Announce New Telephone Rates in Wayne

Council Names Two Library Board Members

Dr. Benthack and Mrs. Cavanaugh To Fill Vacancies

The two remaining vacancies on the Wayne library board were filled Tuesday night when the city council appointed Dr. Walter Benthack and Mrs. A. T. Cavanaugh to succeed A. V. Teed and Mrs. O. R. Bower.

Mr. Teed and Mrs. Bower filed their resignations last week after long periods of service on the board. Dr. Benthack takes the place of Mr. Teed, whose term would have expired in 1951. Mrs. Cavanaugh will serve out Mrs. Bower's term, which would have expired in 1952.

Two other new library board members, Mrs. H. E. Hein and Dr. Gordon Shupe, were appointed earlier by the council to succeed Dr. Robert Casper and Mrs. George Costersian.

OTHER ACTION by the council Tuesday evening included the consideration of bids for the construction of sewer district 13, and the creation of a new sewer district. Murray & Ball, Norfolk, were awarded the contract for sewer district 13. Their bid was $3,523.

The new sewer district, No. 14, will extend one and one-half blocks north and one and one-half blocks south of Seventh street along the west side of Sherman street.

Three building permits were granted: To Walter R. Bressler, Jr., for a new home on the east side of the city; to C. F. Moore, for a garage; and to C. A. Preston, for a garage.

THE COUNCIL also discussed the citywide insect control program which began June 21 when the city was sprayed with DDT. Routine checks indicate that the first spraying was a success, but it will be necessary to make a second spraying in the next few days to control flies and other insects for the rest of the season.

The city paid the cost of the first spraying; home owners and business men will be asked to finance the next one. The raising of funds will be in charge of the Chamber of Commerce, which will conduct a door-to-door canvass.

A mixture of DDT and chloroform will be used for the next spray, since it has a more immediate effect on flies and mosquitoes. During the spraying and throughout the summer, the council urged Wayne residents to keep rubbish and garbage heaps as clean as possible.

2.47 In. Rain Cause 'Flood'

Several Main street businessmen in Wayne were busy last Friday afternoon bailing out their basements and attempting to keep water away from their doors when 2.47 inches of rain fell about an hour.

SEWERS weren't plugged up, but proved unable to handle the large volume of water which swept down the street like a miniature flood. The fire department's portable pump was used to pump the water out of several basements.

THE RAINSTORM also was responsible for a casualty. Mrs. Donnie Denbeck suffered severe cuts when she fell against a plate glass window in John's cafe.

Mrs. Denbeck had left her car and struck the window when she slipped on mud deposited on the sidewalk by the curbing water. The window fell out and broke. A tendon in her leg was cut by the glass and her back was also cut. Forty stitches were taken in the wounds. She will be unable to walk for several weeks.

OLDTIMERS SAY it was one of the heaviest rains ever to fall in Wayne in such a short period of time. Logan creek did not overflow here, but water sweeping down out of fields just south of the city filled roadside ditches with a swiftly moving "river."

Another "river" developed in the field just north of Wayne, threatening to go over the highway.

Superintendent Rents Hess Residence

Mrs. G. J. Hess has rented her home at 803 Main to E. W. Wilber of Platt, who will be superintendent of the Wayne city school for the new term. The Wilber family will come to Wayne in August. Mrs. Hess said her plans for the future are indefinite.

Designation of Fort Leonard Wood as the summer camp for all Nebraska National Guard units was made last week by Brig. Gen. Guy N. Heminger.

The local battery will travel to camp by troop train steamer.

At the present time, the Wayne unit has openings for 10 recruits. Those who join now will accompany the battery to summer camp with all expenses paid, plus pay of $37.50 for the two-week period.

In addition to training the guardsmen will receive, there will be organized sports such as basketball, softball, boxing and swimming.

May Test Decision of Court Is Tried Under New State Law

District Judge Fay H. Pollock Thursday ruled in favor of the judge in the suits over the right to sue for the cutting of a tree in the quiet title action against the city of Wayne. The action involves the Graham Ice Cream Co. property on Pearl street, which was purchased from the city several years ago.

