

Rural School Children to Meet for Conservation Day

The annual Rural School Conservation program, sponsored by the Lezak Walton League and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, will be held Monday at the Wayne auditorium.

Schools are presently being judged on their outdoor projects and will present their other projects, skits and displays Monday. Prizes for the projects will be awarded in the afternoon.

At 2 p.m. all rural schools will participate in the Rural School Music Festival.

Each year the conservation program is sponsored by the Lezak Walton League to promote conservation among school age children. Different projects, such as wildlife protection, planting and natural conservation, are taken on by children of the rural schools. They learn what different phases of conservation can mean to themselves, their country and their state through this work.

The conservation program recognizes the work the students have done throughout the year.

Records Fall to Tracksters At Midland, Kearney Meets

Wayne State tracksters have assaulted school records in the past week.

Dave Kracl, Schuyler, heaved the shot put 47.3 at the Midland Relays for his second record-breaking performance of the year. The previous week at Vermillion, S. D. he had crased Rolfe Knapp's two-year-old mark of 47.4.

Also at the Midland event, Wayne's sprint medley team zipped for a 4:30 minute, well below the 3:28.9 former record. Members of the team were Gary Roberson, Dwaine Strashem, Fred Fetrow and Don Weitzenkamp.

Both of these performances were also meet records.

Another Wayne relay team posted a new school record Saturday in the All-Nebraska Relays at Kearney. The distance medley team ran in 11:01.5, to cut half a second from a mark set back in 1949. The team: Roberson, Bob Gemmill, Dean Kirck and Weitzenkamp.

The Wildcat sprint medley team also won at the Kearney meet, clocking 3:42.5.

Other Wayne placings at Kearney were Kracl, second in shot put; Dennis Smith third and Tom Katsis fourth in javelin; Bob Schroeder, tied for fourth in high jump; mile relay, third; 880 relay and two-mile relay, fourth; 440 relay, fifth.

Top performance of the meet was a tremendous javelin throw of 207.6 by Kearney's Chuck Bolton—14 feet over his own meet mark. The best javelin throw by a Wayne performer in recent years was the 188 by Keith Towns last year.

A fourth school record fell Tuesday in Wayne's dual with SDU when Dennis Smith heaved the javelin 188.7, two inches over the old record.

Wildcats Post 3-1 Mark in Baseball

A pair of wins over Kearney State here Monday lifted Wayne State's baseball team to a 3-1 record in the Nebraska College conference.

The Wildcats spotted Kearney its only two runs in the opener before a five-run assault in the fourth inning and adding two more in the fifth. The winners hit seven times, including three by Bob Schintzler, while Kearney collected six hits.

Ken Hutchinson was the winning pitcher, Bill Slott the loser.

Wayne scored 10 runs in the nightcap—five of them in the sixth inning—before the Antelopes crossed the plate for their lone tally. The Cats capitalized on erratic Kearney fielding while hitting six times. Kearney got five hits.

Keith Krommenhoek hurled six innings to earn his win before first baseman Ron Raver took the mound in the seventh. Kirk Arterburn was the loser.

Golfers Win But Netmen Drop Meet

Wayne State's golf and tennis teams launched the 1961 season at home against Midland Tuesday. The Wayne golfers won, 8½ to 6½, while Midland's netmen scored a 7-0 sweep.

Skip Muller, Wayne, and Darrel Murphy, Midland, shared golf medalist honors, tying with 76 scores in their match.

Dean Finke, Midland, beat Skooter Mahler, 81 to 85. Darrel Fugelberth, Wayne, defeated Ron Watson, 79-85. John Fugelberth, Wayne, defeated Serge Castigliano, 81-88. Ken Dahl, Wayne, and Bob Wobken, Midland, tied at 85 strokes each, but Wobken outscored Dahl on points, 2-1.

In Midland's tennis sweep, Dick Johnson defeated Robbie Myers, 6-4 and 6-2. Jim Flynn beat John Bernthal, 6-0, 6-2. Norm Schock blanked Ted Klopp, 6-0, 6-0. Fred Condos defeated Mike Perry, 6-2, 6-2. Roland Munro defeated Phil Houser, 6-0, 6-0.

Midland's doubles team of Johnson-Flynn defeated Myers-Bernthal, 6-0, 6-2. Schock-Condos defeated Klopp-Perry, 6-0, 6-1.

Dana's golf team comes to Wayne this (Thursday) afternoon while Wayne tennisists play at Dana. Both the golf and tennis teams will play Nebraska Wesleyan Monday at Lincoln.

WSTC Drops Duel Meet With SDU

South Dakota U. on a 10-pointed Wayne State, 75 to 56, Tuesday in a dual track meet at Vermillion. The Coyotes won 9 of 14 events.

Wayne's Don Weitzenkamp won the mile in 4:30.1, his best time of the season, and the two-mile in 10:24.6. With a second in the 880 run he carried the most points of any performer.

Other Wayne winners: Dave Kracl, shot put, 47.5; Dean Hammer, mile vault, 11.6; Dennis Smith, javelin, 118.7, a new school record. The old record was 188.5.

Beverly Kern won the Easter arithmetic contest. Any child receiving an "A" grade put an Easter egg on the large Easter scene.

The third graders have been some interesting demonstrations about our earth and of the complete solar system.

Two choral readings were given this month were "The Woodpecker" and "Myself and Me."

To Nebraskans...

... a glass of beer is many things

To Nebraskans the rodeo is a symbol of their western way of life. And so is a glass of good beer. Light and refreshing it fits in with Nebraskans idea of the good life.

And beer means something more in this state. It means a growing industrial economy. Last year, for example, the brewing industry gave employment to more than 9,000 Nebraskans and paid more than $4,000,000.00 in state taxes. This money helps build new schools, parks and highways.

Beer means better living for Nebraskans.

Heat Cold Varnish

Varnish flows more smoothly when warmed. If work is being done out of doors or in unheated rooms, place can of varnish in pan of hot water. Use hot paper to keep it warm, or replace hot water.

Lumber Savings

Check to see if your dealer has a bargain section where end-pieces, mill "rejects" and similar economy-type lumber are displayed. Substantial savings can often be effected this way.

AND WHO DOESN'T? Personally, we're proud as pink paint over the honors awarded this newspaper last week by the Nebraska Press Association — first place in the state for general excellence. But every time we try to take a bow, we can't help thinking that a newspaper is more than paper and type, and that the effort for those honors began long before 1961. It takes a progressive community to build a good newspaper.

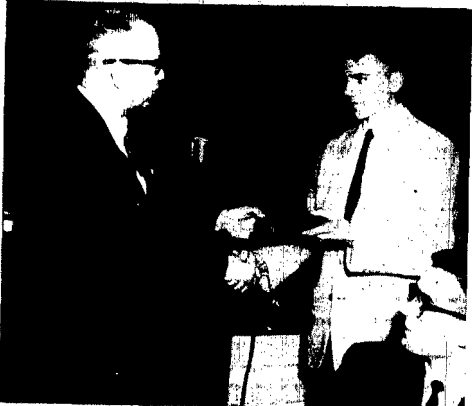

It takes people. Lots of 'em. Good, active, friendly people with pride and courage. And it takes years of sound building. Years of consistent service and accuracy, week in and week out. It is you who should blush with us.

You, the printer of years gone by. You, the farmer, who has stepped ahead in agricultural progress, who has created and used the news in the "hometown paper."

You, the merchant, who has used our columns to improve and expand business, which in turn enabled the newspaper to steadily improve.

You, the reader, who has supplied so much news. You who have year after year valued the paper enough to find it worth another renewed subscription.

Sure we like awards . . . the great big kind of a 'we' that is needed to join hands for any kind of reward.

OUTSTANDING ATHLETES named at the annual Athletic Banquet receive their awards from Don Reed, spokesman for the Wayne Jaycees. In the top picture is Marlin Lessmann, top athlete from Wayne High. Bottom picture is Orrin Lutt, top Wayne Prep athlete. Each year the athletes are chosen by a special committee of the Jaycees, after studying the boys records for their high school career. The banquet is sponsored by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce and Jaycees.

SPEAKER FOR THE Wayne Athletic Banquet, Frank Savigne, University of Nebraska head track coach, told the young people gathered last Monday that the competition for an education and in athletics is becoming much keener and to expect this when they go to college. He said this competition accounts for records being broken not only on the athletic fields but also in the classrooms. It is much harder for the person who doesn't want to do his best to stay in college now, Savigne said.

Wayne county social security beneficiaries under 72 in 1960 who earned over $1,200 last year must file an annual report of their earnings by Saturday, according to social security officials.

Any such beneficiary who has not received an annual report blank by mail should ask his social security office for one.

Earned income, whether or not it is covered by social security, counts toward the $1,200 that a beneficiary may earn without loss of benefits. Investment income, such as income from interest, stocks, bonds, etc., does not count.

Any questions should be directed to the local social security office.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

We Love 'em, but

We love 'em, but they have to be signed. In fact, we can't think of an editor who doesn't like to get letters — good, bad or indifferent. But they have to have a name on them to be printed.

Now you can say just about anything you want in such a letter, short of libel, and it will be printed, provided it is signed. Your name does not have to be used when the letter is printed in the paper, but we have to have the signed letter for our own protection.

Again, we want such letters. They show us where our readers' interests lie and often point out to us things we have missed that should have

Your may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

our attention.

We can't be everywhere at once, and situations often develop that perhaps could be resolved if it were made more widely known. A letter to the editor will let us know where perhaps a little credit of constructive criticism could be used.

Our columns are always open to such letters, along with our editorial columns, for anyone who wishes to use them.

But, please sign them!

You can tell a girl she is beautiful and promptly she gets a hairdo and facial and spoils herself for you.

Capitol News . . .

