NUMBER FORTY-NINE

County Taxpayers to Reach $2,877,000 Total This Year

How much will Uncle Sam collect from residents of Wayne county in the form of personal income taxes when tax day, which is April 17 this year, rolls around?

Will it be more or less than it was last year, when local income and employment taxes added up to approximately $2,606,000?

That figure is based on income reports and on an unofficial breakdown of Treasury Department receipts from the State of Nebraska. They show that individual income taxes collected in the state came to $34,000,000 last year.

Thus, residents of Wayne county paid some 6.67 percent of the state total.

Although the nation was in a period of recession during the greater part of 1960, with incomes dropping in many areas, the county as a whole ended the year with earnings that were higher than 1959.

As a result, the Government counts on nearly $2.9 billion more in the way of personal income taxes being produced, come April 17, than was turned in a year ago. The total then was $4.9 billion.

On the basis of preliminary figures on income levels in Wayne county, the current payments are expected to come to nearly $2,877,000.

From many directions now come signs that the recession is reaching an end and that there will be an upturn before the middle of the year. The Kennedy administration generally thinks it will occur in the April-June quarter.

Such a resumption of business activity is being counted on to reduce unemployment and to boost the gross national product well over the $563 billion recorded in 1960.

A rise in personal income, which would naturally go hand-in-hand with it, would yield income taxes next year of $50.2 billion, according to the Federal budget, as compared with this year's $47.8 billion.

To keep pace with this budgetary forecast and to continue carrying their present share of tax burden, residents of Wayne county would have to attain a combined income in 1961 that is 5.0 percent greater than it was last year.

Junior High Program Shows Progress

Alice, Jayne, Sandra . . . the extra step

Editor's Note: A recent issue of The Wayne Herald carried a story about the establishment of a junior high program in the Wayne city school and of the progress it has made. Readers in the area have shown much interest in the program and how it affects their children. This story was prepared to show just one facet of the operation and how it benefits the students by giving them an extra step forward when they enter high school.

Alice Turner, Jayne Ecktenkamp and Sandra Olds, pictured above, are just three of the students who meet five times a week for hour sessions in the general science classroom and laboratory. Parents would probably be amazed to learn that these students are being presented more science information than the adults received in high school general science courses a few years ago.

William Ihm teaches this class of eighth graders, along with seventh and ninth grade science and chemistry in the senior high school. A graduate of Kearney State college, his major teaching field was science.

With the development of the junior high program, plus expanding interest in science plans have been approved and bids accepted for a complete renovation of the physical science laboratory. The equipment and furniture will arrive this summer and be installed and ready for the fall opening of school this year.

The new science room will contain eight working stations, each being shared by several students. Each station will contain gas and water outlets, plus sink. This new equipment will be set around the outside walls, thus leaving the center free for classroom chairs. The room will be used for all junior high science classes next fall along with the physics and chemistry classes.

This is just one area receiving more emphasis in the new junior high arrangement. With this more concentrated progress in the basic subjects it is felt the students in the junior high school will be more advanced than students in the past, when they enter high school as freshmen.

Twenty-eight high school pianists will perform Saturday in an annual piano clinic sponsored by the Wayne State music department.

They come from 12 high schools in District III—Finger, Norfolk, Coleridge, Randolph, Stanton, Ponca, Harrington, Dakota City, Laurel, West Point, Emerson and Wayne.

Purpose of the clinic is to give the pianists a preview performance of the selections they will play for the District III music contest at Wayne two weeks later.

James Day, WSTC instructor in piano, will give each pianist constructive criticism. He has studied at the Kansas City Conservatory of Music, the University of Kansas and the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

Free transportation and tickets are being arranged for by Wayne Shriners. Wayne City school will furnish one bus but contributions are needed in order to charter added transportation for the other youngsters.

Shriners, clubs, lodges, businesses or individuals who may wish to make donations toward an additional bus are asked to leave them at either the State National or First National Bank, Wayne.

