Educational Aid Enlarged by VA

Sons and daughters of totally and permanently disabled veterans whose disabilities are service connected may now participate in the War Orphans Educational Assistance Program administered by the Veterans Administration.

July 7, 1964, the War Orphans Educational Act was amended so as to provide benefits, not only to sons and daughters of deceased veterans, but also to sons and daughters of living veterans who have service-connected disabilities which are total and permanent in nature. The VA estimates that there are several thousand children throughout the Nation who are affected by the new law.

The law provides for benefits up to $110 a month for full-time enrollment and proportionately lower benefits for part-time study for eligible children attending college or pursuing non-college courses leading to gainful employment. Courses on the high school level are not allowed. Age limits are set at 18 to 23, but exceptions can be made in certain cases.

These are the highlights of the amended Educational Assistance Program. For further information, or for answers to your specific questions, see your County Veterans Service Officer, Chris Barholz, Veterans Service Officer, who will be glad to assist in the proper completion of the application forms. His office is located at 108 Main St., Wayne.

Bob Wriedt Wins in Scout Speech Contest

Bob Wriedt of Explorer Post 174, Wayne, Monday night won a speaking contest sponsored by the Diamond Dick District of Boy Scouts. He competed with four scouts from Troop 200, Ponca, for the privilege of representing the district in a Covered Wagon Council contest which will send a delegation to visit the governor of Nebraska during Scout Week in February.

The Norfolk Toastmaster Club judged the speeches, on the topic, "America's Heritage: Freedom's Keystone."

Bob's older brother Ronald won the council contest a year ago.

Use Caution When Working in Silos

Silo gas is a killer. But it needn't be on any Nebraska farms if the advice of National Safety Council and U. S. Department of Agriculture safety specialists is followed.

They list these safety precautions: Keep the silo entrance inaccessible to youngsters.

Never enter a silo during filling time until you've checked for the absence of silo gases. Carbon dioxide is harder to detect because it has no odor or color. But if a lantern flame goes out in the pit, stay out until a blower has run for awhile.

Nitrogen dioxide is usually easier to identify because of a yellow-orange color and pungent odor. It's more likely to occur during a dry year — such as has been experienced in many parts of Nebraska. Both gases form quickly and are extremely toxic even at slight exposure.

Always use the blower before entering of filling.

Keep silo doors open to ensure the circulation of fresh air and your own safety.

Two German Youths Guests Of Wayne Kiwanis Families

Wayne is being honored two weeks by the presence of two guests from the old country. Siegfried Hanzler and Charlotte Von Westerholt, both 23 and both natives of Germany, are spending four weeks in the United States, two of these in Wayne. The trip is sponsored by American Foundation for World Youth Understanding, Inc., and Kiwanis.

Charlotte, a kindergarten teacher in her native land, is staying in the K. N. Olds home during the two-week period.

She is from the extreme western part of Germany, in the heart of the highly-populated industrial section of Deutschland, Fralein Von Westerholt's home-town is none other than Westerholt.

This isn't as much of a coincidence as it may appear. "Von" in Germany is a title similar to "Sir" in England. It depicts nobility. Miss Westerholt's ancestors were royalty, and the city of Westerholt was named after them.

Herr Hanzler, on the other hand, is from the less-populated more southern part of Germany, from the town of Neckerhausen. Neckerhausen is approximately 20 miles south of Stuttgart.

Hanzler is the son of a flour mill operator, and attends a special college in business administration. He is presently the guest of Cal Comstock and will spend the next week in the Dick Kern home. One of the differences which he encountered between Germany and the U. S. is in the food.

While in New York they will tour the World's Fair and the United Nations. From New York they will head for Washington, D. C., and a tour of the State Department, the FBI, and the White House. If they are lucky they may meet President Johnson.

How do they feel about America now that they are here? "We are glad to be here," said Siegfried. "to see how Americans live."

"It was called a journey to learn," echoed Charlotte. "and we are learning."

Would they return if given the opportunity? "Yes, definitely."

All who have met and spoken with these two outstanding examples of youthful German diplomats, most certainly hope they do.

County Fair Opens Today With Barbecue, Fireworks

A free barbecue tonight (Thursday) and a gigantic fireworks display will herald the opening of the Wayne County Fair. The three-day affair will run through Saturday.

Jaycees Present Resolutions at State Convention

Bernard Edging and Terry Janssen represented Wayne Junior Chamber of Commerce at the state convention in Chadron last weekend.

Wayne Jaycees received statewide recognition when state director Edging presented three safety resolutions on behalf of the local chapter. The resolutions received unanimous endorsement of the state organization.

In his presentation, Edging stated, "It is the general intent and policy in the sphere of safety activities of the Wayne Junior Chamber of Commerce to promote, encourage, and induce those phases of public law and safety regulations that are in the public interest. We express a growing concern as the death toll is increasing at an alarming rate on Nebraska highways. The Wayne Junior Chamber, therefore, requests that this state organization endorse a policy of concern of traffic safety in Nebraska."

Examinations Set for Coast Guard Academy

Congressman Ralph F. Beermann today announced that the annual competition for entrance to the U. S. Coast Guard Academy will commence with the Dec. 5, 1964 administration of the College Entrance Examination Board (CEE) tests. These examinations will be given in over 3,000 test centers.

Congressman Beermann emphasized the opportunity offered qualified young men who choose this four-year course which leads to a commission as a career officer in America's oldest continuous seagoing Armed Service and a Bachelor of Science degree.

"Appointments are made on a competitive basis; there are no separate quotas for States or Districts and no special categories," he said. "I urge all qualified young men who are interested in this worthwhile profession to write for details and application as soon as possible to the Commandant (PTP-2), U. S. Coast Guard, Washington, D. C., 20226."

A candidate for the next examination for the Coast Guard Academy must be single, must have reached his 17th but not his 22nd birthday by July 1, 1965 and must be in excellent physical condition.

A high school diploma is the minimum educational requirement, although high school seniors assured of being graduated by June 30, 1965 are eligible to take the examination if they will have at least 15 credits by that time.

All applicants must have three units of English, two in algebra, and one in plane geometry by graduation.

Cliff Dahl Tells of Visit To "Land of Enchantment"

(Editor's Note: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dahl recently returned from a visit to Norway. Below is Mr. Dahl's account of their trip.)

Since Mrs. Dahl and myself are both of third generation Norwegian ancestry, we made a rather hasty decision to revisit Norway, that "Land of Enchantment," as it is so often referred to. We were there in 1946-1947 for a period of nine months and this was an opportunity to renew old acquaintances as well as to visit Kinfolk, most of whom were second cousins.

After writing a travel agency in Minneapolis, we were issued flight reservations via Icelandic Airlines for Tuesday, June 16 to Oslo. We immediately applied for passports and secured the necessary health certificates.

After boarding our 85-passenger DC-6 plane the "Loftlider" at New York City, we headed for Gander, Newfoundland, which was supposed to be our first, refueling stop. Instead, a radio report announced that Gander was closed in by heavy fog and we were ordered to proceed north to Goose Bay, Labrador, a military base, and therefore instructed to leave our cameras on board the plane.

Our next stop was Reykjavik, Iceland, a thriving modern city of 80,000 inhabitants — the only capital in the world where the houses are heated by boiling water straight from the hot springs. Upon arrival, we were loaded on buses and taken to a downtown hotel for dinner. Reykjavik, I was told, is where the first Viking settler made his home about 11 centuries ago.

