

Winside Boosters on Caravan Thursday

Winside Old Settlers boosters will "hit the road" Thursday, July 13. They will be boosting the reunion which will be held a week later, July 20.

This year's reunion will be the 6th annual celebration. With Nebraska celebrating its centennial, the sponsoring groups have gone out of their way to provide a bigger and better show.

Plans call for the boosters to leave Winside at 10 a.m. Thursday. Units will start forming at 9:30 a.m. so the cars can leave promptly at 10.

At Bahe, Wayne, will have a public address system. Young people from Winside and Wayne in the Wayne summer band program will form a combo to provide music.

The route calls for visits to Hoskins, Norfolk, Pierce, Randolph, Belden, Carroll, Wayne, Wisner,

WSC Tuition Hike Receives Approval

The Nebraska State Normal Board approved a tuition hike at Wayne, Kearney, Chadron and Peru state colleges Friday. Increases take effect this fall.

Nebraska residents will pay $330 a year, an increase of $80. Out-of-state residents will pay $610 a year, an increase of $210.

Officials representing the state schools said they felt the increase would cut enrollment at the colleges. One of the big factors favoring education at the four schools has been the comparatively low cost of tuition in comparison with similar schools in other states.

The normal board approved application for $1.7 million for science and library facilities at Chadron, Kearney and Wayne. It received word that Kearney expects to become a state university within two years.

Girl Scouts Holding Camp, Other Activities

Wayne Girl Scouts are holding camps and other activities this month. The day camp dates were changed because of the wet weather in June, usual month for holding camp.

Mrs. George Dahl is in charge of day camp for Brownies only. It will be held July 24-28 inclusive from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. for all Brownie Scouts of the Wayne area. Site will be the Girl Scout cabin.

Mrs. Max Lundstrom is in charge of the juniors for a camp out two nights, July 18-19 with camp breaking up July 20. Troops 257 and 191 will take part in what amounts to a "two-night slumber party" at the Girl Scout cabin.

Girls will work on troop camper badges. Further details on plans will be announced next week.

Need Moisture in Area

Would you believe moisture is needed in this area? Farmers say a good rain would be most welcome.

The over-abundance of rain in June has left Wayne county with good soil moisture. However, for the good of the growing crops, rain needs to fall.

Farmers are cultivating corn and beans and putting up hay in the region. They find the weeds are cleaning up good in the fields considering how bad they were following all of the rain.

It has not been overly hot. Farmers hesitate to say they need scorchers, but they admit temperatures in the 80's would be a lot more welcome for the crops than the temperatures in the 60's.

As for those cool, comfortable nights, they're great for sleeping but not much help with the corn.

What is needed is a string of hot nights to boost the corn plants.

Where the moisture soaked in so much in June, the ground is now pretty hard. Farmers just have to keep working it anyway.

First cutting of alfalfa was skipped because of the wet conditions in the fields.

That's Service!

The article concerning weather conditions was written Friday evening. It pointed out a need for rain. Early Saturday morning rain came in the form of showers. More such weather was forecast. As of 8 a.m. the area had received .14 of an inch of rain, according to government gauges at the Ralph Watson farm north of Wayne.

Now it is time for the second cutting so the first and second are being combined.

Several stacking crews have been seen in the area. One spotted Thursday was that of Walter, Merlin and Harlin Brugger, Winside. They were cutting hay on the Jim Hansen farm 5 1/2 miles west of Wayne.

The Bruggers were working on a stack about 27 feet high. They said it was one of over half dozen put up in the area by them the past week, 27 feet being about the height they can go with present equipment.

Farmers have worked Sundays, holidays, early and late to get their field work done. They have not caught up with all the work they lost out in June but they have come along faster than they thought possible at the time.

Grafting Three Years Late

she has represented FWG on various occasions.

She had solo roles in many of the school programs and productions. She sang in mixed chorus, girls' glee club, girls' ensemble and girls' sextet.

Activities outside the music field include the Pop Club, one-act play (in which she received the drama award), district speech contest, junior class play and music clinics two years.

