emergency. In Omaha, Holger Holm, state director of the federal housing administration, is quoted as saying he has had about 4,000 requests from ex-service men who want places to live. These requests appear at the rate of 15 to 20 per day. Organized bodies must act promptly and vigorously to meet the demand until new houses which are the only source of permanent relief, can be built.
 The return of Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley from China and his resignation as ambassador to that country, accompanied by charges of communistic activities within the state department's foreign service, have aroused congress to inaugurate an official inquiry. The retired ambassador is scheduled to explain fully before both houses. It is unreasonable to believe a man of Hurley's caliber would make accusations he could not prove. Progress of the investigation will perhaps prove or disprove ground for suspicion of communistic influences in high official circles. A housecleaning is proposed by congressmen who fear inroads by alien isms.

Out on STRIKE by General Motors' employees is acclaimed by Vice President Reuther of the C.I.O.'s United Automobile Workers as a way to increase wages without boosting costs of finished products. Time magazine says "it was not a strike against outrageous working conditions or starvation pay." The Reuther contention that the union's motives are altruistic makes the average spectator who is conscious of how suspended production will adversely affect reconstruction, laugh out loud. Time magazine comments:
 "It was a new kind of strike. The worker's demand for more pay had the old familiar ring, and there was even precedent for the union's demand that the company open its books so that its employees could determine its capacity to pay. What made it new was that Walter Reuther had based his arguments on the sweeping effect an increase in pay in the vast motor industry would have on the economy of the country; he said that better pay in the auto industry would step up wages everywhere, take the nation to higher production and abundance."

In contrast with big strikes which make headlines by reason of the numbers involved, we are assured of "thousands of factories where employers and employees are busy working side by side in peace and good will, in mutual trust and respect, in faith and in confidence in one another—in the way of democracy, America's way."
 Communists in China say they are anxious for peace, but are prepared for a long fight. They might gratify such burning anxiety by moving in the direction of peace rather than in the direction of war.
 Hess' confession of faked amnesia by which he boasted he had fooled the psychiatrists of four nations, might be introduced as another way to prove he is crazy.

Coordination IT is amazing how essentials change from scarcity to abundance. A Washington report says eggs are now not overly plentiful and that prices are high, but that the future suggests excess which will cause a tumble in the market. Chickens would seem to have confided to official Washington that they will soon go into high in laying eggs and that therefore the country will be flooded. Instead of trying to talk layers out of overproduction, it is proposed to control the flock.
 In addition, we have inconsistencies in the labor situation. In some quarters we find too few helpers to satisfy the demand, while in others there are not enough jobs to go around. Some idlers are no doubt dissatisfied with peace-time wages and are waiting for necessity to whisper to them to go to work for what they can reasonably earn.
 Numerous incongruities in employment and supplies are evident, and will need to look to hard experience for readjustments.

Bogging Down. (Pathfinder Magazine)
 There was no getting around it. Reconversion was bogging down. In Washington, radio and automobile interests and the National Association of Manufacturers admitted peace production was under schedule. Important home appliance manufacturers in New York, Schenectady, and elsewhere said they were lagging behind by two months. Civilian Production Administrator J. D. Small, whose agency last week succeeded the War Production Board, told a Chicago audience the delay was "serious."
Reasons: Strikes, labor and material shortages, and squabbles over OPA prices were the principal causes. Walk-outs have cut parts production for cars, and other products. Parts makers also were waiting for better prices, and some materials like special steel for chrome plating were scarce.
 Sixteen newsmen ending a reconversion tour of 50 plants found manufacturers complaining that (1) thousands of laid-off war workers are refusing to return to factory or mills, preferring to take vacations or shop for better-paying jobs; (2) unrest among workers because of strikes, wage uncertainties and postwar let-down has lessened productivity.
 Then there were charges that some manufacturers were holding goods off the market until 1946 to take advantage of lower taxes and, they hoped, possible higher prices next year.
Meaning: Consumers must wait longer for refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, coffee makers, etc. Few will be in stores at Christmas. Auto makers think they'll be lucky to make the original 1945 quota of 241,000 new cars by Jan. 1 (instead of the hoped-for 500,000). Radio plants will do well to reach 1 million new sets this year (instead of hoped-for 3.5 million).

