Service Features Thanksgiving Day

W.A.A. Girls, College Choir And Rev. R. J. Bulkeley Give Program.

Traditional Thanksgiving services featured college convocation Tuesday when W. A. A. girls, directed by Mrs. Esther Carlson, presented gifts of thanksgiving, the choir, directed by Prof. Russel Anderson, sang and Rev. R. J. Bulkeley, Baptist minister, led devotions and spoke. Eleanor Wilberg was accompanist.

Rev. Bulkeley read the 147th Psalm of praise, offered prayer of thankfulness for peace, read a poem, "A Thanksgiving Fable," and spoke on the origin of Thanksgiving.

Pilgrims landed in early winter of 1620, Rev. Bulkeley stated, and by spring half of their number had died. Cold and hunger were experienced by all. Food supplies became so low that corn was rationed to five grains a day. A ship sent to England for supplies, after being overdue for a long time, finally returned and its arrival was celebrated with feasting, gratitude and praise.

Thanksgiving day was thus born from hunger and from 10 years of struggle through which Pilgrims passed in their efforts to find religious freedom. Three years included a period of residence in Holland.

Rev. Bulkeley emphasized that military alliances are not means to keep peace, but succeed only when they are backed up by the right human spirit.

The service closed with the choir singing "The Lord's Prayer."

O. A. KING STARTS—

was with Gen. Crook's reinforcements only 100 miles away. For 10 weeks following the Custer affair of 1876, Scout Senter was in the saddle chasing Indians in Wyoming.

Senter was mustered out at Deadwood, S. D., in 1877. He then went to Colorado where he married an Indian maiden and set out on placer mining (getting gold from the gravel bed) in McNulty gulch at the head of Ten Mile river at the foot of Bartlett mountain.

One day Senter decided to climb Bartlett mountain and find out where the mother load that contained this gold could be located. This was August 17, 1879. To his amazement he found the mountain criss-crossed with a gray metal that looked like graphite. It was not in veins but a whole mountain of it. Senter staked out claims upon the mountain and later found that the metal was a new one called molybdenum, later called by the hard rock miners as "Molly-Be-Damned." The metal, now used to harden steel, was then so new that there was no market for it.

Mr. King finds Method. Mr. King appeared on the scene 33 years later. He made a deal with Senter for purchase of the mountain property on the basis of a small amount down with a total of $40,000 to be paid over two years. Mr. King labored over the development of this ore for two years without results and dropped the option. Later Mr. King and his associates installed the first oil flotation mill in Colorado at Leadville for the purpose of handling low grade zinc and lead ores. It was then that Mr. King conceived the idea that molybdenum ore could probably be handled through this method. To his surprise it worked. Mr. King and his associates developed the mountain but still they couldn't find a market for the ore.

When the First World War started Mr. King and his company dropped half of the option on the mountain. Later a large New York company came to the field and developed the property. King later sold his half to the New York company after going through many battles with claim jumpers in which he had to hire Two-Gun Adams, who carried two shooting irons on his hips, to stay and help defend the property.

Out of the deal Mr. King was able to pay back to those who went into the enterprise with him $4,000 in cash for each $1,000 put in.

Is Largest in World. The New York firm, known as the Climax-Molybdenum Co., developed the mine until today it is the largest mine of its kind in the world, producing 85 per cent of the world's output of molybdenum. If Mr. King had taken stock in the New York company in lieu of cash, even $500 worth would now bring $1,207,000 on the New York stock exchange.

The Bartlett mine is producing 25 million dollars worth of ore a year. This is more than all the gold, lead, silver and zinc mines of Colorado combined. Twenty tons of ore pour out of Bartlett mountain each day. It is known that the blocked tonnage of ore in that one mountain exceeds in value one billion, 500 million dollars.

Mr. King was here last Thursday and Friday to attend the annual meeting of the LaChusa Land Co. of McMullen county, Texas. Mr. King is president of the Silver State Building & Loan association of Denver.

College Has Recess.

Wayne college has Thanksgiving recess Thursday and Friday this week.

Thanks, Folks!

Those are the only simple Thanksgiving words I can select that express my appreciation. It's for the welcome and cooperation already received in Wayne after 15 years of absence.

Call on me to be of service to you once again. If I haven't met you at least to say, "Hello," drop around and let's get acquainted. Even if you don't bring your produce or buy feeds then, I'll be mighty glad to see you.

To new folks around Wayne, I'm the "Town Guy" who explained culling to farmers 16-20 years ago. Today it is a necessary idea to make profit from poultry. I'm still culling poultry if such service is needed. Let us get rid of the "loafers" in your flock. Their money can be invested in better feeds for your good producers.

Phone 213, collect if long distance, when you have poultry to sell. We'll pick it up and pay highest community prices.

Sincerely,

John Leslie Rundell (Sketes)

A corn picker which a farmer was operating took off one of his hands, and he was unable to finish gathering his crop. Seventyfive sympathetic neighbors didn't just say, "We're sorry!" They assembled with eleven machines, and in a half day, Sunday, they picked and cribbed 3,000 bushels from sixtyfive acres. Benefactors were just as happy as the grateful recipients. And that is the dominant spirit in the middle west. And that evidence makes cruel disregard of sympathetic aid seem inconceivable. Inhabitants of this vast inland empire cannot understand cold indifference or bald cussedness too often manifested in many other parts of the world.