This action is one of the first brought under the recent legislative bill No. 465, which grants relief on old foreclosures. It is likely that an appeal will be made to the supreme court as a test case.

MEANWHILE, motions for new trials in the Oman and Sprague quiet title cases were overruled by the judge. The suits were originally filed to seek titles to property sold by the plaintiffs.

In the divorce suit brought by Nora Martin against Gus Martin, the plaintiff was granted $75 a month temporary alimony, pending final settlement.

Herbert L. Morey of Wayne was awarded $1600 in the compensation suit brought against Robert N. Bickert and the Century Indemnity Co. Morey was amputated by Bickert, alleged that he suffered injuries twice last year.

Discuss Rebuilding Rural Phone Lines

Eleven farmers, representing seven farmer-owned telephone lines, met at the city hall Saturday evening to discuss the rebuilding of the rural lines south of Wayne.

W. G. Schulz, manager of the local Northwestern Bell office, and John Kyl, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, met with the group. Ernest Frisep, secretary of the Wayne-Alton Telephone Co., line 11, presided.

It was agreed by those present that the lines should be rebuilt and re-routed with a possibility of a new underground cable extending south of town along highway 15. Most of the lines in the county, it was pointed out, are more than 45 years old.

Kyl was named to investigate financing and Schulz is to help figure material and construction costs.

Another meeting will be called in about 10 days and all farmers within 10 miles of town will be invited to attend.

Mrs. A. R. Bruce Retiring Soon as Neihardt Custodian

Completing 22 years in custodial work for Wayne State Teachers college, Mrs. A. R. Bruce retired from active duty this month. Women residents of Neihardt hall, where she served longest, gave a party in her honor.

Mr. Bruce took up duties as custodian for the college campus school in 1916. Mrs. Bruce was added to the staff to assist at the men's dormitory in 1917. Soon both were in the campus school and also helped in the industrial arts building and dormitory. They served together until 1927 when Mrs. Bruce was obliged to retire because of ill health.

Neihardt hall was new Jan. 28, 1930, when Mrs. Bruce took up her duties there. She recalls that women liked the new dormitory, but at first it was not home to them as was the old frame building.

Now a pair of hundreds of girls have lived in the dormitory. Neihardt has become home.

Mrs. Bruce says there have been lots of wonderful women in the hall and she is just as much at home there as in her own home. Part of the time Mrs. Bruce supervised a pin, Neihardt, file and Terrace with NRA helpers, but with the increase of duties she had concentrated her efforts in Neihardt in recent years.

Supervisor of Campus Rural School Retires

Has Served as Head Of Rural School Setup Since 1920

Mamie McCorkindale, who has been supervisor of the rural campus school at Wayne State Teachers college since 1920, will retire from that position effective Aug. 1. Miss McCorkindale's plans for the future are not yet definite.

Faculty members at the college honored Miss McCorkindale with a tea Monday, July 11.

The rural campus school was organized at Wayne State Teachers college as a unit separate from the regular campus school in 1916 when the late Dr. U. S. Conn was president and A. V. Teed was director of rural education.

THIS TYPICAL rural school provided for observation and participation in rural school problems. It presented an example of the organization of such a unit and the plan of combination and alternation of classes to save time.

It also furnished a means of presenting helpful materials to teachers. Future teachers observe the work as a group and also participate individually.

The rural school was set up in the industrial arts building on Wayne campus and has been there through the years. Grades 1 through 6 are maintained and Miss McCorkindale has had from 1 to 24 pupils in the past few years. She has been six years, so she has had the privilege of watching them develop.

IN ALL, SHE has had 127 in the school. Classes observing the work of the rural school are large. Miss McCorkindale has 228 this summer with 75 in one division.

The rural school is conducted 10 months. Pupils are admitted at the request of parents who provide their own conveyance. One child traveled over 100 miles to school each day this year.

Three of the women who are members of present pupils were also students of Miss McCorkindale. They are Mrs. Louis Lutt, Mrs. Clark Banister and Mrs. Harold Sorenson.

