

Programs Made Refreshingly Brief—Wearing Academic Caps and Gowns Started in the Time of Renaissance—An error with Respect to the Venerable Cottonwood—Lack of Business Sense.

Brevity was conspicuous in the speeches and other contributions to the late graduation programs of the Wayne high school, and in that way the pleasure of the different occasions was greatly heightened. Time was when the length of everything connected with final exercises was so great that even sympathetic relatives were taxed almost beyond endurance.

Gowns, caps and hoods, introduced by the universities of Paris and Bologna at the time of the renaissance, spreading to Cambridge and Oxford and later to American universities, were originally designed to distinguish between scholars and the ordinary mill run. Around 700 years ago men and women dressed very much alike.

It appears the use of academic gowns was loaded on American high schools, junior colleges and normal schools in 1911. A group of representative educators met at that time and decided on the official below-college dress.

In all educational institutions, the cap and gown custom insures the advantage of sameness. The rich and poor appear alike, but appearance is not fascinating, but no contrasts make anyone feel disagreeable.

C. E. Carhart, lumberman of long and understanding experience, corrects the Herald's statement that cottonwood is too soft to make good lumber or wood. He says it is exceptionally hard.

Dave Theophilus, another lumberman, long familiar with timber varieties, advanced by Mr. Carhart's idea of pinning the lumber far into hyperbole in that one particular in expressing distaste for the cottonwood.

Noting the absence of cottonwood in lumber yards, Mr. Theophilus explains that it wiggles, twists, curls and warps as it dries, and that it is impossible to keep in where it is put.

Fine Cooperation Proves Inspiring

Race, Nationality, Tongue Make No Difference to Youths Interned.

The fine cooperation demonstrated by teen age young folks of varied races, nationalities and tongues during three years of oppressive Jap internment in Santo Tomas camp in Manila is an encouraging outlook for the future in the opinion of Mrs. C. F. Maynard who addressed Wayne county 8th graders, their parents and friends at Wayne municipal auditorium Saturday afternoon.

Teen-age people are favorites, Mrs. Maynard began, because they have learned to think; they want to learn and their interests are expanding; they are becoming citizens of the world; and they still have truth and honesty that are not modified by self-seeking.

Films Shown Here Boost Bond Drive

Memorial Day Program Is Planned for Kiwanis Club Next Week.

The need for investing in bonds in the 7th war loan drive to bring earliest possible victory over Japan was stressed in films shown for Kiwanians Monday by Dr. Geo. Seeck.

"Two Jims," one of the pictures, showed shelling of the Pacific island, landing of amphibious forces and scenes of Mt. Suribachi which is the symbol for the 7th war loan. This marine corps film told that 4,000 Americans and 20,000 Japs lost their lives on Iwo.

The other pictures were made by the U. S. navy, marine corps and coast guard for the war finance division of the treasury. "Midnight," pictured war activity all over the world at midnight Greenwich time. Patrol planes taking off from England, other planes practicing landings on a carrier in Lake Michigan, a navy transport bringing troops home from India, an American submarine striking near Japan and an inland supply depot in Utah were filmed. "Missions Completed" showed the tenseness of the situation when 60 planes and 100 men take off from a carrier on a mission. One fails to return. The picture notes the greatest sacrifice in that of life but reveals that this loss also means $80,000 investment in the plane and $50,000 in the pilot's training. "Philippines News," based on film taken from the Japs, showed gaunt American prisoners and also the graves of many who died just before liberation. The film leaves the message that "we hope to reach others before death takes them."

W. C. Coryell, county chairman of the war loan drive, mentioned that solicitors are starting the drive this week.

Rev. O. B. Proett introduced Dr. Seeck.

"The group sang 'Kiwanis Lives,' 'The Grand Old Flag' and 'Faith of Our Fathers.'" Jean Boyd was leader and Prof. Russel Anderson accompanist.

Besides 40 members, guests were Albin Larson of Lincoln, secretary of the state board of education, with Dr. J. T. Anderson, F. O. Stratton of Pendleton, Ore., with R. K. Kirkman, Ernest Muhs and James Hansen with H. B. Craven; and Dr. Geo. Seeck who showed the Kiwanians will have Memorial day program with the wartime citizenship committee in charge. F. S. Berry will speak.

COMFORTS ARE FEW.

Children of Manila, who had been accustomed to servants, movies, parties, plenty of nice clothes and food, etc., were working under different conditions. They had no luxuries and very few comforts. Children of 12 to 15 were used as messengers, aides and runners in camp. They helped their parents wash in cold water with little or no soap, assisted in caring for children and performed other such services. Their only recreation was basketball or baseball played evenings.

DO NOT DISCRIMINATE.

Mrs. Maynard's class of 17 Latin students included Americans, whites, negroes, Indians, British, Chinese and others. Never did these young folks discriminate among themselves because of race or nationality. The cooperation of such different young folks under such difficult conditions is hopeful.

