

No Assessors Going Out; Change Wayne Work Site

There will be no assessors going out to homes in the county this coming year, County Assessor Henry Arp reports. He has also announced that the assessing in Wayne will be done in the building formerly housing the sheriff and his office.

This office just northeast of the courthouse will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Jan. 2-31 and Feb. 1-28. No assessing will be done on Sundays, but assessors will work at this office Saturdays.

Assistants will be working in Winside, Carroll, Sholes, Altona and Hoskins. Residents may choose the date and hour most convenient for them in going in to be assessed.

Hours are: Winside, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Jan. 3-17 except Mondays and Saturdays; Carroll, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Jan. 3-13 and Jan. 24-27 except Mondays and Saturdays;

Sholes, 8:30 to 5 p.m., Jan. 17-20 and Feb. 14-17 inclusive; Altona, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Jan. 3-10 and Feb. 14-15 inclusive; and Hoskins, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Jan. 2-11 and Feb. 1-28 except Sundays.

Arp said new rules require reporting the social security number and if man and wife make a joint return the social security numbers of both must be given.

Those going in to be assessed should also bring records showing items of See ASSESSORS - Pg. 8

Shoplifters No Trouble So Far

Shoplifting has been no problem in Wayne this holiday shopping season. For the first time in years there were no complaints.

Credit has to go to the plainclothesman hired to circulate about business places in the pre-Christmas period. Publicizing the fact that he was working did its part to discourage shoplifting.

Chief of Police Vern Fairchild said the police department had not received a single complaint of shoplifting. The plainclothesman reported he had not seen one instance of shoplifting being tried. Merchants made no complaints.

It pays to advertise. For years Wayne was known as an easy mark for shoplifters. Last year the plainclothesman was hired and shoplifting decreased. This year it disappeared.

The Spook Speaks

The Wayne Herald received a change of address notice last week from a Brooklyn firm. It was addressed to "Wayne Herald, Eugene W. Huse, Prop., Herald Square, Wayne, Nebr." Perhaps the Brooklyn firm should be advised of a change at The Herald.

The late Mr. Huse was last with the paper in 1949. In the 17 years since then, two other men have been proprietors. Where was "Herald Square?"

Residents of Concord and Dixon now have a variety of fire sirens to listen for. Most days they can hear the whistles at Laurel, Allen, Concord and Dixon. "On real clear days they can hear some of the other whistles almost as well as they do their own. Very seldom are the "noon whistles" sounded at the same time.

Airmen leaving the Scribner Air Base see this sign at the gate: "Caution! You are about to enter the most dangerous place on earth—a public highway!"

Two Boards to Meet

The Wayne City Council will meet with the District 17 School Board Tuesday, Jan. 9. Regular meeting night for the school board is Jan. 2 but the meeting was moved back due to the holiday on that date.

National Guard Loot Government Owned

What might be a considerable mistake has been committed in the Wayne National Guard Armory. Someone has stolen property worth well over $1,000.

Roger Nelson reported to the Wayne Police Department that field glasses were taken from the armory the past week. They were valued at $1,134. Since federal property is involved, federal authorities could be called in.

All other calls to the police department the past week were comparatively minor. They were asked to keep watch on two homes where occupants were gone, helped watch traffic for a funeral, watched for a missing dog, watch for overtime parking, watched for speeders, watched for business doors left unlocked and watched for keys with a firm's identification on the ring, later found and turned in before falling into the hands of temptation.

Three Hurt As Car Hits Cow in Dark

Young men from Wayne, Laurel and Hartington were injured in a freak mishap early Saturday morning on Highway 20 near the Allen cutoff. The Wayne youth is hospitalized in Sioux City.

Ken Denesia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denesia, Wayne, told The Herald how the accident occurred. The story had to be obtained from him because neither the safety patrol nor the sheriff's office in Dixon County had all the information.

The three, members of a combo called "The Shags," were enroute home from Sioux City, where they had played for a dance at The Patio. Roger Tryon, Laurel, was driving his car, a small foreign make.

Suddenly a big black cow loomed in front of them on See THREE HURT - Pg. 8

If it hadn't been for a 35-minute period Monday noon of last week, Wayne would have had a good traffic record for the past week. However, two accidents occurred between 11:45 and 12:20.

City Work Bids Whopping $93,000 Below Estimates

Your Help Sought

How would you like the job of cleaning snow off all the streets in Wayne? Some job! You can help make it easier for those who do have to clean the snow off.

Vern Schulz, head of the street department, reports the city has the equipment and the personnel—all that is needed is cooperation from the public.

If it is snowing or has snowed, do not leave your car overnight on Main Street as street crews will be out soon. Cars parked off residential streets will enable street-cleaning crews to speed up snow removal.

If you are going to clean sidewalks, do it as early as possible and as often as possible, pushing the snow into the street. That way it will not all be shoved onto streets after snow removal has been completed in your area.

With work in short supply for some firms, this is apparently the time to call for bids. The Wayne City Council approved three bids on municipal work Tuesday night and came up with a total cost almost $93,000 below engineers' estimates.

Biggest saving was on piping for the new power plant addition. The engineers' estimate was $130,000. Three bids were received, the lowest being for $47,523 by H&S Engr. Co., Kansas City, $82,477 under the estimate.

A contract was also approved with A. E. Pedersen Co., Omaha, for $112,700 on wiring at the new power plant where a lot of heavy electrical wiring and conduit work is required. The engineers' estimate was $120,000 so the contract shows a saving of $8,300.

On the airport lighting project, Krueger-Dele Electric Co., Norfolk, won the contract with a bid of $4,150. This was $2,141.00 below the engineers' estimate for the project, which was $6,291.50.

Turning to other matters, the council voted to authorize barricading two hilly streets for use of sleds during appropriate times (such as right now). The streets will be closed but motorists will be warned of sleds with barricades and caution should be shown in using such thoroughfares.

The Wayne hills for sleds are on Douglas Street, Third to First, and on Nebraska Street, Ninth to Tenth. Sledging barricades will be up days when there is no school and when snow surfacing makes sledging possible.

Cornhusker Paving Co. asked the council to accept paving for three years with the condition that the firm will repair any work that is not satisfactory. Councilmen voted to take the matter under advisement.

Coming up in January are two important meetings. Jan. 10 the council will move its seasons from the city clerk's office to the Woman's Club Rooms across the hall in the auditorium in order to give the council and the public more room. Jan. 31 the final hearing on the city's zoning plan will be held, further notice to be given later.

Winter's First Storm Hits Area Just After Christmas

The weatherman's gift to the area, nice weather through Christmas, was sweetened this week when heavy snow held off until after most people were back from holiday trips. There is still time for conditions to change before college and area schools reopen.

Ralph Watson, who has government gauges north of Wayne, reports over five inches of snow by 7:20 a.m. Wednesday. Snowfall was hard to measure due to the gusty wind conditions so Watson said the total "official" snowfall could be more or less than five inches.

The same situation prevails in regards to moisture. Watson's gauges showed .66 of an inch of moisture by Wednesday morning, a figure that could be deceptive, based on snow blowing in or out of the tube.

Peoples Natural Gas Co. showed four days of pretty consistent temperature maximums and minimums. From Dec. 24 through Dec. See STORM - Pg. 8

Munson, Haag, Woods, Echtenkamp Farms Win

Stores Close Again

Wayne business places will be closed all day Monday, Jan. 2, in observance of the New Year holiday. There will be no window service and no rural or carrier mail delivery. Public offices will be closed. Business will be back to normal Tuesday, Jan. 3, as the area prepares for the long haul to spring.

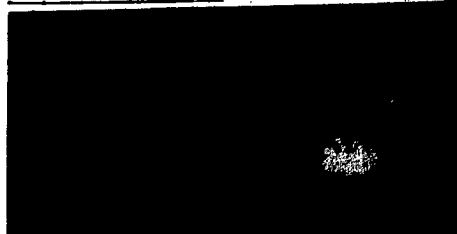

Con Munson, Robert Haag, J. C. Woods and Elmer Echtenkamp won the major winners in the Wayne County Public Power District Christmas lighting and decorating contest, Manager Chl Coma stock announced Friday. Two other winners were named for the Osmond area of the district.

Munson and Haag won in Division 1. Winners in Division 2 were J. C. Woods, Carroll, and Elmer Echtenkamp, Wayne. Division 3 winners were Roland Doerr, Plainview, and Guy Anderson, Osmond.