Reapportionment Slipping Behind as Bills Are Killed

The warning flag went up on chances for legislative reapportionment this session when the government committee of the Legislature killed two bills on the subject.

Lawmakers have never agreed on reapportionment of the 43 unicameral district, to get a more equal population per senator, but some observers had been hopeful senatorial pay boosts would aid the cause this time.

Killed were LB 353 which proposed a Constitutional amendment increasing the Unicameral maximum number from the current 50 to the 60-75 range, and LB 354, a proposed amendment to require redistricting every 10 years.

Two other bills given to the committee would boost the number of senators to 50 as permitted under the present Constitution, and give weight to both area and population in redistricting.

Four Year Terms
The Legislature feels the governor and lieutenant governor should have four-year terms instead of the present two-year ones.

Lawmakers passed 39-1, a bill calling for a vote in 1962 on a Constitutional amendment. Four-year terms would start with the 1966 election if voters approved the proposal at the polls.

Originally, the legislation called for the governor and lieutenant governor to run as a team. This idea had the support of Gov. Frank Morrison. But the lawmakers struck out the team provision, leaving the bill to provide only for four-year terms. Other state officials would continue on two-year terms.

The senators also approved a measure earlier that would permit the lieutenant governor to run for governor during his term as lieutenant governor. This also requires a Constitutional amendment.

Turned down was a proposal to allow other elected state officials to run for governor. Now all must wait a full term before filing.

Underground Capitol
The Legislature's Government Committee liked the idea of an underground Capitol, to be used in case of national emergency. It sent to the floor a bill authorizing spending of $190,000 to build an emergency center of government in Lincoln, about a mile north of the statehouse. Money would come from the state's institutional building fund.

Nebraska Crime
State senators have gone on record for a crime study in Nebraska that will produce recommendations to combat increased lawlessness.

The solons approved a resolution by Sen. John Munnally, Omaha. Munnally said the resolution was prompted by disquisition of a crime hike in the Omaha area.

Munnally announced he would propose a study in this field also by a committee of state senators after the Legislature adjourns.

The resolution, the Omaha lawmaker said, would serve notice that the state is interested in taking action to retard any crime wave in Nebraska.

Car Operating Costs
Yearly costs of operating a car have been calculated by the State Highway Department. State Engineer John Hossack says the average motorist spends $973 annually to own and operate an automobile. Of the total, taxes and fees account for 12 percent.

Thus, reasons Hossack, the motorist spends 9.8 cents per mile to own and operate his car, with contributions to highways of only 1.2 cents per mile.

The figures are national averages and show the normal driver buys 697 gallons of gasoline per year, contributing about $70 in gas and oil taxes to the cost of building and maintaining highways, and $15.15 in fees.

Taxes on the automobile, not earmarked for the highways, add another $31.11.

Hossack says the average state gasoline tax is 5.3 cents per gallon. This compares with seven cents for Nebraska.

What happens to the tax dollars shelled out by drivers for their share of building and maintaining the nation's highways and streets?

Hossack said 60 cents of each dollar goes for new construction, 23 cents for maintenance and repair and 17 cents is set aside for administration, police services and debt retirement.

During a year, the engineer noted, the average motorist will travel 9,669 miles. Of the total, 2,582 miles or 26 percent will be commuting to and from work. Shopping, recreational, religious or social activities will account for 5,612 miles or 58 percent and the remaining 1,764 miles or 18 percent will be for business purposes.

Capital Punishment
Backers of a bill to abolish capital punishment in Nebraska need an educational campaign. That's the belief of Sen. Edwin McHugh, Murdock, who introduced the legislation in the Legislature. His bill was killed by a 54 vote of the judiciary committee.

After a two-hour committee hearing, McHugh said he would not try to have the measure debated on the floor. The senator would have abolished the death penalty for all crimes in Nebraska except treason.

County Agent's Column

Immediate Benefits
Feed grain producers who cooperate in the feed grain program will realize one immediate benefit from the 1961 Feed Grain Bill recently enacted into legislation.

The support price for corn in most counties will be 14 cents more a bushel than it was in those counties in 1960. The national average corn price will be $1.20. This is higher than a year ago but considerably lower than the $1.50 to $2 per bushel received five to 10 years ago.

National average support prices for other feed grains are: Barley, 93c per bushel for grade No. 2 or better; grain sorghum, $1.93 per hundredweight for grade No. 2 or better; oats, 62c per bushel for grade No. 3, and rye, $1.02 per bushel for grade No. 2 or better or grading No. 3 on test weight only.

In announcing the new rates for feed grains, Secretary Freeman said the new feed grain program signed into law by the President "gives an opportunity to move toward a better relationship between feed grain supplies and utilization. This also permits an increase in support prices from past years to help boost farm income in the important feed grain sector of our agricultural economy."

Farmers, however, in return for increased support levels are being asked to reduce their 1961 acreages of corn and grain sorghum from last year in an effort to bring production more nearly in line with needs. Early indications of corn plantings for 1961 show acreage down only slightly from 1960.

Consider Long Time Effect
Farmers should think of future results as well as their present situation when they decide whether or not to participate in the new feed grain program. The sign-up for this program is expected to start next week.

Everett E. Peterson, Extension farm economist at the University of Nebraska, emphasizes that factors other than immediate income may be just as important as the present situation.

One of these factors, according to Peterson, is the possible effect such a program could have on the present huge feed grain surplus. He points out that the Government-owned stocks of these grains are so large that at the current rate of disposal, it would take CCG nine years to move them into use on a first-in, first-out rotation basis.

He says USDA economists estimate that if enough farmers participate in the new program, this surplus could be reduced substantially in just one year. Also, this year's program could lay the groundwork for additional reductions of the surplus in the future.

Another consideration is the amount of taxpayers' money that would be saved on the storage of this surplus. Commodity Stabilization Service estimates that the new program would result in a savings of from $400 to $600 million in storage costs on the 1961 crops.

Certified Seed Handbook
The new 1961 Nebraska Certified Seed Handbook and applications for field inspection are now available at the county Extension office.

This new handbook contains the general rules and regulations governing certification of field seeds as well as the specific field and seed standards for each crop, that is certified in Nebraska.

Certified seed growers are asked to submit applications for field inspection for certification by May 20 on oats, barley, bromegrass, sweet clover and first crop alfalfa. Application blanks are available at the county Extension office. Certified seed growers should clear their applications through the county Extension office in order that a local record may be available as to who is growing certified seed of the various crop varieties.

Thinking OUT LOUD

THE WORTH OF THE INDIVIDUAL

Rev. S. K. de Friesse, Redeemer Lutheran Church

How often have you heard someone remark, "I don't count; I'm only one person." Sometimes we are inclined to think we do not count as individuals. How many times have you had this thought when you went to the polls to vote? Have you ever checked to see if one vote made a difference? One vote made Texas as to the United States; one vote made California a part of the union. One vote settled who would be governor in two cases. One vote in the electoral college decided who would be president of the United States.

In the field of politics, your religion, you do count. The gospel of Christianity and Democracy emphasizes the worth of the individual. If we are honest to goodness thinking we will do some honest to goodness thinking for the gospel of human worth. There is a point in the following words of verse:

Ten little Christians standing in a line,
One disliked the preacher; then there were nine.
Nine little Christians stayed out very late,
One slept Sunday morning; then there were eight.
Eight little Christians on the road to heaven,
One took the lower road; then there were seven.
Seven little Christians got into a fix,
One disliked the music; then there were six.
Six little Christians very much alive,
One lost her interest; then there were five.
Five little Christians, wishing there were more,
But they soon quarreled; then there were four.
Four little Christians, cheerful as could be,
One lost his temper; then there were three.
Three little Christians knew not what to do,
One joined the sporty crowd; then there were two.
Two little Christians; our rhyme ended nearly done,
Differed with each other; then there was one.
(But the one considered his worth as a true Christian.)
One lone Christian won his neighbor true,
Brought him to the church; then there were two.
Two earnest Christians each won one more,
That doubled their number; then there were four.
Four sincere Christians worked very late,
But each won another; then there were eight.
Eight splendid Christians, but nothing rhymes with sixteen,
So we simply note that in four more times.

There would be one thousand forty-two, which would be quite a church full.
One individual giving his best can do much. The result of Christianity reveals Jesus taking a scale and on one side He placed all the world's goods. On the other side He placed just a single man. The scale moved. Which way did it move? A single man and his precious soul outweighed the world's goods. One human soul is worth more than the universe.
Remember this when you think "You do not count!"

much faith in their program for national prayer. I am confident that people devoting too much time to a point of order. Either the preacher or the church would be out of order during most of the service.

I was reading a magazine piece last night praising Secretary of State Acheson for being a small town boy that made good in the big city. I think the kind of things is overdone. Minister Editor, I can't see where it's any harder for a man to make good in a big city. The true test of a feller is whether or not he can make good in the small town where everybody is watching him, and maybe has already put two strikes on him on account of them knowing his grandpa was a horse thief and his Pa used to put brass wedges in the collection plate. In this community, for instance, a fellow has to make good with all the family skeletons bring out of the closet and set on the front porch.

Speaking of the State Department, I see where some fellow in that office is complaining that 95 percent of the nation's secret information has already been published by our newspapers. That puts me to wondering what happened to the other five percent. I reckon them Tass newspaper men from Russia that we allow to operate here were unhampered got that. In short, our newspaper folks has been scooped on five percent. That is bad.

And I see where this column writer from New York says this summer their short men will start wearing knee pants for ease and comfort. They been trying to put that one over for several years now. I just can't believe that men will come to that had stated. However, I ain't certain as a matter of fact, I think men has been getting sissier ever since they quit striking matches on the seat of their pants. That was the peak of manhood in this country and ever since we've had a decline. But the saddest thing I read in the papers all week was about this fellow 104 year old starting out hitch-hiking looking for his relatives. I can't understand why a feller that has got along without kinfolks so long starts out looking for trouble in the twilight of his career.

