Series 'F' or 'G' Government Bonds

The gift that fits into everyone's dreams

Looking for a practical gift to place among the youngsters' toys on Christmas morning? Stumped for a gift idea for an out-of-town relative—or for your wife or husband? Then let us suggest a gift that means something personal and precious for everyone—a U. S. Savings Bond. For Bonds bring people closer to the goals they're saving for—and to the financial security they're longing for.

That's why millions of Americans are including Bonds on their gift lists this Christmas. And Bonds, increasing in value every six months, are a constant and growing reminder of your thoughtfulness long after other gifts are forgotten.

Make our bank one of your shopping stops this year. And while you're here, let us explain how easy it is to give a savings account as a gift—and to open a checking account for yourself.

Give the gift of security—with United States Savings Bonds

IF YOU HOLD "F" OR "G" BONDS NO INTEREST WILL BE PAID ON THEM AFTER MATURITY

We suggest you review your bond holding and check maturity dates. If you hold matured "F" or "G" bonds, such bonds should be redeemed and the funds reinvested in new issue.

The final interest payment on such bonds is not made until they have been redeemed. If you have not received your interest check on the regular schedule, it is probably your reminder that the bonds have matured.

SERIES "E" BONDS

Series "E" bonds which have matured are automatically extended for another 10 years at full interest rate.

Deadline Near!
Gov. Victor Anderson has only a few more days to act on relocation of Highway 35 before LB 187 becomes effective Sept. 18.

Gov. Anderson conducted his election campaign on the promise of running the state government in a "businesslike manner."

How "businesslike" is it to hold up road work when, even if LB 187 is declared unconstitutional, LB 1 and Sec. 39-603 give the governor relocation power for Highway 35 and automatically take effect if LB 187 is thrown out by the courts?

How "businesslike" is it to take time off for a publicity stunt such as the one-shot antelope hunt when the state is waiting for action on a critical question?

The state engineer's office needs only a go-ahead nod from the governor to get on with the job. Actually a five-minute discussion with the attorney-general would assure Gov. Anderson of the legality of his act.

Few businessmen would defer so long making a decision on such a vital issue where it concerned the business—why fritter away public time and money with procrastination?

PLEASE NOTE THAT THE LIBRARY HAS NOW resumed the regular winter hours of 2-5 and 7-9 p.m. This will continue during the month of September.

READER REACTION IS USUALLY PREDICTABLE but we read about the experience of a California librarian which proves that you often have a surprise in store when you recommend books.

IT ISN'T OFTEN THAT WE CAN GIVE YOU A recommendation for a book with a statement like this: you can leave it on the coffee table in the living room and not worry about Junior picking it up.

WE HAVE SOME NEW WESTERN AND SOME new mysteries to pop up those jaded summer reading shelves. In fact we have lots of new books to start the fall reading for you.

CAPITOL NEWS
BY MELVIN PAUL
Nebraska Press Association Statehouse Correspondent
Lincoln—State officials this week were seeking ways to keep Nebraska corn within the state so livestock feeders will not be shut out by high prices caused by the drought-stricken 1935 corn crop.

'I See by The Herald'
Kenny Palmer and Larry Reibold were Thursday supper guests in the Ed Grubb home.
Thursday afternoon visitors in the Ed Grubb home were Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Miller and sons, Raymondville, Tex., and Mrs. Carl Victor.
R. W. Hahn, Columbus, visited Thursday with Mrs. H. H. Hahn.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scribner and family, South Sioux City, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Evan Hamer.
Last Sunday visitors in the R. H. Hansen home were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Christophersen and daughters.
Thursday dinner guests in the R. H. Hansen home were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Cloyd and daughters, Grand Junction, Colo. in the evening the same group and Mrs. Augusta Hansen visited Mrs. Anna Mau.
Last Tuesday afternoon visitors of Mr. W. E. Lindsay were Mrs. Stanley Mitchell, Laurel, and Mrs. Robert Lumb, last Monday afternoon.
Up to this point the question had been whether Loup River and Platt River power districts would build the plant or whether Consumers Public Power district would enter this field.
Traditionally the "hydro" have had the power generating facilities while Consumers had "spiced" it in the form of turbines. Consumers now contends it should have the right to generate power since with its good credit rating it could get a lower interest rate and therefore save money for Nebraska citizens.
Tax Facts
State Tax Commissioner Fred Herrington has ordered his field representatives to prepare "perimeter" comparison maps for each county. These would be maps of the sections along the border of each county, with comparison of their assessed value and their sales value. Their usefulness would be in comparing a county with its immediate neighbors.
Herrington also ordered a start on a 10 percent spot check of the federal income tax returns of business firms in each county to see how the figures compare with that which merchants told their local assessor. In the less populous counties an even higher percentage will be investigated. Assessors will be asked to see that a better job is done next assessing season.
The tax commissioner said the purpose is to "get more and more facts" for use by both county assessors and state tax officials. This is a vital element of proper tax assessment and equalization.
Herrington said he firmly believes.
Grand Jury
The calling of a grand jury to investigate the State Penitentiary situation became mandatory with the filing of sufficient petitions in Lancaster County District Court. A panel of 16 jurors will be selected and will meet in secret with the county attorney as prosecutor.
Although few expected any criminal indictments to be made, as indicated by a citizens group with the broad powers of a grand jury might prove significant.