Mrs. Maynard stated that she knew American children possessed qualities that it takes to meet such conditions and she was highly pleased that the others did likewise.

In addressing the 8th graders, Mrs. Maynard told them that they are the luckiest children in the world. American children are the only ones who had sufficient food in the last three years. She asked that they resolve that color and language of others will never make any difference. Santo Tomas proved that foreigners are not different and they can be understood if one tries to understand them.

Mrs. Maynard was introduced by Miss Marie Wright, who also presented diplomas to the class of 1947.

The program opened with "America" and invocation by Dr. Victor West. Tonette band of district 3, taught by Mrs. Harold Link, played "God Bless America," "The Cradle Song" and "The Skater's Waltz." Pupils of district 57, taught by Miss Lois Gamble, sang "Salute to the Flag" and "Home on the Range." Shirley Lindsay, also of district 57, demonstrated baton twirling. Barbara Bartels of district 66, taught by Miss Virginia Milliken, played a piano solo, "Peacock March," by Sousa. She also accompanied Doris Milliken of the same district who sang "Chiribirrin" and "Don't Fence Me In." Marcella Harom of district 54, with Miss Marton Kriesge teacher, gave a dramatic reading. Rev. S. K. de Freese closed the program with the benediction.

Visits at College.

E. Albin Larson of Lincoln, secretary of the state board of education, made an official visit at the college campus Monday.

FINE COOPERATION

to Bataan and Corregidor. The city was under a pall of smoke from huge fires, and looting was prevalent.

Japs entered January 2 and two days later people were picked up in Jap trucks and taken to concentration camps. Mrs. Maynard was fortunate in being among the first to go to Santo Tomas. Though everything was dirty, the first did have choice of beds and space in the crowded buildings. Men and boys over 12 were placed together and women, girls and all children under 12 together.

With a bundle of the few possessions one might carry, with families separated, with everything dirty, with no knowledge of where to find even drinking water, all was confusion. In the dark that comes early in the islands, young folks spread blankets on floors or converted any furniture into beds. Twice the first night they were wakened by Japs who made them stand and be counted. By morning those who did not have netting awoke to find their bodies covered with red welts due to mosquito bites.

On the 30-acre campus are five buildings. Families planned to bed beneath certain trees, and parents arranged as well as possible for food and clothing to be brought.

School Is Opened.

The 3,000 internees soon organized, selecting committees for housing, sanitation, health, education, etc. Mrs. Maynard was asked to continue her teaching. Most of the staff members and students in two American schools were in camp and school opened January 26. Scarcity of all supplies and lack of classrooms were difficulties. Students shared texts and supplies. Classes were held beneath shade trees, shifting to avoid sun and rain. Training was offered from kindergarten through high school. End of the term, May 8, 1942, brought news of the fall of Bataan and Corregidor. Internees then realized they were in for a long sojourn.

Spanish-Catholic fathers opened laboratories and other rooms of Santo Tomas for school classes. The next two years all worked hard and school standards were high.

Propose Trusteeship

The Atlantic Charter, an agreement between the United States and Great Britain, pledged the nations against conquest. Taking of any land from the conquered violates the agreement. Mr. Woodson explained that this is being interpreted to mean land that is of economic value as farming areas or sections rich in minerals or oils. It would not, some explain, apply to such worthless islands as Iwo Jima which it is proposed to hold in trusteeship as bases to prevent future wars.

Regional Security Blocks

Regional security blocks are also proposed at the conference. This provides that the American republics and Canada prevent aggression in this hemisphere and other units do so in other parts of the world. Some feel that such matters should be handled by the security council. The regional blocks plan seems to take away some of the powers first delegated to this council and might lead to confusion.

Greatest Act of Man

Mr. Woodson mentioned that as he sat in the conference he likened the gathering to that at the signing of the Declaration of Independence and other historic meetings. He then realized that this conference will probably go down in history as the greatest international gathering of all time. It means more to humanity than anything that was ever done by minds of men. These 49 nations are striving with their hearts and minds to prevent war. He quoted President Wilson who, in the fight for ratification of the League of Nations, said "We have not lost all for we have made a step in the right direction." Perhaps it will later prove most significant that these delegates should meet in San Francisco where the Golden Gate leads to the Pacific, the ocean that is named for peace.

Mrs. F. S. Morgan introduced the speaker. Wayne municipal band, directed by A. J. Atkins, played selections at opening of the program.

Tip for Farmers

Here's a tip for farmers: Harvest more legume and grass seed this year. It will pay!

This is especially true of alfalfa, red clover and alsike clover seed. But sweet clover, ladino clover and lespedeza seed are also needed, among the legumes, as are sudan grass, crister wheat grass, bromegrass, timothy, orchard grass, and many other hay and cover crop seeds.

Next year's legume-forage plantings will depend to a great extent upon how much seed is harvested this summer. Government reports show that the need for meeting goals on these seed crops is urgent, prices are high and there is a ready market. Additional income lies in properly managed fields.