The Munson farm is five miles east and two north of Wayne; Haag teaches at Trinity Lutheran School, Altona, and decorated his home across from the school east of Altona; Woods farms one mile west and one-half mile north of Carroll; and Echtenkamps live three miles north and three-fourths mile west of Wayne.

There were so many outstanding rural displays this year, prizes were given for honorable mention too. They will get smaller electrical appliances, $15-400 to the first two winners in each division.

Honorable mention went to Emil Greve, Duane Lepp, Merle Ring, Wilbur Uebel, Levi Ribber, Darryl French, Lowell Glasman, E. H. Hansen, Herman Hitz and Harold Lepp.

CONREY MUNSON won first in his division in the rural contest sponsored by Wayne County Public Power District. He extended his decorations also decorated.

Kiwanians Hear Scout Tell of Philmont Trip

Jonathan Lambert was a guest of the Wayne Kiwanis Club at the Tuesday noon meeting in the Woman's Club Rooms. He told of his experiences day by day in the Philmont Scout Camp in New Mexico the past summer.

Dr. Rafael Sosa had his father-in-law, Dr. Emilio Ochoa, as a guest. Dr. and Mrs. Ochoa are here from Venezuela visiting during the holidays. They formerly lived in Cuba, where he was a senator for the Republic of Cuba eight years and a dentist for 30 years.

The club will meet Tuesday this coming week and then return to the Monday schedule. Ray Schreiner takes over as president of Kiwanis the first of the year, succeeding Harold Ingalls.

Alien Address Month Proclaimed by Mayor

Mayor William Koeber has proclaimed January "Alien Address Report Month" in Wayne. It is the month in which all alien residents of the US must report their addresses.

Even where there has been no change of address a report must be made. Cards for compiling are available at any post office. Anyone knowing of an alien living in the area would confer a favor by reminding them of the law. Those not compiling are subject to fine.

Area Coloring Winners Named Next Week

Due to the rush this week and because there is a day less in which to get things done, the Christmas coloring contest winners could not be contacted in time for a picture so the results will be announced next week.

Winners will be asked to come to the newspaper office later in the week to receive their prize money and to get their pictures taken. Prizes are offered for the top three winners in two divisions.

Will Offer Many Evening Classes

Wayne State College will offer 31 courses in the evening during second term. Enrollment is scheduled on Saturday, January 7, from 8 a.m. to noon in the Administration Building. Weigh Days Will Be Held This Week

Wayne County 4-H members planning to have 4-H pen calves are reminded that Dec. 29 and 30 are the two "weigh days" at the Wayne Sale Barn. Only animals brought in and weighed these two days will be eligible.

Awards at the county fair next fall will include a trophy, a rosette, ribbons and cash prizes of $25, $15 and $10. Average daily gain is the main determining factor for points toward prizes.

County Agent Harold Ingalls reports that animals may move up or down on the basis of their daily gain. Thus it is entirely possible that an animal winning a red ribbon could end up with a purple ribbon in this division.

Records will officially start Jan. 1. It is hoped some of the top winners will enter animals in the state fair carcass contest.

THE NEW Wayne Herald Building faces the east. 1965 Open house in the new building will be held Friday afternoon. The public is invited.

Wayne Herald Open House Scheduled in New Location

Open house will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Friday in the new building of The Wayne Herald. The public is invited to tour the facilities during that period. The Herald has been publishing in the new location for several weeks. However, some of the fixtures were late in arriving and some are still not here but open house will be held anyway.

Visitors will get to see the only offset news press in the area. They will also see the process the advertising and news must go through from the time it starts out as copy until it comes off the press as the printed word.

Unusual features of the building include the press; a camera that takes pictures the size of this paper; a plate-burner that burns the picture from a negative onto a metal plate leaving a surface that water adheres to where there is no dark portion and to which ink adheres to where there is dark portions; a press that prints 12,000 eight-page sections an hour;

Hot metal type-casting machines; automatic job-printing presses (both offset and letterpress); a type-writer-like Justowriter that punches a tape to be sent through a similar machine which decodes the punched holes and spaces out words so they come out in columns flush both left and right instead of ragged on the right; a waxing machine that coats the underside of paper so it can be "glued" to page See OPEN HOUSE - Pg. 8

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

HIS OWN PONY is not about to get away from Scott Mann who was the lucky boy winning the drawing at Hoskins Wednesday afternoon of last week.

Hoskins Boy Has Pony as Prize

Scott Mann, 4, was a happy boy Wednesday. His name had been drawn to receive a shetland pony as a gift. His parents were not quite as happy for themselves as they were for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Mann live in Hoskins and have no facilities for keeping a pony. However, what can they do when their son has won a pony merely by putting his name on a ticket?

Scott was one of around 350 youngsters in Hoskins Wednesday for the visit of Santa from the Riley Shetland Pony Ranch, Pierce. The turnout was amazing since Hoskins itself has only 180 population, including kids and adults.

After Santa had greeted the children, he drew for the pony. Following the drawing he spent more time visiting with the youngsters, showing a genuine liking for the kids, especially the little folks who still believe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nendick, Black Duck, Minn., and Mrs. Ruth Nendick, Cloquet, Minn., visited Mrs. Bess Peterman Monday afternoon.

Slow-Starting Blue Devils Drop 58-51 Tilt to Papillion

Hitting only four field goals in each of the first two quarters, the Wayne High School Blue Devils spotted Papillion a 12-point lead they could not overcome and went down to defeat 58-51 Wednesday night on the Papio court.

The Blue and White are practicing through the holidays for the stretch drive coming up. Their next action is Jan. 6 at Madison. Next home game is Jan. 13 against Stanton.

Lynn Lessmann and Gordon Jorgensen shouldered the burden of keeping pace with Papillion last week. They scored 14 and 21 points respectively, with no other WHS player getting more than 5 points.

Papillion on the other hand had Van Keuren leading the way with 16 points. The sophomore eagle-eye had plenty of help, five other players getting 5 or more points.

At the end of the first period, four WHS players had one field goal apiece as PHS held a 16-8 advantage. By halftime the outlook was worse and Wayne trailed 30-18, going into the final period, the lead had been sliced to 11-40 as Wayne outscored the host school 22-11.

PHS outscored Coach Harold Maciejewski's cagey 17-11 in the final period to preserve the victory. Ability to hit from the free throw line helped as the winners made 12 of 23 while Wayne hit 9 of 13. From the court the score was 46-17 in favor of Papio.

In a ragged preliminary tilt, Wayne lost 54-31. The locals held an 8-7 lead after one quarter, scored only four points the second period to trail 23-12, lagged 39-27 after three stanzas and were outscored 13-4 in the last quarter.

Steve Kerl and Chuck Fisher were the only players hitting, Kerl making 9 points, 7 in the third quarter, and Fisher making 9, 4 in the first and 5 in the third. Jody Hoogener had 4, Dave Tietgen, Bernie Binger, Harry Lindner and Tom Denesia 2 and Larry Hix 1.

For Papillion, 12 players scored, 7 of them making 5 or more. Fey and Wittmann each had 7, Dort, Low, Neilson and Vance 6, DeBoer 5, Alysworth and Nisley 3, Lehr and Bruhn 2 and Price 1.

Following is the varsity box score:

Freshmen Lose 38-37 Tilt to Eighth Grade

Boys Club Freshmen lost to Boys Club Eighth Grade in a game played the past week. The fast-improving eighth grade team has a 2-7 record on the basis of that 38-37 win.

Coach Hank Overin's teams are not competing this week. However, holiday schedules are in effect. Next game is Jan. 10.

Lonnice Biltoft led the winners in last week's game, scoring 10 points. Breck Giese hit for 8, Jack Suhr, 6, Don Mau and Dick Tjetgen 5 and Dwight Clatanoff 4.

The losers were led by Ken Jorgensen with 9, Mike Bebee, all-around player for the squad, added 8, as did Doug Flege. Don Cory added 5, Steve Darguz 4, Larry Grone 4 and Vaughn Korth 1.

Srathman Leads WSC Cage Scoring

Bob Srathman is Wayne State's leading point producer after six basketball games. He has totaled 104, a 17.3 average.