After our two-hour stop-over, we were soon airborne and able to catch glimpses of five volcanoes and hot springs shooting high in the air. Our only regret was that we didn't arrange for a two or three day stay in this interesting land. About two hours later we passed over the Faro Islands.

When the Captain announced that we could now see the coastline of Norway, a wave of excitement went up as passengers craned their necks to see the fjords, small villages, farms and the lofty snow capped mountains. High atop these we noted many small lakes.

After landing in Oslo, the capital city of 471,500 inhabitants, we were greeted through customs and were greeted by a large group of relatives and friends who had come to welcome us. Moments later we unloaded our baggage in cars and were whisked away to their home in a nice part of the city. Here a gaily decorated table awaited us decked with many Norwegian delicacies. The centerpiece consisted of a floral decoration and the Norwegian and American flags.

Far into the night we answered many questions concerning the United States and Nebraska. During our entire stay in Norway, we were to note that the Norwegian people have great respect and love for our country and look to us for world leadership and to keeping the peace. Upon awakening each morning, we were usually treated to a large tray of coffee and cakes at our bedside, an ancient custom that has been handed down from one generation to another.

After a few days in Oslo seeing the many and varied points of interest, we boarded a train and headed north over the lofty and beautiful Dovre mountains to Trondheim, thence further north to Mosjon and Mo, both of which are near the Arctic Circle. Here we saw the midnight sun and it seemed strange to see the bright sunshine streaming through our bedroom window at midnight. Following a long drive north of the city of Mo, our friend, the president of a large crane corporation, presented Mrs. Dahl and myself each a certificate which was entitled: "Polar Passport As Issued to All Good Men and True, Upon Crossing the Arctic Circle in Norway." This fine gentleman was elated to discover that we were both members of Lions International. He later invited the president of their club to his home and we enjoyed a long visit.

We have been asked many times what impressed us most during our month's stay in Norway. Without a second's hesitation, we must say that it is the breathtaking beauty of this beautiful land, plus the warm courtesy and hospitality of its people. Mrs. Dahl and myself often remarked, "we feel like celebrities." Equally impressing is their sincerity and honesty. Honesty is exemplified best through a small incident which impressed me. I had made a small purchase at a store in northern Norway and unknowingly overpaid the clerk one crown, about 14c. When I was about a half block down the street I heard a clattering of heels behind me. It was the young lady who had waited on me moments before. She grabbed at my sleeve and apologized for not noticing this grave error on her part. She bowed politely and raced back to her store.

Norway constitutes the western part of Scandinavia of which it covers about 40 per cent. The country is the fifth largest in Europe, while second to Iceland population density is the lowest. In the east the country borders on Sweden, Finland and the Soviet Union, and otherwise has the sea as its boundary, with an exceptionally long coastline is approximately 17,000 miles because of the many fjords and inlets. The latitude is about equal to that of Alaska. The 125,064 square miles of Norway is distributed as follows: cities 6.3 per cent, agriculture 32 per cent, lakes and rivers 4.8 per cent, islands 6.9 per cent, and productive forests 21.7 per cent and mountains 61.6 per cent.

The climate is to a great extent determined by the Gulf Stream which brings warm water from the tropics to Norwegian coastal waters, keeping the majority of the harbors free from ice throughout the winter.

This was an unusually cool summer. Following a pleasant, warm month of May, the weather turned cold and there was much rain. In one part of the country there was heavy damage to the potato crop because of frost. In the high mountain area, there were blizzards which blocked highways. Not until our last week in Norway did we enjoy warm sunny days which I estimated to be from 65 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit. The Norwegians complained of the heat.

Although we think of Norway as a poor country, she enjoys a high standard of living and is showing remarkable growth and development since the war years. The number of tourists is becoming heavier each year as Americans and those of other lands have "discovered" Norway as truly a tourist's paradise.

Cost of living is much lower compared to our standards, however, such items as gasoline, camera film and cigarettes are very expensive. American cigarettes sell for over $1.00 per package and their own brands at 63c to 75c a gallon. They drive small cars which give them increased mileage, plus the fact that their roads and highways are too narrow for American models.

Although the Evangelical Lutheran church is the state church of Norway, there is freedom of religion, but 86 per cent of the population belongs to the Church of Norway. A number of ancient "Stave Churches" are still to be found and they excite the imagination of all tourists. Some large cathedrals date back 900 years and one can spend hours visiting their interiors.

Since Nebraska is largely an agricultural state, it might be of interest to the readers that about 15 per cent of Norway's population is engaged in agriculture, with or without earnings from other trades. Practically all farmers own their own farms. The aggregate agricultural average is about 2.5 million, equivalent to 3.3 per cent of the total land area, and there are 197,500 farms.

The farms are small. Only 20,000 have more than 25 acres of farm land while only 43 have more than 250 acres. 76,000 farmers have farming as their sole occupation, while 45,900 farmers also have a second occupation. In the coastal districts farming is often combined with fishing, while in the inland districts earnings are supplemented by working in the forests. 75,000 of the farms are so small that the main source of income must be found in other occupations. Many farms, however, have forests in addition to their farm land. Since hired labor is scarce, about 90 per cent of the work is carried out by the farmer himself and his family.

Norwegian agriculture is based on the holding of livestock and on the production of fodder. Milk is the main sales product, followed by beef, pork, eggs and poultry. Norway also has a comparatively large number of sheep and a large production of wool. To many farms, fur farming is an important source of supplementary income.

About one-third of the agricultural area is tillage and gardening land, while two-thirds is meadow and grazing land. The main crops are grain (mainly barley and oats) and potatoes. In some districts the fruit and berry crops are of great importance to the local economy. Norwegian agriculture is strongly organized. Farmers have their own cooperative purchasing, sales and processing organizations. The government subsidizes to some extent production and also cultivation of new farmland. Purchases of machinery and equipment may be financed under government guarantee and loan systems.

The citizens of Wayne, and especially Dr. William Brandenburg, president of Wayne State College, will be pleased in knowing that on three separate occasions when I mentioned Wayne, Nebraska, these people remarked, "isn't there a very fine college in that town?" I was proud to announce that there is. There is a definite shortage of colleges in Norway and many students are forced to continue their education in other parts of Europe.

Since we have taken well over 400 colored slides during our delightful journey to the far north, we would be most happy to show them to groups or organizations in the Wayne area and at no cost. Perhaps we can in this small way say thanks for the many kind favors shown us and the Dahl Retirement Center throughout these many years.

On July 18 we wound up our stay in Norway and boarded our plane for the return trip to the United States. At Sola Airport in Stavanger a group of friends were here to bid us goodbye. One fine gentleman's parting words were: "Hils alle hvor gode venner i Amerika" (Greet all our good friends in America). I am sure that he expresses the feelings of

Mirror Doors Make Rooms Look Bigger

Looking for a simple way to "spruce-up" an unattractive, seemingly crowded bedroom? Try exchanging those regular clothes-closet doors for full-length sliding mirror doors which will magically "glide" new beauty into the room.

And, as designers point out, remodeling a bedroom this way is a perfect solution to problems of space and light, as the mirrors make the room appear bigger than it really is while multiplying existing light. At the same time, a handy, full-length dressing mirror is added as an indispensable grooming aid.

Easy to Install

Unlike some remodeling projects which require extensive changes to the walls, sliding doors can, with the help of a competent builder, be installed on existing closets with a minimum of carpentry work.

There are three basic types to suit any room—the recessed type which rolls out of sight into a wall "pocket" when opened, the by-pass type which has the doors mounted on parallel tracks and can be opened from either side, and the floor-to-ceiling, surface-mounted type which is highly adaptable to closets having conventional hinged doors.