Alfalfa, red clover and alsike clover are important hay crops, as well as providing pasture. A seed that would mean less feed—resulting in a possible drop in livestock and milk production. Legumes are also important to maintaining soil productivity, both as green manure when turned under and as permanent covers.

Emphasis is being placed on the use of farming practices that increase seed yields. Although the acreage of red clover seed this year is not expected to be greater than that harvested in 1944, production of 15 percent more seed is sought. Half again as much alfalfa seed as was harvested last year is needed, and the alsike clover seed goal is 67 percent more acres than in 1944.

Special assistance to farmers who harvest these three seeds is available under the Agricultural Adjustment Agency program.

Looking to the Country
 THE feasibility of scattering big industries through rural areas is emphasized in a recent Lincoln Journal editorial. It points out that war production experience has proved that decentralization would be a practical solution of many problems. The Journal comments in part:

"People who feel concern for other people had long deplored the mushroom growth of cities, the abandonment of the countryside and the development of slums that inevitably mark the concentrating of industry into a few urban areas. They talked, and sometimes worked, toward a day when factories should stand in green meadows, and workers should live in cottages, not walk-up, cold-water tenements; when children wouldn't have to play in city streets, when everybody could have a little garden if he wanted it, could certainly enjoy outdoor life and healthy sports. Industry itself, in a few instances, tried the plan and liked it. It remained for business to sign, seal and deliver the plan. For it appears now that putting factories and mills in different areas will not only benefit the workman but his employer. It permits variation in such items as quality of labor, taxes, operation costs—as in transport of raw materials—and even, though this isn't stressed, wage scales.

"Thus the screw-on of bolt 66 can live better in the cornbelt, for instance, than in Pittsburgh or Detroit, and at the same time his company can do better by itself. Decentralization is at last on its way."

Memorial Occasion

MEMORIAL day brings more soldier dead to honor. More of the country's defenders have fallen in all war areas, and as the list lengthens, the sacredness of the day deepens. Suspension of usual activities on May 30 centers attention on memory of those who have given their lives in patriotic service.

Memorial day was first set apart to commemorate departed soldiers of the Civil war. It has appropriately become the occasion to remember veterans of all wars.

Cemeteries will be visited and will be turned into a wealth of floral beauty. Not only will precious memories of soldier but of civilian dead be expressed by covering graves with richest blossoms and foliage. The day is one of loving memories. Death's separations through the years are ever keenly felt by surviving kindred.

Sergeant Lingenfelter represents the real GI Joe who turned back the Runstedt offensive. He expects to enjoy a furlough in Nebraska shortly after a physical checkup in California.

Washington's population has grown to 926,620. That is the number of people living within the District of Columbia. In the metropolitan area the population is now estimated at 1,250,000. The board of trade here predicts that the population will increase rather than decrease following the war.

The colored population of Washington is increasing rapidly. Forty-eight percent of the elementary school children here are colored. The white children in elementary schools have decreased 15 percent during the last year. There are more than 250,000 colored people living in the district.

Over 95 thousand residents of the District of Columbia are in the armed services of our country. About 75 thousand of these went into the service via the draft.

cle that scoffed at suspicions, then felt that Japan was preparing to attack the United States. The article suggested cultivating Japan's good will. Too little suspicion—at least too little translated into due safeguards—was proved by the Pearl Harbor horror. Too much liberty was granted the Japs in buying American scrap iron and in nosing into this country's affairs. The Jap finally revealed the deadly poison that lurked under his mask of extreme sauity.

Report by Senator Wherry who returned recently with other American representatives, from an inspection of nazi horror camps, is convinced that swift and certain justice should be meted out to the guilty. Soulless ones responsible for torture and murder of the defenseless, must be effectually disposed of to insure future exercise of human rights.

Elders who realize how impressions stick in young minds, are extremely careful what they say or do. Children do not forget, and unfair treatment or indiscreet words may rise in mockery years later. Something trivial is terrifically important as seen through juvenile eyes. Good idea to watch one's step in dealing with children.

This comes from the old and reliable Sioux City Journal: "Rationing and shortages, including the kind of paper newspapers are printed on, create problems and develop dilemmas. An Alberta, Canada, newspaper announced, 'Due to the shortage of newsprint a number of births will be postponed until next week.'"

We think all nations, including Russia, are equally anxious for peace, and we have no fear Russia will do anything at this time to invite further hostilities, though we note with disappointment an evident lack of candor and fairness in carrying on an understanding reached by heads of the victorious powers.

President Truman expresses a fondness for republicans excepting for office-holding purposes. He indicates that political preference goes to democrats. Republicans will not be distressed by merely looking in if the chief executive will retire new deal crackpots and get rid of unnecessary bureaus.

