Uncontrolled Growth

If Wayne's current building boom continues apace, the town will soon be straining at its limits... swollen and distorted with its unplanned, uncontrolled growth.

Early last month the city council seemed aware of the problem and instructed the city attorney to prepare a building permit application incorporating all the teeth available... the better for the councilmen to exercise control over building, placement of buildings and, perhaps, even types of buildings.

Nothing has yet been seen of the new applications, however, and the issuance of building permits is almost automatic with application.

More and more conversation on the streets concerns the need for some type of zoning ordinance... much of it by intelligent persons who have the interests of the city at heart.

Under existing ordinances the city has little control over building: either in type of building (residential or commercial) or the placement of buildings with respect to lot lines. The fallibility of the present regulations is clearly illustrated by some permits recently issued by the council.

Occasionally there is argument that Wayne is too small to require zoning laws. No town is too small to be planned... no town is too small to look to the future and arrange itself accordingly.

Our city is already beginning to show evidence of this lack of planning. But action now to lay out a master plan will provide integrated business districts and separate residential districts, make for more desirable residential areas, keep property values up and consequently foster pride in ownership... all vital factors in a growing, prosperous community.

THE BIG NEWS THIS WEEK IS A GIFT FROM Wayne Women's club of $100. They voted this money for the specific purpose of buying a new record player for the children's department. Thirty new records to go with it and the remainder of the fund will be used to pay postage on films to be shown at the library this winter. The new record player is a very welcome gift because the old one was showing the effects of constant use. It had been given the library originally by the Chamber of Commerce some six years ago and it only played the 78 records. Since we have a number of 45's and 33's we now purchased a new machine which plays those speeds. Postage on the films will help the budget with regard to this new service added to our library this year. We are going to try to have films available every week to be shown each Thursday evening from the first of October until May. These films will also be loaned, if the dates and subject matter coincide with your desires. Most of these, unless they are especially ordered, will be free, films but the postage will be an item. To have this covered by the gift from the Wayne Women's club means a fine contribution to the service we can give our Wayne public.

WE HAVE HAD A BOOK OF CARTOONS BY Clare Barnes, Jr., author of "White Collar Zoo," for some time but we have been reluctant to write about it on account of the title "Steeping Under Blankets" is that title and in view of the warm weather we have continued to have it seemed almost unbearable to think about the subject, or even put the words on paper. It is a mighty clever book though, filled with pictures from old movies with side splitting captions under them. Get it for your amusement.

THE LARK SHALL SING BY ELIZABETH CADDELL, a light and humorous English novel. Frank Yerby's new book, "The Treasure of Pleasant Valley," which as usual is historical, and Richard Armour's book, "If I Started with Europe," are new on the rental shelf. The last mentioned book by Armour is a completely idiotic book of history with illustrations by the author which will keep you chuckling all the while you are reading it.

CAPITOL NEWS

BY MELVIN PAUL

Nebraska Press Association Statehouse Correspondent

Lincoln—The first stirrings of political activity in the 1956 election campaign could be seen this week with Vice President Richard Nixon scheduled to meet with Republican party leaders in Omaha... Although the vice president was invited to Nebraska to speak to a convention of volunteer fire-fighters, Republican leaders used the occasion for a confab in Omaha, assessing the party's strengths and weaknesses in next year's election. At this point with the May, 1956 primary many months away, the campaign looks to be fairly calm. Particularly if President Eisenhower runs for re-election not much excitement should occur even in the general election. There seems to be no reason to believe the Nebraska Republican party will be shaken from its 14-year dominance of the Congressional delegation and the Statehouse at Lincoln.

