Health Work Shop Is School Feature

Public and Civic Leaders Are Invited to Attend Special Clinic.

The fourth annual health education work shop, one of five special units planned at the college this summer, will be in progress July 9 to 13 with Miss Nina Lamkin of the state health department in charge.

After Lt. Canning had been over his target, trouble developed. Fire broke out in the engine and the flames and smoke scorched his eyes until he could see scarcely anything. The canopy was jammed and he had difficulty in getting out. At an altitude of about 1,500 feet, he bailed out. The chute cord was twisted half way around his body. Finally he was able to release the cord and open the chute to break the fall just a short distance above the ground.

Discussion of health problems, demonstrations, individual and group conferences, recreation clinics, speeches and films will be included in the work shop. In addition to the general instruction, each student attending the work shop will conduct a special study of some health unit.

Civic leaders and the public generally are invited to the work shop.

In Solitary Confinement. One of the hardest experiences for Lt. Canning was a 10-day solitary confinement at Barth when he refused to give information.

While in confinement Lt. Canning slept as much as possible. He tried gymnastics to make himself tired. He counted all the nails and boards in the cell, and his diet was bread and watery soup.

Finally storm troopers were sent to destroy the air camp, which grew from 2,000 to 9,000, and also a mile-distant concentration camp in which were thousands who had failed to obey Hitler's orders.

Red Cross Saves Lives. Lt. Canning credits Red Cross packages with life itself to thousands. The two thin slices of bread and weak vegetable soup, furnished by Nazi daily, were not enough to keep the men well.

When Red Cross packages began coming again this spring, food made many of the men ill. One can't tell a starving man to leave food alone, and when he does eat his system cannot handle much food at first.

After his liberation, Lt. Canning went by train to LeHavre, France, and boarded a ship for the states.

Brighter RECENT granting of fair freight rates to the middle west by the inter-state commerce commission is regarded as ground for additional hope in comparatively isolated states like Nebraska. This area has been unable to compete with more favored spots on account of the costly burden of transportation, and the eastern and western coasts have been especially benefited. Better shipping advantages will help develop this state's resources.

Recounting struggles in the plains states, made harder by discriminatory freight rates, J. E. Lawrence, noting reversal of the order, offers these concluding observations in Sunday's Lincoln Journal:

"That should reverse the trends of nearly half a century. It is, in reality, the most important economic development of the last hundred years. Its immediate results will not be perceptible; they will be slow and gradual. But in time they will make themselves felt, especially with other factors contributing greatly to the ultimate economic revival of the region.

"In the beginning the land was here for virtually the asking in all the glory of virgin soil. It was fertile, productive, cheap in price, and waited only the settler's hands. Year after year it yielded good crops and settlement itself added to its value. Then it began to reveal the toll of erosion and of constant cropping. Farming practice has moved ahead with amazing rapidity. Soil-restoring crops have been put in. Prevention of soil erosion practices have been adopted generally. Farming methods have become more efficient. No generation of farmers have done a better job of it than the men and women now occupying the soil.

"The water resources of the plains are being restored. Thousands of little ponds that were drained in the mad rush for more land have reappeared. But even more, the waste and flood waters of streams are being stored in reservoirs to expand irrigation in a semi-arid region. There is a certainty to irrigation that gives farmers a stability that cannot be gained without protection from the whims of climate. Lower transportation costs, combined with improved methods of agriculture, may not check the decrease in the number of farms but it will stem the drift of people from this region. And irrigation itself is most successful when the operations are confined to smaller farms. The years ahead offer a much brighter prospect than the first half of the present century. Under cheaper transportation rates, there is a reasonable expectation for growing industry. The proper balance between agriculture and industry is the ultimate goal of the plains states."

Attempts to spend a nation into prosperity with subsidies and make-believe projects have always failed. Costly experience in pre-war years under the new deal may be offered as clinching proof. Such waste in government is recognized by Louis Bromfield, columnist, in these words: "Nearly all the thinking of the new deal was in terms of subsidy and money, neither of which in terms of relief ever solved anything. There was and still is among new dealers a worship of the 'short cut' to be achieved by the expenditure of vast sums of money. Never in the history of any nation has the institution of statistics, been so worshiped and so perverted, sometimes in two or three contradictory directions at once."

