FARM INCOMES ARE REPORTED LARGEST FOR EIGHT MONTHS

A REPORT from the agricultural department in Washington says American farmers took in more money during the first eight months of this year than at any equal period in history. The total realized is given at $17,400,000,000—a 21 per cent gain over the same months in 1946, a record year. Livestock products account for $10,800,000,000 in farm incomes, a 30 per cent increase over the first eight months last year. Unprecedented small grain production, selling at high prices, has been a big boost. Unusual world demand has been a strong stimulant. But farming is far from all profit. The farmer's expenses have gone up, and he pays high prices for what he buys.

Kugler Building To Be Remodeled

Modernizing of Main Street
Structure Is Started
Here Saturday.

Remodeling and modernizing of the Henry Kugler electric building at 106 Main street started Saturday, with Karl Otte as contractor. An entire new front will be placed on the two-story structure. The aim is to have this completed before winter. The lower floor will be refinished for Mr. Kugler's store and the upstairs will be converted into two apartments.

The entire front has been dismantled. The steps and pillars which have been on the building will be removed. A steel I-beam above the first story will carry the second story flush with the street. Light tan brick pillars will be at either side and the front of the second story will be finished in this brick.

Outside stairs at the north will lead to the apartments. The large glass display window will be flush with the street at the north and slant in to a depth of four feet near the south where the door will be placed. Glass in this center window will extend to within six inches of the floor and the space is designed especially for display of large electrical equipment. At the southeast corner of the building, joining the door with the south wall, will be curved glass display window, elevated about three feet from the floor. This rounding display space will be for small appliances. Structural glass will trim the lower story and Mr. Kugler hopes to use this in ivory and wine colors.

When the interior is remodeled, the floor will be lowered to street level. The plan calls for two apartments on the second floor. Each will have living room, kitchen and bath. One will have two and the other one bedroom.

Papers Are Best Source of News

College and Community Are Mutually Benefited by Honest Publicity.

Newspapers are the best source of publicity because of their natural appeal to readers, and as a rule editors are highly trained and give reliable information in a well organized manner. Prof. Louis Ingley, new instructor and publicist director at Wayne State College, made this statement Monday in addressing Kiwanians. Radio is the second best means of information and its services should be used when possible. Radio is intriguing and spot newscasts are most favored. Speaking, music and art are other valuable means of communication.

Prof. Ingley, who came here from Greeley, Colo., explained that writing and speaking used to be the main means of communicative art. Now the art has been broadened to include anything that helps to present an idea to others. Papers, radio, dramatics, television, painting and music are some of the arts.

Years ago the arts tried to duplicate things and situations. Music, painting and writing now attempt to arouse emotional attitudes and ideas. Prof. Ingley cited Edgar Allen Poe's work as literature of power and of knowledge. Power is to move and knowledge is to inform.

Newspapers give ideas and information, the speaker stated. Good publicity is honest and factual. The college and community are mutually benefited by this type of information. "We should seek publicity that makes for the training of good teachers and gives Wayne a good name, and the community may well do the same."

The speaker was introduced by Henry Ley.

Three Days of County Fair
Will Be Packed Full of Features for All.

Three days and nights jam-packed with outstanding entertainment are in store this week Thursday, Friday and Saturday for families in this area who attend the annual Wayne county fair in Wayne.

Wednesday (entry day) was devoted to bringing in entries for the various competitive departments, setting up exhibits, stands and the midway, and making all the last-minute arrangements necessary for a successful fair. Albert Bahr, manager of the fair, Monday spoke with enthusiasm of the entertainment program arranged for the fair's final three days. He said representatives of the local agricultural show attended the Stanton county fair Sunday night and returned with glowing reports of the performance put on by Jimmie Lynch and his Death Dodgers, who will be featured here today (Thursday).

Mr. Bahr also recommended the performances of Carmita, high aerial artist, who will appear all three days, and the Riding Hannefordis, who will show Saturday only. He said many other attractions are equally outstanding.

Mr. Bahr pointed out that interest is growing in the local horse race programs, scheduled Friday and Saturday. Several Wayne county horse owners who are expected to enter were observed last week-end trying out their horses and ponies on the local track.

Considerable interest also is being shown in the horse pulling contest which will take place about 4 p. m. Friday. Many entries already have been received and more are expected, Mr. Bahr declared.

