NUMBER THIRTY-SIX

Senator Norris Schroeder—

Tells of Legislators' Problems

State Senator Norris Schroeder, addressed the Wayne Woman's club Friday at the regular meeting. He chose as the subject of an impromptu speech, "What Makes a Bill Become a Law?"

Schroeder is widely known throughout the state as the author of the rural route improvement bill. To show the procedure necessary in making a bill, the speaker gave the history of the rural route bill.

After having studied road maps, he decided there was only one basis on which to base road improvements and that was the rural routes. He sent out over 760 letters to rural carriers in regard to conditions of their routes. He received 701 replies, and after that he talked with many of the carriers personally.

Financing Was Big Problem.—The big question was how to finance the improvement. A budget was made of how much it would take to finish and maintain the job. "The one-cent gas sale tax seemed to be the logical place to obtain funds. This was taken from the old age assistance, but was replaced by the cigarette tax which brings in more money than the gas tax did," Schroeder stated.

The commissioners, three in each county, thought the mail routes in his county needed the most improvement and therefore should be first. The bill provides for a more equitable way of proceeding, according to the senator, who said the best way seemed to be to start from the towns and work in all directions doing a little each time.

Favors New Law.

Road improvements will make rural boys and girls more content since they can have all the advantages of city people. Schroeder continued. There are some sections of the state where the only way youngsters can get to school is by wagon, horse or on foot, because of very poor road conditions.

The senator favors the community property law, since he says it saves money and takes the husband and wife into full partnership.

The death rate on Nebraska highways is far too great, the speaker decided. Schroeder is co-author of a bill which would increase drivers license fees. This would give added funds to increase the number of state patrolmen, and provide more adequate two-way radio service. The southern counties are far ahead of the northern tier of counties in the number of two-way radios in operation.

High Property Tax.—The speaker told of a bill sponsored by the Nebraska resources commission, the purpose of which was to tell people about the white spot. "We are supposed to tell them we have no sales tax, but not to say we have the highest property tax of any state in the union," he said.

Senators cannot help but be influenced by the amount of mail received. He told of the letter he received from his home town which was signed by eight ladies, who, when questioned about it later, did not know what they had signed.

"We are so used to democracy that we make fun of our senators and representatives, and other officials. We call them names and say what's the use in trying to get anything done. Individuals may do much, if each one would look into the work behind legislation. We should make a high public office something to aspire to," declared Schroeder.

Should Study Qualifications.—He told the members of the club they can do much by looking into the qualifications of each candidate and informing the public so that the most efficient and honest candidates may be elected.

The college male quartet, composed of Dean Rowe, Dick Banister, Robert Hadley and Donald Baugous sang "Honey, I Want You Now," and "The Goblins Will Get You."

Give to Pulin Fund.—The club voted to give $10 to the infantile paralysis drive.

Mrs. Don DeFord, Mrs. C. H. Bright, Nellie Fox, Mrs. Wayne Lake, Mrs. C. P. Lapham, Mrs. Orin Martin, Mrs. Ernest Peterson, Mrs. W. H. Phillips, Mrs. R. B. Standley, Mrs. W. B. Vail, Mrs. John Ward, Mrs. J. O. Wentworth and Mrs. Ferris Warner were hostesses.

CONGRESS
As Seen By
KARL STEFAN

The word "communist" has no clear meaning to many people, because it is difficult to associate any mental picture with the word.

Names like "actor," "grocer," "doctor," or "miner" give us some sort of image to go with the word. They are labels for real persons who we have seen many times.

But "communist" doesn't bring any picture to the average mind. A "communist" is a sort of bogey man, a political goblin to which are attributed all sorts of evil things. We read about the communists in the newspapers and hear about him on the radio, but we believe that we have never really seen one. This is because we have come to think of the communist as such a terrible person that he must look and behave differently from other people we see.

We aren't even sure what "communism" is or precisely how it differs from what we call "democracy." Since we're going to hear a lot more of communism and the communist, let's define those words in terms of how they differ from democracy and the American.

A communism is a form of government that does not recognize man as an individual. In the communist state, the man is nothing more than a trivial piece of the system. Service to the "state" is the only reason for man's existence under communism.

To the communist leader, you are a mathematical unit without any feelings or thoughts of your own. You are a piece of machinery to be assigned by the state to jobs for the state. The communist makes a separate being of the state, setting it completely apart from the people. The communist state is answerable only to itself for its actions. This seems like a startling violation of simple logic.

