Homemade Cookies Good For Students

To a busy college student, nothing is more pleasant than a box of goodies from home. Cookies keep well, are easy to store in a dormitory room and are always ready for a friendly snack with new found college friends.

What kind of cookies shall you bake and how shall you pack them? Remember when your youngsters went to kindergarten and then to elementary school? Their great favorites then were oatmeal cookies, wholesome and rich with old-fashioned flavor.

Send those old-fashioned cookies to college fresh from your oven, and make them extra good with some sweet morsels of chocolate added to the basic oatmeal cookie batter.

As for packing the cookies, the most efficient way is to get a strong cardboard box and cut a strip of cardboard to make a partition down the middle. Then cut small pieces of cardboard and fit on each side of the middle strip to make compartments. Wrap three or four cookies in waxed paper tuck into each compartment, and the cookies will travel snugly.

This tested recipe will send cookies to college youth students who will be proud to share with friends.

Chocolate Oatmeal Cookies

- 1/2 cup shortening
 - 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
 - 1 egg
 - 1 tsp vanilla
 - 1/2 cup sifted flour
 - 1/2 tsp salt
 - 1/2 cup rolled oats
 - 1 pkg semi-sweet chocolate
- Cream together the shortening and sugar. Add the orange rind, egg and vanilla and beat well. Add the flour and salt which have been sifted together and mixed with the rolled oats. Stir in the semi-sweet chocolate. Drop by teaspoons onto cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes about four dozen cookies.

Call Us Before Buying Advertising Service or Copy

Our press association has warned us that there are a number of "hot shot" advertising agencies and mail services being offered to Nebraska merchants by out-of-town salesmen. Some are reputable and some are not.

Many of the contracts are tricky, and if the merchant does not use the copy and mats EXACTLY as authorized he will be sued or heckled into an expensive settlement.

We want you to know The Wayne Herald does not endorse and is not a party to any of the advertising sales or copy services being offered.

Only employees of this newspaper are authorized to act as our advertising representatives.

This newspaper subscribes to an advertising mat service for which we pay good money for your use. That advertising and mat service and the services of our staff are available to you without extra cost.

We suggest that you call No. 150 when approached by an out-of-town salesman who wants to sell you a service. Perhaps we have all the services you need, and can save you needless expenditure.

Fair Trade... 1937 Trade Act Act Seems Out

The Nebraska deputy attorney general predicts that one Nebraska law probably will be a casualty while a second will not, as the result of the U.S. supreme court decision outlawing "fair trade" laws.

The official, Walter Nolte, said Monday night that the Nebraska unfair sales act passed about ten years ago apparently was safe, but the fair trade act of 1937 probably would be rendered ineffective by the supreme court decision of Monday.

The decision in a Louisiana case held that state "fair trade" laws do not have effect from curbing prices if the stores refuse to sign agreements to maintain prices at a certain level.

Nolte explained that the Nebraska fair trade act provides it is not a violation of any other acts for a distributor or manufacturer to contract with a retailer to maintain a marked price on a specific article.

The fact that such a contract existed between the manufacturer or distributor and even a single retailer in the state was regarded as sufficient, if given proper notice, to hold other retailers to that price.

But the provision now becomes ineffective under the general interpretation here of the U.S. supreme court decision in the Louisiana case, Nolte explained.

The alternative would be for the distributor or manufacturer by proper means to contract with every retailer in the state to sell at the specified price, he pointed out.

Under the unfair sales act, pass-

Group Urges Car Checks For Safety

You must see danger to avoid it! The National Safety Council made that statement today as part of its present campaign to "Check Your Car, Check Accidents."

One of the major check-points—often overlooked but vital to safety—is the condition of windshield wiper blades, the council said.

Motorists were urged to check not only the operation of the wipers, but also the effectiveness of the blades themselves. This depends on clean blades and clean glass, and on replacement of blades if necessary.

The importance of windshield wipers as an accident cause cannot be measured accurately, the council pointed out, but the glare of a streaked or smeared windshield when the sun or approaching headlights strike it undoubtedly contributes to many mishaps.