Corn picking has been slower than usual for a number of reasons. Some grain too soft has been left on stalks to dry and harden. The report of much of the crop still in fields is general over the corn belt. Continuing scarcity of help has caused delay. Release from war work has not prompted demand for jobs as one might reasonably have expected. One farmer reported to the Omaha Journal-Stockman that by reason of no help and of inability to secure the aid of a mechanical picker he could not clear his fields of corn before the first of the year. Many others are in the same unhappy plight.

When a country under a dictator holds an election it is purely perfunctory. No costly and arduous campaigning, no buttoning of voters in advance, no noise or other evidence of excitement. However much resentment is felt, it is kept concealed. Voters go to the polls to cast ballots for one set of candidates. Then results are pompously declared, and voters accept amidst the plaudits of the populace. The proceeding is of course a farce.

Lawmakers in Washington have moved to curb labor union financial contributions to elections. The amount of money harvested yearly by union organizations suggests unfair practices possible in permitting its free use in shaping the course of the electorate.

It cheers our tax-ridden souls to read in Congressman Karl Stefan's Washington report that the house has wiped out appropriations amounting to 52 billion dollars. The suggestion that the senate may make additional reductions further contributes to heart ease.

Report of a clash between socialists and communists in France suggests the old row between the pot and the kettle. A little hard to figure when one becomes the other. But as the two pull apart they may inspire hope in those who lean to neither.

Buying bonds is not a gift. It is a transfer of funds to government keeping at a rate of interest. It is a safe investment, and the more bonds one has in his credit, the better off he will be later on.

Disappearance of old-fashioned stoves removes the joy of the house wife who was wont to poke the fire at the height of the conversation.

Russia is loud in praise of freedom, but it would appear to better advantage if it would practice more in that direction.

We like Columnist Elsie Robinson's interpretation of genuine love as serving unselfishly.

FOR ONE COMMAND.
 Argument in an article in a current magazine supports the idea of unified command for all military forces of the country. The army usually favors one commander in the field, whereas officers high up in the navy are almost uniformly for the present arrangement. The magazine article mentioned contends that damaging jealousies exist between the army and navy and cause conflict and often delayed action. It points out that if a single authorized head is desirable in war it is just as advantageous in peace. It is strange, indeed, that men big enough to lead the army and navy could be small enough to engage in rival bickerings. The question of future military command is among several important problems up to congress to solve. Popular judgment which is unavoidably uncertain, hopes for the plan that will safeguard the country.

Collective Bargaining
 COLLECTIVE bargaining is explained as an attempt by labor and management to harmonize differences by representatives of each side gathering around a table and discussing questions involved. If they finally agree, collective bargaining is a success. If they cannot arrive at a compromise, collective bargaining fails. Then some other method of settlement must be employed.

Delegates to the labor-management conference in Washington agreed that collective bargaining is a noble idea when it works. Discussion among delegates participating also involves fixing union responsibility under contracts.

If labor and management cannot get together peacefully, congress may be persuaded, in the interest of necessary production, to pass a few more laws defining the rights of contending groups and ordering arbitration before unbiased parties.

Inflation Dangers
 THE Saturday Evening Post points to strikes and slow-downs in production as one big cause behind threatened inflation. Opportunities to buy more of the things needed would tend to head off or greatly modify the inflation menace. The Post concludes:

"If the American productive system is permitted to throw into the markets the goods the American people want, the prospects of inflation will be notably reduced. But there will be few goods to throw into the market if those who are supposed to produce the goods conceive their mission to be to cripple production in the name of purchasing power."

The One Who Pays
 DEMAND for fewer hours of work, more time to loaf, decreased production and increased pay in the automobile industry leads the Norfolk Daily News to make this observation:

"Out here where we are used to a farm week of 70 hours, and small town business men are accustomed to work nine and ten hours a day, five days a week and more on Saturday, we can't prime the wells of our sympathy to get any tears for the short-week man, who is demanding high loafing pay. We know that it is the 70-hour a week man who in the end will foot the bill."

In contrast with the world's evils and tears is the report of practical neighborliness in a farm area near Bennington, Neb.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS.
 Congratulations to the West Point Republican on completion of 75 years of uninterrupted publication. Present editor and publisher, Boyd Von Seggern, is a son of the late E. M. Von Seggern who passed away in 1942. The senior Von Seggern bought the plant in 1917. Like most editors in pioneer days, the Republican's founder, Edgar N. Sweet, envisioned West Point as a metropolis, and he made liberal use of his columns to promote that idea. The senior Von Seggern owned and ran the newspaper for 25 years. Boyd Von Seggern, now at the post, is young, capable and ambitious, and he is maintaining the high standard established long ago. The history of the Republican is a history of the development of West Point. That newspaper has always possessed the courage to support what its editor believed best for healthy community growth. The Republican's columns always reflect the spirit of progress. We wish for the confidence and success it well deserves.

REUNITED at last! Heads bowed in prayers of thanksgiving; sons and daughters returned from the wars to the warm love of a mother's aching heart—a father's strong, silent yearning—the eager adoration of younger brothers and sisters. Thanksgiving dinner with all its trimmings and not one vacant chair! The world at Peace! Is this not reason enough for heads to be bowed in prayer—prayers of thankfulness for having lived in a land that escaped the ravaging hand of a deadly enemy—a land whose brave sons and daughters fought and died that truth, humanity and righteousness might triumph over deceit, cruelty and treachery—and today whose flag flies victoriously over a vanquished enemy. On this Thanksgiving, above all, our first since the end of a tragic and bestial war, there is much for which to be grateful—much for which to thank the Almighty. And those of us who are fortunate enough to have our loved ones at home, in our joy, let us not forget those less fortunate, whose loved ones will never return—those who gave their lives that the true spirit of Thanksgiving in America might live on for ever.

