Babson Predicts Intense Retail Competition and Steady Prices for 1955

Outlook For Business

By Roger W. Babson
Despite wails from some quarters, 1954 saw a drop in the average volume of business of only five per cent from the record year of 1953. 1955 could see a rise of about the same amount. Certainly the direction of business until mid-1955 will be upward.

a recovery phase after their long stay in the doldrums.

- 5. Private Construction. I forecast that home building and general construction will be somewhat lower in 1955 than in 1954, but this important industry should still operate at high levels next year.
- 6. Public Construction. I forecast that public construction will increase during 1955. This should mean a rise in the output of cement.
- 7. Agricultural Equipment. This industry has been suffering from a decline in demand but should now improve. Government-sponsored planting curtailing and crop loans have reduced free supplies, and may make for higher agricultural prices later in 1955.
- 8. Armament Industry. The armament industry will still be one of the main floors beneath the economy. The electrical and chemical industries will move at a rate close to that of 1953.
- 9. Other Industries. I am somewhat optimistic on clothing, aircraft manufacturing, airline transportation, office equipment, electricity output, petroleum production, natural gas and shoes. I am also fairly bullish on rubber, paper, electrical equipment, certain types of building and non-ferrous metals.
- 10. Weather Conditions. It is foolish for me to attempt to forecast rains, droughts, frosts, etc., for any special section. However, notwithstanding a moderate profit shrinkage.
- 11. Retail Sales. I forecast that the outlook for retail sales is encouraging, at least through the first half of 1955.
- 12. Profits. Stiffening competition is chipping away at the profit margin. Return on invested capital is in a long-term downward. The first few years after World War II were the golden-years for the novice in business and for the ineffectual. Those days are gone for awhile.
- 13. Selectivity. Higher labor and other costs, plus intensified competition, will continue during 1955. I forecast a high degree of selectivity in the effect of this trend on individual activities and companies. Victory will be for the nimble and for the strong.
- 14. Dividends. Recent high expenditures for new plant and machinery have left some concerns with very high depreciation charges. As new capital commitments are cut and depreciation remains high, cash in flow could expand. Such companies should be able to pay out in dividends a higher percentage of earnings in 1955 than in recent years, notwithstanding a moderate profit shrinkage.
- 15. Inventories. Inventories have been permitted to run down during 1954. As total business expands, there will be a tendency to replace reduced stocks, especially during the first half of 1955. Total manufacturer's inventories, however, may build up more rapidly than total business inventories. I forecast that total wholesale and total retail inventories will show little change from 1954 levels.
- 16. Prices of Manufactured Goods. Even with the expected pickup in demand, I see no sharp markup in industrial prices next year. Overall supplies are generally ample. Hence, I forecast that industrial prices in 1955 will show little change from recent levels.
- 17. Food Prices. Food prices may firm later in 1955. The strong move into government crop loans this year has made free supplies of most agricultural items less burdensome. I forecast that new advertising programs by canners and other great food distributors will help farmers, stock raisers and fruit growers.
- 18. Consumer Income. Consumer income will hold at satisfactory levels. Most goods should move quietly into consuming channels.
- 19. Living Costs. I forecast that during 1955 living costs will show little overall change from present levels. There may be some firming during the first half, but the late months may again witness minor softening.
- 20. Rents, Etc. I forecast rental expenses may edge somewhat higher; clothing costs should be steady to moderately higher. There is small chance that food expenses can be greatly reduced.
- 21. Money Supplies. I forecast that money supplies will be ample for all legitimate business needs during 1955. With little likelihood of business getting out of hand on the upside, credit easing is more likely than credit curtailment in 1955.
- 22. Inflation. Fears or perhaps hopes of an inflationary boom should be buried.

Barren outbreak of war, our productive capacity is sufficiently large to meet all demands for goods. I forecast that no runaway inflation is probable, even if the money market remains the supplier of money or ease credit.