The present pupils are Louis and Sally Lutt, Janet and Shirley Banister, Leona Sorenson, Billy Corbit, Ardyce and Judy Woods, Phillip Beckenhauer and Mary Ann Turner. The children come to school about 8 a.m. each morning and remain until 4:00 bringing their luncheon.

MISS McCORKINDALE supervises them throughout the day and in addition has the college observation classes. Miss McCorkindale also conducted two large groups in study of language arts at study centers in O'Neill two summers, and she has helped in teacher institutes.

Miss McCorkindale is a native of this part of the state and will likely maintain her home here. Wakefield is her present home. She finished high school there and first taught in Dixon county. Later she was in Wakefield and Pierce schools, coming to Wayne college from Pierce.

Miss McCorkindale took two years of college work at Midland in Fremont. She earned her AB degree and did graduate work at Colorado State Teachers college, Greeley.

SHE HAS BEEN at Wayne since 1920 with exception of two years when she had leave of absence to study in Greeley. She has traveled extensively in the United States, Canada and Alaska and hopes to visit the deep south some winter.

Miss McCorkindale is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, national honor society for teachers. She has been a historian for Wayne branch of AAUW for 30 years.

Increases Take Effect With August Billing

New Rates Less Than Requested By Northwest Bell

W. G. Schulz, manager of the Northwestern Bell exchange in Wayne, this week announced that the revised telephone rates recently approved by the Nebraska state railway commission will become effective with billings in August.

The new rates will mean increases for most telephone users, but a comparison with an order from the commission, the increases were scaled down from those originally requested by the company. The new rate schedule was approved by the commission July 9.

COMPARED WITH rates originally requested by the telephone company, the revised schedule scales down the amount of the increases by 10 cents a month on most residence rates, 50 cents a month on business rates and 25 cents a month on rural rates in many exchanges, Schulz said.

A comparison of the new and old monthly rate schedules for Wayne telephone users, not including federal tax, follows:

The army planes and county officials as well as the camp personnel took part in the search on foot and horseback. The camp nurse (Mrs. Trook) cared for him and he was able to remain at the camp. Mrs. H. B. Lane Tells of Trips in Japan

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mines have received a letter from their daughter, Jean, Mrs. H. B. Lane, who is living in Tokyo, Japan. The letter tells of trips made by the family through Japan when Lt. Col. Lane had a leave.

Their first trip was south of Tokyo on the Tokkaido highway. She wrote, "It is the only highway in Japan that can be called such. By this I mean one could drive on it all the way from Tokyo to Kyoto (an all night train ride), but it couldn't be like going down the Lincoln highway! No service stations, no hamburger stands, no tow truck to come and haul you into town if you get into trouble. You are strictly on your own when you travel by car in Japan. You just hope and pray if you have trouble you will be near one of the military government team headquarters."

They drove up into the mountains toward Lake Hakone. This area, according to Mrs. Lane, is the "happy holiday ground for central Honshu. The international set in Tokyo had a big summer colony up around Hakone before the war; in fact the woods up there are still full of Germans. We passed many hotels or spas. Some just for Japanese, some for occupation people, and some advertised rooms for the foreign traders who are a growing faction in Japan now."

"I AM STILL fascinated by the little mountains in Japan. They are nothing like the majestic Rockies. I imagine they resemble the Catskills or White Mountains. This spring they were very, very green and covered with pretty colors. The delicate lavender of wisteria, bright pinks of the azaleas and white lacy blossoms of the chestnut trees gave the scenery that little fantasy look. Those delicate Japanese landscape paintings you've seen are pretty much the real thing."

"We drove over to Lake Hakone which is one of the looking glasses for famous Mount Fuji. We didn't see her reflection in it as the day wasn't sunny."

"Another time we drove up a famous pass, called Long Tail, to get a good look at the mountain but she still wore a spring veil of clouds. The day we drove to Long Tail we stopped to play nine holes at Sengoku golf course. The course is encircled by four mountains; one of them is the first tee. A typical example of the way the natives utilize space, I guess. When it was time to 'climb' back up to the clubhouse, I had the feeling that someone had forgotten to install a ski lift."

