It's still a man's world, of course, but in his wife's name.

Do you still drive a Model T Ford or hand pump your soft water from the cistern?

Of course you don't. Then be modern and progressive about your valuables and important papers.

Rent one of our safe deposit boxes and assure yourself of up-to-date safety.

If at first you succeed, you probably haven't accomplished much.

Some engineers in Michigan are using solar heat to dry grain. They fastened plywood to the underside of the roof rafters. When the roof was painted black, the air in that space between the roof and plywood got hot — and this air they drew down through the grain.

When it was 70° outside, the air up under the roof was 85°. Even when the sun did not shine, it still works. One actual test, with only 3 sunshine days out of 23, the corn moisture dropped from 21 to 14.

The man fired with enthusiasm isn't apt to be fired.

Whenever you don't want your children to hear what you're saying, pretend you are talking to them.

GLEANINGS

by Bill Stokes

An item in the Columbia (Mo.) Missouriian recited the troubles that airline stewardesses run into on high altitude transatlantic flights.

The altitude causes the girls to suffer from "jet tummy," an affliction that swells them up like balloons, is painful and sometimes takes 24 hours to run its course. An Irish stewardess said, "Some girls can't bear the pain and I have known some to slip off their girdles in the galley halfway between London and New York."

This is a thing that will bear watching. Next the girls will be claiming low-altitude tummy and then ground-tummy and pretty soon none of them will be wearing girdles and where will we be then? All over the landscape, that's where we'll be.

Speaking of girls taking things off, though that is certainly not the subject this column ever intended to devote itself to, there was a notice in the Knoxville (Iowa) Journal about a girl leaving a pair of shoes in the newspaper office—brown shoes.

How did such a thing happen? Did the girl jump out of her shoes to run after a bargain she spotted in the Journal advertisements? Was she perhaps frightened out of her shoes by something she saw in the society pages? Or did she just get good and tired of the "brown shoes" and decide to leave them somewhere?

We'll probably never know, but it's something to think about next time the subject of shoes comes up in your family. It seems to come up every payday at our house.

In certain parts of Formosa, the Paynesville (Minn.) Press reports, a wedding ceremony is completed when the groom kicks the bride in the shins.

This information is interesting, but not really astonishing. The Formosan custom is apparently a take-off on the American judgement that the honeymoon is over when the bride kicks the groom in the shins, or even when she kicks at him.

The albatross, largest of all sea birds, often so gorges itself with fish and mollusks that it is unable to fly, the Arenac County (Mich.) Independent reports. Does this bird remind you of anyone you know? It reminds me of an uncle on my father's side, who had just polished off a huge threshing-crew meal and had just helped himself to the pie when he was called outside for some reason. In his absence the other threshers heaped his plate full of meat, potatoes, vegetables and all the trimmings—right on top of his pie.

Uncle came back into the house, sat down at the table without a word and ate everything on his plate, after which he said, "Please pass the pie," while his fellow threshers stared in amazement.

The Lima (Ohio) News some time ago quoted Dr. Ernest Selzner, Munich, Germany, as saying, "Kissing, when sincere, can enrich blood, accelerate the heart and tune up the system. However, kissing should be avoided immediately after heavy meals because it is not good for digestion."

There's something I never noticed — that kissing interfered with digestion. It seems more logical that digestion, or indigestion, rather, might interfere with kissing.

Anyway, I'll take my chances with digestion when it comes to kissing, and so will most people I know. What's wrong with a little indigestion now and then if your blood is enriched, your heart is accelerated and your system tuned up?

sucking of the plant juices, cause a severe yellowing of the foliage, loss in carotene, loss of leaves and feeding value. While such losses are usually not severe enough to kill the stand the odds were in favor of loss of stand in competition with grass considering, too, that the possibly heavy leaf hopper population had only 4 rounds of alfalfa to feed on as they moved from the harvesting operation in the larger area of the field cut on June 15 onto the small area (4 rounds) just recovering from the June 1 harvest.

Some further comments on alfalfa management may be helpful. In the latitude of Elgin, Illinois, it is probably advisable to take three cuttings per year for good hay management. I would suggest June 1, July 15, and September 1 as approximate dates. One cutting (preferably the first) per year may be taken at a pre-bloom stage without unduly hurting the alfalfa. Such pre-bloom cutting should not be the last one since this would deny proper recovery growth for root reserve build-up for proper overwintering. Since the first cutting is usually the coarse and/or tall one, it is best to cut it at the pre-bloom or very early bloom stage. Thus the first cutting might be adjusted to the May 22 to 30 period or so. When the entire field is cut at one time, leaf hoppers are usually destroyed in the haying operation. Therefore, it is desirable to cut the entire field unless supplemental insecticidal spraying is practiced on the early cut part. Such spraying is not desirable since the hay must eventually be consumed by livestock.

