Boosting Area's 4-H Enrollment

Margaret Stahly, area extension agent at Northeast Station, Concord, is boosting enrollment in the 4-H program. She says it provides "many opportunities to the boys and girls in the area."

According to Miss Stahly, 4-H provides opportunity for friends, far and near, for travel, to near and distant places; and for experience, new and varied.

At a recent modeling workshop at Northeast Station, 30 area girls had an opportunity to hear, see and practice proper modeling and good grooming. Representatives of a Norfolk beauty school presented the program.

The 4-H girls participating in the workshop were junior leaders and carrying advanced 4-H clothing projects. They in turn will present the information from this workshop to other clothing members in their clubs. In some counties, they will be responsible for presenting this information at countywide modeling workshops.

"This is only one of the many programs planned and conducted by the University of Nebraska, Northeast Station, for 4-H boys and girls and other interested youths," Miss Stahly pointed out. "The 4-H motto is: 'Make the best better and the 4-H member learns by doing.'"

WAYNE'S HOME-OWNED

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

It is the duty of an editorial writer to search all available facts before he sits down to write. From this basis the writer should be able to give a clear picture of important topics.

A Great Promotion

Moonlight Madness in Wayne has come and gone. Much praise has been heard concerning this promotion that had something for all.

High praise for the teenage dance comes from a teenager. He reports on the reactions of his fellow teenagers.

Giving appreciation for the Chamber of Commerce dance, he said the kids showed how much they liked the dance (idea in three ways: They had no trouble and obviously had fun; they cheered Wanda Owens, Chamber manager, when she appeared at the dance to explain C. C. sponsorship; and they talked about the dance long after it was over.

There was a big crowd of pre-teen, teen and post-teen young people at the dance. A local combo (Sons of Satan) played music of the day. There was no rowdiness. Everything was free.

The Chamber of Commerce could hardly go wrong in sponsoring another such teenage dance, even on a night when there is no Moonlight Madness promotion. After all, many of those young people were not old enough to drive and while they danced, their parents were in business places.

For those young people who did drive, there was money flowing for gas, snacks at driveways and cafes and even purchases at other stores.

As far as can be seen, the free dance for the kids was a bonus extra for Moonlight Madness. Unlike the Madness sale, which is just good once a year, the teenage promotion could be put on more often.

Kids have said they appreciated the dance. Obviously they would like another just like it. From their conduct, we'd say they deserve more. Chamber of Commerce, do you have any questions?—CEG.

You too, Altona

For the ump-hand-fedth and umpty-umph-th, criticism has come our way concerning failure to cover news. No one bothered to inform us of the news before and but we are blamed for not covering

Specifically, this instance covers the fact that we had quite a story on the high water at Concord and previously about the flooding of a farm home near Allen when a roadway gave out. The criticism came from an Altona area resident who said high water was even worse out that way and damage was extensive but nothing about it appeared in The Herald.

Let's make it clear what happened. When Concord had high water, three people took the time to call long distance to tell us about it. We went at once to give the story coverage. Altona is on the same telephone line as Wayne but not one person bothered to make a local call about high water out there, and not until a week or two weeks too late did we know Altona had high water.

Allen residents called us when water flooded a farm home. Again, it was by long distance. Not one person from Altona, about one-third the distance from Wayne that Allen is, took the time to tell us Altona area had high water damage.

Newspaper writers are not psychotic—psycho perhaps, but not psychotic. We have no glass ball to tell us where the news is happening. We rely on friends to give us "leads" on many news stories and we go where the news is.

In almost every community in this area someone will take it upon themselves to help have a better newspaper by calling if something happens that is news-

State Officials Estimate Personal Income Tax Rate

LINCOLN—A 10 to 12 percent personal income tax rate next year has been publicly estimated by state officials for the first time since the 1967 income tax Act was adopted last April.

The forecast came as the legislature passed a record $575.6 million budget for the 1967-68 biennium, including $23.1 million from the tax-supported general fund.

Sixty percent of the general fund will be financed by sales and income tax collections. The sales tax, and its 2.5-cent rate, started on June 1. The income tax begins in 1968.

The actual income tax rate will be set this fall by the Nebraska Board of Equalization and Assessment, based on budgetary needs not met by the sales tax and other revenue sources.

may be necessary to meet government obligations. The corporate income tax rate would be 20 percent of this.

Both rates would have applied against that money paid by Nebraskans to the Federal Government in income taxes. For example, if the rate is 10 percent, an individual taxpayer's state tax would be $100 if he pays the Federal Government $1,000.

The record-shattering budget package is about what Republican Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann asked for last March. But it is way below what the 65 state agencies requested.

The budget bill (LB 922) traveled a relatively smooth voyage through the sometimes choppy legislative waters. More than 200 amendments were attached to the proposal on the floor. They amounted to $16.7 million.