June 19, 1964, Gary Munson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Munson, Wayne, was struck by lightning. July 10, 1967, he is to get started on skin grafting.

Gary was one of a group of Boy Scouts struck by lightning three years ago. He has been able to lead a fairly normal life since then although scar tissue covers one arm and with no natural oils on this arm he has problems.

He also has holes in his side where he was burned. One joint went through his chest and came out his back, leaving a mark that will be with him for life. He was also burned on his other arm.

The local youth received new hope when a representative of the state rehabilitation department called on him after

Gary had tried to enlist in the armed forces and was turned down. The rehab man said his department exists to help out in situations such as this.

Dr. Albert Black, skin and plastic surgery specialist in Omaha, was contacted to perform surgery. He agreed to perform an operation Monday which will take eight hours. Gary will then face about ten days of recuperating at Clarkson Memorial Hospital, where he will be glad to hear from friends via cards and letters.

Dr. Black has suggested that the worst burns be taken care of first. Skin will be taken off the sides of Munson's body and grafted on his left arm to take the place of the scar tissue.

Doctors looking at the arm were amazed. They said they had never treated a living person who had been struck by lightning. Always before, lightning has meant death. They convinced young Munson he was most fortunate to be alive.

Gary graduated in 1966 from Wayne High School and has been attending Wayne State College. He is also employed at the state college as a part of the rehabilitation department's program.

His father is employed at the Gamble Store. The Munsons were without insurance that would cover the medical costs but have paid their way. They gained new appreciation for state services when it was learned the state and county would pay for the surgery now and any surgery later to help Gary's body return to normal.

For the 19-year-old youth who has borne the effects well and who has seldom complained, a new world is opening, a world in which he will not have special problems to contend with, problems associated with a bolt of lightning that all but killed him three years ago.

Mrs. Barner New Clerk at Winside

Mrs. Darrell Barner is the new village clerk at Winside. She took over duties from Mrs. Paul Zoffka July 1. Mrs. Zoffka having served as clerk the past few months.

With the hiring of a full-time clerk, Winside will be able to offer more hours. Mrs. Barner plans to have the office open five days a week 9-12 and 1-4. The business days are Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Barner has done similar work before. She worked with the Rural Electrical Administration, Creighton, 5 1/2 years. Creighton is her hometown.

The Barners have been living in Sioux City. They have moved to Winside where he is serving as an apprentice barber in the shop of Ed Schantell.

A Wayne man in an Omaha cafeteria witnessed this scene. A man and woman stood in line ahead of him. The woman remarked: "I don't know why we came here. I'm not a bit hungry." She proceeded to select a big slab of halibut french fries, a large salad, rhubarb pie, cornbread and drink. The local resident is dying to follow her in line the day she is a bit hungry.

In a Wayne cafe this centennial "special" was offered recently with little comment from those looking at menus on which it was typed: "Antique Special, Barbecue, $1.50—plus 5 cents tax—Total $2.25."

Traveling to a boys' baseball game, the Wayne residents decided to park their nice car a bit farther away from the diamond than they intended at first. So they moved it way back instead of leaving it up near the stands. The first foul ball hit landed right on the car in its new "out of range" location.

Centennial Parade Plan Set

What could be the biggest parade in Wayne County history is being planned Aug. 16 in conjunction with the county fair. The plan for the Centennial Day parade is almost complete.

Clete Sharer is in charge under joint Chamber of Commerce, Fair Board and Jaycee sponsorship. He reports the response from this area and other encouraging, although merchants and organizations are urged to plan more floats.

Plaques in the shape of Nebraska's outline will be presented to every entry in this big parade. Kurt Otte of Otte Construction has cut out the plaques from native walnut supplied by George Claycomb; Wayne Tietgen of Wayne's Body Shop has shellacked the plaques; and Dale Gutshall of Dale's Jewelry has engraved the plates.

The plaques read, "Centennial Parade, 1867-1967, Wayne." They also include a gold star indicating Wayne's location in the state.

Each saddle club, float sponsor, band, buggy sponsor or other entrant in the big parade will receive one of these plaques. A free meal will be served at noon for all those in the parade.