Alfalfa cut continuously at an immature stage, for example, pre-bud or bud stage, not only will produce less hay but the stand is prematurely killed.

Such kill is the result of a continuous reduction of root food reserves. Alfalfa with low root reserves is very susceptible to winterkill. It should be remembered, however, that alfalfa cut at an immature stage has a higher protein content and a higher feeding value than when cut at later stages. The farmer must therefore strive for a balance. He strives to cut a high tonnage of high quality hay. This is why we would say that Mr. Owen Calhoon should be cutting 3 times a year, the first cutting preferably or the second (but not the third) at an early bloom stage and third cutting and one other at the full bloom stage.

A. W. Burger

Dr. Morrison is the editor and co-author of FEEDS AND FEEDING.

QUESTION:

"I have heard a little about feeding haylage to sows. I am very interested as I have a lot of sows to feed. Could you give me some information on this? Would it save me money?"

O. C. Stuber
R. R. 5
Peru, Indiana

ANSWER:

As yet, there has not been a great deal of research work reported by the experiment stations regarding this question. Recent work at Purdue showed that haylage supplemented with 1.9 lbs. shelled corn and 1.02 lbs. of a 38% protein supplement, held promise as a good swine gestation ration. The gilts used in this experiment consumed 8.8 lbs. of haylage daily.

Basing my observations on work conducted with alfalfa silage for brood sows and gilts, I would suggest that slightly more shelled corn would be advisable, especially if the sows were very big. The main purpose of haylage, silage, or any other roughage in sow rations is merely to serve as bulk and thus dilute the energy content of the ration, and yet still let the sows eat what they wish. Some feel a ration of this type offers less problems than limit-feeding of sows with regard to managing them, and makes them less mean and hard to handle, especially when feeding many sows in a group. As you know, reducing the energy content of the gestation ration goes a long way toward increasing live litter size at farrowing and thus increasing your profits.

QUESTION:

"Last June 1, I cut four rounds in my alfalfa field and baled it. Then on June 15 I cut the rest. The first part failed to come up—just grass. The rest made a good second cutting. Why?"

Owen Calhoon
Rt. 2
Elgin, Illinois

ANSWER:

When he cut four rounds in the field for baling on June 1, he probably got quick recovery growth. However, such recovery growth was consumed by leaf hoppers which moved in quickly from the part of the field he cut on June 15. Leaf hoppers cause "alfalfa yellows" which although not a disease in the ordinary sense is very serious in the eastern half of the U.S. Leaf hoppers through their

Eliminate the critical "week of worry"

(after colostrum, before feed and water protection)

NOW ONE SOW INJECTION

helps give the whole litter protection for one full week

When pigs are born, natural antibodies in colostrum protect them against bacterial scours. For about 24 hours.

Then they're on their own for a week... without help from the sow... and without help from feed and water medication. (Pigs are generally a week old before they eat or drink enough to medicate through feed or water.)

Now here's a new, practical way to eliminate this critical "week of worry."

Just inject the sow once at farrowing with Terramycin Injectable Solution. That's all. She'll then protect her own pigs with broad-spectrum Terramycin in the milk.

You protect the whole pig litter with just one sow injection of Terramycin. And studies show the protection lasts a full week... until you can protect the pigs through the feed and water.

The cost? About 90 cents per sow. In a 10-pig litter, that's 9 cents to protect each pig. That's pretty low-cost insurance when you think of the profit opportunity each pig represents.

Effectiveness? In a test involving 125 sows, untreated sows lost an average of 2 pigs per litter... or 23% by the fifth week. Sows injected with Terramycin lost an average of just 1/3 of a pig per sow... or 3% in the same period. What's more, pigs from the sows receiving Terramycin averaged 34% heavier at five weeks.

FREE... 30-cc. bottle of Vitamin A-D-E Injectable when you buy 200-cc. bottle of Terramycin Injectable Solution. Look for this combination pack at your supplier's.

Corn IN JANUARY

by Doris Bouril

Inexpensive food is not necessarily the poorest buy. Wise home-makers know that large production means savings. Last summer was a golden one for corn.

Prices are right! And family tastes will be pleased when you select canned corn. Statistics show us that the record corn crop allows for each one of us to enjoy one half pound more of this vegetable at last year's price. Processors have perfected new canning methods which let the vegetable product retain more of its natural color and crispness.

