

Pioneer Found Frozen Body Of Man Lost in '88 Blizzard Storm Hit Region 65 Years Ago

The famous blizzard of '88 occurred 65 years ago this week—Jan. 12, to be exact. August Wittler, 88, 707 Main street, remembers the blizzard vividly... and he has good reason to be so. He discovered the frozen body of a man named Haas, believed to be Wayne county's only fatality in the storm. Here is his story:

night. The extreme cold and the surprise element of the storm were the two factors giving the blizzard of '88 its long standing as one of our worst storms. About a week after the storm was over, Mr. Wittler hitched horses to a buckboard and took his mother to visit his brother who lived six miles south and one and one-half miles east of Winside, on the Stanton county line. When he and his mother reached his brother's farm, it was learned that Haas, who had left the Hoffman farm near there during the storm, was missing. The Hoffman farm was located five miles south and one mile west of Winside. Upon his return trip to his brother-in-law's farm, Mr. Wittler noticed what seemed to be a man's elbow sticking out of a snow drift. Further investigation revealed Haas' frozen body.

that he had tried to chase them back to his farm. There you have it—a first hand report on the blizzard of '88 by one of Wayne county's pioneers, August Wittler.

Call Us Before Buying Advertising Service or Copy

Our press association has warned us that there are a number of "hot shot" advertising copy and mat services being offered to Nebraska merchants by out-of-town salesmen. Some are reputable and some are not.

Many of the contracts are tricky, and if the merchant does not use the copy and mats EXACTLY as authorized he will be sued or heckled into an expensive settlement.

We want you to know The Wayne Herald does not endorse and is not a party to any of the advertising sales or copy services being offered.

Only employees of this newspaper are authorized to act as our advertising representatives.

This newspaper subscribes to an advertising mat service for which we pay good money for your use. That advertising and mat service and the services of our staff are available to you without extra cost.

We suggest that you call No. 130 when approached by an out-of-town salesman who wants to sell you a service. Perhaps we have all the services you need, and can save you needless expenditure.

Out of Old Nebraska

Prepared by the Nebraska State Historical Society

In 1801 Nebraska was faced with the same question as it faced in 1952—the election of two United States Senators. At that time senators still were being chosen by the legislature, and in making its choices in 1801, that body engaged in a protracted bitter controversy. This sketch, was brought forward as a compromise candidate after it became evident that none of the active candidates—and particularly D. E. Thompson of Lincoln and Edward Rosowater of Omaha—could be elected. The election occurred on the 54th ballot, after a contest lasting from Jan. 15 to March 28. Gov. Charles H. Dietrich was chosen to fill the unexpired term of Monroe L. Lindsey, who had died before taking office and whose position had been filled on an interim appointment basis by William V. Allen.

Joseph H. Millard, born on a farm near Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, April 20, 1836, was one of Nebraska's early territorial pioneers. His folks had moved out to Iowa, and in 1856 young Joseph came further west, arriving in the frontier village of Omaha in October. The young man soon became active in locating settlers on the land around Omaha, these rapidly filling up. With his brother Ezra and William Barrows, he formed the land agency of Barrows, Millard & Co.

From doing a general land business and handling exchange the company soon drifted into the banking business, and out of this business developed the Omaha National bank, organized in 1866. Mr. Millard, who had been out in Montana for a time, returned to Omaha to become cashier and later president of the bank, a position which he held until 1919.

Joseph H. Millard was one of that group of able, public-spirited businessmen who built Omaha from a frontier village to one of the Midwest's foremost cities. He was one of the incorporators of the Omaha and Northwestern railroad, and for 15 years he served as a rector of the Union Pacific railroad. He was one of the organizers of the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company and one of the backers of the old Millard hotel, for years one of the noted hotels of the West.

Although prominent in the affairs of the Republican party, Senator Millard was not an active politician in the ordinary sense of the word. He served a term as mayor of the Omaha and Council Bluffs senatorship was his only public office. At the expiration of his term in the Senate he returned to Omaha to resume his duties as president of the Omaha National bank. He died Jan. 13, 1922.