PART TWO OF the Lane's vacation trip was a four-hour drive to Nikko, a famous Japanese shrine Jean wrote. "About 10 miles out of Tokyo we saw a sign, 'You are now entering the Emperor's private game reserve, no hunting.' I might add the road was pretty rustic and there was a sort of 'no trespassing' atmosphere about the whole place."

"Some Americans in a jeep ahead of us halted us and asked if we knew the way to Nikko. We thought we knew so we kept going and they followed. It was like the blind leading the blind."

"We asked our Japanese maid to inquire the way as soon as she saw a native who might know. We later learned never to suggest such a thing. It takes too long for the Japanese to ask each other a simple question! First, 'which way to Nikko?' First they have to bow to each other, then I think they inquire as to the other person's health and finally, very leisurely, they get around to the issue at hand."

"AS IT TURNED out we were on the beaten path and the road did get better. This was that open country and I know, we later rode belt to us. Being from the corn belt ourselves we were interested in the ways and means of the Japanese farmer and what we saw was stranger than fiction."

"We didn't see a cow or a pig or a fence or a machine and we did see made a very pretty, unreal picture. They were planting rice on this early day in June, standing knee deep in water and setting the plants in a wonderfully straight row. In other fields people were cutting and stacking small grain by hand. The farmhouses were very old with heavy thatched roofs, probably housing all four generations. Sometimes we could see the great-grandma sitting in the house because the warm weather the Japanese take off the paper doors along the front wall of their house and let the breezes blow."

"The only even slightly familiar sight on this trip was a little man on a bicycle, ringing a bell. He was selling popicles—shades of the good humor man."

"WE STAYED in Nikko in a Japanese owned and operated hotel. Two years ago, we wouldn't have been allowed to, much less have wanted to. Even now we took our own food and water supply. But this little town was very clean and well run and the Japanese, with their limited facilities, were able to make us fairly comfortable, although hot water was a sometime thing and the typical open window walls and no screens worried us a little."

"A Japanese hotel is quiet. No loud footsteps or banging of doors here. You leave your shoes at the door and everything slides instead of opening and closing. Taking a bath was noisy—one laqueet said steam. Steam and hot water made hot water, but I had the uncomfortable feeling all the time that I was going to be blown out of that mammoth wooden tub."

"You fill the tub once and everybody takes their turn at a good soaking. It's taboo to take the soap bar with you as you're supposed to soap yourself and rinse. All the bubbles off before you get into the water. This was a Japanese weekend for us, but we stuck to American style for our bathing."

"THE NEXT morning we took a Japanese cable car up the mountain to see the sights. There were lots of Japanese sightseers—so many in fact that they were really packed in and if anyone accuses me of not getting close to the Japanese I am now ready to contest."

"When we left the cable station and got on a charcoal burning Japanese bus with 25 seats and about 45 passengers, we felt that we really 'had had it.' They not only stand in the aisles over here they stand in the space between your seat and the seat in front of you. I practically held a little old lady on my lap. Her big obi sash suffocated me but she did turn around to say she was sorry, and I felt very smug because I understood her Japanese."

She described the shrines of Nikko as large and very ornate, but she was more impressed with the avenues of giant cryptomeria trees leading to the town. Also the patient, hard-working Japanese farmer impressed her more than the colorfully costumed Shinto priest.

Mrs. Lane commented on an article by Dennis B. Johnson, magazine writer living in Tokyo, who wrote that occupation people have very little contact with the Japanese. She observed "The army takes care of us in every way that counts and we aren't even allowed to deal with the Japanese very much, though in two years we can see the trend is less and less one of demilitarization and more and more one of bolstering the Japanese economy, and all it implies—for instance, buying cars through a foreign controlled Japanese agency instead of through the PX, paying for bank material with American currency in a Japanese department store, instead of buying everything at the PX."