Close behind is Joel Parks with 95 for a 15.8 average. Dave Johnston has shot an even 10-point clip, followed by Ron Hintz, 87; Bob Hope, 7.6; Phil Borrero, 7.3, and Ralph Swanson, 6.1.

Borrero is the leading rebounder with a 7.6 average while Hope has averaged 7.

Johnston's field goal percentage of .525 is best among the regulars, and Parks has shot .517.

Srathman has the highest single game production, 26 points, his college career high.

Holiday Tournery Slated; Four Fast Teams Contend

Basketball fans hungering for live action can feast on the Wayne State Christmas Holiday Tournament tonight and Friday.

Four college teams will play four games, at 7 and 9 each night.

More than usual, the results are unpredictable. In the previous eight tournerys, the teams have come from three or four states, hence were hard to rate comparatively. This year, the entrants represent three states. None has played a common foe. In addition, three of the four teams are loaded with sophomores and freshmen. Their records are nothing exceptional, but as one visiting coach remarked, "We're young, but bound to improve."

The opening game tonight pairs Black Hills State of Spearfish, S.D., with Wisconsin State of River Falls, followed by Wayne State against Wisconsin State of Eau Claire.

Losers play for third place at 7 Friday; winners go for the championship at 9 Friday.

Black Hills brings the best record, 5-3, and the most experienced team, with seven seniors and juniors among the 11 players. River Falls dropped its first six games, then knocked off Wisconsin State of Superior, leader of the state university conference. Wayne fans will meet an old friend on the River Falls staff—Gwynn Christensen, the assistant coach who was Wayne's head football coach from 1959 to 1961.

Both River Falls and Wayne list five upperclassmen on their rosters. Eau Claire has six juniors and seniors. The Wayne-Eau Claire game will match teams with identical 2-4 records.

For what it's worth in comparing teams, Black Hills dropped a 110-82 game to Chadron State early this month. Chadron is considered a strong contender for the Nebraska College Conference title.

Winside Plays 'Extra' Game to Gain Berth in Lewis & Clark Tournament

Winside and Hartington Cedar Catholic were named to play the "extra" game in the Lewis & Clark Conference Tournament to be played in Coleridge the first week in January. The teams will square off at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 3.

Seeded teams in the tournament are Norfolk Catholic first with a 4-1 win-loss record, Hartington second at 3-1, Coleridge third at 3-1 and Randolph fourth at 2-1. Winside has a 2-3 record and HCC a 3-3 record.

Coach Dan Cahill's WHS team is better than the game scores indicate. However, the Wildcats have not played consistently enough to win the big ones. They can be so hot one quarter and so cold the next. If they can put four good quarters together, they may surprise in the meet.

Play opens with the WHS-HCC game at 6 after which Norfolk Catholic meets Ponca at 7:30 and Emerson-Hubbard plays Randolph at 9. The latter two games are in the opposite bracket from where the HCC-WHS winner goes.

Wednesday, Jan. 4, Hartington plays Allen at 7 and Coleridge meets the WHS-HCC winner at 8:30. Semi-finals games will be at 7 and 8:30 Friday. Con-

In order that we may assist you with filing your Personal Schedule according to law, it will be necessary for you to bring the following records with you at the time of assessment:

Social Security Number (if joint return, both husband and wife). (This is mandatory this year.)

Records showing items of equipment and fixtures as to type, model, Year and cost (ANY INCOMPLETE SCHEDULES WILL BE RETURNED). Also the list of equipment that has been depreciated out. This includes schedules from all taxpayers.

Farm records showing the number of head, age and type of livestock in your care as of January 1, 12:01 A.M., 1967, and records of inventory. Records showing the amount of each of the following: Money, checks, draft and checking accounts, bank accounts and certificates of deposits, savings accounts, postal savings, accounts receivable including Commodity Credits, Storage Receivables, Shares of Stocks (number of shares, name and type), stocks or shares of Building and Loan associations, securities, debentures and bonds (except U. S. Government bonds), notes, due bills, annuities, royalties, judgments, claims and demands for money.

Also records as to property and intangibles that you may have in your control, such as those of a wife, son, daughter or other members of the family. A schedule must be filed by those Trustee's, Guardians, Administrator's and etc.

We wish to bring to the attention of all taxpayers, who own shares of stock, that the Legislature passed a law requiring all foreign corporations to send a list of stock-holders names, addresses and number of shares owned, to the State Tax Commissioner, who in turn will have schedules checked for the listing of such stocks. We advise owners of such property to declare a complete return to avoid a penalty, which would be 200% of the tax due.

Failure to bring the afore mentioned records will prevent us from assisting you in completing your schedule. A number of our taxpayers are already following this practice. It now becomes necessary that ALL TAXPAYERS do so.

All new improvements added to your Real Estate must be reported.

MAKE SURE ALL FIGURES USED ON YOUR PERSONAL AND BUSINESS SCHEDULES CAN BE SUBSTANTIATED BY YOUR RECORDS.

A work sheet has been sent to those people in the County who have a car registered. This is to acquaint them to the information required for their assessment of Personal Property. Bring this with you, with completed information to help in your assessment.

Instruction sheets have been included with each work sheet. Please read these over carefully.

Thank you for your cooperation,

HENRY ARP
Wayne County Assessor

JOLLY ST. NICK visited Dixon Friday. He is happy for two reasons — Santa was there and shown with a group of the children who were school had just dismissed for the holidays

Donations Help Santa Treat Kids of Dixon

Generous patrons of Margaret's Bar gave the Dixon Town Board an assist in bringing in Santa Claus with treats for the kiddies Friday. The board expressed appreciation for a whopping sum of money to help on the project.

Santa had to come in with the aid of the fire chief. With no snow on Main Street Hill, Chief John Young drove up to the top of the hill and brought Santa down to the Dixon Auditorium.

Treats were handed out to over 100 youngsters. They had just been dismissed from school and localated the shortest distance between the school and the auditorium several blocks away in no time flat.

Three Hurt —

the highway. The impact killed the cow and sent it up onto the car.
Denesia was hurt worst so he was covered with blankets. Tryon walked to a nearby farm to the west. Gary Peterson, Hartington, the third member of the group, remained with Denesia.
Peterson managed to get the car started so drove to a farm. The farmer helped put Denesia in his car and they started for Sioux City. About where the accident had occurred in the first place, they met an ambulance, which Tryon had phoned for from a farm house. The ambulance was hailed and Denesia was transferred, taken from that point to St. Joseph's Hospital, Sioux City.
At St. Joseph's it was found Denesia had suffered four large cuts on the face, many stitches being required to close them. He had two teeth knocked out and another broken off, both eyes were black and he had numerous other cuts and abrasions.
Peterson was going to go to Hartington to get medical care. He had lost three teeth and suffered other cuts and bruises.

Tryon suffered many cuts, scratches and bruises. He did not require hospitalization.

Trooper Kenneth Buoy, South Sioux City, told The Herald he was near Emerson when called at about 6:30. He went to the scene, drove to South Sioux City and could find no one who knew anything about it. He finally located the ambulance driver, but the driver did not know where the accident was for sure except he knew it was near the Allen cut-off. The sheriff's office had not located the accident when Buoy contacted that office.

Denesia was told he could probably get out of the hospital later this week. He said he was in fair condition and was probably fortunate not to be more seriously injured.

Storm —

27 the high was 24 to 26 and the low was 2 to 7. Two days, Dec. 26-27, the highs and the lows were exactly the same each day, 25 and 2.
White snow and wind made driving difficult, they had not caused blizzard conditions and highway traffic was maintained. However, the snow is the light low-moisture-content type so a change in the wind conditions could cause considerable drifting and result in hazardous driving.
Fields need the moisture, especially in the wheat-growing areas to the west. Northeast Nebraska is dry but not suffering. Winter came in last week and if the first storm is any indication, it could be a long, cold, snowy winter siege for the first part of 1967.

Final hearing that day was for William Kramer, Wakefield. He was fined $10 and paid court costs of $5 for speeding. Officer Alan Peck signed charges. Dec. 22, Hal Sandahl, Wayne, paid $35 fine and $5 court costs for speeding. T. J. Rogers, trooper in the Nebraska Safety Patrol, filed the complaint. Alan Heikes, Hartington, appeared Dec. 23. He paid $15 in fine and costs on a speeding charge brought by Officer Peck.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

It is the duty of an editorial writer to search all available facts before he sits down to write. From this basis the writer should be able to give a clear picture of important topics.

