Clark Helen Witt at Winside reports Dr. N. L. Dittman and Earl Doring won village board seats with 46 and 32 votes respectively...

Supt. Francis Haun said the Wayne elementary and high schools and Carroll elementary school will dismiss at 4 p.m. Thursday, Apr. 15. Classes will recognize on 9 a.m. Tuesday, Apr. 20.

At St. Mary's elementary school, Father William Klotzman reported a schedule almost like this. School will dismiss at 3:30 p.m. Thursday with school taking up again at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Winside, hard hit by weather and needing to make up days, will get Friday off. Classes will be held Monday, Apr. 19, according to Supt. Wayne Geserich.

Jaycees and P-TA Will Provide Voters Rides

Wayne Jaycees and the P-TA will join in providing rides to the polls Tuesday, Apr. 13. For the bond election. The Jaycees also provide rides this week for those voting on the city council and school board positions.

Anyone desiring rides next Tuesday should call 375-1700. Cars will be sent to pick up voters and they will wait to take them home.

Regardless of how you feel about the bonds, the offer is good. P-TA members and Jaycees are not going to ask how you stand before offering you a ride. The important thing they feel is to have a large turnout to exercise the right to vote.

Mrs. Jaycees Invite Area's Children to Easter Egg Hunt

Wayne's Mrs. Jaycees will hold their annual Easter egg hunt Sunday, Apr. 11, at 3 p.m. All area youngsters up to 10 years of age are invited to take part at the West Elementary school.

There will be three divisions for the hunt so the little tots do not have to compete with the big ones for the eggs. Prizes will be given in each division for the boy and girl bringing in the most eggs.

The candy eggs will be hidden by the women's civic group shortly before the hunt. There will be a special prize for each child finding a golden colored egg. Mrs. Marlene Sutherland and Mrs. Judy Sorenson are chairman for the event, according to Mrs. Steve Brasch, president. If weather is bad, the event will be postponed until a later date.

Citizen Backs Election

$1,000 Donated to New High School

Editor's Note: The following letter was handed to The Wayne Herald editor Monday. Since the party is well known to us, we have observed his request to remain anonymous. We can only say that we know this to be a legitimate gift to Carroll and Wayne children, with no strings attached. We only hope the citizens of District No. 17 will give its children another precious gift — their vote — with no strings attached.

When the final questions of site, levy, teaching stations, classrooms and gymnasiums have been discussed, the real issue of the election comes forward — the children. Economists are concerned about our national debt. We are all concerned — about the staggering debt we have placed on our youngsters. They must pay our debts and there is nothing they can do about it. Let's at least equip them to carry on. Vote for them on Apr. 13.

"I have been doing a lot of thinking about the bond issue for the new high school, and I have decided to give something to it but I don't want anything said about me. I am doing it because I believe education is important and I don't want anyone saying I did it to help my business or look like a big shot."

"Something I read in one of the newspaper articles has stuck in my mind. It said that a Yugoslav was a way to say thank you that you were born in a country where you had a chance to make good. That hit home to me. My father did not have much education and he worked hard all his life as a common laborer and my mother didn't have much more but they saw to it that I got a better education than they did and a better chance than they had. A lot of other parents did the same thing, and I think that is why America has grown to be a great country. I think one danger we face in this country is that we get to thinking that everything we have we have earned all by ourselves. I think we have to be ready to sacrifice a little for the next generation like our parents did for us."

"I have decided to give a thousand dollars to be used in the new high school for something that the school board thinks is needed like library books or adding more machinery to the shop. It is my way of saying thank you that I was born in a good country where a man has a chance and a thank you to a town that has been very good to me and my family."

After a short visitation period, parents will attend registration and orientation in another room while the children remain to get acquainted with the kindergarten room and teacher.

Over 600 Pupils Expected to Take Part When Rural Music Festival Is Held Here

A rural music festival will be held Friday, Apr. 9, in Wayne. Mrs. Gladys Porter, county superintendent of schools reports 632 rural pupils are expected to take part.

School will be as usual Friday morning. Following lunch the Wayne City auditorium for practice from 12:30 until 2.

At 2:15 a concert will be given in the auditorium and everyone is invited. The audience will be seated on the gym floor and the pupils will be seated in the bleachers.

Supt. Porter said 36 rural and two parochial schools will be represented. She said treats will be given to all youngsters taking part.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Predosh of Wayne Music company will conduct the concert and practice sessions. Mrs. Porter will make announcements just before the concert gets underway. Concert numbers will include six songs on songs and ten state-recommended group songs.

Many Sign Up for Soil Saving Terraces

Arnold Marr of the Wayne County Soil Conservation district reports several cooperators have signed up for having terraces built this spring.

He said some people ask why terracing is so important. NU experiments show the type of soil we have here will lose 15 tons of soil per acre when farmed up and down hills. Five tons of soil would be a permissible loss but the additional ten tons are too expensive to lose.

Nitrogen, phosphorous and potash at market cost for this soil would cost $10 an acre or $1,000 on 100 acres of cropland. Contour farming with terraces can reduce the soil loss.

Average cost to farmers for terraces is $4 to $5 an acre. The ASCS pays an ACP payment for this practice.

Voters in the Wayne school district, including those in Carroll and in rural areas, will go to the polls Tuesday, Apr. 13, to decide whether they want $687,000 in bonds to be issued to provide a new high school building.

Voting will be from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the City hall, City library and courthouse in Wayne, and the auditorium in Carroll. Rural precinct voters will mark ballots in the auditorium in Carroll or the library in Wayne.

Eligible to vote are those 21 years old who have resided in the district 40 days or more, who own real or personal property or who have children of school age residing in the district.

Proposed is a building which would be one-story in construction and two-stories in other. Built on sloping ground, it would be planned to make use of the natural terrain.

If the bonds are approved, the school board plans to use the money made available at once to invest and draw interest until it is needed. This would raise several thousand dollars to add to a fund which the district has on hand for purchase of property and school furnishings.

Wayne now has two elementary schools but one is on state property and has to be given up. The board proposes that the present elementary school be retained for grades kindergarten through six. The present high school be used for the junior high pupils in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades.

If a new high school is built, it would contain 72,000-square feet of space, an area constructed at a cost of less than $12 a square foot. It would be big enough to take care of present needs and the projected needs for several years to come.

Bonds would be paid off over a 20-year period with an additional 7.5 mill levy. This period to pay off the bonds was chosen over a 25-year period or a 30-year period because of savings of from $80,000 to over $200,000 on interest.

The school board chose the architect after inspecting schools drawn up for other communities. Buildings in a dozen cities were inspected but the needs of Wayne were planned. Advice was solicited from other communities where new schools had been built in order to avoid mistakes others have made.

The matter has been presented in word and print the last few months. The issue is now in the hands of the people. In order to get the school, 55 per cent of those casting votes Tuesday will have to vote in favor of the bonds.

SILVER DOLLAR NIGHT DRAWING $400

Ground Broken at WSC for Buildings

The growth of bulldozers heralded spring's arrival Tuesday on Wayne State's campus.

Thus began another new era of growth with construction of a nine-story dormitory and an addition to the student center.

A bulldozer uprooted asphalt slab on the tennis courts east of File hall site of the new dormitory, while earth movers dug to basement level on the south side of the center.

General contractor for both projects is Sioux Contractors, Sioux City, the same firm which is building the fine arts center and the addition to Rice.

One Building Destroyed, Two Damaged Friday in Big Blaze

The first fire in months in a Wayne structure gutted the Livinghouse Trucking service building Friday night and damaged two adjoining buildings, the city power plant and the Marra Home Improvement company building.

Wilmer Marra said "The firemen did a marvelous job. I know their first job was to protect the power plant but they did more than we thought was humanly possible to save our place too." He said insulation helped prevent fire from dropping down from the ceiling into the shop.

Marra Home Improvement suffered a $14,000 loss, mostly covered by insurance. Damage was from smoke and water to the contents and fire, smoke and water damage to the building.

He said the ceiling and roof of the building were damaged and the contents consisting of siding, roofing, insulation and other building materials were lost to some extent. He and his wife were out of town at the time of the fire.

The municipal power plant had damage to a substation which was serving water pumps, the WSC campus and the entire north part of town. Some electric service was out in the area of the fire for 15 minutes or so but Norbert Brugger and other city light plant employees made switches which restored service quickly.

It was necessary to tear out part of the ceiling in the shop at the plant to get the fire and put it out. That damage and the damage from smoke, heat and water brought the city's damage bill to about $2,500.

Ivan Beeks said a record fireless period was ended by the blaze. He believes Wayne could have a record for a city this size for no fixed property fires. The last fire the department has previously was a car fire on the WSC campus.

had been noticed. He felt that had he been called he could have saved much of the equipment and records in the front of the building.

Livinghouse said the building was just a shell after the fire. He said in addition to the total loss of the building he also lost a diesel truck, 30 tires, mechanical equipment, tools, office equipment, files and all the company's records. He estimated his loss at $30,000 with insurance on the building and truck but not the other items.

Firemen fought to keep the blaze from spreading to the light plant and the Marra building. A substation at the power plant did suffer some damage and Marra's structure was damaged but the firemen did manage to confine the major damage to the one building.

It was around 2 a.m. before fire equipment was finally returned to the fire station. However, firemen remained all night to see that the fire did not break out again and other structures were not endangered.

Livinghouse said he operates 12 trucks out of Wayne with four of them being in the shop at the time of the blaze. Firemen and volunteers managed to get three trucks outside during the fire.

He said he will continue doing business and is working on a plan to have a new building to replace the one destroyed. At the time he is not sure whether he will build at the same site or in a new location.

Praise was given firemen for the work they did. One qualification was the fact that Livinghouse was not notified of the fire until well after the blaze

CHARRED REMAINS of the Livinghouse Truck Service building are shown the day after the fire.

Weather Bureau Gives Tornado Warning Plan

Wayne county and all Northeastern and North Central Nebraska will again get tornado and severe weather forecasts from Norfolk Press, radio and television will offer warnings as issued by the Kansas City weather office.

Norfolk's weather station has radar which can detect thunderstorms within 150 miles of the unit. On-the-ground reports from farmers and townspeople are also needed when tornado clouds are sighted.

Volunteers are needed for Wayne county. They can call collect to the weather bureau in Norfolk when storm clouds are reported. Time, location and direction of movement of storms are needed.

A 15-minute film, "Tornado," is available free of charge from the weather bureau in Norfolk. It describes the storm-warning network and shows pictures of real tornadoes.

Nebraska has an average of 12 tornadoes a year. April usually has 1, May, 3; June, 4; July, 2; and August, 1. Other months infrequently have the violent storms.

Mercedes Reed, Fremont, spent the weekend in the Mrs. Irve Reed home.

Mrs. Ruth Ross and Mrs. Margaret Cramer spent last Wednesday in Lincoln visiting friends and relatives.

TO THE CITIZENS OF DISTRICT 17

In many communities opposition to a bond issue becomes very active a few days before the election, trying hard to twist the facts. If this happens in District 17, stop and think: Why did the opposition not come forward until the last minute?

Citizens should call Supt. Haun or one of the school board members to see if any last minute criticism is based upon truth or upon the hope that people won't find out the truth until after they have voted.

Keep in mind that the high school proposal was made after months of intensive study by the board and had previously been suggested both by the School Study Committee and the City Planning Commission. The plan was drawn by the architect who has planned more schools than any other firm in Nebraska and has been studied and endorsed by the state department of education, the University of Nebraska building authorities, and the state vocational department as well as your local board. We are unanimous in believing that it is the plan which will best meet the needs of our youth now and in the future. We hope the citizens of Wayne and Carroll will show their confidence by voting "Yes" next Tuesday. As your elected representatives, we have given our best efforts to serve you well.

Construction Activity

Gets Underway in City

The Wayne City council Thursday night approved another downtown business improvement. It authorized another start among several construction projects.

Otte Construction Co. was given a permit to remodel the front of the former Connell Oak-National Food store. An addition will also be built onto the structure. This puts construction work around two buildings in one block. A new front is being put on the building housing the Hughes Realty and Dorothy's Cafe by Marra Home Improvement.

At Wayne State the building activity is just barely started compared to what will come later. An addition was started this week on the college cafeteria. Later will come the nine-story dormitory and other new buildings.

The city council has turned the project of beautifying the swimming pool and Viken park over to the park committee. A long-range program of beautification is planned.

FOUR LETTERMEN in track at Winside have to work indoors most of the time. They lined up against the wall for this shot. Left to right they are Earl Koch, Lee Pfeiffer, Randy Miller and Larry Redel.

Four of 35 Track Boys at Winside Have Won Letters

Coach Pete Kropp has four letter men among 35 boys out for track at Winside high school. Workouts on the track have been non-existent, however, for the track still had snow on some portions the first of the week and the rain did not help the drying-out process.

Kropp, who has been assisted by student teacher, Ed Humpal, is hoping the Wildcats can take part in the Blue Devil relays at Wayne Friday. It would be appreciated if the WHS track was dry enough for the dual there with Osmond Apr. 15.

Other meets scheduled for the Red and Black thinclads include: Apr. 24, Norfolk Invitational; Apr. 28, Lewis and Clark Conference meet.; WSC, May 7, Wayne Invitational; May 14, Class C district; and May 21, state meet. Some dual and triangular practice meets may also be scheduled.

Lettermen are Larry Redel in the 880, Lee Pfeiffer in the sprints and Earl Koch and Randy Miller in the hurdles. Twelve other boys are scheduled for competition at Wayne Friday.

Coach Kropp expects to enter Dick Ditman and Harold Meyer in the sprints, Reid Wacker and Bob Dangberg in hurdle events, Gene Barg and Roger Hill in the 880, Dean Mann and Bob Wagner in the 440, Keith Schmode and Randy Jacobsen in the 880, Don Longe in the mile and Charles Slahn in some events.

Only Seven Wayne Players Lettered

Only seven letters were given for basketball this year at Wayne High. Coach Harold Maciejewski said only those with sufficient quarters were lettered.

Two seniors were on the seven-man squad, Rick Bornhoff and Doug Manske. Juniors lettering were Dean Elofson, Phil Kelton, Keith Tietgen, Mark Robinson, and Gary Mordhorst.

Elofson led the team in scoring with 255 points. Mordhorst hit 41 percent of his shots from the floor for the best mark there and Bornhoff and Kelton with 75 and 76 percent, respectively led in free throw shooting.

Manske led in rebounds with 278 and Elofson was second with

Doug Manske Honored on Area's Top Twenty Team

Doug Manske, senior on the Wayne high basketball team, was named one of the top 20 basketball players in a vote of coaches last week. The 6'11" forward was one of the top players for the Blue Devils in about every category.

Two other Wayne county boys were honored on the honorable

Doug Manske mention list on the team named by Denny Fuehrer, sports editor for the Norfolk Daily News. Larry Redel, Winside, and Dean Elofson, Wayne, received this recognition.

More than 90 players were nominated for the top 20 honors. From these the coaches with the help of fans chose the best. Keith Maurer, Madison, Cam Sulton, Laurel, and 251. Elofson averaged 13.4 points per game, Manske 12.1 and Bornhoff 10.4.

The players chose Elofson as the most valuable player and the coaches named him the most improved player. Manske was elected honorary captain for the season. Kelton's 76 percent and Bornhoff's 75 percent at the freethrow line beat the old school record of 71 percent.