Studies have shown the chief cause of windshield smear to be an oily film picked up from the exhausts of other vehicles and from the road surface, the council said. When a rain starts, dust and ordinary dirt are removed by the wiper blade, but the oily film remains to cause smear.

Cleaning Windshields

The film can be removed from the windshield by using wax-free or oil-free cleaning solutions and clean, lint-free rags. But smear still will not be eliminated unless the wiper blade is thoroughly cleaned, too. A survey of cleaning methods that the blade is seldom given attention, although it is coated with the same residue of oil, bugs and dirt that is found on the glass. In addition to contributing to smear, the oily deposit on the blade eventually will deteriorate the live action of the rubber.

The council said that motorists do not understand or are not fussy enough about this point. Drivers were urged to insist on proper cleaning methods when the car is serviced, an oil-cutting cleaning solution, clean wiping cloth and careful cleaning of the wiper blade itself.

In fact, the council advised motorists to take the trouble to occasionally unhook the blades from the arms—a simple matter—and scrub them in a mild solution of washing soda.

If thorough cleaning does not bring satisfactory results and if there is adequate tension in the wiper arms, then new blades should be installed. Inexpensive insurance against an accident due to poor visibility.

The next time you drive along U. S. Highway 34 stop to look at the historical marker recently erected west of Lincoln by the state chapter of the DAR, with the cooperation of the state department of roads and irrigation. The fine native boulder, to which a bronze plaque has been affixed, calls attention to the Lancaster salt basin, the most prominent feature of the landscape and an important factor in the location of Nebraska's capital city.

There are legends to the effect that the plains Indians travelled for miles to visit the saline deposits. Likewise, many a pioneer Nebraska family has in its stock of household tales accounts of long trips by wagon, on horseback or on foot to visit the Lancaster salt basin.

As early as 1853, salt companies were leading men to the basin to investigate its possibilities. In 1856 Capt. W. T. Donovan, one of Lancaster County's early settlers, arrived at the basin as the representative of a Plattsburgh salt company. He settled at the mouth of Oak Creek, but never realized his dream of making a fortune in salt.

The Kansas and Nebraska Handbooks for 1857-58, one of a number of such documents gotten up for western states and territories by an enterprising Iowan, Nathan Parker, described the saline resources of Lancaster County in glowing terms, declaring that the Lancaster salt springs constituted "the most valuable saline region yet discovered in this country."

Parker confidently predicted that Nebraska would "afford salt in enough to salt the whole world, and that the salt mines would prove more valuable than the gold mines of California."

The early 1860s brought a flurry of activity as eager promoters worked to develop the basin's supposed saline resources into a profitable industry. Salt boilers were brought in, and one plant had a capacity of two tons per day.

A consuming faith in the potential productivity of the salt basin was an important factor in the location of Nebraska's state capital at Lancaster in 1867 (the name being changed to Lincoln).

In the first message to the legislature in the new capitol, Governor David Butler declared, "we have, within sight of this hall, a rich and apparently inexhaustible supply of pure and easily manufactured article."

The fact that the article didn't prove to be "easily manufactured" combined with a hotly-contested lawsuit, involving the state and one of its most prominent citizens. J. Sterling Morton, frightened away potential manufacturers, Nebraska's salt industry died aborning.

Fifty-Three Graduated by Wayne City

One of the greatest terrors to the pioneer settlers of old Nebraska was the dry prairie fire. Fanned by strong winds, a fire once loose on the dry prairie was almost impossible to stop. It raced along, destroying everything in its path—range, hay, feed, barns, animals, homes and occasionally even the settlers themselves.

To protect their homes from the ravages of fire, the settlers plowed a fire break around them. This customarily consisted of two sets of furrows two or more rods apart, with the grass between them burned off. This, in itself, was a fairly hazardous undertaking and required a calm day. Occasionally, actual prairie fires were started through carelessness in burning a fire break. The animals of Nebraska are replete with accounts of prairie fires. Some of them are noted here.

The year 1872 brought a most disastrous October fire to Butler county. According to one old settler, the entire county was singed over by the blaze which swept in from Polk county, destroying hundreds of acres of standing corn, more than 5,000 bushels of wheat, 1,000 and poles, a great deal of farm machinery and scores of farm animals. All told, the loss was estimated at $15,000, to $20,000, figures which, though large, are misleading because in many instances settlers lost everything they had.

