quitos, flies and other insects. It paralyzes and kills such pests. Changes come rapidly and with changes is always a danger of inflation. Mr. Gramlich warned. The speaker quoted figures to show that farmers fared well financially during the war just concluded. The products they sold were at 200 per cent of the 1909-14 level whereas those they bought were 180 per cent of the same level. Thus, farmers gained with the former increase in the price of what they sold over the price of what they bought.

It is not too late for dangerous inflation to take hold, the speaker stated. Inflation came after World War One when too much credit was extended. Mr. Gramlich mentioned that a farm which was bought then for $175,000 recently sold for $35,000. To date in this war real estate buying and selling have been on a rather sound basis, he noted, and the speaker urged that it is very essential that this balance be maintained to avoid financial ruin.

Rev. O. B. Proett presented C. A. Hagberg of Sioux City, travel agent for the railroad, who introduced the speaker. C. C. Spirtz was introduced as a new member Monday. With F. L. Blair leader and Prof. Russell Anderson, accompanist, the group sang "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "The Song of Kiwanis". Besides 37 members, guests were H. J. Gramlich of Chicago, C. A. Hagberg of Sioux City, Mel Schradoff of Norfolk, Her Hansen and Herman Freese of Winslow, Edw. Seymour, W. E. VonSeggern, W. R. Harder, Dean C. H. Lindahl, Prof. Paul M. Hewitt. The club will be represented at the district convention in Beatrice October 4 and 5.

To Support Price By Buying Eggs

The government is preparing an egg-buying program to support the recently weakened egg market, according to word coming to AAA. The department of agriculture will carry out the government commitment to support the price of producers' eggs, it is announced. The egg market has been running weak and unsteady particularly on undergrade and current receipt eggs. This is probably due to sharp decline in military buying of frozen eggs. Army cancellations of dried egg contracts will not mean a wholesale dumping of frozen eggs on the market, the department states. The armed forces are still buying shell eggs to feed U. S. troops in this country and abroad. Plans are being worked out to supply demands abroad. If these plans are completed satisfactorily, the export market can be expected to take care of the temporary surplus after demands here are met, according to AAA. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Huelle of Pierce, observed their golden wedding September 16.

Through four centuries of exploration vast natural resources were discovered but this leaves some parts still unexplored. Along the three-fourths of the Amazon that has been made navigable many modern cities have been developed. Next week during the convocation hour, adviser-advised meetings will be held.

Library News

We heard about a lady who used to carry one of the popular best sellers wherever she went. Never read it, you understand; just carried it. She figured it made her look intelligent and well-informed and sensitive and interesting to the better class of people.

One day this lady found herself at the end of a line of people buying meat and of course she had the inevitable best seller under her arm. And somehow or other she actually got to reading it. Cover to cover. And by the time she reached the front of the line she was so interested that she forgot to be annoyed because all that was left was tongue and hamburger. She went home and finished her book but by the time she had finished it she didn't know whether to blush because she had been carrying that particular book for so long and that so many people had seen her with it, or to substitute another title, or to give up the idea of trying to impress people by making them think she read all the best sellers! She did read more books however and finally she decided that one doesn't have to carry the books around to look well informed and intelligent. If one has read them he is better informed.

Once you start reading you learn to discriminate between good and bad literature. You can take all of it in your stride and extract from it the good which you can always find and discard the bad which unfortunately is so often there.

Among the new books this week you will like 'The World, The Flesh and Father Smith' by Bruce Marshall. No matter what one's faith (or lack of it), there is music, wisdom, comfort, laughter in Father Smith's affectionate sojourn in this world of the flesh.

Fire threatened the coal chute at Emerson Monday afternoon last week. When smokers discovered, firemen and railroad employees immediately began emptying the coal from the bin so that if the fire did break out, the coal would not be destroyed. No damage was done to the coal chute.

MacArthur GENERAL Douglas MacArthur's prediction that only 200,000 men would be needed to occupy and control Japan and Korea aroused some critical observations in Washington's high official circles. Acting Secretary Dean Acheson doubtless broke buttons off his vest as he declared that policies in handling Japan were made in Washington. President Truman commented that no one could accurately forecast what forces would be required. But it is reasonable to conclude that MacArthur who is in close touch with the Pacific's problems, would come nearer knowing than officials in the nation's capital.