Because they slide rather than swing, the doors save valuable floor space, allowing furniture arrangements which would not be practical in the same room with conventional doors. There is little to be gained in remodeling any room if the end result brings about more everyday maintenance. With sliding mirror doors, however, an occasional cleaning with a damp cloth is all that is needed to remove finger marks and smudges and return the finish to its original luster.

The surface is impervious to wear, never needs refinishing and goes well with any style of furniture or color scheme. Since the glass can't warp or swell, the danger of the doors sticking is eliminated.

When remodeling where conventional doors of the pocket or by-pass type are already installed, it is a simple matter to replace them with sliding mirror doors. Where home owners wish to convert closets which have regular hinged doors, however, the face-mounted floor-to-ceiling type is the easiest to use as they mount securely to the wall studs and avoid the necessity of reinforcing the header to accommodate the additional weight. Here again, a good builder can be invaluable in helping to make the correct choice of door style.

Mirrors can double the size of a room, provide a flattering background, or give a third dimension to any part of a room that is reflected in it.

Mirrors can brighten and spark a dark or windowless foyer, corner or hall, and give any area architectural unity.

Mirrors Enhance Decor

Mirrors pick up the color of beautiful draperies, make twins of prize possessions, distribute and create light. They add gaiety or regal dignity or sheer drama.

Although mirrors as decoration are not new, they have, over the past few years, become a vastly valuable material in the decorative field. This increasing importance of mirror magic in today's decor is re-emphasized by its strategic, functional and discriminate use by owners engrossed in home improvement.

Backyards Geared For Family Fun

Since World War II, more and more families have been proving that there's no place like home for outdoor living!

What started with Saturday night cook-outs at a backyard grill has progressed to the point where today, many people don't have to go any further than their own property to enjoy favorite sports or a swim.

The modern concept of total development of property has led to today's practice of utilizing the entire backyard space to meet specific needs of every member of the family.

In order to make maximum use of outdoor areas, it is important to first assess the family needs and the functions each area is to fulfill. Ideally, a backyard is broken up into living and game areas. In planning outdoor projects, careful consideration should be given to existing landscaping and sun and wind exposure.

Outdoor "Living Room"

Many families have extended their "living room" outdoors by means of decks, terraces, patios and porches of flagstone, concrete, tile or wood. These sunning, dining and entertaining areas may be enclosed and protected by screening or fencing. Ideally, the barbecue pit should be located nearby.

Today's backyard is also a recreation "room" where the family keeps fit by having fun. Although each outdoor game has its own requirements as to space, with a little thought play areas for several sports can be included on the home property.

Careful planning can turn a concrete patio or driveway into a family sports area with a shuffleboard court, a basketball hoop and deck tennis provisions.

Grassy areas of the backyard are ideal for volley-ball, deck tennis, badminton, croquet, golf putting, etc.

When many families feel like a swim, they head for their own backyard instead of the nearest lake or shore area. The swimming pool, once a luxury for a privileged few, is now priced within reach of the average homeowner.

For the family without a conventional swimming pool, there are plastic wading pools, many of them large enough to permit adults, as well as youngsters, to keep cool in warmer weather.

Children's Haven

Although the backyard has become a play area for adults, children have not been forgotten. Many yards have areas enclosed with built-in "baby-sitter" fences for complete protection from neighborhood hazards.

Youngsters play on outdoor "kiddie gyms," slides, swings, and sand boxes made of modern "safety-first" materials in imaginative shapes and colors.

Families can enjoy outdoor living more with "indoor" conveniences. Modern lawn furniture is as good-looking and comfortable as it is durable. Backyard lighting arrangements extend game-time and permit evening use of outdoor living "rooms."

Today's home-owner relies on portable planters to keep his backyard as pretty as it is practical. Plant boxes and tubs mounted on casters or dollies are easily moved and maintained, and are colorful additions to terraces, patios and sun decks. Even small trees and shrubs will thrive in terrace tubs.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

U. S. Beef To Europe

A short time ago a liber carried a shipment of American beef to London where it went on display at the famous Smithfield market. And that was an event of potentially great significance.

Only young men admire old men, and unless rich they don't admire them much.

Capitol News Change in Decorum Planned For Next State Legislature

LINCOLN — The decorum of the next State Legislature would be changed considerably if recent recommendations of a legislative council study committee are approved.

Newsmen and lobbyists would not be able to move freely about the back portion of the senate chamber while the lawmakers are in session.

But the interim committee on legislative processes feels visitors to the legislature should have more room. In making its recommendation, it said visitors often find it difficult to sit anywhere other than under the balconies.

Under the proposal, the main floor area would be reserved for the use and convenience of visitors and relatives of the legislators.

What about newsmen and lobbyists? They aren't as bad off as it might first appear. The committee said both will be allowed to sit beneath the chamber balconies adjacent to the main floor, and in the balconies.

All in all, it's a stone's throw move. Another recommendation suggests that some type of vote-counting machine be installed in the chamber which would show the number of senators voting, the number voting nay, and the number not voting on each machine vote.

Presently, no totals are flashed on the huge electronic vote-counting board, but totals are announced after a short delay by the clerk of the legislature.

The committee said many would like to know immediately the total vote. Still another recommendation would require a three-fourths majority vote of the elected members of the legislature to amend the rules of the Unicameral.

Now only a two-thirds vote is necessary. The committee said this recommendation is designed to speed up daily routine in the legislature by preventing duplicative and unnecessary changes.

Insurance and Taxes
A record number of Nebraska families hold life insurance policies, the Institute of Life Insurance has reported.

It said more than 1.7 million policies are owned in the state providing $5.2 billion of protection. Meanwhile, the Internal Revenue Service reported federal tax collections in Nebraska for the fiscal year ended June 30 of this year amounted to $664 million. Individual income tax collections were $457 million, an increase of $18 million over the previous year.

Estate and gift tax collections were $21 million, and corporate income tax collections $98 million. Taxes are going up most every-

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

Know What You're Voting For

The "Get Out the Vote" campaigns are beginning as November approaches. One attractive leaflet is entitled "Just One Vote" and is aimed squarely at the eligible voters who stay away from the polls. And they amount to a disgracefully large number. In 1960, a presidential election year, more than a third of the voters failed to exercise their right of franchise — a right which is at the very heart of representative government and a free society.

How important is one vote? It can actually determine the result. In recent elections, a mayor, a city treasurer, a councilman and a state legislator won office by just that margin. And, moving up the ladder, the late President Kennedy's plurality in 1960 was less than one vote per precinct. His margin of victory was less than 120,000 votes out of almost 69 million cast.

So much for facts and figures. Another point needs stressing. The country doesn't need "Just Voters". It needs "Informed Voters" — men and women who study the issues and the positions of the candidates, all the way from town and country to Capitol Hill and the White House and know exactly what they are voting for.

So — vote, and vote intelligently for the people and the principles you believe in.

of snap beans. Periodically, another machine comes to life like a zipper ripping open as the recording equipment pours its accumulated information onto a punched tape.

Results to date show that more water is removed from the soil profile by plants under sheltered conditions than in the open field.

Physical Fitness Meeting
Physicians and athletic trainers from a three-state region will meet here later this month to discuss physical fitness in competitive athletics.

Recognized authorities in the fields of medicine and competitive athletics will be on hand from Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas.

It's hoped some fitness guidelines for contact and non-contact sports can be established.

Topics on the program include physical findings that influence the conditioning process, and psychological impact of competitive athletics on the pre-teen athlete and his family.