A year later Oct. 14, 1873, a disastrous fire broke out in Red Willow county. Driven by a strong wind from the south, the flames jumped fire breaks with impunity, sweeping haystacks and sheds away in a moment. The home of G. B. Nettleton was burned with all its contents, and the inmates barely escaped with their lives.

Moses H. Sydenham, prominent freighter and settler of the Platte Valley, once told of traveling more than a day over burnt prairie. "On all sides was a perfect blackness as far as the eye could see, the only relief being the blue sky above and here and there some partly burnt white bones of some buffalo or other animal. It was a perfect picture of despair, with hope left out."

Sydenham, incidentally, lost many valuable documents relating to the freighting business in a prairie fire. Otham A. Abbott, Nebraska's first lieutenant-governor and a pioneer lawyer of Grand Island, tells from his reminiscences of danger from sparks struck off by passing trains. A fire started in this fashion once threatened Grand Island

Senators Predict Battle Over Toll Road Question

From the State Journal
 If the legislative council committee assigned the study of Nebraska's highway problems recommends legislation to establish toll roads in the state, it will likely set off a battle which will dwarf last summer's bitter highway fight.

That's the opinion of senators who have suggested that since this session of the legislature hasn't done much about solving the road problem, the matter of toll highways should be looked into by the council.

Sen. Arthur Carmody of Trenton believes that the highway states will have to come to toll roads, or at least to some other way of financing them.

"I used to think that the highway act should include the freight," he said, "but I'm not so sure. Are our highways an asset to the whole state, like schools? If they are, then everybody should help pay."

Carmody pointed to the success of the 11 mill building levy which has been a boon to the state institutions. "We could put on a mill levy for roads," he said, "if people out west where the levy is already 50 or 60 mills aren't going to go broke paying another mill."

Another Senator who would like to see the possibility of toll roads investigated is Joseph Shalla of Wayne. "I think we're definitely coming to it," he said.

Shalla is thinking in terms of our pay-as-you-ride four-lane highways, two east and west and a couple north and south. Carmody doubts there's enough north-south traffic to support a toll road and thinks that one east and west could be ample. "Don't forget," he said, "you've got to build free roads, too."

A hint of the opposition toll roads might expect of the American Automobile association which is on record saying, "The requirements of highway transportation can best be met through the development of public highways, financed by taxation rather than by the construction of toll roads." The report lists eight specific objections to toll highways.

Wilfred Owen of the Brookings Institution, national research organization, wrote in the July, 1950, edition of America's Highways: "The same customer who willingly pays postwar automobile prices and who is willing to go in to a dealer to do so, is not easily sold on the proposition that the price of his highway must also go up to compensate for higher costs. He does not know or care that the gasoline tax is simply the price paid for a public service. And he is often equally unwilling to borrow to finance a road, despite his willingness to amortize the cost of his vehicle."

Sen. Earl J. Lee of Fremont also thinks that toll roads are a definite possibility for Nebraska. His opinion, and in this he was joined by Sen. Robert McNitt of Lincoln, that "the roads are good enough to finance and other cross-state motorists would be willing to pay the toll and not avoid Nebraska."

Awarded Scholarship
 Stephen Hanson, Alien, has been given a $100 scholarship in speech debate and dramatic art by the University of Nebraska. The scholarship is worth $20 per semester for one year.

Rats Cost $2
 Two dollars a year is the cost of "baiting" your farm rat. A new rat bait known as Warfarin is reported successful in ridding the farm of rats for long periods.

The life of farm machinery depends on the type machine and the type storage, according to Michigan state agricultural economist. They said a storage shed should not be at least 24 inches high and 21 inches wide. The cost of the machinery being stored should be considered in the type of storage.

Weight of Eggs
 On the basis of U. S. standards, small eggs must weigh at least 19 ounces per dozen, medium at least 21 ounces, large at least 24 ounces, and extra large at least 27 ounces per dozen.

Saves Grass
 Grassland specialists of a New Zealand manufacturer recommend that in the same direction as the wind, the grass should be cut to give the most efficient handling needed to produce hay.