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

How About 'Instant Roads'?

Among the subjects that have come up for consideration by the legislature for the 1967 term, nothing overshadows the tax situation. However, right behind that problem should be the matter of roads, local and state, in Nebraska.

One senator has come out for a policy which would set up a road-building and road-improving program covering 10-20 years. In other words, by 1977 or 1987 Nebraska might have 1967 roads.

It appears that something more drastic is needed. If you will excuse the expression, "a crash program" may be necessary. Otherwise, drivers are going to be in crash programs of their own due to inadequate and dangerous highways.

Why not "instant roads"? Nebraskans want and need better roads right now, not 10 to 20 years from now.

The legislature should consider a wheel tax or a three-cent or five-cent gas tax (or both) for five years to pay for a road-building program to bring Nebraska up to where other states are now. Those who drive would pay for the roads to drive on. Even that will not enable Nebraska to "catch up," because other states will be continuing to improve their roads too.

Before anyone gets too excited about such a proposal, it should be pointed out that emergency wheel or gas taxes should have a definite cut-off date after which they would no longer be lawful. If such a provision is not included, then it would be another new tax that is added temporarily and continued permanently.

Nebraska roads are so inadequate that outside the Interstate System there is no large-scale four-lane program drawn up. This comes at a time when other states in the area are not only building more Interstate mileage than Nebraska is but are modernizing more two-lane roads into divided four-lane roads.

When the Interstate has shown that safety and service can be provided by bypassing congested areas and limiting access, Nebraska is doing little to build new roads of this type.

In most states, when you see a sign, "Divided Highway Ahead," it means a four-lane stretch of many miles lies ahead. In Nebraska, it means there is a junction or interchange and when you get past the dividers, you will be back on two-lane undivided road.

Counties too need road money to make dust-free roads possible. Here again there are some counties that have advanced in this modernization but there are many others that have the barest minimum start on surfaced county roads.

Take a look at an official state map of Nebraska. It will reveal some facts that should make every resident of the state ashamed.

For instance, there is no decent north-east to southwest highway system to follow. Only by driving round-about can you stay on surfaced roads all of the way.

The Omaha metropolitan area has no link to the north central portion of the state except on a narrow two-lane road that does not bypass anything except farm houses.

In almost 90 miles between Arthur and Bridgeport there is not a north-south road of any kind. Between Highway 83 and Highway 27 there is not a north-south road for over 100 miles.

There are a half dozen or more surfaced roads that lead from other states to the Nebraska border where they turn into gravel or dirt roads.

In Wayne County there is gravel on a road that could be an outlet to the west through Pierce. The Carroll-Belden section of a state highway has been gravel for years although traffic increases annually.

Even when it comes to roads and streets in state-owned areas, surfacing decades behind. Go to the Norfolk or Hastings State Hospitals. You will drive on gravel streets. Tour Ponca, Niobrara or other state parks and you will be on dirt or gravel roads. Leave the highway to go to Dead Timber Recreation Area or other special use areas and you travel on gravel. Drive up to Scribner Air Base and you create a cloud of dust from gravel road.

If you could get two maps of Nebraska exactly the same size, one for 1966 and one for 1936, and lay one on top of the other with light beneath so you could see through, you would note a strange situation. The road system of Nebraska has added miles, has added surfacing but has made little change in routes.

What this means is that except for emergencies, such as when Lake McCaughy was created and Highway 26 had to be moved, the Nebraska highways follow exactly the same routes or nearly the same routes they did 30 years ago. There are minor changes for the most part and a few major changes but Highway 30 still makes two 90-degree turns in North Platte, Highway 275 still strangles traffic through West Point and Highway 6 follows the same route through McCook.

It should be obvious to any Nebraskan doing much traveling in other states that Nebraska is long overdue for an emergency road-building program. The examples given here are just a few of the hundreds of inadequacies our highway system has, not because of lack of personnel or ideas but for lack of money.

A five-year program to do something drastic with a drastic tax to do it with seems one way out. However, limitations must be put on such a tax so it does not get added permanently to our tax system.

If you are as tired as others are of hearing how bad Nebraska's roads are compared to just about any other state's, you should make your feelings known to your governor and your legislator. What better year for the start of getting the state highways modernized than the centennial year!—CEG.

Sportsmanship Cannot Be Forced

The Wayne Herald cannot force sportsmanship on a school. However, it can restrict coverage of sports events unless there is an improvement in sportsmanship.

Effective the first of the year, sportsmanship will be a major factor in determining the coverage of Wayne High athletic events. Many pupils have indicated they want good sportsmanship displayed and it is likely most thinking adults do too.

After two games (David City Aquinas and Laurel) in which poor sportsmanship was evidenced by a group of young people and a few adults from Wayne, it is apparent some steps have to be taken. The Herald is taking the first step.

If during the first game in January there is any booing, jeering, taunting and insulting by groups of Wayne fans, the coverage of the next game will be cut back. If it continues the following game, there will be further restriction of game coverage.

As other games come along, coverage will be cut back more and more until only the score is given if it is deemed necessary to go that far.

For instance, the first thing to be eliminated will be picture coverage. If that doesn't bring better sportsmanship, game details will be cut to a minimum. If that doesn't work, the box score and score by quarters will be given and that is all. That can be cut to the score by quarters if necessary. Finally, only the game score will be carried if it is necessary to get that drastic.

Perhaps this is not fair to the players, the Pep Club and the fans who are good sports. But players, Pep Club and other pupils have already indicated they are good sports and they deplore the noisy element that is casting reflection upon our school and city.

Good sportsmanship has to be taught somewhere. Why not make it a New Year's resolution for Wayne? It is bound to catch on.

Booing has never changed a referee's decision. Taunts and belligerent yelling have never won a game. No team has ever been helped by the "sideline refs" who disagree with the officials.

As stated earlier, The Herald cannot force good sportsmanship on the young and the not-so-young. However, it can control coverage according to the merits of the conduct of people representing this community and its schools.

Will your jeers be directed at the paper and the refs or will you be among those who help choke off this smart-aleck element that has brought this situation on? Will you help to keep poor sportsmanship from spreading so The Herald can continue its extensive coverage of Blue Devil athletic events?—CEG.

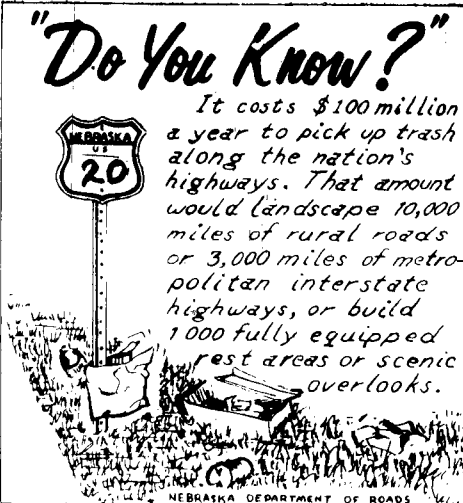

be long and hard."

Remarked another lawmaker: "The spenders will again try to upset the apple cart—but frugality in government is the watchword or we better watch out for a taxpayers' rebellion."

The survey showed that most agree there is a need for additional expenditures in education, especially on the higher learning level.

But the big question was could the state raise sufficient money through new tax sources to meet or even relieve these needs?

Sen. Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont echoed the sentiments of many of his colleagues by stating, "These budget requests are extremely high. They must be pared down to realistic figures."

In aggregate, the 1967-69 budget requests total approximately $301 million in state tax funds—nearly 85 percent above the current two-year spending period.

There has been much speculation on the impact this will have on the type of tax system adopted by the Legislature to replace the state property tax, banished in the Nov. 8 election.

"The people will not tolerate high income and sales tax rates," warned Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

Sen. Richard D. Marvel of Hastings, chairman of the Budget Committee, said state-wide objective on spending policy must be established. He said budget priorities would be a part of this.

"Can we afford it—that's the 64 dollar question," said one senator.

The poll showed that other major problems the legislators believe will confront them include public power, debt-financing of highway construction, water resources, gas tax allocation and proposals for a constitutional convention.

However, one senator—Richard F. Proud of Omaha—asserted the legislative system itself presents the real major crisis.

"In this 20th Century we're conducting a 19th Century operation," he said.

