

Inevitable

Casualties of the War—Millions of Little Boys and Girls Yearn for Their Daddies—Demonstration Plots Established Here by State Agricultural College.

This is just one little Bill among countless thousands who have become helpless victims of grim war. Millions of little boys and girls have seen their fathers but briefly if at all. This little Bill, typical of many, ripened acquaintance with his daddy, home recently on a 12-day furlough.

Not understanding the grown and whereof of a world, grown dark and cruel, little Bill did not realize that cuddling in his daddy's arms would soon pass. The furlough over, the black night of parting came. Missing the familiar hug, little Bill sobbed: "Where is daddy?"

Little Bill's inability to reconcile absence of his beloved daddy with normal human relationships is the inexorable experience of innumerable little Bills everywhere.

When families are major war tragedies, and we can only hope from day to day for an early allied victory, so that little Bills the world over may be reunited with their daddies and relieved of the separation and sorrow which their young lives should not have to bear.

Earlier Service Assured. A letter from Congressman Karl Stefan says the assistant postmaster-general has granted the Herald the right to distribute copies through local carrier system Wednesday afternoon of each week as requested, and this policy will be followed as soon as authorization comes from official Washington to the Wayne postmaster. If copies circulate in town Wednesday afternoon of this week, the order has arrived, if not, not. But the service will not be long delayed, we are assured, thanks to Congressman Stefan's prompt and efficient action.

Wayne County Chosen. Demonstration plots under the state agricultural college are being established near Wayne, J. S. Webster, conservator of the Wayne county district, reports this area's selection among 12 scattered over the state. Three acres belonging to the Carl Wright farm, four miles south of town, are being seeded to barley and oats, 30 varieties of each crop being planted, and 100 northeast Nebraska farmers contributing seed.

Seven acres in the Herbert Perry farm, just southeast of town, are set apart to demonstrate growing hybrid corn and soy beans. The local Webster's brother, G. L. Webster, assistant state extension agronomist, is in charge of the project. Experiments are being made in treating soil to commercial fertilizer, principally ammonium nitrate, which is said to be a powerful stimulant to crop growth. Farms of the following are under fertilizer tests: Curtis Foote, Art Westerhaus, Albert Watson, Herman Freese and Herbert Perry.

Wayne county's reputation for rich soil and large production made the agricultural college eager to put one of its dozen projects here. And results should and doubtless will heighten this area's good name. With everything being done to enrich fields and resist evils, we ought to be able to grow better and better. Incidentally, experimental farm plots will help the promising and hopeful city of Wayne.

Wayne Youth Killed When Plane Crashes

Rites for Carl Dean Meyer Are Conducted Tuesday At Grace Church.

When the Taylorcraft in which Carl Dean Meyer, 18, was soloing Friday afternoon about 2 crashed on the Ben Dammie farm three miles south and one and a fourth east of Wayne, just a half mile from his own home, the youth suffered burns and injuries which resulted in his death that evening at 6:15 in a local hospital where he was rushed by ambulance a few minutes after the accident.

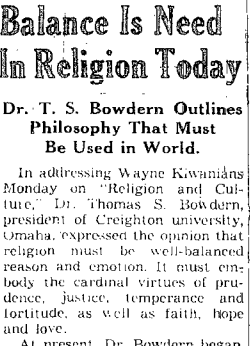

Dean was flying at a low altitude. He completed a 180-degree turn and then stalled; the plane and was too close to the ground to recover. The ship nosed down and fell in a stubble field close to the road. The plane, which remained where it fell, burst into flames after striking the ground. It is presumed that Dean crawled out of the plane for he was about 40 feet east of the ship. If he had been thrown out, it is reported that he would have been north of the plane.

As soon as the plane crashed Harold Breek, who lives across the road north of the scene, and others rushed to aid the youth. It is understood that they removed Dean's burning shoes and extinguished the fire in his clothes as soon as possible. The Beckenhauer ambulance was summoned, and took the youth to the hospital.

Dean had 22 hours of flying instruction, about 6 hours and 50 minutes being solo work. He was enrolled in the ground school course at the college and held a student pilot's license. On completion of the course he would have been eligible for a private license. On Friday he left the local (Continued on Page Two)

Pilot of Bomber Killed in Pacific

Lt. Frank Carlisle Is Lost In January 9 Mission From Philippines.

First Lt. Frank Carlisle, jr., 27, of Norfolk, formerly of Wayne, pilot on a bomber based in the Philippines, was killed in action January 9, the day he was probably reported missing. This word came from the war department Tuesday to the young man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carlisle of Norfolk.

Lt. Carlisle had been on more than 30 missions and his crew is credited with sinking a Jap destroyer. The youth expected a 30-day leave January 11 and planned to rest at Sydney, Australia.

