Says Three R's Not Adequate

"We need the three R's but we touch on something besides those," began Dr. Victor Morey in addressing the Wayne Woman's club Friday afternoon at the club rooms.

The world order should, Dr. Morey believes, be set up like a family. "We will have trouble until nations learn to live together like members of a family."

A thorough study of economics is essential, the speaker believes, before peace can be attained. Fundamentally all people are alike. Their differences of culture are significant.

The United States is looked to as a leader and this nation should assume this responsibility. Young folks should be taught to look ahead, to make wise choices and to understand the results of their choices.

Newsman Tells India's Woes

Robert Aura Smith, noted specialist on the Far East for the New York Times, spoke to Wayne State Teachers college students at a faculty at convocation Tuesday morning. He was introduced by Dr. J. R. Johnson after a flute solo played by Shirley Campbell, accompanied by Mrs. John R. Keith.

Smith said that prior to Aug. 15, 1947, India was a part of British India, a part of a set of special laws, chief of which was the India act of 1935. It did not have the status of membership in the commonwealth. The residual sovereignty was not in India, but in England.

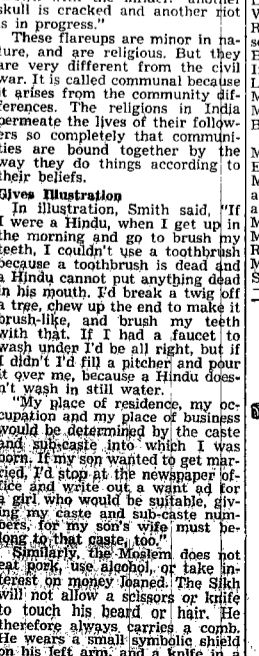

Aug. 15, 1947, was India's independence day, and there were fireworks, Smith said. It wasn't the firecracker, popgun variety, however, it was a very noisy one.

REBUILT USED PIANOS
 Guaranteed to stay in tune like new pianos after each tuning. Not only for one year, two or three years, but for years to come. All pin blocks are tightened up so the pins stay tight and the piano will stay in tune like new pianos. Let Voget show you some of the used pianos that have loose pin blocks and won't stay in tune. Some of these pianos had tight pin blocks when bought, but after a year, two or more years, the pins got loose and now they won't stay in tune. The piano actions in Voget's used pianos are also rebuilt, dirt cleaned out and all moth eaten felts and felt that is worn replaced with new felts. The action will also have a touch like a new piano so the child can learn quicker and better than on used pianos that are not rebuilt. The piano is revoiced so it will sound like a new piano. Let Voget show you some of the felts that the moths have been eating on. Then, too, be careful that the bass is not dead. Lots of pianos

No Leniency for Lewis

John L. Lewis ended the coal strike Monday by ordering his miners back to work after being assured the pension demands he had made would be granted almost as he had asked. Meanwhile, the burly union chief still faced contempt of court charges because he had ignored a court order to send the miners back to work several days ago.

It is possible that Lewis decided to give in slightly in his demands because of the court action against him and the union, hoping that by so doing the court might drop its charges. Heavy fines were levied against Lewis and the union a year ago because of failure to obey a court order, and something quite similar might happen again this spring, especially if the union leader remained defiant.

In our opinion, Lewis' hasty back-to-work order should not be grounds for leniency when he faces the court on the contempt charges. We believe that no man should be permitted to defy a court order, even though he may be right. If he thinks he has been wronged, he has the legitimate recourse of appealing to a higher court. Ignoring the law is not the way it's done in a democracy.

Conscientious Nebraska Republicans

had ample opportunity before the primary election to decide upon the man they want as their candidate for president. Three of the leading candidates, Stassen, Dewey and Taft, stumped the state from end to end, and brought along helpers to speak in many of the communities they were unable to visit personally. Their policies and statements were faithfully reported; no one who reads the newspapers could say truthfully that he didn't know enough about the men who were listed on the ballot. The republican voters in few other states will have as good an opportunity to become acquainted with the men who seek the highest office in the land.

UMT Popular in Europe

In the light of current congressional debate over the advisability of enacting universal military training for the United States, it is interesting to note that UMT in some form is in effect in 17 European nations, not counting Russia but including some of her satellites. European countries where young men are required to serve varying periods of time in the armed forces are France, Great Britain, Spain, Poland, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Switzerland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Belgium, The Netherlands, Greece, Bulgaria and Hungary, according to an Associated Press story.