NATIONAL EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION

Somewhat Encouraging

President Truman's economic message to congress should prove encouraging to business, in that he revealed he will not press his original demands for higher taxes. Business, now in a period of dropping prices and reduced profits, would have little incentive to seek more volume if it knew that more taxes would be added to the already staggering tax burden. Now, however, the knowledge that there will not be stiffer taxes this year should be the incentive businessmen everywhere need to expand their sales.

Not so encouraging was the president's admission that he is willing to enter another period of deficit spending, rather than balance the budget by slashing the government's preposterous spending program. The high cost of government, and the knowledge that the government is spending more than it takes in, will continue to worry the man on the street as well as the nation's top economic authorities.

The downward trend of business may be a return to normal, rather than a recession or depression, but there can be no true return to normal until the government is willing to balance its budget and start paying off the national debt.

The president's message left much to be desired.

A Lesson

Britain's new financial crisis, which has come about despite the tremendous sums of money received from the United States to help her "get back on her feet," can hardly strengthen the cause of socialism. The experiment of a socialistic form of government is proving costly to Britons, as well as to the United States.

But it can be a valuable lesson to the United States. The current trend in our own government is toward socialism and the welfare state. Should not Great Britain's present unhappy situation be all that's needed to prove that our own system of free enterprise is far better?

100% Withholding

(Dakota County Star)

A wonderful thought has just been relayed to us.

Instead of everyone griping about income and withholding taxes which puncture a pay check these days, why not give 100 per cent to the government?

Then the bureaucrats, in turn, could take care of us all. There will be no more worries about money.

Just think of the social implications. No longer will millions of people need to die every year from illnesses caused by their being overweight. The government can regulate the amount of food according to federal height and weight charts.

If we're too heavy for our height, why the government can send us less food. If we're too thin, the government will give us larger portions.

Who's this piker Brannan? Socialized medicine, phooey! M.V.A., chicken feed! Let's do it right!

And it's American, too. Because we'll still keep working for whomever we were before. The businesses will still continue to operate just like before.

The only difference will be the government will get all the money immediately.

The social uplift will be remarkable. Health will be restored to the sick. Businesses will get well. The farmer won't have even as many worries as under the Brannan plan. And the working man will be free as a bird in the springtime.

We spend everything we make anyway, so there won't be any difference except that we'll just give the money to the government quicker than before.

Everyone knows the government can do a lot more for us than we can do for ourselves. So why go half way? Why piddle around with the "fair deal?"

Let's have the "whole deal" and live happily ever after, without a worry. Just like in a fairy tale.

Wisconsin Way

(Lipson Star)

Wisconsin seems to be headed in exactly the opposite direction Nebraska has been traveling. When its governor signed a bill passed by the Wisconsin legislature relating to presidential primary elections held in that state every four years, Wisconsin served notice it did not intend to serve as a guinea pig for budding presidential aspirations. In other words, without a word action by the candidate himself his name does not go on the ballot. The action, so dispatches said, grew out of developments in 1944 and again in 1948. In the latter case when friends of General MacArthur tried to initiate a MacArthur boom in Wisconsin. There is some logic back of Wisconsin's position, which for years bid for the nation's headlines with a varied assortment of political experiments. The "draft a candidate" idea in national politics is a bit by-lish, or naive. It simply doesn't happen, the latest witness to that basic fact being Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Here in Nebraska we have committed ourselves to slapping names on the ballot whether an individual desires to be cast in the role of a candidate or not. His own personal preferences are of no importance; we'll make a candidate out of him whether he likes it or not.

Wisconsin seems to have a different notion of it.

IN BOOKLAND

by—
Mrs. F. A. Mildner
City Librarian

A SHIP WITHOUT A RUDDER might be the best way you would describe the library these days. With a practically new library board and a building in bad repair we are drifting and listing badly but we see hope in sight. By the end of the month the new board will be organized and the architect will have completed the plans. . . maybe the contract might even be let, but at least steps taken in that direction. So our job is to keep afloat until help arrives. In this weather it is an effort as we are practically swimming in our own perspiration but we must keep going to supply the folks who make an effort to come to the library with books, for reading is about all one has energy for these days.