Bowen To Resign Seat
Sen. Kenneth L. Bowen of Cloud has announced he will resign from the Legislature Jan. 5 to become executive secretary of the Nebraska League of Municipalities.

The 54-year-old four-term lawmaker said the decision to give up his seat was not an easy one but the opportunity was too great to pass over.

Bowen was elected to a four-year term in the Legislature in 1964. His successor will be picked by Governor-elect Norbert T. Tiemann, a Republican like the senator.

Termining the needs of cities one of the greatest challenges facing Nebraska, Bowen said he will maintain an office in Lincoln during the 1967 legislative session.

Bowen, mayor of Red Cloud from 1954 to 1958, was the author of the hotly-contested 1963 income tax bill which grew out of the McClelland tax study and which was scuttled by his colleagues after months of bitter debate.

He was the second incumbent legislator to announce he would resign. Earlier Sen. Marvin E. Stromer of Lincoln said he would give up his seat to devote full time to his academic pursuits at Hiram Scott College in Scottsbluff where he is a teacher. But Stromer said he may change his mind before the session starts Jan. 3.

Own Improvements
The Nebraska Supreme Court has ruled that the tenants, not the state, are entitled to the millions of dollars worth of unauthorized property improvements on state-owned school lands which must be sold.

In a 4-3 decision that reversed a finding of the Lancaster County District Court, it said tenants of the property have a "compensable interest" and that interest must be determined prior to any sales.

The decision was in favor of Herman F. and Andrew R. Banks, who lease on a 320-acre school land tract near Imperial. But it also affects the 1.6 million acres of school lands ordered sold by the 1965 Legislature.

Rurals Want Power Shakeup
Nebraska's rural electric agencies report they will seek a mandatory merger of the state's major power districts next year.

Dil Blatchford, manager of the Nebraska Generation and Transmission Cooperative, said the rurals will ask the Legislature to approve a bill similar to the ill-fated 1965 power consolidation act.

The measure would place under a single board of directors the management of Loup River, Platte Valley and Consumers Public Power Districts.

Sorensen Challenges State Tax
Fred Sorensen has challenged the election of Wayne R. Swanson as his successor. Swanson won by some 5,000 votes over Sorensen, a Democrat, in the Nov. 8 election. But Sorensen contends Republican Swanson was ineligible for the post because he was a member of the State Railway Commission at the time.

The Nebraska Supreme Court will hold a hearing on the dispute.

Aerate Stored Grain

If you're storing in bins holding more than 2,000 bu. of corn, you'll need to aerate to prevent spoilage this winter. As cool air goes down through the grain near the bin walls and into the bin center, it pushes warm, moist air up to the center surface where it condenses and causes spoilage.

If your bin is equipped with a dryer, you can aerate by running the fan with the heater off. But do it on days when humidity is neither extremely high nor low; the volume of air movement by these fans is great enough to either add or remove grain moisture when humidity is at extremes. Stave Off Rat Invasions

There is probably no animal as undesirable as a rat. They contaminate feed and food, destroy property, kill poultry and baby pigs, carry diseases, start fires, and at times will attack humans. It is always good business to control these filthy rodents.

Now is the time to begin serious rat control programs, as they are moving into buildings for winter. A good control program combines four methods: rat proofing, removal of harbors, preventing access to food, and poisoning.

Rat proofing: Use sheet metal to protect gnawing edges of structures. Cement all holes in foundations, cover lower portions of bins with sheet metal

Fauneil Mau Lynch, who taught a bookkeeping class at Winside for her student practice, came up with the idea of going to Omaha to see how the federal reserve bank functions. She used to work there. However, she suggested we write to see if other groups could see the workings of the bank and we got a letter right back saying four groups will be welcome. R. J. Cunningham, personnel manager, can arrange tours if you write to him. Groups can see a 37-ton door-gate that moves so freely only a slight touch opens it, electronic computers that sort checks from many banks at a amazing speed, $45 million worth of certificates, $80,000 in one tray, cages of money to be destroyed and other interesting features you just can't see other places. This idea of Mrs. Lynch's should be a good one for Omaha to repeat as they go to Omaha. With Offutt, the reserve bank, Joslyn, Ak-Sar-Bed, Cinerama and many other attractions so close, there should be more tours to the area's biggest city. SASS

Rising Government Costs Facing 1967 Legislators

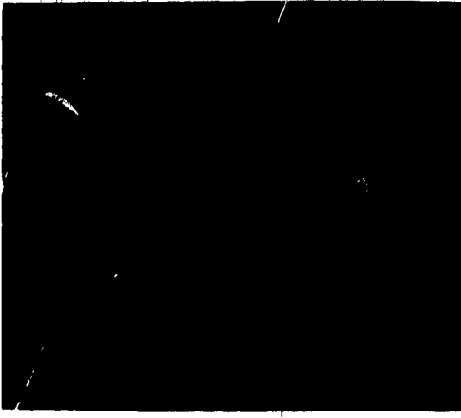

LINCOLN—Rising government costs and how to meet them without prompting a taxpayer rebellion will be the chief problem facing the 1967 Legislature, a survey of the lawmakers shows.

These costs included education, highways, care of the aged, mental health and other steadily increasing public services.

"With so many people in the state of Nebraska demanding we hold the line on state spending, it will be a major issue to meet the budget demands of various agencies," said Sen. Maurice A. Kremer of Aurora.

Added Sen. Kenneth L. Bowen of Red Cloud, speaker of the 1965 session: "The fiscal decisions that will come before the unicameral are the most important in this state's 100-year history. The struggle will summing and modest, we were able to get little information about his work in the Peace Corps. Izegga was equally devoted and a tremendous ambassador of good will for his country. We have the feeling the Concord, Calif., school where Lonnie teaches is most fortunate and we hope he can convey to his pupils some of the ideas he brought to us in an informal visit where few notes were taken. Arana is destined to become an asset to his country and our country in applying the ability he has inherited and worked to enlarge. We were thoroughly impressed by these two young men, both of them exceptionally fine representatives of the homes, communities and countries that influenced their lives in the right direction. We hope they'll forgive this extra bouquet, because both were so emphatic in not desiring publicity or acclaim for what they had done so naturally, we feel a little guilty for putting this in-but would feel even more guilty if we left it out.

SASS Swain (in early morning hours): "Darling, how can I ever leave you?"

Fired Lather (poking his head through the doorway): "Rosstown Bus No. 81, footpath through Central Park or any taxicab!"

No one likes kids any better than we do. Ever since we've been in business we've tried to remember that we were young once. We recall some of the mistakes we made, some of the trials and tribulations we caused our teachers and parents and some of the nice things adults did for us. In turn, we've tried to understand the young people today. Because of this, we have tried writing editorials on sportsmanship before. Previously when we decided to take drastic steps, we have written the editorials, "Slept on them" and then decided to give the kids another chance. To our way of thinking, even those who are being poor sports and thus casting a bad image on all the young, are not bad kids. They are merely in need of some guidance somewhere to get them to understand today what they will understand better in years to come. We are not apologizing for feeling the way we do about our editorial stand but we do regret having to say it when such a few need to get the message others have already received.

SASS WSC Freshman: "I was out with a nurse last night." WSC Coed: "Cheer up. Maybe your mother will let you go out without one sometime."

SASS Welcome to our house. The Wayne Herald is going to show off its new building Friday. You're invited. We want to take you through the plant and show you how it is possible to get such good reproduction on pictures, how a machine corrects for uneven right-hand margins by "scanning" a line at a time to figure out the spacing of words, how pictures are "printed" on metal and other phases of newspaper production via a process no other newspaper in this area uses. We'll be in our "cage" for the day. No peanuts, please.

SASS Manager: "Are you sure you are qualified to play in a rock-and-roll combo?" Applicant: "Absolutely. I've had two nervous breakdowns, was shell-shocked in the service and I live in an apartment house above a family with 12 noisy children."