At Bahe has been helping in many ways with parade plans. He is also working on the fair itself, which will be held Aug. 10-11-12.

A kiddie parade is a separate event. Name of the sponsoring club or organization will be revealed at a later date.

WALNUT PLAQUES will be given each entry in the main parade in Wayne Aug. 11. Kurt Otte, who made the plaques in the shape of Nebraska, is shown with one. Brass plates are on the front of each.

EIGHTH GRADE GRADUATES from Wayne County posed for this picture at the Wayne Baptist Church in 1920. Each of the students had to pass a written examination in order to receive a diploma since Wayne's City School was the only one accredited by the State Department at that time. All of the students are from schools located out of Wayne.

Hobby of Bill Ihm Popular at Lincoln

Bill Ihm, husband of the former Judy Jones, Wayne, is making muzzle-loading rifles at his home in Davey near Lincoln. The Lincoln Sun reports they are popular in that area.

Ihm is an associate fisheries biologist with the Nebraska Game Commission and formerly taught in Wayne. His wife, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jones, Wayne, attends the University of Nebraska.

According to the Sun, Ihm's specialty is hand-carved copies of the early American Pennsylvania-Kentucky flintlock rifle, famous for its part in the battle of New Orleans. There are few originals around and they are expensive so Ihm's copies are popular.

Ihm says the muzzle-loaders can compete with modern firearms in accuracy. The accuracy is limited to 25 yards and with open sights can hit a three-inch target at 125 yards.

He enjoys making the hand-carved stocks and putting in breechlock modifications. He uses various woods but highly polished wavy or tiger tail maple are the most popular because this type is hard and beautiful.

Mountings are cast from sterling silver or brass to fit Ihm's specifications. He spends about six weeks completing each gun. To fire the gun, Ihm measures the exact amount of powder, pours it down the barrel, tamps it solidly, wraps a ball in a patch, tamps that down and then primes the flintlock. The flint strikes the metal lock, the spark ignites the priming powder and an explosion sets off the powder, driving the ball from the rifle.

Pioneers used scraps of linen for the batches. Ihm has experimented with various materials, finding the type of patch can affect the accuracy of the shot.

Ihm uses a set of chisels that belonged to his grandfather. They are over 100 years old.

Sheriff's Department Investigates Mishap

An accident with injury was investigated Wednesday morning at 8:15 by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department. The mishap happened two miles east and one mile south of Wakefield on a Thurston County road when a car driven by Pearl Morgan, Winnebago, went out of control on a curve and slid into a ditch where it turned over on its top.

The mishap was caused by a blowout on the right front tire according to Deputy Sheriff S. C. Thompson, investigating officer. Miss Morgan received neck and shoulder injuries and a passenger in the car, Mary Bird, was taken to the Wakefield Hospital where stitches were required to close cuts on her right knee. The 1966 model car was extensively damaged.

Miss Chapman, a 1966 graduate of Wayne High School, is employed at Dale Electronics, Columbus. Her fiancé, a graduate of Leigh High School, is serving in the U.S. Air Force.

A fall wedding is being planned.

Savidge Amusement Called Wayne Home Years Goneby

(By Tom K. McDermott)
Many Wayne citizens still remember the Walter Savidge Amusement Company of Wayne. No doubt the residents of many Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Wyoming and Kansas towns will also remember the company's route.

Walter T. Savidge (1886-1949) was born in Deldit, Nebr., and moved to Humphrey later on. As a boy, he was thrilled at the sight of tight rope walkers and different aerialists. This prompted him to try to walk the rope from his father's barn to a shed, and later from the top of a windmill to the ground, using an umbrella as a parachute, all of which resulted in bumps and bruises.

As was often the story, young Walter, at age 16, ran away from home to perform his stunts at fairs and picnics.

His first visit to Wayne was upon request of the members of the county fair board of which Frank M. Griffith belonged. While performing breathtaking feats Griffith's young daughter, Mabel, witnessed below with the frightened audience. After the performance, Walter met Miss Griffith and was both charmed and delighted with her gracious personality.