Jim Ehrhardt, Randolph, were among those named. Manske played freshman and B team ball his first year in WHS, played 8 team as a sophomore and lettered the last two years. He was second high in scoring on the team with 229 points for a 12.1 average.

Rebounding was a specialty as he averaged 14 per game. He led the team in total rebounds, 278, hit 37 per cent of his shots from the floor and connected 77 of 137 freethrows for a 56 percent mark.

Coach Maciejewski cited him for all-round team play on defense and offense. He played more quarters than any other Blue Devil and was chosen by his teammates as honorary captain of this year's squad.

Six Lettermen at Wayne for Track

Six returning lettermen are out for track at Wayne High, three from the two-mile relay team that placed third in the state last year. Coach Jerry Ball is being assisted by John Tollakson with the thin clads who have been held pretty much indoors so far.

Two-mile relay team members back are Tom Addison, Stuart Bernthal and Bill Woehler. Other lettermen back are Bill Lubberstedt in the 880, Mike Carman in the shot put and Dave Hasebroeck in the mile.

Seniors out include Kenny Soden in the 880, Orin Zach in the 880, Bruce Jorgensen in the 220 and 440 and Dave Sherry in the hurdles. Juniors out are Keith Lehman in the 440, Randy Pedersen in the 100 and 220, Mark Robinson in the 880, Leon Jorgensen in the 440 and 880 and Ed Sherry in the weights.

Sophomore candidates are George Ritter in the sprints, Rodney Reag in the 440, Dan Rees and Dave Rees in the weights, Dennis Beckman and Allen Rasmussen in the 440, Gordon Shupe in the 880, Warren Korth in the mile and John Schulte in the 220 and 440.

The freshmen out include Dave Brown in the broad jump and high jump and Gene Hansen, Lynn Lessman, Lavern Brown and Don Skokan in the sprints.

WSC Track Team's Opener Saturday

Wintered out of their first meet, Wayne State's track and field men are scheduled for action this Saturday at the annual South Dakota University Invitational.

The scheduled opener last Saturday, a triangular with SDU and Augustana, had to be cancelled because of track conditions both here and at Vermillion.

Coach Carl Eitelmeier looks hopefully to a fine showing this season — with most of his top performers back.

Heading the cast are distance men Carl Owezarzak and Ken Kutzer, sprinter Darrell Reitzman, quarter and half-miler Ron Butts, and Ed Humpal in the shot put and discus.

Reifenrath and Humpal both own a pair of Wayne records. Both have hopes of improving all four marks before season's end. If all the veterans come up to 1964's performances and get help from the 20 promising teammates, Wayne figures to hold its second-place conference standing. That's about the best to be expected barring a complete collapse of perennial champion Kearney.

Wayne Looks Good in Final NAIA Standing

Wayne State looked good in several departments in the official NAIA district records covering 10 Nebraska colleges. Hastings college ran off with most of the team and individual honors.

Dean deBuhr led the conference in scoring and was named to the all-district team. Larry Martin of Kearney, Ben Crawford and Ed Lorenzen of Hastings and Dennis Nelson of Doane were also honored. Bob Erickson, Doane, was chosen coach of the year.

Wayne was second to Hastings in rebounds; was fourth in scoring; ranked fifth in scoring allowance; was second in field goal percentage hit; and was sixth in free throw percentage hit. The Wildcats made 72 of 160 field goal attempts and 419 of 638 free throw tries.

In scoring, deBuhr had 615 points for a 25.6 average. Randy Harkabus was fourth in field goal percentage, .497; Bob Hope was seventh at .493; Jim Murphy was ninth at .478; and Denny Neubrand was tenth at .472.

Fishers Capture Final Cage Crown

Fishers captured the junior division championship in the final games Saturday. It was the last basketball title still up for grabs.

The Fisher quintet beat Hansens 43-42 in the championship game. The win left the champs with a 5-1 record. Hansens dropped into a second place tie with Tietgens with 2-2 records and Robinsons finished in the cellar with a 1-5 season mark.

In the initial game of the day, Tietgens lost to Robinsons, the first win of the season for the latter quintet in the 59-54 battle. Harry Lindner made 19, Wayne Magdanz 14 and Tim Robinson 13 for the winners while Dave Tietgen hit for 30, Mike Liveringhouse 16 and Ted Armbruster 6 for the losers.

Charles Fisher led his team to victory with 17 points. Mike Garvin made 11 and Brad Schultz 8. For Hansens, Harvey Hansen had 24 and Mike Bilhoff, Jody Hoogner and Merle Rasmussen 5 each.

Hansens finished the season with the trophy for the best average, 23.5 points per game. Charles Fisher averaged 22.5 and Dave Tietgen 22.0.

Bornhorst's Bombers eked out a 62-57 win over the Rec Club All-Stars in a Saturday tilt. Dave Danielson and Craig Tiedtke paced the losers and Doug Manskic, Neil Adams and Rick Bornhorst led the winners.

Morris 2nd team beat Farrens 68-63 in the final game of the basketball season for the Boys Club. The game had ended in a 60-60 tie in regulation time. Duane Peterson with 14 led Morris and Doug Farrens with 12 led Farrens. Scoring was evenly divided among other players.

Hank Overin, recreation director, reports softball for girls and baseball for boys will get underway as soon as weather permits. He expects to have information on diamond sports activities for publication soon.

Wayne State Has Trouble Playing

Baseball at Wayne State was still a victim of weather and mud at mid-week. Result: the home opener with South Dakota University scheduled Wednesday—was postponed, possibly to be played today if the diamond is dry enough.

Still set for play is a double-header Saturday afternoon at Peru State, opening the conference campaign. Wayne will be spinning for a strong start in defense of its NCC championship. The following Saturday, Apr. 24, Wayne goes to Hastings, then will be home for five straight engagements.

A three-game trip last week left the Wildcats with a 1-2 record but with complimentary comments from Coach John Jermier about his team's performance.

"They looked good, considering the fact they never had practiced outdoors," he said. Both the opponents had been able to drill out where baseball is supposed to be played.

Washburn squeezed out a 10-7 victory in the Wednesday game after being held hitless into the fifth inning by the rugged hurling of Jim Mau. Reliever Bernie Robinson gave up a series of walks which rocketed Washburn ahead temporarily, but the Cats caught up for a 7-7 tie.

The second relief pitcher, John Crenshaw, yielded three more Washburn runs in the eighth and took the loss.

Thursday Wayne downed Rockhurst College in Kansas City, Mo., 2-1, on Dean deBuhr's two-hitter. Apparently cured of the arm injury which hampered his late season efforts last year, deBuhr whiffed 11 batters in the extra-inning (8) victory.

Rockhurst retaliated in the second game with a 9-3 victory, getting seven runs in the fourth inning when starter Mike Mertz weakened. Fred Pierce took over the mound and held the hosts to two more runs.

In the three games Wayne out hit the opposition 17 to 15, but gave up 29 runs while making 12. Senior outfielder Ron Sadler is hitting at a nifty .455 pace with five safeties in 11 at bats.

Four Winside Entries Get Excellent Rating

Four entries from Winside received ratings of "excellent" in the state fine arts festival in Lincoln Saturday. Ratings were given on dramatics entries only although WHS pupils also attended art and music sections.

Rating "II" for their entries were: Cheryl Behmer, poetry; Bob Dangberg, original public address; Sue Ann Glass, oral interpretation of prose; and Keith Kueger, discussion. Receiving ratings of III were Jack Jeffrey, Jackie Stevens and Brenda Svenson for oral interpretation of drama; Connie Jones for interpretative public address; and Diana Weible for extemporaneous speech; Judy Wacker rated a IV in informative public address.

SQUARE DANCING is staging a comeback at Winside where Dave Chambers calls for dances Sunday evening. One square of bewhiskered men and gingham clad women is shown above. The square dancers will appear at numerous functions but are mainly practicing for Winside diamond jubilee celebration in July.

Square Dancing in Winside Will Help Mark Anniversary

Square dancing, which reached a peak in popularity about ten years ago in this area, is again a weekly activity in Winside as the town prepares another feature for its diamond jubilee celebration in July.

From 70 to 12 squares have been taking part Sunday nights at the Winside auditorium. Two of the squares will accompany boosters from the town when they call in other area towns this summer promoting their celebration.

In addition to appearances during the jubilee, the dancers will put on a program in Wayne May 14 and will be a feature of the Wayne County fair. Other engagements are being considered.

Alvin Schmude is in charge with Dave Chambers doing the calling. Chambers, Wayne teacher, has been a professional square dance caller 12 years and has called in over 30 states.

Men appear at the square dances with beards, pipe hats, and old fashioned clothes. Women wear old fashioned gingham dresses in many colors and some wear bonnets fashioned after those of pioneer days.

Square dancing is one of the few dances native to the United States. As such it is a logical part of a pioneer observance such as that planned at Winside. Tunes for the dances are mainly taken from American folk songs.

Winside and Wayne used to have square dance clubs and many other towns had them as the craze swept the land. There were dances somewhere in the area almost every week about ten years ago. As many as 30 squares have performed at once in Winside. Television has played a part in cutting down on square dance popularity. This coming weekend and the one following, square dancers will do their dancing Monday nights instead of Sundays due to Palm Sunday and Easter. The Sunday night schedule will be resumed Apr. 25.

Centennial Group Becoming Active

Wayne County Centennial commission has started plans for a more active future in preparation for the 1967 observance of the state's 100th birthday. Cliff Dahl, newly-named chairman, was in charge.

A program is being planned for Friday, May 14, at 8 p.m. open to the public. Don Shriner, state centennial head, will be featured and will have a film on the state to show.

Bernie Eiting will be master of ceremony. Other features will be the Lionets from Norfolk, square dancing by a group from Winside with Dave Chambers calling and music by pupils from Wayne high school and Wayne grade school and students from Wayne State college.

Next meeting of the county group is Apr. 15 at 4 p.m. in the Professional building. In addition to Dahl, officers include John Rethwisch, Carroll, secretary; Jean Boyd, Winside, treasurer; Mrs. Howard Witt, Wayne, publicity chairman; and Wanda Owens, C of C representative.

Final Exams Start Next Week at WSC

Another term is nearing its end at Wayne State College as students finish studies and prepare for final examinations next week.

For 186 students it is a special term — the last leading to a bachelor's or a master's degree. On Friday, Apr. 16, they will march to commencement in the Willow Bowl — hoping until then that the weather smiles on this traditional site of graduation.

If conditions are favorable, commencement will begin at 9 a.m. in the Willow Bowl. If the ceremony must move indoors, it will begin at 10 in Rice auditorium.

The speaker will be Senator Gale McGee of Wyoming, a 1936 graduate of Wayne State. The invocation and benediction will be given by the Rev. Robert Shirck, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church. Dr. Gordon Shupe of Wayne will bring official greetings to the graduates from the State Normal Board on which he serves.

The public is invited to attend commencement. All seats in the Willow Bowl are open to spectators except those reserved for students receiving degrees.

hall with small practice rooms adjacent. The lecture hall, which will accommodate the student body, will be used for assemblies, convocations, large lecture classes, team teaching, testing, overflow study hall, speech classes, educational TV, as well as musical and dramatic performances for the public. The lecture hall is 80 x 70 feet with music rooms, 32x62 feet.

The back section contains adequate physical education areas for both boys and girls on the top level. On the floor below will be housed shop and auto mechanics facilities as well as rooms for art and mechanical drawing. Shower and dressing rooms will also be located on the lower level. This section is 120x170 on both levels.

The building is 72,900 square feet with total ground space at 79,279. The longest part is 320 feet and the widest part is 220 feet.

The building will be financed by a $867,000 bond if approved by the voters plus matching federal aid for science, mathematics, and guidance equipment under Title III, amounting to at least $20,000. Federal funds have also been allocated for Nebraska for English and social studies under Title I and await the approval of the state plan. Other funds are also on hand from the general funds of the school district in the amount of $60,000. If the bonds are approved next Tuesday, the money will be immediately invested at about 4 per cent interest. The investment should earn at least $16,000 in the period between approval and the time when all the money will be needed.

Floor Plans Shown for New School Proposed in Wayne

Pictured here is the floor plan of the new Wayne-Carroll high school for which voters are asked to give their approval next Tuesday.

The architect has conceived an economical two-level plan, taking advantage of the sloping site on which the school will be built. On the left is the academic wing containing eight regular classrooms room are also located in this wing. This section is 130x130 on the upper floor and 70x130 on the lower floor.

Located parallel to the corridor on the upper floor are the administrative offices, and on the lower floor will be a combination study hall-eating area with an adjacent serving kitchen to be used when rising enrollment makes the seating capacity of the elementary lunch-room inadequate.

The right front area contains the vocal music room and band room on either side of the lecture for history, mathematics, and English, a language laboratory on the upper level with the library conveniently located to the various subject areas most dependent upon library reference. In addition two business education rooms, two science laboratories, a journalism room and a health

We Believe the People of Wayne Are Too Smart

The few vocal opponents of the school bond issue have advanced many arguments:

First, they tried to say no need existed. The need was so apparent they gave that up right away.

Next, they talked long and loud trying to get the people on the east side of town aroused about the high school they never had decreasing their property values. Not very many swallowed that "logic."

In an issue of this type it becomes increasingly easy for voters to become confused as the issues are clouded. Happily most citizens will put forth the effort to clear this confusion and many have done this. There are, however, a few new arguments that need clarifying:

- Per pupil building cost.
Opponents admit that $12 a square foot is a bargain, but now they complain about per pupil building cost. When applied to buildings, per pupil cost is a meaningless comparison. Think of it this way. If a couple buy a $20,000 two bedroom house, the per person cost is $10,000. Add two sons and the cost has gone down to $5,000. Add two daughters and another bedroom ($3,000) and your per person cost is below $4,000.
In a very small school of 100 pupils, per-pupil cost for the building may run as high as $4,000 because no matter how small, they need labs, a shop, a gym, and other special areas just as in a house you need a bathroom, kitchen, and living room. A large school of 1,000 may have a per-pupil cost of $1,500 because the expensive special area room cost will be divided among many more pupils.
- The cost of the site.
Probably the fairest way to determine the value of any site is by an appraisal board. The three appraisers will be chosen by the county judge, a man whose character no one will dispute. If the school district doesn't like the appraisal, they can ask for a review in district court.
Ask the man in Wayne who does more appraising than anyone else what acreages are selling for near towns on the Interstate. Let's believe him instead of the disgruntled man who has no experience in these matters.
- The size of the physical education facilities.
Just why the boys and girls of Wayne shouldn't have decent facilities for physical education when Winside, Coleridge, Osmond and Bloomfield can manage it, we wouldn't know. So you shave off a little, what will that do? Remember, you'll also be shaving the shop below too, and we will end with inadequate facilities.
Remember, too, these P. E. facilities will also be used by junior high and, possibly, some elementary if time permits. This gymnasium has no installed seating and will be used strictly for physical education classes.

Citizens, Continue To Be Smart! If you are thinking of the welfare of our children, you'll stick with the school board, the state department, the university, and Mr. Ellery Davis, leading school architect in the state of Nebraska. Vote Yes Tuesday.