Seminar Planned
The annual west-north central interprofessional seminar on diseases common to animals and man will be held at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine in Omaha, Sept. 11-12.

Feature speakers will come from Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota and one from Germany.

Don Cunningham Says

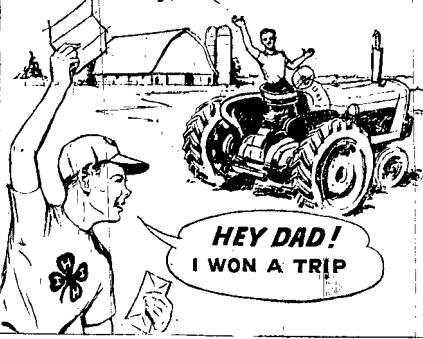

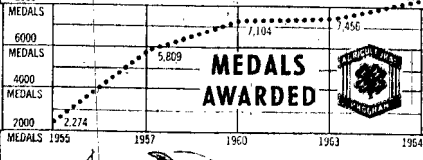

Our column this week is taken from the Sunday, Aug. 2, issue of the Des Moines Register. We were prompted to pass it on to you. We think this present July and the first few days of August have made us mindful of those dry hot days of 1936. Seems to me that the dairy quoted in this article is about as vivid and as stark a description as we could give of those days. We quote the column herewith:

1963 — "That Was the Summer That Was"
So far this summer Iowa has had at least 15 days of 90-degree-or-above temperatures. On two days in July, the temperatures soared to 100 degrees or above. But if you've been feeling sorry for yourself, consider the summer of 1936 when there were 27 days that the mercury was above the 100-degree mark, including 15 consecutive days in July.

Crops on some Iowa farms were a total loss as a result of the blistering heat and lack of rain. Here, from the pages of a dairy kept by Edith Harwood of Washington, Ia., is a record of that summer:

July 11 — "For nine consecu-

300% Increase In 4-H Agricultural Awards

live days the thermometer has climbed above 100 degrees — 104, 108, 108, 105 — so it goes, and most of those days a south-east wind has blown over fields and gardens searing everything like the blast from a furnace.

This is the kind of heat that gets into one's bone and muscle, turning strength to weakness; makes fingers tremble and eyeballs burn; that gets into one's head and presses outward with an ever increasing power. One feels that the normal behavior on such a day should include screaming, tearing of hair, and frenzied dashes without direction or purpose.

July 13 — "Two more days of it. In the dead air, dust hangs like a pall over the earth. Morning is no longer beautiful. Brilliant, harsh and strident, it crashes through the darkness with its powers fallblown, and we awaken, stifled, and unrefreshed."

July 15 — "The government thermometer at Washington (county seat) recorded 115 degrees above zero yesterday."

July 17 — "Shrubs are dying; pastures are brown. The corn is now almost wholly given up for lost. Discouragement is almost as seizable, touchable, tasteable as the dust. Some farmers are digging deeper wells, many are selling hogs and cattle for whatever price they can get, some are hauling tank full of water from a distance — from a more favored community."

"I can't think of anything except rain: to smell it, to see the tree bend beneath it, to feel a lay wet wind in my face, to lay my hand on the earth and feel it fresh and cool again — healed of its sorrow."

July 9 — "Cooler at last, but still no rain. This evening we rode out into country southeast of town (Brighton). Field after field of corn, forced into tasseling before its time, then scorched for two weeks by the blistering heat, presented white crowns, white and bent. There will be no pollenization. And as if that were not enough, field after field, eaten by grasshoppers, looked like old battlefields — only poor broken stumps remaining."

July 28 — "The corn fields stand like rows and rows of aged penitents with bowed white heads. Under the glare of the sun the chinch bugs and grasshoppers do their work of destruction silently."

Sept. 1 — "There will be no harvest here. No fattened stock to sell. Many a man and woman in the countryside hereabouts are lying wakeful at night trying to maneuver figures, that will not lie, into a pattern that says 'We can go on. We can keep what we have. We can wait and hope for a better year to come.'"

N.E. Extension Notes

How to achieve a degree of comfort on warm humid days and hot nights is a problem of top priority these August days. If you do not have air conditioning you are not alone. Many folks have to rely on electric fans. They can serve quite well if properly placed.

Proper placement is the key to getting the most cool comfort from your electric fan. For example, on a very hot night, the exhaust power of an electric fan can be increased by as much as 75 per cent by placing the fan two or three feet back from an open window with the fan blades facing the window opening squarely and blowing out, with the fan operating in a non-oscillating position. Then by opening the other windows in the room, you will get the benefit of the cooler outdoor

Way Back When

10 Years Ago

August 12, 1954. Jean Boyd, former Wayne county treasurer, assumed his duties as postmaster of the Winslow office Wednesday. A Wayne State nursery school was opened in the former home of the president which has been moved to a site near the campus. County Sheriff Hans Tietgen was successful in his bid for Republican re-nomination. He polled 1,078 votes. Sixteen farms were nominated in Dixon county to compete in the Sioux City permanent agriculture contest.

15 Years Ago

August 11, 1949. A blast demolished a small storehouse on the west end of Bressler's main station building and the tavern built onto the east side. Mrs. Ernest Siefkens received second degree burns Saturday while cooking for threshers. Erwin Ulrich was reelected vice president of the state brotherhood of the Evangelical United Brethren church. Roy Hurd and Fred Feldman won second and first place on their Brown Swiss calves at the canton show Saturday. Initial enrollment for the three-week session at Wayne State Teachers college reached the 348 mark by Tuesday. Mike Hanson bought the farm northwest of Wayne owned by Bernard Dalton, Lincoln. Mrs. John Sherry is attending the 27th annual Midland summer assembly for church workers at Midland college, Fremont.

20 Years Ago

August 10, 1944. Two Sioux City men perished in a plane crash Saturday near Laurel. Seventeen army aviators from the Sioux City base lost their lives in the collision of two four-motor is often mistaken for damage due to wet weather or disease. To control leafhoppers, DDT or malathion should be used. Detailed recommendations on these and other insecticides, including the amounts of each which should be applied in various forms to insects are available on the USDA lawn and garden bulletin control No. 53 "Lawn Insects and How to Control Them." This bulletin can be obtained through County Extension offices.

Chiggers — These mites or red bugs invade lawns from surrounding grassy or woody areas. They attach themselves to the skin and release a poison that causes severe irritation and intense itching. For control of chiggers, Malathion, Diazinon, Chlor-dane, Lundayn and Taxaphene may be used according to recommendations.

"Follow directions on the container label and heed all precautions in regard to each insecticide," Roselle states. "Do not apply insecticides to a lawn when people or animals are on it, and do not allow insecticides to drift to an area where they might injure people or animals. Do not permit children or animals on the lawn until the insecticide has been washed off by sprinkling, and the grass has dried completely."

"Wash thoroughly with soap and water after applying insecticides, and before eating and smoking. Wash dusting or spraying equipment thoroughly after using it."

Anyone needing to landscape a new home or planning to improve the landscaping of an older one will find a lot of help in a new pamphlet written by Clark Jensen and Wayne Whitney, University of Nebraska Extension horticulturists.

Available from county agents, it is Extension Circular 64-1205, Landscaping Your Home.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: I have wrote to my Congressman and ask him to get them two Government agencies that was conferring at the summit on chicken soup to put another item on the agenda.