There will be no race for the U. S. Senate as Senator Carl Curtis has until 1959 and Sen. Roman Hruska until 1957. The four Congressmen are expected to be re-elected with little difficulty. There still seems to be some question about whether Congressman Jackson B. Chase, Omaha, will run for re-election. A formidable Democratic candidate for Congress from the Second District, James Hart, Omaha, has now moved to New Jersey. Although Hart ran three times without success, he was always considered a threat, with him gone the Republicans may be able to breathe easier in that district, which includes Omaha and five counties along the Missouri river. On the Statehouse level the indications are that most of the present office holders will seek re-election, possibly with the exception of Atty. Gen. C. S. Beck who reportedly has had plans to run for district court judge in his hometown of North Platte. Beck's plans may have taken a jolt with the filing for re-election of Judge William Plett, North Platte. It was said that Beck's plans hinged on Nisley's retirement. State officials who would have to seek re-election next year are Gov. Victor Anderson, State Auditor Rhy Johnson, State Treasurer R. H. Hill, Lieutenant Gov. Charles Warner, Secretary of State Frank Marsh and State Railway Commissioner Paul Pettygrove.

Anderson's Position Up to a few weeks ago Gov. Anderson seemed to have the clearest sailing possible to an easy re-election. It is much too early to tell now but the growing seriousness of the state penal institution situation could be a cloud on his horizon. The most comfortable reassurance for Gov. Anderson is that there appears to be no outstanding rival on either the Republican or Democrat side. If he were in a close race, the troubles at the State penitentiary and State reformatory might hurt him. But as of this early date a strong opponent doesn't seem to be in the cards. Considerable significance, however, was attached by political observers to the fact that Frederick Wagener, Lincoln attorney, was retained by George Morris, ousted State reformatory superintendent. Morris has demanded a public hearing by the State Board of Control on why he was fired. Under the law the Board must produce its reasons and give Morris the hearing. However, the Board itself is the final judge and there is no appeal from its findings after the hearing. Wagener Build-up? Wagener, it will be remembered, ran against Anderson in the 1954 gubernatorial primary. Although Anderson overran him easily, friends of Wagener say he still has ambitions for the governor's chair. The forthcoming public hearing before the Board of Control could take on considerable political importance. Wagener's major handicap in running against Anderson might be that he is also a Lincoln man and other areas of the state might not like perpetuating Lincoln control of the governorship. Those who spot possible political ambitions on the part of Wagener point to a paragraph in a statement he made at the time it was announced he would be counsel for Morris. Wagener stated that Morris "has been more right than any individual having any semblance of authority or assumed authority over and of our Nebraska state institutions." Since Gov. Anderson has taken authority of the State penitentiary, the statement appeared to include him in the broad criticism. There had been talk that the Democrats might try to take advantage of the institutional troubles. But the Wagener entrance into the case gave indications that it might become an intramural bone of contention among the Republicans themselves.

public getting feed. Leaders of feeders groups wondered why some of the stored government corn couldn't be sold at market prices. Howard Doggett, representative of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, told a special committee appointed by Gov. Anderson that this couldn't be done. That corn farmers wouldn't like it seemed to be the fact that there are more corn farmers than feeders and that corn is supported while beef isn't might have helped turn the scales against them. Power Dilemma Gov. Anderson's proposal to have a committee of distinguished citizens seek an answer to the electric power controversy got the cold shoulder from most of Nebraska's public power districts. Only Consumers Public Power districts expressed approval. With a financial structure that would obtain the best interest rate on a bond sale and with an eagerness to get into the power production business, Consumers apparently feared no such investigation. Other districts, who feel Consumers should be restricted to power distribution only, weren't so warm to the idea. In the background lurked the possibility that the Legislature might have to be called to get something done. This and the threat that a state agency might be set up to control the power districts may be the only way to drive the warring factions into harmony, some observers felt.

HERE AND THERE... With Your County Agent By Harold Ingalls

Agricultural Experiment Station. The increase in 1953 production from experiments is nearly equal to bushels per acre for manure mixed over the same amount of manure plowed down. In 1951 the increase was 11 bushels. In 1952 it was 17 bushels. In 1953 soil moisture in August was three percent higher than in 1952. The manure mulched soil lost only a small percentage. The mulch protects the soil surface, keeping it open. In the summer rains churn up the surface of unmulched soil, causing it to seal over. A sealed soil surface tends to shed rather than take up rainfall. When rainfall can be absorbed into the soil, crop production is increased. Borst says, "Mulching of corn may be done at any time after planting, but the simplest method is to harrow and cultivate once or twice before putting on the manure; 2, 4-D is a help in controlling weeds on mulched fields. In the absence of manure, straw or old hay makes a good mulch. As little as 1 1/2 to two tons of such material gives soil a good protection. Increases about nine to 10 tons of manure per acre are needed."