2,4-D Weed Killer May Be Harmful to Livestock

Will our leading chemical weed killer, 2,4-D, also be a potential livestock killer this summer? It can be under certain conditions, the American Animal Health Foundation explained today.

The question arose following scattered reports of livestock being dying after grazing on 2,4-D treated weeds and crops. Some farmers put the blame on 2,4-D.

"However, 2,4-D is only indirectly involved," Foundation authorities explained. "Actually, the deaths probably resulted from nitrate poisoning, brought about by a chemical change that 2,4-D may set off in certain plants."

"In certain weeds, such as ragweed and pigweed, and on some field crops such as sugar beets, 2,4-D brings about a drastic upset in the plant's chemical factories. This chemical upset may cause the plant to build up its potassium-nitrate to high levels.

"For example, the potassium-nitrate level in the sugar beet may jump from a normal of 22 percent to almost 4 percent—six times the amount needed to cause nitrate poisoning. Another peculiar development is that cattle seem to crave the nitrate-charged pigweeds and ragweeds which they normally shy away from. When the animals eat these plants, a fatal nitrate poisoning may result.

"Fortunately, on most crops and weeds, the application of 2,4-D does not produce toxic effects when this vegetation is eaten by livestock. We can still regard 2,4-D as an effective and safe weed killer this summer under most conditions."

But, the Foundation warned that farmers should use caution when grazing livestock on sugar beet tops, oats, hay and straw, corn sorghum, pigweed, lambquarter and similar weeds, after these plants have been sprayed with 2,4-D. And if livestock develop nitrate poisoning symptoms, such as frothing at the mouth and convulsions, immediate diagnosis should be obtained if the animals are to be saved.

Child's Clinic To Be Held At Norfolk

A crippled children's clinic will be held in Norfolk on Saturday, May 26, under the auspices of the Division of Services for Crippled Children and with the cooperation of the Nebraska Elks association. The examining specialists will represent orthopedic surgery and pediatrics.

Children may be admitted to the clinic when referred by their local physician. The clinic is for diagnosis, consultation, check-up and after-care services of cases receiving treatment. Orthopedic cases may receive treatment if care cannot be arranged through private resources. Non-orthopedic cases under the age of 16 will be accepted at the clinic for the purposes of consultation and diagnosis only and should be referred only by the family's own physician.

The clinic is for the purpose of serving the following counties: Boone, Cedar, Colfax, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Madison, Pierce, Platte, Stanton, Thurston and Wayne. Registration will be from 7 a. m. until noon. All persons who plan to bring children to the clinic should register the child to be seen before noon. The clinic will be held at the Norfolk state hospital. The Elks lodge is furnishing, without cost, a noon lunch to all children and their parents who are registered for the clinic examination.

Persons interested in securing additional information about the clinic should contact their family physician or their County Welfare office as soon as possible.

Surface Moisture of State Now 'Ample' to 'Surplus'

Surface moisture in Nebraska is now ample to surplus, the agricultural statistics reported Tuesday.

Local areas in a few counties still could use more, but most sections, particularly southwest Nebraska, now have plenty following rains of the last few days.

Counties still having local areas needing more moisture are Sheridan, Box Butte, Cheyenne and Morrill.

Wheat, alfalfa, wild hay and pasture improved during the past week, the report said.

But only 13 per cent of the corn had been planted by the end of the week, compared to 28 per cent at this date a year ago.

The wheat crop is about ready to harvest in the southern counties. Condition of oats and barley remained unchanged last week.

Hay and pasture showed marked improvement. The range country, by far, has the most satisfactory moisture, and all cattle have been turned out to pasture.

In-shippments of cattle to country points for the first four months of this year totalled 166 thousand, compared to 124 thousand in the corresponding months a year ago. Sheep and lambs shipped in totalled 225 thousand compared to 162 thousand in the same months of 1950.

Federal Funds Are Available for County Secondary Roads

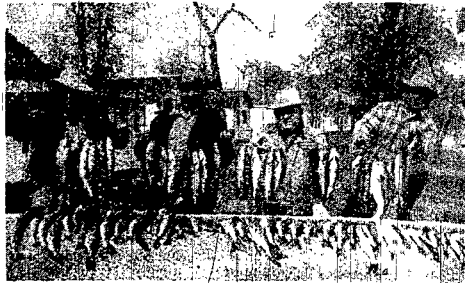

Nebraska counties can and do use federal funds to build secondary roads without meeting standards of the state highway department, State Engineer Fred Klietsch has announced.