A Sioux City Journal editorial guesses Japan will be completely knocked out within six months. It is convinced hostilities will not last beyond 1945. This assumes that the orientals lack the good sense to surrender earlier and avoid further destruction.

Opposition to the move to secure federal aid for schools is prompted largely by the fear that such help would be accepted by Washington as authority to shape the course of education. Parents don't want federal bureaus telling schools what to teach.

This observation by the York Republican is an eminent truth crowded into few words: "Conceit seems to be the only disease that makes everyone sick but the one who has it."

Automobiles increase their number of rattles per mile as their time in service lengthens. The future looks for new cars that will silence many highway noises.

taxicabs just cannot take care of the business. The commissioners of the district are planning four-lane thoroughfares and subways in the post-war period.

There are 1886 places in Washington where liquor may be purchased. There have been but two revocations of liquor licenses in the city during the past year. The city collects from $100 to $1500 per year from licenses. The biggest racket in liquor licenses is among 400 people who own licenses where package liquor is sold. The commissioners have limited these licenses to 400 and, license transfers have been for considerations as high as $30,000. It is claimed that the liquor business is somewhat monopolized here. The district derives an annual revenue of about $5,000,000 from the liquor business.

Believe it or not, there are 50 thousand dogs in Washington.

There are 4160 people on the relief rolls in Washington. This is a considerable decrease from the peak when there were 8 thousand people on relief.

Refuse collected in Washington once yielded grease of the annual value of $200 thousand. There is very little grease now in Washington refuse. It is worth but $7 thousand per year. One reason is the meat shortage and another reason is that people are saving the fats and turning them in to the meat markets for red points.

Dairy feeds for some of the institutions in Washington, D. C., are coming from Humboldt, Nebraska. The 2,500 animals in the Washington zoo get corn and other grains from the middle west. The zoo has been paying $60 a ton for shelled corn. Thousands of pounds of horse meat are fed to the animals and reptiles at the zoo. This horse meat is hauled to Washington in refrigerated trucks from a New Jersey firm which gets 10 cents a pound. Horse meat used to sell for 7 cents a pound. It is fresh meat and comes in carcasses and is cut up at the zoo.

IN BUSINESS.

The prospect that many returning soldiers will want to launch into businesses of their own leads W. R. Jenkins in Forbes' magazine to point out some serious pitfalls. The assumption that capital is the only requisite to success prompts the writer to say: "Many a successful business has been started on a shoestring, and many a failure was heavily capitalized." Ample capital and easy credit give a promising start, but without the will to manage carefully, work over-time and practice self-denial, they may be fore-runners of disappointment and failure. Especially if acquired without effort, funds needed to enter business are often dissipated through channels of lax methods. Better to be employed by a going, successful institution than run risks one is not qualified to overcome. An established business or industry can usually be depended on to treat faithful helpers or kalaried associates fairly and generously. The world is strewn with too many wrecks to regard lightly the task of starting one's own business. If one feels qualified to do so, however, he must emphasize more than initial capital. He must know a sufficient demand exists for what he proposes to offer, and have the tact to win and hold popular favor. He must collect and pay promptly, never abusing precious credit.

in sugar producing countries as well as in sugar consuming countries. Frequently they have been potent factors in the rise and fall of such governments.

Among immediate questions to which the house committee is demanding answers are those relating to the quotas of the limited world supply allotted to France, Spain, Italy and other European countries. It is alleged that certain commercial interests in those countries are using sugar for production of liquors and other industrial commodities have been getting more than a liberal supply while our own people, including their food processing plants, are cut down to a minimum. The house committee may get some of the facts about foreign allotments, but it is possible that those secrets may be too deep-seated to be reached.

The OPA is coming in for a share of blame for the food shortage because of its regulations which have not worked out as promised. The mayor of New York, continues to war upon regulations to which he ascribes much if not all of the black market operations, which beset the millions of people of that city. Cattle senators lay the blame for the mixed meat situation on the failure of OPA to instand the cattle industry and inability to make suitable regulations.

President Truman seems to have touched a responsive chord in overruling the Office of War Information regarding admission of American newspapers into Germany. The censorship of the OWI is frequently criticized for preventing the news from Europe reaching our people except through England or via the German radio. It decided when Germany surrendered not to permit publications from this country to enter that country. President Truman ordered that rule rescinded except to the extent dictated by "military security." The OWI continues to censor the European news as well as news of domestic affairs which bears upon our war purposes, but there is

HIROHITO.