The 100-page document is designed to meet the cost of a host of expanded government services, including broader educational opportunities and more welfare programs.

In general, the budget tags $136 million for public higher education, $80 million for welfare needs and $58 million for state institutions such as mental hospital and penal facilities.

There are also substantial outlays for increased research capability, an accelerated industrial development program and wider traffic safety efforts.

Huge as it is, the budget does not and cannot dip into red ink spending. This is prohibited by the State Constitution.

The budget was the product of more than 20 weeks of wary maneuvering within the budget committee over old programs seeking higher outlays and new ones wanting a good share of the fiscal pie. The committee itself was divided over key provisions.

Budget Chairman Richard D. Marvel of Hastings said it "will allow an optimum contribution to Nebraska's continued economic growth." He also said it gives the Legislature unprecedented control over agency spending.

Tax dollars are appropriated by individual worthy in their area. We would like to have someone in the Altona area do the same for that community.

Best bet is to call your Herald correspondent and let her phone. But, if you have no correspondent or if the news is really "hot," call us collect (375-2600) daytime, 375-1383 nights and we'll get to the news and be grateful to you for your help!

Hoskins Hits the Jackpot

In near-perfect weather Saturday, Hoskins put on a near-perfect centennial celebration. It was only fair that it turned out so nice.

Residents of that bustling town doubled up on jobs. Town residents were joined by farm area residents in putting on a real old-fashioned celebration with everything free except food at one stand.

As wet as it has been, farmers could have taken to the fields and forgotten their help was needed. Not the Hoskins area farmers. A centennial comes along once in a hundred years and they left their fields Saturday to assist, thus helping to insure success.

Hoskins' parade was one of the finest ever seen in this writer's 22 years in this area. It was learned that residents had been "on the lookout" for floats and every time one heard of some organization having a float ready for somewhere else they put in a good word for having it in the Hoskins parade too.

The barbecue was unbelievable. In fact, the program had to start in the evening before serving was over at the barbeque feed. Otherwise the program might not have started until midnight.

The kids' horse show was a real delight. Many people like horses. Many don't give a hoot for them. Both groups could like the Hoskins show because when you add the element of little kids you can't lose.

All Hoskins did was attract about 30 times its population. No use for any bigger town aiming to eclipse that. To give you an idea of what a stratospheric effort it would require, Wayne would have to draw 150,000 people to compare with Hoskins on a percentage basis.

Shucks, Hoskins, you've just given every other community in the area a real target to shoot at. Just don't wait 100 more years to put on another such celebration!—CEG.

The Disaster Warning

It is gratifying to learn that a better disaster warning system is proposed for Wayne.

Without confirming this anywhere else, it is assumed an editorial in The Herald on the fact that some residents cannot hear the present siren might have had something to do with the decision.

There will be some who won't want to hear the warning, especially if it turns out to be used on a "dry run" and disaster skips the city.

However, all that system has to do is give enough warning if disaster does strike and it has paid for itself for generations to come.

No matter who gets the credit for the idea, it's a good one. May it never be needed, but if it is needed, may it function perfectly.—CEG.

JOIN THE STAR-SPANGLED FREEDOM PLAN

program instead of in lump sums—as in the past.

Meanwhile, Chairman Jules W. Burbach of the revenue committee forecast the 1969 Legislature will have no other choice but to raise the state sales tax to three percent.

"I see no alternative," said Burbach. "We must finance state government with a reasonable balance between sales tax revenue and income tax revenue. The present sales tax rate and the size of appropriations dislodge that balance."

The sales tax rate is presently 2.5 cents on every dollar. It is scheduled to drop to 2 cents in 1969.

Burbach, who piloted the income-sales tax bill through the Legislature, said "there is no doubt" the income tax will eventually bear a heavier share of state government operating costs than originally intended.

This, he added, is chiefly due to the addition of new programs which caused the budget to increase several million dollars.

Included in this category would be the state aid to schools program, which sponsors hope will receive at least $20 million in the 1967-69 biennium. Fully funded, it would cost $65 million a year.

Burbach noted he fought for a three percent sales tax last spring when the sales-income tax bill was before the revenue committee.

"However, at the governor's request, we settled on the 2.5 percent rate. He was certain this would be enough to meet government obligations and still keep a reasonable balance between sales and income taxes," Burbach said.

"Personally, I'm still quite concerned about a fund shortage early next year when we no longer have the benefit of property tax receipts. It could still happen."

Also on the subject of taxation, the chairman of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee said there is virtually no way "the state sales tax can stand if the courts strike down the income tax law."

Sen. Fred W. Carstens, of Beatrice said the two measures "are so closely locked together on our statute books that to void one would necessarily void the other."