Having won the war, many boys in the armed service are anxious to return home, and this feeling is shared by family connections. To home folks the war will not be over until their boys are released. Many others with no plans, would prefer the army or navy to uncertain prospects of civilian life. So, the MacArthur forecast as to coming man-power requirements, brought a wave of happy reassurance to the home front. Bellicose Acheson's resentful reaction may be an unintentional boost for MacArthur for president in 1948.

Plenty of MOST people will agree with Louis Bromfield, columnist, that common sense is essential in the reconversion period. He points out that scarcity of jobs exists only in large centers where war production has stopped. Small cities and agricultural areas need more help, and those looking for work at reasonable wages, not snaps at high pay, can find it. As to the attitude of congress, he says: "It must not allow itself to be stampeded by a carefully and selfishly planned campaign of threats and horror. "It must know that the common man is all of us and that there is nothing sanctified about him which entitles him to special privilege. A little hard common sense and a little philosophic understanding of the human race, with all its greatness and all its weaknesses, are necessary."

Changeable ROBT. E. HANNEGAN, postmaster general and chairman of the democratic national committee, proved himself sadly lacking in the judgment expected from a high official when he blew rings of wrath around republicans in a partisan speech at Springfield, Mo., last week. Best proof of raw indiscretion was found in the fact that a few days later, following a conference with President Truman, he made at St. Louis a contradictory talk in which he stressed unity and brotherly love. It is reasonably suspected that the president bore down on the official and prompted his second speech.

The Springfield outburst indicated that Hannegan desired to open next year's congressional campaigns, declaring war on the opposing party and branding its leaders as ornery obstructionists. Change from ill to sweet temper almost overnight leads one to wonder when he meant what he said. He betrayed injustice that should keep him under suspicion. His future oratory should have no more effect on listeners than pouring water on a duck's back has on the duck.

The CIO which has become a powerful labor organization, is so charged with communism that one is led to suspect motives behind its activities. As we understand, communism proposes to convert what one has to the possession of the state to be used without consulting the rightful owner. It is doubtful if many CIO followers realize what could happen to their earnings in the possible event of this alienism's absolute control. It is the spirit of America to feel pride in ownership in the hope of increase for support in declining years. No matter how little one may possess he guards it jealously and wants to handle it to suit his own judgment. In triumph, communism not only interferes. It boldly walks in, kicks the owner aside and takes possession. How anyone in favored America could want communist rule is not easily understood.

The president has a tough time trying to be agreeable without contradicting himself. He appeared to accept Gen. MacArthur's estimate of future manpower needs in Japan, and later is reported to have agreed with Acting Secretary Dean Acheson who balked and kicked. And that reminds us that the president should by constitutional change be restricted to one six-year term. Then he could forget politics and fix his mind exclusively on his executive duties. Everybody favors the idea, but so far nothing has been done aside from the introduction of bills which have invariably fallen by the wayside.

In his explosion of nerves over Gen. MacArthur's suggestion of how many Americans would be required to keep Japan in leash, Acting Secretary Acheson expressed the needless fear that our allies would suspect an intention to abandon responsibilities in the south Pacific. No one could reasonably draw such a conclusion, but if our allies do, they will just have to grow out of it. What they think will do no harm, nor relax in the least the American hold on the treacherous orientals.

The date for changing time back one hour has been set for Sunday, September 30. And the middle west is especially thankful. Time was advanced at the beginning of the war to satisfy a doubtful opinion, and so far as can be learned, it accomplished nothing but inconvenience.

Laws and courts are particularly desirable to protect the weak. It is when unfortunates are threatened with injustice that the legal arm should be extended to give assistance. The strong can usually take care of themselves.

As Seen by EARL STEFAN

Washington, D. C. September 20, 1945

Alvin Johnson and Roy Welch of Omaha have been in Washington in the interests of the Omaha alcohol plant. Indications are that the government may not buy alcohol after October 1. The Omaha plant management wants to continue the production of alcohol from farm crops. Surplus potatoes, price supported by the government, will not all be lost through spoilage. The Nebraska delegation has been told by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson that he is sending many carloads of potatoes to Omaha to be made into alcohol. The Schenley distillers have not bought the plant, although the sale was once reported. The original owners are still in charge. Nebraska members are worried about the future of government-owned alcohol plants. Cuban sugar interests and other foreign sugar and rubber monopolies are also interested.

