

County Property Valuation Hits Record High

1950 Mark Bettered By $4 Million

Valuation of all tangible property in Wayne county for 1951 increased nearly $4,000,000 over the 1950 valuation, it was revealed this week in assessment figures compiled by county assessor Henry Arp.

This year's figure of $24,396,820 represents an increase of approximately 11.6 per cent over the $20,437,975 reported in 1950. This is a record high for Wayne county's valuation.

Almost all of the increased valuation is reflected in personal property figures (including business property and motor vehicles). The 1951 personal property total is $13,863,195; the valuation for 1950 was $9,938,560. This represents an increase of $3,897,635 in personal property as recorded at the assessor's office.

The amount of increase in county real estate valuation is listed at $61,210 over 1950. Total real estate according to the assessor's office, is $20,586,625 as compared to $20,499,415 for the previous year. The increase has been attributed largely to the construction of new buildings in the county.

A break-down of the 1951 figures for real estate, tangible personal property (including business property) and motor vehicles by towns and precincts is as follows:

Woodworking Pastime Keeps Wayne Woman "In the Chips"

When she goes visiting, it's not a crochet pattern she wants; it's a "hunk of wood." And that is exactly what Lula Way needs for her special woodworking pastime. Besides her instruction at Wayne State Teachers college, Miss Way finds time for several hobbies, her two most notable being woodwork and leather work.

She finds that leather articles sell faster than they can be made, but she prefers woodwork. Just before last Christmas, Miss Way had 60 lamp pins which she used for Christmas presents. This number is the largest she has ever had in stock at one time.

The common "garden variety" of working material is gum wood because it is commercial and may be found locally. She uses much white and yellow poplar, cherry, birch and cedar. On her vacation this summer she found in Kentucky a piece of a cherry pine which she prizes for its interesting water grain. This adds to interest of a carved piece. Miss Way also discovered a fine grained, deep red piece of cherry wood and a plank of cedar which has a dark wavy line well adapted to chiseling.

She makes the large four trays of white pine from Michigan where she was reared. The white poplar is like that which grew in her yard at home. Nellie Foster found a scarce piece of myrtle wood on the west coast and gave it to Miss Way for a set of salt and pepper shakers. Miss Way has them finished; they are in the form of a fish and with the letter "S" on one and "P" on the other.

The hobby enthusiast has whittled ever since she "was a kid" and first took to the art on her desk in a country school house. She only began chiseling about four years ago in an evening class taught by Mrs. Howard Tempero.

Miss Way appreciates whittling animals most and has in her collection, horses, an otter, a seal, dog and fawn together. She became interested in the animal work in Nashville, Tenn., where she attended school taught by John G. Campbell.

Miss Way exhibits her cleverness in approach by her "Thumper, the Rabbit Teacher" of gum wood. There are three rabbits in the series, the first is Thumper at 8 a.m. when he comes to school. He is sitting up looking wide awake and inquisitive. At noon Thumper's ears are drooping and he is stooping a bit; and by 5 p.m. the rabbit teacher is lying on his side, numb and speechless. Miss Way uses Thumper for illustration in her wood carving classes, the main one which has been the country school teacher instruction class.

By teaching country school teachers this art, Miss Way feels that she is fulfilling her dream as a child—to know how to whittle secretly and to have the material. She apologizes for whittling on her desk, but feels that she has a plausible excuse.

The first she chiseled is a pair of candle holders in the scroll of design, made from an orange crate. She has a hollow for her fireplace with an Indian face on one side and a beaver nest on the back. The lamp pins consist of seals, deer, parrots, kangaroos with babies in the pouch, and an elephant and donkey for political minded citizens. Miss Way gets the rough estimate of six hours' labor for finishing a tray. Most of her work is done for relaxation; the "confidential circular motion" is relaxing.

Tools used are a number of gouges, several saws, veneers, straight chisels and X-acto knives. The gouges are of eight widths of metal; the 3-inch bent gouge is her favorite tool because it is simpler to use for all purposes. Saws have turned edges and the veneers are two narrow lengths of metal formed in a long V. The X-acto knives are used for ordinary whittling.