It used to be a feller could get a pair of pants he could pull off with his shoes on without no trouble. But the pants makers has got together and figured if you can sell chicken soup without no chicken you can sell pants without no cloth. And it looks like the disease is spreading. Hat brims was getting slimmer and slimmer and some stores was now selling shoe strings fer neck ties. The legs on the last pair of pants I bought fits me tight and snug like my winter underwear. If a feller's ankle goes swell up during the day he'd just have to keep his pants on for the duration. Furthermore they don't allow no margin at the waist fer eating a good meal. I take off mine like I take off my boots, get my old lady to back up and hold on to the cuffs while I pull agin her and gravely. She says she aims to put zippers from the knee to cuff on my next pair. It could be, Mister Editor, the zipper folks was behind this save-the-cloth conspiracy.

I was reading in the papers here a while back where this television feller Jackie Gleason was amongst the best dressed men in show business. It's his pants that does it. If you'll note on his next program, his pants tapers off about even from his stummick to his ankles and he's got enough cloth there to make him look pretty good.

But they was always the danger, of course, that the Congress might overdo it and use this Gleason feller for a model. They ain't everybody that needs that much cloth, and you will recall the old saying that a telephone is a mouse mate to Government specifications.

I bring this item up at the country store Thursday night and said he couldn't speak with no authority on the subject, allowed as how the price of pants had got so high under the Democrats he ain't bought a pair since Joe moved to Giltysburg.

Joe reported he didn't have no pants problem on account of him not wearing nothing but overalls. And he was of the opinion that the Congress has got so fond of the 40-cent dollar they ain't going to investigate the pants makers for the Jarceny of a little cloth. Furthermore, he allowed, between Bobby Baker and them lobby fellers, everybody in Washington was violating the 10 Commandments and the Constitution in a manner that has got both Moses and Jefferson turning over in their graves.

Yours truly,
Uncle Zeke

August 10, 1939. Russell Barellman, 4, son of the Bernard Barellmans, Wisner, was accidentally shot in the right hip Sunday when men were working on a gun. Earl Miner, Laurel, went to Cleveland to play ball with the Cleveland Indians. Chris Luether planned to build a new home at 3rd and Logan. Carroll is holding its fall festival this Thursday with a full day's program of entertainment. Mrs. Percy Johnson and Mrs. Clarence Johnson, Carroll, were initiated in the Rebekahs at Belden Friday evening. All Wayne county grade children received free season tickets to the county fair. Kathleen Staines left August 5 for Los Angeles, San Francisco, Victoria and Montreal. Dixon county old settlers picnic was held at Hefley grove west of Allen. Governor R. L. Cochrane spoke.

30 Years Ago

August 10, 1934. On account of dry weather the canning project planned here will likely be dispensed with. Potatoes were sold for 40c a bushel. No charge was made at the gate of Wayne county fair held in September. Over 300 attended the Trinity Lutheran Sunday school picnic Sunday at the Herman Podoll place. Fifty persons were employed that week on rolling rolls in Wayne county. Twenty-eight Masonic lodges and Eastern Star chapters have been invited to join in the annual northeast Nebraska picnic to be held next Sunday at Bressler park. Wayne county farmers and land owners received corn-hog contracts. Clarence Horst, Wisner, suffered bruises and lacerations when he collided with the car driven by Mrs. Bressler, Wakefield. Vocational training was offered at Wakefield school for the first time.

IN THIS ISSUE ★ The Beauty of the Sandwich
★ Home Sweet Home—In A Silo
★ Grassroots Gleanings

It didn't just happen—this successful family business at the neatly-manicured Solberg Stock Farm in Palo Alto County, Iowa. First there has been the matter of family teamwork—togetherness in field work, chores and community service. Second powerful motivating force has been the training of the Solberg daughter, Lilith, and son, Linus, received in 4-H and Future Farmer club work.

by M. Vandervelde

At 21, maximum club age, Linus stepped into partnership with his father in raising registered breeding stock. Their first cooperative project was when Mr. Solberg gave Linus, at the age of 12, his first club calf. From that modest start (and with no other hand-outs) Linus skyrocketed his holdings to his present 400 Yorkshire and Hampshire pigs per year—plus a good start in Suffolk sheep and Shorthorn cows. He has acquired a staggering assortment of blue ribbons and medals. But, best of all, this interest has made Linus a working partner with his father since he was 12 years old.

From keeping club record books the boy has stepped into income tax records. And from that one-calf start, Linus' livestock projects have boosted him to considerable net worth. But this transition hasn't been as simple as it may sound. It costs a lot of money to get started in registered stock (Linus now owns half interest in a $1000 boar). Also, quite a tidy sum, each spring, to register all the offspring. Pedigree certificates come to $200-$300 a year, and advertising in the breed journals about the same. All this is big business for a boy—and more work than you may imagine.

"To begin with, though," Linus told me, "there was just that little Hereford calf—and big dreams. I guess I was prouder of that first calf Dad gave me, than of anything I ever owned. Even if it didn't win a single ribbon. —You don't have to be a winner to enjoy club work."

The launching pad for showing club calves is the county fair. This is home ground—where aunts, uncles and cousins

The Shaping of a Farmer

Dowager Esther is still turning out the prize-winning progeny at the Solberg Stock Farm.

Linus learned at an early age, his mother says, that a club member must be well-groomed himself, when he shows his livestock. Judges watch that. On the dresser, here, are some of the trophies Linus has won.

by the dozens crowd the front lines to cheer THEIR girl or boy's entry. Peak experience for Linus may have been at the one Palo Alto County Fair when he exhibited BOTH top selections of the judges—Grand Champion Baby Beef and the Reserve Champion. A two-in-one record hard to beat.

"That Grand Champ wore an artificial tail," laughed Linus. "And if you think it's easy to pick up a switch for a steer, you just try to buy one!"

That false tail, a legitimate piece of equipment, had been mighty hard to come by. But Linus was determined, knowing that without it his bob-tailed baby beef would really be handicapped in the show ring.

"You can't walk into a shop that handles toupes and switches for folks, and buy a hair-piece for a steer's tail," Linus went on. "I finally alerted our veterinary to be on the lookout for a switch with just the proper reddish cast."

As it happened, just before fair time a rendering-works truck picked up a dead cow—minus a tail. The veterinary had spotted the corpse before the rendering works did.

Two years after the Solberg calves took the two top places at that one fair, Linus produced another Grand Champion Baby Beef—also the Champion Market Pig at that county fair. And the following year he exhibited another Grand Champion Baby Beef (this was three years in succession) and the Champion Market Pig (two successive years). There had been plenty of stiff competition each year.

"But there were a lot of times I didn't win a thing," Linus told me. "You do your best raising and training an animal; then you lose or you win. Either way, you forget about it, you're so busy getting some ready for the next fair."

After the county fairs, Linus often took his stock to Iowa State Fair, Waterloo Cattle Congress, Austin, Minnesota Barrow Show, or the U. S. Type Conference. At these nationally known shows the Solberg stock rated high placings. And some of Linus' entries went (after he had sold them) on to the American Royal and Chicago International Stock Show to make names for themselves there.

Lilith Solberg, in the meantime, was becoming stiff competition in the show ring for her brother. At one county fair the judges placed this 12-year-old girl's lamb higher than the lamb entry of Linus. Solbergs took the two lambs to the State Fair, where those judges reversed the placings! Family competition became so keen that the parents had to observe strict neutrality.

Early in his club work Linus developed a desire to get into top bloodlines, both in cattle and pigs. His father wondered if this might be a luxury they could not afford.

Finally he told the boy, "You can give it a try. But you'll have to prove that these expensive animals pay out, or we'll drop pedigrees like a hot potato."

