farm and caught some from a neighbor's farm.

Wind erosion is also taking much valuable soil from northeast Nebraska. It is probably greatest on level or nearly level land where wind gets a long sweep on the surface or on hills composed of light sand and soil.

Grasses, shrubs and grass can be helpful in preventing wind erosion. Strip cropping is also effective.

The most simple practice for soil protection is to put a cover over the soil, perhaps bromegrass with a legume. Those who burn the soil cover, corn stalks, sweet clover fields and stubble fields rob the soil of the organic matter which is definitely important in giving the soil a moisture holding quality. Grasses included in the rotation on slopes that are subject to erosion not only save the soil and moisture but build the soil. Grassing waterways protects soil against gullies.

Waste Paper Need Is Again Urgent

Waste paper is again urgently needed in the war effort. Dixon County Agent Howard Gallasie asks that organizations that are willing to help should notify him so that the public may be informed as to who is collecting. "Don't burn flat pieces of paper that can be banded but save them and send them into the war effort."

Is in Battalion Moving in Italy

Pvt. Donald C. Backstrom is with Engineers Who Progress in Valley.

Pvt. Donald C. Backstrom of Wayne, is a member of the 16th armored engineer battalion, veteran unit of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's 5th army, currently in the drive toward the Po valley in Italy. Pvt. Backstrom is carpenter with the group. Pfc. Gilbert Krieb of Dixon, is rigger with the battalion.

In 30 months overseas, the 16th, one of the first engineer units in combat bridged many streams, neutralized thousands of mines and booby traps, constructed and maintained hundreds of miles of roads in Ireland, England, North Africa and Italy and helped establish for practical use the T-2 (trackway) bridge, the treadway pontoon and trestle bridge, the M-2 "snake" and the "tank-dozer."

The 16th supplied the 5th army mine school with a demonstration company of men who had learned "the hard way" the best methods of neutralizing mines and booby traps in the Tunisian campaign. Their knowledge and its dissemination have been prime factors in 5th army successes in Italy, where mine and booby trap warfare was highly developed.

Normally, the engineers operate as a unit of the 1st armored division. When the 1st armored is not committed they usually are attached to an army corps.

The 16th fought at Mt. Porchia and in operations to establish bridgeheads across the Rapido river. When the beachhead forces at Anzio burst out toward Rome in May, detachments of the 16th, fighting at one point as infantry, helped clear the path for the tanks. The detachments' tank-dozers left its blade behind, and added the power of its 75-millimeter cannon to the fight against an enemy stronghold.

Headway bridges across the Arno at Cascina and Pontedera on the Pisa-Florence highway, built by the 16th, remained for three days the only bridges connecting the lateral highway with the north bank of the river. The one at Pontedera was built in a heavily mined area under enemy machinegun fire.

The outfit fought at Lucca and Altopascio and in the drive to the Gothic line, built 33 by-passes and scores of bridges. The battalion had previously built 150 bridges between Salerno and the Arno river.

Needed in Coast Guard.
Youths of 17 are urgently needed in the coast guard and those interested should contact the coast guard office, 817 post office building, Omaha.

Tin Cans Wanted.
Women of Wayne county can "mine" tin sufficient for 38 short range heavy bombers this year, according to J. A. Stewart of the American Can company. Civilians will, it is estimated, open 800,280 cans of food this year and 21,000 can provide tin sufficient for one short range bomber. The armed forces used three billion cans of food last year and will use more this year. Mr. Stewart urges saving the civilian tins.

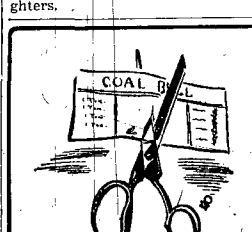

Appeal for Nurses.
The Red Cross is issuing an urgent appeal for nurses. The ration should be one to 12 and actually is one to 22. This does not mean that a nurse is provided for every 22, however, because nurses can work only 12 hours a day, which means that one cares for twice that number. Those who are trained or who are willing to train as aides are urged to contact Red Cross officers.