L. G. B. Berge, formerly of Knox county, Nebraska, after 39 missions, is back from the European and Mediterranean theatres of war. He has many medals for heroism. As an army pilot based on Corsica, he bombed targets in Italy and France. He flew his combat ship back to the United States. He is now being inactivated at Camp Meade and soon will return to Nebraska and go into the insurance business at Grand Island. He is a member of the Fishel family of Verdigris.

Filipino government officials are worried because they fear that after they get their full independence, July 1, 1946, Uncle Sam may not give them free trade. They say legislation now introduced may kill their sugar industry. Some of them claim Wall Street and the Cuban sugar interests are fighting Filipino sugar.

according to returning Filipinos and Americans who have been Japanese prisoners in the islands. They say a small dish of ice cream costs one American dollar.

Fresh eggs in Washington stores cost 65 cents and 69 cents a dozen, according to size.

Pat Salmon, formerly conductor on the M. & O. between Norfolk and Sioux City, is in town visiting his son. During the past three years he has been with government transportation in Seattle. He describes the west coast as a "mad house."

The Nebraska delegation is again holding weekly meetings. The entire delegation is backing a resolution to terminate the service of war so that return of servicemen to their homes may be speeded up. Bills and resolutions introduced by Miller of the Fourth district are among the most popular among scores of bills introduced to rush demobilization.

The army-navy football game, December 1, will be a sell-out. All members of congress are besieged for tickets.

Republican members of the Pearl Harbor investigation committee say the investigation will not be a whitewash. They plan to submit a minority report if there is danger of whitewashing. Frank Keefe of Wisconsin, one of the republicans named by the speaker to serve on the special committee, is by reputation a good lawyer, an energetic prosecutor and is recognized in the house as a fearless debater.

There are more foreign government officials in Washington than ever before. Many of them are calling on members of the house and the senate asking about lend-lease and loans and grants. Great Britain has an expert commission on finance here. She wants a large loan in order to rehabilitate Great Britain. It is claimed Britain is not as much interested in a commercial loan as she is in an outright grant.

attention to serious conditions in Austria where he claims the communists are not following democratic processes. His brother, Otto, is in Paris working on Austrian problems. These Hapsburg brothers have many friends in Washington circles. They claim their objective is not so much to regain the Austrian throne as to get some semblance of a democratic form of government back for their people.

Foreign diplomats in Washington who discuss Hitler, say, there is a 95 per cent probability that Hitler is dead and a 5 per cent chance that he is alive. Some say that he may be held secretly in Russia.

The capacity of the Pentagon building in Washington is around 32,000. In spite of demobilization plans there are 31,789 persons in the building as of this date.

Members of the house naval affairs committee tell their colleagues that the navy expects to be on an entirely volunteer basis in 1946.

Pete Bauer and Pete Lakers of Columbus have been in town several days conferring with veterans administration officials about future veterans' facilities.

To the inquiry if the army and the navy are trying to re-enlist servicemen, the answer is, "yes." The armed forces are anxious to procure re-enlistments, and men in service have been advised of that fact.

Joe Mack, head of department of commerce field offices, has asked for the expansion of these offices in order to give business more aid in the post-war period. If the bureau of the budget approves this recommendation, a field office will be established in Nebraska.

In reply to inquiries about British debts, unofficially, Britain owes us about $6,263,000,000 from the first world war and about $20,000,000,000 from the second world war.

WANTS MORE. Great Britain which has gone socialist, not only asks this capitalist country to cancel its 29 billion-dollar lend-lease obligation, but wants more money from this source, either as a loan or gift, likewise the latter. If the ruling government in England wants to own and run its industries, why not share its own people—its own colonies—and plow its own row independent of a country whose policies are so much at variance? Left-wingers abroad evidently do not believe in the free enterprise system which has built a stalwart nation here, but they want to cast its fruits to finance a government system which is in utter conflict. England's eagerness for more cash support to bolster doubtful experiments is baldly unreasonable.

committee on appropriations during the next few months. These bills will cancel billions once appropriated for war purposes and which will not now be needed. The committee is now holding hearings on these items. The army may turn back 17 billions and the navy about the same amount.

The next four months will be hectic ones on capital hill, filled with serious problems. The following important controversial issues must be dealt with: Demobilization, universal peacetime military training, the full employment program, extension of social security, increased unemployment payments, disposal of surplus war property, revision of war taxes, removal of war restrictions.