KEEPING YOUNG.
 An article in a current magazine stresses state of mind rather than multiplied years as indicative of age. The writer thinks people grow old only by deserting their ideals and giving up to "worry, doubt, self-distrust, fear and despair." The writer's conclusion: "Whether 70 or 16, there is in every being's heart the love of wonder, the sweet amazement at the stars and the starlike things and thoughts, the undaunted challenge of events, the unflinching childlike appetite for what next, and the joy and the game of life. * * * You are as young as youth faith, as old as your doubt; as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fear, as young as your hope, as old as your despair. * * * So long as your heart receives messages of beauty, cheer, courage, grandeur and power from the earth, from man and from the infinite, so long you are young. * * * When the wires are all down and all the central place of your heart is covered with the snows of pessimism and the ice of cynicism, then you are grown old indeed and may God have mercy on your soul."

CULTIVATING PEACE.
 Fraternizing with the children of defeated nations is pointed out by soldier correspondence in the Christian Science Monitor as an important way to develop understanding and promote postwar peace. Youngsters of former enemy countries received wrong ideas from ruthless leaders. Children respond to kindness. They are delighted when they become recipients of candy instead of bombs. Comments the Monitor: "Human kindness can ease war hatreds, and personal friendships may lessen misunderstandings, but only a common adherence to truth and justice will remove the causes."
 War has tempted all of us too much toward inhumanity. It has brought many who professed to be fighting racial hatred to express indiscriminate hate for races. Vengeance toward Germany or Japan is no safe basis for peace. Healing rather than hurting should be the goal of policy. It can be promoted by more realization that occupation measures must deal not merely with ideologies, but with men and women whose hopes, desires, needs, feelings are very much like our own."

Remember Pearl Harbor!

Remember? How can we ever forget? Disaster and death came out of the clear blue sky to strike like a thunderbolt! Never again will America be so totally unprepared...never again will America let her guard down. We're going to make sure it won't happen again by backing our words with action. Action that will make Post-war America strong. That means a solid economy... without inflation. That means giving the boys who did the fighting a break... backing up the G. I. Bill of Rights. The best way to do it... Buy Victory Bonds. The best time... right now... December 7th... a DARK day in America's past, a great day to reaffirm your faith in America's future.

VICTORY BOND DIGEST

Why should I buy Bonds now that the War is over? A good question with many answers. Buy them for the sake of our boys... the millions still in uniform... the hundreds of thousands on the way home. To help bind the wounds of the suffering. To help them start life anew.

The shooting has stopped, but it's not all over yet... not till the last man is back can we on the home front consider our obligations met. Obligations we owe to every man who served in the cause of Liberty. It's a costly undertaking, a responsibility we must not neglect. That's why our Government needs Eleven Billion Dollars invested in Victory Bonds. Could there be a better reason?

Library News We found the following little poem in one of our library publications and decided to pass it on: The guy who leaves the books all scattered Should have his head urgently battered. Who takes a magazine from the rack Is solid - when he puts it back. To have to pay a fine, it seems, Is such a careless way with means. The numbers on the backs of books Are there to guide and not for looks. Our books are "one for all" - not all for one. If one takes all, there'll soon be none. Two new books on Russia are ready now for circulation. One is The Cossacks, the story of a warrior people by Maurice Hindus, and the other is Days and Nights, a novel of Stalingrad by Konstantin Simonov. This last mentioned book was the November book of the month and is a translation from the Russian. Folks who have been thrilled with the books of Quentin Reynolds will find his new book, Officially Dead, the most exciting story he has ever written. This is the story of Commander Smith, skipper of a Yangtze river steamer. Shanghai harbor pilot, captain of the U. S. S. Wake and the prisoner the Japs couldn't hold. For the fiction readers who like those stories bordering on the mystery, Night Has a Thousand Eyes, by George Hopley, will be just what they are looking for. In the fiction listed as escape reading we have Beyond the Sound of Guns, by Emilie Loring. If you like to read about interesting people and what they have done you will want to get The B. O. W. S., by Margolo Gillmore. She was a member of the cast of The Barretts of Wimpole Street when they took that show to England and France to play to our troops overseas and has many interesting things to tell of their experiences. Soldiers of God, by Christopher Cross, is the account of the U. S. army chaplains, and of some of them in particular as they served with the armed forces.