September Nebraska Farm Outlook

FARM REVIEW AND FORECAST

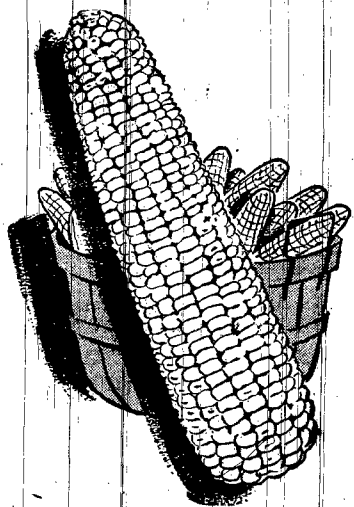

"Our Roots Are In This Land"

BEEF CATTLE PROSPECTS DISCUSSED FOR 1955-'56

PROFITS FROM FEEDING beef cattle are determined by the price paid for feeder cattle, feed supplies and prices, slaughter cattle prices, and the managerial ability of the farmer. Information on the first three of these factors will help the feeder in deciding what kind and how many cattle to feed in the 1955-'56 season. These decisions should be based upon a careful analysis of what can be expected for the year rather than upon what happened last year.

Feed Supplies

DESPITE THE SEVERE DROUGHT in Nebraska and Western Iowa, crop production in 1955 is expected to come close to the 1948 record. Acres diverted from wheat and cotton have been mostly used for the production of feed crops. This together with the increased use of improved production practices such as fertilizer, insecticides, weed killers, new varieties, irrigation, and mechanical driers will mean an ample supply of feed for our growing numbers of livestock.

A CORN CROP of nearly 3,500 million bushels was estimated on Aug. 1. Some further deterioration has occurred since then in the Western Corn Belt but this was more than offset by favorable growing conditions in the rest of the Corn Belt. Nebraska's nearly 750,000 acres of irrigated corn look very good but total production in the state is expected to be about 40 million bushels less than the 10-year average of 229 million. If it matures properly, the U. S. Corn crop will be 17 percent above 1954 and only slightly below the record of 3.6 billion bushels in 1948.

THE CARRYOVER of corn from previous years is over 900 million bushels with 92 percent of this in the North Central States. Compliance with corn acreage allotments has been low so the market price this fall should be somewhat below the average loan level of $1.58 per bushel.

THE OATS CROP of 1,625 million bushels sets a new record which with carry over gives a total supply of nearly 2 billion bushels. New records are also in prospect for grain sorghum, soybeans, and hay. Support prices on all feed grains this year are considerably below those of 1954 with the exception of corn. Range conditions and hay supplies in the ranch country were generally good to excellent except Western Kansas, Eastern Colorado and Nebraska.

ALL OF THIS adds up to abundant supplies of feed grains and protein concentrates for the 1955-'56 season in the nation as a whole but with much less favorable conditions in Nebraska except on irrigated farms. By late August much of the corn on dry land in Eastern and Central Nebraska was damaged beyond recovery and grain sorghums were also suffering. Many farmers were cutting corn for silage or turning cattle into corn fields in order to salvage forage. Pastures in this area were very poor but would improve with rains in September.

Numbers and Prices of Feeder Cattle

THE SUPPLY OF FEEDER CATTLE coming to market should be as high or a little higher than last year and prices will probably average a little lower. A nearly normal seasonal movement is expected with peak volume in late September and October. The movement could begin a little earlier in Nebraska if drought continues into September as the long-range weather forecast indicates.