Wainside Shriners are also expected to send a bus. Chairman of the Blue-Bell Circus has stated that at least 35,000 kiddies will be sent to see this year's performances. Proceeds go towards helping support and maintain 17 crippled children's hospitals throughout the United States.

The board also accepted a bid of $552 for grass seed and fertilizer for the elementary school from the Coast-to-Coast store, Wayne. The breakdown is $248.40 for seed and $303.60 for fertilizer. The seed is known as an athletic field blend that will stand up under hard use such as on a playground.

In school board action Monday, a bid of $5,363.15 was accepted from the Stephenson School Supply Co., Omaha, for new science room furniture. More on the science expansion can be found in the junior high story on this page.

The board also accepted a bid of $552 for grass seed and fertilizer for the elementary school from the Coast-to-Coast store, Wayne. The breakdown is $248.40 for seed and $303.60 for fertilizer. The seed is known as an athletic field blend that will stand up under hard use such as on a playground.

In other discussion, the board asked Supt. Westergard to contact the architects concerned with the elementary school on a drainage problem on the new school grounds.

The application of JoAnn Jucker as teacher for girls' physical and junior high science was accepted. Her salary will be $4,200.

The board accepted the resignation of Buford Jones, commercial instructor. Jones has accepted a position at Lincoln High School.

The vacation and school schedule for 1961-62 was also adopted. The school term will start Sept. 5 and end May 25.

Next year school officials plan to go to the nine-week quarter grading period in the junior and senior high schools instead of the present six-week grading. The nine-week system is being used in the elementary grades, along with the parent-teacher conferences and appears to be working out satisfactorily. Plans also call for the parent-teacher conferences to be used in high school next year.

Although no contract has been let, the board approved the hiring of a full-time guidance counselor for the school.

A native of Mason City, Ia., he has taught swimming at the Mason City YMCA and County Club the last four summers. He received a grant in aid to the University of Nebraska and has been a varsity swimmer the last three years.

Gary Tuttle, present head football coach and math instructor at the Wakefield schools, has accepted a contract to teach mathematics in the Omaha school system next year. Tuttle, a WSTC graduate, is a Laurel native.

Bethany Choir to Give Concert at Wakefield

Measles Cancel Girl Scout Show

The Wayne Girl Scout Silver Star show has become a victim of the measles. The show, scheduled Friday at the city auditorium, has been cancelled because of the communicable diseases prevalent in Wayne.

The snow was to include special acts of Girls Scouts and Brownies. Measles have taken their toll particularly among the children of elementary school age as families of five and six have been reported all down with the disease.

Janice Olson, daughter of Mrs. Martha Olson, Wakefield, is a member of the vocal group.

Another sidelight to the church's appearance in Wakefield is that the president of Bethany College is Dr. Dile Lund, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lund, also of Wakefield.

The concert will begin at the church at 8:00 p.m.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

It is the duty of an editorial writer to search all available facts before he sits down to write. From this basis the writer should be able to give a clear picture of important topics.

A New Type Robin Hood

Mention the constantly growing Federal budget to any ordinary gathering and the response is usually one of regret that defense spending makes this situation necessary.

The fact is that this simply isn't true. Defense spending is up in some aspects of course, but the Defense Department has actually made a drastic cutback in civilian employees. By contrast, Sen. Harry Byrd has reported on costs of many non-defense activities borne by Federal agencies and his figures are staggering. For instance, civilian personnel in the executive branch of the Federal government reached an all-time high of 2.4 million persons on payroll last year, after a steady climb for six years. Their payroll is a tidy $1 billion a month. Which agencies are these? Mostly those which have to do with the expanding welfare programs, both here and abroad.

Government is growing faster than private business. When government is growing faster than private business we know that we are getting deeper and deeper into socialist government. There is an old saying that one should 'not look a gift horse in the mouth.' The reason being, of course, that the old nag might not have any teeth. Under the banner of the New Frontier, the people of this country are being told that 'cradle-to-grave' is no longer a phrase that many use, but a dream that can come true.