The house, without a dissenting vote, passed a bill to abolish war time and to reestablish standard time, effective September 30, 1945. Completion of legislative action on this measure will end one of the wartime changes that hampered many citizens, farmers in particular. The war time law was enacted in January, 1942, upon the representation that it would increase industrial production and effect a saving in coal and electricity. The arrangement was popular in cities and industrial areas but likely the benefits were more than offset by the many hardships imposed elsewhere. It was an additional burden upon the activities of farmers at a time when their problems were complicated by help shortage. Soon it will be a thing of the past.

The boiling issue before congress and the country is the demobilization of millions of servicemen. It has been gathering strength and momentum steadily since the collapse of Japan. It grows stronger daily. Senators' and representatives' mail on the subject is tremendous. One member is said to have received more than 500 letters in one day. Not many of the letters come from servicemen. Most are from the families and friends of servicemen. The house and senate committees on military affairs are constantly grilling responsible army officers on the point system which, although much modified since its original announcement, is still unsatisfactory. The physical task of transporting millions of men back to the mainland of the United States is a very great one. Separation centers in the United States must be increased in number and the processing of men for discharge must be accelerated. The army and the navy must not retain men in unnecessary numbers. The navy will try to wind up the naval reserve with less than a year and operate altogether as a regular navy. The army hopes to complete the discharge of nearly seven million men by July, 1946, and is trying to assemble a large pool of replacements through recruitment. The house has already passed a bill to stimulate recruitment through en-

STRIKES. The most nearly perfect self-governing country in the world is assaulted and obstructed in its postwar recovery by numerous strikes with usually unreasonable demands. Important automobile production is bogged down. Henry Ford, jr., recently said the Ford plant could have built more cars in three hours under strike-free conditions than were produced in two and one-half months in the presence of labor handicaps. To an outsider it looks like an attempt to strangle free enterprise and make it impossible to function in behalf of popular requirements. It looks like an attempt to force industrialists out and government heads in. Unjoiners do not appear able or willing to reason logically from cause to effect. They want few hours, more pay, less production, and no responsibility, and if industry lands in the red, it is industry's headache—not organized labor's. Workers seem to move en masse to make the going as hard as possible for producing institutions and indirectly for the using and consuming public. If the purpose is not to sovietize the government and nationalize industry, why make inordinate demands and block progress at a time when the country is in urgent need of restoratives and of a chance to regain essential footholds? If industrial and business heads did not possess phenomenal stamina they would go crazy. Congress needs to exercise utmost wisdom and courage in the labor crisis. The administration, ditto.

ment incentives. The objective of recruitment is to hasten demobilization of the men that were called into service during the emergency and to make termination of the draft an early possibility. In the meantime, the discharge of high score men is attaining progressively higher levels. The army and the navy are on notice that congress will not tolerate anything but the utmost possible speed in the return of servicemen to civilian life.

Lands in Japan.

Writing from Japan September 9, Wendell Ballinger, who was employed at Hubert Auker's a few years ago, says the V-J day sight was most impressive with the skies filled with planes and the harbor crowded with ships, mostly American. He says there is much cleaning up to be done in Japan. The soldier mentions that he had been in Australia, New Guinea, New Britain, Dutch East Indies and the Philippines before going to Japan, which was the final goal of all service men. Wendell does not expect to stay in Japan long and he says he can be ready in a minute when he gets notice that he is going home.

The amphibious forces, with which the soldier serves, have played a large part in Pacific operations. They have landed many troops and unloaded many ships of supplies. They have also moved large numbers of Jap prisoners, Australian troops and many New Guinea natives worked with them. For the trip to Japan the 30-ton boats were loaded at Manila. The soldier says that he has had some very narrow escapes but has always come out on top and laughed about the experiences afterward.

"Looking to the Future" is one of the articles in this issue, written by the Wayne soldier. In this the youth mentions that with the war over and the cloud of gloom lifted, "our efforts can now be directed toward total peace that we all so much deserve. But let us not forget that our victory is the fruit of efforts of those who had fallen in battle. Let us give a prayer of thanks to them." Though all cannot return home, the editor urges them to make the best of the opportunity the army offers. "Tour of Salzburg" is another article written by T5 Einung. Two from the battalion went to the rest camp at Prien, on the Chinese lake. A tour took them to Salzburg, one of the oldest and most historic cities in Europe, situated at the foothills of the Hohen Tau-

Find Upper Plate In Lost Articles

Waterloo Is Name of Place Where Jail Escapees Are Apprehended.