THE NUMBER OF CATTLE on farms and ranches in the U. S. has been increasing since 1949 from 76.8 million head to 95.4 million on January 1, 1955. Most of this increase has been in beef cattle since beef cow numbers are now 52 percent higher than six years ago while milk cow numbers have remained quite stable.

THIS YEAR'S CALF CROP will be a little lower than last year's because of spring storms in the Northern Plains and Mountain states. Slaughter of cows and heifers has been running higher than last year indicating that the increase in cattle numbers is slowing down. Rapid liquidation of herds is not expected unless a severe drought or price break occurs.

GOOD HAY AND RANGE conditions in most of the ranch country mean that cattle ranchers will be in a fairly good bargaining position. Little distress of selling of feeder cattle due to drought is expected except from limited areas. Factors tending to strengthen feeder cattle prices: abundant feed supplies, lower price supports on feed grains, and the unfavorable hog price outlook. These factors will operate to encourage the expansion of cattle feeding. Offsetting these are the high numbers of cattle on farms and ranches, lower profits from cattle this past season, large supplies of meats and consequent slightly lower slaughter cattle prices expected next year.

BALANCING THESE TWO SETS of conditions leads to the conclusion that feeder cattle prices will average a little lower than last year—about $1 to $2 per cwt. Early sales of good to choice steer calves and yearlings have ranged from $18 to $23; heifers about $2 lower. Spread in prices between upper and lower grades has been widening but this may not continue in Nebraska as farmers buy plainer cattle to clean up drought-stricken corn fields.

'56 Slaughter Prices

THE PRICES FARMERS WILL RECEIVE for fat cattle when they leave the feed lots will depend upon consumers' demand for meat, beef production, and supplies of competing meats. Consumers' demand for meat is determined largely by general economic conditions especially employment and personal incomes. When employment and incomes are high, consumers eat well and the demand for meat is strong. If a recession occurs, some cutback in spending for food including meat can be expected. With our present meat producing capacity, unemployment would rapidly bring disastrously low prices for livestock farmers.

Economic Situation "LOOKS GOOD"

GENERAL PROSPERITY is expected in the nation throughout 1956 with employment incomes, spending and investment to continue at high levels. New record highs are being set in most business indicators with each passing month. Consumer spending for homes, automobiles, appliances, food and clothing has provided the main strength. Non-residential construction and investment in new plants and equipment were major forces in the rapid recovery from the recession of 1954 and will continue to be strong sustaining forces in 1956. Federal spending is expected to decline a little more in 1956 but this reduction will be more than offset by increased spending by state and local governments.

GOVERNMENT POLICY affecting business will be designed to keep activity at a high level in the rest of 1955 and during 1956 especially with presidential and congressional elections coming up next year. Recent credit restrictions are to control the boom but not to cause a downturn. Curbs on installment credit may be added later if voluntary restrictions prove to be inadequate. A cut in federal taxes is probable in 1956 and this will add to spendable income. The federal budget will still be balanced for the first time in many years.

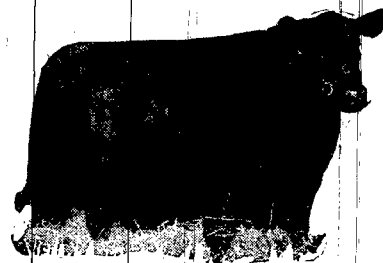

THIS BRIEF OUTLINE of the economic outlook for the next 12-18 months means that employment and consumer incomes will remain high and therefore the demand for meat will continue strong. Recent wage hikes will add to personal incomes. Consumer debt is not regarded as excessive in relation to income. Population growth continues to provide an expanding market for all products including farm products. Farmers will not share in this general prosperity as much as non-farm groups. Demand for meat, dairy and poultry products, and fruits and vegetables will be strong but larger production will more than offset the small increase from population growth and exports. No serious price breaks are expected provided that employment in cities continues high. A recession would be disastrous for farmers.

NET FARM INCOME will be 5 percent less in 1955 than last year continuing the decline which began in 1952. This will not lead to a general depression because of fewer but larger farms, off-farm work, price-supports and other government policies and programs.