Upon arrival in the European theatre of operation, Sergeant Powers was assigned to the 46th bombardment group, commanded by Col. Troy W. Crawford, of El Paso, Tex. This 8th air force Liberator group, upon completion of its 100th bombardment division, commanded by Major General William E. Kepner, for outstanding performance of duty in combat. Dropping tons of bombs on targets in Germany and the occupied countries, this unit contributed immeasurably to the success of the aerial war against the enemy. Beating down all opposition as they fought their way to targets vital to the enemy's war effort, this group succeeded in completing these dangerous missions with a minimum of loss. The citation in part reads: "The extraordinary teamwork, skill and devotion to duty of both air and ground personnel reflects great credit upon themselves and the armed forces of the United States."

Sergeant Powers received his wings at Harlingen, Tex.

Soldier Has Part In Island Invasion

After taking part in the important landing in the Philippines Pfc. John V. Pearson writes from the islands December 16 saying that he is "fine and hopes all are the same back home."

"I've been around quite a bit since I last wrote," the young man says. "We were the first American troops to land in the Philippines. We landed three days before the big day and knocked out important points guarding the entrance to the bay where the convoy had to come through. So we have a pretty big name for ourselves. We're here at our rest camp now. Have been for four and a half weeks. But so far it hasn't been much rest. We moved once and have guard every other night. The heat is almost as bad here as in New Guinea but it doesn't rain nearly as much although it is the rainy season here now. It gets a rainy spell for a couple of days and then doesn't rain for three or four days. "We've been getting pretty good food here. We had turkey for Thanksgiving and it really tasted good. It was the first turkey I've eaten on Thanksgiving. But I still think mother's stuffed chicken tastes the best.

"The mail has been pretty slow lately. So far I haven't any letters with my new APO but I've received four Christmas packages. For three weeks I didn't get anything. I suppose they'll soon start coming. I got one paper, the September 21 issue and we all just about wore it out reading it.

I was pretty much surprised yesterday when Wallace Magnuson came to see me. He is my cousin and I've been trying to catch up to him ever since I've been overseas. I know he was here but I didn't have any time to try to look him up. It's sure good to see someone from home. I noticed in the paper that quite a few from home are here but I have not run onto them yet.

"I suppose you wonder by the change of my address why I'm in the rangers. We started to train as ranger last March. It's the same bunch of men under a different name. We've been without the mules for quite a while and I don't miss them either. I'd just as soon have some motorized and stayed in the field artillery. This outfit is pretty rough, but hope the time isn't very far away when we'll be coming home.

"The people here are dark brown and very short. They are pretty well civilized, can speak good English, are clean and since I left the states, they wear clothes. That is more than all the details would take pages

I can say of the natives in New Guinea. The seasons are the same here as back home. The money is the same, so all in all everything makes one feel more like being at home."

Pfc. Pearson closes by sending best wishes for a Merry Christmas and happy New Year to all and expressing the hope that he'll be seeing his home folks and friends in the near future.

Youth Is Confident About His Safety

Pvt. John Einung writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Einung, December 7, from somewhere in Europe: "Today is the third anniversary of the war and we all hope the last."

"I haven't been able to mail letters for the past three weeks. You probably can judge my situation by my last two letters. Anyway I wrote them while I was in this small village. We finally did get back to our outfit and that is where I am now. When we did get here they told us we were missing in action during those three weeks so I immediately sent a cablegram in hopes that if you did get such a notice, you as soon as possible I don't know if you did get such a notice, but in case you did, maybe this letter will settle all doubt that is in your minds. I had the most luck pretty well disabled, can speak good English, am clean and since I left the states, they wear clothes. That is more than all the details would take pages so all I can do is wait until I get back to unfold my tales.