Letters to The Editor

Dear Editor:

I believe in education and I do not object to the cost of a new high school. I also am aware of the crowded conditions of the public schools — a fact which has been excessively stressed in recent weeks. However, right now, we had better appeal to common sense rather than the emotions as we plan a project of such importance to a growing community such as Wayne. I think the school board made a poor choice when it came to selecting a site. The population growth in Wayne has been to the north and east. Why concentrate all our schools to the southwest? Most all homes in the college area will be a mile or more from a public school. This is a great inconvenience to parents with school-age children. It has a depreciating effect on property, and it will definitely put a damper on residential expansion in that direction. We are told in a few years a grade school will be built on the east edge of Wayne. From an economy standpoint a purchase of 25-30 acres of bare ground east of Wayne should be a better buy than going through condemnation proceedings to secure properties that contain improvements and are hemmed in by homes on three sides and the cemetery on the other. This one purchase could accommodate both a grade facility and a high school and still have land left for future expansion.

A bill in our Legislature LB301, which deals with establishing area vocational schools, could, if passed, change our thinking concerning the type of shop facilities being planned. Federal and area funds, rather than local would be available. Wayne would surely be considered as a location for this type of school. A site of adequate size in conjunction with our high school would be real desirable.

I see no economies gained by building near our present elementary school. A separate lunch facility is being planned and I cannot visualize any great exchange of teachers between schools. A community that is growing should not concentrate all schools in one area for that does not serve all citizens fairly.

Therefore, from a standpoint of economy, proximity to more students, and more room for expansion I suggest we study this bond issue carefully before we vote in favor of it at this time.

Cecil Wriedt

Dear Editor:

This is a commendation to our Wayne school board on the way they have studied and planned for the new high school. Our need for this building is urgent — no one can deny, we need it now. Voting a proposal down the first time never saves money. There are sacrifices made every time that prove extremely costly in the long run.

In my estimation, the location selected by the board would be my first choice also. I feel it is necessary and advantageous to have the new high school close to what will become a junior high and overflow grade school building. The convenience in sharing of facilities such as the gym for senior and junior high and the sharing of many teachers between the junior and senior high buildings must carefully enter into the picture. If the senior high were to be planned across town it would necessitate adding mileage fees to administrative costs.

In addition to thoughts along this line — our present kitchen in the elementary building is adequate for preparation of food for many more and would thereby save additional costs of installing another expensive kitchen.

The present practice football field can still be used and could provide a "natural" stadium should Wayne State be forced to refuse use of the college stadium.

When the Hahn school closes its doors to us next year — where do we go with these children if we don't pass this bond issue? Do we put them in church basements and vacant buildings? I would like to see in the future — say 8-10 years from now — a ward school in the east part of town. I somehow, am confident that 95% of the voters east of main street would prefer a future grade school in our area rather than a new high school. I do feel that Wayne will continue to expand in a north easterly direction.

Until this would come about, I propose that the Wayne school board consider several outlying school bus stops within the city to transport children to the present grade school. High school pupils are better able to solve their own transportation problems. It definitely is the grade school child that needs consideration in this respect. I have received favorable comment on this plan from members of the board.

May I stress again, in closing, that I have every confidence in our school board's stand and heartily endorse their plans for this project.

Dick Carman

Dear Editor:

This is to call your attention to the manner in which our representative, Clair Callan, short-changed the educational opportunities of underprivileged children in our district by voting for a federal school aid bill which will channel federal money into rich counties needing it least.

Under the administration bill, Westchester County, N.Y., one of the wealthiest counties in the country will receive $353.00 for each school age child from an impoverished family (with an annual income of less than $2,000.00). But every county in Nebraska will receive only $188.20 in federal funds for each such child. Without question, the administration backed measure which the congressman supported is designed to aid areas at the expense of counties needing it most.

I consider this a bad bill and that our congressman has simply rubber-stamped it without considering its inadequacies. By his vote, he has short-changed the education opportunities of underprivileged youngsters in Nebraska and in his congressional district.

--- When you are all through discussing and debating and thinking in the democratic fashion that is the American way, please remember that the really important question is this:

'What About Us?'

"There are 559 of us crowded into the high school building now, and there are more to come. Come visit us this week before the election. If you do we are sure you'll agree that inadequate facilities are keeping us from having the kind of good education the people of Wayne want to offer."

'And What About Us?'

"Our Hahn building did not burn down or anything tragic like that, but all the same we will lose it at the end of next year — where are we going to go to school? There is no room for us in either of the other buildings."

Feeders' Banquet Will Be in Wayne

The student union at WSC, Wayne, will be the site of the Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders association banquet Saturday, Apr. 24, at 7:30 p.m. Lawrence Brock, former congressman from Wakefield, now assistant deputy administrator of the Farmers Home Administration in Washington, will be the main speaker.

Warren Kester, Sioux City, familiar livestock market news-caster, will be master of ceremonies. Claus Malmberg, Pender, is president of the association.

Tickets are available in this area from Robert Backowies, Emerson; Gene Perry, Marvin Dunklau and Dean Meyer, Wayne; Art Schellpepper, Hoskins; Virgil Ekberg, Ken Schroeder and Stanley Utemark, Wakefield; and Gene Thompson, Dixon.

Shrine Circus Giving Shows for Area Youth

Young people of the area are being treated to a circus. Wayne Shriners are joining Abu-Bekr Temple and Sioux City merchants in furnishing tickets for the Shrine circus performances in Sioux City.

Saturday afternoon the pupils of St. Mary's school and both Wayne public elementary schools will go to Sioux City for the circus performances. Pupils from other elementary schools in the area have also been furnished with tickets.

Cliff Dahl, local Shrine member, said all proceeds from the circus go to the Shrine hospital for crippled children, Minneapolis. The Minneapolis hospital is one of 17 in the nation maintained by Shriners.

Concord Station Will Hold Open House Soon

Open house will be held Sunday, Apr. 25, at the University of Nebraska northeast station at Concord. Area residents will be invited to inspect the new C. D. Haskell building.

Denzil Clegg, station superintendent, said the board of directors are looking forward to the open house. Further details will be given the next two weeks.

The board met recently to plan open house and elect officers. It was unanimously decided that the new building was better than the farm shop where meetings were held previously.

Officers for 1965 are: Richard Monson, Madison, president; Jerome Lammers, St. Helena, first vice president; Don Arduher, Coleridge, second vice president; John Kroger, Jr., Rosalie, treasurer; and Denzil Clegg, Wayne, recording secretary.

Attend First Education Meeting at NE Station

The first education meeting to be held in the northeast station at Concord attracted three dozen men from the area. It dealt with dairy cattle and breeding and related problems.

It was in the educational unit, called the C. D. Haskell building, Don J. Kubik, area extension agent, reports. It is but the first of what should be a great many educational and informative sessions for the structure.

Men from the immediate area attending were Lyle Marotz and Eugene Race, Hoskins; Felix Joyce, Eldon Bull, Jerry Dorcy and Bob Thomas, Wayne; Harold Haiseh, Laurel; Cliff Fredrickson and Ivan Johnson, Wakefield; and Erwin Kraemer, Robert Sherry, Arnold Witte, Eric Nelson, Clifford Stalling, James Kirohner, Dean Nelson and Kenneth Olson, Concord.

James B. Durham, a member of the English faculty at Wayne State College since September, will become acting chairman of the division of languages in September. President W. A. Brandenburg announced. He will take over the duties administered by Dr. Lyle Skov on an interim basis this school year. Durham earned his bachelor's degree from Middle Tennessee State college and his master's from the University of Arkansas. He will be on leave following Wayne's second term to complete studies for his doctorate at Arkansas.

Several Counties Represented Here

Representatives from seven counties attended an area marketing meeting in Wayne Thursday sponsored by the National Farmers organization. Dakota, Pierce, Thurston, Cedar, Knox, Dixon and Wayne counties were represented. Val Ackerland, Valley, national NFO director, told of the progress made on the marketing arrangements in Omaha and reported that members can now go to Sioux City with cattle.

James Kathol, Hartington, spoke on marketing arrangements for hogs in Sioux City. He expressed the hope that members will be moving hogs to Sioux City under the arrangement in about two weeks.

Gerald Freidrichs, assistant organizational director, commented on organizing progress. A question and answer period followed the talks.

Roland Victor, Wayne county NFO president, said any member wishing a buyer to appraise his cattle should contact Lawrence Hansen or any member of the meat bargaining board.

Newman Grove Man Science Academy Head

Michael McGuire of Newman Grove is the new chairman of the Northeast Nebraska Junior academy of science. He was elected when the academy staged its annual science fair at Wayne State college. Dr. Lyle Seymour of the WSC faculty was chosen secretary.

McGuire, a 1964 graduate of Wayne with a biological science major, is teaching at Newman Grove. The science fair attracted well over a thousand visitors who saw some 500 exhibits displayed by high school and elementary students from schools all over Northeast Nebraska.

Business Notes

Wortman Auto Co., Wayne, is offering the area rent-a-car services under the new Ford Motor Co. plan for dealers to rent cars. More than 500 dealers are participating. Passenger cars, station wagons, recreational units, and other vehicles are to be available on a daily or weekly basis.

Peoples Natural Gas is presenting a new look in Wayne and other communities served in four states. All field service personnel are wearing navy blue trousers, light blue shirts and navy blue jackets. Caps and bow ties are optional. It is the first standard uniform for the firm and will help identify PNG servicemen when they come to read meters or perform services.

Unusual Observance of Book Week at Winside

An unusual observance of National Book Week is being planned at Winside High School. Mrs. Fannie Bennett, librarian, reports that the public will be invited to take part.

Coming the last week in April, book week will be observed at WHS with a paperback book fair. Samples of all paperbacks available will be on display and orders will be taken for any selected.

This is not a money-making project but a program to call attention of the public to the value of books, the variety of books and the need for books in American homes.

A special prize will be a new book. The person guessing closest to the number of pages in the book will win it as a prize.

Area Receives Over 25 Inches of Snow

Wayne county has received 25.02 inches of snow since the first of the year, according to records kept by Norris Weible at State National bank. Almost three inches of moisture resulted.

It seems like most of the snow came in March, and that is when much of it fell. However, there were storms other months and the area has not really been out of the grip of winter much this year.

Rain fell early this week, bringing another half inch of moisture. It can be used, but it did not help the situation where roads and driveways are ungraveled or un-surfaced.

Athletic teams at the high school and colleges have been plagued by the unusually long winter. Some teams have yet to work outdoors except for jogging around towns on streets that are paved. Baseball and track are both way behind schedule.

Cars are being parked along highway shoulders as farmers decide not to try to get into mucky yards. Water stands in most low spots and the melting snow is causing streams to rise. Cars that have been washed remain clean looking only if not driven. The drive-in theatre, usually open in March, is not open yet because the parking area is still too soft to support cars, although it may open this weekend.

No record moisture is reported but a lot of it has been "enjoyed" in a comparatively short period. It could have been worse. Like if all 25 inches had come at the same time, accompanied by wind!

Wayne High Names 'Jury Room' Cast

Wayne high school pupils will present C. B. Gifford's play, "The Jury Room," Apr. 30. Play try-outs were held Mar. 18-22 at which time cast members were chosen.

In the cast are Carol Maciejewski, Stuart Bernthal, Russell Wax, Arny Larsen, Margo Jeffrey, Phyllis Eitemeyer, Linda Garvin, Dean Skokan, Sandra Dunklau, Pam Gates, Mark Robinson and Jean Christensen.

Miron Jenness will direct the production. Sheryl Roberts will be student director. Further details will be given later.

Feed Grain Signup Sets Record Here

Wayne county has set a new record in the feed grain signup program. Almost 1,000 farms have been signed from the 1474 that are eligible.

ASC records show 968 farms signed up in the program with diversion including 31,781 acres of corn, 749 acres of grain sorghum and 1,170 acres of barley for a total of 33,700 acres on 66 per cent of the county's farms.

The total shows the tremendous interest among farmers in reducing surpluses and in improving agriculture income, the ASC reports. Comparison with 1960, the last year before the feed grain program, shows a reduction of 415 corn loans or 581,428 bushels put under seal.

Nice Day, Everyone's Driving, Five Collide

Wayne was on its way to an accident-free week as far as traffic is concerned when along came Sunday, it was a nice day, everyone went for a drive and five cars were involved in collisions.

At 2nd and Pine, Chief of Police Gerth Dawson investigated a two-car mishap. Dewey Wheeler, Wakefield, and George Wilson, Wayne, stopped across the street from each other and then proceeded into the intersection. Wilson made a left turn and the two cars collided. Damage was estimated at $150 to each car.

Officer Keith Reed investigated a three-car accident later the same day at 4th and Main. Two cars had stopped for the traffic signal and George Sherry was the third driver to stop. Garlin Carmichael could not stop in time and struck the rear of the Sherry car. Patrick McGill had the same luck and struck the back of Carmichael's vehicle.

No estimates on damages were given. Sherry and Carmichael are from Wayne and McGill is from Wisner.

Roy Oman and daughter, Lake Audley, S. D., were dinner guests Sunday in the Mrs. W. E. Likens home. Last Monday Mr. Oman was an overnight guest. Monday morning Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mulsom, Duluth, Minn., called.

How to control giant foxtail in corn all season without carryover problems. One spray of Atrazine 80W gives you effective control of giant foxtail for the entire season. Just broadcast Atrazine right after the first flush of foxtail has emerged and follow with a rotary hoeing or shallow cultivation. Full season control with Atrazine prevents foxtail from germinating late in the season and producing seeds that will make your foxtail problem even worse next year. Avoiding a carryover problem is easy, just be sure you apply Atrazine at the rate recommended for your particular soil type and do not exceed 3 1/2 lbs. of Atrazine 80W per acre broadcast, or 1 1/2 lbs. per acre in a 12-14 inch band. You'll stop giant foxtail and increase your yields. Ask your local dealer for Atrazine 80W herbicide. Geigy Agricultural Chemicals, Division of Geigy Chemical Corporation, Ardsley, New York.

Here's Anatomy of Hi-way 15 Change

A Chamber of Commerce is subject to public opinion, often condemned if it does act, condemned if it doesn't act, scolded for rushing things, criticized for being too slow and in general not given credit for much of what it does. One project successfully concluded will allow warrant continued support of C. of C. work — the inclusion of Highway 15 resurfacing on the current state road program.

Back in August, the project was not scheduled for inclusion. But that was many meetings, letters, trips and phone calls ago. Learning that a highway informational meeting was scheduled for the Wayne area, C. of C. committee members decided to get it held here. This would give highway commission members a chance to drive on Highway 15 south of here, which was a prime target for road work as far as local men were concerned.

Sept. 4, 1964, it was learned that Wayne would be the site for a 12-county meeting. Work started at once by Bob Merchant, chairman of the highway and road committee, on the city's presentation of its case.

The presentation outlined 15 points why Highway 15 resurfacing was needed, preferably north from its junction with U. S. 275 to the junction with U. S. 20 at Laurel.

Points brought out included the college and travel involved for students and parents; the trade area; the lack of daily train service; the direct route of N-16 to Lincoln; stock shipments out of the area; the county fair and sale barn traffic.

Use of 15 by rural mail carriers and on the Omaha-Yankton star route; connections of Gavin's Point; the Northeast Experiment station at Concord bringing more traffic; airport, hospital and fire department needs; farm county offices; and other points.

Wayne's road and highway committee also put in a word for dustless surfacing of Highway 16 from Pender north. It put in a plug for finishing paving of Highway 98 west from the Carroll junction but held the main emphasis for the Highway 15 work.

A joke quoted was: "Auto dealers demonstrate their new cars on smooth Highway 35 but when road-checking a prospect's car they drive south on No. 15." It was a joke, but it emphasized the difference in the surfacing.

