

Educational Needs Are Being Sought

Miss Gretta Hackenberg, president of Wayne branch of AAUW, received an appeal for educational materials to be sent to devastated countries. Such supplies as pencils, pens, tablets, cards, notebooks and maps are needed, and these may be left at the Wayne Herald office for shipment overseas.

Articles given during November will be sent to Greece, Italy, Poland, Austria, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and countries in southern Europe. Gifts between December and March go to China, Ethiopia and Korea.

AAUW has been asked to help in the task of educational reconstruction in the very real emergency confronting Europe and the far east.

Looking Forward

HAROLD Stassen, former-governor of Minnesota, and mentioned among others for the republican presidential nomination in 1948, has expressed the opinion that result of the late election was more a challenge than a victory. We think the average voter is eager for dismissal of numerous government burdens. Dissolving bureaucracies and getting rid of unnecessary payrolls appeal as essential. People have been galleyed by government meddling. They will expect a balanced budget and soundly constructive policies. Speaking of the Stassen position the Lincoln Journal says: "Stassen, never one to speak idly, foresees the election of a republican president two years hence, only if the party meanwhile carries on a "progressive and humanitarian" campaign. He is hopeful of the young blood in congress, and looks to it to develop the party into a constructive force.

"There is something sobering, yet encouraging, in the common spirit in which the situation is being accepted. The times are too big, the issues too weighty, for the winners of this election to sit back and preen themselves. The shouting and the tumult never died faster.

"Republicans well know they must prove their superiority if they are to continue in control, must offer something positive to that battered but persistent entity, the citizen, or their time in the sun will be short. It's fine to see this so well realized. Who knows, America may be growing up."

AN editorial in Tuesday's Omaha World-Herald says Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan scored 67.5 per cent of the votes in that state in the late election. That figure, based on the finding of Elmo Roper, poll taker, is reported the highest vote percentage in the nation among home folks.

A little inquiry into Nebraska's returns would show that Senator Hugh Butler captured 70 1/2 per cent of the Nebraska electorate. The senator carried 91 of the 92 Nebraska counties in the primary and 93 in the election. The only exception, Saline, went to his opponent.

When considering home support, the surpassing record of the Nebraska senator should not be overlooked. The World-Herald does not need to go far outside its own immediate neighborhood to find an object of worthy distinction. And judging results, Senator Butler's record manifestly contains ample ground for practical appeal.

The one who puts the most into life, gets the most out of it. That is an often expressed truth. The one who lives purely for self, doing nothing to ease the burden on others or contribute to the pleasure of others, will in time find himself impoverished spiritually. Dollars and cents are not so important as values that are unseen but felt. Conscience is quick to respond to kindness, and it furnishes one's richest reward.

Speaking of Spain as no worse than Yugoslavia and other Russian satellites, Louis Bromfield, columnist, says: "Molotov and Stalin, who seem to be following the nazi pattern of humbuggery so closely, might well pause and consider. It might be a good idea for them to forget Franco until they clean house in Yugoslavia, in Bulgaria, in Poland, in Romania, and get out the vacuum cleaner in the Kremlin itself."

The woman who wrote "The Egg and I" would appear to have left nothing unsaid to discredit chicken ranches in the state of Washington. She pulled no punches, and she did not hesitate to portray her husband as selfish and hard-boiled. As a best seller and widely read, her book would make one hesitate to go into the mountain forests to raise chickens or anything else.

Wayne county's soil conservation winners, result of the World-Herald's statewide contest, is gratifying to people of this area. The victory brings satisfaction to the county as well as to the ones who scored high. It shows practical headway in a vital practice. The victors have engaged in soil conservation successfully for a long time, and results have amply warranted the effort.

Rural electrification has been a boon to farm populations. Its light and power have reduced drudgery. It has made life on the farm more convenient and therefore more attractive. Now graveled roads in promoting facility in travel from farm to market will solve another serious problem.

The late proposed school amendment lost in every county in the state, and the anti-closed shop amendment scored a majority in all but four counties—Douglas, Lancaster, Hall and Box Butte. We can understand labor influences in Omaha, Lincoln and Grand Island, but we cannot understand what was going on in Alliance, capital city of Box Butte.

Vari-colored lights will soon decorate downtown Wayne to enliven the Christmas spirit. Green appropriate to the season will be in evidence. Gala attire will breathe good cheer. It is hoped America's observance of the peace-loving occasion will influence nations in the world in the direction of permanent amity and good will.

An early beginning of winter weather with heavy snows is not unprecedented. The year 1880-1881 furnished an outstanding example. Show covered the ground to a considerable depth in October and remained with frequent additions until the next May. Then devastating floods accompanied its disappearance.

Floods in and around Los Angeles remind us that the Los Angeles river must now be having the unusual experience of containing some water. In mid-summer, the guide points to the wide, deep, waterless cavity as the Los Angeles river. At rare intervals it lives up to its name. It is evidently doing that now.