Lt. Carlisle underwent a major operation so as to qualify for the air corps. He had been in service nearly three years.

Democracy, stated the speaker, is an expression in political life of Christian religion. This country is founded on faith in higher moral law. Reason without religion has been tried with sad results. "We cannot run the world without God."

Dr. Bowdern appeals for a combination of reason and emotion. "Religion cannot be vital without reason." He discredited the philosophy of Hegel which teaches supremacy of the state and state (Continued on Page Three)

Clothing Drive Is in Progress

A campaign to gather usable clothing of all kinds for innocent victims of war-torn countries is in progress in Wayne during April. R. K. Kirkman, chairman of the drive, appeals to every individual to give this matter personal attention so that garments may be provided these unfortunate sufferers.

Garments of all kinds that are usable clothing for men, women and children are sought. Shoes should be tied in pairs. Bundles of garments should be left any day in the foyer at the building north of the First National bank, the former Stark clothing store. Each evening they will be taken inside. At end of the month the garments will be sorted and packed for shipment to one of the large reception centers. They will then be shipped overseas to help those who have lost so much in the war.

Any who have no means of taking bundles to the store may notify the Chamber of Commerce office, phone 208, or C. N. Olson, phone 50, and boy scouts will call for them.

An announcement in today's Herald on page six, section two, explains the need for garments and the kinds of articles most in demand.

Air Mail Pickup Service Explained

Proposed Routes Would Be Money Making Program For Government.

R. G. Fuellherth, president of Century Aviation company of Wayne, and Russell W. Bartels of Wayne, attorney for the applicant, stated at the north central civil aeronautics board hearing in Des Moines last week that they had figures to show that they expect to make money for the post office department on the proposed air mail pickup service. Clear Ridge Aviation Company, Inc., Omaha, offered similar facts.

North central hearings in Des Moines were concluded Tuesday evening, March 27. It probably will be more than a year before decisions are announced.

Would Help Government. Basing their predictions on a recent postal department study of mail handled at pick-up points on their proposed routes, spokesmen for the companies asserted that the postage on the mail they would carry substantially would exceed the amounts they are asking from the department for operation of the schedules.

The Century company forecasts annual cost to the government of $483,609 and that it will haul mail producing a revenue of $979,090. However, officials said that this included both outbound and incoming mail and does not take into consideration the amount to be paid to mail carriers for hauling the mail the rest of the way.

Plan Observance In Rural Schools

Trees Are To Be Planted And Plaques Dedicated For Service Group.

Wayne county rural schools are participating in the statewide Arbor day plan of honoring service men and women by planting trees and dedicating service plaques. Nebraska Federation of Woman's Clubs is sponsoring the movement, and Mrs. S. A. Lutgen is Wayne county chairman. Miss Marie Wright, county superintendent, is cooperating by asking each district to join in the observance. Schools will have their programs as close as possible to Arbor day, April 22. Some will be Friday, April 20, but since 8th grade examinations are given that day, others will likely be Monday, April 23.

The proposal is that each district, town and rural, plant an evergreen tree to be dedicated to service personnel and to be used as the center of Christmas activities each year. Some districts are dedicating a tree for each one from the district in service. The plan also calls for a service roll bearing names of those in the armed forces.

The J. N. Einungs have offered 30 evergreens for rural schools, the only cost being the digging. Miss Gladys Reichert, teaching in district 79 west of Winside, informs Miss Wright that the Arbor day plan met with great approval. (Continued on Page Two)

J. J. Ahern Is Chairman of Campaign to Get Funds To Promote Work.

The annual drive for funds to help Wayne boy scouting movement is in progress this week in Wayne under direction of J. J. Ahern, local finance chairman. Several men of the community are helping.

Wait and Dale Ames and the city school troop under Rev. S. K. de Freese and Jason Webster. Prospects are good for a cub pack for boys 9 to 11 years old. In addition to the valuable training and participation in national activities, the scouts assist in many local services.

Floyd Shepherd, field man, has visited Wayne several times to give instruction to leaders. He also organizes camp activities, holds court of honor and helps promote extension of the scouting program.

Gunner Is Missing From England Base

Cpl. Paul Harrington Fails To Return after Mission Over Continent.

Cpl. Paul Harrington, who was 20 last November 6, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harrington of Wayne, has been missing in action over Europe since March 15, according to a telegram coming from the war department Tuesday afternoon on a B-17 based in England. Many of his friends are anxiously waiting favorable news about the flyer.

The latest letter received by the parents of the young man was dated March 10. In this Paul told that he had rented a bicycle and had enjoyed a sight-seeing trip. He mentioned that he had not yet made a mission, so it is presumed that the one March 15 was his first.