To the American people, the state is a system created by the people to serve the people. Since the state is made up only of people, its only purpose logically is to serve the majority will of the people who make it up. It would be ridiculous for man to create a state whose only function is to serve itself. The principle would be the same if man were to invent an automobile that was capable only of transporting itself; or to invent a washing machine that doesn't wash the clothes of the people that made it but only washes itself; or to build a storehouse to be used only for storing bricks to be used for building another floor on the storehouse to be used for storing bricks to be used for building another floor on the storehouse, etc., etc. Nothing could be more useless or completely without reason for being and yet, in a nutshell such is communism.

The authors of this philosophy were men with little talent as observers of human nature. Although sometimes brilliant, they were impractical, dissatisfied, violent men who assumed that the common people shared their dissatisfaction. They were wild, fanatical dreamers chasing a bubble called Utopia, as impossible a place to find as is the Land of Oz.

What kind of man, then, would want this fool's dream for a government? Quite often the communist is one twisted by personal failures and misdeeds with frustration. Refusing to blame himself for his circumstances, he turns viciously on society and takes up communism as some turn to alcohol and drugs. Or perhaps hunger is the cause.

It is interesting to note that the communist is one twisted by personal failures and misdeeds with frustration. Refusing to blame himself for his circumstances, he turns viciously on society and takes up communism as some turn to alcohol and drugs. Or perhaps hunger and want cause him to grasp at anything offering relief, as hunger and want turn some men to crime. Or maybe he is another of those vague dreamers stumbling through life after the always-elusive Utopia.

Another and more dangerous type of communist is one common among the leadership. He is fully aware of the stupendous stupidities of the system, and thus is better able to lead as he is not blinded fanaticism. Knowing communism's faults, he knows how to camouflage them. He is shrewd, unscrupulous, and would not hesitate to exploit a man, a nation or the world to reach his personal goals of power.

These types of communists have one thing in common—a belief that the "masses" is a favorite communist expression) are cattle too stupid to govern themselves.

To the thinking American, communism is not merely a way of government different from ours. It is a system which violates the human conscience.

Wayne State Bounces Peru

Wayne State's rampaging Wildcats proved to be the hottest team in the Nebraska conference Saturday night by shelling highly favored Peru State, 53-36, before a capacity crowd in the Wayne gym.

James Strahan, Wayne, and Elmer Blackburn, Walthill, were two high-point forwards, scoring 16 and 15 points respectively against the Bobcats. At half, Wayne guard, shackled Peru's Hallstrom so effectively that the usually potent forward only garnered one basket.

Vernon Harder, Anthon, Ia., was particularly effective on taking rebounds to help the Wildcats set up point-getting plays. Big Jack Baumert, Stanton, and James Morrison, alternated at the center post to handle the rough assaults of the Peru team that appeared dazed by the drive and speed of the highly keyed Wildcats.

Box score of the game follows:

It's big news about the maximum profits obtained in marketing eggs, cream and poultry at Wayne Poultry & Egg Co. They buy on the grade and pay for quality. Hans Brinker' Play Coming in February

The play "Hans Brinker or the Silver Skates," being brought to Wayne Monday, Feb. 9, under the auspices of the drama group of the Wayne branch of the AAUW, has the reputation of being one of the best plays among Clare Tree Major

New York Children's theater productions. There are several skating scenes, in one of which Hans and his sister, Gretel, compete for the prize of a pair of silver skates. Juvenile audiences cheer when the race starts on the stage. The skaters disappear from view and onlookers follow their flight around the imaginary course until they near the finish line, which brings them on stage again. It is here that Hans Brinker, whose heart is set on winning the silver skates, has to make a difficult choice. His decision, representing a great sacrifice, determines whether he possesses good sportsmanship.

Hanawalt Says Sense of Human Values is Needed

That a fine sense of human values is essential to improve instead of to destroy civilization was stressed by Dr. M. H. Hanawalt of Wayne State college staff, who spoke to Wayne branch of AAUV Thursday evening at the Woman's club room. His subject was "Literature and Human Values."

Science approaches mastery of the physical world. Social science masters relationships among individuals. The third field which is needed to motivate the other two is a richness of human nature. This depth of feeling for human nature may lead to use of atomic energy for destruction instead of for construction, the speaker said.

Dr. Hanawalt cited examples in life and read others from literature to illustrate the depth of feeling between man and wife, father and son, sister and mother and between two friends. "That which is done is never undone in human relationships," the speaker quoted. Hiller was one who had a bad set of human values, and Stalin needs to understand these relationships. A keen appreciation for human values and spiritual fortitude was most important in dealing with human nature, Dr. Hanawalt concluded.