Yours truly,
Uncle Zeke

You know along the last of April or the first of May, when the days were really balmy, my wife would get sort of a speculative gleam in her eye, (always on a day when you wanted to do something else) and venture the opinion that it was a fine day to get the storm windows off and the screens on. Right then I could always think of several different things that I wanted to do on that particular day; anyway we were going to have a lot of nice weather, and there really wasn't any hurry.

A fellow could generally get by the first spell, and it gave him sort of an inner glow of satisfaction, to know that he had won at least the first round. Everything would be pretty peaceful and quiet for a spell, but you knew that sooner or later you were in for another tussle. So you weren't a bit surprised when the second suggestion was made, but meantime you had been laying out a plan of strategic action, and while this second round was a bit faster, add you had to fall into a clinch a time or two, you eventually weathered it, and went into another rest period.

won a partial victory, if you were lucky enough to out-talk her about taking the one or two that you had "overbooked" of again and re-doing the job.

Well, you shrugged it off with a "Nothing ventured, nothing gained," philosophy, and proceeded from there on to walk the straight and narrow. Eventually it was done; "Geeze you hadn't won all of the battle, but at the same time you hadn't lost every vestige of your manly prerogatives. Those first two rounds you won, plus the few windows you had managed to slip over without cleaning, had salvaged some small measure of your self respect.

5 Hours... Not 3 Months

Twenty years ago, it took an average of 3 months' wages to pay the hospital bills resulting from a case of pneumonia. Today, a case of pneumonia is usually cured at home — with drugs that cost an average of only 5 hours' wages. That's one of the many facts that prove — today's prescription drugs are the biggest bargain in history! When your Doctor prescribes, see our Pharmacist for

A rush of power — in the hush of luxury

Just toe the pedal and off you go. Instantly. Without strain. Swift as a bird. And as the miles fly by, suddenly you sense the luxurious silence of Buick's great new Wildcat V-8. Realize it whispers as softly at expressway speed as it does at 30. Because it's been streamlined—inside and out—to give you more go (but not less gas!). And it's teamed up with a new, trigger-quick Turbine Drive (at no extra cost!) that's smoother and quieter than ever.

But Buick pampers you in other ways, too. With lavish room for heads, shoulders and legs. Wider doors and flatter floors. Deeper, softer seats. Body by Fisher. The elegant Clean Look of Action. Sound like your type? See your Buick Dealer today.

Ten Tips For Color Styling The Kitchen

Here are 10 tips from color styling consultant Beatrice West to help you plan attractive color styling for your kitchen:

TIP NO. 1 — Key your kitchen colors to adjoining rooms

If you want a spacious effect, blend your kitchen colors with those in adjoining areas. The results are especially dramatic in newer homes where a counter, open shelf or other partial divider is the only separation between the kitchen and the next room.

One easy way to blend two adjoining rooms is to use the prime color of one as the accent color in the other. For example, if the dining area next to the kitchen uses lots of yellow, you might select a kitchen color scheme with yellow accents.

TIP NO. 2 — Have a complete color plan in mind

It's best to have a complete color plan in mind, even if you don't expect to use all of it immediately. Colors, especially blues and greens, are influenced by other colors

COORDINATED ATMOSPHERE is created in this homey den by walls and ceiling of knotty ponderosa pine and four-paneled door of Douglas fir. Recessed cabinets provide good storage capacity without taking space from room. Broad carpet adds color.

NEW LOW INTEREST RATE on Land Bank Loans

Land Bank Loans are now being made at a new lower rate of interest... and, in accordance with Land Bank Policy, interest on loans made previously at a higher rate is also being reduced.

TIP NO. 3 — Get expert help in planning kitchen color schemes

Color is a complex subject. You are wise to get all of the expert help you can in color styling your kitchen. Advice is available from many sources. You may want to call on a kitchen planner (an interior decorator who specializes in kitchens) or you can get assistance from department stores, utilities, appliance dealers or builders.

TIP NO. 4 — Select permanent colors first

Some things in your kitchen are there to stay; they probably won't be replaced for many, many years.

TIP NO. 5 — Use neutral colors for permanent features

Soft neutral colors are best for the permanent features of your kitchen. A bright, dramatic color can get tiring, and there's nothing worse than being "stuck" with it, because it can't be changed easily.

TIP NO. 6 — Remember that size affects color impact

A color on a small accent fabric may give a certain effect, but it will have a completely different impact if it covers a large surface area such as the floor. So it isn't enough to simply select a color; the size of the area should also be considered.

TIP NO. 7 — Match colors exactly

The average person with normal color perception can detect over 10 million different colors. So slight variations are likely to be noticed. If kitchen features are supposed to match, it's important that they are exactly the same color.

TIP NO. 8 — Limit patterns to one (or at most two) areas

Too many patterns clash and have a busy effect that can ruin a color scheme. That's so well-known that it seems unnecessary to repeat it.

TIP NO. 9 — Use color to give better lighting

Color can be used to influence lighting in your kitchen. For example, countertops in light colors will reflect overhead lighting and increase the brightness of your kitchen.

TIP NO. 10 — Use color to change apparent size

Color can create effects that seem to change the size of your kitchen, or the size of the things in the kitchen.

TIP NO. 11 — Match colors exactly

The average person with normal color perception can detect over 10 million different colors. So slight variations are likely to be noticed. If kitchen features are supposed to match, it's important that they are exactly the same color.

TIP NO. 12 — Limit patterns to one (or at most two) areas

Too many patterns clash and have a busy effect that can ruin a color scheme. That's so well-known that it seems unnecessary to repeat it.

TIP NO. 13 — Use color to give better lighting

Color can be used to influence lighting in your kitchen. For example, countertops in light colors will reflect overhead lighting and increase the brightness of your kitchen.

TIP NO. 18 — Use color to change apparent size

Color can create effects that seem to change the size of your kitchen, or the size of the things in the kitchen.

Cabinets and countertops fall into this group.

Other things may be changed occasionally, but they're still rather permanent. These would include floor coverings and appliances.

Wallpaper, paint, accessories and similar items may be replaced or changed every few years.

In planning your kitchen color scheme, it's only logical to start with the most permanent features, the ones you'll have to live with the longest. Select colors for such items as countertops first, then build the color scheme around them.

TIP NO. 5 — Use neutral colors for permanent features

Soft neutral colors are best for the permanent features of your kitchen. A bright, dramatic color can get tiring, and there's nothing worse than being "stuck" with it, because it can't be changed easily.

How To Reduce Operating Costs Of Cooling Systems

Want to cut down electric bills that rise every summer because your air conditioner units are continuously operating?

Here are several ways you can get the best performance out of your cooling system at the lowest possible operating cost:

1. Keep shades or venetian blinds pulled to prevent sun's rays from pouring into the house.

2. Keep windows and outside doors closed to curb cool air from escaping from the house.

3. Keep storm windows in top position warm outside air from coming into the house.

4. On cool nights, turn off air conditioning units and open windows.

5. When landscaping, arrange tree plantings to keep house cool by shading it from sun's rays.

6. When re-roofing, choose a light colored roofing material. This will reflect heat from penetrating the house.

7. Weather-strip around outside doors and windows to prevent cool air from "leaking" from the house.

8. Have automatic clothes dryer vented to the outdoors; the discharge of moisture into the indoor air makes the air conditioner work overtime.

9. When cooking on a hot day, use the kitchen ventilating fan. A range with all burners going releases much heat in to the house.

10. Have filters in air conditioning units cleaned periodically. Dirty ones reduce the amount of air that can move through the unit.

11. Do your ironing on a cool day or late in the evening when the cooling system has the reserve capacity to remove this extra heat without difficulty.

12. Pick the coolest part of the day to mop floors, wash furniture or perform other chores that require water. As wet surfaces dry, moisture is released into the air to cause unnecessary discomfort.

Wood Useful In Dressing Up Yard

There have been many new wrinkles in outdoor accessories since the standard summer house with its latticed sides and center table was all the rage. The urge for informal outdoor entertaining now means barbecue pits, outdoor activity centers, indoor-outdoor gardens, and semi-permanent installations for outdoor serving.

The possibilities for these semi-permanent projects in most any yard are virtually endless. Sunshades offering protection from the elements — and a decorative flavor too — are highly practical and lend themselves to design ingenuity on the part of the homeowner. They can be vertical or horizontal, or overhead, depending upon the kind of protection or decorative effect needed.

Fences can be made to perform a dozen different useful functions — from wind shield to privacy insurance. Other possible projects include such useful articles as cross-legged picnic tables, benches, lawn chairs, lounges and specially designed "outdoor living kits" allowing safe put-of-door storage for utensils and tools used in such living.

Most of these can be built in home workshops. Your local retail lumber dealer can be most helpful, both in working out ideas and in selecting the materials to be used in them.

Because of their fine workability, sturdiness, and — when properly treated — long life, the woods of the Western Pine region are popular for outdoor projects. Long life for any species of wood can be insured by treating all parts of posts and boards under or in contact with the ground, as well as exposed post and board ends. A pentachlorophenol preservative is recommended.

Another important consideration in the planning of outdoor living areas is drainage. When selecting placement of traffic and use centers, "high and dry" is the keynote. Low ground is often moist, while high ground will usually be relatively dry.

Where it is impossible to make such allowances for drainage, a partial floor is suggested as a solution to the moist ground problem. A frame work of 2x4's set in a bed of sand and small pebbles can be "decked" with 2x4's about a quarter of an inch apart. Here again, treatment with a preservative is wise.