Time magazine tells the story of Hirohito's ancestral line. His divine dynasty began 660 B. C., and we have a strong suspicion it will end in 1945 A. D. The emperor is considered so sacred that his subjects are seldom permitted to see him. In youth it is recorded that Hirohito once visited the zoo, and we wonder if he were looking around for related blood lines. Origin of the dynasty is as mythical as a child's fairy tale. The bunk Japan feeds its school children is that heaven and earth got together and dished out the Japanese archipelago, and then launched the divine dynasty of which Hirohito is the latest and we hope the last product. It is noted that U. S. Commodore Matthew C. Perry opened Japan's ports to American trade and western ideas 48 years ago. This start in world trouble was augmented by allowing the Japs to ship American scrap to home islands to manufacture into implements of war to use against us. When in 1932 some one flung a bomb at the emperor's carriage and slightly wounded a couple of horses belonging to the imperial stables, Hirohito sent eight pounds of carrots to console the animals. And this simple-minded bird is the central figure in a ruthless military group that expressed and attempted to carry out a determination to rule the world. Perhaps at this juncture the sun goddess is not lending needed assistance, and Hirohito's war lords are finding unexpected obstructions.

growing demand that some of the restrictions be lessened. The war in Europe is over, and the people who helped win it are entitled to have full information as to what really is transpiring abroad as well as here at home.

The senate committee following inquiry into matters that may have aggravated food shortages, has presented a rather extensive report in which it makes blistering criticism of the OPA and suggests changes and subsidies to relieve the scarcity of meats in particular. It alleges that OPA enforcement of regulations has been too largely in the hands of amateurs whose inexperience has led to many blunders and failures. There may be something to that allegation, but included in the failure have been many incidents of prosecution of minor offenders which have taken on the aspect of persecution while the practices of big black marketers have grown to astonishing proportions.

Stefan Is Named For Important Job

Congressman Karl Stefan has been appointed by the secretary of state to be an advisor to the American delegation at the San Francisco security conference. He is one of two members of the house of 435 members to be selected for this important post. The other member is Louis C. Rabaut of Michigan. Rabaut is chairman and Stefan is ranking minority member of the committee that handles the appropriations for the department of state, within which is the foreign service of the United States. Both members have served on this committee for several years. Stefan, accompanied by Mrs. Stefan, expects to remain in San Francisco only a few weeks and then plans to complete studies on conference budgetary matters in Washington. He expects to stop in Nebraska on his return trip to Washington.

When advising Stefan of the appointment, the secretary of state included in his instructions the following: "I shall be grateful if you will proceed to San Francisco to advice and consult with the members of the American delegation with respect to the problem of finance for the establishment and maintenance of the international security organization. I have in mind the funds which member governments will need to contribute toward the expenses of operating the organization. Also there is for consideration, from the standpoint of this government, the problem of financing the expenses of the United States representatives who will be accredited to the new organization and the expansion of those divisions of the department of state which will be responsible for our relationship with the organization."

In accepting the appointment Stefan stated that the assignment will not interfere with his service to his congressional district. He stated that the work of the advisors would probably be of short duration during the San Francisco conference but would be quite important when and if a permanent security organization is formed. Most of the budgetary work, he stated, would be done in Washington.

"Uncle Sam has been on the 'giving end' for a long time," Stefan stated. "It is perhaps in the best interests of American taxpayers that some members who have the responsibility for handling appropriations check into prospective commitments. The amounts and the purposes of expenditure must be scrutinized by the people's representatives. The treasury of the United States is pretty low right now."

Senator Supports Electric Project

Senator Hugh Butler (R., Neb.) actively supported and voted for a bill which passed the senate May 14 authorizing appropriations of $320,000,000 for rural electrification projects and establishing the REA as an independent agency. Although an outspoken opponent of wasteful spending and prior investment of government funds, Senator Butler stated in answer to critics of the size of the appropriation for loans to farmers: "I do not like loans which are in the nature of character loans to individual citizens of America being put in the same class as loans which are made in enormous amounts, up to hundreds of millions of dollars and even into the billions of dollars, to foreign governments that have not had good records in the past. The loans which have been made in connection with rural electrification have a splendid record, and are backed not only by the notes of the individual farmer who enjoys the service, but they are what I term good character loans, which after all, are the best kind of loans any banker can make." Senator Butler favors the phase of the bill which would divorce REA from the department of agriculture and make it an independent agency. Senator Butler and Secretary Wickard spoke in St. Louis February 10 to observe the 10th anniversary of REA.

Christian Faith Can Bind Nations

Chief Justice Simmons Is Speaker for Graduates Of Wayne High.

"World peace can be realized if nations find a common meeting ground." Chief Justice Robert Simmons of Lincoln, in addressing Wayne city school graduates Friday evening in the municipal auditorium, suggested that Christian faith does provide this common bond just as it furnished the threads of union in the early days of the United States.

Graduates today, Justice Simmons began, are interested in war and peace because practically all homes display service stars in their windows, too many of them turning to gold. They are also interested because they will be the adults to carry the responsibilities that accompany maintenance of peace.

Can civilized men live at peace? Officials are preparing documents in the hope that peace can be permanent, but final decision rests with the people. Are they determined to make the sacrifices necessary to keep peace?

