A lean-to addition at the left of the station was demolished and firemen are shown tearing down a section of the roof which was blown up into wires overhead.

Mrs. James Bressler has been released from the hospital after being treated for leg and head injuries she suffered last week Wednesday afternoon when an explosion heavily damaged the Bressler service station four miles south of Wayne.

The blast demolished a small storehouse on the west end of the main station building, wrecked the interior of the station proper (in which Mrs. Bressler was working at the time) and damaged the tavern built onto the east side of the station. No one else was in the station.

FORCE OF THE explosion separated the station and the tavern addition, forcing them apart more than a foot.

The explosion occurred about 4 p.m. and apparently originated in the basement. There was no fire.

G. E. Ekstrand of the state fire marshal's office, Chief Paul Rogge of the Wayne fire department, who investigated, reported that the blast appeared to have been caused when a spark from an air compressor motor in the basement ignited gasoline fumes. They believe that gasoline may have seeped into the basement in some way.

An insurance adjuster estimated the loss at $750 to $1,000.

die at a time. Two men were kept busy packing the grain as well as power its threshing operation. Threshing under these conditions was hard work at best. To the joy of the hired hands, and the discomfort of the owners, however, the pace was broken by frequent break-downs.

BY THE MIDDLE eighties, steam began replacing horses as the motive power for threshing. An even greater improvement was the development of the traction engine which could move the separator from place to place as well as power its threshing operations.

Steady improvements in both separator and power enabled the threshing process to keep pace with Nebraska's expanding grain production. The threshing "ring" was an integral part of the state's economic and social life, and a prime example of the cooperation that has developed the American West into the world's breadbasket.

Although threshers had been used in the United States since the pioneer days, Nebraska was still Indian country, not all of Nebraska's pioneer farmers were able to afford this means of separating grain from straw. Many of them had to rely on main strength applied to home-made flails.

ANOTHER EARLY technique was to drive horses or oxen over grain placed in a circle with the heads in the center, thereby separating the grain from the straw. The straw was removed with a fork. Grain and chaff were separated by throwing into the air and depending on the wind. If there was no wind, one or two men swung a sheet to create a breeze.

By the early seventies, however, threshers began to appear in Nebraska. The first ones knocked the grain from the straw but did not separate. Later separators were developed. A further refinement was the winnowing device which separated the chaff from the grain.

THE EARLY separators were horse-powered, with the most common type being the sweep power driven by five teams of horses. Three men composed the machine crew: the driver, the separator tender, and the man who fed the machine. Threshing was done from a stack or bundle were brought to the machine in racks, as they later were, although the early separators had to be hand-fed, one bundle at a time.

Experts on China say the communists will soon take Canton. The 900,000 American civilians there have been told to leave. The same experts say that when Russia was given the right-of-way in Manchuria, China was doomed.

The "white paper" just released by the state department dealing with our relations with China in recent years, is the subject of a lot of discussion here.

Expellees, who now number more than 14,000,000 in the western zone of Germany, present such a perplexing economic problem that High Commissioner McCloy is giving these homeless people serious attention. They cannot return to their old homes. McCloy may ask that many be sent out of Germany to other countries where they can start a new life again.

CONGRESSMEN are told by financial experts that the amount of money outside of banks has increased from four billion dollars in 1929 to 25 billion in 1949. They claim that the trend of more money going into hiding and less going into banks for circulation indicates distrust of the government by the people. They say it is an added index toward depression and that the cure is less taxation and less government spending.

Financial experts say one dollar invested in private enterprise, with its rapid turnover, is worth not less than 14 dollars spent by government because government spending represents too much overhead and waste. The advertising agency which has a contract with the recruiting service of the U. S. Armed Services plans to use weekly newspaper

LAND: Lays all level with 140 acres under cultivation, balance pasture land and some river land. Only 1/2 mile to school, and 1 mile from oil road. A very productive farm with an ideal location in the heart of the Elkhorn valley.

LAND SELLS AS ONE UNIT—181 acres, highly improved farm with the best of soil, probably the only bottom farm available in this territory.

TERMS: 15% day of sale, balance on or before March 1, 1950. A $17,000.00 loan can be assumed with the option of paying $5,000.00 per year or any part thereof with interest at 4 1/2%. A good merchantable abstract, warranty deed and possession will be given on or before March 1, 1950.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Macklin purchased this farm one year ago from Albert Feldmann and now have decided to move back to Iowa where they have other interests—and for this reason they are selling this farm at auction for the high dollar. Nebraska Gravel for Highways

A recent newspaper article, emanating from Washington, to the effect that Nebraska sand and gravel won't make satisfactory concrete roads, has been the cause of some misinformation in regard to the state's road program.