Box Butte county originally was a part of Sioux county, organized in 1877 to include the panhandle area lying north of Cheyenne county—the old Cheyenne county, that is, an omnibus county which included present-day Banner, Kimball, Scotts Bluff, and Deuel counties. In 1885 Daves county was created out of the east half of Sioux; and two years later, in 1887, the southern half of Daves became Box Butte.

Settlers started moving into the Box Butte region in 1884 and 1885. Among them was the family of W. A. Bissell, and according to F. M. Broom's sketch of the county in "Who's Who in Nebraska", it was Joseph H. Millard, the subject of this sketch, who conceived and popularized the idea that when a new county was created out of the region the name "Box Butte" would be most appropriate.

The homesteaders, attracted by the slogan, "The Box Butte Country for Free Homes", came in, filing claims at the land office in Valentine, later at Chadron and finally at Alliance. Both the Burlington and Northwestern railroads were interested in the development of the region. The Burlington reached Alliance Feb. 3, 1888, plating the town on a school section purchased from the state by Lincoln Land company, an auxiliary of the railroad. As a means of helping the sale of town lots, the railroad agreed to make Alliance a division point.

Early contenders for the position of leadership in the county were Hemingford and Nonpareil. After a spirited contest in the tradition of most Nebraska counties, Nonpareil became the county seat. When the railroad came to Alliance, Nonpareil passed out of the picture, and Hemingford became the county seat. The favored situation of Alliance, however soon brought that town to a position of dominance in the county, and ultimately the seat of government passed from Hemingford to Alliance.

The late eighties were years of plentiful rainfall in Nebraska, and Box Butte county's early settlers grew a wide variety of crops. At the state fair in 1888, the county won second prize for its general display of varied products. Already the county was becoming known nationally for its high-quality potatoes.

The drought years of the nineties brought great discouragement and many settlers abandoned their homesteads. Those who stayed, however, soon were to reap again to the fruits of a prosperous agriculture.

Feeding 2,500 men per meal every day would develop into quite a task for many, but for S. Sgt. Duane Otte, Brazil, Japan, it is an everyday occurrence.

S. Sgt. Otte, command of Wayne is in charge of complete bakery operations of the 58th Air Force, Fighter-Bomber wing Food Service Squadron. The bakery prepared hot rolls mince-meat pie, cranberry sauce and fruit cake to serve to the 2,500 men on Christmas day.

Otte enclosed the menu of the Christmas dinner served there and it is as follows: shrimp cocktail, roast young tom turkey, poultry dressing, giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, snowflake potatoes, candied sweet potatoes,

The same meal was prepared and served all over the far east and Korea.

The menu sent by Otte was fashioned like a Christmas card and illustrated in four colors, blue, gold and red on white. Inside the cover was an appropriate greeting from the commanding officer, Col. Victor E. Warford. The chaplains composed a Christmas poem that was printed below the greeting. The menu faced this page, and on the back of the program were names of the officers of the wing and the 58th Food Service Squadron.

Mrs. Arthur Ahern Revives Art of Weaving in Wayne

'Patience is Necessary For Hobby'

"Patience is a necessary virtue in the art of weaving," stated Mrs. Arthur Ahern who has had a loom for a year and a half. Anyone who has seen the loom alive with weaving motion fully appreciates that statement; it is a slow but rewarding pastime.

Mrs. Ahern asserts that weaving is no longer a hobby, that it is being revived through special schools all over the country. She attended a course in Virginia City, Mont. last summer and illustrates the amount she learned by the type of work she now does.

Mrs. Ahern became interested in weaving before she purchased her loom. On her trip to California, she became more intrigued because of the early popularity rage there. The Wayne lady is the only one in town to own a loom. However, she has encouraged many to purchase one.

The first step is to learn the weaver's language. Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson, Omaha, taught her in getting started so that she was able to thread her own loom from the beginning. Sixty spools on a rack behind the loom feed the warp and steel contraption. Thread is first wound on the bobbles and then brought through the bobbles and to the four harness frames. Looms vary, having from two to 15 harnesses. Thread is stretched through the reeds, varying from eight to 18 spaces to the inch, and on past the beater toward the weaver. The thread is stationed on the cloth beam directly in front of the beater and the finished products form toward the loom from the weaver.