Wayne GI Weds Australian Girl Who Comes Soon

(By Marjorie Cauauw)

Out in the southern part of the Pacific ocean there is a little continent called Australia—a continent which seems odd to us. Besides having north to see the sun and having tropical weather 12 months per year instead of three, it has animals that are found nowhere else in the world. It has also an unexplored region in its northern portion, where savages dwell—complete with spears and nose-rings. Of course missionaries have gone into this wild section—but they haven't come out again.

During the war this wonderful world has served as supply headquarters for the forces in the Pacific. Supply headquarters means men must be there; so many United States soldiers found themselves in Australia. LaVern Malstead, a native of Norfolk, and now a senior at Wayne State Teachers college, was one of the GI's stationed there. His particular branch was technical supply for the air force. He arrived in Melbourne in April, 1942, and after six months there he was moved to Brisbane where he was stationed until he came home in June of this year.

Three years is a long time to spend on foreign soil, but Vern must find to make himself more or less at home. He met a girl at his party in November, 1942, and he led her to the altar July 25, 1944. She and their son, Michael, who was born June 13, a few days after his father's departure for the United States, are still in Australia, but Vern hopes that they will get here the first part of January.

Australian people are not so different from us just a little behind, he says. Their speech is British, both Anglo-Saxon and Cockney. The people themselves, however, are probably no more like the typical Britisher than like the typical American.

In that tropical climate freezing temperatures are unknown. Fruits and other crops which are raised there correspond closely to those raised in California. Animal life includes the koala, the kangaroo and the wallaby (a small variety of kangaroo), all of which are peculiar to Australia. The emu is a bird of the ostrich family and large—about five feet tall. Its eggs are edible, one egg egg equivalent approximately one dozen chicken eggs. Another bird, much smaller than the emu, is probably the prize oddity the continent possesses. It is called the look-alike, is about the size of our crow, is black with white underparts, and "brays" like a donkey! Snakes, lizards and spiders of all kinds abound.

Mosquitoes are the chief annoyance. Nets must always be used for protection when one is sleeping. Mrs. Malstead has never slept without one. Houses do not have window screens, and the walls are usually covered with the pests.

The Norfolk youth describes Brisbane as a picturesque, mountainous city. The harbor is a natural river port, about 12 miles from the ocean. The city is modern and "nice."

This glimpse of "Down Under" suggests that more knowledge about the little continent would not be boring. We hope that Mrs. Malstead will find our country interesting, and a pleasant place in which to live.

Please come early. Evenings by appointment. I have specialized in the field of Rupture Shield service since 1928. I have fitted thousands of cases in the United States during this time. There are many of my satisfied customers right here in your community.

Mr. W.O.L. of Houston, Tex., writes about his brother, one of our clients: "He was recently inducted into the armed forces... thinking he was not well, but five government doctors passed upon him, put him through tests, and said there was nothing wrong with him."

CAUTION: If neglected, rupture may cause weakness, backache, nervousness, stomach and gas pains. People having large ruptures, which have returned after surgical operations or injection treatments, are especially invited. "If you want it done right, don't experiment. See Hoffman." Our Roots Are in This Land...

How often you hear a man say of the land he owns... "When my son takes over, this will be a better place than when I got it!" Such a desire is natural to a father and splendidly American! Along with the expressed thought, there is a deep-rooted pride in continuous family ownership of productive land. So long as this ideal lives, agriculture will continue to be "the broad, enduring base upon which the entire U. S. economy rests."

There are many farm and ranch sons who stay in their families' business on the land. Some who do leave, however, might also stay, were there written business agreements between father and son. Such agreements insure a fair return to both "partners" for the labor, capital and ability they contribute to their joint enterprise.

Practical father-and-son farm business agreements have been worked out and are proving their worth in actual practice on many of the nation's farms and ranches. The various forms of these agreements cannot be explained in detail here, but they are available and worth study. Excellent bulletins on this subject may be had by writing to the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois, for Circular No. 587; or to Michigan State College, East Lansing, Michigan, for Special Bulletin No. 330.

We, at Swift & Company, know that a prosperous agriculture is the base of our prosperity and we are proud to say with you... "Our roots are in this land."

THE EDITOR'S COLUMN

The livestock-and-meat industry is like an endless chain. The meat travels in one direction; from livestock producer to meat packer, to retail dealer, to consumer. And coming back in the opposite direction is money; from the meat purchaser to the storekeeper, to the meat packer, to the man who grows the livestock.

There must be motive power to keep that chain running, and that motive power is profit. It is profit that keeps ranchers and farmers producing livestock; profit keeps meat packers slaughtering, dressing and delivering meat to retailers; profit keeps retailers selling meat in their stores.

We at Swift & Company well know that a continuing loss anywhere along the line would mean that all of us would suffer. Thus, it is clearly to our own advantage to operate our end of the livestock-and-meat industry so efficiently that the money the consumer pays for meat shall cover all costs plus a sufficient profit for retailers and livestock producers, as well as for ourselves.