This year's farm machinery exhibit will be much larger than last year, the manager said. He also said the midway, which was expected to be in full operation by Wednesday night, is outstanding. It will be far larger than the midway at the ideal fair the last two years.

All school children will be admitted to the ground free on Friday, children's day. Extra entertainment planned for this day will include an exhibition of baton twirling by members of the local high school band. This will be their first appearance in their new uniforms. Another children's day attraction will be Donnie Osborne, 9 son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Osborne of Wayne, who will perform with his trained pony.

Saturday has been designated as veterans' day. All veterans of World Wars I and II will be admitted to the grounds free. Veterans are requested to wear their discharge emblems, service caps or uniforms.

Dancing at the fairgrounds is scheduled every night of the fair, including Wednesday, featuring Bobbie Downs and his 10-piece orchestra. Other musical entertainment will include daily afternoon and evening concerts by the Wayne 60-piece band.

Another big feature of the fair scheduled for Saturday afternoon is a huge 4-H club parade at 1:30 in front of the grandstand.

School Insures Local Athletes

Football and Basketball
Funds Give Protection
To All Players.

The Nebraska High School Activities association and member schools have expanded the program of insurance for high school athletes and thus have removed one of the biggest objections to participation in inter-school contests. Wayne high school is providing this insurance for all boys.

Under the athletic accident benefit plan, a schedule of benefits has been set up so that each participant knows the amount collectible for all types of injuries which might occur in the various sports programs. All parents of boys playing football and basketball at Wayne high school have received this schedule of benefits.

Wayne city school has a different procedure this year in regard to this insurance program. The high school is paying all the insurance premiums out of football and basketball funds. The school has adopted the policy that any costs beyond the coverage of the insurance policy should be borne by the parents of the participant.

Wayne Attorney Works in Germany

Russell Bartels, Wayne attorney who went to Germany a year ago as a member of the war crimes staff, is now enforcement attorney for trade practices. He writes from Berlin August 22 of his work as follows:
"It has been almost a year since I landed in Germany. Some of my friends will probably be interested to learn of my experiences in that time. At first I was attached to the war crimes headquarters at Wiesbaden and Augsburg. Later I went to the control section at Dachau. In April of this year I resigned from the war crimes staff and joined the economics division of the U. S. military government here in Berlin. I was assigned to the decartelization branch, to which I am still attached, and given the position of enforcement attorney for trade practices. More recently I have been promoted to senior compliance attorney.

"Decartelization is somewhat akin to anti-trust work in the United States. At present time my work has to do with the 'deconcentration' of some of the largest and most important industrial and commercial corporate empires in the world. It has been amazing to discover the extent to which the economy of Europe in general and Germany in particular is controlled. The international ramifications of some of the big concerns was not so startling, but none-the-less interesting. International corporation law is certainly a fascinating field.

"During the past year my work has enabled me to travel to every part of Germany, outside of the Russian zone and to become familiar with most of its major cities. Of these, I enjoy Berlin most of all. I have also come to know a few of the German people. Being connected with military government enables one to acquire some insight to the problems which confront us over here.

"I had several interesting visits with former Governor Griswold, before he left to head the mission to Greece. Judge Carter is at Nuremberg sitting on one of the tribunals. I have met a few other Nebraskans over here.

"I have returned from a tour of Switzerland on which I drove to all of the major cities of that litle country. The international trade conference was in session in the League of Nations buildings at the time. I was in Geneva, I drove over both the St. Gotthard and Furka Passes in the Alps and past the Susthor and Rhone Glaciers. The number of American made automobiles is surprising in a country where gasoline costs 75 cents per gallon. I enjoyed this four more than any other I have taken and certainly intend to return to Switzerland for an extended visit some day.

"In the meantime I am looking forward to the time when I shall return to Wayne and be able to visit my friends there."

Turn to Silage
H. J. GRAMLICH, general agricultural agent of the Northwestern railway system, urges salvaging corn fields that are too badly damaged by drought to yield grain profitably, by cutting for silage. He says:

The lack of rain over most of the corn belt during July and August has resulted in much damaged corn. Many fields will possess their greatest value if cut and made into silage. To produce this maximum value they should be cut before getting too dry and it is possible that such silage may have a relative feeding value of $20.00 per ton. With this in mind it is a shame to let any of these fields stand until winds and fall rains have whipped practically all feed value out of the plants. If one finds it impossible to erect more silos, either permanent or temporary, at this time, it would be well to consider piling some of this silage in stacks, in the same manner as hay. This practice has been tested and found to be very satisfactory. Tractors will not only furnish power but help stack the silage. Canning factories have for years preserved pea vines and refuse in this manner.