Refreshments were served by Miss Ross, Eleanor Knoll, Lois Crouch, Mrs. Clara Heylum and Mrs. Maude Joseph Smith.

Hold Rites for Adolph Hiller

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon for Adolph Hiller, 65, who died Thursday, Jan. 8. The rites were conducted by Rev. C. R. Garver, who officiated at a prayer service at the home at 2:00. Hymns were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Enos Davis.

At the age of 19 he came to Nebraska and worked at various jobs, finally settling in Carroll where, in the spring of 1913, he began a drayage business which he operated until he retired two years ago because of ill health.

In the fall of 1911, Mr. Hiller was married to Gwendoline Davis, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Davis. They lived here since that time. To them were born a daughter, Mrs. Leona Perrin and a son, Lewis Morgan Hiller.

For two years Mr. Hiller had not been well and he was afflicted with a serious heart ailment the last three months. He was confined to his home where, at 1:10 the morning of Jan. 8, 1948, he died at the age of 65 years and 6 months.

Surviving Mr. Hiller are his wife, son and daughter, and a grandson, Thomas Wilbur Perrin.

Other living relatives are his step-mother, Mrs. C. L. Hiller; two sisters, Mrs. Bessie Dayton and Mrs. Gertrude Edwards; three brothers, Gale Hiller, Lewis C. Hiller and Orlin Hiller; besides several cousins, nieces and nephews all living in Ohio.

A sister, Miss Cloma Hiller, and a brother, Roy Hiller, preceded him in death. Another brother, Bart Hiller, died of a heart attack at his Ohio home only 13 hours after the death of Dolph Hiller on Jan. 8, 1948.

Mr. Hiller had been an active member of the Methodist church of Carroll since 1914. He was a musician and sang in the choir, and on numerous occasions sang at funerals and community services.

People who came from a distance for the funeral were Glen Garwood and son, Jud, of Walthill.

Mr. and Mrs. David Owens and two children of Randolph, John and Maggie Davis of Sholes, Mr. and Mrs. Art Owens of Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. George Lamb, James Rea and A. Danner.

Dr. R. W. Casper To Head Drive

Dr. R. W. Casper has accepted reappointment as Wayne county chairman for the annual Red Cross membership campaign which will be conducted in March. Last year under his leadership, the county subscribed a total of $1,042.56.

This county was 13th in the state last year to attain its goal and Dr. Casper hopes that the record may be as good or better this year. The plan to be followed will be similar to last year's and leaders will be appointed within a few weeks.

Nebraska was fifth in the nation and also fifth in midwest area in 1947, the middle west having reached goals earliest in the nation. In this area North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa led Nebraska. Six midwest states were first to finish in the nation. The welfare agency asked 60 million last year and the goal is 75 million this year. Disasters in this country the past year made the heaviest demand on funds in a decade, this service alone requiring 10 million.

In the new budget the Red Cross estimates $167,200 for disaster, $50,200,000 for international programs and $993,400 for international civilian relief in addition to other programs. The organization's first obligation is to veterans and the nation has 18 million new veterans since World War II.

"It's Red Cross Time" is the slogan of the 1948 fund campaign. Prof. John R. Keith is chairman of Wayne county Red Cross and Mrs. Fred Nyberg is publicity chairman.