PHENOTHIAZINE FOR FARM FLOCKS

By RICHARD C. MILLER.
Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station

All sheep in farm flocks—ewes, rams and lambs—should be dosed late this fall or early winter with phenothiazine and again in the spring after lambing time. From at least May 1, through September, the one-to-nine phenothiazine-salt mixture should be accessible in a covered feeder that protects it from the weather.

In Kentucky tests during the past three years, involving 30,000 breeding ewes, this program (in connection with generally recognized good farm flock practices, such as pasture rotation), eliminated the dosing of any lambs in more than 90 percent of the flocks, and made possible the growing out of even the latest lambs to good market weights and finish. The average increase in weight per lamb was nearly 12 pounds above normal pre-averages. The average annual cost for phenothiazine was less than 30 cents per ewe.

Farmers and ranchers in doubt as to time and frequency of treatment best suited to their conditions and purposes should consult their state agricultural college.

Soda Bill Sez:
... That a steer is like a sofa. His frame is built on the range, his upholstery is put on in the Corn Belt, and he is often polished off in the city.
... That the important thing about a water-hole is water, and the important thing about a good farm is good farming.

Have you heard about the new improved lard? Swift & Company, after ten years of research and consumer tests, has developed a brand new product—Swift's Bland Lard. It has all the advantages of other high grade shortenings, plus the important qualities found only in lard. It will cause millions of American housewives to use more lard, and that's mighty important to hog producers.

Any improvement in pork products which boosts consumer demand (such as a superior lard) will have a supporting effect on live hog prices, because the price paid for livestock is governed by what the meat packer can get for the meat and by-products.

CATTLEMAN ON HORSEBACK

Next time you are at the Union Stock Yards in Chicago, if you see this big, jovial man sitting on a horse in the middle of a milling pen of cattle, that will be M. S. ("Si") Hughes, Head Cattle Buyer at Chicago.

"Way back in 1917, Si Hughes walked up to the Swift buyer in Kansas City and said, 'Mister Stemm, I want a job.' He got the job, and he's been with Swift ever since, except for a two-year army-hitch in World War I. Kansas City, St. Louis, Fort Worth, St. Joseph, Kansas City again, and finally Chicago—all added to his experience in judging the quality and yield percentages, grading, etc., of cattle."

In 1943 he was made Head Cattle Buyer for Swift & Company at the Chicago Yards. He has a staff of experienced cattle buyers directly associated with him.

Winside School Dismisses Today and Friday for Holiday Recess.

Second six-week period in Winside school ended Wednesday and reports will be sent out November 28.

School dismisses this Thursday and Friday for Thanksgiving.

Juniors present their play, "Jimmy, Be Careful," November 28 in the auditorium. In the story Jim Fisher's friends think he is strange when he buys a piece of unprofitable land for the alleged purpose of growing asters and his selfish fiancée breaks her engagement to him. Later Jim and his friends drill for oil on this land and people call him "Lucky Jim." Jim has transferred his friendship to his fiancée's selfish younger sister. Finally Jim strikes a gusher.

Two changes have been made in the basketball schedule. Sacred Heart is to play here December 7 at 7:30 instead of November 30. Wayne Prep is to be played there January 24 instead of January 25 as previously scheduled.

Monday night, November 16, Supt. Ray Ebmeier spoke to the future teachers at Wayne State Teachers college. The subject was "How a Teacher Can Improve Her Personal Appearance."

Wednesday night at St. Paul's Lutheran church basement the entire school was invited to a free demonstration showing of audio-visual education. The technicolor film, "Unfinished Rainbows," explained the discovery of aluminum and the struggle that was made to introduce it into this great mechanical age. All thank Rev. H. M. Hilpert for his time and effort in securing and showing the picture.

Basketball practice is progressing. Dick Wade, Dallas Schellenberg, Marvin Schroeder, Duane Neary, Bill Witte, Gene Reed, Stanley Soden and Tom Dillon are trying out for the first team.

Five new dictionaries have been purchased for the school.

Progress has been made by all typing students. Duane Neary holds the top bracket with 43 words per minute. Laura Jane Quinn, 41; Dolores Baird, 39; and Marian Schroeder, 38.

Marian Schroeder earned highest grade in economics test.

The vocational value of extracurricular activities has been the subject of discussion. Juniors worked on skits and posters for their play.

Biology class studied June beetle under the microscope. Pupils examined beetles in all stages of the life cycle. Special reports were given.

General science class finished a unit on how to use and control fire. Sewing class learned the blind stitch and hem stitch. Pupils also learned to crochet the picot edge on a handkerchief.

Congressman Karl Stefan Reports on Washington Events

Washington, D. C., November 15, 1945

The Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill, S. 1050, provides that certain doctors and dentists in each community shall be designated by the surgeon general of the United States as the approved federal practitioners for that area. No doctor could qualify as a specialist in a particular field save upon the designation of the surgeon general. And no patient would be permitted to consult a specialist until the case had been approved by a medical administrative officer appointed by the surgeon general.

The senate has the house "recession" bill which lopped off 56 billion dollars from various government agencies. The senate may increase the amount and thus save taxpayers more money.

Following are spending proposals now before congress, over and above the necessary regular government expenditures: Federal aid for education, $500,000,000 per year; vocational education aid, $100,000,000 per year; free food stamp plan, $500,000,000; program rural electrification, $500,000,000 per year; federal aid to hospitals, $110,000,000 per year; federal health program, $600,000,000 per year; school lunch program, $100,000,000 per year; sewage treatment program, $100,000,000 per year; federal housing program, $80,000,000 per year; increased federal salaries, $500,000,000 per year.

