Supt. Wright Seeks Re-election Nov. 2

Asks County Write-in Vote

Interest in the Nov. 2 general election heightened this week as County Superintendent M. A. Wright announced she was soliciting support as a write-in candidate to retain her post.

Topic Selection Curtails WSTC Debate Program

What is termed an "unfortunate selection" in the national inter-collegiate debate topic has resulted in the curtailment of debate activities at WSTC for the coming year, Lloyd Shubert, instructor in speech and debate coach, announced today.

The topic, selected by the National Forensic League, is "Resolved: That Red China Should Be Admitted to the United Nations."

The decision not to participate in debate on this topic was reached by Shubert and Dr. John D. Rice, president of Wayne State, after consulting with several other Nebraska college presidents and debate coaches.

"We do not feel the topic is a legitimate one," Dr. Rice said, "since the Peking government is not recognized to be considered for admission to the U. N. Furthermore, we feel that it is unfair to ask any student to argue the affirmative of this issue when such an attitude is popularly regarded with suspicion."

Shubert said that speech students will participate only in oratory, extemporaneous speaking and other such competition in which the Red China topic is not an issue in inter-state meets. An effort is being made to establish a debate program for the Nebraska colleges on a different topic.

1953 Sales in County Near $11 Million; Set New Record

Wayne county retail sales reached a record of $10,879,000 in 1953, a copyrighted survey by Sales Management magazine revealed this week.

This figure compares with $10,847,000 in 1952 and $9,866,000 in 1951. Big spending reflects a high standard of living and is normally an index of good times. With families earning more, as was the case in the county last year, more is spent for luxuries.

More money is spent in Wayne county for automotive equipment than for food. Approximately 25 cents of our every dollar spent in local retail stores goes for purchase of new and used cars, tires, batteries, and other accessories, and for farm machinery and the like.

Dealers in automotive equipment produced a sales volume in 1953 of $2,660,000, a gain over the previous year's $2,350,000.

The 25 cents of the retail dollar this represents is well above the proportion devoted to automotive purposes generally in the U. S., 19 cents. For the West North Central states as a whole the average was 22 cents. In Nebraska it was 19 cents.

Food stores takes the second largest bite out of the dollar. This expansiveness was noted in the grocery stores, meat markets and other food shops in the county, which did a $1,797,000 volume of business in the year. This compares with $1,862,000 for 1952.

It was equivalent to 17 cents out of every retail dollar chalked up locally. This is another sign of good living.

Sales in general merchandise and variety stores totaled $784,000 in the year, representing seven cents of the trade dollar. Stores selling furniture, household supplies, radio and the like did $363,000 amounting to three cents.

Purchases in drug stores came to $157,000 or a little more than one cent additional.

Chest Drive Near Goal; Returns Still Incomplete

Incomplete returns indicate Wayne's second annual Community Chest drive was successful. Campaign Chairman Adon Jeffrey reported today.

Early tabulations show residents of Wayne gave the united drive enthusiastic endorsement.

The 1955 drive is now in the "mopping up" stage, Jeffrey stated. Some envelopes from both the business district and residential drives are still out. Workers are urged to complete their calls as soon as possible and report to their block captains.

While the campaign has not been completed, indications are the 1955 drive for the nine participating agencies will meet the quota of $6,750 and possibly better it as later returns come in.

Nearly 60 Wayne women served as block captains for the residential drive Friday under Mrs. John Einung and Henry Ley.

The downtown drive headed by Clarence Kuhn, was completed last Wednesday.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts assisted in distribution of Community Chest handbills and pamphlets in advance of the drive and VW had charge of outdoor display material.

Participating agencies in this year's united drive included Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Salvation Army, Cancer, United Defense Fund, Local Emergency Disaster Fund, Remedial Speech clinic and Youth Recreation fund.

The Basic Idea Behind the All-New 1955 PONTIAC

On Display October 29 and 30

ABOUT 30 years ago General Motors Corporation presented to America a new car called Pontiac. This new car was the direct result of a very specific idea.

The idea was this: to create a car which took its style, its engineering principles and its features from the very best and most expensive in America—and to build these into a car priced just above the very lowest!

Naturally, such an idea produced a wonderful and highly popular car—a car which millions of satisfied owners have driven with outstanding pride and pleasure.

Now, nearly three decades later, an entirely new Pontiac has been created for 1955—a car completely new from the ground up!