When the 13 colonies were settled in the United States some 150 years ago, the 13 were more widely separated than are nations today. They differed vastly in race, tongue, tradition, religion, resources, industries, etc. The people were more remote than any today; they had slight knowledge of democratic government and had little contact among the states; and they developed state loyalty and state citizenship.

The colonies realized that something had to be done to unite them and the Articles of Confederation were drawn. These failed because they provided no agency to enforce government rules. Then the constitution was framed after years of struggle and sacrifice. The United States built on three principles: Inalienable rights, political equality and deriving just powers from the consent of the governed.

Those early people found that their religious faith was a common bond and they built around this common spiritual principle.

The problem of peace must be solved under the leadership of the American people who understand this common meeting ground. "How much of the burden can we carry to insure peace to a troubled world? Ought we not be willing to pay in effort, loyalty, faith and toil for peace? Let us give, plan and work sincerely and honestly and fervently to build an organization to give peace that will last," Judge Simmons concluded.

Judge Simmons was introduced by Dr. Victor West.

Serves on Ship Pounding Island

Jap Suicide Plane Downed By Anti-aircraft Fire Off Okinawa.

Jesse Neil Horrell, senior first class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Frank Horrell of Wayne, was aboard a veteran battleship that poured a withering torrent of high explosive shells into the Okinawa beaches as a unit of the greatest naval bombardment force in history.

With other ships in the mighty task force, the battleship on which the Wayne youth serves swept the western side of the island with her main and secondary batteries and 40-mm. automatic weapons. So accurate and devastating was the fire that marines and 10th army troops encountered only slight opposition when they landed.

The battleship reached the center of operations shortly before dawn of March 25 and her 14-inch guns soon were raising havoc with vital shore installations. Their thunderous barrage demolished an important bridge crossing, pill-boxes and a small railroad freight terminal and battered anti-aircraft positions with deadly regularity.

Highlight of the ship's action came during an air attack. One of the enemy planes broke through the sheet of anti-aircraft fire, singling out this battleship for a suicide run. Second later crew went up from gunners and crewmen when a hit sent the plane flaming into the sea.

As the non-commissioned in charge of the automotive supply section, his ingenuity, leadership and initiative were an invaluable asset to the proper functioning of the platoon. His desire to see that the using arms received rapid and competent services often caused him to make numerous trips to various ordnance units in search of tools and parts which were unavailable in our supply section. It was largely through his efforts that the 30-day stock of automotive supplies necessary to the maintenance of the division, prior to the amphibious landings in Italy and France, were properly and correctly requisitioned.

The young man was graduated from Wayne prep in 1934. He enlisted in the ordnance service in October, 1940, at Ft. Lewis, Wash. He went overseas in December, 1942, and was in the invasion of Africa, Italian campaign and is now with the 7th army in Germany.

Wayne Young Man Is in Hospital Unit

Pvt. Benjamin L. Davis is With Guard Serving in War Zone, Long.

Pvt. Benjamin L. Davis, son of Mrs. Anna L. Davis of Wayne, is now assigned to the 74th station hospital, which has been overseas two years. Pvt. Davis has been in the army 24 months and overseas 18 months. Before entering military service he was a mechanic employed by Farmers & Merchants' Oil company. He was graduated from Wayne high school in 1927.

In Italy alone, more than 104,000 patients were admitted to the hospital, a record surpassed by only a few large general hospitals. Personnel of the unit have been awarded their second bronze star for participation in the Italian campaign.

The hospital is one of the few permanent-type installations to have operated exclusively in tents, but through the ingenuity and drive of everyone from the commanding officer down to the last buck private, it has consistently succeeded in setting up an efficient, comfortable and complete hospital that continues to draw the highest praise from patients.

The 74th hospital is one of hundreds of units of all kinds in this vast base, the important service and supply organization for 5th army and the ground forces of the air corps and navy in the Mediterranean theatre of operations. Activated and trained at Fort Lee, Wash., in July, 1942, the unit was shipped overseas in May, 1943, and went into operation outside of Mateur, Tunisia. In November, 1943, it was ordered over to Italy.

Task Force Moves Forward in Hard Spots in Pacific

Moving forward on islands in the Pacific has proved plenty exciting, according to S. Sgt. Keith Marsh, brother of Wayne Marsh of Wayne, who writes May 5 from the Philippines. The soldier, who assists in supplying food and clothing, left the states in June, 1943, and spent six weeks in Hawaii. His group then went to Australia, docked at Gladstone and moved to Rookhampton to train on land and sea. After seven months in Australia the outfit went to Goodenough, a little island off lower New Guinea. After two months on that desolate island, the men set out for their first engagement. "On the way you could see men crying, praying, watching, sleeping all over the decks, playing cards. It was not a satisfying sight. Early that morning we rode toward the beach in Higgins boats. The beach was burning. Coconut trees and huts were nothing but a twisted pile of rubbish. Opposition was light and battle number one was in the bag. We rested up for a month and hit Biak. We fought there one month and then returned to Hollandia, New Guinea. On Biak we captured three air fields and all the ground we needed."