According to industry sources, home owners contemplating remodeling or modernizing for work, would be well advised to finish such projects at the earliest possible date in order to avoid the rush of home improvement jobs that can be expected to tax the capacity of many contractors and others involved, with the approach of Spring.

Right now in many a family circle, one of the main topics of discussion is "something must be done about the house" to bring it in line with expanding needs for living space or with modern standards of comfort, convenience and livability.

The honeymoon cottage that was ideal for two is found to be bursting at the seams with children, and extra bedrooms become a "must." Or the old-fashioned house that was bought primarily because of its size must be modernized. Or even the almost new house needs minor repairs.

Plan Comes First Basic to launching a successful program of home improvement is the formulation of a well thought out plan, in which the relative urgency of specific family needs and the maintenance of property value should be major factors in establishing a logical order of "priorities" within the scope of the family's financial resources.

Which is just another way of saying "put first things first" in planning home improvements.

Usually it makes sense to start by putting your house in top-notch shape. Take a long, hard look at everything about your house: siding, roofing, windows, doors, stairs, floors, walls, even the heating system. Head your list of improvements with necessary repairs. Then consider remodeling, enlargement, and modernization.

Include your entire property in your plan. If more living space is your most pressing need, determine how you can make the best possible use of every square inch available. What about the unfinished attic or basement? Does either offer both afford space for creating extra bedrooms or a recreation room? Is such a transition practicable, cost-wise and otherwise? Should you convert the garage into an extra room?

Even the newest houses have some things that can be improved by remodeling. Changes in lighting fixtures and the addition of wall paneling, built-in wardrobe units, and closet accessories, built-in dressing tables, desks and breakfast bars are additions that will help to keep a house up-to-date and enhance the convenience and pleasure with which a family will live in it.

On the score of modernization, take a close look at those focal points of household activity, the kitchen and the bathroom. To what extent have either or both become outmoded by recent improvements or refinements in these vital areas? What steps should be taken to up-date them or expand their facilities? How much will it cost?

Once you have decided what should be done to improve your home, and in what sequence, you are ready to determine how much of the work you can or will want to do yourself, and how much will require outside help, and of what kind.

If you plan extensive work, by all means avail yourself of competent advice. Consult an architect. Also talk to recognized contractors in your area. Local lumber and other building supply dealers can also be extremely helpful.

Prevents Rusting Apply a thin coat of paste wax to metal parts and handles of hand tools used outdoors to prevent rusting and keep tools free of dirt.

Use A Knife Skilled cabinet makers use a knife when scoring lumber for plywood for cutting. The blade follows a straight edge more accurately, eliminates errors in the variations of thickness of pencil lines.

Owners Urged to Launch Jobs Early To Avoid the Rush

Home improvement activity, which ran at a record rate last year (in dramatic contrast to lagging housing starts) promises to outstrip even that rapid pace during the early months of 1961.

According to industry sources, home owners contemplating remodeling or modernizing for work, would be well advised to finish such projects at the earliest possible date in order to avoid the rush of home improvement jobs that can be expected to tax the capacity of many contractors and others involved, with the approach of Spring.

Landscaping Adds Value to Property

When the landscaping of the home grounds is properly planned, it can substantially increase the value of the property.

Trees and shrubs increase in value as they grow, in contrast to many things purchased which deteriorate in value as time passes.

How do you plant your property to be more liveable and valuable?

The purpose of landscaping is to blend the home into the landscape, making it more pleasing to look at, and to afford extension of the living area from indoors to outdoors.

A garden living room may be planned for privacy and beauty, affording a delightful area in which to relax, entertain, and play outdoors. Evergreen trees and shrubs, roses and fruits and other plants are arranged for more gracious living for family and friends.

In landscaping, we think of planting a picture to frame the house. There are three main areas of any property.

First, comes the front area, facing the street, which is continuously on view to neighbors and passersby.

Here we usually like to see a patch of open lawn. Trees may be planted off the corners of the house to form part of the landscape

"frame." We need to connect these with a flowing line of plants, or "foundation" planting. Low-growing plants are placed along the front of the house at its foundation. These are better placed in flowing lines than in a straight line. On each side of the entrance a higher-growing plant is planted to accentuate the doorway.

Living Area

The "garden living" area is where the family lives. Usually it is at the rear of the house, close to the kitchen door, for convenience.

Planted shrubs and at least one shade tree can be arranged to provide "privacy" and coolness in the hot summer months.

In the garden living room the home owner can indulge his wants with roses, camellias or any other plants that will grow well in his soil and climate. Since this area is designed for living, it can be decorated with any of the lovely plants found at nurseries. Nurserymen can advise what will best thrive, what plants to use to screen off the area, and give other valuable "tips" that will save time and money.

The third area is the "working" area, where fruits of your choice, berries and other plants may be grown.

BEAUTIFUL VISTA has been created in this garden walk setting by well-thought-out plantings of colorful flowers and shrubbery happily highlighted by the stark white of the bark of the birch trees.

Plan To Cut Family Room Noise Level

Planning a recreation room? Don't forget about the noise problem.

This room is often called the rumpus room — an apt name — because if much use is made of the room it will probably be one of the noisiest areas in the home. This is the place for ping pong, games, record sessions, partying, etc. In addition, most recreation rooms will contain an abundance of hard surfaces off of which sound will bounce like light off a mirror.

A high decibel count (noise level) is therefore almost inevitable at times, and the need for effective noise control becomes important.

The first thing to bear in mind is to locate the room as far away as possible from those areas in the home where quiet is most desirable — bedrooms, dens, and living rooms. In most cases a recreation room will find its place in the basement. For noise control purposes, this is probably the best location.

Weatherstrip Door

But whether the room is located in the basement or elsewhere, it would be a good idea to weatherstrip its door. If the door is of a thin panel construction, you might also cover one side with a sheet of insulating board and cover the board with plywood or hardboard to serve as a wearing surface.

Both of these precautions will — at little expense — lessen sound transmission between the recreation room and the rest of the house. But how about protecting the people in the recreation room from a noise build-up?

The best — and an economical — way to do this is to finish off the room with acoustical tiles. These tiles are soft, porous materials which soak up noise much as a sponge soaks up water — as much as 85 percent of the noise hitting them. Available in a number of different surface designs, acoustical tiles will also strikingly enhance the appearance of the room.

Easy To Install

The tiles are installed on the ceiling and may also be used on the walls, especially if you have a record or hi-fi corner in mind. Most installation jobs in recreation rooms can be handled by anyone handy with tools, but the assistance of a contractor or building materials dealer is easily obtainable, if desired. Whether applied to ceilings or walls, the tiles often can be cemented directly to the surface or nailed, stapled or clipped to wood furring strips. Exact instructions are included in the packages.

In many basements, however, there will be the problem of dealing with pipes and ducts which hang below joists. You can box them in — if there are not too many pipes and ducts, and if they run parallel to the walls. If most of the pipes or ducts are hung below the ceiling joists, consider installing a suspended ceiling.

Many Look To Attics, Basements

When families grow, as they are bound to do, many homeowners are forced to look around for additional living space in their homes. A recreation room may be needed or perhaps an extra bedroom tops the list of "musts." Then, again, it may be that the man of the house needs a study. Sometimes all these needs can be met by one new room.

However, such a room can't spring from nowhere. Space must be found. Likely spots are the attic or basement, but if one of the other of these does not exist in a house, or cannot be converted satisfactorily, the garage can sometimes be a solution. In some one-car families it may be possible to convert half of a two-car garage. Other home-owners may elect to give up their garage and either build another one or a carport instead.

The size and design of recreation rooms will vary according to individual tastes, interests and needed type of home and space available. But, large or small, much of its success depends on how well it's planned.

Factors To Consider

Here are some of the elements worthy of consideration in planning yours:

1. Informal dining facilities, such as a snack bar or dinette set. You might even consider including a compact "kitchenette" unit (consisting of range, sink unit and storage space) which can be built into a small area and concealed decoratively.

2. A music wall, with built-in radio-phonograph equipment. It's a set-up and television set, along with storage space for records and musical instruments.

3. Storage space for hobby equipment and children's games and toys.

4. A desk for study or work, and a convenient place for books, magazines and newspapers.

5. Plenty of lounging facilities — comfortable, durable chairs and sofas.

6. Built-in sleeping accommodations or sofa-beds, so that the room can provide sleeping quarters for guests.

Attractive Paneling

Your recreation room can be beautiful, easy to care for, and a source of pleasure for many years to come if you do it over with lumber paneling, a material that is ideal for walls, ceilings and built-ins.

Paneling offers distinct advantages. It is readily available and it will help you to achieve a truly custom made look. Also, if it is properly finished and installed, it will need only an occasional waxing.

Of the types of lumber paneling available, an excellent choice is any of the 10 species that grow in the western pine region. These are poplar, pine, Idaho white pine, sugar pine, lodgepole pine, larch, inland red cedar, incense cedar, Engelmann spruce, white fir and Douglas fir.

Better To Buy New Furniture Than To Re-make

Look well before you leap into the project of having your old living room furniture reupholstered. It's no more dollars and probably less, you can buy new upholstered furniture.

In very few circumstances, reports the Home Furnishings Industry committee, is the cost of repair and recovering truly economical. The average family uses even the least expensive sofas and chairs more than 10 years.

In the past 10 years manufacturing techniques, filling materials, spring systems and fabric standards have greatly improved. At the same time, finished prices have not increased noticeably.

Foamed chemical resins as a material for cushions and backs of upholstered furniture have made an important contribution to better quality. They have also helped to keep prices down.

Standardized for comfort and durability, molded foamed units now often replace other more compressible materials. Dacron fluff wrapped around such units can produce the soft comfort formerly obtained only with down filling.