With grains of all kinds at very high levels and short supplies available, together with the attractive price for cattle and sheep, it is entirely possible that saving some of the drought damaged corn fields in the form of silage will prove to be one of the most profitable ventures of the year. It is surprising how well cattle will do on this silage if fed in addition to two pounds per day of protein meal and a little hay. The American people have become used to "near" beef during the war and post-war period and will continue to show a strong interest in this kind of beef during the next twelve months.

Protect the Children
Dwight Havens, president of the Nebraska state safety council, and Captain C. J. Sanders of the state safety patrol today issued a warning to motorists to watch for school buses on our highways. The law asks that every operator of a motor vehicle stop when he sees a school bus loading or unloading school children on the highway. Motorists are asked to be alert for children popping out from behind or in front of the buses and running across the highway to their homes. It is hoped to avoid a repetition of last September's fatalities when nine children of school age were killed.

In a current magazine two articles appeared, taking opposite sides on feelings toward parents. One girl tried to explain why she liked her parents, and another why she didn't. We concluded neither of ferred exceptionally sound reasoning. One complained of too much parental direction, too much planning for young lives that ought to learn to be self-dependent. The other expressed gratitude for helpful counsel. Some parents are no doubt too strict; others not strict enough. Likes and dislikes would seem to depend largely on the state of temperament.

Official Washington has made headway in pacifying the world and fortifying against the soviet union which seems to be the chief threat to peace. Alliance with South American countries is a source of strength and encouragement. It is made plain that this country is anxiously striving to avoid war, but does not propose to be caught unprepared for possible attack. Nor do the Russian rank and file want war. They are kept in ignorance and slavery by unscrupulous leaders.

A terribly costly disaster was the prairie fire that swept 500 square miles of farms and ranches in central South Dakota last Saturday, killing 3,000 head of cattle. An army of fire fighters worked desperately to subdue the devouring flames. Fortunately no human lives were lost. At least one radio report attributed the fire to a carelessly dropped cigaret. Most smokers are careful, enough are forgetful of consequences to threaten appalling results.

Writing for his Wahoo newspaper, W. T. Pickett announces that his newspaper has just completed its seventy-second year. It was started to assist a bond issue in persuading the Union Pacific railroad to cross Saunders county. In 1895 Thomas J. Pickett bought the newspaper, and in 1923 sold it to his son, the present publisher. The record shows the Picketts at the Wasp's helm for over fifty years.

When Mohandas K. Gandhi wants to emphasize his disagreement over policies or conditions in India he takes to fasting. He has been doing it again lately in an endeavor to bring harmony into relations between Moslems and Hindus. With food prices sky-high, Gandhi would appear to have struck the right time to cut off food.

One editor questions the wisdom of predicting the number likely to be killed in traffic accidents during a holiday weekend. A prediction is made as a warning in the hope of more careful motoring. The death record over the Labor holiday considerably exceeded predictions.

Resumption of Wayne's numerous women's club meetings with programs planned for the year, suggests reopening of enlarged sources of information and social enjoyment. Wayne has enough clubs to satisfy all demands, and they are liberal contributors to useful lives.

Nation's Business attributes a large measure of Great Britain's difficulties to the socialistic policies which have "sapped initiative, discouraged capitalist enterprise and replaced emphasis on the creation of wealth by emphasis on distributing equitably what is not being produced."

Thoughts expressed are powerful instruments for good or ill. Soft-pedaling bad things in life and finding and emphasizing ground for encouragement prove wonderfully sustaining. It is just as easy to find something that will help and avoid something that will hurt.

We would guess that the higher food prices soar, the sooner will the price spiral take a sudden dip downward.

WEEDLESS WORLD
The Sioux City Journal welcomes the prediction made by Dr. Robert F. Sweet, scientist of Cornell university, that we are moving toward a weedless world. The Journal comments: "Cheaper and more foods would be possible, explained Dr. Sweet with weeds eliminated. He said their eradication was 'our only hope' for greater food production. Incidentally food crops of higher excellence as to quality could be had. Hay fever sufferers will be interested in Dr. Sweet's prediction. Ragweed, considered the greatest source of the pollen to which hay fever victims are allergic, has not yet surrendered to the 2-4-D, nor have chickweed and quack grass, but Dr. Sweet insists they will be brought under control. A weedless world in which to live would be wonderful for everybody. May science go on with its research work to bring this to pass."