Paul was graduated from Wayne high school and enlisted two years ago in February. He went to Yale for two semesters of specialized training. He then entered the air corps and trained for gunnery at Las Vegas, Nev. He went from there to Rapid City, S. D., where he joined a crew for special training. Later his crew spent some days at Lincoln air base before going overseas in January. When he was in Lincoln Mr. and Mrs. Harrington spent a week with him. Most of his crew mates were midwestern youths.

Paul was unable to go to England with the original crew with which he was trained at Rapid City for he was hospitalized with an arm infection. After arriving in England he met members of that crew and learned that they had completed their missions and were returning to the states.

Paul's elder brother, Pvt. John Harrington, is with the 9th army armored engineers' battalion which recently set a new world record by building a pontoon bridge over the Rhine river in nine hours.

Charlene Bruner Is Bride Of Pvt. Wilmer Ellis at Cherokee Church.

Miss Charlene Bruner, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Bruner of Cherokee, Ia., and Pvt. Wilmer Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Ellis of Wayne, were united in marriage at 4:15 Easter Sunday afternoon at the Methodist church in Cherokee. Rev. Peterson performed the single ring ceremony before an altar decorated with Easter lilies and tall white candles.

A friend of the bride was at the organ and played "Ave Marie" and "I Love You Truly" before the ceremony. She played wedding music as the bride entered. She also played the recessional. The bride was given in marriage by her father and was gowned in floor-length white satin fashioned with long sleeves, fitted bodice and train. Her full-length veil was of white net and fell from a tiara of seed pearls and orange blossoms. Design of seed pearls in the tiara matched the seed pearl design in the dress yoke. She carried an arm bouquet of pale pink roses and white snapdragons tied with white satin streamers with tiny pink rosebud outlines.

Miss Gertrude Smith served as bridesmaid. Her floor-length dress was of yellow net. She had a matching shoulder-length veil. Her arm bouquet was of Talisman roses and deep lavender sweet-peas.

Pvt. Ellis was attended by his father. The army band wore regulation military uniform. Mr. Ellis wore dark business suit and had a white carnation boutonniere.

A brother of the bride, Jack Bruner, lit the candles before the ceremony. Joe Bruner, another brother of the bride, and two friends served as ushers.

The bride was graduated from Cherokee high school and attended Wayne college two years. She taught kindergarten at Mapleton, Ia., two years and this term is kindergarten teacher at Storm Lake, Ia. She will continue with her duties this term.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ellis went from Wayne to attend the wedding.

worship, leading to such government at Hitlerism. He also spoke with disfavor on the philosophy of Kant which advocates the principle that "truth is what I think it is," this resulting in subjectivism and neglect of the divine revelation.

Dr. Bowdern recommended two books, "Religions of Democracy," which contains essays by Rabbi Louis Finkelstein, Father J. Elliot Ross and Rev. Wm. Adams Brown, Jew, Catholic priest and Protestant minister, and "Philosophy for the Missions," by Father James Aloysius Williams, S. J. These present religious thinking which Dr. Bowdern favors. They combine mainly the philosophies of Aristotle and Thomas Aquinas.

Need Abstract Thinking. Dr. Bowdern expressed regret that nearly all abstract thinking has been removed from education of today. He favors foreign languages, grammar, mathematics, physics and chemistry as means of developing abstract reasoning. And such thinking is a favorable preparation for religious philosophy. "They involve reasoning, and religion needs thinking."

Outlines Three Needs. Dr. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, writes of the wants and needs in democracy. Dr. Bowdern mentioned. He recommends three: First, needs for private and individual good, such as food, clothing, shelter and a chance for children; second, needs for common good, such as peace, order and justice; and third, needs for personal and human good, such as a chance to develop human nature to perfection, this being intellectual, moral and emotional. In case the first two needs conflict, the first must yield to the second. If the second and third conflict, the second must yield to the third. So, at conclusion of the war, peace must not be marked with injustice, revenge or selfishness, Dr. Bowdern warned.

Remedy is Suggested. What is wrong with the world? Dr. Bowdern indicated that greed, lust and thirst for power have seized the universe. The remedies are absolute honesty, to destroy greed, absolute purity to destroy lust and absolute love to overcome thirst for power. Such a philosophy will lead to absolute unselfishness.

Everyone is a creature and is dependent. If one becomes too independent, he is ostracized by society.

The speaker recommended the cardinal virtues: Prudence which is needed for intellect, justice which is needed for the will, temperance and fortitude which are needed for the emotions. He would add to these faith, hope and love, faith for complete submission of the intellect, hope for perfect steadiness of emotions and love as an expression of the Golden rule. These are, Dr. Bowdern concluded, comprehended in the Christian philosophy of life as taught by the church. The cardinal virtues are carved in the dome of Nebraska's capitol building and they are the secret of sanctity.

Dr. Bowdern was introduced by Rev. Wm. Kearns as an outstanding man in the field of education. He is a member of the Jesuit order whose life work is the education of youth.