After deciding on a pattern, Miss Way instructed, the blank form is saved out on a band saw. The blank is fastened solidly to the work table and edges are marked on both sides with the pencil, used as a cutting agent. The gear tool and go right at it, advised the wood carver. When chiseling is done, fine files are used to take off unwanted marks, and after this various grits of garnet paper are used. Garnet paper comes in sizes 00 to 80, to give complete coverage of whatever use is made of the finished article. If food is to be placed in the product, an undercoating of sanding sealer is applied before the final finish of a good quality of lacquer.

Miss Way also collects wooden sculpturing and has a Brazilian horse, a Swiss bear and a squirrel made by a paraplegic in Missouri. She is fond of the fisherman done in chip carving, from the south.

Someone stated, "When there's a hobby show, there's Lula Way." That seems to be veracious to one recalling that Lula Way has been a part of almost every hobby show or instruction since she has been in Wayne. She plans to start a craft shop this fall in the basement of her home.

Stella Traster will leave this week on her vacation. She will go to Kansas and Texas.

Attention! FARMERS

We Are Now Buying Eggs On Grade!!

Now, get more money for your eggs! Effective Thursday, July 12, we will buy eggs on grade. This means more money for you!

How You Can Get More Money For Your Eggs

It pays to produce clean quality eggs. Hens don't lay stale eggs, and they don't lay dirty ones; eggs are clean and fresh when they are laid.

If you keep yours clean and fresh and sell them to Wayne Produce who grades eggs and pays for them on the basis of their quality — you'll get more money for your eggs.

Gather eggs in a wire basket or a woven one, they'll cool out twice as fast in a wire basket as they will in a pail; the air has more chance to get at them in a basket. Cooling eggs quickly — and keeping them cool — is the only way to keep them fresh.

If you keep your eggs fresh you can get a premium for them — because it's fresh eggs that people want.

Keep eggs where it's cool and moist; the back porch or kitchen is no place to keep eggs.

The cellar probably is the best place, unless you have a cave. An egg is two-thirds water and the shell is porous. If eggs are left where it is hot and dry, the air will draw moisture out of them.

If they are kept where the air is cool and moist, your eggs will stay full—and fresh.

Cool eggs over night, then put them in cool cases. Putting warm eggs in a case is just like putting them in a fireless cooker. The animal heat has little chance to escape and the eggs lose freshness fast. Cooling them first in a moist, cool place keeps eggs fresh.

Spreading eggs out on a wire tray is the quickest way to cool them. Eggs can be cooled properly in — 3 hours on a wire tray — 5 hours in a wire basket ... but it takes 11 hours in a solid pail — 19 hours in an egg case.

Cool your eggs quickly. They'll be fresher and will bring you more money. Provide one nest for every five hens; eggs aren't built to stand up under heavy traffic. With plenty of nests you'll have fewer birds tracking over your eggs — and that means you'll have fewer cracked eggs, fewer broken eggs — and fewer dirty eggs.

These are days to try the mettle of a man. There's his world to worry about—his country—his business—his family. And there are his own hopes and aspirations.

And, yet, a man must go on. Everything he plans for demands a lift to his head and a lift to his spirits.

And that's where his Cadillac comes into the picture—for here, beyond all question, is one of the world's great therapeutics for a world-weary man.

Just to look at it, in the driveway, is an inspiration—proud, beautiful, eager and substantial.

And, oh, how you rest when it takes to the highway!

There's the deep-throated lullaby of its powerful engine; there's the soothing, restful, relaxing ride; and there's the soft swish of the wind as it flows past the streamlined body. Men look forward to it throughout the day.

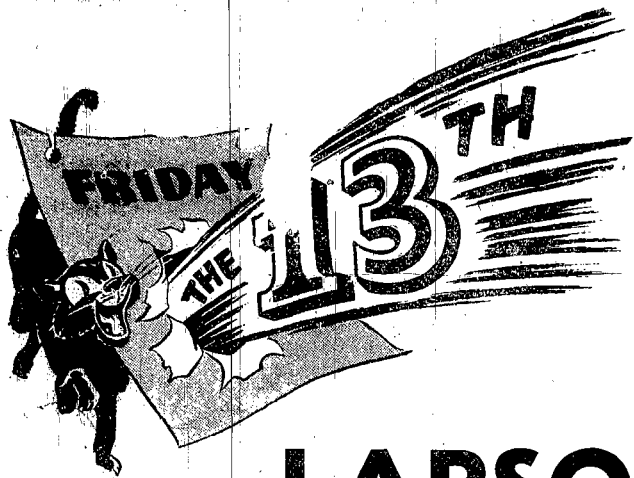

We have it on the word of a great statesman, and a great surgeon, and a great general—and simply thousands of others who are weary with the heavy burden of things as they are—that the hour at the wheel of a Cadillac is the relaxing one of the twenty-four.