One thing, however, about the 1955 Pontiac remains unchanged—its basic idea—to offer the American public the very finest car that can possibly be built to sell at a price within easy reach of any new-car buyer.

When you see the new Pontiac on Friday or Saturday—Oct. 29 or 30—you will be immediately impressed by its remarkable new styling. No other car in the world looks like this new Pontiac!

When you drive it you will be astonished at its performance. For the 1955 Pontiac introduces the powerful new Strato-Streak V-8, an all-new engine that has already been proved in more than 3 million test miles!

When you price the new Pontiac you will come face to face with the basic Pontiac idea—you will be agreeably surprised that so much car, so much sparkling newness, so much luxury, so much downright goodness can be priced so near the very lowest.

We cordially invite you to come in on Friday or Saturday and see for yourself what a superb all-new General Motors masterpiece has been created to carry the wonderful name "Pontiac" for 1955.

Way Back When...

30 Years Ago
Oct. 16, 1924: Wayne State Teachers college football team played a scoreless tie game Friday with Western Union college at LeMars, Ia. Wayne High school football team was defeated by the Stanton team at Stanton last Friday. Some one entered the filling station of Merchant & Strahan by breaking a window Monday night, but took nothing so far as could be learned.

25 Years Ago
Oct. 17, 1929: Raynold Anderson sold his produce station here last week to L. W. Church. Mr. Anderson plans to move to a farm in the spring.

20 Years Ago
Oct. 18, 1934: Construction of Wayne's new post office is delayed a few days until steel arrives. Cwylla Jones of Carroll, and Frank Gamble of Wayne, placed first in Wayne county citizenship contest held at the court house on Saturday under direction of Miss Pearl Sewell.

15 Years Ago
Oct. 11, 1937: Cotton raising in this section of the county is unusual, but it proved successful this season for August Wittler who planted a few seeds just to see what would happen. The plants grew, the bolls developed and finally broke open, each containing fluffy white cotton.

10 Years Ago
Oct. 19, 1944: Ray Perdue, who tests gravel, found a dinosaur tooth in the Christensen pit one-half mile west and south of West Point. Opening of the pheasant season Saturday brought hither hunters from many directions and long distances.

In Bookland

by Mrs. F. A. Milder, City Librarian

WOULD YOU LIKE TO CHECK UP ON THE work your auto mechanic recommends for your car—or perhaps find out what's wrong and do the work yourself? We have some practical manuals on auto repair which can help you. Among them is a new one called Automotive Mechanics which is very complete. There's a host of "how to do it" books on almost every mechanical device at the library. Start your mechanical repairs by consulting the experts... at the library.

MAYBE YOU HAVE NEVER THOUGHT THAT you were the type to sit down with a book of poetry but I'll wager you have occasionally read some of the light verse written by Richard Armour in the magazines. The book jacket blurb of his new book, "Light Armour," would certainly entice you to read the book. Here is a short quote from it: "You probably never met a cow that needed a psychiatrist. Nor a man who went barefoot because so many people kept putting themselves in his shoes. On the other hand you've certainly detected that slight gray streak in your wife's raven tresses, because, as Richard Armour puts it: Middle age Is a time of life A man first notices In his wife."

"REUNION" BY MERLE MILLER, A STORY about eight men and their women at a fateful crisis in their lives is the outstanding new rental book we have this week. These men were all in the Army together and shared a desperate hour on a battlefield. Now at their reunion eight years later the author tells a story that holds the reader with its mounting suspense—for among these men are a killer and his intended victim.

FOR OUR RELIGIOUS SIEVE WE WERE PROUD to acquire "The Prayers of Peter Marshall" with prefaces by Catherine Marshall, author of "A Man Called Peter."

ABOUT THAT LIBRARY MEETING IN OMAHA last week... your librarian came home with three things... loads of ideas, more responsibility and that tired feeling. Perhaps time will bring results from all three.

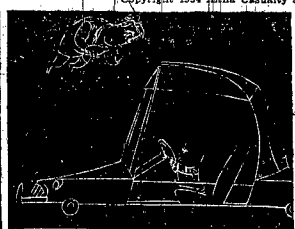

Conscience is like a railway switch—if properly tended will keep you on the right track.

Juvenile delinquency would decrease if parents would correct their own children as they'd like to correct the neighbors.

LOOK WHO'S DRIVING

At first, Charlie tried to pin all the blame on the guy who bumped him.

Then Charlie saw that, in his rage, he had acted like a child himself.

Happily, he lived—and vowed never again to be a kid behind the wheel.