- 23. Interest Rates. Until the treasury finds a way to balance the budget, hold business at high levels and unemployment at a minimum, I forecast little likelihood of higher interest rates.
- 24. Bond Prices. With the possible exception of tax-free bonds, I see no reason for increased bond prices in 1955. I forecast an increase in the issuance of tax-free revenue bonds.
- 25. Stock Prices. After so sharp a rise, the market could have a reaction; but I am forecasting no crash in 1955 such as we had in 1929. In fact, the situation changed for the better Oct. 11, 1954.
- 26. Wages. I forecast that the wage trend in organized industry will continue to move higher at least in the first half of 1955. During the first half year, when business will be improving, the labor chiefs will also be quick to resort to the strike weapon.
- 27. Other Labor Gains. I forecast that the heavy gains of the labor bigwig will be trimmed on the guaranteed annual wage ed on a regular basis and more pensions. With a better congressional control of appointments to the National Labor Relations Board, decisions of that body will swing more toward labor than toward management.
- 28. New Inventions. These will mostly be a labor-saving type. I forecast a marked increase in automation and cybernetic and other marvelous changes in production methods.
- 29. Employment Outlook. Unemployment outlook is bright since business will be on the upgrade during the first half. I forecast that local and seasonal employment will still prove a knotty problem.
- 30. Failures. The salient business characteristic of 1953 will be bitter competition. Many companies already weakened by competitive conditions will no longer be able to keep afloat. I forecast a rise in both the number and the total value of failures during 1955.
- 31. Mergers. I forecast that mergers and consolidations will be encouraged by officials if by merging a weak company can be saved. But while every effort will be made to prevent bankruptcies, Washington will frown on large mergers and consolidations.
- 32. General Real Estate Sales. The market is already past due when real estate prices should have been falling. Only a fear of World War III and easy credit have prevented this. Therefore, I forecast that a downturn in prices cannot long be postponed.
- 33. The greatest speculation will take place in the seeking and trading of land with uranium prospects. This is now centered in Colorado, Utah and vicinity, but I forecast it will spread in limited way to other states and even to "offshore" property. It could exceed the gold rush of 1849. Another demand will be for woodlands which can be bought for a few dollars per acre.
- 34. Commercial Farms. These have suffered a decline in price as a result of the slump in agricultural and farm incomes. Unless more will be done politically.

Nebraska Farm Outlook

FARM NEWS REVIEW AND FORECAST

"Our Roots Are In This Land"

Brief and Important

Hogs

Recent big runs of hogs to market have depressed prices, especially for heavy hogs. The biggest hog run in nearly two years at Omaha came the week after Thanksgiving. Light butchers are bringing the top prices. Heavy hogs (over 240 lbs.) are being discounted sharply. Farmers thinking of holding hogs for better price should watch weights carefully.

Wheat and Corn

Farmers harvesting less than 15 acres of wheat in 1955 will not lose their eligibility for price supports on other restricted crops such as corn, but will not be eligible for price support on wheat unless he complies with his wheat allotment. All farmers who want ACP payments for conservation practices used on their land must comply with all acreage allotments for their farms.

Stock Market

Government monetary - fiscal experts are watching the upward trend in the stock market but have not yet indicated official concern. So far, investment rather than speculation has been primarily responsible for the rise in stock prices, which now average higher than the boom days of 1929. Recently the number of people in the market, the rate of turnover, and credit buying have been rising. Restraining action will not be taken until the use of credit becomes excessive.

Income Tax Dates

Farmers who report their federal income tax on a calendar year basis can file their final return and pay the tax by Jan. 31, 1955; or file an estimate and pay this amount by Jan. 15, then file the final return and pay any balance due by April 15. Those who report on a fiscal year basis may file their returns and pay the tax on or before the last day of the first month of the next year; or file an estimate within 15 days and the final return within 3 1/2 months after the end of their business year.

Your Income Tax for 1954

The 83rd Congress made extensive changes in the income tax law. Some of these changes will be of major interest to farmers while other changes affect all taxpayers, including farmers. The most extensive changes have been made in Form 1040 which now has 4 pages of blanks instead of 3 as formerly.

Taxpayers will need to secure a supplemental leaflet of instructions to use with Form 1040. This replaces and amplifies the instructions formerly printed on the 4th page of this form.

Farmers must file a return on Form 1040 if their income equals $600.00. If they file on the cash basis, they must also file 1040 F. Farmers on the accrual basis who have kept adequate records are not required to use 1040 F although they will find this a time-saver. Accrual-basis farmers can file returns on 1040 using Schedule C to show the details of their farm business.

Form C is a general business report form designed for use by persons engaged in any business. It does not contain the special details that will help farmers make out a complete return.

Capital Gains

By using Schedule D farmers who have sold capital assets at a profit are permitted to report 1/2 of the profit as taxable income under certain conditions. Capital assets subject to this special treatment may be grouped in 2 categories. The first includes assets that must have been owned 6 months or longer to qualify, such as land, buildings, machinery and equipment subject to depreciation.

The second includes assets which are subject to depreciation and which must have been owned 12 months or longer to qualify, such as dairy cattle, draft animals, breeding beef cattle, breeding swine, breeding sheep, but not poultry.

New Methods for Depreciation

Three special methods of figuring depreciation are now accepted for new assets. A fourth alternative is permitted providing it is followed consistently. The first of the 3 methods is straight-line depreciation. This involves dividing the cost minus salvage value by the number of years of expected use in the asset. When this method is used, deductions for depreciation are the same each year the asset is in use.

The second method, the declining balance, is a little more complicated but more realistic in some respects. To use it, one must establish the yearly depreciation rate. This rate cannot exceed twice the accepted straight-line rate.