Walter Savidge left Wayne and continued to perform in many areas, but he carried the memory of Mabel Griffith with him. He formed a dramatic company with his brother, Arthur, whose stage name was Elwin Strong. After a few years, disagreements arose concerning money management, and Walter left with $500 to form the Savidge Amusement Company. He was booked at Wayne where he met Miss Griffith again, and they agreed to get married.

From that time the show grew and grew until it was well-known in the midwest and boasted of being the cleanest show in America, a title that was well-deserved. Savidge didn't allow smoking, gambling, profanity or messiness to exist or unmarried persons to join. Failure to obey meant a fine or instant dismissal.

So unique were these ideals and features, which were enforced greatly, that the Omaha World Herald said, in a full page write-up: "The crew is not made of crude fellows who 'flop' in strange places, no indeed. Savidge and his company are welcomed with open arms each year in towns that he has played before."

One of many articles concerning the company's recent performances went like this as the Bonesteel, S.D., Enterprise stated in big letters: "Walter Savidge Amusement Company, clean and worthy, drawing large crowds." Due to the unusually high standards of the company it quickly received the name of "The Sunday School Carnival".

The Savidge Amusement Co. was not a small organization and business venture. It employed 125 people and owned its own 20 car train which cost over $65,000, all of which was done during the depression.

The company consisted of a specially-made tent that seated 1,600 people and served as the theater for the popular New York and Chicago dramatic productions. The production required eight men to operate the stage and about 15 performers plus numerous vaudeville acts between scenes.

They produced notable plays such as "Three Wise Fools", "Abie's Irish Rose", "Mother's Millions" and the very popular "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" in which Elwin Strong played the part of Dr. Jekyll in a thrilling manner. The actors were all professionals, never amateurs. The company owned its own light plant and maintained a 14-man orchestra.

Outside of the tent were the side shows and rides, all termed as "ballyhoo". The Savidges owned an Ely wheel, or a Ferris wheel, merry-go-rounds, revolving swings and many exciting and expensive rides that were new to the public. Such oddities were the famed "Baby May", said to be the smallest fat lady as she tipped the scales at 480 pounds. Then there were the Madagascar pygmies, the armless Owens, a chap who ate with his feet, and the George Thompson family in which Mr. Thompson was the smallest at thirty-two inches.

There were many cages of wild animals. They had Ma-Ilo, the man ape, trick horses, Siamese twins, snake charmers and many of the most unnatural persons and animals that Mother Nature had seemingly left untouched. Mrs. Savidge claims they were not fakes, and were actually pleasant people. It did not bother them to be on display as they felt it was their living, and they made good money.

In the winter, the show had its headquarters in Wayne. The actors left for different parts of the country and returned in the spring to rehearse in the city hall. The gayly painted red and yellow train was idle as the Savidges planned for next year's bigger and better show.

Mrs. Savidge, who did the office work and occasional work on the midway, played the piano for the winter acts, as they trouped about doing vaudeville acts in the opera houses. In the spring it was off to the towns to start again.

"Is the train coming, is the train coming?" was the common phrase while the tiny group waited at the depots. At night, it was off to the dreary, cold hotels. "It was miserable", said Mrs. Savidge. Although Savidge did no acting, he was constantly busy both in the winter and the summer. In April they met back in Wayne.

All 125 members and 20 concession stands, numerous tents and huge equipment all seemed to fit in the 20 cars. Life was enjoyable in the train. "There, were mahogany berths surrounded by long, beveled glass mirrors and silver basins in which hot and cold running water was caught."

Many of the summer's funny occurrences made the job interesting. One day an Indian chief came to see the show. As he was leaving he said to Savidge "Me bring whole family". "Sure", said the boss who quickly dismissed the thought until the chief arrived with all 200 members of his tribe.

The worst catastrophe occurred in Neligh, when the tent was demolished along with the bally-hoo as a result of high winds and rain. Mrs. Savidge rounded up 20 women attending the play at the time and gave them dry clothes in the train. It was a miracle that no one was seriously hurt, and the show soon bounced back again.