The pattern of the products is controlled by treading and threading. The weaver operates part of the pattern by using her feet on treadles resembling pedals on an organ. Tension is snug and must be regulated carefully. The beater presses the threads into a pattern after the weaver throws the shuttle, the last motion of passing a design thread back and forth between the two rows of threads and connected on the loom. Changing the thread is weaver's language for putting her foot on the treadle.

Mrs. Ahern explained that an avowed pattern describes that of using color and taddy, or neutral thread. Threads are spliced by laying two unconnected threads on the shuttle before using the beater to stabilize the design. Mrs. Ahern commented that a certain rhythm is developed by the weaver during the process.

An intricate thread is necessary in weaving because of the factor that thread is impossible to buy near Wayne. She sends to mills in North Carolina and buys her linen from stores on both coasts.

She has woven a beautiful yellow stole, several aprons, guest towels, place mats, lapkins, napkins and evening purses. Mrs. Ahern explained that the more work she does, the more aspirations she has.

Her happiest thought is that this hobby is a perpetual and exciting one which never dies. There is no end to weaving because one is always fascinated by more patterns which always vary a bit. Mrs. Ahern is anxious for others to begin this relaxing and rewarding hobby.

Kindergarten
The morning and afternoon classes combined Friday afternoon for the Doll day program. The children enjoyed very much their participation in this program.

Safety was the theme of this week's study. Safety rules have been made and posted by the children.

It was decided by the group to have Safety Patrol boys at two street crossings by the school. The duties will be to lead other children across the street safely after school. This will be started in the near future with the boys taking turns.

Twenty-seven girls from our room entered dolls in the doll show Friday afternoon. Nine boys displayed favorite toys.

Jim Dickens, Laurel Hanson and Mary Gray brought records this week.

Diana Rossler joined our group shortly before Christmas. She came from district 72.

Donnie Hart brought a Japanese book to school during the week. It was written in Japanese but a translation of the story enabled us to read it. We were interested in seeing how the Japanese childrens are in the bag and end in the future. The story was an old fable called "The Sparrow whose Tongue Was Chipped."

Others who brought books for story time were Patty Lansing, Dennis Breitbarth and Connie Carlson.

Seventeen dolls visited in our room Friday in observance of the annual Doll day. Some of the boys demonstrated by the boys were airplanes, trucks, guns, tractors and an tractor set.

Third Grade
The class is keeping a daily weather chart showing temperature, direction of wind, time of sunrise and sunset. Marge-Lynn Horton and Tommy Lane had charge of the chart this week.

Third graders really found out what an interesting place Florida is for a Christmas vacation.

Marge-Lynn Horton and Sherry Gray gave reports on their trip to Florida. Marge brought a coconut and large piece coral for the class. The coconut was opened and eaten. Both girls made scrap books of their trip. Pictures of flamingos, cockatoos, mangrove trees and the wonders of the sea seen through a glass bottom boat were shown to the class.

The new unit for study this month is food. Milk is being given first consideration. Large pictures of healthful foods in colorful dishes are displayed on the wall.

The children enjoy finding what they had for breakfast. They are learning the seven basic food groups and are trying to eat something from each group of food every day.

Mrs. Robert Johnson and Mrs. H. B. Lane were Friday afternoon visitors.

Fourth Grade
Our room contributed $2.50 to the Junior Red Cross.

Shirley Meyer was absent Monday because of illness.

Our room brought dolls and toys for Doll day. We enjoyed hearing about Japan's manner of celebrating New Years day. Mrs. Lane came to our room afterward and showed us some pictures and told us more about their customs.

Michael Karel, Budd Bornhoff and Irene Maura received the highest grades in a geography test. We are continuing to put stars on our bulletin board. We now have it decorated with all manner of free-hand snow men.

Tuesday after school.
Veronica Gray is a new student in our room. She came from Iowa Falls, Ia. We now have eight girls.

Road Solution Up to Legislators

With the convening of the 1953 regular session of the Nebraska legislature, one of the big questions confronting it is what should be done about roads in the state.

The bugaboo, of course, is how to finance the much-needed highway improvements.

There doesn't seem to be much doubt as to how to go about it on a short-range basis. The Legislative council has come up with a plan for a two-year enactment of the penny boost in gasoline tax together with the motor vehicle registration fee increase which the 1949 legislature adopted but which the voters — knowingly or unknowingly — knocked out in the 1950 general election referendum.