In making his comment Klietsch disagreed with a recent claim of the Nebraska Farm Bureau (federation). The federation said federal funds were available to counties only if the counties built their roads to state standards.

Few Nebraska counties are taking advantage of this method of getting their secondary roads constructed to their own standards, Klietsch said.

When counties use federal matching funds for their roads, Klietsch said, the state acts only as a contracting agency between the county and federal government.

Wayne Dumps Winside 8-2 In League Opening

With Walt Lebbs giving up only nine scattered hits, Wayne opened its 1951 Elkhorn Valley League schedule Sunday with an 8-2 victory over Winside.

Wayne batters pounded out 14 hits, including triples by Don Tietgen and Manager Al Bahe, to give Lebbs plenty of support. Lebbs struck out six and gave only one base on balls in going the full route.

Wayne bunched its scoring in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. The locals tallied four times in the fourth as Bahe opened the inning with a triple. Tietgen fled out and Dean Schram was out catcher to first. Then Lester Lutt hit a sharp grounder to Witt, the Winside shortstop, who bobbed the ball and Bahe scored. Lutt stole second and Lebbs walked to put men on first and second. Roger Miller then singled to score Lutt, and Norris Weible scored Lebbs and Miller with a single.

Gully gone wild!

No stone quarry or sand pit is this. Once a tiny trickle of water flowed uncontrolled—unchecked—over the fertile land. No one paid particular attention to it, or to the gully—ever broadening, ever deepening—that developed.

Here is the final stage; acres of once-productive farm land have become wasteland—an eyesore on the landscape; a hazard to man and stock; ugly evidence of man's mismanagement of the soil.

What is being done on your farm to protect the heritage of the land? Consult the county agent or soil conservation engineer regarding soil saving practices for your farm.

More Jobs
 Rural youths have received assurance from the American society for engineering education that there are positions in industry waiting for them. A survey showed fewer than 10,000 graduates to fill 30,000 jobs which will develop by 1951.

Soils Grass
 Fertility of soil is being lost through leaching and erosion 10 to 20 times faster than it is being replaced. This is despite the more than 13 million tons of fertilizer annually spread on U. S. farmlands. Grassland farming is seen as the best answer to continued erosion.

Enforce Law And Keep Peace Are Jobs For County Sheriff

Shown in his office in the Wayne county court house is county sheriff Hans Tietgen. Sheriff Tietgen has served in the office for seven years, and has lived in the county for over 40 years.

Although county offices are inter-related, each official has his own particular duties that are different from others. Among the most diversified tasks performed by one official are those entrusted to the county sheriff.

As the county's chief executive officer, he is charged with execution of the laws and preservation of the peace. Such duties require specific tasks which often carry him to all parts of the county. His job includes serving warrants of arrest, executions, summons, subpoenas and collection of distress warrants, bad checks and delinquent taxes.

Warrants of arrest are issued by the county treasurer on delinquent taxes. It is the sheriff's job to collect such taxes or levy an execution on the person's property to assure payment of the taxes. A summons is a notification to a person that someone has filed a suit against him and states that he is to appear in court to answer the charge. A subpoena is demanded for a person to appear in court, generally as a witness.

In his capacity as the county's chief law-enforcement officer, the sheriff works in close cooperation with the Federal Bureau of Investigation. In the absence of specific federal statute the FBI is not authorized to conduct any investigation on what is strictly a local violation. Yet, there are many services of a coordinating type which the FBI is able to offer for local enforcement officers.

The FBI fingerprint identification division is one service which assists the county sheriff. This includes the furnishing of criminal records based on fingerprints; filing of wanted notices; identification of unknown dead; location of missing persons and similar identification services.

The sheriff is chief investigating officer in the county. As such he must investigate accidents, disputes and all complaints involving possible violation of the law. He keeps close contact with the highway patrol and other law enforcement officers by means of a two-way radio in his car and home.