Peace-time military training is still an unsettled question. Army heads are eager for it. Most religious bodies are against it. Many take a middle course, and would have sufficient training in schools and colleges as a basis for possible need, thus avoiding the dangerous lengths to which nations like Germany, Italy and Japan had gone. Many stoutly cling to this country's long-time practices. They would build adequately for defense, but without brandishing a huge military machine. This vital subject will be discussed pro and con by Town Meeting of the Air this Thursday evening at 7:30, and people may learn arguments on both sides by listening.

President Truman is stepping along with cabinet changes, and is gradually dissociating the Washington administration from new deal fingers. For secretary of state he has named James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, who figured as a vice presidential possibility in the late democratic national convention until his voluntary withdrawal. President Truman worked for him up to that time. Byrnes has served in the senate, as a member of the supreme court and as director of war mobilization. The president is changing the official atmosphere, and it is hoped for the better.

The World-Herald reports that three Omaha policemen, accused of beating a man who was sick and not drunk as they had stupidly supposed, were summarily fired from the force on order of the city council. The latter proposes an investigation. Due prosecutions would tend to make Omaha policemen think as they serve. Otherwise, people contemplating visits to the metropolis may feel the need of certificates of health before venturing in.

Small grain looks wonderfully well and promises a bountiful harvest. Pastures and hay crops were never better. Corn fields are lagging, due to late planting and occasional floods, but some were knee high the Fourth. Some others are trailing too far behind at this juncture to encourage high hopes. At least immature corn will fill silos and furnish feed for livestock.

As we learn, the Japs are kept in utter ignorance of where they are fighting. Some on Luzon have thought they were in the United States. All they know is that they are sent somewhere to kill for their ruling deity, and they believe they will go to supernal glory if killed. Such fanaticism prolongs the war.

The report that oil from recaptured wells in Borneo is already being used by the American forces is encouraging. Also rubber plantations are said lately to have fallen undamaged into allied hands. Such restored sources of supply should ere long help materially in a field of unsatisfied demand.

American confidence in Russia would be increased if that country would come half way in liberty to news sources, permitting correspondents to reveal the truth to which the public is entitled.

We have no recollection of the equal of this year's cool introduction of July in Nebraska. It is time to hear from old-timers who have parallels to offer.

Walter Winchell does not coyly admit he is the most popular news commentator in the world. He boldly says so.

REHABILITATION. The Saturday Evening Post emphasizes a point that has doubtless occupied many minds for a long time. It refers to need of rehabilitating home-front 10-year-olds as well as restoring to normal, armies of returned soldiers. Children have been busy lately fighting the Japs. They have had war impressions in different ways, and toy war implements and post-time games have been featured in their daily lives. Toys offered over store counters during the pre-Christmas season to observe the nativity of the Prince of Peace reflect the war spirit. Children have been deeply imbued with ideas of destruction, and they will need to be changed into thinking more along lines of peace and conservation. Children are easily influenced, and what they learn they do not readily dismiss. The Post concludes: "In any event, something must be done to get the kiddies out of the foxholes and back of the counter, or behind the desk, or into the engine cab. Otherwise peace will be complicated by the operations of millions of pre-adolescent commandos in search of war."

BACK TO ECONOMY. Defeating the Japs regardless of cost is uppermost in everybody's mind, but after that has been done, people will demand, as mentioned by the Omaha Journal-Stockman, a reversal of policy in regard to government spending and individual restraints. That newspaper quotes with approval these suggestions by Harley L. Lutz of Princeton university: "1. A moderate budget, financed on a cash basis. This would stop credit inflation at its source. 2. Taxation at a level sufficient to cover the budget and provide for some debt retirement. 3. Repeal of all legislation which there can be any tinkering with the currency, such as further devaluation of the dollar, the issue of greenbacks, the dilution of bank reserves, and other inflationary devices. 4. A green light to private enterprise to proceed with civilian production as promptly after the termination of war contracts as reconversion will permit. The early prospect of a reasonably adequate supply of goods will go far to prevent crowding and jostling to get them."