So there you have the prescription. Better come in and see us today—and arrange to have it filled.

Unworkable

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States recently published a monograph called Economic Policies for National Defense which makes some interesting observations on the problems and difficulties of price control. Among them, it says this: "Once a ceiling is placed on a single item, it becomes necessary to control all the factors of production involved. And as in trying to trace hidden taxes, the process is endless. Furthermore, in order to secure an equitable distribution of goods in short supply, prices of which are controlled at levels below those that would result from free market operations, some form of government rationing may be necessary. This is especially true for basic items in the cost of living."

"Meat is a most conspicuous example. We are once again running into the complications we experienced a few years back. The government can place price ceilings at the retail and wholesale levels, and on the meat packers—but the government cannot control the supply of meat. The price stabilization authorities have already found it necessary to urge buyers to avoid resort to black markets."

In every section of the country, packers report that the supply of livestock coming into the price-controlled market is far below normal. There has been a considerable amount of criticism of farmers and ranchers for this. But the fact remains that people will not sell their wares, whether they be cattle or anything else, at artificial price levels which they consider unfair and too low. In the long run, such policies can lead only to diminished production—and more inflation.

Two more sentences from the Chamber of Commerce's study are well worth remembering. These are: "It is imperative that price controls be viewed as temporary. Continuance of direct price controls, whether by freeze, margin, or other techniques, beyond a short period of time will lead to curtailment of production, misallocation of resources and impairment of the defense effort."

It takes all kinds of people to make up the world. One reason that big apples are on top of the basket is the fact that there are always a lot of little ones holding them up there!—Brownsville, Pa., Telegraph.

Human Value

A few weeks ago in Boston a young man poised himself on the ledge of a high building and threatened to jump to his death on the streets below. A crowd of people rapidly gathered and watched anxiously for the youth to make the fatal leap. Soon many in the crowd were shouting, "Jump, c'mon, jump!" When the distraught youth was finally persuaded by friends to give up his attempt and the crowd dispersed, disappointed, they all missed the thrill of seeing a young man die.

Last week a young man was buried by a ditch and for a moment was in danger of being suffocated. Workmen quickly managed to free his head so he could breathe while they dug him out. A large crowd of townspeople gathered and watched anxiously. When the youth emerged from the ditch and the people breathed a sigh of relief, they were obviously glad to see that he had been saved.

How can such a difference in value be placed on human life by Americans who inhabit a large city and those who are members of a small community? Such an example of callousness and disrespect for a fellow human being is shown by the Boston crowd in the best argument for a person wanting to live in a small community where neighbors share a mutual respect for one another. We can be proud that we live where people will join together to help a person in distress rather than stand back and encourage his failure. When people fail to maintain high standards of human dignity, the whole moral tone of the environment in which they live is endangered.

Karl Marx, the fellow who wrote the creed of communism, had something to say about taxation. He said that capitalism, which means our system of free initiative, enterprise and progress, will eventually be destroyed by "taxes, taxes and still more taxes." He even predicted that democratic capitalist countries would, if left to their own devices, finally tax their economic systems to death and thus bring in communism. Well, taxation can do just that, if carried too far. The people who are continually fighting for more tax money to spend even though their proposals may be excellent and even though some of the additional tax money might be used to benefit the people generally, should take the Marxian concept to heart. Taxes can kill our economy. Philadelphia, Pa., Trades Union News.

DID YOU KNOW YOUR LIBRARY IS CELEBRATING ITS 75th ANNIVERSARY THIS YEAR? Yes, the modern library movement as we know it today takes its origin from the founding of the American Library Association 75 years ago. It has come a long way since that time but still lags behind, the forgotten stepchild of our educational system. The Saturday Review of Literature for July 7 has devoted that issue to the public library which it calls "The Rampart for Freedom." The article points out that a town or a school is no better than its library because the library is the heart of the school and it represents the mental caliber of the town. The decentralized local support and management has become a major weakness so that good libraries now exist only in larger cities. To quote further from the article: "It is obviously not because the cost would be burdensome that we support libraries so inadequately. It is because we have never realistically faced the problem as we have been forced to do in the case of schools. It is time that we are doing for libraries what we have done for education in general."