The chairman of the Legislative council's committee on highways, which came up with the recommendation for reinstatement of the gasoline tax-registration fee increase, has had bills drafted to that effect. He is Senator Karl Vogel, Omaha. And, significantly, he was among the majority of the 1951 legislators who refused to reenact the outlived 1949 revenue measures!

Quite a few organizations interested in seeing action done roadwise in Nebraska are on record favoring early enactment of this program in the 1953 session of the legislature. They include the Nebraska Press association, through action of its board of directors; the Better Nebraska association; and the All Nebraska Association of Road and Highway associations (An-Ar-Ha), as well as several individual highway associations. Countering them will be member groups of the Nebraska Highway Users conference, including certain trucking, petroleum and farm interests.

A factor — and possibly a potent factor — in getting the Legislative council's program, or any similar program, enacted, however, will be whether Nebraska should go for a Highway commission instead of the present setup of a Highway department directly responsible to the governor.

At that, it looks as though action will be taken for the next year or two, but how about the long-range highway program?

Ideas abound as to a long-range highway program. There are proposals for allocating all property taxes on motor vehicles to roads; proposals for a ton-mile tax, designed to get at the heavy-duty trucks; proposals for sales tax earmarked to highways; proposals for a constitutional amendment authorizing a vast bond issue for roads; proposals for toll roads; and many other proposals.

Suggestions about toll roads seem to be gaining popularity — but the trouble there is that Nebraska perhaps would have only one superhighway across the state, from east to west. The big problem as to other roads throughout the state would still remain.

One thing about the toll roads plan, though, is that Nebraska should set up as soon as possible some sort of authority to handle the financing and construction of a turnpike through the state. For authorities agree that sooner or later there will have to be a link with the turnpikes in the east and that link might as well be through Nebraska.

At any rate, what happens to Nebraska's road in the next few years, or over the long haul, as far as that is concerned, definitely is contingent upon what the 43 legislators convening in Lincoln this year do and, equally important, what the people want them to do. — Cliff Sandahl, chairman of Nebraska Editors Highway conference.

THE SOCIAL WHIRL... Working at night is another one of the hurdles of library work. "Going to the library" has been the teen-age formula for escaping from home in the evening for several generations.

THE POOR RENTAL SHELF... It has been said that some librarians are only happy when their shelves are well filled, not realizing that means the books are not being read.

IF YOU CAN CATCH THIS one in, look for the title "Crazy White Man," by Richard Morenus. It's a truly fascinating story of one man who did what most of us have only dreamed of doing.

NEBRASKA FARM OUTLOOK

(The MONTHLY FARM OUTLOOK is reprinted from Notes on Nebraska Farm Business, a monthly publication of the Department of Agricultural Economics, Agricultural Extension Service, College of Agriculture, University of Nebraska, Lincoln. This authoritative report is reprinted each month by the State National Bank of Wayne as a service to our customers and friends.)

"Our Roots are In This Land"

The General Economic Situation

General business activity continues to expand. Output of the nation's factories and mines has risen to record postwar levels. Sales volume is increasing and distributors' inventories are being rebuilt. In addition, backlog orders of both durable and non-durable goods continues to grow as new orders placed with manufacturers increase more rapidly than deliveries. The steel supply situation is improving rapidly but supplies of certain types are still relatively tight and may continue tight for some months.

Reductions in defense production of certain war goods have been announced beginning July 1, 1953. It must be remembered that the reduction announcements are being made by the present administration. The new administration may go along with these defense plans and it may not. But if defense production does level off or turn down during the last half of 1953 as is now planned, the rise in demand for consumer goods will tend to offset, in part or in whole, decreasing defense expenditure and hold employment, income and demand at their present high levels.

1953 Dairy Outlook For Nebraska

Reports from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics indicate that we can expect about the same milk cow numbers, production per cow, total milk production, prices, farm income from dairy products, difficult to establish. In many cases, the experimenters have been slow in pointing the way to reduce capital and labor requirements for milk production. Health regulations have also tended to maintain a rigidity in dairy farming methods.