Bills providing for lump sum appropriations are as follows: Veterans bonus legislation, $13,000,000,000; additional UNRRA contribution, $1,350,000,000; commodity credit corporation, $500,000,000; loans to foreign countries, $15,000,000,000; federal aid for highways, $3,000,000,000; new river valley authorities, $5,000,000,000; federal aid for airport construction, $1,000,000,000.

Members of the house committee that has been holding hearings on the peace-time compulsory military training bill see no hope for that bill to come up for house consideration this year.

Prime Minister Attlee's speech in the house seems to have convinced many members that he and his socialist party are strong for "planned economy" and nationalization of big business. Best guess is that he did not help Britain's chances for bigger money concessions from Uncle Sam.

Nebraska Control Board members, Ralph Cox and C. W. Willey, stopped in Washington on their way to New York to attend a prison officials conference.

Some important changes in government officials is rumored. There is dissatisfaction over methods of disposal of government surplus property. Jesse Jones, former head of RFC, may be brought back into the government to solve the surplus property problem. Latest rumor is that Jim Byrnes, secretary of state, may be on the way out.

A thousand automobile dealers have been in the city complaining about OPA auto prices.

mittee for the labor-management conference recommended discussion of how to avoid labor disputes by: (1) Collective bargaining, (2) Recognition of inherent rights of labor and management, (3) Full utilization by management of national labor relations act provisions, (4) Recognition of conciliation, mediation and arbitration possibilities, (5) Inclusion in new contracts of such provisions as extension of old contracts while bargaining goes on, no-strike, no-lockout clauses, and assurances that both sides will live up to agreements, (6) Strengthening the conciliation service and giving it added support, (7) Lessening inter-union and jurisdictional strikes.

Thousands of government employees face wage cuts as a result of downgrading of some federal jobs, it was learned. The situation results from the action of some government agencies during the war in upgrading the classification of jobs in order to secure workers. This was done to meet wage competition of private industry in filling federal jobs considered vital to the war effort. Now with the government reducing its personnel, federal agency heads are reviewing all positions to determine whether the person on the job is entitled to his grade classification. In many instances it is found the job filled does not justify the grade classification and the attendant higher salary.

The Washington navy yard will cut its pay roll of some 17,000 employees down to about one-third of its wartime peak and will make a fairly rapid return to near the 1938 level of $8,000, yard officials declared. In the process most of the women who formed the bulk of the war-swollen pay roll will lose their jobs and along with them will go many of the men who went there to help out in the emergency.

The republican congressional food study committee headed by Hon. Thomas A. Jenkins has made the following recommendations: 1. UNRRA should be permitted to finish the job in Europe. 2. The $550,000,000 remaining to complete the current contribution of the United States toward UNRRA's operating expenses should be made available immediately. 3. The United States should contribute its proportionate share of any additional amount found reasonably necessary to fulfill UNRRA's obligations in Europe this winter. 4. UNRRA should present a budget for 1946 operations in Europe. 5. European relief operations should end with next year's harvest. 6. The press should have free access to UNRRA recipient nations. 7. Markings shown the nation of origin should not be removed from UNRRA supplies. 8. All trade agreements, full information on exports and imports, and periodic financial statements should be made available to UNRRA, particularly showing funds accruing from sale of UNRRA goods. 9. Procurement of trucks should be speeded up and all motor transport equipment should remain the property of UNRRA until its operations are completed. 10. UNRRA must not be made the dumping ground for unwanted American surpluses. 11. Operations under the existing UNRRA setup should be limited to Europe and a new organization established to conduct relief in the orient.

As a result of this committee's activities, new facts have been brought to light about the UNRRA administration policy and operation. Serious charges of corruption and mismanagement of UNRRA have been made by responsible persons and, although the republican congressional food study committee recognizes the necessity of continuing UNRRA, it has initiated critical examination which should eventuate in changes of personnel and policy and the increase of American control over UNRRA operation.

Washington, D. C., November 9, 1945

Pearl Harbor continues to loom upon the headlines, as it has been doing for nearly four years. The disaster there on December 7, 1941, which immediately propelled our country into a two-front war, has been investigated at least four times. There is now a special congressional committee to dig into the disputed and undisputed facts. This committee, appointed in consequence of the unanimous vote of both houses, was set up on a bipartisan and supposedly non-partisan basis to make a complete and exhaustive study of the events which led to the destruction of our Pacific fleet and the loss of nearly 5,000 lives, and to arrive at a final report which would convince the public that all facts relating to it had been uncovered.

The committee consists of three democrats and two republican senators and the same number of democrats and republicans from the house. The committee has six democrats and four republican members. It started off well—with much publicity about there being no partisanship involved and none to be engendered. Mr. Mitchell, a democrat who served as attorney general under the last republican administration, was chosen as committee counsel, possibly with the idea that he was sufficiently bipartisan by training and experience to keep politics from the inquiry. The committee met, and outlined its non-political approach to the question that for four years has been high in public interest.