Churches Remembered. The committee on support of churches, headed by Dr. J. T. Anderson, promoted the Kiwanis plan of remembering each church in Wayne with an Easter lily, urging all members to attend Easter services in churches of their choice and inviting all ministers to the special program Monday. A majority of members attended services. Ministers at the meeting Monday were Rev. J. R. Bullock, Rev. Wm. Kearns, Rev. Alvin Gies, Rev. S. K. deFreese, Rev. T. J. C. Schuldt, Dr. Victor West and Rev. O. B. Proett. The last two are members of the local club. Rev. Walter Brackensick sent appreciation for the invitation but was unable to attend because of a previous commitment. Dr. West, Rev. Proett and Rev. Kearns spoke briefly to express to Kiwanians the appreciation for their good will and fellowship.

Other guests were Dr. Bowdern, Norm Barlinghaus, Dr. J. T. Gillespie, Lt. (jg) Paul Palmontier and Pfc. Ernest R. Proett. The men sang "Kiwanis," "Song of Kiwanis" and "O Come All Ye Faithful." F. L. Blair leading and Prof. Russel Anderson playing the accompaniment. Ministers joined in singing "Long Long Ago."

Vexing Problem The question of paying government subsidies and reasons for meat scarcity are being discussed. The Norfolk Daily News offers the following editorial analysis, quoting from the Omaha Journal-Stockman: "Many consumers do not understand why, with the government paying subsidies to the packers to cover the squeeze between the price paid to livestock men and the price charged for the finished product, there is still dissatisfaction among livestock men which is cutting the supply of available meat. "Farmers and feeders have never been too well pleased with a system that puts them on a subsidy basis. Why this is so is explained by the Omaha Stockman-Journal, spokesman for the livestock interests and opponent of the subsidy plan. "The newspaper gives three reasons for discontent. "First, it points out, the subsidies are paid to packers and not to feeders or producers. Many of whom have never been convinced that the subsidy payments all come through to them in the shape of better prices on fat livestock. "Second, rightly or wrongly, the growers and feeders of livestock are suspicious of subsidies. They recognize, the paper goes on, that when as much as $2 or more of the money they receive for their products could be lopped off at the whim of a government agency, their position is far from secure. They are less trusting of the government than they were a few years ago. "Third, livestock men point out, that the subsidies, paid to the packers, enable the packers to compete with farmers for stock that should go back to the feed lots for further feeding, to make more and better beef. The newspaper tells of this incident: "The other day a farmer was watching a bunch of quite decent cattle move down an alley in the yards. They caught his eye, and he remarked that he would like to have them to take out for further finishing, but he supposed they would ask all of $13.50 for them. It just about knocked him off the fence when he was told that they were on their way to slaughter, at $14.50. "Livestock men are quoted by the paper as saying that the only way to insure adequate supplies of meat is to let everyone along the line pay prices that would insure production costs plus a fair margin of profit. "This method, which would provide larger supplies of meat and eliminate the vast operations of the black market, was suggested early in the war by practical livestock men, but was rejected by federal bureau men, who preferred to operate by charts and tabulated statistics. And so we are short on meat and long on black and unsupervised markets operating out of side of and against the law and charging prices that the ordinary consumer can't afford to pay."

Evils of Socialism "The Road to Serfdom" written by Friedrich A. Hayek, points out the dangers of socialist trends, how they lead to the totalitarianism practiced in Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia. "Our generation has forgotten that the system of private property is the most important guaranty of freedom," he says. He mentions that the power of a millionaire over an individual is much less than the power of the "smallest bureaucrat." He says: "What is promised to us as the road to freedom is in fact the highway to servitude. Planning leads to dictatorship because dictatorship is the most effective instrument of coercion and, as such, essential if central planning on a large scale is to be possible." The writer says "democratic socialism, the greatest utopia of the last few generations, is simply not achievable." Socialism is collectivism, and that means surrender of individualism to the state. That has been the hard experience of all nations that have tried it. Speaking of enslavement in a planned order, the writer quotes, this from Benjamin Franklin: "Those who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety." The writer is critical of intellectual leaders who extol security at the expense of freedom. He concludes: "The guiding principle in any attempt to create a world of freedom must be this: A policy of freedom for the individual is the only truly progressive policy." The allies are winning on every front, and hope for early victory seems well founded. The march of triumph in Europe is forcing Germany nearer and nearer the quitting point. Thousands of enemy soldiers have surrendered, and no doubt the fighting would have been over months ago in Europe if Germans were not goaded and threatened by conscienceless war lords who are now trying desperately and vainly to save their own hides. Japan, too, is heading faster and faster in the direction of utter rout and complete defeat. The war in Europe over, with centralized action in the Pacific, it looks as though the Nipponese would not last long. This is based on reasoning prompted by ardent hope.