Kitchen and Children's Rooms Highlight Muselman Home

Children weren't forgotten in plans and decorations of the new Muselmans' new home at 10 West Eleventh street. Amy, 10, and Greg, 8, each have a bedroom suited to the tastes of young boy and girl. Muselman, the parents of another daughter, has a pale pink bedroom featuring drapes with blue flowers on a white background. Her bedspread and dressing table cover are of the same material. The room also has a desk for homework and correspondence. The closet has sliding doors. Walls of Greg's bedroom are painted in a light blue. Even Mrs. Muselman, blockman for an apartment company, likes to spend a few hours in this room. Accessories are green and brown. The 1313 master bedroom has wall windows placed high in the wall. The same is true of other bedrooms. Hunter green, tangerine and chartreuse drapes contrast brightly with the soft green walls. A double closet eliminates the need for an entire wall for closet doors. Mrs. Muselman illustrated this by putting her dresser between the two floors, which slide into the wall. Grey and maroon are used for bathroom color scheme. Window and shower curtains are maroon. Wall tile is grey with maroon trim. Grey marbled plastic tile was used on the floor. The bath accessories match the main color used on the walls. Walls of the 13x20 living room are sand colored. Chocolate carpeting matches the brown of the modern design drapes on the big picture window. The living room suite is green. Mrs. Muselman is exceptionally proud of her compact, step-saving kitchen. Her built-in cabinet top stove, wall oven and cooking utensils are close together. A lazy susan was built in under the oven. Sink and refrigerator on the north wall are just a step from the table. This is also true of the stove. Bleached birch cupboards have working surfaces covered in yellow Formica which matches the refrigerator and upper walls. Green marbled tile protects lower walls from grease and other dirt. Dark brown trim here matches the background of the inlaid spatter tile. A kitchen living room and knot-hole bedroom are planned for the full basement. Asphalt tile will be used for the floor. Overall measurements of the house and attached garage are 24x54. Light tan brick was used to accent the front of the salmon pink home. Flooding throughout is oak. Woodwork is blacked. Walls are sheetrock. A patio on the northeast corner of the house provides a comfortable spot on summer evenings. A barbecue pit is an additional feature for outdoor living.

House-Hunters: Don't Ignore Possibilities Of 'Used Home'

A used car in good condition is often a better buy for the money than a brand new one. House-hunters are finding the same to be true in the "used home" market. Real estate brokers counsel clients to look beneath the surface for the remodeling potential in older houses. If the house is structurally sound, the buyer usually can end up with a house with a resale value far higher than the purchase price and remodeling cost combined. Here are some "used home" shopping tips: Choose a house that is already the right size for your present needs with expansion possibilities in an attic or breezeway if your family is on the increase. A sound, intact shell is a must. Signs of settling, such as sloping floors or wall cracks, suggest a faulty foundation or sill. Signs of dampness in the basement should be investigated. Floors which vibrate or squeak mean trouble, but bleating may remedy this. Windows and doors should open smoothly and swing evenly. When remodeling, attend to a leaky, weathered roof first, since it's the first line of defense against water. A sound, water-tight roof of fire-resistant asphalt shingles can be economically applied — often right over the old roofing. Next, see that the siding is equally weather-resistant. Repair or replace windows and doors that are not in condition to seal out wind, rain, and dust. When decorating the house, paint the siding and trim in a related tone of the asphalt roof color. A subdued color scheme without strong contrasts will go far to disguise any awkward architectural features an older house may have. The second line of defense is adequate insulation, often lacking in older houses. Wrap the house in mineral wool all around, that is, in outside walls and attic floor. It will keep fuel bills low right from the start, and pay for itself in a few winters. Once full weather protection is assured, interior remodeling can follow gradually, as your budget permits.

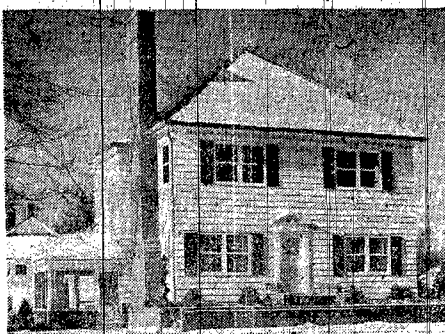

Two Million New Homes Needed Yearly by 1975

The U.S. will have to build 1,200,000 new homes a year by 1975, the Stanford Research Institute reports, just to keep even with new family formations and replacements of obsolete homes. Current rate of new home starts is 1,300,000 a year. West Coast lumbermen's association, whose region's mills supply the nation with over a third of its softwood lumber needs, estimates its rich tree farm lands will grow enough fir, hemlock and red cedar timber so that this region will be able to supply the nation perpetually with the same ratio of lumber.

Natural Preservative

Nature has built a special oily preservative into red cedar lumber which makes this popular species highly resistant to insects and decay. For that reason, red cedar is used where it is exposed to weather, as siding for homes, fences, garden structures, planters, wooden flower tubs and in other ways.