A Mr. and Mrs. Henderson worked for the company for a long time, and so did their son, famed Lyle Talbot, who went on to Hollywood after several seasons with the Savidge Amusement Company. Dick Elliot, a comedian who is well known, had his beginnings with the company too. Even Walter Savidge, Jr. who is now an Omaha realtor and grandfather, started in show business at the early age of three weeks.

When the company began to feel the effects of radio and the movies, the people lost interest in the dramatic productions. The red and yellow train stood idle on the track for a few seasons as it was sold bit by bit. Savidge, a wise and prosperous business man, sold the train and brought the amusement rides around the territory by truck. Finally, the still good size show was sold to Art Thomas as one of his three traveling units.

Mr. and Mrs. Savidge retired in 1941 after 35 years of operating a profitable organization. Savidge was stricken with Parkinson's disease and was unsuccessfully treated time and time again until his death in 1949.

Mrs. Walter Savidge lives in Wayne and is chipper and bright. She remembers the most interesting chapters of the company's life and has saved pictures and write-ups concerning it. Did she enjoy the work? No, not really. It was hectic and they were always on the go, but she says it was interesting. It was her husband's life, and though she never actually despised the whole thing she would never do it all again.

Every year visitors come to the Savidge home to gather information for write-ups on the company. Some people stop by who are writing books on the topic, others just for lengthy articles. It is amazing the number of people that stop for information so long after the show has been gone.

This was one era of Wayne's glorious past. It sent the town boys running down to the grounds to help put up the tents and possibly catch a glimpse of Baby May, or even get a free pass to the show. The Walter T. Savidge Amusement Company, with its gayly painted red and yellow train is long gone, but never forgotten.

THE SAVIDGE PLAYERS of Wayne were pictured in panoramic shot taken years ago. An article in the Omaha World-Herald included this picture. The story told about how clean the outfit was and what a family-type production was promised every place Savidge appeared. This picture was reduced to 60 per cent of its original size for use in The Herald. If it had been used full size, it would have stretched across two full pages seven inches deep. There is no identification of individuals with the picture and there is nothing to indicate what town this picture was taken in.

OLD CARS were parked all around for the performances of the Walter Savidge Players. An American Legion Hall can be seen in the left background. If the license plates were clearer, it might be possible to tell what county was involved.

MIDWAY CROWDS of another era thronged to the Walter Savidge Shows. It's hard to believe people dressed like this all the time, but this was no special "centennial" year or anything else. It's just the way people dressed. No identification is given as to what town this picture was taken in.

DRAG DAY was held regularly in Allen years ago. The farmers would drive their teams to town, dragging roads as they came. When they arrived in Allen, they would drag the streets. It was a big occasion, complete with band. The Cash Store and the farm implement building burned years ago and were replaced. The bank building on the left is now Ellis Electric and the corner of Anderson. Drug can be seen on the right. Mrs. Armond Ellis, found an old glass negative and had this print made from it.

FOURTH OF JULY boosters were ready to leave Allen years ago. This is a picture made from a glass negative owned by Mrs. Armond Ellis. Note the gas street light Oldtimers say the light was lowered, the flame lit and then the light was pulled back into position in the middle of the intersection. The many crossbars on the telephone pole were typical of the day. The brick building on the right is now Security State Bank. A sign on the next building indicates it was a millinery shop.

Laurel Beaten in Two Boys' Games

Wayne Midgets and Juniors handed Laurel a pair of defeats Friday night on the Laurel diamond. The two local teams play Monday at Wisner, Wednesday at Schuyler and Friday Pender comes here.

In the Midget tilt Friday, Wayne Magdanz gave up only two hits in hurling the win for Wayne, striking out seven in the five-inning affair. T. Erwin yielded six hits and struck out three on the mound for Laurel.

Wayne hits were singles two by Steve Mrsny and one each by Randy Helgren, Magdanz, Joed Hoogner and Dennis Redell. D. Stanley hit a triple and W. Hanson a single for Laurel.

