PIONEER CHARACTER (Continued from Page One)

of grain were grown and marketing crops was a big problem. Mr. Nelsen's father cradled his grain. His mother roasted wheat to use for coffee, as coffee was not seen in the settlement for several years. Wisner was the nearest market and one could get 18c a bushel for wheat, $1.80 a hundred for hogs, 3c a pound in summer and 5c a pound in winter for butter and 3c a dozen for eggs. LaPorte buyers would not take produce because of the problem of hauling it to railroad terminals.

Finds Market for Butter: While carrying mail from LaPorte to Ponca, Mr. Nelsen became acquainted with a Mr. Skinner who had a butcher shop and who agreed to pay 15c a pound for butter which he would ship to the Black Hills where the gold rush was in progress. People of the vicinity began trading their butter at LaPorte for supplies they needed. Sometimes Mr. Nelsen would load as much as 700 or 800 pounds of butter in his platform spring buggy, which would carry a half ton, and take the butter to Ponca. He made 6c to 8c a pound on the butter. But much of the profit melted in the summer when the butter dripped through the boxes.

The second summer he was here, Mr. Nelsen bought a pony and herded cattle for his brother-in-law and others. He had about 800 head to watch.

Brothers Curry Mail: When Mr. Nelsen's brother, Jens, was 17 he was driving for Dan Vroman who operated the mail route between LaPorte and Ponca. Mr. Vroman wanted to sell out and Jens was not old enough to take the responsibility, so Nels and Jens bought it together. Jens drove in the summer and attended school in the winter. Nels drove the winter route. They hauled mail, passengers, produce and everything. The brothers made the trip twice a week, going Monday and returning Tuesday, going Thursday and returning Friday, until the railroad was built in 1881. Then the need for the route led them to discontinue the service.

The hardest trips on the route were in the winter of 1880-81, when snow was deep and temperatures hovered around 35 and 40 below zero much of the time. Mr. Nelsen always got through though, he had to miss Mr. Allen's home on the present site of Allen much of the time for three months due to deep drifts. Once Mr. Allen broke the road with oxen so he could get mail to the station.

Is Lost in Storm: One time Mr. Nelsen's team was lost in the hills west of the Allen home. Mr. Nelsen had passed up the place where he usually got dinner for himself and the team because he saw the storm approaching and was anxious to reach home. In the afternoon the snow became so driving that he was lost. He turned the horses on their own. A short way south Mr. Nelsen recognized a bridge on the North Logan and he knew that Chas. Meyer lived nearby. He drove in and fed the horses from his sleigh in shelter of the house. Mrs. Meyer cooked lunch for Mr. Nelsen. That was about 3 o'clock. Mrs. Meyer advised Mr. Nelsen that it was not fit for a dog to be out, but Mr. Nelsen thought he could get home and started again. About five miles farther south the horses recognized the home of Rev. Mr. Hicks, and in their anxiety to reach the place they crossed the valley and got into the creek. The horses became tangled and one was badly cut. Rev. Hicks helped Mr. Nelsen get the team out and the pastor persuaded Mr. Nelsen to remain. The Hicks family cleared out a wash room to house the horses, and Mr. Nelsen was made comfortable. This was on Tuesday and Mr. Nelsen stayed in the pastor's home until Friday when the storm subsided. He then hitched the team to give the injured mare easy pulling. He reached LaPorte and delivered the mail to Cy Hunter, the postmaster. Residents of LaPorte had organized a searching party which was to start out Saturday to find Mr. Nelsen.

The only unpleasant passenger Mr. Nelsen hauled on the route was a mail detective. When he took the man on at Ponca, Mr. Nelsen did not know who he was. Mr. Nelsen was suspicious. He always kept the first class mail at his feet and when the stage stopped at a country home for dinner Mr. Nelsen took the mail with him and put it under the table. The inspector revealed his identity after reaching LaPorte.

After discontinuing the mail route, Mr. Nelsen devoted his full time to farming. He built his home in 1881, the same year Wayne was established.

Tragedy in Well: Two of Mr. Nelsen's brothers lost their lives in a well tragedy in August, 1887. Pete and Jens Nelsen, who were hitching on a farm near that of Nels Nelsen, decided to clean their well which was 21 feet deep and dry. Pete went down in a bucket tied to a rope. Jens did not hear him so he slid down the rope to see what was wrong. He, too, made no noise. The hired man summoned Nels who slid down the rope. The three were overcome with well mud and Pete and Jens did not live. Nels was taken from the well unconscious but revived after a time.