Aim at Lower Production Costs

It is believed that the practical knowledge of technical matters now has been developed to the point where farmers could produce pure and wholesome milk at considerably lower costs. To illustrate this, research at Michigan State College concludes that farmers could reduce the costs of producing 100 pounds of milk about 50% by adopting known techniques. At the same time, they could increase the volume of milk sold and raise the return to the operator several fold. For example, using average 1945-49 prices and costs, it was calculated that by changing from average to good cows and by adopting improved production practices, a farm operator could obtain an increase in labor income for himself from $1,553 to $5,773 annually on a one-man farm; from $2,893 to $12,747 on a two-man farm; and from $5,199 to nearly $20,000 on a three-man farm. It must be emphasized that these calculations were based on 1945-49 averages. The adoption of improved techniques to lower milk production costs is the most promising approach to increasing net incomes.

Less Emphasis on Butterfat

The drop in milk fat consumption has taken three forms. The most important relates to butter. The per capita consumption is expected to drop slightly below 9 pounds in 1952 from a high of about 16 pounds in 1940. The second form has been the average decline in fat content of fluid milk and an increase in skim milk products. The third form is in "filled" dairy products where vegetable fats are substituted for butterfat. This substitution is cutting into the sale of ice cream and results in a decreased demand for butterfat; on the other hand, solids (non-fat) have had an increased demand so the change is not wholly unfavorable to the dairy industry.

Dairying . . .

Prices for whole milk remain steady to strong. Butter prices have weakened sufficiently for the USDA to step in and support prices — 92 score, Grade A at 67.75 cents per pound.

Study Market Reports

Dairy farmers would do well to study agricultural reports and endeavor to get a clearer perspective of what action they might expect in their respective markets. The unsuspecting farmer should become aware of the fallacy in agricultural reports which lump all dairy enterprises into a dairy industry report. Nebraska dairy farmers have three distinct markets: butter, processed dairy food and fluid milk. And each market has different price and sales patterns. A composite statistical report does not show the conditions for each commodity. Each farmer should base his plans on a specific market.

The Outlook for U. S. Agricultural Exports

Volume of agricultural exports from the U. S. was higher in 1948-49 than at any time since World War I. Value of these exports reached $3.8 billion in both 1919-20 and in 1948-49. The level of our exports is usually limited by the amount of imports we accept in payment, although we financed additional exports during and after World War II with Lend-Lease and ECA.

Exports Down

Two major factors must be considered: (1) many importing countries are short of dollars with which to buy from us, and in addition they must buy industrial and military equipment; (2) more agricultural supplies will be available to importing countries and in other exporting countries. With these two conditions, U. S. agricultural exports will probably decline next year. Present information indicates they may drop as much as 20% below the $4 billion in 1951-52. This decline will be mainly in wheat, grain sorghums, cotton, lard and tobacco. The composition of our exports changes from year to year.

Grains

Export sales of wheat will drop slightly from last year's high level. The U. S. will continue as a principal world source of food grains and feed grains into the 1953-54 marketing season. Corn exports will continue high, but be offset by U. S. imports of feed grains from Canada.

Other Exports

Exports of fats, oils, and oilseeds should continue high, with tallow, lard, soybean oil and soybeans being shipped in greatest volume. Dry bean exports will drop. Exports of nearly all dairy products will probably be smaller.

Farm Costs for 1953

The farmer's cost of production in the United States for 1953 is expected to be somewhat higher than that of 1952. This information comes from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This bureau also states that prices of farm commodities are expected to be slightly lower in 1953 than in 1952. If these conditions materialize then the farmer's purchasing power will be less in 1953 than in 1952. The above statements are based on normal weather conditions for 1953.

Labor and Machinery Costs Up

Farm wage rates in 1953 are expected to be less than 5% higher than those in 1952. The labor supply for 1953 will be somewhat less than that of 1952 but with efficient usage the supply will be adequate to attain high production levels.

Power and machinery costs will be moderately higher in 1953 than in 1952. Higher costs of materials and labor to manufacturers will be responsible for this increase. The output of farm machinery in 1952 is expected to be lower than for any year since 1948, but because of high production in recent years no shortage is anticipated for 1953. Supplies of machinery and power units seem to be ample to maintain a high production level for the year. Prices of motor fuels and tires are also expected to be slightly higher in 1953.