Meat Production

TOTAL MEAT PRODUCTION in 1954 surpassed the 1944 war-time high. This year's production will be 5 percent higher than 1954 with 267 billion pounds or 160 pounds per person. The per capita supply of meat is up 7 pounds from last year mostly in pork and only 3 pounds less than the 1908 record of 163 pounds.

BEEF PRODUCTION so far in 1955 is running slightly higher than last year. There were 13 percent more cattle and calves on feed July 1 than a year ago and fed cattle are being marketed at heavier weights. Larger supplies of competing meats are also available. The 1955 spring pig crop was 9 percent higher than in 1954. Placement of chicks for broiler production is now above 1954.

Lower Prices Likely

LITTLE IMPROVEMENT in slaughter cattle prices can be expected in the remainder of 1955 considering the number of cattle on feed and the large supply of other meats. Prices of lower grade cattle will weaken as grass cattle come to market in larger volume. Prices for the better grades should hold about steady.

IN 1956 FED CATTLE PRICES will average a little lower than in 1955. Demand will be strong but heavy marketings will more than offset its sustaining effect. No serious price break is anticipated in view of the favorable economic outlook—rather the situation will be characterized by steady to slightly lower slaughter cattle prices. Seasonal price movements will probably be less than normal in the higher grades and about normal for the lower grades.

Profit Prospects from Feeding Cattle

THE MOST FAVORABLE PROSPECTS for average profits appear to be in feeding systems which convert cheaper feed into gain rather than in those which depend upon price margins between feeder cattle and slaughter cattle. The chances for profit are fairly good for long-fed steer calves, deferred-fed yearling steers, and heifer calves fed for 8-9 months. Chances seem less favorable for profits with short-fed yearlings and heavy steers.

ANOTHER SYSTEM which might be considered by farmers with short corn crops is that of feeding plain cattle. In this system plain and medium feeders are bought at the seasonal low in the fall (usually October), fed to commercial grade and sold at the seasonal high for this grade which is usually April and May. Ray Hoss, Extension Livestock Marketing Specialist at Kansas State College says, "If you can buy 'dog' steers in line—the good flat-backed kind—they should make money." He recommends buying 650-700 pound steers at $10 to $11 per cwt. and feeding them to around 1,000 pounds by next spring. Fall pasture, corn stalks, and crop aftermath followed by plenty of ensilage and a minimum of grain will keep feed costs down.

ON FARMS where grain crops failed this year but fall pasture, ensilage and hay are available, such roughage can be used to advantage by buying common to medium stockers and feeders in October at the seasonal low and selling them as feeders next spring at the seasonal high, usually in May.

Brief and Important Drought

Near-record crop production is in prospect for 1955 despite severe drought in Nebraska and Western Iowa. Losses in this area were more than offset by favorable conditions elsewhere. This will keep feed prices from rising much except for transportation costs into deficit areas. Employment offices report some farmers seeking jobs in town because of crop failures and expected low farm incomes.

Credit

Borrowers are finding loans more costly and a little harder to get as a result of recent government actions to curb lending. The purpose of these credit curbs is to stabilize present prosperity rather than have "boom and bust". Official policy is to prevent the boom from becoming inflationary without causing a recession, which would have adverse political effects in an election year. Main control devices are: higher rediscount rates to banks; allowing interest rates to rise; less liberal terms on government-insured mortgages; higher down payments on stocks; and voluntary restrictions by credit agencies.

Meat

American consumers will have a meat supply of nearly 27 billion pounds in 1955. This means 160 pounds per capita, up 7 pounds from 1954 and exceeded only by the 1908 consumption of 163 pounds. The increase of 7 pounds from 1954 to 1955 is all in pork, up from 60 to 67 pounds. Beef consumption will be about the same as last year at 79 pounds per person.