Laurel got a superb hitting performance from catcher Hart Vollers in the Junior tilt but lost 10-3. Vollers hit a home run, a double and a single to account for three of seven Laurel hits. Jerry Schroeder had a double and Dennis Eby, Nick Calavecchia and Vernon Sarha a single apiece.

For Wayne, Larry Hix was the hitting star with a triple, a double and a single. Gordon Jorgensen had a triple, Dean Eloffson a double and Mark Johnson, Steve Kerl and Lynn Lessmann a single each for Wayne.

Eloffson hurled one and a third innings, striking out one. Delmar Wacker took over, striking out seven. Sarha hurled all except the last one and one-third frames for Laurel, fanning four. Calavecchia pitched the rest of the game, striking out two.

Homer Defeats Loop All-Stars Thursday

Homer, league leader in the Northeast Nebraska Loop the first half, defeated stars from the other league teams in a game on the

Homer diamond Thursday night. Much to the delight of the Homer fans, their favorites came through with two runs in the bottom of the ninth to win.

The stars had taken a 2-1 lead in the fifth but this was reduced to 2-1 in the seventh. Tom Sawyer came to bat, got on with an error, advanced on an error when Mori Zenor got on base and both came in when Bob Jacobsen hit a single.

Denny Bowers, Wayne, got one of the six hits for the stars. Jack Kelly had two, Bill Duggan two and Don Kelly one. Duggan had one double for the only extra-base blow.

Don Goeden hurled three innings for the stars. The Wayne ace struck out one but pitched no-hit-no-run ball during his stint.

Beef Field Day Set at Concord

"Variety" describes the beef field day to be held Tuesday, July 18, at Northeast Station, Concord. Something old, new, for

New will be the beef cuttability judging demonstration at 6 p.m.; old will be the display and report of cattle fattening tests with different roughage levels; for hogmen will be the till-up hog building under construction; for the future will be talks by Dr. Frank Baker and Dr. Walter Woods' from NU animal science department; a break will be coffee and doughnuts served by Northeast Livestock Feeders Association; and reward will be two trophies to winners in cuttability judging.

Beef cuttability judging is so new, plans are still being formed, according to Walt Tolman, area extensionist, Cuming County feeders are feeding demonstration lots of cuttability-graded cattle and will join the Cuming County agent and feeders association president in explaining and showing cuttability selection.

Bob Jergensen and Marshall Ivy, Omaha, will show and explain USDA live cuttability grades using experimental cattle. One lot of these cattle will be graded for cuttability in a contest open to all.

Placings will be made from carcasses in the packing plant cooler by federal graders. Trophies will go to the top two judges. Dr. Baker will discuss how cuttability selection may improve beef quality and consumer demand.

The best use of roughage, hay, silage or pasture, features the current fattening tests. One is with heifers fattened on three different levels of alfalfa hay; a steer test is on two levels of alfalfa haylage; a pasture test compares a lot of cattle on full feed, or corn grazing on brome pasture with some not receiving grain on pasture until summer. Dr. Woods will report on other tests on roughage use.

The new hog buildings will be shown. A hog manure disposal lagoon is complete, and Bob Fritschen, who heads the swine department, will explain experiments on swine management and housing to be conducted at Concord. With a 6 o'clock start, the field day will offer daylight to see cattle and buildings. A coffee break will be held prior to the speaking program in the Haskell Building.

Winside Boosters on Caravan Thursday

Winside Old Settlers boosters will "hit the road" Thursday, July 13. They will be boosting the reunion which will be held a week later, July 20.

This year's reunion will be the 47th annual celebration. With Nebraska celebrating its centennial, the sponsoring groups have gone out of their way to provide a bigger and better show.

Plans call for the boosters to leave Winside at 10 a.m. Thursday. Units will start forming at 9:30 so the cars can leave promptly at 10.

At Babe, Wayne, will have a public address system. Young people from Winside and Wayne in the Wayne Summer band program will form a combo to provide music.

The route calls for visits to Hoskins, Norfolk, Pierce, Randolph, Belden, Carroll, Wayne, Wisner,

Theresa Stenwall Gets Scholarship

Another full scholarship to the Wayne State College music camp has been awarded by the Winside Federated Woman's Club. It will go to Theresa Stenwall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stenwall, Winside.