Has Long Record On Wayne Route

Next December it will be 20 years since R. H. (Dick) Banister started carrying mail in Wayne. The last few years have been especially important, for many home-keepers along Mr. Banister's route depend on him to watch for the very important letters coming from husbands and sons in service. And if Mr. Banister sees a long-winded letter at the post office after his deliveries are finished, he makes a special trip to bring pleasure to the recipient. The route takes Mr. Banister about 15 miles a day. Figured at 25 days a month, he travels about 4,500 miles a year, and 20 years would mean about 90,000 miles. Mr. Banister is on a 15-day vacation now and returns to his route next Tuesday.

Prospects Point To Bumper Crop

Dormitory Corporation Is Organized to Finance Neihardt Wing.

Early Days from the Wayne Herald for July 4, 1929. June's rains which amounted to 6.28 inches have brought the 1929 total well above the 2.38 inches for the same period in 1928. It is too early to spend the proceeds of a bumper crop but conditions point with much favor to such a prospect.

Wayne Dormitory Building corporation has organized to finance the west wing of Neihardt hall which will cost about $50,000. Prof. I. H. Brittel, G. W. Holmes, Mrs. Elva Brockway and R. W. Ley are officers.

Mrs. Wm. Damme died June 30, 1929, aged 67 years. Wayne board of education estimated for the coming year at $34,000.

Library News

Don't forget that during the months of July and August the library will close at 8 o'clock in the evening instead of 9.

Readers who have seen the book called Prose and Poetry of Today, by Elizabeth Frances Ansoorge and Harriet Lucas, will be glad to know that we have another collection by the same editors. This one is Prose and Poetry of England. This brings our English poetry up to the year 1943.

Another book recently purchased is The Last Frontier, by Howard Fast. This book was written in 1941 but we had never had it in our library. This author's last two books, Citizen Tom Paine and Freedom Road, have been very popular and we hope this one will be also. The Last Frontier is a rousing and inspiring story of American history, a story of the old west that is not a western, a story of flight and pursuit, battle on the great plains, and the triumph of an ideal. The plains country included the Dakota territory, Nebraska and Kansas.

For those who like to read about the war, we have a new book called Ex-U.S. War Correspondents in Action, by John McNamara. This is a book about the war not respondents of World War II and also those who served their readers in our country's past wars. For there were correspondents at the front as far back as the war between the states.

My Room Is My Hobby, by Marian Downer, is a book that will have appeal for young girls and also their mothers who have that urge to do something to that drab bedroom. The wide scope of this book is unusual and any girl who turns the pages will find her fingers tingling to start making the things suggested.

Fire Chief Would Practice What He Preaches But He Shipped Once.

At Nampa, Idaho, a furniture dealer offered a war bond to the Canyon county couple with the most relatives in the armed forces. Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Hunter won with 207, none further removed than nephews or first cousins.

At Decatur, Ill., Fire Chief Sam Crow for years has campaigned against smoking in bed. He confessed to friends, though, that he smoked in bed during his recent hospitalization. And, he said, his pajamas caught fire and he was slightly burned.

Postmaster Wayne A. Mitchell of Kinston, N. C., said there is "no fountain of youth" at his post-office. He said an elderly woman came to his office in quest of what she called "old age resistance." The postmaster directed her to the old age assistance authorities.

Orville L. Steen of Miles City, Mont., doesn't know whether he should cash or "frame" his 1944 income tax refund check. The check was written in the amount of "0 dollars 0.01."

Joseph Le Joy of Chicago, 7 years old, clad in pajamas and shoes, boarded a streetcar late Wednesday and told Conductor

Chester Lenz, "I've just left the hospital and I'm going home." Mr. Lenz called police and they turned him over to his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Graham. She explained Joseph's reason for leaving the hospital. He climbed down the outer walls from a second floor ward. He didn't want to undergo a tonsillectomy scheduled for the following day. Mrs. Graham said the operation would be postponed.

At Lyons Falls, N. Y., Henry Bartlett caught a jewel of a bull-head. Inside the fish was a white sapphire later valued at $75.