Morlok Home Has Centrally Located All-Purpose Room, Easily Converted

Full Basement Is Apartment

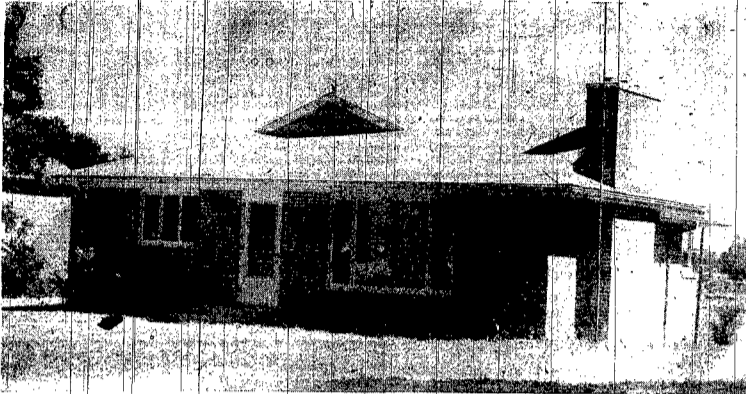

A centrally-located 11 x 9 1/2 all-purpose room highlights the comfortable one-floor home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Morlok at 509 West First.

Except for a dropped ceiling between this room and the front living room, there is no other wall. However, the room, now serving as a dining room, could be converted to a third bedroom, den or study by installation of a modern folding door.

A mahogany set furnishes the room. Shelves are built into the buffet. Carpeting, as in the living room and hallway, is nutria color. Walls are Bermuda rose, a shade lighter than those of the living room and hallway. Ceilings are cream. A short picture window on the west wall and a large picture window in the living room have drapes of beige fabric with gold metallic threads.

The living room measures 13 x 21 with a natural, polished Mantok brick fireplace extending to the ceiling. Three small semi-circle shelves built in the brick hold Oriental pheasant figurines.

A three-piece sectional of pink, black and brown tweed with gold metallic thread sits in the southeast corner. A green platform rocker sits by the fireplace next to an outside door leading to the back patio, which has not been completed as yet.

Woodwork is blonde finished oak throughout the house. There is a cedar-lined closet off the all-purpose room. Carpeting is complete in these two rooms and the hallway except for a small entrance way by the front door. Here inlaid linoleum was used to save wear and tear on the carpet.

A colonnade built by the entrance extends about four feet into the living room, giving a hallway appearance. Louvers run from the midway point to the ceiling while the lower half has storage for card tables and chairs.

The long hallway, extending to the back bedrooms, features guest, broom and linen closets, built-in telephone stand and doorways to all-purpose room, kitchen, and bathroom. The linen closet, built over the basement stairway to save space, has sorting board and three-cornered bottom drawer.

In the northeast corner of the house is the 11 x 15 1/2 kitchen with walls and ceiling painted rose blue. Lower half of walls is red subonnet tile with black feature and cap. Cabinet tops along the east, north and west walls are coral Formida with pattern design.

Mrs. Morlok has her sink under the north window, stove on the east wall and refrigerator on the west. Drapes are navy blue. Dining set is blue ming with chrome and terra cotta light fixture above. Recessed lighting is above the sink.

Inside of the cupboards is painted dark blue with two lazy susans on either side of the sink. Exhaust fan above the stove does away with cooking odors. Hydraulic air conditioning and heating system is installed here and in the bathroom. Baseboard heating was used in the entire house. Kitchen floor is brown and beige inlaid linoleum with diamond design.

A neat trick in the house is the two-door bathroom that serves family needs from bedroom hallway and doubles as lavatory off kitchen and east rear entrance. It is compartmented by fluted glass partition and space-saving vertical towel rack.

Walls and ceiling are Nile green with maroon tile on lower half of walls. Feature strip is white. Fixtures are white with chrome. Marbleized tile floor is gray and maroon. The room is 11 x 5 with tub and shower. Tub and shower walls are tiled 1 1/2 feet from the ceiling. Vanity top around the sink is wood grain Formica. Sliding mirror doors over vanity are edged with fluorescent lights.