People with fairly high foreheads advise draining off surplus funds to prevent bad inflation, and also advise keeping out of debt and otherwise preparing for the post-war period. Heavy taxation is an inflation modifier, we are joyfully assured. We have not been sufficiently endowed with gray matter to add up to logical totals some of the contrary reasoning dished out by experts. Considering the Pacific war still ahead and the sobering task of readjustment and reconstruction in prospect, Lincoln will not, according to the Journal, devote V-E day to tooting whistles and making other noises. It is proposed to work and pray and hope. In truth, wild demonstrations would seem quite out of order. "The world is overcharged with reasons for grief and tears, due mainly to the horrors of war. Cause of emotional disorder and low spirits is sometimes self-imposed. More often in these days it may be safely blamed on two despised birds known as Hitler and Hirohito. John L. Lewis has postponed his coal strike thirty days on order of W.L.B. War demands exercise some but not enough influence on the House of Lewis. When the war pressure is removed, the public may expect a lot of strike troubles. The state health department at Lincoln announces the installation of a new x-ray laboratory on wheels to speed the war on tuberculosis. The department proposes to do its share in cutting down ravages of the disease. Monday was featured by more than the usual number of blue devils. Customary wash-day imps were supplemented by settling bills and contending with an ugly turn in the weather. Nuts are said to be a satisfactory substitute for meat—relished if one can keep from being reminded of Washington's bureaucratic variety.

ed oriental blossoms instead of Japanese cherry blossoms. Several people were arrested because they picked the blossoms or man-gled the trees. There is a feud in Washington between the metropolitan police and the park police. A bill has been introduced in congress to combine these forces. For some reason or other, the taxpayers of the District of Columbia pay the salaries and furnish the uniforms of the park police, but the local taxpayers have no jurisdiction over the park police who are under the direction of the secretary of the interior. Washington has no more black-outs. The general impression is that there is no further danger of the nation's capital being bombed from the air or shelled from the sea. Blackout curtains have been removed from the White House windows. Shortly after Pearl Harbor, blackout drills were conducted almost weekly. A most elaborate bomb shelter was constructed between the White House and the treasury building. Very few people have seen this shelter. Those who say they have seen it, say also that it is so large and well appointed that had the White House been damaged or destroyed, the shelter, in addition to providing protection for the president, could have been used for cabinet meetings. The constitution provides that treaties with foreign countries must be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the United States senate. A resolution has been introduced

Many hundreds of thousands of people have visited the Tidal Basin recently to view the cherry blossoms. The blossoms are scentless and the trees are fruitless. Since Pearl Harbor, they are called