Correspondence was maintained with the area representative on the highway commission, Merle King, Ponca. Several letters passed back and forth regarding the needs.

Sept. 17 the meeting was held with 13 counties represented. Wayne's case was presented. Pender and Wayne joined for the N-16 work. Both ended up on the work schedule for this year.

The efforts of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce never ended with the meeting. Contact with the state was maintained, the district engineer was called in for a visit, more telephone calls were made. It was a project that had to be kept before the highway commission so they couldn't forget it.

The project was not forgotten. Traffic into Wayne from the Kingsbury, Ponca. Several letters passed back and forth regarding the needs.

for senior citizens. The money will provide enough so added apartments can be built later. Negotiation of construction will start soon. About 500 construction days will be needed for the work. FHIA says the construction work alone will be a shot in the arm for Wakefield's economy and the home will be a permanent asset for the town.

Week's Business 'Light' After Many Busy Ones

Wayne police officers had a "light" week as far as complaints are concerned. They were still busy but nothing like they have been since the first of the year.

Complaints included: Gold paint had been sprayed on a car; someone was drag racing on East 7th; a purse belonging to a Fremont woman was found; house-to-house solicitors drew complaints; two tractors on a display lot were started by pranksters; and left running; a reckless driving complaint identified a youth who admitted being careless; fire traffic control was required; and a car left parked in an alley was ticketed.

In addition, the policemen had two traffic accidents and two cases of larceny or attempted larceny to investigate.

WSC Students Borrow Money, Pay on Time

A total of 454 students at Wayne State College have received loans under the National Defense Student Loan program and not one borrower is delinquent in repayment, according to President W. A. Brandenburg, reporting on Wayne's experience with the loan fund since its beginning in 1959.

Loans advanced to students in that time total $329,825. Of this, $30,801 was contributed from the Wayne State Foundation and other sources — none from college funds. The federal fund matches $9 for each $1 provided by a college.

So far, borrowers have repaid $21,251 and another $10,072 has been cancelled for borrowers who have gone into public school teaching.

NO LABORATORY work is available to junior high pupils at WHS because there are no lab rooms for them. Vincent Murphy, instructor, stands at the rear. He had to stand as a temporary table was being used and a pupil had to use his chair as 34 pupils attended one class. Lab experiments are done at the front table but the pupils have no way of doing the experiment themselves.

to use the library, and no office or planning room. I have listed the basic problems that face the Junior high science department. I will now try to deal with each problem.

1. Too many students per teacher. According to the NEA, a class should be no larger than 22 students. At first thought the solution would be to hire another teacher but this is not the case. If the school were to hire another teacher, where would that teacher teach? There just isn't a free classroom available. So, for the time being, this condition will not improve unless measures are taken to make space available.
2. Science for only half a year. In this age of technological development the student must be made aware of his scientific environment. This should start long before the student reaches the junior high level and should continue through high school.
3. Lack of adequate classroom space for each student. At present it is not uncommon to have over 33 students in one small classroom. This in itself presents a discipline problem, for when students are packed close together the temptation to talk is great. This forces the teacher to act as a disciplinarian and, in this case, much is lost from the learning atmosphere.
4. No laboratory available. Students have a natural curiosity and want to know the "hows" and "whys" of things. This can best be done in the laboratory if one is available. However, in our present setup, the student has to be satisfied with a verbal explanation or an answer from the text.
5. No access to the library. At present, the library acts as a study hall and is filled to capacity seven periods a day. Junior high students do not have a study period in the library all day so they are sort of "out of luck." It is true they can get a slip from their home room to go to the library one at a time, but can you imagine 150 students going to the library one at a time to complete an assignment? It would be impossible for them to do so especially if the books were on reserve.
6. We have a library; it is a shame the students don't have a chance to use it.
7. No office or planning room. Many times students wish to converse with their teachers about a basic problem. This is best done in the privacy of an office. Although an office is not a must, it is at least something to be desired. An office would eliminate the need to take a complete set of books from one room to another and lead to better organization.
8. Conclusion: The basic problems in the junior high science department stem from one large problem that is staring us in the face. That is, "There just isn't enough room." Until this problem can be eliminated, I see little hope of much improvement in the days to come.

Survivors include a sister, Mrs. Ruth Lundstedt, Chicago; a brother, Henning Lindgren, South Shore, S. D., and several nieces and nephews.

JUNIOR HIGH pupils have limited library use (getting out one at a time to use the library). Here three are shown posed looking into a library where every seat was filled because it was also used as a study hall. From left to right they are Beverly Junck, Ann Carwood and Loren Cunningham.

'Library Use Not Available to 150 Junior High Kids'

Junior high instructors agree that because of a bulging enrollment which has more than doubled in the past eight years, the junior high school student of Wayne has been deprived of facilities necessary for quality education. Because capacity study halls occupy the school library every period of the day, the 150 junior high students have virtually no access to the library. "The inquisitive mind of the junior high pupil must be given facilities for individual study if this desirable quality is to grow. The social studies text book needs to be supplemented with up-to-date books and periodicals found only in a library. For the potential scientist or the average science student, one textbook can hardly stimulate or encourage research," said JoAnn Hoek, social studies instructor.

Gail Otten, English teacher, reported: "The English class is perhaps most directly affected by this lack of library facilities. Book reports and outside reading can be encouraged, but to what extent when the students must depend upon their own resources? Under the present setup junior high students have access to the school library only before and after school or on an individual basis during the day. Even the public library cannot adequately meet both the needs of the young teen and the general public.

Basic library techniques so vital in later years can hardly be taught without some practical experience. Research papers need a well-supplied and accessible library to be successful. Students of this age need guidance in selection of quality recreational reading as well. Students must have access to a well-planned selection of books and a librarian who is available to give them the advice they seek."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

It's Up to You

Most of the work for and against a new high school is done. Tuesday the decision will be made... your decision.

Everyone knows a new building costs and taxes go up but do they stop to think that real estate values go up when a town has a new school? Do they remember people move to towns where schools are best? Can they visualize the reality that increased taxes and value are an investment in the community?

Here's what happened in two towns that obtained new schools: Coleridge built a new school in 1960 when several store buildings were vacant and even more homes were for rent. Since then the bank has a new building, a feed and oil company has expanded to three sites from one, business places have remodelled for better appearance, a new bowling alley has been put in, a new clinic is being constructed, a new fire hall is going up and 26 new homes have been built.

Windside built a new school in 1960 when five houses and three business houses were vacant. Today there are no vacant business houses, a tri-plex and nine new homes have been built since 1963, two new fertilizer plants are being built, a new dehydrating plant located there, several business places have been remodelled, a $15,000 business building has been added and the economy of the area has improved through increased employment and population.

Wayne Federal Savings & Loan surveyed towns from Windside to Norfolk in size. It showed Wayne real estate values are about 15 per cent higher than Norfolk's. Wayne has only one office building vacant and the only homes vacant are those vacant "with cause" such as for sale or tied up in an estate.

For every $100,000 spent on a new school, one fourth and more comes back directly to local merchants. On an $867,000 school, about $220,000 would come back directly. Wages, materials and other needs would be met in Wayne. Only a portion of the money would leave town.

Building a new school is not a one-way street where everything goes out. Wayne could find as other communities have that GOOD SCHOOLS DON'T COST — THEY PAY! They pay in better education, community progress, personal pride, money returned and other ways. It's up to you to decide which way Wayne goes after Tuesday.

But when you get right down to it, there's only one thing to consider: What do our kids, your kids and the kids of the future need? What are we going to provide for them? — CEG

Schools Attract Attention

With the decision on a new school building in Wayne a matter of days away, an article in NEA Journal, March, 1965, seems appropriate. Written by Robert Will, manager of Plant Location Surveys, Austin, Co., Cleveland, it gives a new aspect to school facilities.

Two paragraphs may suffice: "A basic consideration — the quality of the educational system — is measured from several different points of view. Is the work force well-educated? Are graduates readily accepted by institutions of higher learning? Will the schools be acceptable to transferred employees? Are special courses available for advanced study? Such questions are crucial to the overall morale and employability of the local work force."

Of major importance to the successful operation of a new plant is the willingness of key employees to be transferred to the new location and the ease with which certain prospective employees can be induced to move to the area. The presence of a good local school system is a top requisite of such employees and their families.

The company for which Will works has helped industries select new plant sites for 25 years. Around $2 billion has been spent on plants located at the recommendation of his firm.

Wayne seeks industry. Industry goes where it is wanted and where it is attracted. If you were an industrialist and looked over the facilities of Wayne today would you like what you saw? No one says a new school will bring industry, but it could be an assist in getting some. With industry come increased valuation, lower taxes and greater progress. The first step toward attracting more industry could be taken Tuesday.

Wayne Is Different

From the first day in Wayne we realized this town was different. We had traveled 390 miles across Nebraska and when we arrived in Wayne we knew there was something different.

A week in the town convinced us. Wayne IS different. Since the school bond issue has come up we've made it a point to learn all we could about how past elections were held and there we're convinced too — Wayne is different.

This city approved a swimming pool the first time a vote was held. A new grade school was needed and it was approved the first time the voters had a chance to decide the issue.

Norfolk voted five times on a new school. Wakefield hassled over a new school for years. West Point is going to vote on a new school and no one is predicting it will pass the first time.

Wayne is not Norfolk, Wakefield or West Point. It will be no blotch on the city's record if the high school bond issue does not pass, but it will be surprising since Wayne residents seem to care.

We'll still say, Wayne is different. Viva la difference. — CEG land for a new roadway, reduce design and right-of-way costs and expedite construction, especially in the near large cities.

School Problems Continue
Problems in some marginal high schools "point up very sharply" the need for tighter regulations, according to State Education Commissioner Floyd A. Miller.

In some approved high schools, Miller said, "school just isn't being kept."

Nebraska has 92 high schools in the approved classification. They are not accredited and meet only minimum requirements.

The State Education Department is presently drawing new and stricter regulations the schools will be required to meet.

Priority Given Project

The National Park Service has stamped a "high priority" label on plans to buy 88 acres of the Scotts Bluff, Neb., Country Club golf course of the Scotts Bluff National Monument.

Then, if the golf course is not relocated, the service may lease the land to the golfers.

Club owners are thinking in terms of relocating and selling the property in the monument for development.

N.E. Extension Notes

Prepare Clothes For Storage

About fifty percent of the money spent for dry-cleaning is now going to coin-operated dry cleaning establishments.

The two main advantages of coin-operated dry cleaning are economy and speed. Keep these advantages in mind when getting the family's winter clothes ready for summer storage. Eight pounds of clothes can be cleaned in about an hour for $1 or $2. If the same clothes are sent to a commercial cleaner, it would take three to five days and cost $8 to $8.

Pre-treatment of spots or stains is necessary for thorough cleaning. If no pre-treatment is used, spots which are soluble in water will not be removed by the cleaning solvent. At some establishments an attendant does your coin-op cleaning for you. His attention should be called to spots or stains which might need pre-treatment.

Little or no ironing is necessary for many coin-operated cleaned clothes. Appearance will be best if you do not overload the machine. Clothes should be taken from the machine as soon as the cycle is completed. Hang them on hangers.

Clothes cleaned in a coin-op machine may come out smelling of cleaning fluid. If you take the clothes back home in your car, open the window to allow the escape of solvent fumes. The driver could possibly be overcome by harmful fumes.

It's a good idea to air the clothes thoroughly before storage. Plastic hangers should not be used for hanging clothes in storage. Sometimes enough dry cleaning solvent is left in heavy fabrics or shoulder pads to soften the plastic hangers. If softening should occur, the hanger sticks to the fabric so that it is difficult to remove without damaging the garments. The same thing can happen if garments are hung on plastic hangers and exposed to fumes from moth preventatives such as paradichlorobenzene crystals.

A thorough-going study to determine why there is a widening gap between the prices the farmer receives and the prices he must pay is getting underway with a series of hearings — one of them to be held in Omaha — by the National Commission on Food Marketing.

During the past week, the Commission heard testimony at Chryenne, Wyo., from representatives of livestock producers, feeders, packers and marketing facilities in the Rocky Mountain area. The Cheyenne hearing was the first scheduled by the Commission.

Four additional hearings have been announced thus far: Fort Worth, Texas, Apr. 22-24; Washington, D.C., May 5-8; Atlanta, Ga., May 13-15; and Omaha, June 3-5.

Created by statute last year, the Commission has 15 members — five each from the House and Senate and five "public" members. Nebraska has two representatives on the bipartisan panel, Senator Roman L. Hruska and Second District Congressman Glenn Cunningham.

The General Accounting Office, guardian against waste and excesses in the Federal Government, often reports to Congress on sticky situations uncovered by its investigators and auditors. Just as often, the GAO rights wrongs perpetrated against individuals.

Just recently the Comptroller General, who heads up the agency, ordered the Navy to reimburse a Federal civilian employee who was put on enforced vacation and sick leave for almost two months while a report on his physical condition was under study.

The employee was required to take a special fitness examination before returning to work after an illness. While the Navy delayed making a decision on the exam, the worker used up 322 hours of leave time valued at $1,770.

When the case was taken to the GAO, the Navy's action was ruled "unreasonable" and the time was ordered recredited to the employee's account.

A State Department security officer with an outstanding record has been ordered to report to El Paso, Texas, where he will be expected to ring doorbells in routine inquiries about qualifications of job applicants. The Department previously has had no investigator located in El Paso.

This is the penalty for having come to support of Otto Otepka who was fired by the Department in November of 1963 for responding to requests of a Senate Committee for information concerning the State Department's security program.

The recently reassigned man is the seventh Department security officer, in addition to Otepka, to be penalized for resisting loose security methods in the Department and trying to improve them.

Letters to the Editor

Windside, Nebraska
March 29, 1965

Gentlemen:
In reading your paper the past several weeks, we have missed what we felt were the best parts of your paper. We refer to the columns which had been included on the editorial page — the column by Don Cunningham, and Uncle Zeke Says. If there was an explanation as to their absence, we missed it.

We don't intend to be critical of "Sass" which seems to have been substituted in their place, but in our opinion Cunningham and Uncle Zeke express more down-to-earth philosophy which is sorely needed by the world today than pages and pages of "Sass". Frankly, we'd like to have them back.

At the same time, we can commend you for the policy stated in last week's Herald as to eliminating much of the "who visited who during the week" item. We keep a paper to be abreast of the news — and also for a good editorial page.

Yours truly,

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mangle (It takes all kinds! One correspondent said she had seven complaints about the new policy of leaving out neighborhood news. Don Cunningham is sick and sends a note that he'll resume his column when he is able. Uncle Zeke has been left out for over a month and evidently first miss it because yours is the first comment. We'd gladly substitute it for Sass as it is canned stuff appearing in dozens of papers and all we do is just pay to get it and it's ready to go in a month. A few more letters like yours are needed now before we eliminate Sass and bring back Zeke. — Editor)

Dear Editor:
The 7 mill levy wouldn't be so bad to build the new school but it will take another 7 mill levy to operate the school. This is not being told to the people of Wayne. I think the people of Wayne deserve to know this.

I still oppose contracting. Building of new buildings and the high expense of operating the city schools makes contracting obsolete. The school board knows that contracting isn't fair to the taxpayers of Wayne. What it takes these days is a much larger district. I know Wayne's school board looked into the different School buildings but they failed to find out the size of those districts, of which they pay their taxes. Wayne's School Board is still the school board of Dist. 17 and not the school board of the country districts.