An upper plate found in a theatre sets a new high on unusual articles reaching the lost department.

At Portland, Ore., two county jail escapees have learned what's in a name. Police caught up with them at an Oregon village named Waterloo.

As a boy, Fireman Alvin Lawyer, Freeport, Ill., always liked to nose around in his mother's kitchen. So now he bakes 25 to 40 dozen cookies weekly for the service men's snack bar—and has 10 favorite recipes.

Civil War Veteran George W. Rogers of White Hall, Ill., passed his 97th birthday. He celebrated it by laying a new porch floor—and sawed, fitted and nailed the lumber without assistance.

Editor Wayne Richardson of San Francisco, started for his office dressed in a suit of which he was particularly fond. It was much too good, he decided, for everyday office wear. So he stopped at a clothing store, bought a new suit and had the clerk put the one he had been wearing in a box. Next he stopped at a restaurant. Now there's no question of wearing his favorite suit to the office. While he was eating some one took the box.

A thirsty sailor back from sea duty went looking for the real McCoy and found it in a Santa Monica restaurant. There he ordered and drank 29 half pints of milk. Taking them six at a time he settled for five on the last round. "After nothing but canned and powdered milk," he told the waitress, "I never tasted anything so good."

Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Vaughan of Winnetka, Ill., returned from their vacation to find their house had been decorated. The new decoration consisted of a three-foot sunflower growing from the chimney, apparently from a seed dropped by birds or the wind.

Peter Neary of Lockport, N. Y., lost his pocketbook containing $35. A few days later a springer spaniel owned by Mr. Neary's landlady trotted home with the purse and contents.

Pvt. John Rusetos of Chicago, after nearly a year overseas, knew how he was going to spend his 20-day furlough. He went straight from the army air base at Wendover, Utah, where he is stationed, to the USO in Salt Lake City. There he sat around with his shoes untied, "just as if I were home."

A barrel rolled off a passing truck and smashed in the street at Springfield, Ill. The driver continued on his way to the city dump with his load of spoiled eggs from a hatchery. Amidst the mess in the street were some 60 chirping chicks. They were quickly grabbed up by a fast-gathering crowd.

Miss Leone Jontz is training a new pet, a 4-week-old turnige and platinum silver fox at Rock Island, Ill., but Miss Jontz says she has learned much about foxes in her work. She claims to be the only woman in the country whose business is tattooing foxes. She said the father of her pet is the only platinum silver fox from Alaska in this country.

At Glendale, Cal., when Western Union phoned the home of Robbins Coons, former movie columnist, now an Associated Press war correspondent, Mrs. Coons replied that her husband is in Guam. "Will he be home tonight?" inquired the Western Union girl.

Walter Pokony of Atkinson, Neb., says he believes in sharing the ride, but there's a limit. On the way into town from his ranch, Mr. Pokony discovered a spotted skunk lodged on the sills under the body of his truck. Unable to get rid of it, he drove about the city and back to the ranch that night.

Mr. Pokony had to make an emergency trip to town at midnight and found the animal still there. On the way home, however, he discovered the skunk was gone. "Maybe he had enough," he said, taking a deep breath.

Mrs. Musetta Pearl, Oklahoma City, looked up her new Overland automobile 25 years ago. Fifteen years later she planted a tree in front of the garage doors. She died last December at Kansas City without revealing why she never wanted the car used. Four boys decided they would get a new car but cutting down the tree hardly justified the results. The tires were full of holes and the steering wheel came apart when they attempted to take the machine out.

Drunks who complain the floor of the Chicago Desplaines, street police station rises up under their feet aren't fooling. There's a five-inch ridge in the passage way leading to the cells that buckles during heavy rains. Even the police have difficulty.

Pursued by motorcycle policemen at Los Angeles, two robbery suspects leaped from a stolen taxicab and fled afoot across a vacant lot and through a back door of a precinct police station. "They sure ran the wrong way," panted Officer Brickner.

At Fossil, Ill., Mrs. Roy Gerber has taken over her husband's job as rural mail carrier, but it isn't new work for her. Mrs. Gerber, who replaced her husband when he was called into service, had previous experience on the route. She was a substitute mail carrier for her father when he held the job.