LIVESTOCK BASE
Speaking of surpassing attendance and heightened interest in state fairs—doubtless also applying to county fairs—the Omaha Journal-Stockman explains: "How can this be in a year as unfavorable to the production of some crops as this has been, a stranger might ask. The answer, as any native well knows, is a simple one—livestock. Rural residents of Iowa, Nebraska and the surrounding states discovered long ago that only through over-investigation and the marketing of most of what they produced through stock could they surmount the many natural and economic hazards that beset their business. Livestock carried them through the depression of the early thirties and the drought which followed right on its heels. Livestock, and the crops on which it is fed, have enabled farmers to increase the fertility of their soil as the years went along. And livestock will see them through any difficulties that may arise as a result of post-war readjustment or weather as unfavorable in many respects as this year's has been. The reason, then, for the excellence of current fairs and shows is that they are primarily livestock exhibitions. As long as that situation prevails, the Middle West has little cause for worry."

To the hemline controversy, we say GO YOUR OWN SWEET WAY

This is our viewpoint on a fashion season so debatable that even the men are talking about it! At Larson's we believe what we have been saying right along is truer than ever: Sheep are out of fashion, and the day of fashion herding is done. The new clothes are so varied, abundant and intriguing that you have the opportunity of a lifetime to dress to suit your own looks, likes and life.

Take the much discussed hemline, for instance. We don't think for a second that well-dressed women will be hobbled on the streets of Wayne by suit skirts a mere foot from the ground. Actually (though skirts are generally longer) the hemline question isn't just one of more inches, at all. Skirt lengths will differ according to the occasion, fabric, silhouette and — most of all — you. And, believe us, the shoulder pad question is a personal thing, too.

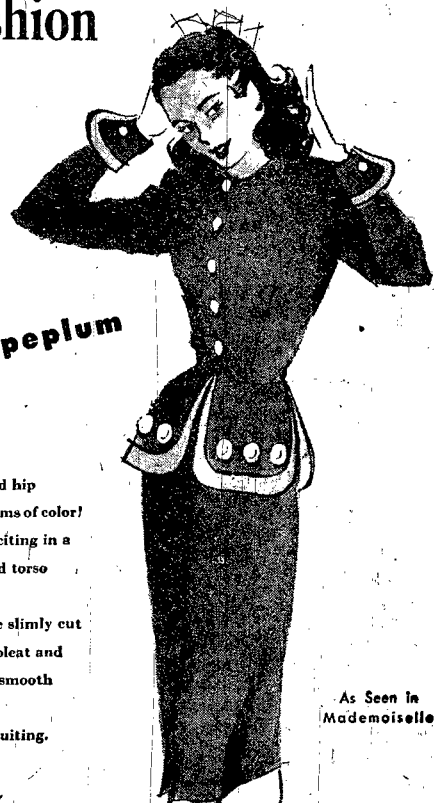

The hand-span waist is important but wrap-around coats and suits deny it. The voluminous skirt looks new but so does the straight and narrow, or the figure revealing sheath. And a fabulous variety in line and length to wear after 5 p. m., make it possible to achieve precisely the degree of formality you want.

It's all part of a new era in fashion, an emancipation from fashion dictatorship. In a season of such leeway, it's a good idea to choose your clothes at a fashion store of authority and a high standard of taste. We advise you to go your own sweet way when you select from our collections, which are more than ever dedicated to you, the individual. Because at Larson's . . .

YOU ARE THE FASHION

Qualified Under the Law

Nebraska law is strict in the qualifications demanded of an applicant for a license to sell and operate a tavern. The applicant must declare under oath that he meets all the requirements. He is subject to a public hearing on his application, where licensing officials and citizens may examine his fitness for the responsibility of licensure.

The strict requirements of the Nebraska law are all to the good and largely account for the fact that most Nebraska beer retailers rate well as citizens and businessmen.

The Nebraska Committee fully approves and supports strict requirements for licenses — just as it supports all laws and rules of good conduct to keep beer retailing on the highest possible plane.