A lawsuit has been filed in Lancaster County District Court challenging only the income tax portion of the sales-income tax bill (LB 377), enacted last April.

Carstens noted that forces attacking the income tax in court have acknowledged it is difficult to separate the sales tax provisions, especially as required administration of the revenue laws.

"The motivation by the plaintiffs is to destroy only the income tax and let the sales tax stand. But there is virtually no way to divide the issues," Carstens said. New Patrol Chief Named? Governor Tiemann tapped Maj. James E. Kruger the new chief of the Nebraska Safety Patrol, succeeding Col. Dan J. Casey, who resigned for health reasons.

Kruger, 51, is a 27-year veteran of the law enforcement agency. He was stationed formerly at North Platte, Grand Island, Hastings and Fremont.

The Patrol presently has 254 uniformed officers. This will be increased to some 300 later this year. A native of Sterling, Kruger is married and the father of three children. He was promoted to major in 1958.

How Much is a Farmer's Management Time Worth?

A farmer's time is worth $25 an hour when used in keeping records and making decisions, in the opinion of a University of Nebraska agricultural economist.

Dr. Glen Vollmar, chairman of the Nebraska Department of Agricultural Economics, presented the opinion here at the annual meeting of the Northeast Nebraska Experimental Farm association, a group which includes 1,930 members in 14 counties.

Decisions made in operating a farm are directed at a goal, usually a dollar one, he said. But these decisions require up-to-the-minute knowledge in these times when farming is undergoing continuous changes, he explained.

The trend to larger farms and larger capital investment requires a businesslike farm management approach, Vollmar said. "You no longer can afford to waste time digging post-holes by hand."

To back up his statement, he presented an analysis of 75 medium size dryland farms in eastern Nebraska that are entered in the University's Electronic Farm Records Project (Nebfarm).

These show that the high third of the farms returned $33,100 for labor, capital and management. This represented a 14.3 per cent return on capital and $19,200 for management.

Returned on the low third of the farms were $7,065 for labor, capital and management, which represented a .6 per cent return on capital and minus $6,300 to management.

Average farm size and average cropland was the same for both the high and low thirds, yet capital investment was $141,000 for the high third and $125,000 for the low.

Sales was $62,074 for the high third and $33,148 for the low.

A correlation can be found between the capital invested, the manpower needed and production per man. The high third required 1.5 men and the low third 2 men. Production per man was $41,000 for the high third and $16,500 for the low.

Significant indications of differences in management, Vollmar said, also include the difference in investment per acre in machinery, fertilizer and chemicals.

Machinery investment in the high third averaged $50 per acre in the low third $32. Fertilizer and chemicals investment in the high third averaged $9.70 per acre in the low third $6.60.

Obviously, Vollmar said, the farmers in the high third were better aware of their machinery and fertilizer needs for top production with lowest manpower

The Fair Packaging and Labeling Act of 1966 becomes effective on July 1, 1967. It will aid consumers by requiring that packaged or labeled consumer commodities in interstate commerce be honestly and informatively labeled.

The law requires that the label of a consumer product must identify the product and give the name and place of business of the manufacturer, packer or distributor.

The label must contain a statement of net contents in units appropriate for the product such as weight, liquid measure or numerical count. This information must be in a uniform location on the display panel of the label and must be easily legible.

Labels will no longer use confusing terms such as "giant quart" and "jumbo pound."

After July 1, labels must give the net quantity per serving if the number of servings is stated.

The law also authorizes the Government to establish additional regulations on a product-by-product basis if it determines these are necessary to prevent deception or to simplify value comparisons. This law does not apply to certain drugs, meats and other commodities that are covered by other Federal laws.

Finally, a bouquet to the baseball teams of the area. We'd like to see more people turn out for the games, however. Maybe it's the fact there is no sign downtown anymore. Maybe it's the numerous cancellations. Perhaps it's the conflict of other activities. For some reason the crowds have not been as big as they should be. At any rate, the players still show up, be there 10 people or a thousand present. We hope you'll show up for the home games—and when the teams are playing on the road, why not volunteer to take a carload of players so even the smallest players can go. We used to get the mileage on the sign too. And when they get to fighting, it disturbs Uncle Jasper's eight hogs so bad they wake up Cousin Check's dozen goats. It's terrible, especially since the windows are always down."
"Why don't you open the windows?" asked a friend.

When you realize it was about 15 degrees above freezing a couple of days before the Fourth of July you know the weather has been "unusual," to say the least. Of course, July isn't over, but June surely set a record of some sort. Amazing, isn't it, how things look so great. Corn could almost be seengrowing after the sun came out for just a few days. Weeds disappeared as farmers used machinery and chemicals to give crops a chance.

The skipper listened patiently, then snorted: "Listen, young fellow, if the navy wanted you to have a wife, they would have issued you one!"