If contracting is continued the revenue should be doubled. As far as losing customers is concerned, I don't think the Editor and School Board and the farmers in contracting districts want to get into the practice of bartering school children for trade in Wayne. Contracting does not guarantee that those farmers will trade in Wayne. They are still free. It does not guarantee that those districts will ever merge with Wayne. They can pick out a town which has a lower mill levy.

Businessmen know that proper service, quality and price and the ability to deal with farmers, determine customers. School matters should not be connected with trade anyway. Businessmen in other towns were not afraid of losing customers and they merged a great number of districts. I don't see why Wayne has to be the only town to lay back.

C. Vogel (We'll try to answer every charge. A 7 mill levy will raise $56,000 — so it is hardly likely that an amount that large would be needed for an additional custodian and as the enrollment grows even added teachers.) (Few businessmen would say contracting is profitable to school district reorganization. Few towns the size of Wayne have this reorganization advantage, however, and where they do, the county reorganization board was willing to define the proposed district boundaries and to lead in reorganization. Why don't you poll the members of your county reorganization board and see if they are willing to do this for Wayne?

(School population has always come in a large part from a community's trade area where people attend church, buy groceries, sell produce and buy kids to school. If you think this is not as it should be, you will at least have to admit that the facts speak for themselves.

(If you were in a position to make the decisions you assume are so easy and then take the responsibility for your actions, you would not be so hasty in casting judgment.

(Finally, the schools the board looked at included small ones like Altamont and Coleridge, some about the same as Wayne like Bloomfield and Nebraska City and some as big as Omaha, Lincoln, Columbus and Fremont. The mill levies ranged from 54.88 at Allen and 41.32 at Coleridge to 40.62 at Omaha, 43.29 at Columbus and 36.00 at Fremont and 48.35 at Lincoln. Some of the towns have parochial schools that take some load off the public schools. For complete list of schools visited, come to the Herald office. We have the names of the schools, the district valuations, the number of pupils and the mill levies.

Reapportionment Plan Is Studied in Legislature

LINCOLN — Legislative reapportionment has taken over the spotlight in the Nebraska Legislature.

Two significant actions are involved: A new reapportionment plan, and a controversial resolution.

The new reapportionment plan divides the state into 50 districts, the constitutional limit. It leaves 29 districts unchanged, and tosses only two incumbent senators (William Hasebroeck, West Point, and Peter Clausen, Leigh) into the same district.

It has been submitted to the special three-judge federal court panel which has jurisdiction over Nebraska reapportionment matters. The Nebraska AFL-CIO has charged it is unconstitutional and void.

The Union has asked the Federal Court to throw out the plan and reapportion the Legislature itself along strict equal-representation lines.

At issue is whether the Legislature can cross county lines in establishing new districts, and how many from odd-numbered districts must face re-election next fall.

The resolution urges the Federal Government, in effect, to keep its judicial nose out of Nebraska's apportionment matters.

The measure was backed mainly by rural forces who feel the Federal authorities have overstepped their limits by intruding into the state's legislative affairs.

deny urban people the right to vote.

Development Boosted

The Legislature has passed a multi-million dollar, pay-as-you-go effort to provide accessible outdoor recreation for every man, woman and child in Nebraska.

The legislation sets up a land and water conservation program in which the federal, state and local governments will participate.

Key provisions of the bill are designed to create recreation areas near cities, whose increase in population have far exceeded their growth in outdoor facilities.

It's expected Nebraska will receive about $2.4 million yearly from the Federal Government under the act.

The state matching money will come from the recently-approved cigarette tax increase.

More than 65 Nebraska communities in 15 counties have already applied for recreational development funds under the program.

Artists Selected
The Nebraska Capitol Murals Commission has selected three artists to paint mosaic murals to be located in the State Capitol's foyer, or Great Hall.

They are Prof. B. P. Marxhausen, Concordia Teachers College, Seward; Jeanne Reynal, New York City, and F. John Miller, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Marxhausen, who heads the Concordia College Art Department, will work on "The Spirit of Nebraska."

Miss Reynal, who has had several mosaics placed with large museums, will do "The Blizzard of '88'."

Miller, associate professor of art at George Williams University in Montreal, Canada, will paint "The Building of the First Railroad."

More Colleges Apply

Four more Nebraska colleges have applied for federal matching funds under the Higher Education Facilities Act.

They are Kearney State College, the University of Omaha, and Fairbury and North Platte Junior Colleges.

Kearney seeks the biggest bite. It wants $373,837 to help complete a new science building. The Legislature recently approved a $1.2 million appropriation to the school for the building.

Wait-and-See

Education officials are generally taking a wait-and-see attitude to a proposal by the Legislature's Budget Committee that student tuition be increased at the state colleges and the University of Nebraska.

The committee announced it will suggest across-the-board increases be applied to all schools and colleges.

Sen. Perry Carpenter, Scottsbluff, has attached the proposal as "illogical." He believes student tuition should be waived for all resident students attending public institutions of higher education in the state.

New Road Policy

The Nebraska Department of Roads has announced additional steps in a program intended to modernize its right-of-way acquisition procedures.

Generally, they provide that design engineers and division engineers will consult with right-of-way engineers and appraisers before the land purchase plans are finalized.

State Highway Engineer John Fossack said the changes will shorten the time needed to get Piled higher than the girls, the cookies looked mountainous but the girls started deliveries Monday and cut the pile down considerably. Kathy Fletcher, Troop 145 is on the left, Barbara Daniels, Troop 191 in the middle and Terri Whitney, Troop 257 on the right.

Clem: "My uncle wants me to help him with his income tax."
Rufe: "But you can't read or write."
Clem: "He doesn't want me to read or write—he wants me to pay it!"

Pierce and Osmond have been feuding over which way Highway 98 will go in Pierce county. While they're arguing over the route of the surfacing, the state might want to put the money to use finishing Highway 15 north from Wayne to Laurel. In a way though, 15 is such a safe road the way it is, it might be a shame to change it. It's so rough nobody could possibly go to sleep driving on it at night!

At a party in the suburbs where living is expensive, the host raised the question: "What would you do if you had all the money in the world?"

One of the guests thought a minute and replied: "I'd use it to pay my wife's bills—as far as it would go."

Wayne has certainly had some fine Lenten services. Last week we heard the Rev. Charles Tyler from Omaha at the Presbyterian church. The week before it is to send it to The Herald. If we get enough, we may even take out this column instead of Uncle Zeke from Pigeon Creek.

It took the young woman only a short time after inheriting her elderly lady had never thrown anything away. Still, the niece had hopes of finding some valuables among all the junk. After several days of vain hunting she saw far back in a dusty cupboard a grimy old fruit jar. Inside it was a faded note. Excitedly, she unscrewed the lid of the jar. Her hands trembled as she unfolded the paper and read: "This jar is cracked."

Pastors Ask That City Take Time to Pray Good Friday

A question which arises from time to time during the Lenten season is, whether to close or not to close our places of business on Good Friday when the Savior Jesus Christ died to save mankind, in order that we may give ample thought to the importance of the occasion.

We stop to pay our respects when a good man is taken from us or from our nation, as was evidenced in the late death of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy. When a prominent citizen dies, we pause, suspend business activities, and give due honor to the deceased.

And now what shall we do when we hear that the Lord of lords and the King of kings came into this world of ours, suffered and died for all mankind, yea, for you and for me, for all men, for the whole world? And we have no time in this hectic and bustle of ours to pause and reflect?

What better time would there be than to suspend our businesses for two hours on Good Friday, say from 12:30 until 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, when even the death of the world's Maker and Redeemer turned the world into a sea of darkness, and to ponder the effects this death had upon the death of all men, namely that through His death all men may have life, life eternal.

'Local Taxes Get the Kick the Dog Status'

A Wayne resident has called attention to a letter appearing in The Wakefield Republican Mar. 2, 1961. He suggested the "kick the dog" idea might be prevalent here.

The letter, written by Merlin Olson, pointed out that education ranks above moon shots, foreign aid, fish hatcheries and other projects. But, citizens have little if any control. In the same way, the little man has never had much to say what his state tax money is used for.

Because of this, the taxpayer takes his tax resentment out on the local issues — school improvements, teacher salaries or other needs. It's like "kicking the dog" for something because he's handy.

If you want to "kick someone besides the dog," here's where you should kick: Federal spending, young congressmen and senators; state spending, Sen. Peter Clausen; county spending, county commissioners. "Kicking the dog in Wayne because you resent something in Washington really won't help," the local resident said.

THESE YOUNGSTERS got double enjoyment out of the annual Children's Theater play at WSC Friday. They were first-prize winners in a contest for posters depicting the theme of the play, "The Elves and the Shoemaker." The winners: (front row) Judy Christ, eighth grade, Howells; Diane Hosenkamp, fourth grade, Dist. 25, Stanton; Scott Glaumeyer, second grade, Dist. 57, Wayne; Brian Felt, first grade, Dist. 6, Stanton, and Marjorie Skovsden, kindergarten, Dist. 7, Piger. (Back row) Sandra Suits, seventh grade, Dist. 67, Humphrey; LuAnn Dunklau, fifth grade, Dist. 61, Wayne, and Michael Daniels, sixth grade, Howells. The winner in third grade competition was Ann Owens, Wayne East, not present. Ninety children entered the contest, and a record 1,500 attended the matinee.

CALLAN CALLS DIRECT: That's what Cong. Clair Callan did in a telephone call from Washington to a Wayne State audience in the student center. The busy representative, unable to make a personal appearance, answered questions for about 45 minutes on a two-way amplified hook-up. Midwesterners will love Let's Get

In the Swim on the Roman Riviera

ROME — Although cafe-sitters fondly refer to the Via Veneto, winding through the heart of Rome, as "the beach," the real beach of sun, sand and sea is never far off. What is more, Rome of late has developed a fashionable riviera stretching north and south along the coast from Ostia, 18 miles from the capital.

Watching the bikinis go by is a delightful respite after climbing around the Colosseum or plodding through the corridors of the Vatican Museum. The proximity of the beaches, which links Rome with New York in eight hours by Jet Clipper means that more and more tourists are packing swim suits and sports clothes for a summer stay in the Eternal City.

One of the most elegant seaside colonies on the coast is Fregene, 20 miles from Rome. This resort, less glamorous than Capri or Portofino, nonetheless draws its share of Italian movie stars and wealthy Roman residents, many of whom rent villas for the May to October season. Fregene in recent years has attracted many Americans who take cottages or apartments and commute back and forth to Rome. There are all sorts of restaurants and fine hotels set in the pine woods behind the beach.

THE SWEET SUMMER LIFE IN ROME

Rome nowadays is fashionable as a summer resort. Several hotels in the city and its suburbs boast rooftop swimming pools, and the Appian Way, where the Legions of Rome once marched, is an ideal spot for a picnic on a sunny day. What is more, the beaches such as the Lido Ostia are just 40 minutes by subway from downtown Rome.

GEIRANGER FJORD IN NORWAY

Dedicated skiers can try their skill at glacier slalom in August in the icefields above Geiranger in Norway. The race ends up with a water skiing meet on the blue waters of the fjord below. The fjords, fringing the coast of Norway, are featured in three- and six-day tours from Oslo.

COMMUNITY WASH IN RIVIERA HILL TOWN

Although the French Riviera is known for its monopoly on glamour, life in the tiny hill towns above the fashionable coast retains its charm and simplicity. The women of the village do the family wash in the main square. Cattle graze on the steep slopes and narrow, winding streets are reminiscent of another era.

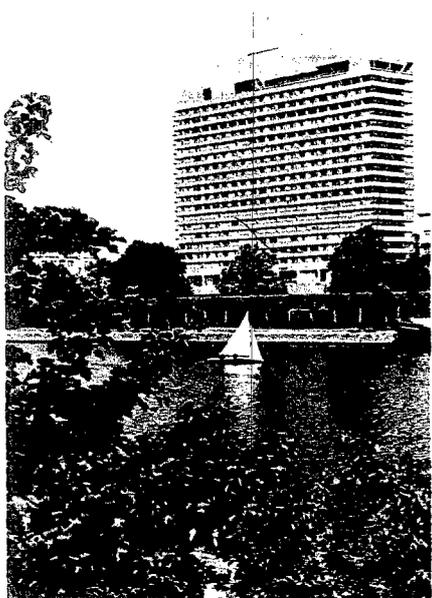

NEW HOTEL IN FRANKFURT-ON-MAIN

Rising 20 stories on the banks of the Main River in the heart of Frankfurt is the new 500-room Frankfurt Intercontinental Hotel, the largest in Germany. A showplace of modernity, the hotel, built at a cost of $10,000,000 is an ideal base for tours to the Rhine, Ruhr, and Black Forest regions.

FRENCH RIVIERA IDEAL

The French Riviera, despite its accent on glamor and glitter, has its share of sleepy little fishing ports and hillside villages. The western side of the coast around St. Maxime, packed with pleasure-seekers in summer, is a haven of tranquility in the fall and winter. The weather is balmy and the air fragrant with mimosa even in February.

Europe there!!

PARIS GENDARMES "PARLEZ" ENGLISH

Paris is still Paris but American frills have been added. Most Parisians speak some English, supermarkets are burgeoning, and everyone is doing the twist or the surf. The quick lunch "a l'americaine" is in vogue and businessmen sitting on bar stools eat hamburgers, sip cokes and spoon chocolate fudge sundaes. Americans in Paris prefer French customs—the leisurely lunch, the glass of wine, the sidewalk cafe.

No Homesick Americans In Paris.

PARIS — While the rest of the world struggles to emulate Paris fashions and the French cuisine, France finds inspiration in the American style. Nowadays, when a Frenchman speaks of life "a l'americaine," he is referring to his own high standard of living with car, dish washer, deep freeze and an assortment of other status symbols.

Taking a tip from the U.S.A., France has acquired some 300 supermarkets and hundreds of snack bars since the war. A bowling alley does a booming business in the Bois de Boulogne, and American movies draw the big crowds on the Champs-Elysees.

The fabled night life of Paris offers up its share of jazz, and scotch, while Parisian teen-agers in tight blue jeans surf and twist with all the frenzy of their American counterparts. What is more, the French language itself has been invaded by scores of English words and phrases, such as "le business," "le weekend" and "le milkshake," to list but a few.

The snack bar, dispensing hamburgers and hot dogs, made its Paris debut in the Thirties. The clientele at the time was mostly American with a few curious Parisians. Today, "le snack" and "le self-service" (as the cafeteria is known) are firmly established and the patronage is Parisian with a few homesick Americans. French businessmen seem to prefer the quick lunch — sitting on bar stools, sipping a coke, eating a sandwich, spooning a banana split.

As a final touch to the American charms of Paris, there is the "Drug Store" on the Champs-Elysees near the Etoile. Styled after the American drugstore, this emporium sells tobacco, souvenirs, perfumes, books, records, theater tickets and popcorn. The "Drug Store" is the place to go for American-type quick lunch or an after-theater snack.

For the man who has everything, The Garner Leader and Signal of Garner, Iowa, suggests a calendar to remind him when all the payments come due.

"It takes the average housewife about four checkbooks to fill one stamp book," reports The Britton (S.D.) Journal.

The Johnson County News of Greenwood, Ind. carried some comfort for those of us who walk in to clotheslines. It is perfectly normal, said the News, because the horizontal positioning of the eyes makes it difficult to resolve thin horizontal objects.

Is everyone comforted?

The Carlisle (Iowa) Citizen claims to know a girl who is an archaeologist because she will do anything to dig up a man.