Opponents of UMT will argue that most, or all, of these nations also had UMT before the start of World War II, and that many of them were overrun by the Germans even though they did have trained armies. UMT proponents, on the other hand, will point out that most European nations are pretty small and, under no circumstances, would they be able to fight successfully against a nation the size of pre-World War II Germany, which trained and equipped a mammoth fighting force.

Without taking a stand either for or against UMT, we submit that such a military program in a nation as great as ours could be the basis for an air force, army and navy so powerful that it would make any nation hesitant about attacking the United States.

We join the Wayne Chamber of Commerce in inviting all northeastern Nebraskans to visit Wayne for Dollar Days Thursday and Friday.

Wayne merchants are making a conscientious effort to fight the high cost of living, not only with this first 1948 Dollar Day event, but every day of the week. In Wayne you can nearly always find more of the things you want and need at prices designed to fit your budget.

IN BOOKLAND

Children's Summer Reading
The circus has been to town and now we are going to have a circus at the library this summer—especially in the children's department. Mrs. Roy Coryell has painted a poster with a circus theme which is a delight to the children who have seen it and a marvel to the adults who admire her artistic ability. The children have been working hard to complete the circus theme by cutting and pasting the pictures of animals from book jackets. These make an animal parade around the entire room. The sand box has been made into a jungle filled with wild animals, birds and trees. With so many new stories about animals to read the children will find enjoyment this summer and we want them to come.

It might be wise to slip in a word of warning to the children, and possibly to their mothers also. Because our staff is small we wish to remind them that the library is in no way a substitute for a playground. Spring Has Come
Perhaps this may be the time to mention that when warm weather approaches, a very annoying problem arises at the library each year. The yard is spacious and inviting but it too is no playground. Open to the youngsters use it for that purpose. The noise in the library yard is so objectionable to the adult readers and it would be a good thing to have the cooperation of both the parents and the children in creating an atmosphere conducive to reading.

Book Reviews
There is nothing like a good book review to stimulate interest in a good book. Mrs. Robert Auken reviewed a book about Albert Schweitzer at the Presbyterian church last Wednesday afternoon. Those who heard her review may wish to read the book which we ordered for her last month. Those who did not hear her review, may want to read it because they were not able to be there. Of course, it is not necessary to have a reason to want to read a good biography and so we are glad to report that we can get the book, "Albert Schweitzer, The Man and His Mind," whenever you wish.

New Rentals
"Milk Route," by Martha Ostenso, and "The Pleasant Morning Light," by Josephine Lawrence, will both be welcome reading for those who want that book which is not too light, and not too heavy, but just a good story. As the name would indicate, the first one is about a suburban village and the people who live there. The second book takes up the problems of the old maid. Now it would hardly do to recommend it to the old maids, for then no one would ever come into the library and ask for it. Just to be on the safe side let us put it this way—it is an artistic drama of the problem that every woman has to face—is it better to make a bad marriage than none at all? You will have to read it to find the answer. Or, do you already know it?

To Present Play
Scene one, act two of the junior, senior class play, "Little Women," will be presented before the Woman's club Friday, April 23. Those participating will be Virginia Denkinger, Kathryn McGinn, Betty Bard, Mary Ann Buck, Joyce Sorenson, Jerry Ash, Don Bamster and Lyle Kingston.

The Home Economics class started the unit on sewing last week. The dresses are following the new fashion with the popular flared skirt and new longer length. The girl's phys ed students have been playing in a ping pong tournament for the last two weeks. They are now ready to play the semi-finals and finals. Joyce Sorenson and Audrey Stevens are playing for first place and Mary Ann Buck and Joan Nuss are playing for second. The winners will play each other and the losers will play against each other.

Sets Typing Record
Eunice Victor has set the speed record in typing 2 at Wayne Prep. Her top speed is 93 words a minute on a one-minute speed test. The typing 2 class is taking one-minute, two-minute, five-minute, seven-minute and ten-minute tests. The object of the tests is to try to reach the same speed on a ten-minute test as on the shorter tests.

The junior class of Wayne Prep held a meeting Thursday after school to start planning the junior-senior banquet and dance. Individual students or groups of students are to work out themes for the banquet and plans for decorating. The plans will be presented to the class in a meeting April 15 and will be voted upon. The date set for the banquet is May 12.