WE HAVE OUR NEW ENCYCLOPEDIAS ON THE shelves. We have replaced our 10-year-old set with a 1951 Americana in a nifty blue binding. With the new World Book we have given to us last year by the Business and Professional Women, our reference department is right up to date.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS YOU WILL FIND "Circles" by Henderson. We have had all kinds of doctor books but never one out-doctoring the mental caliber of animals at that. It makes interesting reading you may be sure. The baseball fans will want to read the Babe Ruth and Jackie Robinson stories. We bought them for teen-age boys but some of the men checking them out. That is quite all right since when it comes to sports all men are boys at heart. For the ladies who like their own kind of reading we can recommend "Maria and the Captain" by David Dineen. And if you do not believe that the book of the month club is worth the money, let me tell you that the book of the month club is worth the money. Very good war reporting.

Economic Situation

The agricultural price index moved downward four points in the United States during May and the parity ratio fell one point. In Nebraska, the price index fell eight points and parity fell two points. Production costs turned downward for the first time since February, 1950. Some evidence that costs and prices may be leveling off.

In Nebraska the prices of corn, rye, sorghum, hay and potatoes moved upward a few cents. All other major crop prices slipped downward as harvest season neared.

Almost all important livestock prices fell. Veal calves' prices on the average fell by $2.10. Live-stock products such as butterfat, whole milk and eggs showed some increase in price and they will probably continue upward.

There still remains much uncertainty about beef cattle price roll-backs. Cattle receipts at terminal markets are drastically down.

Summary of Beef Price Regulations

On April 30, 1951, the Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) issued orders which established ceiling prices on beef at retail and wholesale markets and prescribed the maximum prices which slaughterers may pay for live cattle. The order was made effective at retail on May 14, at wholesale on May 9, and for live cattle on June 4. (Date changed from May 20 to June 4.) Base prices for these dates were given by grades at specified market points.

Cattle

"Prices Unsteady"

Prices have been unsteady to weak since the middle of May. Farmers have been holding back. Feeder prices have been weakening. Strong pressure on Congress to kill ceiling prices on farm products.

Three Sets of Roll-back Prices

Ceiling price regulation 23 for live cattle establishes maximum prices which slaughterers can pay for all steers, heifers, cows, stags and bulls slaughtered during an accounting period and within 120 days of the date of purchase. Three sets of maximum prices are provided. First, prices effective for each slaughterer's first accounting period, beginning June 4, 1951.

Prior to Congressional action which cancelled any further rollbacks, beef price regulations called for two other reductions. Prices effective on or after July 29, 1951, were to be 4.5% lower than the first set; and prices effective beginning on or after September 30, 1951, 4.5% lower than the second set. More specifically, the maximum average price at Chicago for the period beginning June 4 ranged from $37 per cwt. for prime steers yielding 62% "dressed carcass" to $19.50 for cutters and canners yielding 43%.

Prices to Be Above Parity

The OPS pointed out that the reduced levels of prices were to be considerably above 100% of parity. The first level of prices (June 4 to July 29) are 135% of parity; the second level (July 29 to Sept. 30) was to be 130% of parity; and the third level (after Sept. 30) was to be 125% of parity. The final price level was to be above the legal minimum (the highest prices received during the period May 24 to June 24, 1950). The OPS further pointed out that the prices received during the legal minimum period "... were among the highest ever received up to that time and were sufficient to encourage marked expansion in livestock numbers."

The level of prices established by the "roll-back" will "... tend to prevent the disruption of milk production by bringing beef cattle prices more in line with dairy prices." The prices prescribed are believed by OPS to be more than adequate in relation to beef cattle production costs to maintain or even increase the present level of beef cattle numbers.

The Need for Beef Ceilings

According to price stabilizers, necessity for the present price regulation was evidenced by the fact that beef cattle prices had risen rapidly from 137 per cent of parity on June 15, 1950, to 151 per cent of parity on March 15, 1951, and were still rising. Since demand seemed to be outrunning the supply it was feared that prices would rise still further, thus working a hardship on many slaughterers and making it difficult to hold the wholesale and retail ceilings of beef. From an over-all food production standpoint, further rise in beef cattle prices would tend to divert feed and labor resources from other livestock (i.e., dairy cattle) where maintenance of at least the present level of production (nationally) is desirable.