We hate to pull a cloud over this pretty picture, but we did think that you should know Uncle Sam ain't no Santa Claus. He is really a new type Robin Hood. He takes from the rich and poor alike and keeps the dough himself.

We ask forgiveness for minor sins, but overlook the major ones.

Inconsiderate is a long and ugly word, usually shouted by those who never did give others consideration.

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

The Overload

Third District Congressman Ralph Beermann has received some fire from around the state on his vote against the "unemployment" bill, H.R. 4806, which has been signed into law by the President.

A release from his office said that Beermann's thinking on the bill was that it will tax states that have been prudent in their administration of unemployment problems to help those who haven't been.

Nebraska employers will be asked to pay more than 10 times as much in taxes as the unemployed can receive in benefits. The extra $1 billion in added taxes, said Beermann, can actually hinder employment since it places an added tax load on employers.

A table offered by Beermann showing the expected tax collections against expected benefits lists Nebraska as paying out $5.2 million and receiving back about $500,000.

Michigan, New York, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania are five states to benefit greatly under the new law.

Michigan will pay in $46.6 million, receive $93 million; New York will pay in $119.9 million, receive $170 million; New Jersey will pay in $39.7 million, receive $51.12 million; Ohio will pay in $62.4 million, receive $85 million; and Pennsylvania will pay in $70.7 million and receive $82 million.

It seems Beermann's "NO" vote was one of the few actually considering the already overloaded employer who is more than glad to keep employees on the payroll, providing most of his profit isn't being funneled into more and more taxes.

It makes you stop and wonder what decision employers in states such as Nebraska will reach regarding the number of people they employ when they must pay more taxes but do not receive the high prices common in the metropolitan areas.

would contain a colored photograph of the holder. Instead of renewing every other Sept. 1, the renewal date would be the birthday of the holder every two years.

Another new approach is having the state issue the actual license. Counties, which now issue them, would take the photo at the time of application and issue a temporary permit.

After checking driving records of applicants, the state would either issue or refuse to issue the two-year license. Incidentally, the cost is up — from $2 to $2.50.

Main argument for the picture on the license is that it will provide positive identification of the driver, and eliminate the possibility of forgeries or counterfeit licenses.

School Lands

A Legislative Council interim study on the method of leasing the 1.6 million acres of school lands in the state is almost assured.

Twenty-five of the 43 state senators have signed a resolution asking for the probe into the present manner of leasing the lands. The resolution is the aftermath of an unsuccessful attempt to authorize the sale of the school lands.

Any recommendations of the study committee would be presented to the 1963 Legislature.

Budget Committee

The Legislature's Budget committee has scheduled April 17-18 as the time the University of Nebraska will present its 1961-63 budget request at public hearing. Gov. Frank Morrison has recommended that the University be allowed $30.1 million in tax money compared to the current allocation of $25 million.

Those same two days will also be busy ones for the Public Works committee.

This committee has scheduled six highly controversial public power bills to be heard then, including a proposal to create a State Public Power commission.

Color Photos

A sweeping change in drivers' licenses is in progress in Nebraska.

The Legislature already has given initial approval to the new method and the consensus is that final approval is certain.

Under LB 349, each license will be brighter.

This atmosphere is not new to veteran newsmen covering the Legislature. It happens every session — at least twice. The next time it will crop up — as sure as the sun rises in the east — is near adjournment time.

This is the time of year when the weather outside is pleasant. Inside the sun never fails to heat the chambers to uncomfortable temperatures. Temperatures rise along with temperatures and the anxiety of the members to hurry up and wind up business and adjourn is very noticeable.

A diagonal has been suggested as a possible compromise but predictions among several of the leading senators are that opponents to the east-west committee plan are not strong enough to swing it.

Quite a bit of behind-the-scenes work has been going on by both sides to gain support for their own plans.