Botanist Likes New Position at School in South

(By Dorothy Huse Nyberg)
Dr. John A. Moore, who was with the biology department of Wayne State college a few years ago, has moved from Havre, Mont., to Ruston, La., where he is working with botanists in Louisiana Polytechnic institute, which has an enrollment of about 2,400 and faculty of 150. Dr. Moore was offered this position last spring and since the south was the only part of this country where he had not botanized, he decided to accept. He likes the work and the school. Southern accents, news stands in grocery stores and weather that does not get colder than 35 degrees are somewhat new for the family. Dr. and Mrs. Moore, Mary, 9, and Jack, 7, are living in cramped quarters temporarily. They are in a four-room vet house at the agricultural school. The place is a little village with mayor, town council, community store and nursery for the inhabitants of 163 little homes. Though too small, the houses are furnished with gas stoves and water heaters. The Moores will soon have one of the 28 new homes being built in a rental project, mainly for college faculty people. Flowers blossoming and green grass made it somewhat hard for the Moores to realize that it was Christmas. In their small home the family took a vote on having a Christmas tree and the decision, of course, was in the affirmative. While all were buzzing around in the pre-Christmas rush, young Jack was digging dams, playing with the neighborhood dogs and pushing his toy cars. The lad did prepare for Christmas, however, buying a present or two each time he went down town. Mary was more excited about the holidays. She figured her lists and her money carefully on paper and then went about her shopping. Mrs. Moore was busy making cakes and candy and doing sewing for the holidays, and Dr. Moore was building a dresser, table and six chairs for the new home. After Dr. Moore accepted the position in the south last spring, he took his family to Glacier National park where he had work for the summer. The Moores bought a station wagon and trailer for their trip. The stay in the park was a wonderful vacation for the family. Dr. Moore was ranger naturalist and answered questions, conducted nature walks and lectured evenings for five days a week. The fifth day was for research and he collected plants for the herbarium. He had two days free each week and spent these taking his family around the park and on hikes and boat trips. Dr. Moore also made 150 color slides in the park. The former Wayne folks are enjoying their new experiences and send greetings to their Wayne friends through a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Auker.

An Election Year Sign

It becomes increasingly evident that this is an election year, as the two major political parties pour forth the proposals they hope will lure the votes needed to win control of the national government.

One thing seems to be certain—there will be a cut in income taxes this year. President Truman has outlined an income tax reduction bill that he apparently believes is just what the nation needs. The Republicans, of course, have opened bitter attacks on the Truman proposal, but they are readying an income tax reduction plan of their own. Probably, it will be the same tax reduction bill passed twice last year and vetoed both times by the president.

It is clear that neither party is completely sure of winning the election next November. Both parties are making strong bids for votes, and both apparently believe that reducing the income tax is one way of getting them.

No matter which party receives the Story hour is off to a good start with poems and guessing games as added features. Two clues are given each week and a prize will be given to the child who guesses the name of the book described. Each Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock during the winter there will be story hour and all children are invited. Guest story tellers will assist the librarian each time.

Now that the long winter evenings have set in and a long book does not scare you just to look at credit, this is one congressional struggle the taxpayer can enjoy watching, because he is almost certain to benefit.

Practically all of the big names who have admitted they dabbled in the commodity market, claim they lost their socks in this biggest of gambling games. We never knew there could be so many losers. But the one that surprised us most was the statement of Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, who said he speculated "in an effort to preserve my meager accumulation of funds."

Tsk, tsk, senator—successful speculation generally requires a far larger cash outlay than our conception of what anyone would mean by "meager . . . funds." And if one's funds are meager, speculating is hardly the way to preserve them.

A Boost for Schroeder

Seward Independent: Gov. Val Peterson has stated he expects to be a candidate for nomination to succeed himself for governor. There is only one person that could provide any trouble for the governor as a candidate for re-nomination, that being State Sen. N. F. Schroeder of Hoskins, author of the road graveling law for rural mail routes. Senator Schroeder has indicated he favors a further revision of the law that will give the more sparsely settled section of the state a more equitable share of the gas tax. And the same sort of a redistribution should be made between states. The more densely populated states should divide more equitably with the sparsely settled sections of the farm belt. Here we have "magnificent distances" and relatively little population—and what we have is gradually growing less—whereas other states are overcrowded, but because they are heavy contributors to the gas tax, they feel they are entitled to it.

Children's Home Society Annual Meeting Soon

The annual meeting of Nebraska Children's Home society will be held Jan. 21, at 8 p.m. at the receiving home in Omaha, according to Secretary H. B. Bugbee.

The society, which was established in 1893 as a state-wide non-sectarian agency for the care and placement of normal children, will review a year of outstanding service to children.

In addition to the reports, officers for the current year will be elected and also 10 trustees from all parts of the state to serve for three years. Axel T. Hansen, Omaha lumberman, is president of the society, and Randall C. Biart of Bellevue, executive director.

Dr. O. R. Bowen of Wayne State college is a trustee. Among the groups from Wayne who remembered homeless children at Christmas are the Acme club, the U. D.

In Old Nebraska
 By James C. Olson
 Supt., State Historical Society

It was 10 o'clock on the cold winter night of Jan. 9, 1879. At Fort Robinson, in the far western part of Nebraska, taps had been sounded and the barracks were dark and quiet. Apparently no one was awake but the sentries, whose footsteps crackled in the snow as they made their solitary rounds.