Remodeling Pays Off!

It looked like a pagoda with a porch, but it was only a Victorian left-over whose heyday was long past. So, the owners of the pre-World War I house in the "Before" picture (right) remedied their efforts paid off in the stately Colonial home above. Remodeling was extensive inside and out, but cost plus the original price of the house totaled only half of what the house is worth in today's market. The first step was to remove the oversized porch which had shut out sun light from the living room. Next the rounded, half-octagon corner on the left was squared off. Four useless dormers were removed to simplify the roof line. The "new" house is clean-lined, with white clapboard siding and a dark gray-green roof of fire-resistant asphalt shingles. The house now has fewer windows, but they're larger, and provide more air and light. All stock units of ponderosa pine, the new windows are more uniform in size and shape, as called for by the architectural simplicity of the house. All sash are removable for easy cleaning of the outside of the glass. The paneled front door and imposing frame are authentic Colonial. Inside, the house was changed from a one-family to a duplex, with a private entrance on the left for the upstairs apartment. A kitchen had to be installed upstairs, and a new bathroom on each floor. The old first-floor kitchen was remodeled to include a dining nook and appliances and new wood cabinets were arranged in an L-shape to make best use of space. The basement was rebuilt to serve both families. One-half is a recreation room, a quarter is a heating and utility area, and the remaining quarter is a laundry. The laundry room contains a kitchenette to be used for "rec room" parties. To keep down heating bills, the large house was fully insulated with mineral wool. A new heating system was installed, with modern baseboard radiation.

with adjustable, crane-type handle. Known to plumbers as a "snake," the spring-steel coil is easily worked past the trap, and down the pipe. It will quickly drill through most clogs. If the plunger or auger does not clear the toilet bowl, call your plumber. When the clogging material has been removed from the trap, pour a pail or two of very hot water into the drain to wash out any loose material. The washer and the seat are the two parts of the faucet which get the greatest amount of wear. All faucets are built so that the washer may be easily replaced. On the other hand, it is usually just as expensive to buy a seat as it is to buy a new faucet unless the faucet is made with a renewable seat. See your plumber about a worn faucet seat.

American roofs. The sole exception is given a slight edge over medium blue shingles. The wide range of attractive roofing, siding, and paint colors now available enables the homeowner to give the house a completely exciting new color scheme, from the roof right down to the windows, door and mail box. Birren says.

Keep Basement Dry
Basements can be protected from dampness by using one of the water-repellent compounds which are painted on with a large brush.

'White House' On Way Out

From bathroom fixtures to telephones to houses, the swing today is to color. Faber Birren, noted color authority, reports: "Fully 75 percent of all painted houses were white about a decade ago. Today, use of color has increased from about 25 percent of the total to well over 50 percent, and the percentage keeps rising. Probably the most active color trend has been in asphalt shingle roofing. Here the technical laboratory has provided a whole new palette of pastel hues which have risen steadily in popularity, to a point where they now are preferred by two persons out of five." However, the color consultant cites a survey of 1,600 homeowners in 12 widely scattered areas which indicates that deep-tinted red, green, gray, and other traditional asphalt shingle colors remain the dominant choice for

Plumbing Industry Suggests Ways to Cut Down Repair Costs

Practical advice to the homeowner on (1) keeping his plumbing system in good operating order and (2) making minor repairs himself, is given by the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau. Major repairs, replacements and new plumbing installations should, of course, be left to the specialized skill of the master plumber. Plumbers get more calls to open clogged drains than for any other service, according to the bureau. Many such calls could be prevented by greater care in the use of drains. The most-used drain is the one in the kitchen sink and that is the drain which is most often clogged. Sink clogging can be prevented by carefully watching what is emptied into the sink drain and by the regular use of a good drain cleaner. Sink stoppages are usually caused by liquid fats, carried in dishwasher and other kitchen wastes, hitting the cooler pipe and solidifying. Coffee grounds and bits of food add to this accumulating layer of grease until the pipe becomes impassable. Pour excess grease into a tin can and throw it out with the garbage. In cleaning the sink drain, first remove the perforated drain plate in the sink basin. Sometimes the stoppage is directly below this and can be loosened with a long screw-driver or piece of wire. Pour boiling water (to which a little household ammonia has been added) into the drain to help soften whatever is clogging the pipe.

Then take a plunger (a large rubber suction cap with wooden handle) and cup it tightly over the drain. Plunge it vigorously several times. Drain piping can also be cleaned by removing the clean-out plug at the bottom of the U-trap below the fixture and pulling out the clogging material with a piece of wire.

In cleaning a water closet trap, start with the rubber plunger. If this does not work, try an auger

Timely Tips

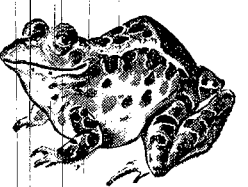

A quick, easy way to make a miniature trellis for house plants... snip off the hook of a wire coat hanger, bend the rest of the wire into a loop, thrust the end into the pot.