That is the gist of a letter written by Gov. Val Peterson to Burt Craig of Wayne who had sent the governor an editorial on roads clipped from a daily newspaper. Because Nebraska badly needs better highways, and because The Herald believes the public should be more fully informed of the state's "case for better roads," this newspaper herewith reproduces, in part, the governor's letter of explanation to Mr. Craig:

"The editorial you enclosed is based upon some misinformation. Actually, for many years, the highway department has known that when you mix Nebraska sand, gravel and cement some sort of chemical reaction takes place which is not favorable to the best results in concrete. Long study and experimentation has led to the addition of a mixture of Kansas rock which appears to offset the reaction and to produce satisfactory concrete pavement. These studies were started many years ago, and I have talked upon the subject and have been reported in the daily press. However, recently a piece of publicity came out of Washington regarding the matter, and it was seized upon by some who were unfavorable to the present attempt to build roads which are so badly needed by the people of our state.

"It is, of course, much more economical for us to utilize materials which are closest at hand. Should we have to ship in crushed rock from the mountain areas, the cost of building roads would be multiplied. Further, I am sure you will join with me in the hope that we can utilize local materials so that those who own such materials and plants may continue to operate their businesses and give employment to the large numbers of fine Nebraska folks who gain their livelihood from these Nebraska enterprises."

The highway program has been bitterly opposed by some factions in the state, but none has come forward with a better program than the one devised by state officials after a long study of the situation. As the governor pointed out, Nebraska sand and gravel apparently can be used for satisfactory concrete roads, and there can be little justification for attacks upon the program for this reason.

The highway program will be very costly. It seems wise to make the money—and the roads—stretch as far as possible by using Nebraska materials whenever practicable.

Only One Best Farm Program
 (Omaha Journal-Stockman)

That the answer to such American problems as using big grain crops profitably, practicing true soil conservation and keeping the people of this country well fed lies in more livestock on farms is a truth being repeated more and more frequently among farm people. One of the latest groups to enunciate it was the one which assembled in Salt Lake City, for the executive session of the American Dairy Association.

Returning from that meeting, Dale N. Stewart, who spoke for Nebraska dairymen, expressed the sentiment that "viewed from any angle, this country is long on grain and short on cows, hogs, cattle, sheep and poultry to convert the feed into milk, meat and eggs. In the solution of this agricultural problem is centered not only the setting of tomorrow's tables, but continued prosperity in advancing the economic life of the nation."

"Postwar demands threw America's food production out of kilter," he goes on to explain. "Emphasis was placed on grain and cereal production to supply other countries with bread. This diverted farm operations away from cows, hogs, sheep and poultry. In today's let-up of foreign demand for grain, this country is faced with huge stockpiles that are out of balance with livestock population."

Unfortunately, most of the federal farm programs being proposed and discussed today promise to do very little to rectify the unbalanced situation outlined above. That may not be their chief fault, but at least it is one of their major shortcomings. It cannot be reiterated too often that the best farm program this country can have is a livestock farm program in which the bulk of the feed crops produced are consumed on or near the farms where they are raised.

IN BOOKLAND

 Mrs. F. A. Mildner
 City Librarian

AT LAST those new books we have been promising for so long are beginning to arrive. As fast as the committee can get them looked over and we can get in the office they will be out for the public to enjoy. This week we have put out Rest and Be Thankful by Helen Mac Innes which is the Literary Guild book for August. It is a highly entertaining story of Wyoming and dude ranching but it is in no respect a western for the characters are people from the east. It is bound to be a good reader. High Jungle by William Beebe, director of tropical research for the New York Zoological society will be welcome reading for many who like adventure all over the world. The author is a great naturalist, a scientist with the gift of tongues and a writer of extraordinary power. Young and old are going to take to this book and we expect it to be in demand all next winter as well as the summer and fall months ahead. Lady Spin Your Web is a new Lockridge mystery and Design For Ann and Joan Foster Junior are good reading for the young girls of the teenage days. Especially Father is not just another of those "father" books which have been selling so well. There is something about this one which makes it enjoyable reading just as Life With Father and Cheaper By The Dozen. The author is Gladys Taber.