"After returning from Biak to New Guinea, we went into rest camp to re-equip and reorganize our regiment. We knew then they had something big slated for us because we were getting better equipment and more men. One day before we sailed we were told we were hitting the Philippines. We were also told about obstacles on the beach, tank traps, pillboxes, etc. While coming to the beach the Japs threw everything at us, and we in turn gave back 10 times as much. After we hit the beach on Leyte it took us two days before we could get off because of a concentration of Jap firing from high ground off the beach. With our outfit in the lead, we pushed through the island about 50 miles, meeting heavy opposition at Joro. We took us two days to get out of town.

"Anyway, we pushed on for 18 consecutive days. We earned the presidential citation. Then we re-formed, stayed 10 days, packed up and hit Luzon at San Antonio. We drove across Luzon for 40 miles without seeing much. At Alibonipoc, Luzon, we hit our first stiff opposition. We went through that city and were on our road to Manila when we came to Zig Zag pass. It is a place where a very winding road hits the top of Bataan. It is heavily timbered and has the jungles of New Guinea. There the Japs made a stand. They had pillboxes all over the place, caves, trenches, everything. It was a bad battle for two weeks but we finally pushed the Japs off. They then relieved our outfit. We got more equipment and men and sailed again. This time we hit the lower part of Bataan and spent the night. The next morning we sailed about 10 miles to Corregidor. The paratroopers came over in C-47's landing on top of the rock when we hit the shore -- a very well coordinated maneuver. I came in on the fourth wave, which was the hottest. The Nips had gained enough sense by that time to fight back. They had machine guns cross firing and raking the beach. They hit the boats plenty and bullets sounded like someone was throwing handfuls of rice at her sides. When the ramp of the ship hit the beach, I spotted a hole made by a land mine and believe you me I really made tracks for the thing. After battling 10 days, we were relieved and sent back to Luzon bay. There we picked up and moved to another island, which I can't name, for a rest.

"At present we are sitting back at the hotel living in tents and sleeping on cots. We ran into a Jap herd of cattle so every day the cow boys butcher five or six for the regiment. We are also eating fresh vegetables and fruits, pineapple, bananas, cabbage, radishes, potatoes, all left by the Japs."

Early Resident Of County Dies

Funeral for Olaf Swanson Is Conducted Saturday At Carroll Church.

Olaf Swanson, 80, resident of Wayne county 57 years, died at his home in Carroll Thursday morning, May 17, at 3:30. Mr. Swanson had been failing for a couple of years and he was bedfast about three weeks.

Funeral rites were conducted Saturday at 1:30 from the home and at 2 from Carroll Methodist church with Rev. C. G. Stevens of Sioux City, in charge. The ladies' quartet, consisting of Mrs. Nell George, Mrs. O. H. Vann, Miss Maxine Love and Miss Cecil Thomas, sang "Rock of Ages," "Ivory Palaces" and "Nearer My God to Thee." Interment, in charge of Gaebler & Neely, followed in Carroll cemetery. Pallbearers were E. C. Phillips, E. L. Pearson, John Getman, Harry Denesia, Claude Bailey and Perry Johnson.

Olaf Swanson was born in Sweden April 7, 1865. He was an only child and his parents died before he came to this country. He and his half brother, Nels Johnson, arrived here in October, 1888, and settled near Wayne where they were employed on farms.

Deceased married Miss Emma Swanson at Wayne March 13, 1893. The couple lived near Wayne for a number of years and then came to a farm near Carroll. In 1937 they moved into Carroll, their home since.

Mr. Swanson was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith and remained faithful to the church throughout his life.

Surviving Mr. Swanson are his wife of Carroll, three sons, William and Edgar of Carroll, and Oscar of Winside, and two daughters, Doris, now Mrs. Ollie Smith of Winside, and Ethel, now Mrs. Frank Sturm of Lincoln. All were here for the rites. There are 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild. Mr. Swanson leaves his half-brother, Nels Johnson of Norfolk.

Among those here from a distance for the funeral were Mrs. Frank Sturm of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Johnson and Robert of Norfolk, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnson and Marlene of Madison, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Curtright of Neligh.

Merchant Marine Is Pleased with Tour of London

Many spots of historic interest were visited by Ensign Lewis Morgan Hiller, son of the D. L. Hillers, recently when he toured London. The young merchant marine tells that he first went to Piccadilly circus, the Times Square of London. This is the center of all shows and hotels. A short walk takes one to see Big Ben and the house of commons and house of lords. A statue of Abraham Lincoln there gives one a touch of the United States. Westminster Abbey with its remembrances of centuries is close by.

Bird Cage walk leads to St. James park, one of the most beautiful scenes in London. Buckingham palace, statue of Queen Victoria and historic museums are there. A bit behind the palace is Hyde park and then one is back at Piccadilly square.