Then things began to happen, even before the investigation started. Involved are the same difficulties that have shown up so frequently regarding the records which were kept by those in high places at the time the disaster was approaching. Some of the records which were produced when the army made its investigation, are said to be missing—particularly the intercepted decoded message sent by Japan to its embassy in Washington on December 4, 1941, that war would come any moment. It now appears that such information was received by army and navy chiefs at least three days before the attack, in ample time to have enabled our defense forces on Hawaii to have prepared for the attack, and to have at least scattered the fleet and planes that damage done might have been minimized if not averted.

Now the majority and minority members of the investigating committee are at logger-heads over the procedure. The majority wants the right to determine by committee vote what records shall be brought in. The minority insists on the right of individual members to search the files and produce evidence. Open hearings will start soon, but how really "open" they may be will depend on how thoroughly all doubtful issues are publicized.

Then came an order from the president, which in effect forbids the war officials from testifying regarding any information received through the secret decoding of Japanese dispatches, which, of course, might have barred reference to the most important dispatch of all. The president later revised his order, as even yet there is question as to how much it still covers. A bill to the same effect, under the pretext of protecting "military secrets," got through the senate, but was defeated by a big vote in the house. The investigation promises to be interesting. Whether it will be conclusive remains to be seen. This term to "investigate the investigation," as was done in effect after the first World War. The inquiry into war frauds and allegations of fraud survived World War I by 10 years.

Just why there is so much secrecy about what happens during a war is a mystery. While the war was on, the consors were able to suppress every kind of news, even losses at sea, for weeks after the events occurred, for reasons of "military secrecy." In most cases, the enemy forces knew what had happened, and frequently gave out the news which our newspapers were forbidden to print if the information came from Germany or Japan.

In September, 1943, our American forces had completed their sweep through North Africa, Sicily and Italy. Italy surrendered. An armistice was signed. For more than two years after that armistice was signed, publication of its terms was forbidden—always, of course, on the ground of "military necessity." Now the full report is given to the public—six months after V-E day. And the report indicates how little there was of real military necessity to have been withheld so long.

Senators are much disturbed about the retention of physicians and surgeons in the armed forces when they are so badly needed in their home communities. The senate debated and passed a resolution ordering an investigation. When the war was on, there were 45,000 doctors in the army, and 13,000 in the navy, leaving only 107,000 doctors for 135 millions of people back home. The doctors have done remarkable work in their service. The death toll of wounded has been less than half that of the first World War. The disease toll in the preceding world conflict was 28 per 2,000 men, and in the war just closed, only 1.2 per 2,000 men. In the Civil war, losses by disease were about 65 per thousand men.

Now many of the doctors in the armed forces want to be released so that they can return home and resume private practice. Included among them are many specialists. Their demand for release is strongly seconded by thousands of doctors who are at home and have worn themselves out caring for the civilian population, and who are continuing to carry their heavy burden from day to day. Only those who know can realize what a tremendous responsibility has been discharged by our doctors since the war opened.

Since V-E day, the army has released only 7,000 doctors and the navy about 1,000, leaving 51,000 still in service. The officials of communities in great need of doctors are pressing for their release at a more rapid rate. Many of the doctors are demanding discharges. Some are making strong charges that they are without essential duties in their commands and have so little to do that their skill is deteriorating. Others complain that they are idle much of the time. One doctor wrote from a distant base that there are over 50 doctors stationed there, and the forces have been so reduced that half a dozen could properly attend those who are in need of such services.

The answers of the war and navy departments to these charges and complaints as to the hoarding of medical practitioners is that there is lack of transportation to bring them home, the usual reply to demands for release by these on distant fronts. The fact that we have thousands of ships in our merchant fleet, some of which are making voyages to such countries as Argentina carrying "foreign trade" makes the transportation shortage for returning our armed forces a lame excuse. The army states that 17,000 doctors will be released before January 1, and the navy proposes to release 4,000 more. Unless such discharges are accomplished at a more rapid rate, another investigation committee may be set up by the senate to find out what is the matter.

A nation-wide sale of 9,100 new and used jeeps to federal agencies, state and local governments, has been announced. This is the first peace-time sale of the popular military vehicle which is known officially as "the command reconnaissance one-quarter ton truck."

The house passed house concurrent resolution 80 to express the will of congress on the size and character of the navy that should be maintained in the post-war period. The measure sets up a blueprint of what our post-war navy shall be. In the report accompanying the bill, it is stated that the navy ordnance facility at Hastings, Neb., will be continued as a permanent establishment. The old naval bases at Cavite and Olongapo, P. I., may be abandoned as naval bases, but new bases are planned in Leyte-Samar. Maintenance of a navy of 1,082 fighting ships for an indefinite period is approved. Much of the fighting force will be of heavy battleships and plane carriers. Soon the navy will test out the effect of the atomic bomb on naval vessels by a practical demonstration, probably somewhere in the Pacific. The terrific effect of the atomic bomb on land was attested by the destruction of two large cities in Japan, but what it would be on the seas remains to be ascertained. Another naval bill will soon be introduced setting regular navy personnel at five hundred thousand enlisted men and fifty thousand commissioned officers. Navy experts say they are sure they will be able to get all of these men through the volunteer system.

The strike situation is getting worse. Letters are beginning to reach members of congress from people who say they fear they may be cold this winter for want of fuel oil and coal.

If President Truman's compulsory peace-time conscription program is enacted, the army and navy planners expect to train a net total of about 975 thousand reserves annually. The army will obtain about 700 thousand trained reserves and the navy 275 thousand out of each year's class of about one million, 200 thousand 18-year-olds and high school graduates. The balance of the class would include the physically, mentally and morally unfit. The best guess in congress is that the conscription bill will not come up for action this year.