Hogs

"Near Minimum"

Prices were on a downward trend from early May until mid-June, but showed seasonal strength in last three weeks. Recent prices have been near the legal minimum.

A Few Facts About Beef Ceilings

Last April 27, the OPS issued ceiling price regulation (CPR) 23. This order specified the conditions under which ceiling and roll-back prices are to be applied to live cattle. As a result many farmers are asking themselves this question: Why have ceiling and roll-back prices been applied to beef prices? The announced purpose of the beef price roll-back is to combat inflation. Prices of almost all goods have been steadily rising since the outbreak of the Korean War a year ago. As a result, the cost of living has increased by 8.2% between June 1950 and April 1951. "Nationally, average prices paid to farmers for beef cattle on June 15, 1950, were 137 per cent of parity, which is an index of farmers' cost rates. Prices have advanced relative to parity as well as in dollars and cents since that time as follows:"

Specified Dates	Per Cwt.	Per cent of Parity
June 15, 1950	$23.70	137
January 15, 1951	27.00	141
March 15, 1951	29.70	151

The Importance of Beef

According to CPR 23, 44.1% of the average consumer's meat diet consisted of beef. "... if the cost of living is to be controlled, effective measures must be taken to stabilize these prices." The importance of beef in the meat diet has little meaning here. We need to know the relative importance of beef in the level of living and its cost relative to the cost of living. The important question is this: How much will the cost of living be reduced if the beef price roll-backs go into effect as announced?

As of December 1947, the relative importance of food in the cost of living index was 42%. That is, 42% of the average family's cost of living index was made of expenditures for food. The importance of food along with other major items in the cost of living are listed in Table 1. If 42% of the cost of living index is made up of food costs, then, how much of the cost of living index is made up of expenditures for beef? Table 2 shows that 5.6% of the total cost of living of the average family is due to expenditures for beef of various grades and kinds.

Effects of Roll-backs on Cost of Living

The cost of living by October 1 was to have been reduced about 1.02%, assuming these things took place: Full effects of the beef price roll-back went into effect and there was no change in the relative importance of foods in the diet if families didn't change the status of food in their budget. All three price roll-backs would have meant a 10% reduction in prices on June 4; 4 1/2% of the June 4 prices on August 1; and a final 4 1/2% reduction of

Importance of Cattle in Nebraska

It has been claimed publicly that "... the livestock industry is the most important segment of the whole agricultural industry and in the past two years it has accounted for approximately 55% of the total farm income." This statement, like the 44.1% statement in CPR 23, is true only so far as it goes. True, the livestock industry, including all poultry and eggs, accounted for 53.8% and 52.5% in the United States, and 65.2% and 64.7% in Nebraska, of total cash receipts received by farmers in 1948 and 1949 respectively. However, the pertinent question is this: How important is beef production in the whole agricultural economy? Table 3 shows that in the United States the cattle business accounted for 17% of total cash receipts received by farmers in 1948 and 1949. And in Nebraska the cattle business accounted for 32.6% in 1948 and 34.1% in 1949 of total cash receipts received by farmers.

In discussing the effects that beef price roll-backs will have on cattle producers' income, one should consider the importance of the beef industry to agriculture rather than the importance of the entire livestock (including poultry) industry to all agriculture. This distinction has not always been clearly made.

Sheep

"Lambs Weak"

Lamb demand weak, with small seasonal receipts. Average prices dropped more than 5%.

How Much Will Producers Lose?

In 1949, cattlemen, ranchers and feeders received in cash $4,814,324,000 for all cattle and calves sold in the United States. In Nebraska, the same group of farm people in the same year, received $314,555,000.

It has been claimed that the beef price roll-back order will save consumers $700,000,000 annually on their meat bill. Using 1949 cash receipt figures, $700,000,000 is 14 1/2% of total cash received for cattle and calves sold. In other words, the cattle industries' income (by 1949 figures) would be lowered about 14 1/2% because of the beef price roll-back.

Nebraska's $314,555,000 income from cattle and calves sold in 1949 is 6 1/2% of the total. If the cattle industry of the United States loses $700,000,000 and Nebraska sells proportionately the same amount of cattle, Nebraska cattlemen would lose about 6 1/2% of the $700,000,000 which would be about $45,500,000 of the $700,000,000 that consumers would save providing the packers did not absorb any part of the roll-back, passing it all back to the producer.