Children are practicing drawing the human figure in action for art.

Prof. George Costerisan's observation class visited the reading class on Monday. Morris Meese was elected to care for the pen and Larry Joyce was elected to care for the ink. The language class is practicing making better sentences.

Grade Four
Karen Childs and Larry Sweigard are tied for best record in a series of exercises on which the class is working. James Brackensick has measles. The class wrote letters to him. The entire class made perfect scores on last week's final spelling test.

Lula Way invited the class to see the film, "Alice in Wonderland." Readings from the book are planned for next week. Grade Three Field trips have been taken to see some of the earlier arrivals of our bird friends. The students are busy in order to be able to draw them. The book, "Reindeer of the Waves," is being read to the children as a background for the study of Viking tales. Miss Way showed a film of "Alice in Wonderland."

The children enjoyed telling features of the circus which they especially enjoyed. Second Grade
After visiting the grocery store last week, we made one of our own. We are making plans for planting our garden. In science we are beginning a bird notebook with pictures and information about our common birds. First Grade
The first grade created a poem under Miss McInerian's guidance in their English period. Miss Riky visited us a short time. We enjoyed her visit. We renewed our circus stories in the Wickey-Horn Readers in order to be ready for the circus treat at the auditorium. The children are using the circus for the art lesson as well as the English lesson. They surely appreciated the privilege of seeing it. Kindergarten
The pupils are making booklets of animals and are studying the habits of circus animals. They are also practicing somersaults, head stand and pyramid building. They can match words on the color balloons and the names of circus animals. The study of buds and birds has been an interesting spring activity.

Extension Notes

By Don Warner, County Agent

Hog Lice
Why let hogs be tortured by the biggest of all the lice that infest our domestic animals? The remedies are simple, inexpensive and effective. Hog lice are so common that they are often considered as one of the evils that must be endured. These blood sucking insects parasitize hogs and are so easily controlled that there is little excuse for letting hogs suffer from the constant irritation they cause, or for the owner to put up with the losses they occasion. Generally these losses are so gradual and continuous that the owner is not aware of them and makes no attempt to ## Keep his animals free of these pests.

The injury in heavily infested herds is considerable but it can be eliminated by using a few inexpensive control measures. If young pigs that become infested from their mother are allowed to go untreated until they are old enough to market, there may be a reduction in value of 2 to 6 per cent.

Detection
The presence of hog lice is easily detected. The louse is about one quarter of an inch long, bluish gray in color, has a broadly flattened body and a strong piercing beak. They can easily be seen on the hogs. An animal on which there are only a few of the parasites may be seen to rub and scratch itself on the sides of the pen or on posts, troughs and other objects. When there is a heavy infestation, hogs suffer constant irritation. They are restless and do not eat properly. Ultimately an unthrifty condition results which is frequently followed by attacks of other parasites.

Control
Recent test work at the University of Nebraska has resulted in a new, simple, single treatment control method for such sarcoptic mange and lice. Hogs sprayed with 25 per cent of the gamma isomer of benzene hexachloride may be completely freed of these irritants, complete coverage of the animals is necessary. In mixing the spray, the exact percentage of the isomer must be known. To mix a spray of 25 per cent of the gamma isomer, use 8 pounds of 25 per cent gamma powder, 2 pounds of 10 per cent gamma dust or 4 pounds of 5 per cent gamma powder in 10 gallons of water. At present prices the chemical Everything but the squeal? Not quite. Utilization of livestock by-products is important to all farmers and ranchers. Of the total dollars received by Swift & Company for lambs, 15% to 25% comes from by-products. Cattle by-products amount to 10% to 20%. With hogs it is 2% to 5%.

OUR CITY COUSIN Let City Cousin pull and jerk... He'll find "a cinch" it's real hard work! Gage Rate of Planting Corn by the Yield Expected by George H. Dungan University of Illinois Proper balance between the number of plants per acre and the ability of your land to produce, is needed for maximum corn yield.

A Steer is NOT all Beef Let's take a look at this steer. It weighs 1,000 lbs. It's not all steak. In fact, only a little more than half is salable beef. Hanging in Swift's cooling room, our steer has become two sides of beef. Together they weigh 543 lbs. What happened to the rest? Modern meat packers save everyting of value from the steer—heart, tongue, liver, sweetbreads and other fancy meats. Hides for leather, bones, blood and scraps for animal feeds. Glands for medicines. All told, 161 lbs. of the steer is saved in by-products.