VACATION READING can be supplied for you if you inquire about it at the charging desk. Books will be loaned for the duration of your vacation so that you need not worry about getting them returned in two weeks. There is only one restriction and that is we cannot loan the new books from the rental shelf for a long vacation loan because they are in too much demand. Other than that there is no time limit or limit on the number.

THE FULTZER PRIZE NOVEL, "Guard of Honor" is not everybody's dish but if you liked "Command Decision," that is the type this book follows. Men will probably like it better than the women.

MOST OF THE NEW BOOKS this week have been for the children and young people but we do have two new mysteries and a western for those who like to while away these steamy days with light reading.

DON'T FORGET that the library closes at 8 during July and August.

No. 18 in a Series—
KNOW YOUR FACULTY

This column features a short story each week on one of the faculty members of Wayne State Teachers college, in the hope that townspeople and college instructors may become better acquainted.

Individuals coming in contact with the title, "director of public relations," probably do not realize the extensiveness of responsibility and labor connected with this position. Fred Louis E. Ingelhart, WSTC director, proves the many scopes of ability necessary to satisfactorily fulfill such a college position.

Mr. Ingelhart produces all official publications of the college (including catalogs, bulletins and the newspaper). He acts as representative of the college between numerous newspapers and radio stations, and maintains a news bureau which produces all news and sports stories about college activities appearing in the newspapers and on the radio.

BESIDES operating a speaker's bureau and supervising student recruiting program at WSTC, Mr. Ingelhart teaches two journalism classes each semester and some English courses. He has also been a faculty sponsor of the Goldenrod and is counselor for 30 students.

In relation to his public relations work, Mr. Ingelhart maintains a picture, cut and clipping morgue at his office. Any kind of news story published by or about the college comes through him. All weekly and daily papers throughout Nebraska and radio stations depend entirely upon him for information; the Associated Press considers him as official correspondent.

MR. INGELHART earned his associate of arts degree at Mesa college in Grand Junction, Colo. He achieved his B.S. in Education at Colorado State College of Education, the latter in 1947, just before coming to Wayne. During the war for three and a half years he did personnel work for the air transport command in northern Maine and Labrador.

Before coming to Wayne, Mr. Ingelhart taught at Fruita Union high school in Fruita, Colo. While obtaining his MA degree he taught at Colorado State College of Education.

WE HAVE FOUND that there's a rich field for Wayne State in northeast Nebraska and during the following years there will be a tremendous challenge for the college to serve young people of this part of Nebraska. Over and above teaching duties, I have been able to carry out a number of projects that have met with considerable success for the school. I have found newspapers and radio stations cooperative and eager to carry worthwhile articles. Actual clippings indicate that they do carry volumes of news," he said.

He states that getting a college to the attention of people in this part of the state requires work and originality. There must be new projects each year. For this fall he has been working on having every home in Wayne State broadcast over regional radio stations.

He was married to Margaret Wade, a local woman, Nov. 24, 1948. During August Mr. and Mrs. Ingelhart plan to vacation at his home in Grand Junction, Colo.

Mr. Ingelhart has brought to attention the different mediums of activities needed to satisfy different interest groups of people. He has succeeded in bringing WSTC to a zenith among the state colleges of Nebraska.

THANKS, AMERICA, FOR the biggest half year in Studebaker history!

THE Studebaker buying wave that's sweeping the country grew to huge proportions the past few weeks.

By the end of June, so many people had bought new Studebakers that the biggest half year in all Studebaker history was recorded.

STUDEBAKER'S REALLY ROLLING! 1949 IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR!

Gee, Mom... I'm homesick!

SPEAK A WORD of cheer over the wire to a small boy who desperately needs a word of comfort. And—if you like—think of the service your telephone performs at such a time. Think of what it's worth, then let's see how the cost adds up...

Everybody has seen the telephone lineman. His job is one of thousands that figure in the cost of supplying service. What we charge you should pay wages, buy replacement parts, keep the service up to snuff... and should include a profit. The function of profits is to attract the investment money that pays for improvements and expansion. We want profits no more than enough to do this job and hence to keep the business healthy.

Your telephone is worth more than it costs