"I am now back with my outfit with only the memories of the past to grieve over. For some reason or other God has been very good to me. I went into combat for the first time on November 8 and was only up there three days when we were ordered back with another half-track that was hit. Since then I have been living the life of a soldier of fortune. Dad, you told me to be truthful in all my letters and I am going to do just that. The actual fighting I have seen is only a fraction when compared to the rest of the boys in my outfit but I feel as though I could push right to Berlin because I know God is with me. My morale is never low for that reason and never will be. I have over-shoes for protection against the mud, a raincoat for the rain, warm clothes to protect me from the cold, but most of all God is protecting me from fear and from our enemies. How can I lose? How can anybody with such security help but have high morale? I know God protected me from fear those first three days because I experienced it and no matter what happens I shall never change this frame of mind. I believe the worst is over and am very confident in the future."

TRAVEL WISE says:

We'd like nothing better than to be in the position to say 'yes' to everyone's requests for reservations and service... that's the way it used to be. But the needs of our Armed Forces come first, right now.

Your railroads have a war job to do... supplying vital transportation. Our job is to do it as quickly and efficiently as possible. When you consider that the railroads are transporting 10 times the number of armed forces and 4 times the volume of freight carried in World War I, you can readily understand why we can't always say YES.

All of us railroad people sincerely appreciate your travel and transportation problems... we appreciate your patience and understanding. Delays and inconveniences just can't be helped in this war emergency.

Injuries Minor In Truck Mishap

Tom Church Machine Is Damaged Somewhat In Accident Wednesday.

Mrs. Tom Church strained her back and Mr. Church escaped unhurt but the Church truck was damaged Wednesday night last week in an accident near the Hubbard turn on highway No. 20, close to Crysta lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Church were going to the city with a double-deck load of hogs for Henry Wacker, Sr. Mr. Church saw a car coming toward him and drove the truck onto the highway shoulder to try to avoid a collision. The car caught the truck and tipped it over onto one side. The hogs were spilled but none were hurt and all were kept together so they could be taken on to market in another truck.

The car in which a South Sioux City man and his wife were riding was damaged and the occupants were only bruised and scratched. The Church truck had to be hauled to Sioux City for repairs.

Mr. Church had another truck in the city with cattle, this driven by Conrad Kruse. Mrs. Church returned in this and Mr. Church remained to see about repairs for the truck box which was broken.

Two Couples Wed Seventy-One Years

Spare Ribs Are Tiresome in Service Men's Diet in Far Alaska.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan W. Sanford of Chicago had a special reason to celebrate Christmas — it was their 71st wedding anniversary. Mr. Sanford is 97 and his wife, whom he married on Christmas day, 1873, in Elkhart, Ill., is 91. Among messages of congratulations received by the couple was one from Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Barse of Minneapolis, friends who were married on the same day—71 years ago.

Cpl. James O. Palmer at Medsker, Okla., related that once while he was stationed in Alaska a supply ship through error took his outfit's vegetable supply to another place, leaving two loads of meat—mostly spare ribs. For many days afterwards the cook "did his best and fried, boiled, roasted and stuffed." But it was still spare ribs. No man in the outfit is very fond of that meat any more.

All Alfred "Happy" Wenzel, blacksmith for the Grainstone community near Philip, S. D., wanted to do was replenish his gas-welding supply by mixing carbide and water in the acetylene tank, but before he finished he figured he'd made a pretty fair "rocket bomb." Happy wrapped the carbide in paper to delay its action, but before he could screw on the tank cap the gas began to generate and the tank started to perform. It smashed into a gas engine, took off through the roof of the shop and wound up in a wheat field. Happy reported it still sizzling. Happy himself was black and blue.

William Daggert's lost Spencerport ordnance works identification badge was returned to him at Holy, N. Y., by members of a bomber crew in England who found it among a cluster of incendiaries. "You make 'em," the crew writes him, "and we'll drop 'em."

Joseph Armstrong, filling station operator, Ottawa, Ill., was busy in the Christmas rush and didn't take time to scrutinize a check given him by a customer in payment for gasoline. He got a chance to study it carefully later, however, when the check was returned by a bank marked, "No account." The payee? "Santa Claus."