So, one day Linus drove the family pickup into the Solberg farmyard, after the National Barrow sale, and unloaded: (1) Esther, Yorkshire Grand Champion sow for which he'd paid $510; (2) the Reserve Grand Champion boar of that show, that had cost him nearly twice as much. Small wonder there was, that day, some consternation at Solbergs. Fact is, Linus himself began to wonder about those aristocratic hogs. Esther and the boar had better pay off!

Esther immediately got down to business. At Iowa State Fair she became Reserve Junior Yearling All-American of the Yorkshire Association. Esther placed second at the fair and her daughter won Reserve Grand Champion at the same show!

From Esther's first litter, one pig sold for $240, another brought $800. The next year Esther was taking honors as Grand Champion at Clay County Fair, herself, while two of her litter (Bomber 1st and Bomber 2nd) brought $1100 and Linus helps his father, Irving, rig up a machine to spray the corn. Irving says that raising a club animal, keeping books on feed costs, etc., then the show-ring experience "win or lose" have been good training for his boy.

$1025, respectively, at the National Barrow sale. And at the same time and place Rocket (the Bombers' brother) was made Grand Champion boar—and Angela (also from this litter!) became Grand Champion sow of the breed. That was a valuable litter of Bombers, Rockets and Angels. And there was another littermate, Angel, whom Linus sold for $430. But, after Angel had been sold, Linus decided he couldn't part with her, so he bought her back. Angel returned to Solbergs, where she is now producing small angels. And Esther, the matriarch, is there, turning out prize-winning progeny.

Following graduation from high school, Linus enrolled for a quarter of Farm Operation at Iowa State University. There, he carried 18 credit hours of class work: Ag Engineering, Metal Work, Soils, Livestock Production, Economics, Farm Management. Then, part of the following winter he spent at Lackland Air Force Base in the employ of Uncle Sam. Now he attends National Guard sessions, and a two-weeks training session each summer.

While at Lackland, Linus felt some concern for a certain foursome of pigs back on the Iowa farm—he was to show them at the Harrisburg Pennsylvania Type Conference as soon as he got home. It furnished his parents some amusement that Linus' letters to them contained detailed directions about care, handling and attention given those pigs. He wrote details about diet, about providing the right type floor to strengthen the pigs' legs, etc.

Linus did take those porkers to the Harrisburg show. From their winnings, one might assume his parents made pretty good pig "sitters."

What of the future for a club boy who has just outgrown club work? Linus will stay with livestock farming, continuing to specialize in registered breeding stock.

big capacity pays off!

Superpickers are plug-free in biggest yields... even in down and tangled corn!

Superpicker is made to get out the biggest yields. Even in down and tangled corn, Superpicker keeps moving, picking clean — with fewer annoying field stops... so it's safer, too!

One look tells you why. Long, tapered floating points hinged above the gathering chains get under down and tangled stalks... patented snap bars reduce plugging... high angularity of snapping rolls gets ears off fast... beaters keep ears moving right into the extra wide first elevator... everything New Idea-engineered to give the bold Superpicker big trouble-free capacity!

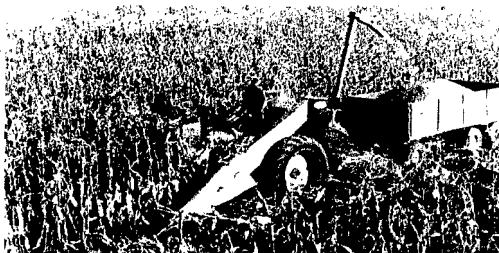

And you can come out of the field with corn just the way you want it! Pick and husk... pick and shell... or pick and grind on the move in the field!

But don't just envy your neighbor who has a Superpicker. Start now enjoying non-stop picking. You can trade for a Superpicker for this year's harvest and make the first payment in the fall of 1965!

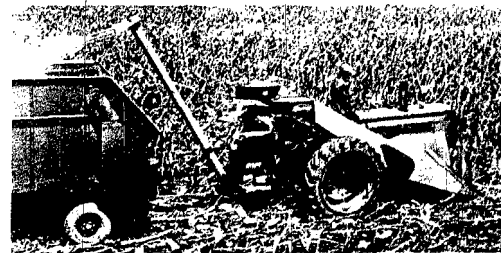

So make the big move. Make friends with Superpicker... it's guaranteed for a full year by New Idea, Coldwater, Ohio.

where bold new ideas pay off for profit-minded farmers

PICK AND SHELL! Big capacity cage-type field sheller adds versatility to your mounted Superpicker. Rugged one-piece cylinder... positive auger feed... load leveling thrower... simple flow control. Mounts in 30 minutes like husking bed!

PICK AND GRIND! New field grinder makes perfect feed for beef or dairy cattle. Cuts up cobs and husks... sizes cob particles... cracks kernels... delivers unseparated mix to wagon. Mounts just like the husking bed and sheller!

The Beauty of the

When meat and potatoes aren't on the agenda for the meal of the day, "Lima Souffle Sandwiches" are a good substitute. The sandwiches are open-faced style, with hot, cooked California large dry limas arranged on toast and a fluffy cheese souffle mixture spooned over each. Broiled until puffed and a golden brown, they're a tasty dish served with bacon curls, sliced tomatoes and cucumber. Ice-cold watermelon slices are a cool and easy dessert to wind up this supper.

LIMA SOUFFLE SANDWICHES

3 egg whites	1 tablespoon grated onion
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar	1 teaspoon salt
1 cup grated sharp American cheese	2½ cups hot cooked large dry limas*
½ cup mayonnaise	4 slices buttered toast
1 tablespoon prepared mustard	Bacon Curls
6 drops Tabasco sauce

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff. Carefully fold in cheese, mayonnaise and seasonings. Spoon drained limas over toast on baking sheet. Spread souffle mixture completely over limas. Broil until puffed and golden brown. Serve with bacon curls.

Makes 4 sandwiches.

* One cup before cooking.

LITTLE FROSTIES

12 slices white bread	Cream Cheese Frosting
6 slices whole wheat bread	½ cup toasted flaked coconut
Butter or margarine, softened	½ cup slivered toasted blanched almonds
Crab Salad Filling	½ cup minced parsley
Egg Salad Filling

Spread one side of all white bread slices with butter or margarine, spreading to edge. Arrange 6 slices on bread board, buttered side up. Spread with Crab Salad Filling. Spread one side of whole wheat bread with butter or margarine, and place buttered side down over Crab Filling. Spread top side with butter or margarine, then with Egg Salad Filling. Cover with remaining white bread, buttered side down. With very sharp bread knife, trim edges evenly. Cut each sandwich into four equal squares, triangles, or oblongs, or cut into other desired shapes. Frost tops and sides of small sandwiches with Cream Cheese Frosting.* Press toasted coconut, slivered almonds, or minced parsley into sides of sandwiches. Garnish, if desired, with pimiento-stuffed or ripe olives, radish roses, etc. Allow three miniature sandwiches per serving. Makes 8 servings.

*Note: Sandwiches will be easier to frost if held on two-tined kitchen fork.

CRAB SALAD FILLING

1 7½-ounce can crabmeat, drained and flaked (about 1 cup)	¼ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup chopped blanched almonds	½ teaspoon curry powder
	½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

Combine crabmeat, almonds, celery, curry powder and mayonnaise or salad dressing. Mix well.

EGG SALAD FILLING

3 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped	1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup finely chopped celery	1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ cup finely chopped ripe olives	3 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing

Combine eggs, celery, olives, salt, mustard and mayonnaise or salad dressing. Mix well.

CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

2 8-ounce packages cream cheese	¼ cup milk
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

Allow cream cheese to stand at room temperature for about 1 hour to soften. Slowly stir in mayonnaise or salad dressing and milk. Beat until fluffy.