Lawmakers Back

Nebraska lawmakers are back at their desks following a much-needed five-day Easter recess.

The recess didn't come any too soon, either. All of the pressures and problems building up the first three months of the session began to show.

Temperers were short, committees began killing bills right and left and other threats were leveled against attempts to kill other bills such as LB 208, the bill to increase the state park levy to 30 mill.

The park bill was supposed to be up for final reading last Thursday, the day of adjournment for the Easter recess. But its main introducer, Sen. George Syas, Omaha, spotted the dark mood of the lawmakers and successfully maneuvered to hold it over until after the recess.

By then, he reasoned, most would be refreshed and moods would be brighter.

These same two days will also be busy ones for the Public Works committee.

This committee has scheduled six highly controversial public power bills to be heard then, including a proposal to create a State Public Power commission.

rather serious breathing.

When Lord Mountbatten expressed the idea that Britain should not accept and were to be allowed to remain outside the pale of universal disarmament we could well be in for a heap of trouble. When he said that unless some understanding were reached in this case, it was his feeling that the world would have only 25 years ahead of it before everything was blown to smithereens, he made me to say the least, a bit apprehensive. Of course I know his thinking is predicated largely on whether or not every nation in the world disarms or at least bans all nuclear devices, but you know his reasoning isn't too vague. You will have to admit we must reach some universal agreement. Now I also know I won't be around 25 years from now, and neither will a lot of you folks, but that doesn't give me or you the right to shrug off the responsibility for future happenings. They say "indsight is much better than foresight" and looking back on the development of the potentialities of nuclear warfare I can't help but think how true this is.

Don't know how you feel, but I, for one, could have gotten along very nicely without the atom ever having been smashed. Most certainly I could have been happy in just knowing that hydrogen was one of the component parts of water and just let 'er go at that. It hasn't done me a darned bit of good or given me any satisfaction or peace of mind to know these scientists have found a way not only to destroy our enemies, but that they have also opened the way for our enemies to destroy us.

Since I know we wouldn't have progressed the way we have in this old world had it not been for new scientific discoveries. On the other hand, if our main objective is to turn these scientific discoveries into paths of destruction instead of into the way of construction, then the question arises, have they done us any good? Doesn't the Bible say "a man really loves his work a kick out of it, and is eager to get down to his job in the morning, he will never make a mark for himself." If a man in love with one's job is the secret of success.

It was in a large amusement park where a man set up a flagpole and advertised he was going to stay to one of that pole from the middle of May until Labor Day. It was only 15 days later when he came down. Now even a good flagpole seller must have his heart in his work.

Luther Burbank fell in love with plants, Ford fell in love with motor cars, Edison fell in love with invention, Kettering fell in love with research, John D. Rockefeller fell in love with oil, the Wright brothers fell in love with airplanes. Sometimes it is said truly, "Be careful what you set your heart on it will surely come true." The men who turned their hearts to mighty tasks often see their dreams become realities. The Son of God might say that men could move mountains if they had the faith.

Work is not drudgery, but labor to a man who loves his work. It is inspiration and the hours singing a song of achievement. Life becomes worth living. How blessed is the man who loves his work and through that love uses his mountain-moving spirit for the betterment of himself and his fellow man. To a man like this means successful living.

As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." Wreckless thinking leads to spiritual, mental and physical poverty. Correct and right thinking leads to greater wealth than mountains of gold. More enduring than diamonds and turns one's daily tasks into a life's work.

Actually one's mind is a living hotel with many rooms. Guests are the guests that are determined to register and occupy the "living quarters" of the brain. One cannot be too careful as to the kind of guests he entertains there, for while many good thoughts are standing in line to get in, there are also such destructive characters as pride, hatred and apathy, who are willing to even take a small room interior room without any discriminating windows, in order that they may bed down for all time, causing the hotel management innumerable difficulties.