Springs too, have been re-engineered to help create the slim off-the-floor look. Some of these are strong rubber straps and others are especially tempered steel wire. In many pieces the reliable coil spring still serves its very useful function. Here, mechanization has taken a firmer, stronger hold on the springs themselves. The laborious process of hand tying coil springs for stabilization is less frequently used.

The worn upholstery fabric you want replaced may be the indication that more drastic repairs are needed. An exploratory examination may show many inner defects which prevent real seating comfort. The sag you've been combating with a folded built-in under-spring failure. After years of constant usage the frame is probably more wobbly than you think.

Before you try to save pennies by "redoing" old upholstered furniture, investigate the benefits in comfort and savings of modern upholstery manufacturing methods.

Hints On Heating Basement Playroom

There are many ways to heat a new basement playroom but to simplify matters, think about the heating work before partitions are constructed, advises the Better Heating Co., Inc.

In older houses which have steam or gravity hot water heating systems, the heat evened off by the boiler and exposed piping keeps the unfinished basement quite comfortable. But most of the heat from the boiler is held back from the new playroom when the basement is converted.

Simplest way to keep the new playroom comfortable in this case is to take advantage of the heating system's existing piping which is located in the ceiling of the new playroom.

If this piping has an asbestos covering, this insulation should be removed. A silver or aluminum-type paper, tacked to the ceiling or wall behind the piping, will act as a reflector. With this reflector in place, the piping will serve as a radiator. To hide the piping and give the job a trim look, the piping can be "boxed in."

Heat output might be increased from this piping an additional 10 to 15 percent if metal fins are attached to the piping. The fins should be installed by a heating contractor. The fins will increase the heating surface of the piping, and thus boost the heat output.

In newer homes which have modern forced circulation hot water heating systems, the temperature in an unfinished basement ordinarily is about 60 degrees, sufficient to keep the basement dry but not comfortable enough for a playroom.

The answer to heating the playroom with a forced circulation hot water system is simple: Have a contractor install a baseboard panel, convactor or radiator in the new room. Any of these heating units can be connected to existing piping in the basement.

Good Lighting Makes Home More Livable

Ever stop to think how important good lighting is in your home? Not just good light to see by and to prevent accidents — that's a must — but lighting which makes your home more attractive and you more comfortable.

Give your house a quick check and then see how you answer these key questions:

1. Do your rooms have strong light and dark contrasts in them? Bright lights and deep shadows are distracting and hard on the eyes. This subtle discomfort can cause you to become nervous and ill at ease, even though you aren't aware of it. The remedy? Plan enough general lighting to give pleasant overall illumination. You can accomplish it in a number of ways — one popular way is to use cornices, coves and valances to direct light up or down over broad surfaces such as walls or draperies. Or you can use luminous ceilings. To have comfortable over-all lighting for all occasions, you can use light brightness controls.

2. Do you have light for specific seeing tasks, like reading and sewing? Be sure you have the right light at the right places for good vision. Lamps are usually best for this; so make sure they're tall enough and with big light shades to give plenty of light over the whole visual work area — you don't want to slouch to see, nor do you want distracting shadows in the work areas.

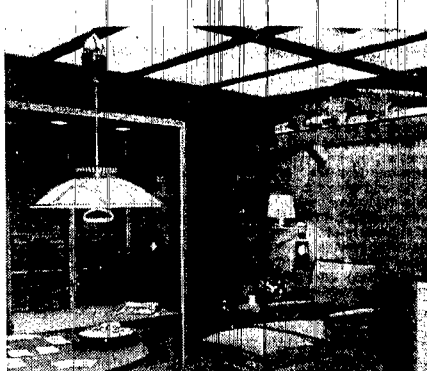

3. Do your lights glare? Wherever possible you should not be aware of the source of the light — naked glaring bulbs are uncomfortable; this also applies to cornice, cove and valance lighting.

4. Can you adjust your lighting to any occasion or mood? Flexibility is the key to interesting lighting — light brightness controls let you vary the light to suit your needs and personality. For instance, when you have a few guests in your living room, low soft lights provide pleasant comfortable atmosphere; when you're entertaining a larger group, brighter lights — well distributed — help keep things moving.

5. Do you have all the light you need in the bathroom for applying makeup — can your husband easily see to get a good clean shave? Then can you adjust these lights comfortably low for night time?

6. Is your lighting planned to bring out the beauty of your home? In addition to lighting for mood and comfort, you can do much with decorative lighting — from lighting gardens to highlighting unusual features in your house like prize paintings.

Prevent Spills
Sprinkle fine sand on freshly painted porch or cellar steps for a skid-proof surface.

LIGHT CONTROLS are used in this game room to dim, brighten or blend the lighting from fluorescent lights in luminous ceiling and duck wall bracket and incandescent lights over card table, window seat and in reading lamp, each of which has its own control.

Pre-Fabricated Shower Cabinets Easy To Install

Backyard vacations can be fun this summer if you follow backyard sun baths and picnics with a cool refreshing shower.

The sandbox crowd and also the garden gang will have a good time if carefree days in playtime are followed by a relaxing shower. Thanks to new developments in the plumbing industry, it's easy to have a shower almost anywhere. Available are sturdy cabinets which constitute self-contained showers.

These pre-fabricated shower cabinets come in a variety of sizes. They are shipped knocked-down so they can easily be assembled in cramped quarters.

Pre-fabricated shower cabinets are ideal for installation in basements, utility rooms and out spaces in the house.

These metal cabinets are shipped with shower heads and valves so they constitute a complete leak proof shower cabinet when assembled.

There are utilitarian models for basements and utility rooms and deluxe cabinets for other locations in the house.

Here, from R. H. French home economists, are some pointers on building it:

1. Locate your outdoor fireplace so that it faces in the direction of the wind. This will provide a better draft and carry smoke away from front.
2. Select a high spot or small mound for its location to provide for natural drainage.
3. Solid base support is essential, so the foundation should be made of concrete. Where subject to frost, the concrete foundation should extend about four inches be-

Upholstered Furniture Key To Room Style

Upholstered furniture is a style keynote in a living room. The living room all the family takes for granted can be stylized by the wise choice of new upholstered furniture.

If yours is a living room about which you say, "It's kind of modern" or "I guess you'd call it traditional" or "It's sort of Early American" — give it character, plus comfort.

Choose a sofa design in the style you'd like to have dominate the room. Select a large and a medium sized chair, not as a set, but in the same general style as the sofa.

Basic your choice on the design of the largest wood piece in the room. This might be a cabinet or a desk. Or you may have a favorite pair of tables or a cocktail table. Team any of these with upholstered furniture in the same or kindred style and your whole room will no longer be "sort-of" — but definitely a style you like.

Mirrors Can Make Rooms Look Bigger

Want to make a small room grow? One easy way to expand it, without knocking out a wall is to use plate glass mirrors, according to June Cabot, home arts consultant for the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company.

It's an optical illusion, of course, but mirrors can stretch a room in size, double the furnishings in number, and even increase light in intensity.

Here are some house-expanding ideas:

1. A narrow length of mirror on the window sill makes a shelf for potted plants which allows maximum sunlight for plant growth. Another mirror of equal size behind the shelf doubles the green, "outdoors" decorating effect of the plants.

2. A mirror secured to the closet ceiling will give a view of the top shelf and the hard-to-reach area near the wall. Mirrors will do a similar job above the kitchen cabinet shelves.

3. Mirrors about three feet square and mounted on wooden blocks can be placed at an angle on each side of a fireplace to reflect both heat and light into the room.

4. Mirrors at slight angles on each side of an attic dormer window will reflect more daylight into the room often turning a drab, useless attic into an active living area of the home.

5. A "mirror corner" — high, rectangular mirrors on each wall in a gloomy corner — will gather light from elsewhere in the room and dispel shadows. The addition of plate glass shelves for plants can turn the corner into the room's focal point.

Disposable Paddles
Wooden tongue depressors (available at drug stores) make excellent disposable paddles for mixing small cans of paint or other material and also can conveniently be used to spread glues or mastic adhesives.

Outdoor Fireplace Can Be A Do-It-Yourself Project

Although barbecues can be prepared on portable grills, a permanent fireplace will make your yard a real center for warm weather hospitality. Make the construction of the fireplace a family project and you'll have as much fun building as using it.

Now Is Time for Roofing Check-Up

An early spring inspection of the roof is a timely and useful operation because the rains of the winter months may have caused damage that would otherwise go unnoticed.

Slow and unseen leaks are among the principal causes of permanent injury to the roof structure, framing and sills. Long exposure to the sun will often cause a roof to become dry and porous, and sudden temperature changes are a factor in the curling of roof shingles.

Some of the danger signals to look for are these: Asphalt shingles that have outlived their usefulness will show the first signs of eventual roof failure by granules washing off, permitting the felt underneath to dry out or crack.

Shrinkage will cause old wood shingles to crack and split. In extreme cases, they will curl, allowing sheet rain to wash under them, thus weakening the under-structure of the roof. When nails begin to pop out, this is usually a sign that the wood has rotted around the nail holes.

Evenly application and long wear can both contribute to failure of roll roofing. Over the years, the sun dries out this roofing and causes blistering and cracking.

Look for specific trouble spots around dormer windows and chimney flashings, vent pipes, valleys and gutters and on hip roofs.

Recommended by roofing experts is a good metal or felt flashing material to assure water-tight corners.

It is a good idea to examine chimney areas for any indication of corrosion or separation of the flashing.

Although not part of the roof area, gutters and leaders should get the home-owner's attention at roof inspection time. Failure of the gutters is sometimes due to the poor pitch or a stopped-up condition of the leaders.

New Colors Will Do Much for Old Room

Through skillful use of color, you can make rooms look larger or smaller to suit your taste. This eliminates expensive remodeling and often gives the same effect.

Well applied paints in certain colors produce distinct changes in appearance.