Mayor A. H. Brandt of suburban Oak Lawn, Chicago, needs a local application of the good neighbor policy. The dwindling supply of water in the village community well is producing only 90 gallons of water a minute compared with 300 gallons two months ago. Mayor Brandt has asked each resident to borrow five gallons of water daily from friends in Chicago.

At Portland, Ore., the annual Christmas party for the municipal court staff featured plenty of turkey, but no Christmas tree. Somebody stole it the night before — from police headquarters.

At Denver, Colo., thieves smashed a $100 plate glass window at a bookstore to steal a 50-cent pamphlet. Its title: "Denver's First Christmas."

Fifty girl friends of Sgt. Chas. R. Miller stationed at Coffeyville, Kan., after hearing that he complained of receiving only short letters, sent him one 287 feet long. Written on adding machine tape, it took Miller an hour and 15 minutes to read the letter — and another 20 minutes to roll it up again.

Cpl. Joseph Aurelio's army pay is going to be boosted more than he expected. He was given a five-day emergency furlough to go to Chicago after his wife gave birth to twins, a boy and girl. Now he ranks his one of the army's highest-paid corporals, the new arrivals increasing his family to nine children and hiking his allowance to $284 a month.

City Commissioner Fred Peterson, Portland, Ore., who played Santa Claus at an orphans' party, had a good excuse when he staggered home, worn out. After he had hosted one 4-year-old up in his arms, the other 95 orphans refused to leave until they had been lifted, too.

Sgt. David H. Badke, 22, and his father, Emil Badke of Chicago, teamed to seal the soldier's engagement with Miss Connie Graff, Chicago. After David proposed to Miss Graff by mail and got a "yes" by letter, he wrote to his father, telling him to put a ring for the girl and to put it on her finger. David's father, as proxy for his son, placed the engagement ring on Miss Graff's finger at an engagement party.

After 25 years the third French horn and the first bass viol finally got in key at Los Angeles. Richard Periss, third French horn player, and Helen Smith who plays bass viol in the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra are honeymooning. They met in 1919 when both played with the National Youth orchestra.

There weren't any boys available so men and women were given the job most kids would have enjoyed—appraising the taste of ice cream at a retail ice cream convention in Chicago. Most of the adult judges appeared to enjoy the tasting job but on some scoreboards were comments such as "melts too rapidly," "too buttery," "lacks sweetness."

The complaining witness at the police magistrate that when he asked for change for a half-dollar to get stamps from a machine in a drug store, the druggist twisted his arm, pushed him out the door and knocked him to the sidewalk, breaking his watch. The druggist got a $10 fine and lecture on business methods.

For the 47th consecutive year E. N. Kirby, pioneer resident of Abilene, Tex., and a former mayor, spent his birthday anniversary on a hunting trip. This year, on his 79th birthday, he bagged a 10-point buck.

Mrs. C. W. Lively of Oklahoma City told police her 22-month-old son and the family car had been kidnaped while she was shopping. The police radio warned officers to be on the lookout. An hour later Mr. and Mrs. Lively found the baby in the car, parked in the right alley — not the wrong one where she had first looked. Before the pickup order could be cancelled, two patrolmen drove up, ordered the Livelys to stop. Mr. Lively was so excited he couldn't comply immediately. Patrolmen had their revolvers drawn just as the patrol car radio blared forth the cancellation.

Maj. Lee Cover of Rocky Ford, Colo., was notified at his base in India that he would be sent home and discharged from the service because he was over age. Maj. Jack Lawson arrived to take over — with mutual shouts of joy. For Maj. Lawson and Maj. Cover live right across the street from each other in Rocky Ford.

Western Union at Oklahoma City told Jane Schneider she had a money order waiting for her. Instead of the fortune she had hoped for, the order turned out to be for 1 cent. But she evened the score with the penny sender. She wired an indignant thanks — collect.

Otto Thompson, 91, of Cedar county, died in Redlands, Cal., December 12.