SASS We had considered making our predictions for 1967 to match those we carry from Roger Babson. However, you probably don't want to know such things as: Elizabeth Taylor will star as "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch"; the true report on Little Red Riding Hood will come out, proving the wolf was a hero, misled by some do-gooders who love grandmothers; a new television series will feature a doctor on a space ship flown by Tarzan with Beatle-type companions; "The Chimpanzees," involved in a fight to the death with Batlady who is really John's Other Wife; the best novel of the year will be a story in Alaska showing life on a tundra plantation above the Arctic Circle during the pre-Civil-War days; top tune on the Top 40 will be a 1919 recording of "Over There" played backward through a comb and paper and featuring the "Four Bugs and a Buggy" (male group with hair to the lower stomach, sung in a lower key, and giving a pain in the lower back); Notre Dame will lose to Michigan State when a field goal attempt of 2 yards into a 65-mile an hour wind carries down the field and goes between the goal posts at the wrong end of the field; Washington's Senators will win the World Series over the Chicago Cubs in seven and three-sevenths games (the extra three-sevenths coming on three innings played before a practice air raid alert forces evacuation of the Senators' stadium); and quarters will disappear so people have to take dimes, nickels and pennies in change due to no halves and no quarters (it won't matter as nothing will sell for less than a quarter anyway, except penny postcards, which will cost a dime).

Information - Filled Meeting, Prizes, Free Feed Set for Clinic in January

An all-day information-filled meeting at which a detailed report on success with corn and soybeans in spite of late, wet spring, hot, dry summers and a variety of other adverse conditions is scheduled for Wayne, Jan. 13, when the corn-soybean clinic is held. Door prizes will be given, a free lunch will be served at noon and there will be other features announced as the date draws nearer. A panel of crop production experts will be here for the clinic, the only one of its type in this area.

All aspects of corn and soybean production from seedbed preparation through storage will be covered. Proof will be offered on how profits can be made through the use of modern ideas and farming techniques.

Allis-Chalmers, Amchem Products, DeKalb Seeds, Shell Chemical, Behlen Manufacturing and Sherry Farm Service are main sponsors of the clinic. The local agencies for the national firms, and other local businesses will help add attractions.

AG will show why some fields suffered less from heavy spring rains and why some fields had less loss because of delayed harvest;

DeKalb will compare variety performances under high-stress conditions such as last season and point out the reasons for farm-to-farm variances in variety performance; Amchem will cover the effects of extreme weather conditions on chemical weed control; special attention to soil insect control in extremely wet or extremely dry soil will be a Shell feature; Sherry's will point out what fertilizers are best and why not all fertilizers can do the same job; Behlen will cite grain drying and storing under all conditions.

Further information on the free clinic will be given each week until Friday, Jan. 13.

Wayne's Guard Unit Marks 112th Birthday

Friday, Dec. 23, was the 112th anniversary of the formation of the Nebraska National Guard. The Wayne National Guard is one of the units in the organization. Created Dec. 23, 1854, by Thomas Cumming, acting territorial governor, the militia provided service in the opening up of the west to settlement. Forts and way stations along the trails west provided protection for the travelers. From skirmishes with Indians, the Guard moved to the Civil War, Spanish-American War, Philippine Insurrection, Mexican Border Clashes, World Wars I and II, Korean Conflict and Berlin Crisis.

Wayne Guardsmen joined the other units across the state in marking the occasion Friday. They honored those who "preceded them in service to their community, state and county; to say thanks to those who have helped them along the way; and to rededicate themselves to continued service to the community, state and nation."

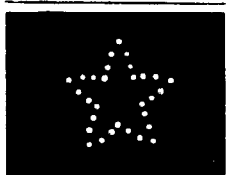

club, madrigal singers and mixed chorus were groups performing. The audience joined all in singing three familiar carols. Members of the double sextet are Darlene Ave, Joan Deck, Pat Frevert, Kathy Pfeiffer, Dawn Robinson, Rita Quinn, Renee Langenberg, Peggy Eckert, Pat Hoeman, Carol Bleich, Donna Krueger and Diane Bruggemann. Accompanists at various times during the program were Mrs. Kropp and Donna and Diane Krueger.

Masons Install First of Year

Wayne Lodge 120 AF&AM will install officers in a ceremony at the Wayne City Auditorium Tuesday, Jan. 3, at 8 p.m. It is open to the public and everyone is invited.

Elected and appointive officers to be installed are: Gene Fletcher, worshipful master; John Ream, jr., senior warden; Arnold Marr, junior warden; G.R. Manley, treasurer; William Mellor, secretary; John Mohr, chaplain; LeRoy Clark, senior deacon; Robert Carhart, junior deacon; Richard Lund, senior steward; Kenneth Dahl, junior steward; and John Addison, tyler. Norris Lallman, Hooper, grand senior warden of the Grand Lodge of Nebraska, will be the installing officer.

THIS STAR is not too spectacular in a picture but it has been shining brightly on the big curve between Hoskins and Winside during the holiday season. It is located on the Richard Miller farm south of Winside and has been enjoyed by highway travelers from both directions.

County Exceeds Bond Sale Goal

Wayne County bond sales reached 109.8 per cent of the quota for the year with November's sales, Chairman Henry Ley reports. Several other counties in the area are also over the top. Ley reported sales of $9,994 in E and H bonds in November. This brought total sales in the county for 1967 to $405,271 with another month of sales yet to be recorded.

Banks issuing and redeeming bonds, newspapers, radio and television promoting the sales and volunteer workers who serve in the program have helped in the drive that has helped Nebraska reach 90.8 per cent of its quota and retain its status among the top bond-buying states in the nation.

Stanton County leads Northeast Nebraska in bond sales with 145.7 per cent of its quota. Other area counties and their percentages are: Dakota 120.9; Cedar 102.4; Dixon 97.4; Thurston 73.3; Pierce 107.7; Madison 90.6; and Cuming 70.6.

Area Aliens Must Report Addresses

All citizens of other countries living in the United States must report their addresses at any post office during January. Information can be obtained from the post offices.

G. K. Callison of the US Immigration and Naturalization Service said forms will be available at his office or at post offices during the month coming up. He added that any alien failing to comply may be penalized.

While there remains a full month in which to fill out the form, this should not be delayed until the last week of January. Taking care of it now will eliminate the chance for over-looking registering later in the month.

Many Singers in Winside Program

Around 125 took part in the Winside music department's Christmas concert at the WHS gym Thursday. Mrs. Pat Kropp directed six groups in a variety of seasonal songs.

Well over 300 attended the concert, a number that exceeded the expectations of the young people and herself, Mrs. Kropp said. The audience was receptive and expressed appreciation for the work and results with hearty applause.

Outstanding numbers included Keith Kruger's trumpet solo, "O Holy Night," the clarity of the trumpet tones being particularly adaptable to that carol. Teresa Stenwall chose a difficult number, "Jesu Bambino," for the only vocal solo of the evening and was a popular favorite.

In group singing, "Christmas Was Meant for Children" was a beautiful and well-rendered number by the girls glee club. "Go Tell It on the Mountain" and "The Sleigh" were both good specialty numbers by the madrigal singers and "Twelve Days of Christmas" was a well-done rendition by the mixed chorus. Cow-Calf Short Course Planned Newcastle Legion Hall will be the site of the first of five workshop sessions in a cow and calf short course sponsored by the University of Nebraska and Northeast Station Jan. 5. The other sessions will be on Thursdays, Jan. 12, 19, 26, and Feb. 2, according to Hugo Zimmerman, station superintendent.

tion superintendent.

Dr. Philip Henderson, extension agricultural economist, will be in charge of the first session on economics. Costs and returns for beef cow herds will be emphasized, as well as money needed for family goals and price cycles.

A nutrition session, led by Dr. Paul Guyer, extension animal scientist, will begin with basic nutrition and a comparison between natural protein and non-protein nitrogen. Feeding and management during the states of development and reproduction will be included.

The economics of herd health, identification and record-keeping systems, vaccination programs and working relations with the veterinarian will be discussed in the session led by Dr. Crosby Howe, extension veterinarian.

Forage production, dealing with pasture and supplemental summer and winter feed will be taught by Dr. Dale Flowerday, extension agronomist. Production of silage crops, hay, silage and haylage and their application to feeding cow herds will be discussed.

Emphasis in the breeding session will be on genetic improvement through record of performance programs and crossbreeding. Del Dearborn, extension animal scientist, will cover potential and problems of crossbreeding, genetic and environmental variations in weaning weight and other systems of mating.

The opening session lasts from 1:30 to 4. An enrollment fee of $2.50 covers the cost of the short course, a standard notebook and reference materials developed for the workshop.

1,336 pounds of hay and 372 pounds of corn were required for each 100 pounds gain.