For instance, an unusually large room often seems cold and uninviting. Painting the walls with strong warm colors — one of the yellow, orange or red hues — can make the room seem smaller and give it a new and friendly feeling.

Different color paints are useful for creating separate activity areas in one large room, such as areas for reading, conversation, card games, music, TV or other purposes. Place some pieces of furniture at right angles to the wall in addition to painting two walls different bold or warm shades.

Painting Small Rooms
If you have a very small room, built-in furniture, built-in doors, woodwork and walls all the same color, using a pale cool color. Walls will seem to recede and the same color everywhere will give the illusion of unbroken space. Carry the one-color effect still further by using carpeting and draperies of the same shade.

If you have a long, narrow room, paint the small end a warm, advancing color to make it seem closer, though other walls may be of lighter hues.

If you have an L-shaped room with an alcove or dormer, paint it all one color to unify it.

In buying new furniture, always choose pieces which are in scale for the space in which they are to be used. However, if you own or have inherited some heavy upholstered pieces, you can reduce their bulk by having them slipcovered in a plain fabric to blend with the color of the wall.

Pre-Test Colors
Changing the apparent size of a room need not become a problem, if you try out your ideas on paper first. Use little color blocks in miniature rooms and try out color swatches in the actual rooms you plan to paint to see how color choices will create desired impression.

For a quick change with paint, latex paints are among the easiest to use. These paints dry to the touch in a short time so that the room may be used the same day. They have no unpleasant odor and skips can be repainted with no brush marks showing. They come in a wide range of colors: pastels, dark shades, or custom-mixed.

Experts Say Best Time To Remodel Is Right Now

Dozens of cures have been suggested for the recession afflicting America's economy. Each, perhaps, has some merit; none, probably, is the whole answer. But certainly one of the most immediate and effective is the re-stimulation that you and other homeowners can give the economy just by catching up with needed home improvement projects — this year.

The new room you need, the modern kitchen or bathroom, the finished attic or basement, the paint or insulation or patio or wiring — any of these can give your family new comfort, new convenience, new pleasure, increased property value — and give the economy new jobs and new sales. Your home improvement project, and those of millions of other homeowners who will provide themselves with better living in 1961, can unquestionably help cure our economic headache.

No one modernizes his home, of course, just to help the economy, and we aren't seriously asking you to. But we do suggest that you look into several very important reasons why you will find home improvement possibilities particularly timely right now — reasons like these: 1. Prices on all types of building materials and home equipment are especially favorable. 2. More than ever, in times of economic uncertainty, your home is your best investment. Sound, sensible home improvement increases its value beyond the cost of the improvement. In that sense, it's better than money in the bank.

3. More dealers and contractors than ever before are fully equipped to take care of your whole project — all the materials and labor and financing you need — in one stop.

4. Financing is readily obtainable at ideal terms — through your dealer or contractor or directly from your financial institution.

5. Men to do the work are more available, too. These and other factors add up to one crystal-clear conclusion: Home improvement, especially in 1961, is a sound investment, a sensible purchase.

Like charity, prosperity begins at home — your home.

Home Handymen Can Install Ceilings Of Varying Beauty

If you are at all handy, you can now put up a new ceiling that will substantially reduce noise and, at the same time, give the room a smart, distinctive look.

All it takes is a little time — an average room can be done in a weekend — some acoustical tiles and a few accessories.

Acoustical tiles are absorbent materials that soak up noise much as a kitchen sponge soaks up water. They can absorb as much as 85 percent of the sound striking them.

They range in appearance from simple surfaces to designs with a "high fashion" look. If color is your desire, it can be fulfilled with one or more plastic tiles of various hues.

Once you have made your choice of the way you can choose your installation method. The Acoustical Materials Association says the first step should be to ascertain the condition of the present ceiling. Check to see if the ceiling is sound by applying pressure against the surface with your hand. If the ceiling is firm and the surface is unbroken, the ceiling can be considered safe for cementing tiles directly to the surface. If there are cracks, but they are of only minor nature, the ceiling may still be sound and the cementing method may be employed.

Before beginning the cementing, it's important to make sure the ceiling is clean and dry. This is to insure a good firm cement bond. Painted ceilings should be roughened with coarse sandpaper and a heavy wallpaper on the ceilings should be removed.

When you are ready to begin the actual installation, apply acoustic cement at each corner of the tile. Use a putty knife or small trowel.

Start the installation at the center of the room and work across

Slide each tile back and forth under light pressure to assure a firm even bond between the tile and ceiling surface. Make sure the tile edges butt tightly together before the cement sets.

Some tiles will have to be cut to fit into irregular spaces around ceiling fixtures, but this is not difficult when a good crosscut saw or sharp fiberboard knife is used.

Cementing is the easiest and most practical method to use whenever ceiling conditions allow. However, if the ceiling is badly cracked or if the plaster is falling or sagging, you should take the precaution of first nailing up a framework of wood furring strips and then attaching the tiles to them.

Baseboard Painting

Avoid painting the floor along with the baseboard by using a small strip of thin cardboard as a shield. Move the shield along the floor, following the brush as it moves along the baseboard. Spillage will be caught by the cardboard, not the floor.

Bathrooms Easy To Add In Most Houses

Every bedroom deserves a bathroom, say the home planning experts, and this convenient arrangement need not wait for a "dream" house of the future.

In fact, with the latest developments in bathroom and product designs, it probably can be had quite easily in your present home. It's not out of the question even if you live in an old one-bedroom house.

The trick lies in making full use of all available space. An area under the stairs may be perfect for an extra powder-room on the first floor. A roomy, old-fashioned closet upstairs might yield the necessary footage for an extra lavatory powder room of complete bathroom. A back hall off the kitchen could house a "mud room" for washing up after work or play in the yard. And, lavatory dressing tables can be installed right in the bedrooms.

Space Utilization
Don't forget your present bathroom, either. Even if it measures as little as 6x12 feet, you can transform the area into a one-and-a-half bathroom arrangement or two complete bathrooms.

If your bathroom is still smaller, you may increase its usefulness by adding a fixture or two. The installation of twin lavatories or the small home dental lavatory can go a long way to solving morning and evening bottlenecks in this all-important room. And, by building partitions, you can insure complete privacy, as well as multiple use of all your bathroom fixtures.

If available space measures 10' by 12', you can install two complete bathrooms in the most economical of all arrangements — with the toilet, lavatory and bathtub in each room installed against a common wall. This places all six fixtures close to waste and supply pipes, thus lessening the amount of costly piping needed.

New Compact Tub
If your present bathroom measures 9'x12' you may transform it into two complete bathrooms by using the American-Standard Rest-al in one bathroom. This compact tub, measuring only 38" x 39", takes no more space than most shower stalls, yet provides combined bath and shower facilities.

You may choose a bath-and-a-half arrangement. Suggested layouts of this type include the partitioning of one tub in a room of its own easily accessible from two powder room areas.

Wide Range of Cooling Units Now Available

Homeowners can now select from a wide range of cooling equipment for their homes.

Since each house is different, air conditioning engineers have designed a variety of cooling systems so that air conditioning can be adapted to any style house.

Most cooling systems, says the Better Heating - Cooling Council, can be added to a house at any time. Consideration must be given, however, to the type of heating in the house.

In a warm air heated house, either combination heating-cooling systems or cooling systems that operate independently of the heating system may be selected.

Heating-Cooling Duct System, for warm air heated houses, uses a furnace and a cooling unit, usually installed in the basement. Warm air and cool air are circulated through the same duct system. It's important, however, that ducts are accurately sized because those used only for cooling are usually wider than ducts used for heating.

In homes with hot water heating systems, combination heating-cooling systems or independent cooling systems may be selected.

Combination System
Heating - Cooling Convactor System, for hot water heated homes uses combination units installed in each room of the house, but powered from a central source — a boiler and a water chiller, usually installed in the basement.

Hot water and chilled water are circulated to the units through the same piping system. Each convactor unit has a fan, filter, cooling-heating coil and a thermostat for room by room temperature control.

Separate Chilled Air Unit, for use with any type heating system, functions independently of the heating system. This central cooling system is suitable for new construction or modernization in small or medium sized homes.

The cooling unit can be installed in unused attic space, garage, basement or a centrally located closet or hall, with fibre-type ducts distributing the cool air. Cooling registers, or outlets, are usually located in the ceiling of each room.

Chilled Water Unit
Separate Chilled Water Unit, for use with any type of heating system, also functions independently of the heating system. This is a central cooling system that is suitable for new construction or modernization, but especially for multi-story or rambling designs in which zone control is desirable.

In this system a single cooling unit, remotely located in the basement, for instance, sends chilled water through small pipes to two or more heavy duty convectors, each serving a different area or different floor of the house. Each heavy duty convactor has an individual temperature control.

Warm Putty
When replacing a broken window in cold weather, heat a brick and lay putty on it while working. This keeps the putty soft and oily.

Size, Style, Fabric Yours To Select At Readymade Prices

Sofa sizes occupy as much attention of furniture designers as do dress lengths among the couturiers of Paris. There is now available such infinite variety in combination of length, depth of seat, height of backs, etc., you can readily find your sofa was made for your very own room.

Indeed, it would require no big shopping expedition to find one exactly right for your room size, hubby's nap and your own tastes of fabric type and color. No matter whether your decor is Chinese, French, Provincial, Early American or Modern, you will find upholstered furniture in the right style.

Some like them long, some like them short and some like them in sections. Several manufacturers offer the same sofa design in several different lengths. If you have measured your wall space to the last inch and know just how long the sofa can be "fit" you will not have trouble finding it.

If you like the sectional sofa idea consider the new slim-lined ones with open wood arms or cane hand-crad arms. Smart, not only from a good-looks standpoint, but smart because they seem less bulky in an average room size.