The Daily Reporter of Spencer, Iowa, on kicking cigarettes, quotes a Public Health Service official as saying, "When we speak of smoking cessation, we do not speak of a single, isolated change in a person's life, but of a rather radical and extensive disruption of a complicated, interwoven pattern of habits, of needs gratified, of pleasures derived, and of habits released."

Has somebody got a match?

Did you ever wonder how the ants never fail to miss a picnic? The answer was recorded by the Winters (S.D.) Advocate. "The antennae, or feelers of ants are remarkably rich in the organs of smell and touch. A single antenna contains 211 olfactory cones and 1,730 touch bristles," says the Advocate. Lots of luck next summer with those cones and bristles.

"So why worry about an extra piece of pie?" asks the Times.

President Johnson likes to use the telephones, reports The Daily Reporter of Spencer, Iowa. This is the kind of news that makes a lot of us nervous. How can you plan a weekend when any minute the phone might ring and LBJ will say, "Why don't you drop down to the ranch for a barbecue?"

Have you signed up for the FN tour to Hawaii?

by Mrs. Bess Boon — Farm and Home Tour Director

66 "Take the Mokuahi to the Makahiki" may sound like a song from Tin Pan Alley, but it's a fitting theme for farm and home tour members bound for Hawaii this fall.

It's the Hawaiian way of saying, "take the ship to the harvest festival." And the ship is the SS LURLINE with its Aloha-island atmosphere all the way.

This year's Makahiki Festival will be held in early November. The LURLINE will wrap up the highlights of the celebrations — as well as high points in Honolulu and the Neighbor Isles — by sailing from Los Angeles October 29, calling at Oahu, when swinging around to Kauai, Maui and Hawaii.

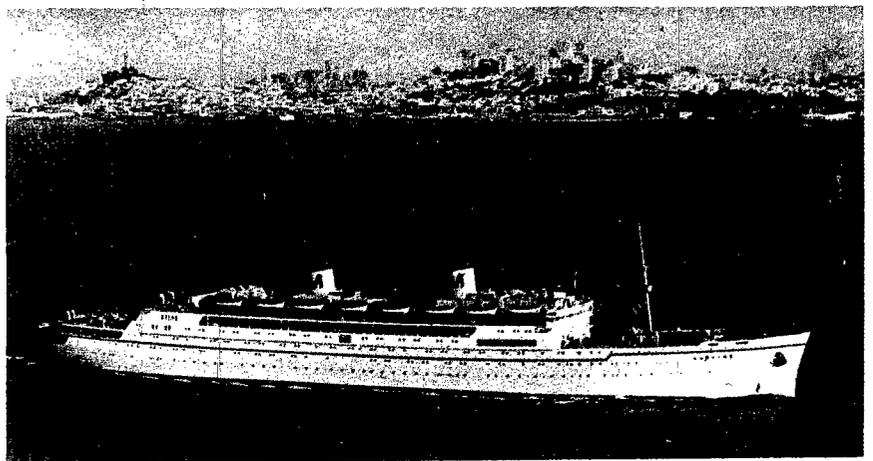

Schedule for this special Cruise Tour is: October 26 — leave midwestern points via the streamliner Super Chief, arrive Los Angeles October 28. Sail Los Angeles October 29. Arrive Honolulu November 3, sail Honolulu November 4. At Nawiliwili, Kauai November 5; at Lahaina, Maui November 6; at Hilo, Hawaii November 7. Arrive San Francisco November 12, arrive midwestern points November 15.

On this sailing, the Makahiki mood, naturally, will permeate the ship and the ports of call. Hawaiian residents are reviving the ancient "welcome to winter" celebrations by recreating the days of old Hawaii, giving thanks to the god Lono for the harvests of the land and sea, and staging different events replete with the atmosphere of yesteryears. Top activities — like Lahaina's festive Whaling Spree — will be timed to coincide with the LURLINE'S arrival at each port.

And what will those port calls be like? Like arriving at each of them as early explorers did — watching the misty isles grow from hazy cloud-images to breathtaking mountain peaks jutting sharply from the sea.

The voyage on the famed LURLINE will be an experience in itself. The beauty, charm and simplicity of Hawaii keynote the spacious staterooms and public rooms aboard the liner. Shipboard night life revolves around a different party theme every evening.

WHEN a lot of people put their heads together and use their collective knowledge for a common goal, good things usually happen. If you were one of the many thousands of farmers who attended the Corn-Soybean Clinics in the past few months, you know what we're talking about.

Modern agriculture was the topic. The experts came from commercial and non-commercial walks of life to bring the very latest methods of production to corn and soybean farmers in the Midwest. The speakers represented the seed industry, the farm equipment industry, the fertilizer industry, the chemical industry as it applies to weed and insect control. The "experts" spoke with a great deal of authority, too, as they actually represented the companies that must continually keep ahead of the demands of farmers who are constantly looking for better, more efficient ways to manage their farming operation.

This special Farm and Home Section Corn-Soybean Clinic Report will attempt to hit most of the important highlights of the clinics. It will not come close to substituting for the actual sessions, but will at least point out the latest trends in corn and soybean production.

The pictures on this page help illustrate some of the topics covered in the Clinic sessions which were climaxed with a panel of experts in all fields answering questions from the floor.

Farmer clinics can provide those who desire to improve their managerial know-how with much of the information they need to do so. Illustrated talks covered nearly every conceivable subject from plowing through harvesting.

What can you expect now, and the years ahead, in corn production? Thousands of farmers who attended one of the more than 50 midwest Corn-Soybean Clinics during the past couple of months heard some of the answers.

Spokesmen for DeKalb Agricultural Association, Inc., speaking at the meetings, offered some food for thought along this line. They said that in the 70's we may be planting corn up to 30,000 plants per acre — in fact, some farmers are already looking at this possibility. To go along with this, we will up our fertilizer rates, use more chemical weed controls, probably plant in narrower rows and have hybrids that are resistant to disease and insects. In fact, they felt encouraged by the progress scientists have made in breeding resistance to the much talked about stunt disease.

"As far as DeKalb is concerned," the seed specialists commented, "the XL varieties are showing tremendous gains, as are 4-way crosses carrying this new improved breeding. There is a strong trend toward single crosses and 3-way crosses."

CORN PRODUCTION ... a look ahead

Both the single crosses and the 3-way crosses produce more vigor, more uniformity and are easier to breed for more specific purposes such as disease resistance. Significant advantages for the single and 3-way crosses have shown up in on-the-farm results. (This is where it counts.)

The XL's, such as DeKalb's XL-45, have what is needed for high population corn. They have a strong stalk, they are short, they have an ear on every stalk, have strong shanks, are resistant to a wide range of diseases and insects.

Narrow Rows Best

There were two reasons given for going to narrow row corn.

1. Narrow rows yield more at the same plant population.
2. Narrow rows tend to shade out the weeds, conserve moisture.

Narrow rows, it was pointed out, can show significant advantages as was demonstrated in a Dayton, Iowa test. Corn planted in 20' rows out-yielded corn in 40' rows at the same population by 19 bushels per acre. This is one year's result and is far from conclusive, but the potential is clearly evident. The hybrid used was especially suited to high plant population, DeKalb XL-45.

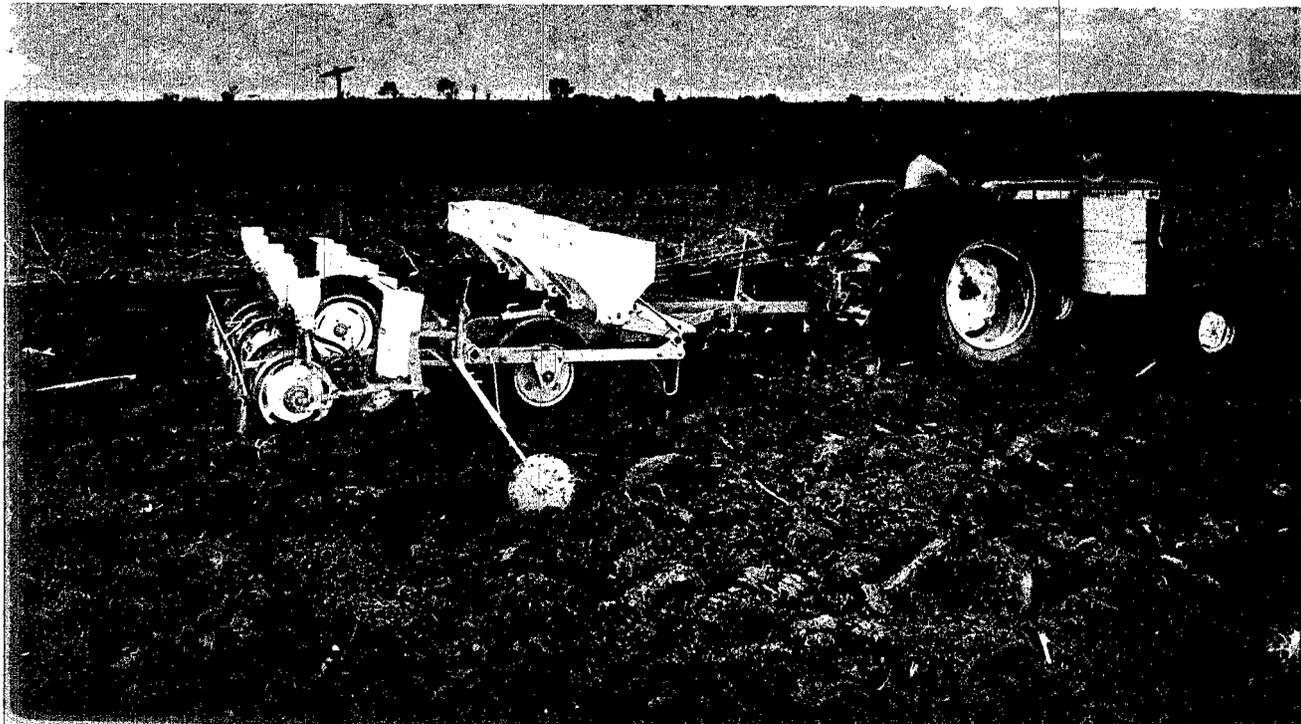

10-Point Program For Profit

"If farmers will follow these 10 steps," the seed specialists concluded, "it may increase yields an average of 10 to 30 bushels per acre." Briefly the 10 points are:

- (1) Handle water supply efficiently — this means drainage if necessary, keeping a good over winter cover and improving tilth by plowing down crop residues.
- (2) Test soil for N, P, K, as well as lime and trace elements.
- (3) Use minimum tillage to reduce labor, soil compaction and erosion.
- (4) Fertilize for yield goal. Boosting corn to higher yield levels may require about 2 pounds of extra nitrogen (actual) per bushel increase, 2 pounds of P_2O_5 and 1½ pounds of K_2O .
- (5) Plant early — Last week in April or first week in May is usually best in the corn belt. Early plantings, year after year, produce higher yields, reduce lodging and advance the harvesting date.
- (6) Plant Higher Populations — Stands of 20,000 and up at harvest time usually give top yields. Shoot for a stand that produces ears about one-half pound to six-tenths pound in weight.
- (7) Plant in narrow rows — makes better use of fertilizer, helps control weeds (especially if you use a chemical weed control) and increases yield in most cases.
- (8) Plant a modern hybrid — check for short stalks, strong shanks, yielding ability, ability to take high populations, resistance to disease and insects and maturity adapted to your area.
- (9) Control weeds and insects chemically — follow manufacturer's directions on the label.
- (10) Harvest early and carefully — adjust equipment and don't get in too big of a hurry.

Planting, fertilizing and application of a pre-emergence herbicide is quite often done in one operation. Getting the most done by one man in the shortest possible time is important in today's farming. It's part of the minimum tillage picture.

Modern production

FARMING, like all other business, has become a matter of making the right decision at the right time . . . a science of matching machinery and manpower to achieve maximum efficiency.

What are some of the major "power and production" decisions today's good farmer must make? The subject has been well explored by specialists from the Allis-Chalmers Company and, according to the experts, the following things are important.

They start their presentation by suggesting that the word "farmer" no longer properly describes the role of today's men of agriculture. They are managers. Their big job is to select the best possible tools to work with in order to minimize production costs and maximize profits. This is no small task.

Sticking closely to corn and soybean operations, the first major consideration is tractor power. How many tractors should be used in a given operation? What size should they be? What is the labor situation? How much time is available to drive them? How many acres of corn and beans will be planted? These are all important. So, too, is the question of whether the hired man will be staying with you and whether the boy will be off to school.

One factor involved seems always to come out on top. CAPITAL IS CHEAPER THAN LABOR. There are a number of studies available which can suggest to a farmer whether he should have, for instance, two 3-plow tractors or one 7-plow tractor. The choice depends usually upon the number of hours of use, hourly cost of labor and fixed annual costs.

Fewer people on a farm can take one of the new big horsepower tractors and end up with much better use of manpower and greater fuel efficiency. A disadvantage, in some minds, is the 11-thousand to 16-thousand pound weights of the big tractors. Soil compaction becomes a consideration. But, keep in mind it can pull six or more bottoms, it is comfortable and easy to handle. compaction is immediately broken-up.

There are so many things for a farmer to consider. He is, indeed, a manager.

These company experts live farming efficiency. Their corn and soybean clinic presentations go into planting methods and techniques, as well as consideration of planting and related equipment. They relay research facts that show the advantages of early planting. Many farmers displayed surprise in learning that corn should be planted during a certain early 2-week period . . . ending early in May in most corn belt areas. Foul weather usually reduces the period to about 8 actual days for "ideal planting." Not getting the corn in Narrow rows is another topic of intense interest. Here a farmer cultivates in a field planted to both corn and soybeans in 30-inch rows. Many feel 30-inch rows are the most practical narrow width because of mechanical problems.

Power and methods

early can easily reduce yields by 10 percent. On a hundred acres, yielding 80 bushels per acre, this is $800.

The planting discussion also included such things as use of a 24 cell planter plate which slows down rotation speed and gains a better chance of filling again. Then there's planter flexibility, the weight factor, the size and efficiency of the planter attachments, use of squadron hitches and, with "big tractor power," the use of dolly hitches to be able to double up operations each time across the field.

What Is Minimum Tillage?

Here, of course, we are talking about the art of doing several things with each pass across the field to cut down on labor and other operating costs.

Yes, indeed, farming is a business of making very important management decisions.

The strong tendency is to ever narrowing rows in corn and soybeans. Coupled with this trend is increased use of chemicals for weed and insect control and minimum tillage to just generally cut down on production costs. It is not at all uncommon today to see a farmer enter a fall plowed field in the spring with a mounted cultivator on a big tractor, trailing a 6-row wheel track planter with fertilizer attachments and a boom spray rig at the rear to apply a pre-emergence herbicide or insecticide.

Many ask . . . "Why are we talking 30-inch rows and not narrower?" . . . The experts answer . . . "It's sort of like why we had 40-inch rows for so long . . . that's how wide the horse's rear was. Today, to get proper power use, a wide tractor tire is needed . . . perhaps a 17-inch tire. When soybeans start getting bushy, to go into the field means to run over plant foliage in extremely narrow planted rows. And, sometimes it is necessary, in order to get maximum yields, to break that crust or get rid of the weeds."

Farming Is Complicated

Farming gets more complicated every year. But, the changes are of the kind that the average farmer can accept as necessary and progressive. Farm experts will have an ever increasingly important role in supplying our farmers with advice and technological data on how to KEEP UP with the major changes that will keep him in business in years to come.