At certain critical junctures in their presidential tenures President Lincoln and President Wilson are said to have thought of resigning. A similar suggestion has been conveyed to the present incumbent. And he will no doubt follow Lincoln and Wilson precedents—stick.

The aesthetic business of the Hollywood motion picture colony is terribly outraged by strikes and bombings. An infusion of good will and good nature would seem in order.

NO PARTISAN POLICY

Sioux City Journal: Today as the powers maneuver diplomatically in efforts to get certain world problems solved, Washington's foreign policy is one resulting from bipartisan study and approval. It is not a democratic policy in the partisan sense, one reflecting only the thought and judgment of the party in power. Instead it is a coalition policy, and it therefore is more American, really, than it might be if developed politically by partisan individuals occupying position of public trust.

In some quarters there is a disposition to demand that the republicans as they return to power, which means that as they win a presidential election, develop a foreign policy of their own. This would be to formulate a republican foreign policy, one identified with partisan sentiment, principle, thought, feeling and conviction. Such a suggestion could come only from persons who were convinced that the Byrnes-Truman-Vandenberg foreign policy was not bipartisan in character but strictly was democratic politically.

It must be apparent from any unprejudiced study of the world situation and application to it of an American foreign policy that it behooves this nation to combine major party strength, influence, ability and diplomacy in both political organizations in describing and delineating the attitude of the United States toward other nations. Surely the problems are sufficiently important to demand solutions arrived at not by republicans or democrats alone but by a more formidable combination of both. In which case the foreign policy would be more truly American and also more impressive both at home and abroad.

TIMELY.

It is high time for the public to call a halt to labor union impositions as practiced in large centers. This wild extremity of group domination is emphasized in a story in the current Saturday Evening Post. "They're Kind to Employers" is the title, and it reveals what would seem intolerable employer-employee relationships. Specific reference is made to the stagehands' union. The member reaps extravagant pay for doing little. He moves a chair into place and picks up scraps of paper. No non-member is allowed to do either. It insures plenty of leisure for the stagehand who has too much time to spend at club houses and otherwise to do nothing. Excessive spare time with no personal responsibility is debilitating and maiming. The Post's story is one striking proof. Life's obligations must weigh sufficiently to fire the spirit of worthwhile achievement.

America On the Move.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: In only three years, the record reveals, 27,000,000 persons in the United States left home for somewhere else. Of these, 12,000,000 left for military service, mostly. We gather an involuntary migration. And most of the rest left for what promised to be better jobs at more pay. Something like 99.9 per cent of this shifting could be credited to the war, directly or indirectly. But now the war is over, has been for a year and it is time for people to settle down and take root. Some are finding that out, as they have, tested what appeared to be greener pastures and found neither job nor place to live.

The best place to live and work is not a matter of geography. Happiness knows no locale.

Miss Bonadine Wobberhoist of Beiden, and Harold Dirks of Coleridge, were married November 2. They will live at Hartington where Mr. Dirks is a mechanic.

FAITHLESS.

A Russian who occupied a high place in the soviet government, but, shocked and goaded by injustices and a false show, escaped to this country, and thus freed, wrote a book detailing his experiences and observations. The recital appears in condensed form in a current magazine. The author pictured a condition of treachery, want and misery. He showed the Russian subjects are helpless victims of soulless leadership. Ruling heads dare to go to any length to build fear and enforce obedience. They promise one thing and do another. They put on a mask of pretense in dealing with more powerful nations, but are utterly cold-blooded in treatment of their own people or of others who are terrified by them. They are proving themselves the boldest double-dealers extant. Until the soviet union becomes humane, other governments will do well to keep prepared.

benefit not only yourselves, but the community and the nation as well."

Worthy Action.

It is encouraging to note that Chancellor R. G. Gustavson of the University of Nebraska is opposing the issuance of licenses to sell liquor by the drink in West Lincoln which is near the big educational institution. He wants to move temptation as far away as possible. He is painfully cognizant of the much imbibing of hard liquor by students already.

National Champion Twirler Instructs

Geo. R. Rhoades and Local Students Give Program Saturday Night.

The skilled art of baton twirling was featured Saturday evening when Geo. R. Rhoades of Kansas City, national champion, and Wayne city school students appeared in a public demonstration at the auditorium. Mr. Rhoades, a dentist by profession who does twirling as an avocation, instructed the girls of the city school in the art all day Saturday. The performance at night closed with torch twirling. Mr. Rhoades was brought here through the efforts of Miss Hazel Reeve, who instructs local twirlers.

The band, directed by A. J. Atkins, and the girls' chorus and triple trio, led by G. L. Campbell, presented numbers.

On behalf of the twirlers, Patty Jeffrey presented Miss Reeve with a corsage. Mr. Rhoades complimented the local work as some of the best he has ever witnessed.

Mr. Rhoades flew to Sioux City Friday night and was met there by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Kollmorgen. He left on his return Sunday.

Mr. Rhoades and Miss Reeve were Sunday dinner guests at M. C. Russell's and evening dinner guests at Herbert L. Kollmorgen's.