For the final custom-made touch select the fabric yourself. Manufacturers supply stores with upholstery fabric samples from which you may choose. You will find these coordinated as to color and texture by designers and stylists on whose judgment you can rely. The fabric price will determine the cost of the piece, so you can stay within your budget.

Thin Walls
The insulation value of a brick or concrete block wall four inches thick is barely equal to an unadorned wall of ordinary wood frame construction. With common insulation material added to the stud space of the frame wall, its insulating value increases to 3 1/2 times that of the masonry wall.

Decks Inviting Outside Eating

Eat out all summer long and make every meal a picnic on the deck.

That's what thousands of families are doing since they built a new all-wood deck just outside their kitchen door.

By locating a wood deck as close to the kitchen as outside facilities will permit, much of the drudgery of table setting and serving is eliminated. It is even possible to remodel the line of the windows to make it serve as a pass-through.

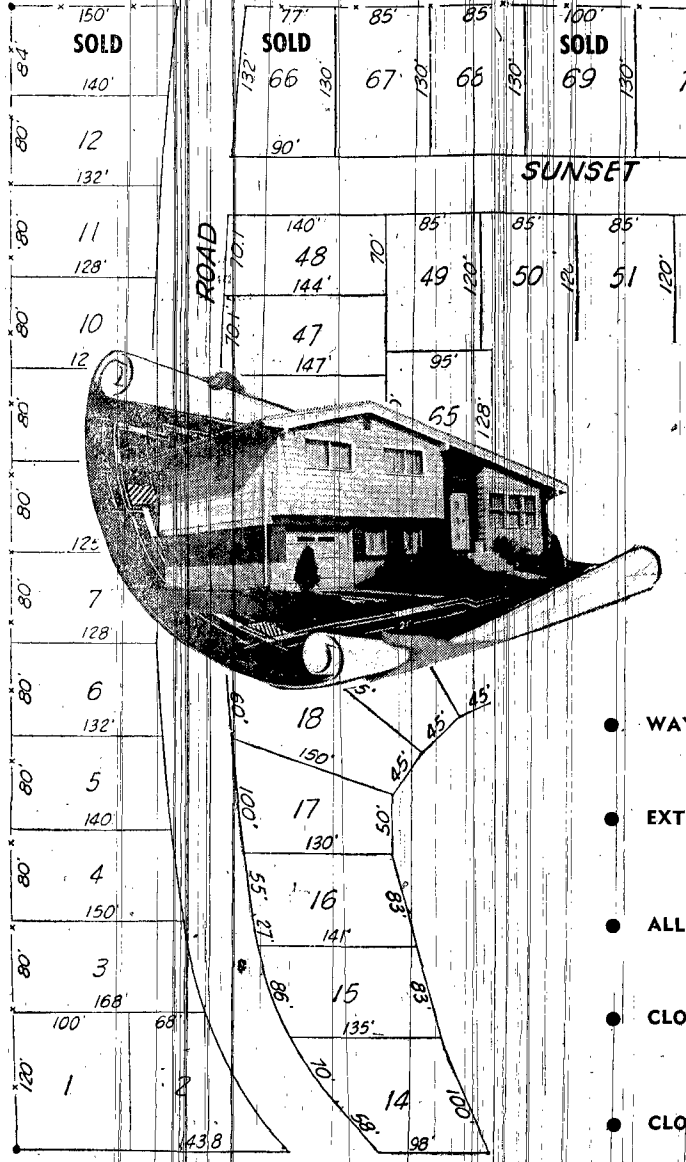

can be added to an older home or built right along with a new home.

They require very little upkeep if made of durable Douglas fir or western red cedar lumber. Deck boards can be made of 2x4 lumber and each board should be spaced slightly to permit water runoff. No painting is necessary because these woods weather to a beautiful silver gray color.

Architects caution that framing for the deck should be extra strong, especially if entertaining is a hobby of the family.

Varnishing Floors
Quickest way to varnish large floors is to pour out a small pool and spread it around with a roller.

Mirrors Are Newest Wall Covering Idea

One of the newest wall covering materials is, surprisingly, one of the oldest — mirror.

In the past year, top decorators and builders have become remarkably conscious of wall mirror installations because of their versatility and beauty.

As one example, a model house chosen to be erected all over the country for National Home Week 1960 had both bedrooms with ceiling-to-floor wall-to-wall mirrors, used as sliding closet doors.

Also, in a recent decorators' show in New York, 11 leading American designers showed room settings featuring large areas of mirror — either as completely mirrored walls or in combination with fabric and wallpaper.

One of the reasons for this trend is that mounting construction costs continue to limit room sizes — and strategically placed mirror areas can stretch out walls, make a small foyer seem twice as large, and can lower or raise a ceiling.

Moreover, a wall of mirror gives the impression that a room has twice as much furniture as it really has.

Mirrors increase, even double, the amount of light in a room. One suggestion is a circle or square of mirror on the ceiling above a chandelier. All mirror directly behind the light will give more light without glare and also stress the beauty of the lamp itself.

Designers and architects are now considering mirror as a material useful anywhere in building, like wood or stone. Technical developments plus new production methods are largely responsible for this current trend.

All top quality mirror is now made of twin-ground plate glass, where the glass sheet is placed in a machine which grinds and polishes both surfaces at the same time to eliminate any possibility of distortion.

With these new, perfected types of mirror available, the traditional picture of the small framed looking-glass has begun to give way to areas of mirror found just about anywhere in a house.

Designers suggest, for example, mirroring a linen closet in back of the shelves, so you can see every item in the linen supply department.

Bathrooms are blossoming out in mirror, when once the little mirror on the medicine chest was the only one available for shaving or make-up. Even the medicine chest itself is giving way to long shelves with sliding mirror doors, or even racks of shelves with separate wall mirror covering the area from basin up to the ceiling line.

The one major "don't" with respect to mirrors is to avoid putting them where people will have to stare at themselves for any length of time, as in a dining area against the table.

Home Updating A Sensible Investment

One of the best investments you can make is the protection plus enhancement of your home's future. A new roof and siding on the exterior of your home does this for you. At the same time, resale value automatically increases.

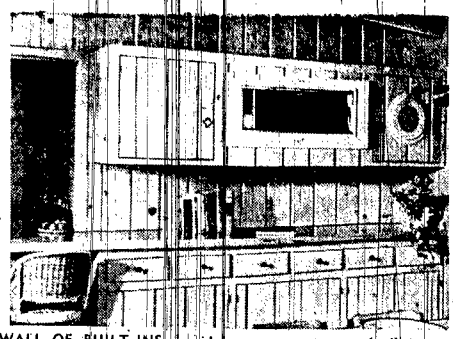

Selection of materials is all-important. A durable, modern, maintenance-free product like insulating siding, with beauty features built right in, gives your home the long-lasting protection you've been looking for. And the Insulating Siding Association stresses: "With your home's brand new appearance comes that extra pride of ownership."

Other features that make insulating siding both attractive to the eye and the pocketbook include its variety of colors and patterns at low cost. You'll find brick, stone and shingle lap siding in the latest and most accepted styles to blend in with other features of your home.

The factory-embossed finish eliminates painting problems and it can be applied directly over old siding. The insulation qualities of this product save up to 30 percent in heating bills and cut operating costs of air conditioning units.

Insulating siding offers home-makers eager to remodel their homes other advantages, too. These include reduction of outside noise and weather-proof qualities plus resistance to fire, vermin, insects and fungus. What's more, insulating siding doesn't get brittle. All these features protect while beautifying your home and add up to big savings for your home in the future.

House Painting Hint
Paint applied excessively results in improper drying and almost certain wrinkling. Brush out the paint sufficiently, and apply a second coat if needed.

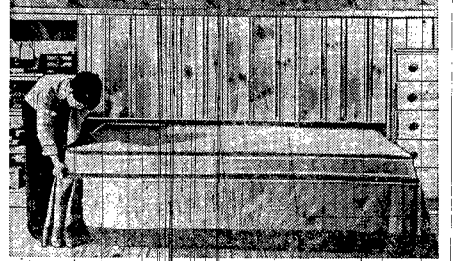

WALL OF BUILT-INS provides generous storage facilities and housing for hi-fi equipment, and at the same time dresses up the area through the use of paneling of western pine derivation.

Neutral Colors For Background

The skilled interior decorator selects a neutral background in most rooms of a home for serenity. The decorator will use furnishings and decorations to bring bright accent color into a room. In this use of color for accent, the decorator has an opportunity to introduce vitality and beauty.

While it is true that the furnishings and decorations add the final fillip to a home that gives it comfort, warmth and tranquility, the selection of wall, ceiling and floor background is vitally important.

More decorators are using wood for the neutral background. For walls, floors and ceilings, they get double for their money in lovely wood panels of west coast hemlock, western red cedar or Douglas fir.

ATTIC IS remodeled to create a most attractive bedroom for the boy of the house. Idaho white pine was used to build shelf and drawer space under the eaves and to frame a recess into which the bed can be pushed when not in use.

Lighting Plays Feature Role

Lights that are right can make modern living more enjoyable.

A bright, well directed beam of light can enhance the pleasures of a reading room or a sewing hook, but it can spoil the subtlety of a secluded corner.

Lack of the proper amount of lighting can make a bright room gloomy, although properly positioned diffused lighting can accent the livability of a home.

"There's a place for bright lights and for soft lights," says Sheldon Cady, lighting specialist for Allied Chemical's Barrett Division, "and it seems that many housewives prefer soft lighting in more and more areas of the home these days."

"Lights that were once used only for illumination now are being used for decoration," he adds.

He points out that a few of the uses of softly diffused lighting that have gained considerable popularity are back-lighted panels in kitchen, bathroom and recreation rooms. "Room dividers and planters that are lighted from behind have also gained the attention of modern decorators," Cady says.