Mr. Nelsen's most vivid recollection of the grasshoppers is an experience in 1878 when he saw what appeared to be a cloud covering the sun. He thought rain was coming, but soon millions of hoppers covered the ground. They ate everything, even the three-foot tobacco plants which Mr. Nelsen's father had raised. The next day, with a favorable wind, the hoppers disappeared.

Mr. Nelsen also recalls blizzards of the early days. On the day of the well-known storm of January 12, 1888, Mr. Nelsen had walked about a mile to the home of his sister, Mrs. M. S. Englert, as the weather was nice. The swift-approaching storm caught him there and he was obliged to remain until the next day. Mrs. Nelsen kept a lamp burning in the window throughout the night as a guide for her husband.

Mr. Nelsen's many interesting experiences provide a vast fund of recollections which are enjoyable in retrospect.

Mr. Nelsen enjoys fairly good health. Much of the time he spends reading, but he says he really feels better when he makes an occasional trip to town in his model T because it shakes him up all over.

Miss Nell Fox went to Kearney Monday last week to visit Mrs. Jessie Fox and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fox. From there she went to Denver to visit a brother, W. C. Fox. She will go to Columbus to visit another brother, Clifford, before arriving home Monday, September 9.

Speaks at State Fair
 GENERAL Dwight D. Eisenhower counseled the cultivation of understanding and neighborliness among nations of the world as the way to avoid another war. Massing public opinion behind peace may be effective in preserving peace. He emphasized that no one anywhere wants another world conflict. He spoke to a large concourse of people on the opening day of the state fair at Lincoln, and his speech was broadcast to all parts of the nation.

In effect General Eisenhower said our democracy must be upheld, or we would be forced to ruin. He commended the fine qualities of the American boys who have returned from war to innumerable civilian pursuits. Many are enrolling in schools and colleges to gain a deferred education. Many are returning to farms and other points of useful service. He predicted they would make good in the successful struggle for victory. They are basically sound, and they will help keep America basically sound. General Eisenhower who is a mid-westerner—a native of Kansas—felt at home as he again contacted the sturdy citizenry with which he is familiar and which he holds in high favor. At Lincoln he was given an enthusiastic welcome.

Trip Around the World
 FOLLOWING his trip to Manila to witness transfer of the Philippines to the newly organized native government, Senator Hugh Butler of Nebraska, continued around the world, visiting war-devastated Asia and Europe. His report appears in the Congressional Record.

The experience was wonderfully revealing. In many countries he found the blighting effect of inflation, due to excessive government spending. Our government's waste abroad was most shocking. He says: "There is no question in my mind but that much of the relief donated by the American taxpayer has gone to feed the power and wealth of those in control rather than to feed the needy." He mentions an airfield in Arabia, built after the close of the war at a cost of $4,000,000 to American taxpayers. Great quantities of unused equipment were found on the islands of the Pacific.

The senator proposes to probe into reasons for waste, and launch a movement for the exercise of more practical economy in the employment of federal funds.

We are reminded of Wayne's unfinished Memorial park by a story from Chetopa, Kansas, where citizens are urged to complete a public building started before the war, and dedicate it to the memory of local boys who lost their lives fighting for American security. Construction of the building through government aid on the school campus for an auditorium and gymnasium was stopped on the outbreak of hostilities. Now it is up to citizens. Says the Chetopa Advance: "What finer or more appropriate memorial for those 18 boys out there beyond the horizon than to complete the building and dedicate it to them!" And we may here suggest: What could better serve to immortalize the deeds of Wayne county's brave men who lost their lives in the war than to make suitable development of Memorial park?

Labor day brought evidence from inner union labor circles of an intention to cut out strikes and slow-downs and speed up the production sorely needed to supply demands. Due to frequently interrupted work, the country is far behind in reconversion. A year has gone by since the close of the war. Labor-management disagreements have raised Sheel with supply markets. If the unions have now resolved to settle down to business and give the country a chance to recover, we may reasonably look forward to a time of plenty. The recently expressed conclusion that turning out essentials in abundance will justify highest possible wages, makes sense. Closer cooperation between management and labor will manifestly tend to a sound economy.