Don't be a YOUNGHEAD at the wheel!

HERE AND THERE

With Your County Agent

By Harold Ingalls

This past week your county agent has been attending the National Agricultural Agents' association at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Insects and Grain
A number of inquiries have come to the office lately about preventing insect infestation in stored grains. One farmer brought in two cars of corn which were literally alive with rice weevils and confused flour beetles. Every kernel had been riddled. It would not take very many cars of corn so infested to take his hard-earned profit or make the corn unfit for consumption.

Insects that attack stored grain take a big cut out of Nebraska's farm income. It has always been profitable to control these pests because insects infested grain loses weight and market value.

The extension service recommends the following insect control procedure:

1. Clean granaries and bins thoroughly before the new crop is stored.
2. Spray bin walls and floors before storing grain with DDT, lindane, TDE or Methoxychlor. Be sure to follow the manufacturer's directions.
3. Store dry sound grain. Damp grain attracts insects.
4. Purge grain when found infested. Good grain fumigates are available under many trade names.
5. Inspect stored grain once a month, turn heated corn, and artificially dry if possible.

Bulletins giving more information on care of stored grain are available from your county agent.

Seed Germination

Germination of seed means a difference in yield reports the Nebraska Crop Improvement association. This year in observing their plots of oats planted from samples submitted by growers of certified seed, they noticed considerable variation in the thickness of the stands. Over 400 lots of field sown seed, 0-20% tests were planted. Three "lots" of germination were used—namely 80 to 90 percent, 90 to 95 percent and over 95 percent. Ten plots in each germination range were harvested for yield determination with the following results:

Germination	Av. Yield Per A.
80-90%	82.2
90-95%	82.4
Over 95%	91.2

It is not too early to be thinking about getting seed oats, alfalfa or clover cleaned and samples sent to the state seed laboratory for testing. They can supply a return analysis in a comparatively short time. Up until the first of the year when the rush begins!

Treat Weeds in October
With moisture conditions improved by recent rains, October is an ideal time to treat hard-to-kill weeds with soil sterilants.

Sufficient soil moisture is necessary if the best results are to be obtained from the use of soil sterilants. For the control of small patches of field bindweed, hoary cress, Russian knapweed, leafy spurge, and Canada thistle, use of borax and sodium chlorate or materials containing boron compounds and sodium chlorate is recommended.

In using these soil sterilants, the directions of the manufacturer should be followed for satisfactory results. When treating infestations of perennial weeds, the material should be applied over an area several feet beyond the last visible plant. This will take care of unseen underground plants which sometimes emerge around the outer edges of the patch.

OCTOBER Nebraska Farm Outlook

FARM NEWS REVIEW AND FORECAST

"Our Roots Are In This Land"

COMMODITY BRIEFS

Acresage Controls

The August 27th announcement of the "Total Acreage Allotment" by Secretary Benson has been abandoned by the Secretary. According to USDA, "The program is designed to aid in attaining a more balanced production and in bringing supplies more nearly in line with demand. Compliance with the program is voluntary except for crops under marketing quotas. Producers will have the choice of complying with their allotments and being eligible for price support or disregarding their allotments and foregoing price-support privileges. Producers of crops under marketing quotas in 1955 are cautioned, however, that exceeding the farm acreage allotments of marketing quotas crops will make them subject to marketing quota penalties. The relaxing of this provision means that about 40 million acres or 12% of the nation's crop land that the regulation had removed from cash crop production can now be used to grow crops except those under allotments, potatoes and commercial vegetables.

Cattle

Seasonal price increases of slaughter and feeder cattle have been slight. However feeder cattle prices average above last year at this time, and slaughter prices are being influenced by a larger number on feed.

Hogs

Prices have not declined nearly as sharply as earlier expected because of orderly sale.

SUGGESTIONS FOR FARM LEASES

From 1945 to 1950, 4,573 Nebraska farms were merged with other farms or were added to cities and villages and other government holdings. During these relatively prosperous years farmers have been buying the land on which they live.

In 1950, there were 4,317 more farms that were operated by owners than in 1945. In addition to this increase in the number of full owners, 2,561 more farmers were classified as part owners than in 1945.

During this period 11,352 fewer Nebraska farms were operated by tenants. After all of this combining of farms and the buying of farms by operators there still remained 41,747 tenant farmers in Nebraska in 1950. The addition of 41,747 tenant farmers to the 27,164 part owners, results in a total of 68,921 farmers who rent land.