"These unique lighting effects are not hard to accomplish, he says, and he maintains that a home handyman needs no special tools with which to provide backlighting where it is desired.

"Translucent plastic panels which require a minimum of framing or studding — and almost no maintenance or care — are ideally suited for back-lighting, he says.

"Since they come in a wide variety of pastel colors they can blend with almost any decorating scheme."

Cady says that the panels can be saved to the desired size and can be attached to a simple frame of one-inch furring strips with either nails, screws or bolts.

"Room dividers or planters can be made just as easily," he continues. "A simple wooden frame can be covered with the panels and lighted from behind to give a soft lighting effect that can beautify any home."

Neutral Walls Accent Color

The era of color is coming in decorating fields who predict that color boldly in furnishings.

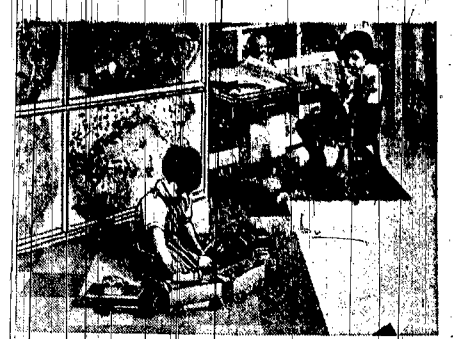

But with draperies, carpeting and furniture combining such rich hues as royal purple, Bristol blue, Alabaster green and an accent in raspberry, neutral walls that act as a backdrop for the play of color become all-important. Wall paneling of a prestige wood such as shell birch, west coast hemlock or tawny sold Douglas fir is the top choice of many decorators because of the wood's sophisticated but neutral coloring.

The subtle tracing of grain patterns found in woods like hemlock and fir is a bonus feature, supplying just the touch of texture needed in a wall.

To Measure Pipe
To get the outside diameter of a piece of pipe, tighten a monkey wrench lightly around it. Slide the wrench off without loosening the set of the jaws. The distance between the jaws is an accurate measurement of the diameter of the pipe.

Better Grip
Wrap a band of electrician's tape around the bottom end of the handle on hammers and hatchets to minimize slipping.

Hold Sectionals Together
Metal hooks and eyes, attached to the back of sectional furniture, keep the furniture from sliding apart. Hooks and eyes can be placed in the back side of legs of sofas and cabinets.

PLAY AREAS for children in recreation room or their bedrooms can be attractively delineated by multi-colored random patterns in solid vinyl floor tiles. Resilient, noise-muffling solid vinyl provides a most practicable base for children's play activities.

Tips On Water Heaters

The water heater is a 24-hour appliance. It is the most automatic and must use appliances in the home. It should be chosen carefully for quality, durability and capacity. Future requirements for hot water as well as present needs should be kept in mind in selecting a water heater.

Bright Tip

Small hand tools are much easier to locate if working in a grassy area, when painted a bright yellow or red.

Handy Holder

A strip of cellophane tape, sticky side up, holds any number of parts from small assemblies that must be saved for a short time.

HIC Fostering Sound Practices In Remodeling

The Home Improvement Council, which devotes itself on both the national and local levels, to furthering sound practices in the field of home modernization, sets forth the following Code of Ethics, designed for the protection of homeowners embarking on such projects:

"Only those home improvements which are structurally and economically sound shall be fostered and encouraged.

"All advertising statements shall be accurate and free of the capacity to mislead or deceive the consumer.

"Accuracy shall be required of all salesmen in their descriptions of products and services.

"All contracts employed shall be unambiguous and fair to all parties concerned.

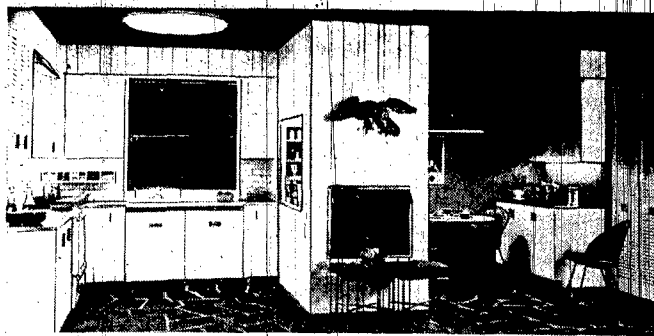

"All contractual obligations shall be promptly fulfilled.

"All work shall be performed in a manner compatible with recognized standards of public health and safety and applicable laws."

Flooring In Family Room Must Be Durable, Carefree

The basic decorative requirement for the recreation or family room is carefree ability to take hard wear. Floor coverings, especially, must be able to take hard wear, and require a minimum of maintenance if the family's recreation is to be truly relaxed.

Prime favorites for the flooring of the modern recreation room are resilient rubber and solid vinyl. Architects consider these longwearing aristocrats of the flooring family as structural elements; colors go all the way through, so can't rub off.

Best of all, the debris from an uninhibited party can be removed speedily with just a damp mop. Both rubber and solid vinyl have the additional advantage of muffling sound.

It is easy to give a custom look to the floor that will be in tune with family hobbies. Both rubber and solid vinyl are easy to cut in custom shapes with a rubber flooring knife, and nowadays, feature strips and special insets are available in such profusion, that the distinctive pattern of the flooring need be limited only by the designer's own ingenuity.

There are more than a thousand different shades to choose from and an enormous number of textures and fascinating abstract patterns. You can design your rubber or solid vinyl flooring to look exactly like wood planks, terrazzo or traditional marble, for example. Solid vinyl in metallic patterns will even give the illusion of a floor paved with gold in fairy tale fashion.

Since the main feature of the recreation family room is ability to withstand wear, not only the flooring, but all the furnishings should be practical as well as good looking.

Adequate Wiring Essential To Home

Let's consider the cost of rewiring your home. And as we do, let's also consider the value of thus keeping up to date electrically.

Wiring costs are not only "worth it," but because an adequate wiring installation lasts for such a long time, the costs are downright cheap!

It costs no more to wire a house than to paint one, yet while the paint lasts only a few years, the wiring installation will be good for the life of the house. Compare the benefits you receive from each. While painting is unquestionably important, the benefits of "full housepower" continue to be enjoyed by occupants every day in the long electrical life of the house.

It can mean, besides, such luxuries, as ice and snow-free driveways, automatic garage-door openers, remote control lighting throughout the house, baby bottle warmers, portable refrigerators and countless other new and forthcoming applications of electricity.

If you have invested in electrical appliances (or want to) then take stock of your electrical wiring.

Homes of today need at least 100-ampere service, with both 120 and 240 volts available at the main panel. You need at least two 20-ampere appliance circuits, serving the convenience outlets in your kitchen and dining areas, as well as 'general purpose' outlets for lights and convenience outlets in other parts of the house. These are the wires which distribute electricity to the points at which it is used, and which make it possible to use as many lamps and appliances as you wish—all at one time.

Remember that wiring is one of the home improvements which qualifies under FHA Title I financing. So check with your local office of the Federal Housing Administration, or with your local banks or other lending institutions, for the possibility of financing your home's wiring.

Often, power companies have an arrangement with their customers and with local electrical contractors to "wire-on-time" and the cost of the wiring installation goes right on the customer's electric bill and is spread over a period of four to six months, or longer.

So do some investigating—call an electrical contractor and find out how you can enjoy the benefits and, indeed, the magic of FULL HOUSEPOWER and modern electrical living.

Deck Is Perfect Lazy Man's Lawn

Looking forward to mowing the lawn come this summer? If not, now's the time to put in a lazy man's lawn—a wide and hard-surfaced wood patio deck.

The deck can be built at the same level as interior floors to make the outdoors merely an extension of your home's living space. Paint or stain is not necessary for Douglas fir decking, which will weather naturally to a delicate silver hue.

A garden atmosphere can be created by setting planters for flowers and shrubbery on the deck, and any trees in the yard can simply be circled with the deck, leaving a tree well about a foot bigger in diameter than the tree trunk.

When the job's done, you'll be the envy of your lawn-mowing neighbors.

Folding Doors Save On Space

The single largest demand among homeowners today is for more space, according to home improvement dealers.

For example, one dealer points out—in a six room home, people are losing an average of ninety square feet of space just in the area that swinging doors eat up. That's why you will find more and more people abandoning hinged doors and replacing them with folding doors. Because folding doors fold completely inside the doorway, instead of swinging out into the room, they don't bang into furniture or block off corners and other entranceways.

In addition, a large number of remodeling experts have found folding doors the simplest and most economical way of adding an extra room. As a room divider, a folding door is ideal. Actually it serves as a movable wall.

If you want two rooms, just extend the folding door. But when you want to use the whole area—fold back your divider and you have the full room again. Sliding doors also provide a safety factor, very important to parents with small children. It is hard to slam a folding door and therefore catch little fingers.

Installation of a folding door is particularly good to create a family room or to partition off an extra bedroom. Installation can be made in less than an hour. And there is no construction mess to clean up.

The best feature though is the durability of higher quality folding doors and partitions. There are doors in all price classifications ranging from the single sheet models which are single sheet thickness with cores of venetian blind slats or chipboard, clear up to the top quality doors such as the famous Modernfold, with welded steel frames and tough vinyl coverings. The steel frame doors cannot warp or bind. They last a lifetime. The vinyl fabric stays new looking with an occasional wash with soap and water—or if the home-owner changes her decorations, the vinyls can be painted.

Folding doors range from $10.00 at retail to $30.00 for standard slip openings of approximately 32" in width and 80" in height.

Coil Spring Rack
Small tools can be stored and kept visible with a rack made out of a coil spring. When the spring is stretched horizontally between two nails on the wall, the tools may be shoved between the individual coils. The tension of the spring will hold them in place.