HOT DEBATE. A red-hot discussion of the rights of labor and management occupied the time of the Town Meeting of the Air Thursday evening. The question pertained particularly to war-time strikes. None of the contending speakers endorsed work stoppages while men need equipment to fight for American freedom. A good deal of animosity was evident. Labor union advocates pointed to comparatively small interference with war production. The opposition stressed the perils of curtailment. One speaker had the good judgment to suggest harmony between capital and labor as the surest and best way to solve problems. It was made plain that labor leaders are bent on getting their hands more and more on industry's controls without thought of cash investments or of industry's responsibility for results. Time was when labor suffered disadvantages and needed to organize and insist on its rights. But unions have gone too far in imposing on sources of employment with little or no regard for the public. Manifest bitterness between two essential groups foreshadows trouble. This might be averted by each seeing the other fellow's viewpoint. Those who have read the white paper take it to mean that Britain will control landing areas throughout the British empire. Leading airmen of the United States have organized what is known as the international air federation. Their purpose is to secure some consideration on international aviation at the San Francisco conference. They believe there will be no permanent peace until international aviation problems are settled. American aviation authorities say that Britain has started out on her own insofar as aviation equipment, foreign trade, and air bases are concerned. There is quite a meat shortage in Washington, but people with enough money and contacts in the black market can usually get what they want. Some Canadian steaks are smuggled in occasionally, some by representatives of foreign countries who have diplomatic immunity from customs inspection. One day last week the cook in the house restaurant dug up some steaks that were sold for $1.25 a piece, including coffee, bread and butter. A Washington newspaper got hold of the information and ridiculed congressmen for complaining about the food shortage. It is reported now that there will be no more steaks in the house restaurant at least while there is a meat shortage. Economy struck the agricultural appropriation bill as usual. It was cut $141 million under the budget recommendations and the recommendations excluded many requests for funds. The appropriations for agriculture were held to about $776 million, a bit less than half the amount that congress authorized for U.N.R.R.A. with which to feed, clothe and shoe the poverty-stricken people of liberated Europe. But for our agriculture, U.N.R.R.A. would never have been brought into being, as there would be no funds and fibers to send to the devastated lands. Not all the funds will go to purely agricultural projects. The forestry service comes in for $27 million, with forest reserve roads and trails for another $6 million, and control of white pine blister nearly $3 million. There are several millions more for non-farming operations. Among the reductions from budget estimates, about $157 million was in loans to farmers and farm organizations, of which $90 million was in reductions of funds for rural electrification. Possibly the best and safest loans the government has ever made have been those for extending electric service for farms. Nearly every electrical cooperative has been prompted by payment of interest and installment on its loans, and eventually every dollar loaned will be repaid with interest in full. With farm help so hard to get, there is a steadily increasing demand for electric service on the farms. The amount allowed for such loans is considerably less than half what the government loaned on the infamous canal oil project in Canada, which will fold up on April 1 at a cost of $140 millions. Other comparisons with federal expenditures and loans might be made, some of which congress has had little or very remote control. On February 28, the department of state released copies of the agreement made with France for lend-lease goods and loans for $900 millions of equipment for civilian purposes. France is said to have $2 billion in gold, and aside from lack of transportation within the country, has suffered less from the war than some other liberated areas. Included in this agreement are $175 million under lend-lease including $80 million for raw materials or factory production, and $185 million for food from our farms. But of the $900 million for loans, for 30 years at 2% percent interest, goods will be sent which will have little bearing on the winning of the war. The total of $900 million in loans includes $300 million for locomotives and railway cars, $140 million for ships from our merchant fleet, $90 million for small-craft, and $350 million for metal working machinery, industrial equipment and machinery for mines and arsenals. Much of this money is for reconversion purposes for French industry at a time when our own industries are tied to war purposes and cannot convert. War Food Administrator Marvin Jones declares that nobody in this country is going to starve, even though the food shortage continues, and Under-Secretary of War Patterson alleges that our armed forces may feel the pinch of the shortage unless prospects are improved. In 1944, declares Mr. Jones, our farmers produced 37 per cent more food than this or any other nation had ever produced, notwithstanding the drawbacks of war-time conditions. At present the W.F.A. is buying food at the rate of $5 million per day for our armed forces and lend-lease shipments. Meat, eggs, butter and other dairy products are short to the point of scarcity in the eastern cities. The meat packers and livestock men have tangled with the O.P.A. experts regarding meats, claiming that regulations are preventing production, processing and distribution when there are 17 million more cattle available than in pre-war years. Increased consumption of meats of all kinds is ascribed as one reason why there is less available. Mr. Churchill rises in the house of commons to declare that reports of enormous surpluses in British warehouses are erroneous, and that at present they hold only 6 million tons.

Learn About Care To Give Livestock Sixteen Dixon county 4-H livestock feeders and producers were guests of the Sioux City livestock sanitary committee last Thursday when the boys were shown how various bruises affect cuts of meat. They saw the ill effects of lifting sheep by the wool. The lamb carcass had a great amount of the back meat whittled off, and this type of injury covered a larger area of the carcass. The young folks learned that most of the bruises occur on the choice parts of the animal. The hog received bruises on the ham, loin and bacon side in most cases. From these cuts the packer must realize his main profits. Thus, in driving or loading the hog, the canvas slapper and the electric prod have been recognized as the proper means of persuasion. Extra panels should be used for guiding the animals. Ball bats, neck yokes, single trees and other articles of a club nature should never be used to persuade any animal. Use of a pitchfork is considered one of the worst implements in moving live animals. If a dog is used on hogs or sheep, it should be well trained for a severe bite on the leg above the hock often means the loss of a leg of lamb or a ham. Mixed loading and over-loading have been causes for loss of considerable meat. In some surveys, it has been found that nearly half of the bruises are fresh ones which means they were made in the shipping process. The boys also learned how to keep animals healthy and thus produce as much meat as possible.

ONE TRILLION. Pathfinder magazine writes about a trillion-dollar war, referring to the total cost to all nations involved, and emphasizing what could be done with that huge sum in construction and betterments. A billion is hard to understand, but that amount would have to be multiplied by one thousand to make a trillion as figured in America. Instead of using a trillion to kill and wreck, what great good could be done by employing it to build and find ways to prolong and enrich life? Pathfinder quotes Ben Dean of Grand Rapids, Mich., president of Kiwanis International, to explain the meaning of a trillion, as follows: "A trillion-dollars laid end to end would stretch around the earth 3,800 times. It would build a modern 5-room house for every family in the world, or a million-dollar hospital for every community of 2,000 in the world. It would give 500 million men and women a four-year college education, or build 25 million miles of four-lane highway." Pathfinder comments: "Instead, this particular trillion has laid waste to cities and homes on three continents and snuffed out the lives of more than 30 million human beings, military and civilian."