You used to hear the statement . . . "Get big or get out." Perhaps the trend continues to larger farming units, but the statement that one hears more often now is . . . "Get efficient or go broke."

Now in Pfizer's New Vitamin A-D-E Emulsifiable: 25% more "D₂" than in most others.

And enough "A" in one dose to last up to three months or longer. All at no extra cost!

Use it on your beef or dairy cattle, sheep, swine or horses.

This new vitamin injectable from Pfizer delivers 500,000 units of vitamin A in each cc.—5 times more than most old-fashioned oil-based formulas.

It also supplies 100,000 units of vitamin D₂ in each cc.—25% more than most other leading brands.

You get the 50 units of vitamin E per cc. as an added bonus.

Yet it costs no more than most other emulsifiables.

And its water-based formula solves a couple of other problems.

Because it's more compatible with body tissues, it reduces the chance of abscesses often caused by oil carriers.

Too, it doesn't get tied up at the injection site like older products. More of the vitamin A moves to the liver fast where it's stored for long-range availability.

Here's how to use it on beef or dairy animals:

Give each calf ½ to 1 cc.; each yearling 1 to 2 cc.; each mature animal 2 to 4 cc.

And that's it. You've helped eliminate vitamin A worries for up to 3 months at a time without a change in feeding or management practices. And treated vitamin D₂ deficiencies that could cause bone-stunted animals. And helped prevent vitamin E deficiencies that may contribute to white muscle disease.

Get Pfizer's new Vitamin A-D-E Injectible Emulsifiable at your animal health supplier. Available in 30- and 100-cc. vials.

Farm chemicals offer new opportunities

SUCH names as Amiben and Aldrin, as well as the promise of new chemicals to come were of big interest to farmers who attended the recent mid-winter corn and soybean clinics throughout the corn belt. Such chemicals as Amiben for the control of weeds and Aldrin for the control of soil insects make much of today's high yields possible. And, when you include the new advancements in fertilizer technology to the list of farm chemicals that were discussed at the meetings, you will probably agree that you are speaking of the tools that result in at least 50 percent of today's yields.

Actually, though, weed killers, insecticides and fertilizers are probably no more important than the other things that make a good crop — good seed — good equipment — and a cooperative weatherman. It takes all of them to produce large, economical yields. More and more farmers (especially the larger ones) are finding this to be true. This is especially evident with the chemical weed killers.

One-Fourth of Soybeans Treated

In Illinois, for example, 24 percent of all soybean acreage was treated with chemicals last year. The picture is even better when you figure that 34 percent of all farmers who plant 100 acres of corn and soybeans, or less, treated all or part of their crop with weed killers — and it jumps to 85 percent for those who plant 500 or more acres of corn and soybeans. Amiben accounted for half of the treated soybean acreage.

Speaking for Amchem Products, Inc., producers of Amiben, specialists gave some helpful suggestions. They said it is a good idea to plant and apply Amiben at the same time — but use good equipment, have a uniformly smooth seed bed and inspect the nozzles regularly.

Chemical weed control with Amiben has several advantages, they said. It kills both the annual broadleaves weeds in bean fields, as well as the annual grasses. It is a clean product to work with and is completely water soluble. You can use it in any crop rotation.

Amiben requires about a half inch of rain after application to carry it into the soil where seeds sprout. However, it was pointed out, that if insufficient rain falls within 7 days after application and there is enough soil moisture to germinate weeds and grasses, you should work it in with a light cultivation using a rotary hoe, if possible. At the same time the shallow mixing of Amiben in the soil will not interfere with the action of Amiben when rain finally comes.

A study made by the University of Illinois was cited which determined that an acre can normally produce about 4,200 pounds of dry matter.

If there were 50 weeds per foot of row present, it would reduce this yield potential by 1,200 pounds of dry matter. This is more than a 25 percent reduction.

Insecticides Pay

Speaking for Shell Chemical Company, specialists told farmers in attendance that soil insecticides more than pay for themselves in 9 out of 10 corn fields in the country. In the 10th, they say, it will pay for itself. "You can expect to make $5 to $10 per acre extra," Shell spokesmen figure, "... and in some cases it might even make you 30 bushels or more per acre."

There are three types of insects to be on guard against.

First, are those that attack the seed. These include such insects as the seed corn beetle and the seed corn maggot.

Second, there are the seedling attacking insects.

This group includes the wireworm, cutworm, billbugs and corn field ants.

Third, are those that attack the root. This includes the aphids, the white grubs and the corn rootworm — of which there are three kinds, northern, western and southern.

Aldrin, company experts say, is the most economical control available and should be used in all areas where the rootworm is not resistant. Resistant areas include Nebraska, southeastern South Dakota, southwestern Minnesota, eastern Iowa and northern Kansas. In these resistant areas you should use an organic phosphate or Shell's new Aldrex.

Aldrex is a new soil insect control that contains 10 percent Aldrin and 10 percent ethyl parathion. This makes it an effective control over 20 soil insects that eat away at corn profits — in Aldrin resistant areas, as well as non-resistant areas. Aldrex comes as a granular and should be applied in the row at about 10 pounds per acre when planting.

Soil insecticides should be incorporated into the soil immediately after applying. One economical way to apply soil insecticides is to mix it with your liquid or dry fertilizer. In some cases you can buy fertilizer with the soil insecticide already mixed in.

Excellent control of resistant corn rootworms is no bargain if it doesn't stop cutworm damage (above).

Cutworms can ruin corn that's protected only against resistant rootworms. New Aldrex is made to control all soil insects.

Aldrex® Insecticide combines aldrin and parathion in the same granule. Read how it prevents root damage, lodging and the attack on seed and seedlings.

New Aldrex gives you much more than rootworm control alone. It provides all-around control of more than twenty soil insects, leaves no loopholes in your program.

Kills all rootworms

Aldrex is thoroughly effective against resistant rootworms, both western and northern. Test results from hundreds of acres show how well Aldrex stops the attack that destroys roots, limits corn's access to soil moisture and fertilizer. The threats of hidden damage, a drastic setback, or severe lodging are all eliminated. Result: higher yields.

Cutworms can't break through

Resistant rootworm controls didn't work against cutworms on a good many acres last year. Aldrex does, kills cutworms before they can thin out corn or cost you money and time in replanting. NOTE: The cutworm control of Aldrex is especially important for first-year corn.

Why Aldrex works so well

Aldrex is a combination of tested insecticides. Each granule combines 10% aldrin with 10% parathion. The parathion gives you top-rated control for resistant rootworms. The aldrin provides the best possible control of cutworms, wireworms, seed corn maggots, and all other pests in the soil insect complex.

Where to get Aldrex

Aldrex is available where you normally buy your soil insecticide. Change to Aldrex this year and help your corn make every extra bushel your land can grow. Don't settle for less. Ask your Aldrex gives corn all-around protection against soil insects.

Weeds in soybeans can easily cut yields by 3 to 9 bushels depending on the seriousness of the weed problem. This winter thousands of farmers who attended the Corn and Soybean Clinics heard informative reports on how to eliminate this loss.

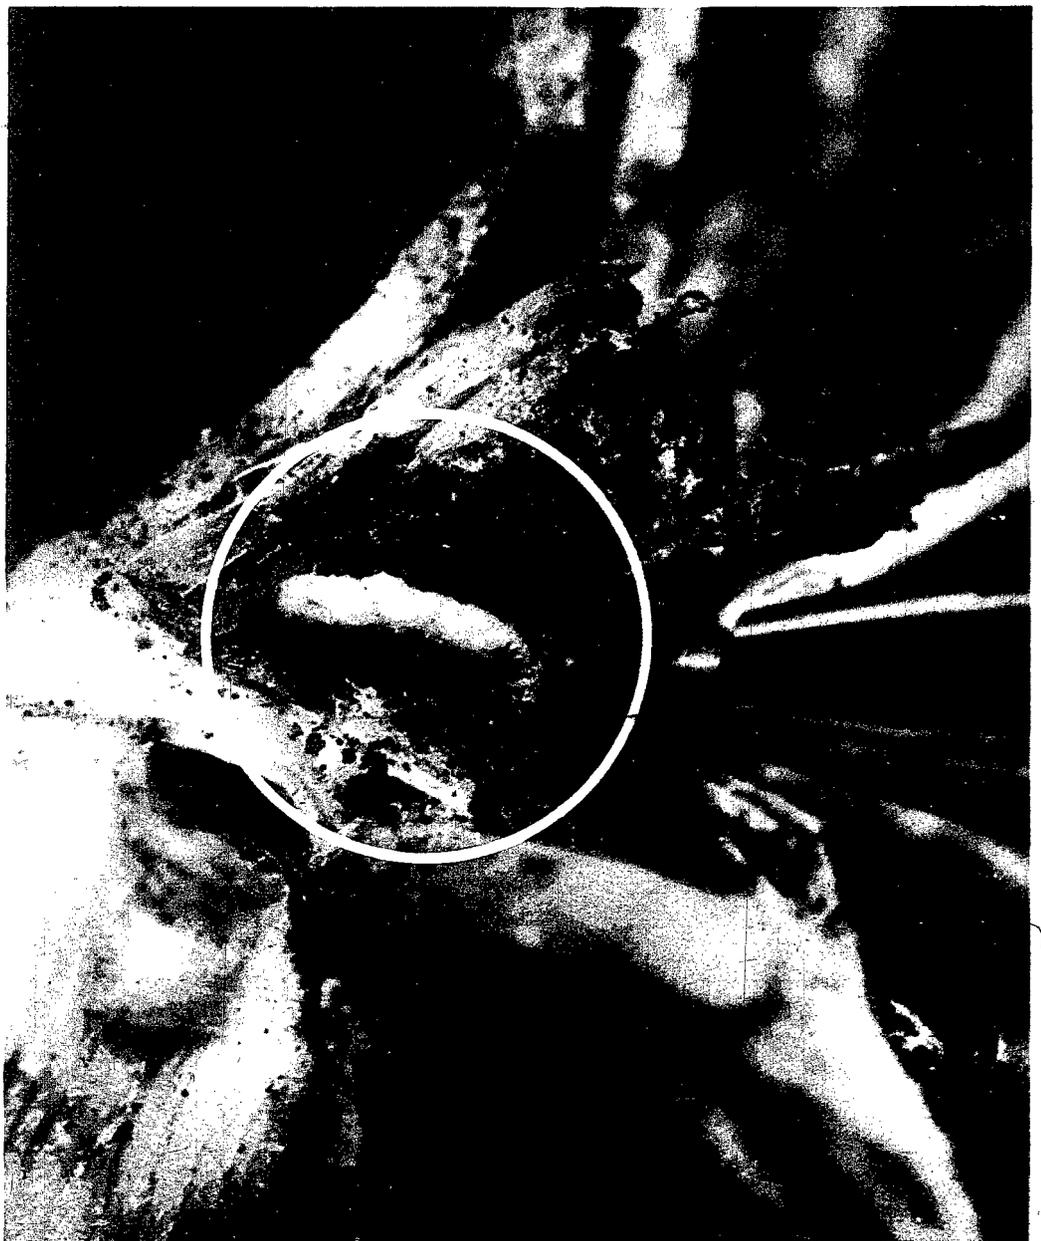

Questions on chemicals were most frequent at the recent Corn-Soybean Clinics. Here Roger Didrikson, Shell Chemical Company, attempts to answer a farmer's question on Aldrin.

many farmers doubt the need for fertilizers, but just how much to apply is nearly always a matter of concern.

Soil tests give us a fairly accurate guide to what is in our soils, crop signs can tell us if they are in bad need of a particular element or so, and tissue tests are often valuable tools we can use. But beyond these things, it is more a matter of deciding what kind of a yield we think we should be able to reach. Many things have to be considered: type of soil, past fertilizer and cropping history (including whether a legume crop was plowed down), price of fertilizer, as well as price of corn or beans, weather cycles, plant population, weed control, kind of hybrid, available capital, whether you are limited in acreage and that certain something that determines a man's ability to make everything work together for the crop's best interest.

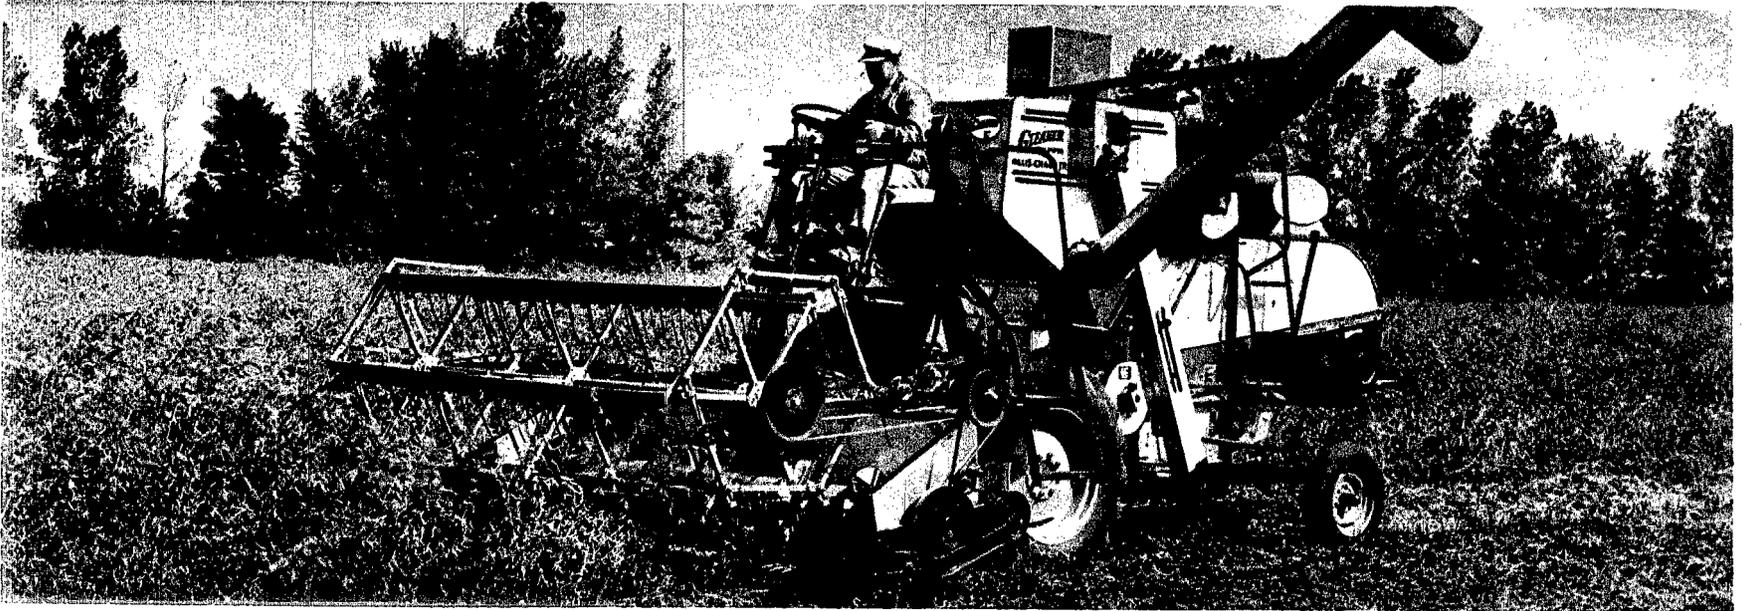

As a general guide, for the first 50 bushels of corn increase over 100 bushels, it is necessary to add about 100 pounds of actual nitrogen, 100 pounds of phosphate (P_2O_5) and 88 pounds of potash (K_2O). In most cases the efficiency of each pound of plant food after that will decrease rather rapidly.