Sandwich

Winds blowing and waving the fields of golden grain usually stir memories or thoughts of some type by all who view them. I think of Maltbie Davenport Babcock's words from "Give Us This Day Our Daily Bread".

"Back of the loaf is the snowy flour,
And back of the flour the mill,
And back of the mill is the wheat and the shower,
And the Sun and the Father's will."

We do many things with flour, but most commonly we use it for bread in sandwiches. The sandwich was invented by John Montagu, 4th Earl of Sandwich. He was quite a gambler. In fact he gambled so often he couldn't take time to even break for dinner. His solution was to have a slice of beef or venison brought into the gaming tables between two slices of bread. Hence, the sometimes thought of as lowly sandwich was invented. There are many lively things that can be done with sandwiches and I invite you to examine them with me.

HAMWICH PETITES

- | | |
|--|--|
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing | 1 cup ground cooked ham |
| 2 teaspoons caraway seed | 1 cup finely chopped celery |
| 2 teaspoons prepared mustard | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup finely chopped onion |
| $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups shredded sharp cheddar cheese (about $4\frac{1}{2}$ oz.) | 16 slices white bread |
| | Eight 1-ounce slices processed American cheese |
| | Mayonnaise or salad dressing |

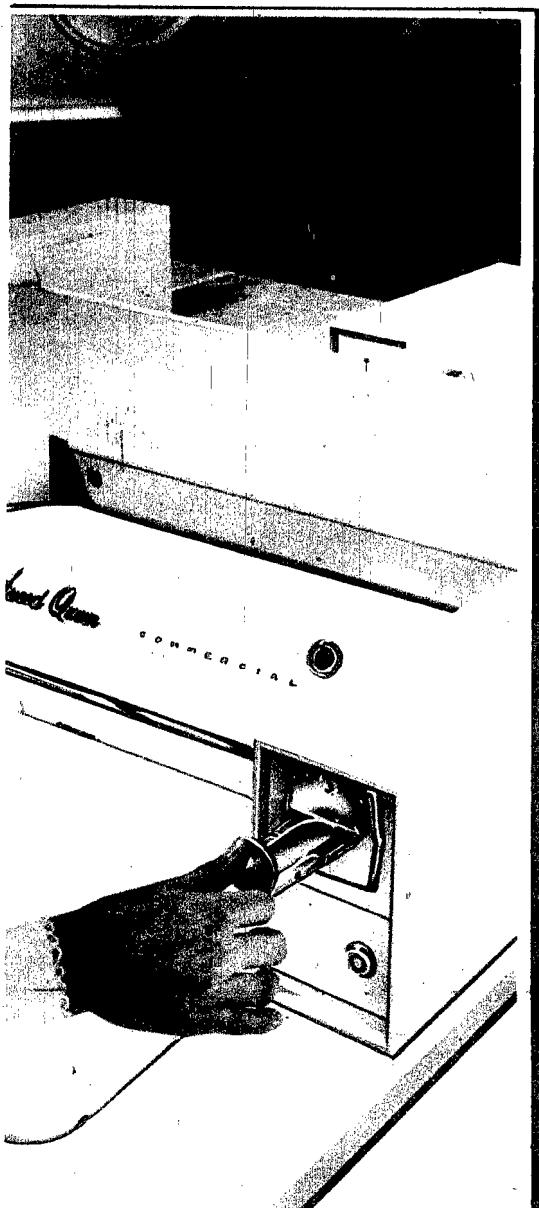

Blend together $\frac{1}{2}$ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, caraway seed and mustard. Add shredded cheese, ham, celery and onion and mix well. Trim crusts from bread and trim cheese slices to fit bread. Spread 8 slices bread with ham-cheese mixture. Spread remaining 8 slices of bread with mayonnaise or salad dressing and cover each with 1 cheese slice. Place over ham, cheese side up. Fasten each corner of each sandwich with toothpicks. Cut each sandwich into 4 squares. Place on baking sheet. Broil until cheese melts and is slightly brown.

Makes 32 appetizer sandwiches.

- | | |
|--|-------------------------------|
| 1 cup drained flaked prime fillet tuna (7-ounce can) | 1 tablespoon lemon juice |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup finely chopped salted cashew nuts | $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon nutmeg |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup finely chopped celery | 16 slices white bread |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing | Butter or margarine, softened |
| | 16 peach slices |
| | Parsley sprigs, if desired |

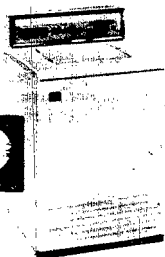

Mix together tuna, cashews and celery. Blend mayonnaise or salad dressing, lemon juice and nutmeg. Stir into tuna mixture. Cut bread slices into circles with 3-inch plain round cutter. Toast bread circles. Spread toast with butter or margarine, then with tuna mixture. Stack rounds two-high and cut in half to form double-decker semi-circles. Place peach slice on top, curving to crescent shape. Garnish each with sprig parsley, if desired. Makes 16 tea sandwiches, 2 per serving.

Home Sweet Home in a Silo

by Andrew E. Elko

Motorists driving near State Route 44 in Newbury, Ohio, often slam on their brakes and do a double take at what they think they see.

"Why, that silo looks just like a house. And it looks as if there are people living in it."

Right. Both times.

What people actually see is two silos—18 feet high—that have been joined in the middle to form a house, complete with roof, and doors and windows.

Two bachelors, Frank Burns, forty, and Steve Miner, thirty-seven, live in The Silo House and are antique dealers with an enterprising eye.

"We deal in the unusual and distinctive," says Burns, the owner, "Why shouldn't our house be the same? Besides, cornerless rooms are perfect for housecleaning."

Originally designed as an office-headquarters for a silo manufacturing concern about eight years ago, the unusual structure has been remodeled into a conventional home. It boasts four rooms, each sixteen feet in diameter—a circular parlor and kitchen on the main floor, and a bedroom and den upstairs (reached by a circular staircase, of course).

There is a partial third, or semi-silo, that connects the two main structures. This portion contains the storage space, bathroom, and utility room. It also conceals a furnace which supplies the Silo House with oil-fired heat. A deep well provides an independent water system, and a TV antenna atop the roof proclaims to one and all that this is truly a home, sweet home.

Located in the rolling hills of northeastern Ohio's Geauga county, in the heart of the area's maple syrup belt, the Silo House attracts many visitors each year.

"People cannot resist stopping in," say the two partners, smiling wisely. "After their curiosity has been satisfied they feel guilty about leaving without buying something."

Burns and Miner, who specialize in art-glass collections, have had visitors from as far as Maine—partly to see their antique display, but mostly to get a glimpse of their unique home.

The Silo House is a decorator's delight and its kitchen is influenced by the numerous Amish homes in the surrounding areas. Over the upper half of a Dutch-door you can see displayed a beautiful set of "gaudy Welch" china that is the pride of the two men and is more than 140 years old.

Furnished in curly maple, the kitchen is a cozy spot with Early American benches, a cherry farm table, and pewter and earthenware pieces that make it difficult to keep guests from underfoot when meals are being prepared.