Henry Wallace, the new secretary of commerce, is learning to fly a small airplane at the national airport. Pilot Young of the C. A. A. is his instructor. The ship, property of the department of commerce, is an air coupe, one of the smallest ships made. It has one single control device and is operated like an automobile. C. A. A. officials tell of one woman who learned to fly this plane in one afternoon. An army general who was showing a B-29 to a crowd recently, ordered this small air coupe removed from the field because the crowd was paying attention to the air coupe instead of the super bomber. About 2,000 rural county committees have been organized for safe-guarding the interest of the G.I. applicants for veterans' loans for the purchase of real estate. Each county committee consists of three experienced farmers and one war veteran. The committees are expected to consider the soundness of the applications for veterans' loans as to prices for properties proposed to be purchased and the chances for successful operation by the veterans. The committees have great responsibility, particularly with prospects for the future of farming to be considered. The British have issued a white paper regarding post-war aviation.

Wakefield Department --- Wayne Herald

BY MARJORIE HARRISON SEDERBERG

Wakefield Youth Killed in Action

S. Sgt. A. A. Alexander Was Engineer and Gunner on Plane in Pacific.

S. Sgt. Anclie A. Alexander, 27, was killed in action on Luzon in the Philippines March 7, according to a telegram from the war department received here Thursday, March 29, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Alexander. The parents received a telegram from the war department the day before, March 28, stating that their son was missing in action over the Philippines.

Anclie left his home near Emerson August 4, 1941, for Fort Crook, Neb., for induction in the air corps. He was graduated from airplane mechanics course at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., February 3, 1942. The young man then went to Florida where he attended gunnery school. S. Sgt. Alexander was home on furlough in September, 1943. He then left for overseas duty and arrived in the south Pacific February 7, 1944. He was third engineer and gunner on a Liberator bomber based first in Australia and then in New Guinea. He had been transferred to the Philippines just two weeks before his death.

The young man wrote a letter to his fiancée, Miss Vera Latton of West Point, the evening of March 7. He told that he had been on missions the day before and was too tired to write. It is believed he went up after writing the letter and was then killed.

S. Sgt. Alexander had 134 flying hours when he went to the Philippines. His flying hours had been limited because he was hospitalized three times after going overseas. He was hospitalized twice with jungle rash and was sent to Australia last fall to recover from jungle fever.

A requiem high mass will be said for deceased at Sacred Heart church in Emerson Tuesday, April 10, at 9 a. m.

Anclie A. Alexander was born at Woodston, Kan., July 18, 1917, and was thus 27 years, 8 months and 18 days of age at the time of his death. When he was a year and 3 months old he moved with his parents to Pender. In 1940 he moved with the family to farm north-west of Emerson. He attended grade school in Cumming county and then associated with his father on the farm till he entered service.

May Use Power Line for Voice

Possibility of Improving Service Is Explained By Emil Dupsky.

Distribution lines of the Wayne county rural public power district that now carry electric power to 725 consumers in Wayne and other counties may have another important function after the war. They may be used as telephone lines, according to Emil Dupsky, superintendent of the organization.

Mr. Dupsky said he recently received a letter from William J. Neal, acting administrator of the rural electrification administration, discussing the possibility and outlining the progress that has been made toward utilizing power distribution lines as voice carriers.

"Some day the lines may be used for that purpose. How soon, depends on the length of the war and further technical developments," said Mr. Dupsky.

"In the area served by our district, very few families have dependable telephone service. There are many families who want telephones but cannot get them because of the lack of facilities or the cost. Our power co-op could provide better electric service if more of its members had reliable telephone service to let us know when things go wrong.

"For two decades there has been a steady decline in the number of farm telephones, while in 10 years the number of electrified farms has increased from 750,000 to 2,500,000. In Nebraska the number of rural telephones per 1,000 farm population dropped from 162 in 1930 to 106 in 1940. Throughout the nation the number of farm telephones declined from 2,498,000 in 1920 to 1,527,000 in 1940, a decrease of 39 per cent. In 1930, 38.7 per cent of all farms had phones; in 1930, 34 per cent; and in 1940 only 25 per cent.

"Our power lines already are part of the equipment that will help correct this condition and I believe it is our duty to encourage this improvement in farm life," Mr. Dupsky declared.

Use of REA-financed power lines for communication purposes has been furthered by a joint study conducted by REA and the Bell Telephone laboratories. According to Mr. Neal's letter to the Wayne county rural public power district, REA became interested in the possibility of using power lines as voice carriers about four years ago.

According to Mr. Neal's letter to the Wayne county rural public power district, REA became interested in the possibility of using power lines as voice carriers about four years ago.

"Several bills have been introduced in Congress calling for a government rural telephone program. One of the bills would delegate REA to administer and finance the program. Others would specifically qualify REA as a borrower.