Other Duties
 Wayne county sheriff serves as county coroner and chairman of the county board of health. He must investigate possible diseases or bad health conditions in the county and is authorized to quarantine. The sheriff is also entrusted with operating and maintaining the county jail and caring for prisoners.

County Sheriff Hans Tietgen has lived in Wayne county since 1908. He has served in his office for seven years having been appointed to his first term and elected to two successive terms. His office in the Wayne county court house.

Needs Cooperation
 Sheriff Tietgen maintains that a good law enforcement officer must have the cooperation of the people in the community.
 He recalls a statement recently made by J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, when he said, "law enforcement is only as effective as citizens demand. If the community, as a group or as individuals, does not desire effective law enforcement, then there will not be effective law enforcement. The ultimate responsibility for a crime-free community rests at home with the citizens of the community itself when they assume their responsibility."

 On Monday the two classes enjoyed a picnic at the park, followed by skating at Sieckman's Rink.

Sixth Grade

 Mrs. Burl Munsell and Donnie visited Monday afternoon.
 Our closing day picnic was held at the golf park. Jay B. Munsell furnished orangeade in honor of his birthday. The class attended and enjoyed the picnic, Toys A-Twinkle, USA by Esther D. Carlson and her class.
 The class presented a gift to Miss Edwards.

A Profound Loss
Wayne, Wayne State and modern, progressive education in Nebraska suffered a profound loss Friday with the death of Dr. Victor P. Morey.

Feeders' Setback
A news release from the state department of agriculture this week estimates that Nebraska cattle feeders will lose about 16 million dollars by October 1 as the result of the government's rollback order on the price of beef.

There are approximately 45,000 cattle now on feed in Wayne county. By October 1, the average price will have dropped $4 per hundred pounds.

The government's order can only have a disastrous effect on the cattle feeding industry in Nebraska. Feeders have little choice but to market their herds earlier than the October 1 deadline.

Cattle flow to the market only when their owners feel that the market is advantageous. If feeders have a poor outlook for the future, they have no recourse but to cut down their operations.

Prices cannot go down in the meat market until the demand for better meat is met by supply. The American people have extra dollars in their pockets because of inflation.

Patience on the part of the government officials will bring about a cure to the meat problem. Higher prices will presently bring an even greater supply of cattle to the people and the only result possible is lower prices.

We Approve
Members of the state normal board showed sound judgment Saturday in their appointment of Dr. Howard E. Tempore acting president of Wayne State.

Wilbur Shaw thinks so much of this new Chrysler, he has selected it as Pace Car for the 1951 Indianapolis 500-mile race.

WILBUR SHAW, AMERICA'S MOST FAMOUS DRIVER, DRIVES NEW 1951 CHRYSLER—REPORTS TO YOU ON REVOLUTIONARY FIREPOWER ENGINE AND HYDRAGUIDE POWER STEERING

Here are Wilbur Shaw's reactions—in his own words—as taken down by a recording machine in the car: "The '51 Chrysler has it! With this new engine and power steering, the first of its kind in a whole of an automobile. I'm completely bowled over by the ease of steering! This steering combined with the automatic transmission... is the nearest thing to an automatic pilot for a car I can possibly imagine. 'This engine... I can't get over the amount of power and snap in this engine... it's incredible.' 'I drove 111 miles with the feeling I had expended no more effort than in driving around the block.' 'When Mrs. Shaw drove, her comments just about equaled with mine. Here's what she thinks of the 1951 Chrysler... 'Mrs. Shaw: 'At first I could hardly believe the ease with which I could turn the wheel. That's important... especially in the summertime. 'Often after I have parked a car in the average parking space, I feel I should taxi home, shower and get dressed again. But with Hydraguide Power Steering I parked it with one hand. It practically drives itself.' Wilbur Shaw: 'It's hard to describe this new Chrysler without going off the deep end... it has it in every department. 'In fact, I think so much of this car, I've selected it as Pace Car of the 1951 Indianapolis 500-mile race!' (Mr. Shaw's comments are reprinted through the courtesy of Popular Science Magazine.) 'Mr. Shaw raves of course to standard passenger cars—not racing cars or special models