In 1949, cattle producers in the United States received 62 cents of the consumers' food dollar. If the same proportion was passed back to them, then the decrease in gross income from cattle would be $28,210,000, or 9% of their 1949 incomes from sales of cattle and calves.

Why Beef Price Controls?

On the other side is the OPS with the arguments that the rising cost of living must be halted and that a beginning had to be made somewhere as soon as possible. But why were beef prices chosen? Under the National Defense Act of 1950 and as supplemented by the wage-price freeze of January 29, 1951, the only farm products whose prices can be rolled back are beef, veal, sheep, lambs and wool. Only these products can have their prices rolled back because only their prices are above parity or the May 24 - June 25, 1950, price level.

Getting the Most for Our Food Money

We are all aware of the rise in food prices this year which puts even a greater responsibility on the homemaker than ever before. With a food budget that seems to be shrinking, she must continue to buy food that will provide for her family a diet which is adequate in all the food nutrients and at the same time is attractive.

For those buyers who are having difficulty in stretching the food dollar, the following pointers may be helpful.

Poultry

"Eggs Rising"

Egg prices dropped in May but now on upgrade. Expect stronger prices this fall because of small stock in storage, increased military demand and less farm production. Broilers are plentiful, but about one-half as much turkey meat in storage as a year ago.

Is Food Preservation Economical?

- To avoid waste of food and effort, preserve only as much food as your family can use during the year. Preserved food may deteriorate when kept too long.
- If the food that you buy to can or freeze is too expensive it may cost you more to preserve it than the same food purchased on the retail market.
- Canning and especially freezing equipment may be so expensive that unless you raise much of your own food for preservation, it might be poor economy to attempt to can or freeze.
- Adequate storage space, both cool and dark, is necessary for your food after you have processed it.
- To prevent waste and thus save money, follow your canning and freezing directions explicitly. There is a good reason for each direction.

County Superintendent Keeps Busy Managing Rural Schools

by Gene Riley

Summer may mean vacation for rural school teachers and their pupils, but for the supervisor of all rural schools in Wayne county summer means increased activity completing annual reports for all of the 85 separate districts.

Wayne county superintendent, Marie Wright, is entrusted with keeping careful check on all the county's elementary schools. This involves two or three visits to each school every year, frequent conferences with teachers over problems arising in the schools, sending out regular bulletins and checking all six-week reports—as well as many other tasks included in supervising county schools.

Duties such as conducting teachers institutes, holding teachers meetings, attending educational conferences and making educational surveys are a part of the routine work of the superintendent.

Aids Board Members
She purchases and sends out supplies to both teachers and school board members in the county. In dealing with selection of teachers, points of law and information bulletins, the superintendent consults with school board members throughout the county.

Registration of teachers' certificates, verification of teachers' service records, and collection of permanent retirement dues are among the duties carried out by the superintendent. Her office is responsible for keeping records of free high school tuition. This involves determining amounts of money needed, sending out application cards and admission cards and writing checks for all claims.

State apportionment funds must be prorated among all school districts by the superintendent. She must write checks for each district's share, and her office keeps permanent records of all funds.

Eighth grade examinations and completion exercises form an important part of the county superintendent's regular duties. Qualified people for grading test papers must be selected, and she is responsible for sending out records

Shown at Wayne county superintendent's office in the court house is Marie Wright, superintendent (right) and Joyce Baier, secretary. Joyce has been employed by the superintendent's office for two years. She assists in much of the routine work involved in supervising the county's schools.

he levied on all elementary school districts in the county. Returns from this levy will be repaid to all school districts which have an enrollment of five or more pupils. Since the bill tends to discourage operation of schools with less than five pupils, this blanket tax is imposed on them but they receive no returns for expenditures.

Reports Expenditures
It is the superintendent's job to report to the county treasurer the amount of money that has been spent by the districts for the immediately preceding year in order for correct levy to be imposed. She also determines the amount that each district will receive from the returns of the blanket tax on basis of information received in annual reports which all districts are obliged to submit in June.

The superintendent's office keeps on hand census lists and many times the office is called upon to verify birth records from these lists for people in the county.

Miss Wright is currently serving her third term as Wayne county superintendent, having been originally elected to the office in September 1943.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Magdanz were picnic guests at the Otto Lutt home July 4.