The Carroll youth then went to the Tower of London. The tower really looks like a medieval castle with several towers. There also is tower bridge crossing the Thames. Other monuments are nearby.

Trying to find some place to eat, one always can depend on the Red Cross. There is the Rainbow club for officers and Rainbow club for enlisted men. But civilians had better not try to find accommodations in London.

London is a huge city with lots to see. The Carroll youth says that one would never be able to see all. Ensign Hiller sent a cable last week to his parents here.

Gardening Boosted By Mistake in Gas

Clothing Drive Brings Out Confession on Failure To Mail Letters.

At Granite Falls, Minn., victory gardening had a brief boom when a Granite Falls paper printed a notice saying that gardeners whose plots were some distance from their homes could obtain up to 300 gallons of gasoline. The rush for gardens in locations to qualify for the added gas eased, however, when the Tribune explained the gallons was a typographical error. The gardeners' reward would be gas for 300 miles.

Fred Stratton of Milwaukee, Wis., waited until he was on his way out of the house to catch his morning bus to work when he told his wife he couldn't hold out any longer. He related that he had found several letters in some of his old clothes, which he had gathered for the clothing drive. Then, on the run, he hurriedly added that the letters were some Mrs. Stratton had given him to mail—several days ago.

Navy Lt. C. A. Frank, jr., of Dallas lost $362 in cash in Willows, Cal., last week. While visiting his wife's parents at Los Angeles, he received a letter from Paul Stormer, Willows, enclosing a cashier's check for $362. Stormer had found the money. But Frank wasn't surprised.

Patrolman Henry L. Goode of Denver, launched into a lecture on the harmlessness of bees when summoned by his wife to repel a swarm which had gained a beachhead on the front porch. Just to show her how harmless they were he picked up one. The lecture ended abruptly when the bee jabbed its stinger into his thumb.

A large and belligerent dog apparently regarded a fire hydrant his personal property and almost delayed Denver firemen fighting a residential blaze. Fire fighters had to use an emergency tank on a truck until Fireman Charles Robinson could shove away the snarling dog with a wrench.

The 64 pounds of butter which fell off a passing truck in front of Mrs. Mary Lawriuk's dry goods store at Chicago disappeared like magic! Women carted the butter into the store and about 50 women followed to see what was going to happen. Someone produced a knife and started dividing the high-point product among the housewives. After they had dwindled to about 10 pounds, the knife wielder said, "The rest belongs to me," wrapped it up and went home.

Maxine and Eilseen Palmer, 20-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Palmer, Tiffin, O., have had the same taste in clothes, schools, entertainment and other interests all their lives. Monday Maxine underwent an emergency appendectomy. She had hardly returned from the operating room when Eilseen was stricken with the same ailment. She also required surgical treatment.

Crisis hit a Louisville, Ky., cafe when two waiters attempting to serve 150 diners suddenly walked out. Two regular patrons donned aprons and finished the job with the remark "We all gotta eat." They received 65c in tips.

At Minneapolis, Minn., Mrs. Jean Hickman noticed the covers of her son's crib stir. Since Tommy was absent, she investigated. Underneath was a cat belonging to a neighbor, Mrs. John Johnson. With it were two newly born kittens.

At Kane, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lindquist became the parents of twins—their third set in 12 years.

Kansas is having bounty trouble again. State Auditor George Robb reports at Topeka that coyote catchers are supposed to be given $1 a head. But there already are 25,210 claims on file and only $15,000 bounty booty—with 20 counties to be heard from.

Postmaster I. A. Smooth of Salt Lake City, was stumped when he received a letter from a sailor, stationed at Hawthorne, Nev., asking that a message be forwarded to a friend "who was stationed at Fort Douglas. He has been transferred to Texas and I do not know his new address. Will you please send it to me?" Mr. Smooth returned the letter to the sailor and suggested that if he would supply the name of the friend it might help.

Air corps officers found a military order in Fort Riley files dated October 25, 1942, which read: "1. The troop officer having the best trained mount for this year will be awarded one barrel of rye whisky. 3. Student officers will discontinue the practice of roping and riding buffaloes."

Jane Connors, who asked for Chicago police aid in solving the theft of her $1,000 diamond ring, came back two days later telling the officers they wouldn't have to bother. Her boy friend, she said, had it all the time. He'd taken it from her in a taxi and kept it for a day just to "teach her to be more careful with her jewelry."

"Wish my Daddy was home to wear it!"

THAT'S a wish your mother shares with you, little lady. She knows, however, your Daddy still has to finish the job that took him so far away from you.

But you may be sure he is counting on you and mother to keep things at home just as he left them—his civilian clothes brushed and fresh—the pup healthy and frisky—a smile on your lips and a song in your hearts.

And remember, there's one thing the Daddy you're lonesome for would especially like to have someone tell him soon in a letter. What is it? Just that everyone in your neighborhood really did something handsome in buying 7th War Loan Bonds.