Recent figures indicate that the trends toward fewer but larger farms and more owner operated farms have continued since 1950.

Types of Leases Vary

Since we do not know exactly what changes have occurred since 1950 it will be safer to assume no change for our discussion. Each of the 68,921 men who rented farm land had some kind of lease. Probably less than half had written ones. Certainly not all of those who now have effective written leases, signed leases last year.

Many of them did not need to sign a lease in the year prior to March 1. They had signed leases that continued in effect beyond March 1. Some of these leases were for several years duration and had not expired. Others were one year leases containing automatic renewal clauses.

Automatic renewal clause leases are popular with many people. If such leases are not cancelled or changed before notification date they are automatically extended for another period. Since they are written, misunderstandings are reduced.

In order for such a lease to be terminated or changed, one of the parties must give effective notice to the other. To be effective such notice should be in writing and actually placed in the hands of the one for whom intended, by the date specified.

In order to guard against claims of late notice, etc., the sender should send it registered mail and request a return receipt. This receipt will establish the time of delivery and identify the receiver.

Termination Dates Vary

While September 1 is the legal date for notice of termination of an oral farm lease, it is not early enough in many areas. One purpose of early notice is to prevent the tenant from preparing fields for planting to crops such as winter wheat, rye, or meadow grasses and even to prevent preparing seed beds for spring planting.

Practically all leases contain a section requiring the tenant to farm the land in a husband-like manner. While this term is not clearly defined it is usually assumed to mean the way a good farmer would farm.

If good farming is practiced, fall plowing may be necessary. Failure to fall plow where desirable would brand the renter as something other than a good farmer.

The two provisions are not compatible. This is recognized in many leases in which July 1 or August 1 is named as the date for giving notice to terminate leases. Landlords who have not given notice to their tenants by September 1 should figure on renting to them for another year. Unless changes were agreed upon the same terms will hold for the next year. Court decisions have made oral leases practically as easily extended as written ones when notice has not been given.

Sharp Practices Don't Pay Off

Friction will be reduced if landlord and tenant will work together in drawing up the lease. Realization that the lease provides the framework or plan under which a business will function, should prevent either party from attempting to secure an advantage over the other.

Any temporary advantage secured by one party can destroy the business arrangement. Good tenants and good farms are too hard to find not to be safeguarded.

Study Lease Carefully

Both parties should sit down with a standard lease form and carefully read through it together, section by section. If any section is not clear as written they should rewrite it to suit themselves. Most lease forms will be acceptable with very few changes.

When any change is made, the part to be replaced should be crossed out and revised paragraph written or typed out and initialed by landlord and tenant.

The revised part should be firmly fixed to the lease and referred to in the margin of the lease. Landlord and tenant should each keep a copy of the lease and all changes should be signed and initialed by both of them.

A tenant friend of mine says, "it is surprising how many times I avoid a perfectly good argument with my landlord by reading my lease." The lease can prevent landlord and tenant from actions that end up in courts.

If many change are made in the lease form it is well to have some outsider read the lease over to see if there are conflicts in it and if it is clear. The most important thing is to agree on terms, have them written out and signed by both parties.

FEED PROSPECTS FOR 1954-1955

Declining sharply during July, prospects for corn in Nebraska on August 1 indicated a total production of 171,350,000 bushels. This is 16% less than production in 1953 and 25% under the 1943-52 average. The prospective corn crop on August 1 for the United States as a whole was cut 15% from July 1 indications.

Drought over large areas of the country during July materially reduced prospects for production of feed crops in 1954. The total production of four feed grains—corn, oats, barley, and grain sorghums—was estimated at 116 million tons. This was 15 million below the July 1 estimate, but nearly equal to last year's crop and the 1947-51 average.

Supplies of hay and pasture will again be very short in some areas. The average condition of pastures on August 1 was the poorest in 18 years. Since August 1, however, rains over wide areas of the country have been very beneficial to pastures and forage crops.

Concentrate Supply Adequate

The 1954-55 supply of feed concentrates in the United States, including grains and by-product feeds, was estimated at 175 million tons, on the basis of August 1 conditions. This compares with 171 million tons produced last year and 165 million tons for the 1947-51 average. Considering the prospective increase in grain-consuming livestock, the supply per animal unit would be about the same as last year and also near the 1947-51 average.

Hay Supply Down Regionally

The hay supply for 1954-55 was estimated in August at 116 million tons. This is 4 million tons less than in 1953-54, and the smallest in recent years in relation to prospective number of roughage-consuming livestock.