Miss Stenwall has been one of the most active pupils in school in the music department during her four years at WIS. In addition to work in school units, she has represented FWC on various occasions.

She had solo roles in many of the school programs and productions. She sang in mixed chorus, girls' glee club, girls' ensemble and girls' sextet.

Activities outside the music field include the Pop Club, one-act play (in which she received the drama award), district speech contest, junior class play and music times two years.

Pilger and Stanton. Short programs will be given in each of these communities.

The committee is asking for more volunteers to go on the all-day outing. Women are asked to wear centennial or authentic old-time dresses. Men should dress in old-fashioned clothes if possible.

Winside's celebration will include these features this year: Jim Henry, the TV "Canyon Kid"; Chor-

WSC Tuition Hike Receives Approval

The Nebraska State Normal Board approved a tuition hike at Wayne, Kearney, Chadron and Peru state colleges Friday. Increases take effect this fall.

Nebraska residents will pay $330 a year, an increase of $80. Out-of-state residents will pay $610 a year, an increase of $210.

Officials representing the state schools said they felt the increase would cut enrollment at the colleges. One of the big factors favoring education at the four schools has been the comparatively low cost of tuition in comparison with similar schools in other states.

The normal board approved application for $1.7 million for science and library facilities at Chadron, Kearney and Wayne. It received word that Kearney expects to become a state university within two years.

Girl Scouts Holding Camp, Other Activities

Wayne Girl Scouts are holding camps and other activities this month. The day camp dates were changed because of the wet weather in June, usual month for holding camp.

Mrs. George Dahl is in charge of day camp for Brownies only. It will be held July 24-28 inclusive from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. for all Brownie Scouts of the Wayne area. Site will be the Girl Scout cabin.

Mrs. Max Lundstrom is in charge of the juniors for a camp out two nights, July 18-19 with camp breaking up July 20. Troops 257 and 191 will take part in what amounts to a "two-night slumber party" at the Girl Scout cabin.

Girls will work on troop camper badges. Further details on plans will be announced next week.

Need Moisture in Area

Would you believe moisture is needed in this area? Farmers say a good rain would be most welcome.

The overabundance of rain in June has left Wayne county with good soil moisture. However, for the good of the growing crops, rain needs to fall.

Farmers are cultivating corn and beans and putting up hay in the region. They find the weeds are cleaning up good in the fields considering how bad they were following all of the rain.

It has not been overly hot. Farmers hesitate to say they need scorches, but they admit temperatures in the 80's would be a lot more welcome for the crops than the temperatures in the 60's.

As for those cool, comfortable nights, they're great for sleeping but not much help with the corn.

What is needed is a string of hot nights to boost the corn plants.

Where the moisture soaked in so much in June, the ground is now pretty hard. Farmers just have to keep working it anyway.

First cutting of alfalfa was skipped because of the wet conditions in the fields.

That's Service!

The article concerning weather conditions was written Friday evening. It pointed out a need for rain. Early Saturday morning rain came in the form of showers. More such weather was forecast. As of 8 a.m. the area had received .14 of an inch of rain, according to government gauges at the Ralph Watson farm north of Wayne.

Now it is time for the second cutting so the first and second are being combined.

Several stacking crews have been seen in the area. One spotted Thursday was that of Walter, Merlin and Harlin Brugger, Winside. They were cutting hay on the Jim Hansen farm 5 1/2 miles west of Wayne.

The Bruggers were working on a stack about 27 feet high. They said it was one of over half dozen put up in the area by them the past week, 27 feet being about the height they can go with present equipment.

Farmers have worked Sundays, holidays, early and late to get their field work done. They have not caught up with all the work they lost out in June but they have come along faster than they thought possible at the time.

Grafting Three Years Late

June 19, 1964, Gary Munson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Munson, Wayne, was struck by lightning. July 10, 1967, he is to get started on skin grafting.

Gary was one of a group of Boy Scouts struck by lightning three years ago. He has been able to lead a fairly normal life since then although scar tissue covers one arm and with no natural oils on this arm he has problems.