Feed Supplies

Feed supplies per animal unit on Oct. 1 this year were about the same as those of a year ago, but September, 1952 prices were about 9% higher than a year earlier. During the winter feeding season of 1952-53 corn may be lower in price than a year earlier but prices of other feed grains and high protein feeds will probably be higher. Hay prices will be higher than a year ago, at least until new forage or pasture is available next spring.

Farm Supplies Ample, But Higher

Fertilizer prices in the midwest are expected to be 3-4% higher in 1953 than in 1952. The supply is larger than a year earlier. The percentage increase in supply for 1953 of the different fertilizers are: nitrogen 11%, phosphates 10% and potash 17%. Building materials and construction supplies are of some commodities or to acute shortages of others or possibly other local conditions, but costs are mainly determined by the overall picture.

Alfalfa Seed Situation

Some alfalfa seed producers wonder why it was necessary to pay about twice as much for alfalfa seed in the spring of 1952 as they received for the fall crop of the preceding year. There are a number of reasons and several are outstanding.

Farmers sell seed at farm prices and buy at retail prices. The difference between average farm and average retail prices for the 1951 common alfalfa seed crop was approximately 20 cents per pound. Some of the services included in retail prices that are not normally found in farm prices are: buying, assembling, testing for germination, grading, cleaning, bagging, storing, financing and transportation from farm to assembler — wholesaler — retailer.

Sheep

Expect Strengthening

Less lamb and mutton than last year for the next several months. Prices expected to strengthen for the next few months as marketings decrease — prices still below last year.

In addition to services performed in the marketing process there are gains or losses from seasonal price changes. These gains or losses accrue to the owner of the seed who holds the property rights. If the price of seed advances 10 cents a pound between buying and selling operations of a wholesaler, he receives this 10 cents per pound even without performing other services. A farmer who owns seed during the price advance also receives an extra 10 cents per pound if he sells after the price increase. The difference in farm and retail prices of alfalfa seed can be attributed to marketing services and changes in prices. Part of the margins or marketing charges arise from price changes. Property rights as set forth in the Constitution of the United States and enforced by the laws of this nation allow this portion of marketing margins to go to the owner.

The decline in farm prices for alfalfa seed since May, 1952 may be attributed to buyers' interpretations of market conditions. The supply of alfalfa seed increased tremendously in relation to consumption.

Supply up — Carry-over Large

Carry-over from the previous year plus production and possible imports this year indicates that the total potential domestic supply of alfalfa seed is estimated at approximately 180 million pounds. Consumption for the last three years has averaged 110 million pounds.

If the amount of alfalfa seed used this year is equal to the average consumption of the last three years the carry-over next June can be estimated at 70 million pounds. Seed stocks in excess of needs depress prices. Alfalfa seed stocks carried over into 1949 were about 6 million pounds. The total carry-over on June 30, 1952, was more than 25 million pounds. If alfalfa seed production in 1953 is only half as large as the estimated 146 million harvest in 1952 it should make an abundant supply when it is combined with the carry-over this year.

Support Prices

The government has supported alfalfa seed prices in recent years to encourage increased production. Support prices for Nebraska in 1952 are 35 cents per pound for common alfalfa and 40 cents for Ranger. Present farm prices are below the support level for common varieties but about equal to the support price for Ranger. It appears as though the government will be the largest single purchaser of common alfalfa seed in the United States this year if private producers and dealers do not hold the seed stocks. There are no signs of price improvement in alfalfa seed this year.

Cattle

Brighter
Prospects

Prices of cattle continue downward except for grade prime which has shown a steady up trend since September. Market receipts have been heavy for all grades except prime. Prospects now are that prices of lower grades will improve seasonally early in 1953.

utilization and consumption in 1953 as we had in 1952. Two factors that may cause some change are the widespread drought conditions and a further drop in per capita consumption of butter. The drought conditions are expected to keep fluid milk prices above 1952, at least until next pasture season. A continued drought could increase the cream-for-butter production. Increased butter production and a drop in per capita consumption would tend to depress the price.

Increase in Milk Production Slight

There has been little change in U. S. milk production in the past decade. Since the 1935-39 period, milk production has increased only 10% while population has increased 22%. The increase in total agricultural output for the same period was about 45%. There has been a 16% decline in milk cow numbers since 1944. The rate of milk production per cow has increased without interruption until 1952 when wide-spread drought came.