If you do not like your environment, then you are enjoying the same kind of union that the bats have with their tails tied together, hanging over a clothes line. There is lots of activity in this situation but very little advancement. Find yourself and start a labor in which you can truly "throw your heart over the tail." You'll find the man you want to be. You'll discover that you can be what you want to be by being very particular as to the "thought-guests" you let in to your mind.

The conclusions of this study were simply that in the case of cereal crops which are not cross-pollinated, the variety does not "run out" but is attacked by new diseases or new rates of old diseases.

Feeders Day Apr. 30

Annual University of Nebraska Feeders Day will be held Apr. 30 on the College of Agriculture campus.

Calfhood Vaccination

Calfhood vaccination is an important aid in maintaining modified certified Brucellosis-free counties.

Wayne is one of 49 Nebraska counties that have been declared modified certified Brucellosis-free areas.

Modified certified Brucellosis-free areas are those counties where not more than one percent of the cattle, or not more than five percent of the herds, showed infection when they were last tested.

In all modified certified counties cattle owners are eligible to participate in the program at state-federal expense. All owners have to do is to call their veterinarian to vaccinate all heifer calves that will be kept or sold for breeding purposes. These heifers must be vaccinated between the ages of four to eight months.

In order to facilitate the work it is necessary that owners cooperate fully with their veternarian. He is much too busy to make special trips to vaccinate small numbers of calves.

Conservation Workshops

A number of teacher conservation workshops will be held around the state this year according to a University of Nebraska Extension Conservationist. Harold Gilman said the workshops will be worth three hours of college credit.

"Some scholarships will also be available for the sessions," he said. Information on the workshops will be available at local soil and water conservation district supervisors offices.

One of these workshops will be conducted at WSTC Aug. 12.

For more information about the workshop, contact the extension workshop, the Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation committee.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR

Spring ain't arrived real good before we got troubles. The fellers at the country store Saturday night was agreed that April is gitting to be the most aggravating month in the year.

First off, Ed warned everybody to be on the lookout for the annual Spring cleaning. Ed says that in one day a feller's old lady can clean up around the place in such a manner as to set the household back a whole year.

Some of the fellers was in favor of a law making Spring cleaning illegal, unlawful, and a public felony.

And Charlie reported he'd saw in the papers where one school has already named their commencement speaker. This was received as mighty bad news on account of it has took most of us all Summer and Winter to git over some of the Commencement speeches we read in the papers last Spring. Clem claims it'd be a help buster for the graduates if they'd git turned out a couple hours earlier so they could git a running start in life. They ain't got a second to lose in adjusting themselves to a country where a plumber's helper makes more money than the school principal, where prices is so high they'll probably have to wear their caps and gowns to work, and where the only blessing of finishing one war is to git ready for the next one.

And when the Government set April aside for the Revenue folks it just about put the stopper in the jug. Howard lowed as how it used to be a feller could do a little twisting and turning with them income tax forms but now, claims Howard, if you do more twisting than adding, you got to send the records along for proof. This'll be bad for Howard

DEAR THE CLASSIFIED ADS

Why do you trust this man to feed your family?

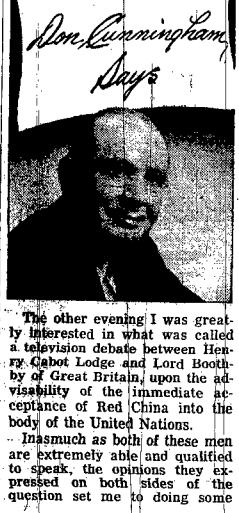

HAVE you ever realized that the most precious thing you buy every day is food? Probably not. Yet your own family's health and well-being depend largely on the quality of food you buy. Your food store dealer never forgets this fact. That's why he's as careful of the food he offers you as he is with the food he takes home to his own family.

While experience has taught you to rely on him for the best—most wholesome—foods, you likely take for granted his constant check for quality...his investment in new and better foods...and that he brings all of this to you at a price you know is right.

And how rewarding for you if your favorite food store gives you S&H Green Stamps.