Building a high fertilizer program will usually result in not only more money the year of application, but will offer some benefit in years to come. In fact, fertilizer sometimes works better the second year after application with soybeans.

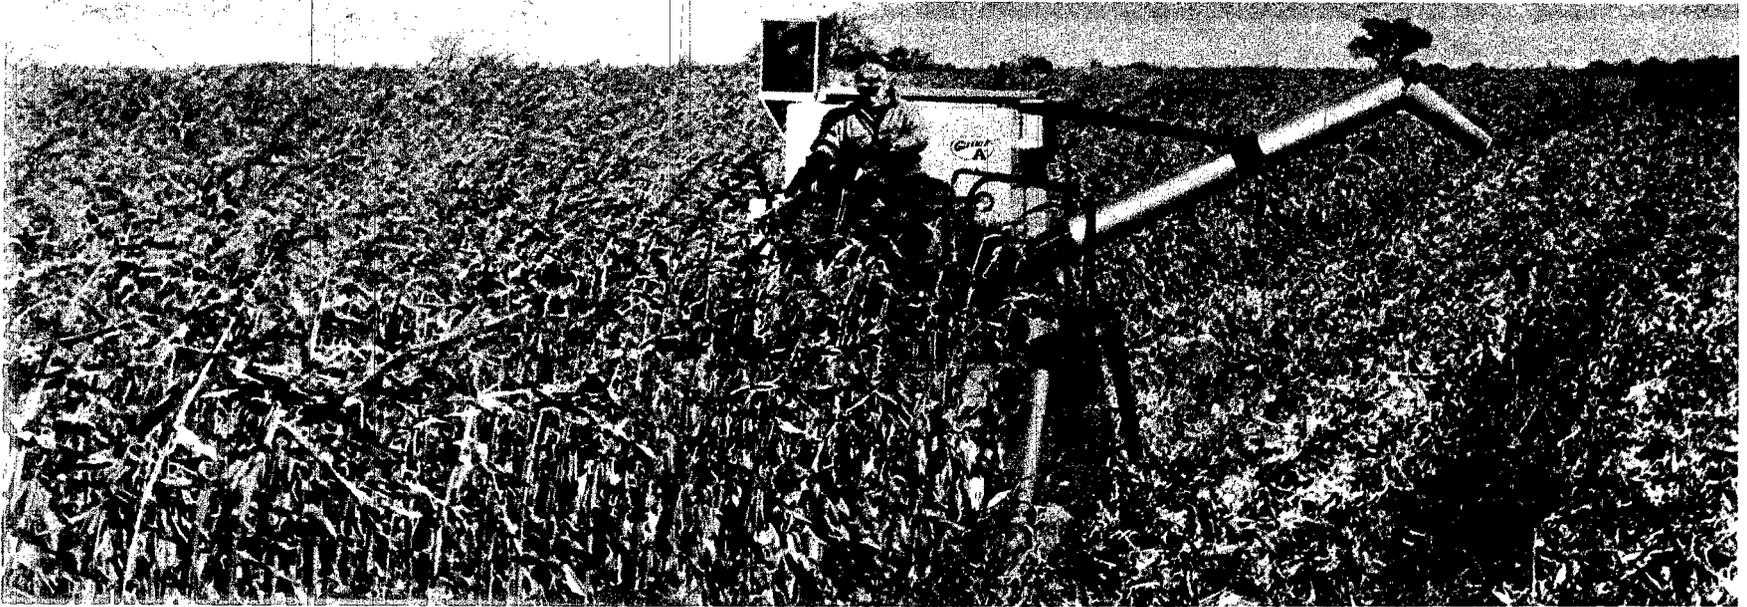

Insect control can be accomplished in several ways. Planned crop rotations can reduce infestations, but intensive corn growing leads to serious insect problems. Here, a corn rootworm feeds on a root system. Chemical control and inbred resistance offer the most promise for the future.

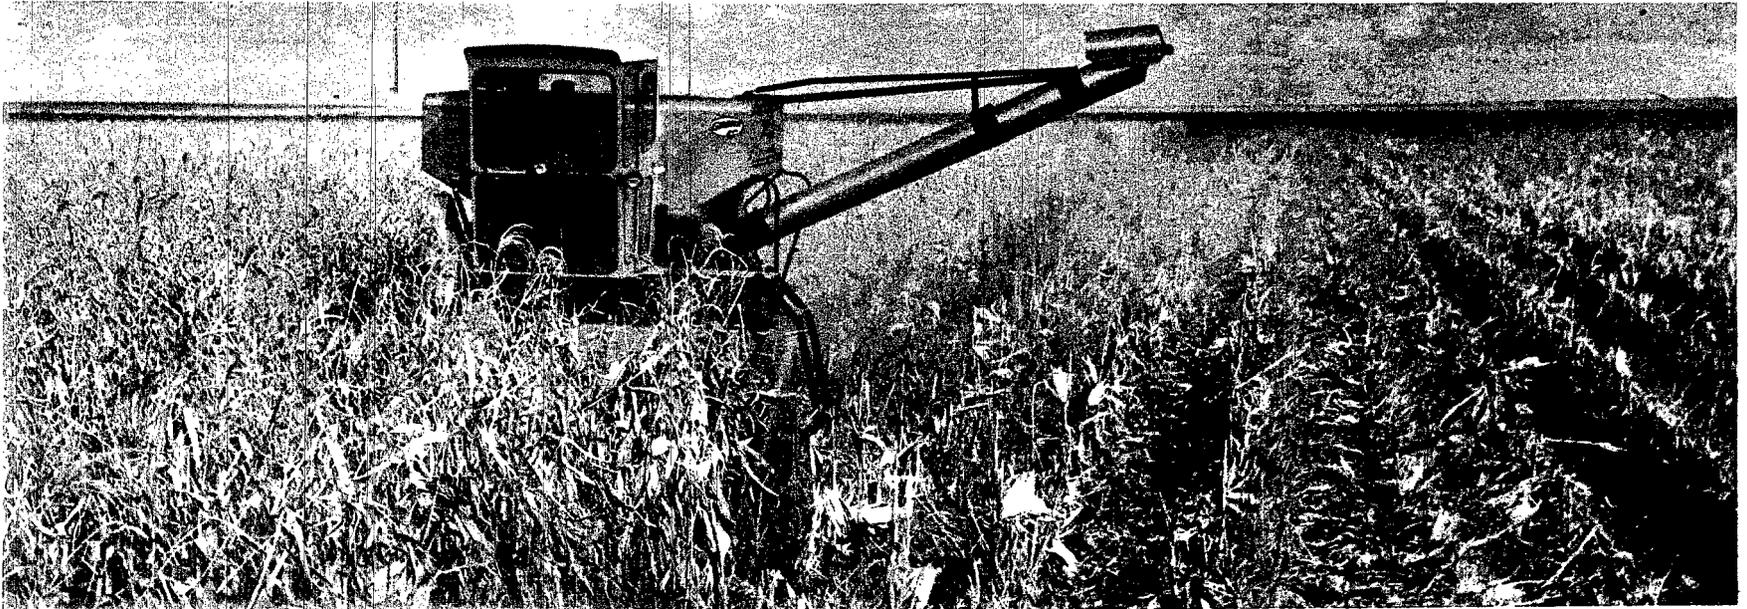

Model E Gleaner with 13-foot header for 4 rows of soybeans.

Model A^{II} Gleaner with narrow 3-row corn head (30" centers).

Model C^{II} Gleaner with 4-row corn head for the big harvests.

Regular or narrow row—the Gleaner completes your system

When you've followed a careful crop management system from soil preparation and planting through the growing season, the crop deserves harvesting with one of the great Allis-Chalmers Gleaners!

Gleaner capacity starts with its down-front cylinder design, which permits 13 feet of separating area—controlled separating that's at work where most combines are still just feeding. Your crop is controlled within $\frac{3}{4}$ " of the cylinder, and across its entire width. With the new variable speed control you can quickly change cylinder speed for the crop condition.

The Model E has 8', 10', 12' or 13' headers for beans or grain; changes in a jiffy to a 2-row corn combine.

The Model A^{II} offers 2- or 3-row corn heads, including the new narrow row model pictured. Headers come in 10', 12', 13', 14', or 16' widths as you choose.

The giant Model C^{II} field shells corn 4 rows at a time; harvests beans or grain with headers up to 24 feet wide!

When you open the refrigerator door and shrink away in horror as you view yesterday's delicious beef roast, that bit of turkey and chicken left over after the party, and last week-end's ham, don't give in to your impulse to clean that refrigerator right into the garbage can. Use your imagination and that food won't go to waste — or even be recognized as leftovers!

That "bit of turkey and chicken left over after the party" can be made into Poultry Pinwheels with Pickle Sauce or Baked Eggs on Turkey Hash. You can substitute ham for the turkey in the turkey hash. What's better than the traditional combination of ham and eggs?

As for last week-end's ham, use it in casseroles with noodles, spaghetti, macaroni, rice or mixed vegetables such as in Ham Vegetable Bake. (You can use any cubed meat in this manner.) This casserole uses frozen Brussels sprouts with celery soup and sour cream. The unusual seasoning is dill leaves. Your favorite jello salad would go well with this meal. A pudding served warm with a nut garnish would make a delightful finale.

There are many more ways to use up these leftovers too. You might like to fold diced meat into omelettes or make a meat pie with mashed potato topping. You can add leftovers to a cream sauce with green pepper and pimento (a la king) and serve it over toast, baking powder biscuits, corn bread or rice.

Delicious sandwiches can be made when the meat has been warmed in its own gravy or a barbecue sauce.

If you enjoy salads, Garden Vegetable and Rice Salad will make good use of diced ham, luncheon meat as well as leftover vegetables that are also to be found in that overfilled refrigerator. This salad is especially nutritious, combining several vegetables and meat together. Remember when you cook the rice not to rinse the vitamins away. Since the rice has been highly refined, the natural nutrients have sometimes been replaced on the outside of the rice grains. Start your unwashed rice in boiling water and it will be more nutritious.

In the future, when you have meat to store, you can save precious room in the refrigerator by cutting the meat from the bones and storing it covered in a small container, or wrapping it tightly in wax paper or foil.

Now when you look in that refrigerator, imagine all the fun you'll have using those delicious leftovers!

The Changing Church...

Today's Architecture Giving Modern Angles To Religion

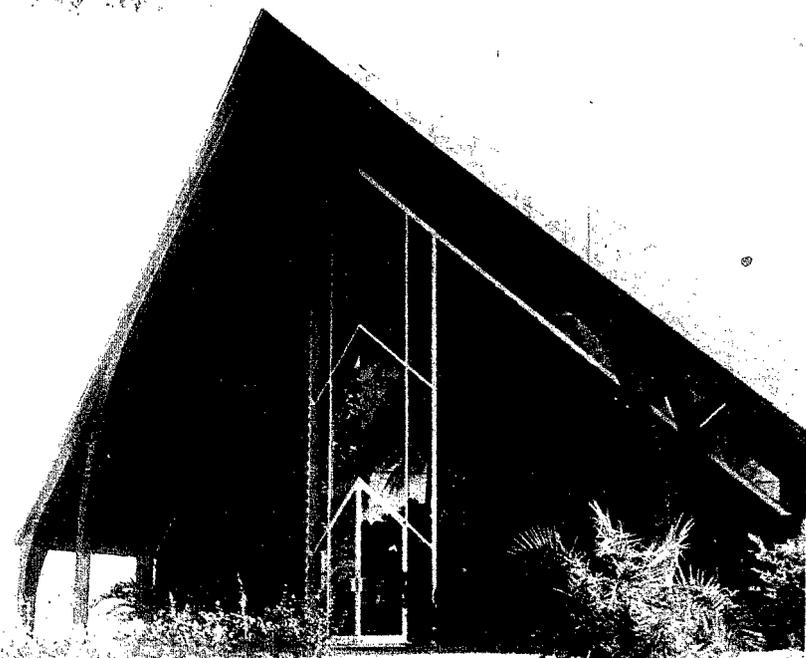

An interesting feature of modern architecture is the fact that some of the most striking designs are found in churches. Roofs flaring off at odd angles, stretches of glass, textured surfaces mark new church buildings of various denominations. From its start in this country not too long ago, modern church architecture has spread at an increasing rate.

Pictured on this page are examples of the modern architecture found in churches, both in this country and abroad. Perhaps even your home town has a more vivid example of modern church architecture than what is shown here.

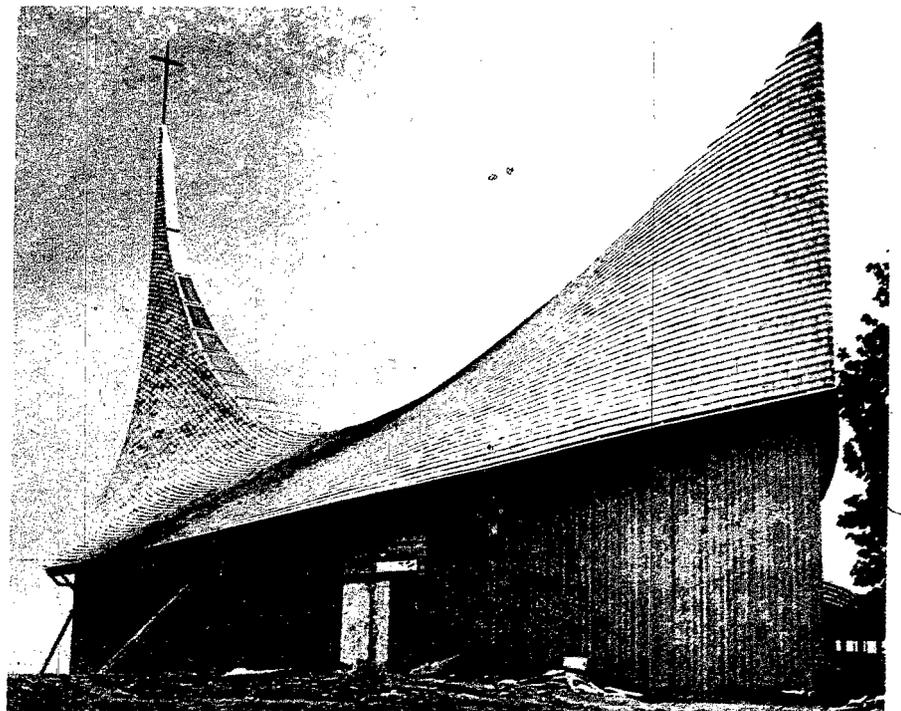

Theologians tell us that contemporary architecture in churches is good. It makes the congregation feel like their church is "up to date," not only in the teachings of religion but in the external appearances as well.

The tower in the shape of a giant capital "A" is a striking part of the new Roman Catholic St. Konrad Church, an ultra-modern edifice, in Offenbach, Germany.

The Bee Ridge Presbyterian Church in Sarasota, Fla. Above a base of rough hewn stone, squares of glass are set at an angle under the steeply slanted roof.

The new First Congregational Church, near Vancouver, Wash., has already become a landmark known as "Noah's Ark." It stands on the highest knoll in the area.