During a two-month pasture period that followed, gains were equal for the two groups of calves. Even after the corn-finishing period, steers that had corn in winter outweighed the others almost as much as they had in the spring. They also out-dressed and out-graded those wintered on hay alone and brought $18.50 more per head when marketed in November.

Heifers getting alfalfa haylage last winter proved that ration could also be improved by adding grain. A daily feed of 28 pounds of haylage (equal to about 12 pounds of hay in dry matter) produced a little over one-half pound gain. When three pounds of rolled corn were added daily in another lot, haylage consumption dropped to about 10 pounds of hay equivalent and gains were over one pound a day. With six pounds of corn, gains went up to 1 1/2 pounds daily. In these trials, one pound of corn replaced haylage equal in dry matter to about four pounds of hay.

Tolman said wintering young stock with too coarse or rough feed can be a mistake. The increasing over-head, costs of labor, interest, risk, etc., may take away the economy of cheap feed if gains are too low, he said.

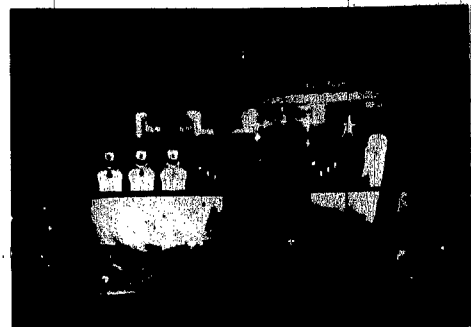

Stalk fields should be supplemented with protein, vitamin A and mineral. Sometimes green feed like a regrowth of alfalfa or green brome in field edges will supply this needed protein, vitamin A and mineral. Usually alfalfa hay or a concentrate supplement will be needed.

When grain and better stalk parts are gone and weather becomes severe, stalk fields are of doubtful value for stock cattle. The amount of grain to feed when cattle are brought in will depend to some extent on how soon they are to be brought to full feed. Tolman said cattle to be turned to pasture without grain cannot gain over 1 1/2 pounds daily in winter without hurting pasture efficiency. Those to be full-fed on pasture or full-fed in dry lot in the spring are usually brought to a full grain feed toward spring.

Some calves are being wintered on silage and supplement or on silage and hay at Concord this winter to be pasture-fed in a test similar to the one last year. Higher gains are expected with silage than with hay, because of the grain contained.

When in pursuit of prey, bats can twist, turn, and dodge in full flight with greater agility than most birds.

Concord Station Reports on Hay

Northeast Station, Concord, has released information on a hay ration study. Walter Tolman, cattle nutritionist at the station, said hay alone, even good hay, was not the most economical wintering ration last year for calves being raised for summer grazing and finishing at the station.

Steer calves gained only one-half pound daily on good quality brome and alfalfa hay. Gains were expensive as it required 3,042 pounds of hay per 100 pounds of gain.

The addition of 4 pounds of rolled corn daily to the hay ration in another lot doubled gains and each pound of corn saved over 4 1/2 pounds of hay. In turn,

E. W. HUSE was editor-publisher of The Herald longer than any other man so far. He was with the paper as editor and publisher with his father, W. Huse, 1908-1904. He was business manager 1904-1905 and bought the paper and served as editor and manager for 37 years, 1910-1947.

MARK CRAMER was owner of The Wayne Herald from 1947 to 1954. He was editor and manager for the first two years and owner and publisher the next five. His wife was co-publisher and owner until the past year when full ownership was taken over by Alan Cramer.

Herald One of County's Oldest Business Places

Tracing its founding back to the long-gone city of LaPorte, The Wayne Herald is one of the oldest business institutions in the area. It is almost 92 years old.

It was first known as the Wayne County Review and was printed at LaPorte. In 1884 it became The Logan Valley Herald, in 1885 it combined with The Tribune to become The Wayne Herald-Tribune and in 1888 it dropped the hyphenated extension and became The Wayne Herald, retaining that name 79 years.

From its birth in LaPorte, it has grown to one of the largest weeklies in the state. For six years, late in 1875 to November, 1881, it was printed at either LaPorte or Ponca. Since 1881 it has been printed in Wayne.

Three other Wayne County newspapers have been absorbed by The Herald. In 1884 The Wayne Tribune became a part of the publication. Twenty years later The Wayne Republican was absorbed and in 1928 The Carroll Index was consolidated with The Herald.

According to Nebraska State Historical Records, there have been many publishers since C. E. Hunter and William Huse started the paper at LaPorte.

Names linked with the paper in the early years were the two founders, A. P. Childs, R. M. Goshorn, W. H. McNeal, W. Huse and son, E. W. Huse, E. Cunningham, Frank Bryner, a Mr. Beebe, J. W. Johnson, E. R. Lundburg, R. Philleo, Jesse A. and Fred R. Lister, A. E. Woodruff and in 1910 E. W. Huse again.

The latter Huse operated the paper from Aug. 11, 1910, until Sept. 8, 1947. Karl F. Schwartz was associated with Huse in the paper during a portion of that time.

Mark E. Cramer took over The Herald in 1947 as editor, manager and owner. Bob Johnson was editor and manager for a period, Bill Richardson came to the paper as business manager and Fred Gibbs was also editor at one time.

Margaret Cramer and Alan Cramer have been publishers of the newspaper since 1954. Bill Richardson returned this year as managing editor and Charles Greenlee has been news editor for two years.

Paper Employs Many Residents

One of the leading employers in Wayne, The Herald has 11 fulltime associates and 11 part-time workers.

There are also 11 correspondents who write news for the paper each week. They reside at Dixon, Carroll, Leslie, Helden, Winside, Hoskins, Ponca, Allen, Wakefield and Concord.

Alan Cramer is the publisher, Jim Marsh is business manager, Bill Richardson managing editor and Chas Greenlee news editor.

Marie Pretzer is office manager, Linda Kraft receptionist, Dorothy Jorgensen bookkeeper, Warren Price shop foreman, Ray Murray and Lloyd Manske pressmen and compositors, Jack Manske darkroom technician, Ron Anderson Linotype operator and Linda Swan chief Justowriter operator.

Part-time employees include Bob Shirck and Billy Richardson as printers, Vicky Gaunt and Judy Lamb as typesetters, Deanna Jorgensen in the bindery and Ellen Hansen as custodian.

Correspondents are Mrs. Sterling Borg, Mrs. Eldon Bull, Mrs. George Buskirk, Mrs. Duane Krueger, Gladys Reichert, Mrs. J. E. Pingel, Mrs. Jerry Alvin, Mrs. W. C. Ring, Mrs. Lawrence Ring, Mrs. Doris Linafelter and Nancy Foulks.

Offset Press Used Here Only One of Type in Area

A new two-unit Goss Community Offset Press has been used to publish The Wayne Herald since Aug. 4. For three weeks, "hot type" was used and then the conversion to a complete offset plant was made when Justowriters were used to set type for the Aug. 23 issue.

Offset printing is not new. It came about in 1796 when Ira Rubel accidentally missed feeding a sheet of paper go through a cylinder press. A reproduction was transferred from the type to the cylinder and then to the back of the next sheet of paper.

According to Ron Slechta, Denison, Ia., Bulletin, who wrote a research paper for the Denison paper affiliated with The Herald, Rubel capitalized on his mistake. He built a press which has been termed "The bridge by which lithography worked into the big time."

Offset started becoming more popular during the depression years of the early 1930's because it was a cheap substitute for the direct printing method—letterpress. However, the first offset newspaper printed weekly was not founded until 1938 and a year later a daily offset newspaper was established.

There was no great stampede to convert to the new method. By 1959 there were only 209 newspapers printed offset. A year later there were 446. Now there are several thousand and many are converting to offset each year in this country.

Here's how offset printing works at The Herald. In the ad department, some of the big numbers and letters are set by hot type, proofs are taken of them and the proofs are pasted on a form sheet.

Pictures can be pasted in. A hot wax applied with a waxing machine makes it possible to attach features, set them at angles, move them to other locations and "box" them.

After the ad is "pasted up" it is proofread. Changes are marked in blue pencil as blue will not register on the photographic film to be used later. Due to the special wax, if the customer wants to move a featured item from one place to another, he indicates the change and the item is pulled off one spot and pressed on where wanted.

In the meantime, straight matter such as what you are reading now, is being set on a Justowriter. It has a keyboard similar to a typewriter's with some additions. With a little training, anyone who can type can operate the Justowriter.