We All Want the Top Dollar You, as a producer of livestock, want to get the best price for your animals—"the top dollar." As a salesman for Swift & Company, selling the products which result from these animals, I, too, want to get the top dollar. The meat packer's buyer has to judge the grade of the animals and estimate how they will yield. He then makes his bids in competition with buyers for many meat packers and other commercial slaughterers.

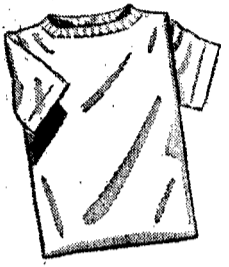

Martha Logan's Recipe for FRIED CHICKEN WITH GOLDEN GRAVY (Yield: 5-6 servings) 1 frying chicken (2 1/2-3 lb.) 1/2 teaspoon pepper 1/2 cup yellow corn meal 6 tablespoons bland lard 1/2 cup flour About 3/4 cup water 1/2 tablespoons salt 3 cups milk Clean, wash and cut up chicken into serving pieces. Dry. Combine corn meal, flour, salt and pepper in paper bag. Put chicken pieces into bag, close top and shake bag until pieces are well coated. Reserve excess corn meal-flour mixture for gravy. Brown chicken well in hot bland lard in heavy skillet. Add 1/4 cup water. Cover tightly and simmer slowly for 1 hour or until chicken is tender. Add remaining water as needed. Remove chicken and keep it warm while preparing gravy. Combine corn meal-flour mixture with the drippings in skillet. Brown lightly. Stir in the milk and cook until corn meal is cooked and gravy thickened. Serve gravy with chicken.

Marches Tell of Vacation South of the Border

The Phil Marches' recent holiday in Mexico was a three-and-a-half week return south of the border. Their travels are told in this story.

First stop—Monterrey. We hired a guide to show us those things we wanted to see. The homes in the newer residential districts were beautiful—modernistic with a lot of Spanish architecture.

We visited an open market where everything from jewelry to groceries was offered for sale. The market was about two blocks square. There were so many things to buy, that unless one was looking for something specific, it was confusing.

We met some friends from Nebraska City, and went with them on Sunday to Saltillo to see a bull fight. Of course there was a band. There was a lot of shouting in the crowd, because the matador didn't kill the bull right away, but feinted a few blows, making it something of a comic fight. Mexicans didn't seem to appreciate the "show," but wanted immediate action. We left after the first bull had been killed and dragged out of the arena. We had dinner at a Saltillo hotel that evening before going back to Monterrey.

Through the Mountains

From there we went to Mexico City, a mountainous two-day drive. All along the way we saw huts made of adobe-type bricks and with grass roofs. Some of the huts were whitewashed. We saw peasants farming the small patches of mountain land while other peasants were walking down the narrow trails beside their burros laden with wood, grass mats, or other items for sale in the city market places. There were stands along the highway with bananas and coconuts for sale.

We had most of the money we used in Mexico changed to their currency in their capitol city. A peso (the dollar) equals about 20 cents of ours.

We hired a guide in Mexico City. He took us to a program of native dances which lasted about two hours. The dancers were in the costumes of the different states according to their dance. They were accompanied by a Mexican orchestra. Then we went slumming in the night clubs of poorer quality and ended with the nice ones. In one of the better clubs we saw an entertainer who had just come over from Spain. She was a clever performer and we really enjoyed her act.

We visited a large cathedral ornamented with goldleaf. Mass is there at intervals throughout the day.

Picture of Washington

We were shown pyramids and two snow-capped volcanoes. Our guide obtained permission for us to visit the government chambers. There were five rooms that we saw. One was furnished with carved mahogany tables and chairs. The table tops were inlaid with green velvet and the floors were of inlaid wood. The ballroom where official parties are held, was among the rooms we saw. The Mexicans seemed especially interested in an American painting of George Washington which hangs in the federal building and which our government had given theirs.

In the national palace our guide explained the history of Mexico depicted in pictures in the museum. There we saw Chapultepec castle, park and cathedral.

The Mexico City residential district boasts some of the most beautiful homes we had ever seen. There is an American colony there. The whole city seems to be a contrast between wealth and poverty—there is no large middle class such as we have.