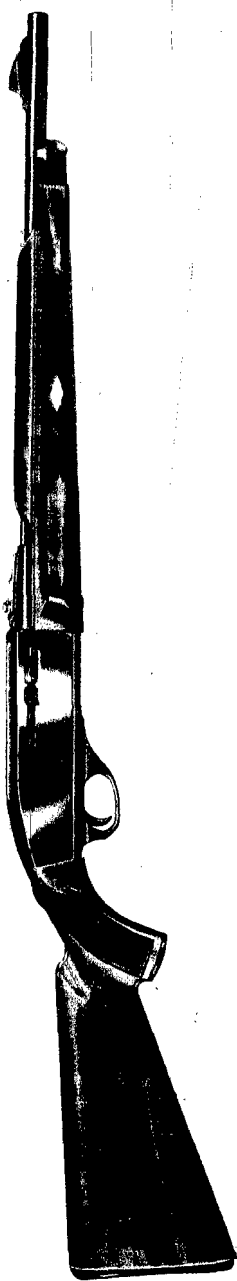

The parlor is crammed full with Louis Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth-period gold leaf pieces, with accessories ranging from blown glass to museum pieces of Rubina Verde.

The circular staircase winds upwards as in a lighthouse, past Victorian glass fixtures and hanging planters, to the bedroom that is Early American with a four-poster bed. A chest and writing desk of curly maple there blend perfectly with an old Amish wagon seat that is used as a bottom-of-the-bed bench. Completing the picture is an arrow-back chair handed down through five generations.

A contrasting tone that is refreshing is found in the den (or Wedgewood Room) which is done in blue and white, taking its inspiration from the rare collection of Wedgewood that is featured there. Also to be seen is a fine and valuable assortment of Austrian, Irish, and Italian plates, as well as other works of art.

And as though all that were not enough to fill this former forage-bin to bursting, Burns and Miner share The Silo House with a number of pets. Somehow in this compact roundhouse they have made room for a French poodle, and a dachshund, one amiable cat, an ancient and morose parrot, a cockatiel, a dove and an assortment of canaries and finches.

Surely one of the quaintest homes to be found anywhere, The Silo House is not only a traffic stopper but a conversation topic for all who visit there.

GRASSROOTS GLEANINGS

by Bill Stokes

From the 70-year-old files of the Aurora edition of the Dearborn County Register at Lawrenceburg, Ind., comes the story of the man at Osgood who owned a hog which ate a quart of nitroglycerin. The hog then wandered into a livery stable and was kicked by a horse.

"It is said that the hog bristles were blown through a three-inch plank," the story goes, and closes with, "An affidavit goes with this story."

Michigan is trying to decide whether or not to let 18-year-olds vote, The Williamston (Mich.) Enterprise reports. Meanwhile, we're trying to figure out how the voters under 18 got to running the whole show at our house.

"When one is young one does a lot of wishful thinking. When one is old one does a lot of thoughtful wishing," says The Watertown (Wis.) Daily Times.

Do you reach an age where you do thoughtful thinking?

Whether a man winds up with a nest egg or a goose egg depends on the chick he married, says The Wayne County Press, Fairfield, Ill.

The cycle of straight hair in feminine hair styles is ending and in come the curls, says a UPI women's editor in The Daily Leader, Madison, S. D.

There are three reasons, the writer says: The women are ready for curls; the clothes call for them; the men like the feminine allure of them.

Nobody asked me, but I'm willing to wager that we would be allured even if gals were bald.

Some tasks have to be put off dozens of times before they are completely forgotten, says The Morris (Minn.) Tribune.

Kissing is causing a traffic problem on a downtown street in Columbia Mo., The Columbia Missourian reports. The trouble occurs in the morning when wives are dropping husbands off at work, or when husbands are dropping working wives off. The kissing irritates drivers who are delayed in the traffic lanes behind the kissers.

There's a traffic problem the engineers never thought of. The only obvious solution is to make it illegal to kiss your mate goodbye in the morning.

This is the 22 that's made like a big-game cartridge

This is a Remington "Hi-Speed" 22. When you want a long-range 22 caliber varmint buster, this is the one to go with. We put it together as carefully as we do our big-game ammo. First, we start off with a strong, hard-brass case, loaded with special powder. We put in famous "Kleanbore" priming, the original non-corrosive mixture that helps protect barrel accuracy and life. Finally, we add exclusive "Golden" bullets, made to micrometer tolerances for fine accuracy. Result—Remington "Hi-Speed", the 22 with more speed and wallop at 50 yards than standard 22's have at the muzzle!

Get Remington "Hi-Speed" 22's in short, long and long rifle cartridges, solid or hollow point. Other top Remington 22's: Standard Velocity for shorter range shooting; Rifle and Pistol Match for very finest accuracy in target shooting. Get 'em at your nearest Remington dealer.

FARMER LEADS DOUBLE LIFE

By
William C. Nelson

The balding 39-year-old man with the jaunty step and a sparkle in his eyes makes his way around the University of Iowa campus with books and note pads under his arm.

Were it not for the raft of notebooks, Frank Fowler might look like a typical college instructor. Actually he is a student, working on his master's degree.

In the evening he hurries home to nearby Marengo to tend to the 424-acre farm he has tenanted for the last eight years. It is located two miles northeast of Marengo in the Iowa river valley.

The affable, energetic Fowler is in the fourth year of his dual farming-college career. Already he has obtained a bachelor of arts degree (in just three years at Coe college in Cedar Rapids) and is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, a national honorary fraternity for academic achievement.

By combining prayerful reverence and old-fashioned perspiration, he hopes in the next few years to complete the transition from hired man (his status in 1947) to college professor.

The Frank Fowler story actually began four years ago in a Western Civilization class at Coe college. Fowler, the father of two daughters, was beginning his college career at the unlikely age of 36—after pondering the move for years.

"I'll never forget my first few days," he says. "I sat frozen. I'm normally a pretty self-assured guy, but I was scared to death the instructor would call on me, and I wouldn't know the answer."

But then came the dawn.

His classmates were competent, articulate students. Mostly juniors and seniors, they approached the course with a smug confidence.

"They looked and talked as if they knew all," Fowler recalled. "But one day I found out that they weren't so invincible as I thought, and that I wasn't such a dumb guy after all—even though I'd been out of school for 20 years."

"That was when I came out of my shell."

Fowler went about his academic career like a man possessed. At Coe college, he would drive 80 miles round trip each day; often, during the winter, on roads nearly impassable.

In the evening he feeds his 50 Angus cattle and 40 gilts, completes his other farm chores, and then settles down in the living room for a four-hour session with the books.

His English born wife, Amy, works the evening shift at the nearby Amana Refrigeration Co. plant in Middle Amana, supplementing the family income. Shortly after midnight she returns to her scholar husband and the couple ends its long day.

On weekends and during his free days in the week, Fowler is hard at work making up for lost time in his farm duties. From sunup to sunset this extroverted, determined Iowan labors diligently in the fields and his barn.

His classroom schedule is well organized.

Fowler makes it a point to confer frequently with his instructors. If there is a point he doesn't understand, the middle-aged student never fails to ask further clarification.

Now a research assistant at the University of Iowa, Fowler figures that his education thus far has cost him more than $5,000. But he adds: "It's an investment well spent."

The Iowa farmer holds the theory that "if you want something, go out and get it—and don't spare any effort along the way."

Sleep is one commodity which has not been plentiful in the Fowler household in recent years. But does he regard his delayed schooling something of a drudgery?

"Not on your life. As a matter of fact I rather enjoy it. I love the contact and exchange of ideas with instructors and my fellow students. I find it quite stimulating."

When he has finally earned the coveted Ph.D. degree, Fowler plans to teach his favorite subject, English history, in a small college. He hopes to continue farming, too, and dreams of buying an 80 to 120-acre farm.

Summarizes Fowler:

"The opportunities are present today if a person is alert, aggressive and flexible enough to take advantage of them."