Last week a story came out of Washington that production was back to normal and unemployment was reduced to a minimum. This does not tally with scarcities felt in all markets. Either the reporter got his wires crossed or we are on the verge of plenty. We hope for the latter, but fear the former.

A printer writing for a trade publication savagely denounced the quality of newspaper plants as a reason for difficulty in securing competent help. He calls them junk heaps. He says he is sorry he did not take up blacksmithing, and we suspect he is now better fitted for that than for printing.

Music Czar Petrillo has lately proved a giant nuisance in wrecking the plans of a number of fairs. He ordered cancellation of a contract with a Mexican musical group at one California point to the utter defeat of the program. Congress should sit down hard on tyrants of the Petrillo stripe.

At this time when peace should be the theme and good will the rule, we note with painful frequency that when one does not agree with another he charges him with being tainted by some distasteful brand of alienism.

The stealthy enemy who bores from underneath is more to be abhorred and shunned than the one who shoots from the open and does not try to conceal his ugly identity.

Labor day and the preceding week-end took a toll of 300 fatal accidents, 200 of them due to automobile driving. The total reached the maximum predicted.

Russia acts suspiciously peculiar for a country that is anxious for peace.

ALBION NEWS SELLS.
 Glenn Cramer, well-known Nebraska editor and publisher, is retiring from the Albion News which he purchased in 1918 from the founder, A. W. Ladd. Previously since 1907, Mr. Cramer was connected with the newspaper, and received an abundance of sound preliminaries from Mr. Ladd. In his farewell, Mr. Cramer explains that in thirty-nine years he has had only one week's vacation, and has not missed more than five press days. A circulation of 1,200 grew to 3,000. He has worked like a Trojan to fashion an outstanding rural weekly, dedicated to public service. Secondly and deservedly he has received generous material rewards. Enough downs were sprinkled in with the ups to give zest and fire endeavor. Drouth and new deal jangling contributed liberally to the former. "We are quitting now only because we are tired," says Mr. Cramer. He expects to remain in Albion, and plans to keep busy. Of the newspaper field, he has learned it should be more than a medium for advertising and news. He says, "We believe that above all it should seek to build character into the community in which it operates." We extend best wishes to him in whatever he engages, and congratulations to his successor who has acquired a notably valuable newspaper.

SENATOR BUTLER.
 Senator Hugh Butler, who is often misunderstood, perhaps because he does not make a big noise, is treated fairly in the following editorial from the Hastings Tribune: "Two years ago after Nebraska's United States Senator, Hugh Butler, returned from a trip to South America with criticism of the lavish spending of New Deal agencies, the leftwing newspaper columnists attacked him as an 'isolationist'. The senator lately has returned from Europe and has voiced the opinion that UNRRA shipments to China were graft-ridden and that this country was being played for a sucker through its direct relief and loan programs. These comments undoubtedly will cause a renewal of the attack upon the Nebraska senator. Anyone who knows Hugh Butler personally and studies his public utterances realizes that he simply is reporting what he sees through the eyes of a practical, midwestern businessman. In common with most Americans, he has an abhorrence of seeing money wasted. He thinks the Americans are entitled to a square deal for their tax money, whether it be at home or abroad. As a result, it is difficult for him to trail along with the free-handed expenditures which the leftwingers feel is necessary for the execution of their noble preachments. If Senator Butler's concern about the waste of public money is 'isolationism', as some of his foes claim, then perhaps we need a few more men like him in the Senate. Our own guess, especially in view of the vote the senator received in the recent primary, is that the state is pretty well satisfied with him and will send him back to office for another term, which in our opinion is very much deserved."

TALK OF THE TOWN

Such cloth smooth for all-occasion wear. High-peaked lapels give becoming interest to the trimly tailored lines of this officer's coat. There's just a sly hint of the new over-all fullness. Sleeves faithfully follow fashion's order for greater width. Perfect to wear over your suits and sportswear. Ideal, too, with your informal "dress up" ensembles. Snugly warm for all-winter wear—and on into spring.

Gives Wife Medal For Safe Driving

Trains Are Too Slow Way Of Travel for Veteran Of Civil War.

