City Librarian Mrs. F. A. Milder

Did you bring your vacation back home in photographs? If some of your pictures didn't turn out well, or if you wish you had taken more of them, why not borrow some from the library?

Spend a pleasant evening taking your vacation all over again by seeing the pictures. In this same connection we have a new travel atlas, "The Pictorial Travel Atlas of Scenic America."

We have a new set of books which will be used by students a great deal next winter. Now and then an adult may wish to consult one of them also. "Masterplots" in four volumes gives a short synopsis of all the important books ever written.

For many years Conrad Richter has written dramatic stories of life in early America, especially the West. His best known book is probably "The Sea of Grass," but he also wrote a trilogy which he called "The Trees," "The Town," and "The Fields."

Treasury Funds Almost Gone; Herrington Cites Tax Need

Lincoln—State Tax Commissioner Fred Herrington has taken a long look at the Nebraska treasury. And he came up with a prediction. If the amount of general fund receipts which include the state property tax revenue is not increased, there could be no funds left in a few years.

By law the state can allow only a three percent cushion above the amount it figures is needed to operate during a year. The end result is that the state must have been slipping one percent yearly.

Herrington asked the state auditor's office to make a thorough study of the problem and come up with some exact figures on why there is such a low amount in the treasury.

That is, they pay the first half of their bill before the state closes its books on a fiscal year and the remainder after the closing date.

This figure, the second payment is reckoned at about 25 percent of the total levy.

Statehouse observers figure Nebraska Republicans are going to pay closer attention than ever to the agricultural problem during the election year of 1958.
