Russia of Russian citizenship means comes from the country. Whether the Russian form of government is correctly called communism or something else, it is certainly totalitarian, intolerable and unthinkable. It bears no relationship to the ideology of free America. This from the York Republican:

This from the York Republican:

"Have you learned what the Russian citizen under communistic rule cannot do? Notice alfew of his prohibitions; He may not own lands he cannot be tried by a jury of his peers; he cannot choose his own job; he may not voluntarily absent himself from work; he may not strike; he may not employ labor; he may not travel; he is forbidden freedom of speech, freedom of assembly; freedom of reflight or freedom of soul. He belongs soul and bedy to the state.

"That is the type of government we Amerfeans; cannot suffer to be engrafted in this country. But mere negation is not enough.
Every citizen must be constantly on guard supporting every measure to halt the further infiltration of communism before its crafty agents fasten it on us while we are not looksing."

Gov. Earl Warren of California, says money put into reclamation projects is an investment, whereas money paid to un-necessary government employees is waste.

Where Tax
Belongs

A SHARE of the gasoline tax for the state assistance fund was called an emergency measure, as pointed out by the Norfolk Daily News, but was originally intended for road improvement. The proposed Schroeder road graveling law would use the fund contributed by motorists, and let the assistance demand find support in some other way. The News observes in conclusion:

"The legislators by a large majority have said that they propose to go along on the original plan. A cut in the money available for rural route roads would have been unpopular with the farmers who are looking to the Schroeder plan to help get them out of the mod.

Futile

IN his Editor Cramb cracks down on what he calls "percentage boys, chair warmers," who like to take pencils and pads in hand to figure things out with conclusions that do not match with actual experience. The editor goes on to say:

"For instance, a writer for a magazine says: "Figures never lie. For example if one man can build a house in not eday. And 288 men could build it in one hour, 17,389 in one minuite, and 1,036,800 in one second.
"Another conclusion is like this: "If one ship can cross it in one day."

"But the conclusions arrived at by the percentage boys are somewhat the same as the above. Figures don't lie but those who use them to bolster up their opinions, help them hold down an casy lob, can twist them around until they are absard, foolish."

Instead of heading for a stalemate in around until they are absurd, feolish."

Instead of heading for a stalemate in any vital legislation now before congress and thus defeating and nettling an expectant public, Roscoe Drummond of the Christian Science Monitor, refers to the counsel of Harold Stassen, presidential candidate, who urges the president and lawmakers to agree on islation, and then take later for consideration and decision. No headway in handling important labor or foreign problems would hurt both the executive and the congress.

A pictorial pamphlet setting forth the advantages of Boys' Ranch Camp near Curtis, under auspices of the University of Nebraska School of Agriculture, appeals to us as ideal for boys who relish the great outdoors and enjoy healthful but unpolished life akin to that of the frontier. They learn to handle and care for horses and cattle, and take part in swimming, baseball and other sports. The camp opens this year June 16 and closes August 9.

Harold Stassen, former Minnesota govnarous stassen, former Minnesota governor, is quoted as saying he might accept the republican party's vice presidential nomination if the right man were chosen for first place and if the platform proved acceptable to him. But his hat is still in the ring for the presidential nomination, and second place will logically await developments.

EIRE CHILDREN

The recent poll to ascertain British opinions of Americans revealed a preponderance to the effect that we are still just children, "immature emotionally and intellectually, boastful and flamboyant, bad-mannered and full of intolerance to any minority group." Be that as it. may, we have been sufficiently grown up for 150 years to defend our union of states and to rescue other nations from threats of totalitarian slavery. The poll also pictured Americans as "simple and ingenuous, impulsive and uninhibited, friendly, kind-hearted and generous, with vigor and enterprise." We could be worse. The Christian Science Monitor comments in part: "Europe today is full of children who are old in experience, in suffering, in disillusionment. Some of them have seen the fresh enthusiasm and kindness fo American 'boys.' They need pitifully to learn how to be