Lt. Donald Mueller, 22, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mueller of Thayer and grandson of Mrs. J. G. Beggs of Altona, was killed in action March 14 on Iwo Jima, according to word coming last week. The officer had written his wife a letter dated March 14, the same day he was killed. He said that he had been at the front 10 days and that the experience was a severe strain on the nerves as well as hard physically. He thought the worst was about over then but added that American forces had underestimated the strength of the Japs.

Library News

Ladies, do you know the smartest spring combination? It's not sulphur and molasses; it's not first robins and spring thaws. It's ideas for spring meals and home decorations. Bright homemakers know that the smartest thing to do is to come to the library for ideas.

With spring coming along so early this year you may be too busy to read anything heavy right now but there is some new light reading available now that you might ask for. We have Dayspring, by Harry Sylvester, a dramatic and moving novel, laid in the American southwest. By Bread Alone, by Betty de Sherbinin, a story of Argentina today with a good plot. Woman in Sunshine, by Frank Swinnerton, an English novel. Young Bess by Margaret Irwin, the historical novel chosen by the Literary Guild for April. We Live in Alaska, by Constance Helmericks, a biography. At His Side, an account of the American Red Cross overseas. According to Quentin Reynolds, the three greatest discoveries of the war are the jeep, Ernie Pyle and the Red Cross girl. This book will make you agree with Quentin Reynolds.

We also have the new book of poetry by Robert Frost, A Masque of Reason. This is a play written in blank verse. Another book which you might like to come in to the library to see, or might like to know that we have so that you could refer to it on some later occasion, is The Declaration of Independence with reproductions of all known drafts and copies in Jefferson's hand.

House cleaning is the order of the day, and modern cleaning has been stripped of much of the old-time drudgery. Taking up tacked carpets and changing straw in mattresses were among the dreaded parts of house cleaning 40 years ago.

Precious Butter Retrieved in City

Pack of Cigaretts Will Be Returned to Owner Who Proves Identity.

Ben Keller of Chicago, bought a quarter pound of butter and went to his car where he found two cartons containing 80 pounds of butter. Mr. Keller took the golden treasure to a nearby police station. A few hours later a worried restaurant man reported to the police that he had left his butter in the wrong automobile. The cafe owner retrieved his butter and rewarded Keller by giving him a pound.

At Pittsburg, Kan., a man found an opened pack of cigarettes and was willing to return them to the owner, but he wanted to be sure they fell into the right hands. The local newspaper, telling of the find, said all the owner had to do was to identify the brand, give the exact number of cigarettes in the package, prove his age was more than 16, produce other reliable identification such as social security number, draft status, etc.

The Wyoming department of agriculture at Cheyenne, Wyo., doesn't know who won the argument but it does know that Adolf Hitler never did, doesn't now and never will own a ranch in Wyoming. It so advised Loren Harris, Folsom, Cal., who asked the department to settle a "hot argument" on the subject.

Town fathers at Mount Vernon, N. Y., established a youth kanteen in a building dating back to colonial times. Young hens, cats, about 350 of them, showed up for a dance. Rugs were being cut on the downbeat. Then someone said, "Hey! The joint's jumpin'." Sure enough, the old building trembled precariously. Alarmed officials hunted up some solid stuff in the form of supporting pillars, just to keep things in the groove.

Some 3,000 keys, rusted relics of the prohibition era, have gone to war at Chicago. The keys, which locked padlocks on speakeasies and totaling several hundred pounds of brass and steel, have been salvaged for war purposes. The keys were found in a vault in the United States marshal's office where they had been stored from 1920 to 1933.

A frightened, wounded opponent, far off his woodland path, was found in the heart of Chicago. Bialto just as night club and theatre crowds were on their way home in adherence to the mid-night curfew. Policeman Barney Zintek who said he couldn't guess how the animal got into the loop, turned it over to the anti-cruelty society.

Mrs. Sam Young's husband was away and her son was ill so she and a daughter undertook to feed the stock on the Young ranch at Alpine, Idaho. In the feedlot they found two moose which wouldn't shoo. Mrs. Young then obtained a shotgun, fatally wounded one moose, trailed it, dressed it with a pocketknife and carted the meat home. "It was self-defense for ourselves and the cattle," said Mrs. Young.

Gust Javelas, 65, Chicago, expressed surprise when Policeman Patrick Flannigan and an undertaker arrived at his home and said they had received reports that he was dead. Gust danced a jig to prove that he was very much alive and suggested to the officer and undertaker that somebody must have been playing a joke.

Lt. Kenneth Pinnon of Portland, Ore., was just another soldier to the baby son he had never seen, on his return from the Pacific. But when he spoke, the child, almost 3 years old, cried out, "That's my daddy." The lieutenant had sent home phonograph recording of his voice for the mother to play.

Cpl. Reed Walker, a cook at Camp Luce, Las Vegas, N. M., is home on furlough at Salt Lake City, but he's still cooking.