The question of merging all of the armed forces has reached a serious stage when hearings started on the bill in the senate. There is much controversy over this plan. Indications are that sentiment for combining the services is increasing among members of congress. One reason for this seems to be the feeling that the atomic bomb may revolutionize warfare and a unified system is needed to cope with the new situation. Because of the atomic weapons, many congressmen feel that scientific research and experimentation should have top place in the national defense program and that greater emphasis also should be placed on air power.

Representatives of management, industry and labor are holding conferences in Washington trying to iron out their differences. While the CIO and AF of L are here, there are also some "uninvited guests" in the city. They are

Thanksgiving Day

Oh, glorious were the maple leaves on that bright autumn day, And glorious rose the crimson sun, and drove the mists away, While in the fields the shocks of corn stood up so stout and bold, With pumpkins strewn between them, shining apples all of gold.

Then far across the stubble fields the glad bell sent its sound, As up to church the farmers thronged from all the country round; And full and strong the hymns of praise rose up to God Most High For the bounty of the harvest, for the wheat and corn and rye, For the peace which He had given and the blessings that it brings, And that their only monarch was the mighty King of kings.

The scholar from his study and the merchant from his store, The woodman on the mountain and the fisher on the shore, The statesman from his thinking and the children from their play, Look up to the All-giver on glad Thanksgiving Day.

O peerless land, thy glory lies not in thy fields of corn, Nor in thy brightly radiant leaves by autumn winds upborne, Not in the marble palaces wherein thy rich men dwell, Nor in thy poets' measures, though harmoniously they swell, Not in thine armies or thy ships, though mighty they may be, But in the Lord of Hosts alone, who guards thy liberty.

Thanksgiving

In the True Spirit of Thanksgiving

On this holiday in 1945, Americans truly have much for which to express gratitude. World conflict has ceased and nations are endeavoring to promote lasting peace.

Many have returned from fighting fronts and all join in a hearty welcome home. To those who live in memory and to those who sacrificed their health, Americans always will owe a debt of deepest gratitude.

May their sacrifices and hardships make us appreciate more fully the real worth of our precious American democracy.

Chapter Formed To Help Drinkers

Alcoholic Anonymous, a group of problem drinkers, started a chapter of this organization at Wakefield. The first meeting was held some time ago. Names of members are never used, and newspapers are asked to cooperate with the group in this matter.
Alcoholism is recognized by the organization as a disease, just as diabetes, tuberculosis or others. It is realized that for those who cannot control themselves, the first drink is the serious one, so it is this one that they avoid. Members of the society work on a day to day program, realizing that one afflicted with the disease must master it each day.

It was 10 years ago that a wealthy man afflicted with the alcoholic disease and a tramp having the same trouble met on the bank of a river in New York. Each had experienced family troubles and many disappointments because of his affliction. The two realized they had something in common. They were inveterate drinkers and they had to overcome this disease. They started a movement which has developed into the organization known as Alcoholic Anonymous. From that small beginning, the national membership is now 25,000. It is estimated that three million are so afflicted. Sioux City has a chapter of 130.

Members of Alcoholic Anonymous are from all walks of life. Women as well as men are in the group. The aim is to help every inveterate drinker. Any member who learns a person afflicted with the disease, stops to help him. They go to homes or hospitals at all hours of day or night. The organization is self-supporting.

For information and literature write Alcoholic Anonymous, Box 5, Wakefield, Nebr.

Orange Blossom
HOME... and the girl he left behind!
There's magic in the word HOME—home with its cozy mystic circle, and joys never known beyond its hallowed limits. Home and old-remembered pleasures; these are the stuff a soldier's dreams are made of; but the dream he loves best is a candle-lit wedding ceremony with his bride in snowy array at his side. And this happy event is mirrored now for future realization in her genuine Orange Blossom diamond engagement ring—the radiant reminder of their sacred promise.

representatives of independent unions who do not belong to either of the two large organizations, but who claim they have about two million members.

Vital statistics in Washington indicate that one out of every 12 babies born in the District of Columbia during the first eight months of 1945 was illegitimate, and the problem is growing more difficult.

The war department has released the report of the board of civilian experts selected to survey the activities of the allied armies on the European front in winning the war. The engineers and scientists visited hundreds of cities and battlefronts, at times close behind the battle fronts. Since V-E day they have also discussed the effect of allied warfare with German officers and industrialists. They collected thousands of documents, which have been filed with their report. Mistakes and miscalculations were studied. The report is voluminous. With due credit to the men who did the fighting on the ground, the board found that air-power had so reduced the strength of Germany to carry on the war that in the course of a few more months it would have been compelled to give up the struggle.

even without invasion by ground forces.

The force and effect of international commitments so freely made during the tense years of the world conflict promise to far outlast the war itself. The pitiful plight of starving people in the devastated regions of Europe, and the threat of even worse conditions resulting in anarchy in some of the countries brought about the convention of nations in 1943, to find a remedy, particularly as to destitution of millions of innocent men, women and children. There was set up an agreement later signed by 44 nations, and the United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration came into being. It was established as an international organization, thereby restricting the control over its activities by any one nation, including our own.