Labor Efficiency

Why have returns to dairymen fallen behind? Some of these causes can be controlled by the dairymen and some can not. It has been generally recognized that farmers with dairy enterprises have not progressed as much in improving labor efficiency as other types of farming. Reasons for a slower increase in efficiency are indefinite and expected to remain at or near present price levels during the coming year. Wire fencing is expected to be scarce and to rule around 5% higher in price. Other miscellaneous supplies such as binding wire, bags and containers are expected to be adequate but prices on such may be 6% higher in 1953 than in 1952.

Stocks of pesticides are ample and prices for them in 1953 are not expected to be greatly different than those for 1952.

Cost Trends in Nebraska

The trend in 1953 farm costs for Nebraska will probably follow that of the nation. There could be some local variations due to adequate supplies

It Happened In NEBRASKA

No "Wild West" movie ever showed more action than the early railroads trying to cross Nebraska. In 1866, with the railroad already 270 miles west of Omaha, Chief Roman Nose warned the white man to go no farther. When the railroad continued, Indian bands attacked many a train—derailing some, and killing hundreds of workers. But the Iron Horse marched on.

Is Your Child worth $50 A POUND

Ask The Man Who Loves One!

Ask The Man Whose Child Lay Stricken with POLIO!

Ask Him . . . TO TELL YOU, if he will, the awful agony, the aloneness that welled up into his being when he stood there helpless, distraught . . . ask him how many hours he paced the floor . . . how many dawns he saw come up before his loved one was out of danger. You won't have to ask him what a benefactor the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is! He'll tell you it is the contributions of the unknown people to the March of Dimes that restores health to polio stricken children.

$50 A Pound . . . THAT IS THE HOSPITAL and MEDICAL EXPENSE it has taken to partially restore health to 50-lb. Linda Haas, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Haas, Wayne. Hospital, nursing and therapy care have already mounted to $2,500. This is in addition to doctor bills. AND the costs are still mounting at the rate of nearly $25 a day. It will be many months before Linda is completely recovered. Linda is only one of many severe cases in Wayne county during the past year. The Haas' were fortunate enough to have polio insurance, BUT they realize that the years of research, which have greatly improved polio treatment, are a benefit all patients receive directly from the support you and your neighbors give to the March of Dimes.

New Ford Miracle Ride

Here's new freedom from bounce, pitch and sway . . . an entirely new standard of riding comfort!

If you've thought it takes gas-bating weight and hard-to-park length to give real riding comfort you ought to try this '53 Ford. For Ford's new Miracle Ride actually seems to lay a carpet of smoothness even over the roughest roads. There's no bounce, pitch and sway to bother you, no uncomfortable roll on curves. Ford's new Miracle Ride marks a new era of riding comfort and quiet. It's another big reason why Ford is worth more when you buy it . . . worth more when you sell it!

The New Standard of the American Road

You've got to Value Check this new Ford's 41 "Worth More" features to know why Ford is worth more when you buy it . . . worth more when you sell it!

In this new '53 Ford you'll find not only a new concept of riding and driving comfort . . . you'll find more of the things you want and need than in any other car in the low-price field.

You'll find the "Go" you need, in Ford's high-compression V-8 and Six engines (and both thrive on regular gas). You'll find the great, all-round visibility . . . the easy handling, braking and parking you need for today's traffic. And you'll appreciate beauty that "belongs," wherever you may drive. No wonder Ford is the New Standard of the American Road.

80% less road shock! By increasing front wheel travel and redesigning the rubber compression bumpers, front end road shock is reduced as much as 80%. Springs are tailored-to-weight of each model, for best riding comfort, whichever model you buy.

Automatic Ride Control! Ford's Variable-Rate rear spring suspension actually makes the effective spring "stiffness" vary automatically as road and load conditions change. You get a smooth, level, comfortable ride on boulevard or roughest back road.

All day comfort! Scientifically designed contour seats, both front and rear, have thick foam rubber cushions. Non-sag resilient construction is firm yet springing. Automatic Posture Control provides the most convenient seating position for all drivers.