Ample supplies are in prospect in most of the northern states but shortages are indicated in large areas of the South, the Western Plains, and the Atlantic Coast region.

The anticipated hay crop in Nebraska at 5,821,000 tons is slightly above last year and 18% above the ten-year average. This increase is largely a result of increased acreage of alfalfa hay.

Yields of alfalfa hay are expected to be slightly below last year and 21% below average.

Based on indications on August 1, total supplies of oil-seedcake and meal available for feeding 1954-55 may be little, if any, larger than in 1953-54. Reduced production of cotton seed meal may largely offset the anticipated increased production of soybean meal.

A favorable factor is the release by the government of powdered skim milk (32% protein) at 3½ cents per pound in lots of 20,000 pounds.

TRENDS IN AGRICULTURAL EXPORTS

Foreign countries are very important markets for U. S. Agricultural products. The prosperity of the American farmer depends, in part, on the volume of agricultural products going to foreign markets. Last year crops from about 30 million acres in the United States were exported.

The value of grains and grain preparations exported during 1953 was over a billion dollars. (See table 1.) Over 50% of the grains exported was either wheat or wheat products.

Agricultural Exports Down

U. S. exports of agricultural products have been declining since 1951. Agricultural exports fell from $4,040 million in 1951 to $2,844 million in 1953. This is a drop of 30% in two years.

However, during the first half of 1954 there has been a rising trend in the export of agricultural products. This was due primarily to the increase in foreign demand for cotton. The USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service attributes this to low foreign stocks and attractive U. S. prices. Wheat exports during the final half of 1954 were below the same period a year ago.

Table 1. Value of Foreign Trade in Agricultural Commodities during 1953

Commodity	Value
Dairy products	$ 80,731
Eggs and eggs products	21,578
Meats	51,887
Oils and fats (animal)	129,529
Cotton	516,946
Fruits and preparations	143,308
Grains and preparations	1,058,136
Oil seeds	124,186
Oils (vegetables)	49,118
Tobacco	340,469
Vegetable and preparations	98,987
Other Agricultural	228,955
Total Agricultural	$ 2,843,830
Total All Commodities	$15,625,752

Agriculture's share of total exports has also continued to decline for the past two years. In 1951, farm products accounted for 27% of total exports—compared with 23% in 1952 and 18% in 1953.

Declining Foreign Markets

According to the Foreign Agricultural Service, the underlying reason for this decline in the export of agricultural products was the continuing increase in world agricultural output. With world output in relation to population nearly equal to prewar, many countries need less imports or turned to other—and often cheaper sources outside the United States. Many United States agricultural export prices are higher than those of competing countries.

Many countries continue to have a dollar shortage resulting from an excess of imports over exports. These countries are importing more agricultural products from non-dollar areas and using their dollars for the purchase of non-agricultural products from the United States.

Tariffs, quantitative restrictions, administrative regulations, inconvertibility of currency, and other trade barriers at home and abroad deny the people of many countries maximum advantage of foreign trade.

Unless adjustments are made in these trade barriers, the prospect of appreciably increasing the volume of our agricultural exports is not very favorable. It is needless to say, if we are to export agricultural products, foreign countries must be able to export to us.

Agricultural Exports Stimulated

The 83rd Congress passed several acts intended to give agricultural exports a boost. Public Law No. 480 authorized the Commodity Credit Corporation to finance sales of surplus agricultural commodities for foreign currencies up to a total cost of $700 million over the next three years, and also authorized the use of $300 million of surplus commodities for foreign aid and family relief.

Section 402 of the Mutual Security Extension Act of 1954 authorizes the use of $350 million for selling agricultural commodities to foreign countries in exchange for their currencies.

ECONOMIC SITUATION

The Agricultural Act of 1954 that was enacted by the 83rd Congress, Second Session, provides for a special set aside of commodities acquired by the Commodity Credit Corporation from 1954 or prior crops, to be established as rapidly as the Secretary of Agriculture determines to be practical.

There are seven methods by which agricultural commodities may be disposed of from set-aside stocks, they are:

1) Transfer of disaster and other relief purposes outside the U.S.

2) Sale or barter, including barter for strategic materials.

3) Donation to school lunch programs.

4) Transfer to the National stockpile.

5) Donation, sale or other disposal for research, experimental or education purposes.

6) Donation, sale or other disposal for disaster relief in the U.S.

7) Sale for unrestricted use to meet a need for increased supplies.