The operator types until a light comes on and must finish that line before the light goes off in order to fit it into the width of this column. While the Justowriter is typing copy with uneven right-hand margin on a strip of paper similar to wide adding machine tape, it is also punching out tape.

This tape is perforated in code to be run through a machine which will re-type the copy on strips of paper only it will compensate for the spacing differences between words on the various lines and will type copy with the right-hand margins flush.

Copy is proofread, errors corrected by pasting corrected lines over those with errors and the straight matter is used to fill the pages. When the pages are made up, they are sent back to the camera room.

Where there is to be a picture, a red masking paper is used. The camera leaves a "window" wherever this red paper appears.

In the camera room, a Kenro Vertical Camera is used to take a picture of each page. Previously, the same camera has been used to take pictures of the photographs on a different camera setting, this being one factor in giving such clear photograph reproduction on offset.

Negatives are made of each page. They are sent through the dryer and come through the wall into the plate-making room. Here a substance is used to "opaque" spots that are not wanted. Defects can be covered so they will not reproduce on a metal plate to be used.

When opaques is finished, the negatives (half-tones) of the photographs are pasted to the negatives of the full page. Two pages at a time are then put in the plate-making machine where they are exposed long enough to transfer the image from the negatives to the sensitive plates.

When these plates are given the final processing before printing, they are locked in the press. Water, ink and chemicals are used to print in a manner that is far ahead of the process

Rubel first used in the original press but will based on the same fundamentals.

Offset works like this: Water and ink will not mix. Water is run over the plate that has been made. A roller here to the areas where there is no image. Ink is then run over the plate. It adheres to the areas where there is an image. The inked image is then transferred to a rubber mat. This rubber mat comes in contact with the paper and leaves the image on the paper.

TEACHER AND PUPIL get together in America to renew memories of Ethiopia. Lonnie Behmer (left), Winside taught Arata Tzeggai in Africa. Now both are in America. Arata holds a Wati Ethiopian musical instrument played something like a violin, and Lonnie has the saddle he used on his horse plus a richly colored saddle blanket.

Ethiopian Youth in Winside to Visit Former Teacher with US Peace Corps

For two years Lonnie Behmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Behmer, Winside, was with the Peace Corps in Asmara, Ethiopia, where one of his pupils was Arata Tzeggai, son of an Asmaran grocer. This week the two are visiting in the Behmer home, Tzeggai now being a college student in America.

When Behmer learned that his former pupil in Haile Salassie Secondary School, Asmara, was coming to America, he asked him to spend the Christmas-New Year holidays with him.

Behmer returned in August from Asmara where he had taught bookkeeping and economics two years in Peace Corps work. With other Peace Corps workers, he had been impressed with Tzeggai's ability and gave him encouragement to try for a scholarship.

From Winside, Behmer had gone to Concord, Calif., in the San Francisco Bay area. There he teaches typing and math in a school system that has seven high schools.

In Ethiopia, Tzeggai had taken the Scholastic Aptitude Test for an Afro-American scholarship jointly sponsored by the two countries. After being ranked the top eighth grade pupil in all Ethiopia in tests, he had gone on to high school and then took the SAT tests. Out of all those chosen for scholarships, he was the only one to come straight out of high school, all others having some college training before taking the tests.

His scholarship is good for four years at Michigan University, where he is studying actuarial mathematics. He will not get home to see his parents, two sisters and two brothers until he has completed his four years of college.

Behmer and Tzeggai both speak foreign languages, although Lonnie admits he never had to use Amharic much because so many speak English in Ethiopia. Amharic is the official language, but Tigrinya is the "mother tongue" of Tzeggai's family so he speaks both. He also speaks excellent English, having studied it since he was in the third grade.

His wanting to come to America is not unusual. In fact, Ethiopians see American movies, read American magazines, learn about this country from teachers from the United States and with horse hair on the bow and the instrument itself, a saddle he used on his horse at Asmara, a colorful saddle blanket used over the saddle instead of under it, a monk's umbrella, carved wooden animals in miniature, woven baskets, drawings by Tzeggai and others and many objects made in Ethiopia.

Sitting and seeing the slides with Tzeggai and Behmer at your side is an experience. Many slides bring back memories of life in Asmara and they laugh and recall amusing incidents and experiences. It is obvious they had a great time in Asmara and are having an equally great time in Winside.

When vacation is over, Tzeggai will return to Ann Arbor and Behmer to Concord. They will keep in touch, two personable young men seeking no acclaim for what they did or are doing, merely treasuring the memorable years together in Ethiopia as teacher and pupil and the years that lie ahead as friends.

The United Nations Club is one of his activities. He also finds time for soccer, a game which many of the 1,500 foreign students at MU play better than the US students do. He is not as good as many other soccer players there, he said.

Behmer is a modest, dedicated and sincere young man of 26 who declined to talk of his work much, preferring to have the accent on the activities of his guest. He did tell of some of the medical work he did in the Peace Corps, helping on a team of 14 Ethiopians and 2 Americans that went out one summer to vaccinate against smallpox, tuberculosis and other diseases. Others in the Peace Corps worked on textbooks during the summer he was with the medical team.

He also told of 11 weeks of training at UCLA before going to Africa. His preparation there included African studies, a good thorough brushing up on the United States, its politics, its policies, its government and its history, first aid and other medical training, physical education and language.

While he was in Ethiopia he did get away for a 30-day vacation, during which he visited Kenya, Uganda and other East Africa countries, traveling by bus, train and plane. He sent home many color slides and many souvenirs.

Among his souvenirs are a wati, a musical instrument played like a violin, with horse hair on the bow and the instrument itself, a saddle he used on his horse at Asmara, a colorful saddle blanket used over the saddle instead of under it, a monk's umbrella, carved wooden animals in miniature, woven baskets, drawings by Tzeggai and others and many objects made in Ethiopia.

Sitting and seeing the slides with Tzeggai and Behmer at your side is an experience. Many slides bring back memories of life in Asmara and they laugh and recall amusing incidents and experiences. It is obvious they had a great time in Asmara and are having an equally great time in Winside.

When vacation is over, Tzeggai will return to Ann Arbor and Behmer to Concord. They will keep in touch, two personable young men seeking no acclaim for what they did or are doing, merely treasuring the memorable years together in Ethiopia as teacher and pupil and the years that lie ahead as friends.

Herald Affiliates in Three Midwest States

The Wayne Herald is affiliated with several other newspapers in three states through local ownership.

In Nebraska, the Nemaha County Herald and The Wayne Herald are two Cramer newspapers. Last year the O'Neill Frontier was sold.

Denison, Ia., has two newspapers affiliated with this paper, The Bulletin and The Review. There are two newspapers at Detroit Lakes, Minn., and one at Moorhead, Minn., also affiliated with The Herald owners.

The Detroit Lakes and Moorhead papers are being printed offset in a plant located between the two cities. The Wayne and Denison papers are printed offset in new plants just completed. The Auburn newspaper is printed letterpress.

Herald Has Led in Making Innovations

When The Wayne Herald started printing using the offset system, it became the first newspaper in Northeast Nebraska to use the process. This is just one of a number of innovations the newspaper has introduced to the area.

In 1910 The Herald installed a standard type-casting machine. It was the first weekly newspaper in Northeast Nebraska to have one. Until then, all type was set by hand and copy was necessarily restricted.

The first color used in a Nebraska weekly newspaper came in 1959 when The Herald made use of an attachment to its Duplex press to add a new dimension to the printed page.

While there are other offset weeklies in Nebraska and even some offset dailies, there are no offset newspapers in this area other than The Herald. Information on the offset process is contained in another article.

Newspaper Location Third in Same Area

The new Newspaper Building in Wayne is at least the third location for The Herald. Publishing since 1911 has been within less than a block of the present site.

E.W. Huse printed The Herald from 1911 to 1926 in the building now housing Blake Studio and Sportland. He leased the buildings from J. T. Bressler, sr., and A. R. Davis.

In 1926 Huse moved the newspaper to a new building at 110 Main. The Herald was printed there 40 years, moving this year to 114 Main. Present facilities are bigger than both other locations put together.

The Goss press used by The Herald prints 12,000 papers an hour. Where a press run used to take one to two hours on the letterpress, the same run would take from 14 to 20 minutes on the offset press.