For example, suppose 10% is generally accepted as the proper straight-line rate for a given asset, then 20% would be the maximum rate allowable for this method. A $2000.00 machine would be depreciated $2000.00 x 20% or $400.00 for the first year of use. The second year the balance would be down to $1600.00 ($2000.00 - $400.00). Twenty percent of $1600.00 is $320.00, which is the depreciation allowed the second year.

AFTER 10 YEARS of use this machine would still have an unrecovered value of $214.00. No matter how long the machine is used, it would still have some unrecovered value in it.

The third method is the sum-of-the-years' digits. In using this method the farmer, when he acquires the asset, lists the years of use remaining in the machine, and totals them. For an asset with 10 years of estimated use the years' digits are 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1. The total of these 10 figures is 55. During the first year the machine depreciated 10/55 of its cost or $363.64 for a $2000.00 machine.

The second year the machine depreciates 9/55 or $327.27 and so on to the last year when it depreciates 1/55 of the total or $36.36. After 10 years of use there is no value left in the machine when it is depreciated by either the straight-line or sum-of-the-years' digits methods. There is $214.00 left in the same machine depreciated by the declining balance method based on 20% a year.

IF THREE TRACTORS were sold for $214.00 each after being used 10 years and depreciated by these three methods, the farmers who used straight-line and sum-of-the-years' digits methods would show a capital gain of $214.00 each and be required to pay taxes on $107.00 of added income. The other farmer would receive exactly what the tractor was valued at and have no capital gain and no addition to taxable income.

The law also provides for use of any other consistent method providing the amount of depreciation during 2 1/3 of the estimated life of the machine does not exceed the depreciation allowable under the declining balance method.

Your Will . . .

To Whom Can You Will Your Property?

You may will your property to whom you please and in any way you please, with this exception. Nebraska law protects the legal share of the surviving spouse. You can will everything you have to your surviving spouse, but you cannot, by your will, keep everything from her or him.

If the will leaves the surviving spouse less than the share of the property to which she or he would have been entitled without a will, that surviving spouse may choose whether to accept the will's provisions or to take the share allotted by the laws of descent. A child, however, may be disinherited in the will if you show that you intend to do so. This is often done by leaving the child "one dollar," although there is nothing in the law that requires you to leave the child even one cent.

How can your will protect your children if you and your wife, die in the same accident? You might provide in your will that, in such event, a trust shall be established for your children or that a designated guardian be appointed for them.

Legal Counsel a Good Investment

Unless your will is to be very brief and in very simple form, you will be wise to consult an attorney. He can sometimes even save your beneficiaries money by arranging your assets for the minimum of loss through taxation, etc.

It is next to impossible to tell anyone what to put in a will or how to distribute his possessions. But do not use a standard form, or copy your neighbor's will. The relationships and circumstances will rarely be the same as yours.

A Will Saves Many Heartaches

If you do not make a will, your heirs may become involved in a legal battle. It may be years before your estate is settled. Hard feelings may develop among your children. The farm as you have known it may disappear into small uneconomic parcels of land.

MAKING A WILL is sound business and is something that should not be neglected. Anyone who owns property, real or personal, even though the amount may seem small, should have a will.

By your will you can name the persons whom you wish to benefit or protect and you will appoint someone you know as executor to carry out your wishes.

Wills are especially important to farmers. Ordinarily, most of their assets are tied up in land, livestock, machinery and tools. Sales to settle estates of this kind are uneconomic; they destroy the going-concern value of farms by scattering the machinery, livestock, and other forms of capital.

THE WIFE, as well as the husband, should make a will. If Mrs. Blank dies childless and without a will, Mr. Blank may find himself battling her relatives over the home and savings which he originally gave to his wife.

Despite all these things, scattered studies indicate that the majority of farmers do not leave wills! Why haven't you made a will?

What Is a Will?

A will is a legal declaration of your wishes regarding disposition of your worldly goods at death. There are five requirements for a valid will in Nebraska.

1. You must be of lawful age;
2. The Will must be in writing;
3. The Will must be signed by the testator and two or more witnesses;
4. The witnesses must also sign the will in the presence of the testator and the presence of each other;
5. The testator must declare that the document is his last will (indicates sound mind and memory).

If your will does not meet these requirements, the effect may be the same as leaving no will at all. A will, properly drawn, will insure the disposition of your property in accordance with your intentions. Contrary to popular opinion, wills are not easily "broken".

Can a Will Be Changed?

A will is good until it is changed or revoked. You may change your will as often as you desire, so long as you are of sound mind and memory. Changing family or property circumstances will require a revision of the will. It may be almost as important to change a will when needed as to have a will.

If there are changes, rewriting is best. An erasure, addition or deletion may automatically nullify a will. It is possible, of course, to change a will by adding a codicil. But since the codicil must be solemnized by witnesses and with as much formality as the will itself, it is better to start fresh and incorporate all changes in a new document.