AT LAST the yard at the library has been cleaned up. Did you think it was never going to be? It did look pretty hopeless but this week a truckload of debris was hauled to the dump and Rowan Wiltse has been busy mowing and trimming and pulling weeds so that we feel like we have a real clean-up yard for the use of all do this in the spring but we got off to a bad start at the library, or maybe we never did get started until this week.

Wayne Romps Over Wakefield 12-2, Here Sunday

Wayne Pioneer ball team won from Wakefield here Sunday evening by a 12-2 count. Charles Kimmel, batting for Wayne, allowed but three hits to the Wakefield team, while Wayne was nicking two Wakefield pitchers for 14 safe blows, seven for extra bases. Sokolowski, starting for Wakefield was chased from the mound in the third inning after Wayne had tallied six times on six hits, a walk and two errors. Montgomery finished the game allowing six hits and four runs, coupled with three errors.

Wakefield scored once in the second inning, after Anderson had flied out. Hollis singled and was safe at second on Stebbins' error of Jones' ground ball. Hollis then scored on Fredrickson's fielder's choice which was also bobbed by Stebbins as he forced Jones at second and threw wild to first. Hypocrite grounded out on the first and in the third frame another run was scored as Erickson's drive went through Wilcott. Anderson drew a walk. Hollis was then struck out and Erickson scored on Jones' single to center field. A strike-out ground ball to short ended the inning.

Wayne scored once in the first inning after two were down when Weber drew a walk and stole second and scored on an error of Frei's drive through second base. In the second another run was scored as Stebbins was safe at first on an error and sacrificed to second by Harter and scoring on Gunderson's single. Kimmel then hit safely, but a fly ball and ground ball ended the inning.

Pioneer Nite League Notes

By Leo J. Schmitt, West Point Secretary, Pioneer Nite League

Here are radio spots where you can pick up the scores of Pioneer Nite games, following league games the night before. Station KFCT at Fremont leads off at 7:30 a.m. with a complete round-up of results and highlights of all games. The secretary's report also comes over KFCT on the West Point program at 9:40 p.m. Station WJAG at Norfolk gives good coverage to PNL activities on its 5:30 sports program, and at 5:45 President "Red" Schwantler reports the scores over station KJJK at Columbus. There is also excellent coverage in the daily papers at Columbus, Fremont, Norfolk, Omaha and Lincoln, and of course, in the weekly papers all over PNL territory.

Most persistent jinx in the league is still on the job according to Columbus. The Columbus and Stromsburg joined the PNL in 1940 the two clubs have tangled nine times, and Stromsburg has won em all Columbus has its moments elsewhere however. At Kansas and the gang has knocked over Wahoo for the third time this season. Wahoo Manager Brown Kohman cracked, "It wasn't for us that 12-2 at Columbus club wouldn't even be in the league."

Wahoo had a big week at that. Monday the knockout of Fremont in 5 to 1, in the playoff for the first ball title of the southern division. Then the next night they knocked off West Point, 7 to 5, to snap a 13-game winning streak for the northern division kings. The Fremont Wahoo tussle had everything—hard hitting, smart pitching, fancy fielding, even runarounds for the umpires—all in a grand spectacle for the crowd of 2699 paid that jammed the new Wahoo ball park—a park of which Wahoo may be proud.

Stranouts of the week: Bud Kreizerger, David City's aggressive veteran, who sparked the David City Fremont with three for four, and some spectacular fielding. John Howard's three-hit snoutout pitching in the same game. Cagle Wagner, 18 strikeouts over Wainor a season high. Max Quick's two-hit pitching and tie-breaking homer over Columbus. Merv Kranda's 10th for five that topped off a 11-strikeout hurling for that set-down Wahoo.

Wayne scored once in the first inning after two were down when Weber drew a walk and stole second and scored on an error of Frei's drive through second base. In the second another run was scored as Stebbins was safe at first on an error and sacrificed to second by Harter and scoring on Gunderson's single. ## Beer Legalized in Nebraska 16 Years Ago This Month

The record of the last 16 years has vindicated the judgment of Nebraska voters in discarding a 13-year experiment which was characterized by crime, corruption and disregard of law. National crime has decreased 7%, highway fatalities almost half!

During these 16 years, the industry has learned much about the operation of taverns—operation in the public interest.

An educational program designed to assist every tavern keeper is being conducted by the Brewing Industry for the benefit of the entire community.