Suddenly a shot rang through the frozen stillness, and one of the sentries crumpled in the snow. Then, in quick succession, two more shots—and two more soldier bodies lay motionless on the ground.

No sooner had the shots sounded than a mob of maddened Indians—men, women, and children—maddened by thirst, hunger, cold and injustice, poured from one of the barracks, coming through the windows as well as the doors. They were the last pitiful remnant of Dull Knife's once great band of fighting Cheyennes, in a desperate, last-ditch fight for freedom.

Fled from Territory.

Earlier these same Indians had fled from the agency down in Indian territory (now Oklahoma) where they had been sent by the government. The flight north had been long and arduous. In northern Nebraska—a familiar country to them all—they had stopped to rest, believing like children that they would not be molested if only they left the whites alone.

They were discovered in the sandhills by troops of the 3rd cavalry. So pitiable was their condition that it seemed to the soldiers they could hardly keep alive, let alone put up any resistance. Yet it took two pieces of artillery to persuade those destitute refugees to accompany the troops to Fort Robinson.

Once at Robinson, the Cheyennes were told they must return to Indian territory. This they refused to do, saying they would die on the spot, rather than move a mile nearer the hated agency in the Southland.

Army Tried Torture.

The army then tried to torture the Indians into submission. First their food and fuel were taken away, then their water. Finally, armed with clubs and five guns they had miraculously secreted from the troops, the Cheyennes made their last desperate break.

Weakened by hunger, thirst, and exposure, and hampered by the presence of old men, women and children, there was little the once powerful Cheyenne braves could do against the troops pouring from the barracks. Before they had gone half a mile more than half of the Cheyenne fighting men were shot.

Cold, and the necessity for more adequate equipment, caused the troops to be called back, and pursuit ended for the night. The remnants of Dull Knife's little band struggled on through the bitter night, marching 17 miles without a halt. This without food or adequate clothing!

Cheyennes Defeated.

Even the most heroic endurance, however, was no match for the winter wind and the power of the whites, and eventually the flight of the Cheyennes ended—as undoubtedly they had known it must—in defeat.

At Hat Creek bluffs, 44 miles southwest of Fort Robinson, Dull Knife's fighting men made their last stand. And there, on the morning of Jan. 21, the last of them was killed.

Recruiting Up Last Month, Says Officer

Omaha—"Young men in this area are becoming more and more interested in the army and air force," declared Colonel I. E. Doane today.

Doane, commanding officer of the Nebraska-Iowa recruiting district, is a veteran of over 37 years army service. During the last war he was a prisoner of the Japs for 41 months, and made the infamous Bataan death march.

"December is normally the worst recruiting month in the year," he said, "however, last month 580 men from this district went to Fort Sheridan for enlistment, as compared to 540 in November, 573 in October, and 298 in December, 1946."

"In my opinion," Doane stated, "this increase clearly indicates that the young men of our nation are becoming aware that the army and air force are offering careers preferable to most civilian pursuits."

New Semester Starts Jan. 19

All Wayne high students will take semester examinations Thursday and Friday. Students need not be in school at times when they have no tests. Second semester starts Monday, Jan. 19.

The student council sponsored an after-game dance Friday evening at the school.

A wire recorder was purchased this week. Funds left by the class of 1947 covered most of the purchase price. The simply-operated machine will be used in all grades and especially by high school speech, music and commercial classes.

Students viewed the sound film, "Atomic Power," in convocation Friday. The film presents the story of development of atomic power, possibilities of constructive use, and the necessity for action to prevent its destructive use.

Three courses will be added to the schedule for the second semester. American problems will succeed American government, oral and written composition will take the place of journalism, and general applied mathematics will be offered for students whose vocational future indicates need for this type of math class. Arrangement of these courses on a semester basis enables the student to get a wider variety of subject matter.

Hold Doll Show

The annual doll and toy show was held in the activities room Friday. Pupils from the kindergarten to the fourth grade brought their favorite dolls and toys. Every girl was awarded a ribbon prize for her doll, and each boy demonstrated his toy. The fifth and sixth grades were guests.

Among the dolls were a three-faced doll and a drum majorette that twirled a baton.

Patriotic songs were sung at the close of the program.

Junior High

A picture show giving the history of diamonds was shown to the junior high last week.

Josephine Brader is a new pupil. This makes the total enrollment 29.

Fifth Grade

Early American inventors are being studied in history class. Special reports were made during the week.

An individual contest is underway to determine the ones who read the most books.

Reports of the books are written and filed in a room file box.