Mrs. Beatrice Ingles of Chicago, proudly displayed her new gold medal to friends. Her husband, James, thought she deserved one for driving the family automobile 300,000 miles in 25 years without scratching a fender or getting a ticket, so he had a medal made and presented it to her in a ceremony at their home. The ceremony: "Here, dear." "Thanks, darling."

"I'm 101 years old, but I want to work," pleaded a man who called on Mayor Beurnard J. Dowd at Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Dowd says the man identified himself as Charles E. Mumford and explained, "I can't get along on my pension and I'm in good shape to work." The mayor was sorry, but the 70-year-old age limit for city employees forced him to turn down the hardy centenarian.

Charles L. Chappel of Long Beach, Cal., who says he will be the only member of the California Nevada GAR department at the 50th encampment in Indianapolis, plans to go by plane. "Trains are too slow," says the 99-year-old Mr. Chappel.

"Box" Virgil Kline "bulldozed" a 17-pound carp in the Wabash river at Huntington, Ind. He was working with a minnow seine when the big fish swam under the net. He pinned it between his legs and held it in spite of its squirming until others helped him land it.

Police Traffic Sgt. Bill Thien of San Diego, Cal., admittedly sympathetic to husbands, came up with this information: Ten times as many men are injured hurrying home from work between 4 and 5:59 as meet mishaps going to the job between 7 and 8:59 a. m.

Four-year-old Dickey Carl's turn finally came to get into the barber chair at Hastings, Neb. Then he took a look at the shiny-domed barber and refused to go through with it. "I'm afraid I'll look like him," Dickey explained.

At Arkansas City, Kan., L. M. Taylor, 79, retired minister, tired of waiting for a new car, decided to create his own 1946 model. He installed a new 60-horsepower engine in a 1936 Model T and says the jalopy "runs like a dream." He plans to drive the car to California.

Shriest Henry Nulle of Woodstock, Ill., is on the prowl for some husky thieves. They stole a 300-pound white statue of a lion from Alured Seyterth, a manufacturer of statues.

An "unruly" parrot was jailed by Denver police for disturbances. Capt. E. S. Davis said the bird was put in a cell after a cleaning shop operator reported she wandered into his establishment and "attacked" Kenneth Richards, an employee. Mr. Davis said the parrot was refusing to talk until her lawyer or owner arrived.

A combination of rum and nylons was frowned upon by the OPA in Fort Worth Tex. A suit was

WILLIAM S. NELSON

It is with a great deal of satisfaction that I am able to announce to our policyholders and friends that Mr. William S. Nelson has accepted a contract with The Northwestern Mutual in Northeast Nebraska.

For some time the need for additional help in the district agent's office has been felt. The service work involved in caring for approximately 2500 policyholders and $7,000,000 of business in force is considerable and Mr. Nelson's assistance will be very welcome.

Mr. Nelson brings to our agency a good education, several years of fine experience in financial work, and a lot of native ability, intelligence and personality.

His service experience was in the Navy, from which he was separated in February, 1946. His many friends in Northeast Nebraska will be glad to know that he has decided to identify himself with our business community and make his home in Wayne. His preparation and background assure him of success in the life insurance business.

To those who are awaiting delivery of their New Oldsmobiles

Series '70' Club Sedan. GM Hydra-Matic Drive optional at extra cost.

A Word of Appreciation... and a Suggestion, too!

We know how anxious you are to get your new Oldsmobile. And there's nothing we'd like better to do, right now, than to say to every Oldsmobile buyer: "Your car is here. Come get it!"

But frankly, it just isn't possible to do that. There still aren't enough new Oldsmobiles to go around. Due to shortages in materials and unavoidable limitations on production, the output of new cars still is behind schedule. And our allotments are far below the figures that we originally anticipated.

We want to assure you, however, that everything possible is being done, both here and at the factory, to get your car in your hands promptly. And we'd like to take this occasion to thank you sincerely for the patient and considerate way in which you have borne with us during this period of waiting.

Meanwhile, we have an important suggestion: Don't neglect the car you drive today.

The usual summer increase in long distance calling is much greater this year than ever before. This up-surge of calls on top of the already heavily loaded lines is increasing the number of calls that are being delayed.

New facilities are being added as fast as possible in order to bring long distance service back to prewar speeds and even faster. Acute material shortages are making this task difficult. In the meantime you usually will get faster service if you place your calls before 9 A. M. or after 3 P. M.