At Biggs Field, El Paso, Tex., Squadron G boys are looking for some brisk war bond buying. Lt. Richard R. Whipple, squadron commander, announced he would serve breakfast in bed for one day to the enlisted man in his outfit purchasing the most bonds in June. Not to be outdone, S. Sgt. James Finley said he would make the bed and police the area of the GI ranking second.

Officer Fred Peres of Great Falls, Mont., gets his man one way or another. During night patrol he espied a prowler and called to him to halt. The prowler disappeared around a corner. Officer Peres leaped a fence, roared around the opposite corner at full tilt, right into the prowler. A simultaneous "whoop" escaped both men, but

Mr. Peres recovered first, lifted his man from a mud puddle and carted him to jail.

A Kansas City, Mo., man was knocked unconscious while rolling up a motor car window when lightning struck near his home recently. A house guest gave him artificial respiration as an ambulance was summoned. When the ambulance arrived they found the unconscious man recovered and 30 cents ahead in a card game.

It was a costly hug for an attractive blonde young woman at Tacoma, Wash. She told Police Court Judge W. A. Richmond at Tacoma, "I mistook him for another man," when asked why she had lunged her arms around a blushing policeman on a street corner. Patrick O'Malley, one of Tacoma's newest and youngest policemen, told about the hugging. It cost the young woman $15 and costs on charges of disorderly conduct.

It wasn't the $1 three men look from Morris T. Bradford that hurt, he insisted to Portland, Ore., police. What made it bad was that one man borrowed Mr. Bradford's knife on the pretext of fixing a shoe lace, then jabbed the blade against Mr. Bradford's stomach. "And I even was so polite I opened the blade for him," moaned Mr. Bradford.

Mrs. Patricia Reed, Indianapolis, digging in her flower garden, found a gold wedding ring with "Pud" engraved inside. By tracing previous occupants of the residence, she learned that Mrs. Henry Bruner was known as "Pud" and had lost her wedding ring 45 years ago while visiting a relative. The gold band was returned to Mrs. Bruner four months before the Bruners will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Commodore Frank J. Kelley, Farragut, Idaho, naval training center commander, and Lt. Comdr. Thomas J. King, his aide, used a lasso to win a naval engagement with a badger, but they couldn't compete with his foxhole artistry once he reached shore. When they saw the badger swimming in a lake while they were fishing, they maneuvered a rowboat into position and lassoed him. The next day there was a tunnel leading from his cage, but no badger.

Caution: If neglected, rupture may cause weakness, backache, nervousness, stomach and gas pains. People having large ruptures, which have returned after surgical operations or injection treatments, are especially invited. "If you want it done right, don't experiment. See Hoffmann." ## Night Shift ON THE FOOD FRONT

THEY DID IT BEFORE— THEY CAN DO IT AGAIN With Farmall Tractor Power

Throughout the Spring, from the Rockies to the Atlantic seaboard, worried farmers searched the skies for signs of clear weather, but the cold rains fell relentlessly.

For more than a month the seed should have been germinating in the warm soil. Millions of acres lay unplanted because the ground was too wet for preparation of the seed bed and too cold for germination of the seed.

Only a generation ago there could have been but one outcome—crop shortage and food scarcity. Nature allows scant time for planting when the warm sun waits till late May or June before drying the soggy soil. Horses are too slow and tire too quickly to get the job done then.

But the farmers remember May of 1943—only two years ago—when their fast, untiring tractors averted crop failure. Then, too, rains flooded the fields and the month was all but spent before they could go in on the land and plant.

In 1943, most farmers drove their tractors from dark to dark, and longer. Many planted around the clock, working in two or three shifts. They made one of the greatest crops in history.

In today's war-torn world—with hunger and disease already stalking many peoples—even one major crop failure could bring famine. This is why the sound of tractors and planting machinery was heard, day and night, from the Plains states to the Eastern seaboard—why headlights stabbed the darkness over the fields.

America's farmers are doing it again, in spite of an unprecedented combination of adverse circumstances—bad weather, shortages of machines and shortages of manpower. For the second time in three years, they are relying upon their tractor-powered machines to help rescue large areas of the world from catastrophe. More of these tractors are products of International Harvester than of any other company.