Ceiling and north wall of master bedroom are pink. Other three walls are toned down mahogany. The 10 1/2 x 14 room is in the southeast corner of the house. Furniture is walnut with large sliding panel door closet. Parquet flooring is blond oak. The southeast corner window is stationary. Windows on the south and east walls open in opposite directions to provide ample ventilation. Windows are casement for year round service. Drapes are pink with metallic thread.

Three-year-old Jeffrey and 14-month-old Patricia have their bedroom painted robin's egg color with ivory ceilings. "All Aboard" nursery pattern drapes hang over the stationary southwest corner windows and others on the south and west. On the walls are nursery cutouts. Closet and flooring is the same as in the master room.

Basement hallway is painted sierra green. The north room is the entire width of the house. The room serves as both a utility room and fruit room. Here is the furnace, hot water heater and softener and automatic washer. It measures 13 x 24. Asphalt tile in gray, black, cream and coral is laid in the entire basement except the north room. The small bathroom is trimmed in yellow.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Peterson and 11-month-old Gary occupy the completely finished apartment in the basement. Living room and kitchen are

Lightning Deaths Hard to Identify in Livestock

Lightning deaths in a livestock here are not always easy to identify, according to a report from the American Foundation for Animal Health.

Lightning stroke usually is a "quick" killer, but the report says blackleg, anthrax and certain types of poisoning can kill livestock overnight, too.

Because of the possibility of an animal's death having been caused by something other than lightning it is usually best to get a veterinarian to diagnose any death of a mysterious nature.

The Foundation adds that the untrained person may jump to a wrong conclusion if he rules out disease or poisoning as a cause of sudden death.

The dead animal should be checked for bits of evidence that point to lightning-cause deaths, but at the same time a complete examination should be made for signs of disease or poison. The task of determining cause of death is often very complex, the Foundation says.

Lightning stroke is not usually fatal. While a direct hit usually kills instantly, in cases where the animal did not get the full force of the strike it may be left deaf, blind, dazed or partly paralyzed.

Injured animals often recover, the Foundation says, but severe nerve injury will result in permanent blindness, deafness or paralysis.

New Designs in Wallpaper Win Favor

The wallpaper bought last year, according to the Wallpaper Council, would stretch around the world at the equator over 25 times.

The reasons for wallpaper's increasing popularity are not hard to come by. Machine-print manufacturers have made available a whole new line of smart new wall papers that offer the finest quality at prices to fit the most modest purse.

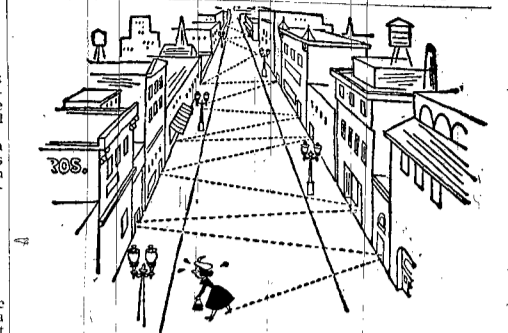

To meet the greatest possible range of individual taste, the new papers present designs to suit both traditional and contemporary backgrounds; a full scope of new colors from palest pastels to the strong, clear, vibrant hues; and, for good measure, top-notch techniques not only in design but in the function and application of the product.

Trends in color are definitely in the direction of the clean, light colors and tones, the blues and turquoise, the pinks and reds, and the clearest greens. In the monochromes, there's a new trend to the cleanest of grays and away from the beiges and browns of seasons past.

There are notable additions in the scrubable, plastic impregnated and plastic coated presentations as well as the pre-trimmed and pre-pasted varieties that aid in easy hanging.

The latter make hanging wallpaper yourself entirely feasible for the home-owner who wants to do a smart looking redecorating job on a very modest budget. This project is neither difficult, messy or unduly time-consuming.

Curtains Cover Frame
Curtains look best when they cover the whole window frame.

Fasten hangers at the very corner, using screws, not nails, in order not to split the wood.