Later the subscribing governments recommended that a relief fund be provided, and that each member nation whose area had not been invaded, should contribute one per cent of its national income. That brought our share of relief to $1,350 millions. The program was adopted step by step, and congress was fairly bombarded at each such step by the charitably minded people of the country to do its share. When complete, our share of the fund was found to be 2 1/2 times that of all the other nations combined. But when it came to the administration of UNRRA in Europe, there were plenty of local administrators, and our newspaper men and investigators are not even permitted to enter several of the countries that are receiving supplies. So what is really happening to or is being done with our millions is related only in such reports as are made from time to time.

Our first $800 millions have been expended. Congress is asked to keep faith with the international agreement by $550 millions more. The plight of the unfortunate war sufferers is described as more acute now than it was a year ago. Of our $800 millions, less than half has been spent for food and clothing, but agricultural equipment and supplies run to $43 millions, $71 millions more to factory and industrial rehabilitation. Medical and sanitation supplies come to $34 millions, and ocean transportation, $31 millions.

Detailed information as to administration costs and other such expenditures are indefinite. Among other charges made, there are 1,136 on UNRRA payrolls in Europe at over $5,000 per annum, many of the pay-rollers were appointed from contributing nations other than our own. The system of distribution also comes up for criticism, in part because of waste, and in part because the results are not satisfactory. As usual, when huge sums are available and not under control by the principal paying power, charges of graft and corruption are all too numerous. The loss of foods and other supplies by actual theft, sales to black markets, and even control of distribution by some countries for political purposes, is explained away by existing chaotic conditions. In Washington, where headquarters are maintained, UNRRA seems to be the happy play-ground for 300 employees at $5,000 per year or more, the most of whom have been selected by the heads of the international organization.

UNRRA is still young. When the present funds are exhausted it is proposed that $1,350 millions more shall be appropriated. Propaganda flows freely as to the needs of the starving, but definite facts as to how much is being accomplished will become available only later on. The congressional committees have delved deeply to bring them out. They still are doing so. But UNRRA may eventually develop into a messy international affair.

Birthday Letter
- Comes from Afar

Ens. Russell Widoe wrote the following letter October 25 at sea to his daughter, Patsy, whose birthday was that day:

"Happy birthday, honey child. I wish I could be there to see you blow out the candles on the birthday cake. I hope it is a big cake. I haven't heard from mother for a long time so I don't know if you are having a party or not, but I expect you are having at least a small one.

"Daddy hasn't had a chance to get you anything for your birthday so I'm sending you some money which you can spend for whatever present you would like. I'm putting the money in a special envelope that I got in Formosa. It is the kind of envelope the people of that country use when they make a gift of money to anyone.

"Since the last time I wrote to you I have been to China and to Formosa. You can get Mommy to show you on the map of the world where those places are. China is a very large country and there are many, many people living there. The city I visited, called Shanghai, has about five million people in it. They have automobiles and street cars but when a person wants to get around town he takes what is called a rickshaw. There are several different kinds of rickshaws.

"There is a big river that runs through the city of Shanghai. It is called the Hwangpoo river. Many of the people of the city live in little boats that float on this river. They call their boats Sampans and they cook and eat and sleep in them all the time. They make their living by fishing and selling things like beads and fans and other nicknacks to the men in the big ships that come up the river.

"Along with the money I am sending that you can spend is some that you can't spend—Chinese money made of paper and some Japanese coins. I don't know how much the coins are worth but it would take 25 bills like the Chinese one I am sending to be worth one American dollar. When I ride in the rickshaw I could ride for 10 minutes for a piece of money like that.

"I have to work tonight from midnight until 4 o'clock in the morning so it is time to go to bed now. I'll be thinking of you and your birthday party tonight while I am on watch because when it is night over here it will be daylight where you are and you will be celebrating your birthday.

"Be a good girl and write to Daddy. Love and happy birthday."

Library News

Date Book

I had a little book for dates. A precious little book, And when I went to write in it I let nobody look.

One day while at the library— What cruel fate I serve!— I left my little book, and oh! They put it on reserve!

The children have been getting the most attention at the library for the past two weeks on account of Children's Book week from November 11 to 17. However, we have been putting out some adult books right along and some of them are exceptionally good. We have a very fine collection of mid-western literature and literature by John T. Flanagan called America Is West. Louis Adamic has a fine new book called A Nation of Nations which is an unusual history of our country in that it deals with the different nationalities and races which go to make up America. Meet Your Ancestors, by Roy Chapman Andrews, is a biography of primitive man which answers such questions as, "Was there a Garden of Eden? Did man descend from the ape? And what of the missing link?" The very bones of our ancestors come to life and reveal their part in the cosmic drama of mankind. A City for Lincoln is one of the best books for the young people who are just too old to read in the children's department and yet find it difficult to get a book for adults which interests them. Can you answer these questions along with hundreds more? What language did Adam speak? Who was Cain's wife? Are there any Negro Jews? What is meant by the voice of the turtle? When did the 19th century end?

For pure humor be sure to ask for Outside Eden, by Isabel Scott. If you were one of the readers who laughed over Mr. and Mrs. Cugat you will agree that this is even better. The mystery addicts have something new in Bedelia, by Vera Caspary. Perhaps this shouldn't be classed strictly as a mystery but it is the next best thing to it.

Miss Florence Peterson and T. Sgt. Reinard Michaels were married at Laurel November 10. Miss Helen Carlson of Concord, and Harold Arp of Omaha, were attendants.