One of the greatest mistakes in vegetable cookery — is over-cooking. Most canned vegetables are best prepared merely by heating through and serving with butter. Corn offers variety in serving — according to the pack you buy also. The #303 can is perhaps the most popular for average size families. This contains 16-ounces. The largest is the #10 can. Usually this is the institutional size, but large families or families who have a way of storing leftovers can enjoy even greater savings if they buy the #10 quantity.

Canned corn is available in the golden sweet corn pack, the cream style corn pack, and a pack that combines sweet green and red peppers with the corn. Corn may be included in pancake batters, fritters, muffins, stews, and chowders just to mention a few.

The blending of cream style corn, rich milk, onions, potatoes and the right mixture of pepper and salt, plus right additions of fried onions and herbs, provide corn chowder — a satisfying fuel for a cold winter's night.

FISH AND CORN CHOWDER

|-------------------------------------|---|
| 5 tablespoons butter                | 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco                              |
| 2 large onions, sliced              | 1 1/2 pounds fresh or frozen fish fillets, thawed |
| 5 medium potatoes, peeled and diced | 5 cups milk                                       |
| 3 teaspoons salt                    | Paprika or finely chopped parsley                 |
| 2 1/2 cups boiling water            |   |
| 1 can (1 pound) whole kernel corn   |   |

Melt butter in a deep kettle; add onion and cook until tender, but not brown. Add potatoes, salt, water, drained corn liquid and Tabasco. Cut fish into 2-inch pieces; add. Cover; simmer 25 minutes or until fish is tender. Add milk and drained corn; heat to serving temperature. If desired, sprinkle with paprika or parsley. Yield: 6 servings.

SAVORY CORN

3 slices bacon	¼ cup milk
½ cup chopped green pepper	½ teaspoon paprika
½ cup chopped onion	Salt
1½ cups cooked corn or canned whole kernel corn, drained	Pepper
½ lb. pkg. American cheese, diced	6 Bread baskets

Fry bacon in heavy skillet until golden brown. Remove bacon from skillet. Add green pepper and onion. Cook in remaining bacon fat until tender. Chop bacon in small pieces. Add with corn and cheese to green pepper and onion; cook over low heat. As cheese begins to melt, gradually add milk, stirring constantly. Cook until cheese is completely melted. Season with paprika and, if desired, salt and pepper. Serve immediately in bread baskets or with mashed potatoes. Makes six ½-cup servings.

Bread Baskets: Fit six slices of bread in buttered muffin pans, so that each slice bread takes the shape of a basket. Brush over with melted butter. Bake in preheated hot oven (425°F.) about 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Use hot as for patty shells.

TOMATO-CORN CHOWDER

2 slices bacon, diced
 ¼ cup grated onion
 2 cups cubed raw potatoes
 1½ teaspoons salt
 1 cup water
 ½ teaspoon pepper
 1 cup drained whole kernel corn
 2 cups tomato juice
 4 tablespoons flour
 ½ cup milk

Cook bacon and onion until bacon is crisp. Add potatoes, water and seasonings. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Add corn, tomato juice and flour which has been dissolved in milk. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally until thickened. 6 servings.

COCK-A-DOODLE CASSEROLE

- |   |                                 |
|---|---------------------------------|
| 1/4 cup chopped green pepper                | 1/4 teaspoon poultry seasoning  |
| 2 tablespoons chopped onion                 | One 17-oz. can cream style corn |
| One 4 1/2-oz. jar sliced mushrooms, drained | 1 cup dairy sour cream          |
| 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted   | 2 cups drained cooked noodles   |
| 1/4 teaspoon salt                           | 2 cups diced cooked chicken     |
|   | Paprika                         |

Saute green pepper, onion and mushrooms in melted butter or margarine until vegetables are just tender. Remove from heat; stir in salt, poultry seasoning, canned corn and sour cream. Pour over noodles and chicken in greased 2-quart casserole. Stir lightly to mix. Sprinkle with paprika, if desired. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°) 25 to 30 minutes. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

MEXICAN CORN PUDDING

- |   |                                |
|---|--------------------------------|
| 1 No. 303 can (2 cups) cream style corn | 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento |
| 3 eggs, slightly beaten                 | 1/2 teaspoon salt              |
| 1/2 cup fine cracker crumbs             | 1/4 teaspoon pepper            |
| 1 teaspoon grated onion                 | 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard       |
| 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper      | 2 cans Vienna sausage          |

Combine corn, eggs, cracker crumbs, onion, green pepper, pimiento and seasonings. Slice the contents of one can Vienna sausage and add. Pour into a well-greased 1-qt. casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) about 1 hour. Arrange remaining Vienna sausage over top of casserole the last 15 minutes of baking. 6 servings.