See Mountain Town

After a couple of days in Mexico City we drove to Taxco, a quaint little town nestled high on a mountainside. It has no modern buildings except the hotels, and the cobblestone streets are so narrow that one auto cannot pass another. The government has outlawed the construction of modern buildings in towns such as Taxco, to preserve them in their historic quaintness. Taxco was founded in the 1700's by Frenchmen who had made a fortune in the silver mines. The Borda cathedral was among the historic spots we visited. Its interior is made of pink stone with goldleaf ornamentation.

We stayed at the De la Borda hotel, up the mountainside a long way from the town. From the veranda we could see the city, and farther down the mountain, a silver mine.

One day while we were in the town, we saw a boy dashing down the street from a silvershop with a policeman at his heels shouting for him to stop. Little attention was given the incident by the natives, so apparently it was not an unusual occurrence.

We saw many women doing the family wash. Their equipment consisted of a mountain stream and rocks. The method was simple—lay the article to be washed on a rock in the water and rub it with another rock.

As we drove through the country we saw many orange groves and banana trees with natives cutting the fruit from the trees. Once we saw a group of native boys swimming, wearing nothing but the river, and catching fish with their hands and throwing them out on the shore.

Magnificent scenery

At Cuernavaca there were so many lovely homes surrounded by flowers and Bougainville vines with cerise, purple and white blossoms. We stayed at the Chula Vista hotel, which caters chiefly to tourists. Mountains surrounded us and the scenery was magnificent.

We visited three cathedrals and a mission which were in a walled historic government preserve. They were built in the 1700's. One cathedral, although it was not so very large, had 10 altars, arranged symmetrically with a large one in the center and smaller ones on each side.

At the Borda gardens we saw the large pool and an old historic building. An elderly woman was sitting beside the pool doing an oil painting of the lovely landscape.

There was a market at Cuernavaca where many leather goods were sold. The wares were out on both sides of the street for two or three blocks.

Then we went to Acapulco, one of the oldest seaport towns in Mexico. The mountains tower around it, providing luxurious scenery. We stayed at the Club de Pesca, a fishing club hotel. There are two bathing beaches, the Hornos and the Calata, one a "morning beach" the other an "afternoon beach." There was a great deal of fresh fruit for sale. Boating, driving and bathing were the only available amusements.

Language Difficulties

There, as in most places in Mexico, we found it hard to understand the natives and hard to make ourselves understood. While driving one day, we saw an old man riding a burro. Mrs. March thought it would make an interesting snapshot and shouted to him to stop. He either did not hear her or didn't care to be photographed, for he utterly ignored us. She quickly backed the car, jumped out and took his picture anyway. He still paid no attention to us, apparently he had no great objection.

Most Mexicans, especially those in the cities, were very friendly, very willing to help, and many invited us to come back again. The guides were courteous and helpful.

We were interested, naturally, in the theaters. There was one in Monterrey that was outstanding. It was said to seat several thousand. The interior was modernistic in design, and there was a lunch bar on the mezzanine. The speaking in the pictures is in English, with a short summary of what's happening printed under the picture in Spanish.

The music in Mexico is not so different from ours. It has a lot of "space" in the meaning of the popular. Coming out of Monterrey—or at least that's what they told us. The weather was perfect and it would have been delightful to stay, but we had other plans. Finally we were guided to some gas (at an exorbitant price) and made our good neighbors "Adios."

granddaughter was born on Mr. Buskirk's birthday and the other on hers, a rare incident in Denver's history as each one was 61 on the day of the births. Mrs. A. W. Dolph was news reporter during her absence.

Picture of Washington

We were shown pyramids and two snow-capped volcanoes. Our guide obtained permission for us to visit the government chambers. There were five rooms that we saw. One was furnished with carved mahogany tables and chairs. The table tops were inlaid with green velvet and the floors were of inlaid wood. The ballroom where official parties are held, was among the rooms we saw. The Mexicans seemed especially interested in an American painting of George Washington which hangs in the federal building and which our government had given theirs.

In the national palace our guide explained the history of Mexico depicted in pictures in the museum. There we saw Chapultepec castle, park and cathedral.

The Mexico City residential district boasts some of the most beautiful homes we had ever seen. There is an American colony there. The whole city seems to be a contrast between wealth and poverty—there is no large middle class such as we have.