He also has holes in his side where he was burned. One jolt went through his chest and came out his back, leaving a mark that will be with him for life. He was also burned on his other arm.

The local youth received new hope when a representative of the state rehabilitation department called on him after

Gary had tried to enlist in the armed forces and was turned down. The rehab man said his department exists to help out in situations such as this.

Dr. Albert Black, skin and plastic surgery specialist in Omaha, was contacted to perform surgery. He agreed to perform an operation Monday which will take eight hours. Gary will then face about ten days of recuperating at Clarkson Memorial Hospital, where he will be glad to hear from friends via cards and letters.

Dr. Black has suggested that the worst burns be taken care of first. Skin will be taken off the sides of Munson's body and grafted on his left arm to take the place of the scar tissue.

Doctors looking at the arm were amazed. They said they had never treated a living person who had been struck by lightning. Always before, lightning has meant death. They convinced young Munson he was most fortunate to be alive.

Gary graduated in 1966 from Wayne High School and has been attending Wayne State College. He is also employed at the state college as a part of the rehabilitation department's program.

His father is employed at the Gamble Store, the Crossroads, or Tempco, Tried and True, at the county fair Friday, Aug. 11, at 8.

Cast members of the mystery are Aaron Butler as James Gordon, sr.; Mrs. Catherine Roeber as Mrs. Gordon; Kenneth Magill as Jimmie Gordon; Al Ehlers as the caretaker; Carl Mason as his daughter; Dee Jorgensen as a friend of the Gordons; Pam Holm as a chore boy; Linda Dickmeyer as a detective; LaMae Gettman as a female Sherlock Holmes, and rival of Linda; Mrs. Keith Reed as the cook; and Lori Wolters as the cook's daughter.

All proceeds from the two-night production will go to charity. Advance tickets may be obtained from Mrs. N. B. Brugger, Mrs. Clarence Sorensen, Mrs. Lyle Gamble, Goldie Leonard and Mrs. Tillie Harms.

The old-fashioned melodrama directed by Dave Robinson assisted by Wes Wingett will have the classic story featuring the villain, the hero, the heroine, the idiot and sundry characters that speak asides to the audience and draw cheers and jeers.

GARY MUNSON, left, and Rocci Marr posed with the burned sleeping bag in which Munson was sleeping when struck by lightning in 1965. The accompanying photograph of Munson was taken for his senior year, 1966. Marr put out the fire in the sleeping bag, burning his hand in doing so. He is credited with saving Munson's life.

Casts for Plays Revealed

Casts for two plays to be presented in Wayne have been selected. One play is to be given this month and the other in August.

H.M.M. Public Productions will give a mystery play, "Cat o' Nine Tails." It will be given Thursday, July 27, at 8:15 and Friday, July 28, at 8.

Wayne Players will present an old-time melodrama, "Dirty Work at the Crossroads, or Tempco, Tried and True," at the county fair Friday, Aug. 11, at 8.

Cast members of the mystery are Aaron Butler as James Gordon, sr.; Mrs. Catherine Roeber as Mrs. Gordon; Kenneth Magill as Jimmie Gordon; Al Ehlers as the caretaker; Carl Mason as his daughter; Dee Jorgensen as a friend of the Gordons; Pam Holm as a chore boy; Linda Dickmeyer as a detective; LaMae Gettman as a female Sherlock Holmes, and rival of Linda; Mrs. Keith Reed as the cook; and Lori Wolters as the cook's daughter.

Mrs. Barner New Clerk at Winside

Mrs. Darrell Barner is the new village clerk at Winside. She took over duties from Mrs. Paul Zoffka July 1. Mrs. Zoffka having served as clerk the past few months.

With the hiring of a full-time clerk, Winside will be able to offer more hours. Mrs. Barner plans to have the office open five days a week 9-12 and 1-4. The business days are Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Barner has done similar work before. She worked with the Rural Electrical Administration, Creighton, 3 1/2 years. Creighton is her hometown.

The Barners have been living in Sioux City. They have moved to Winside where he is serving as an apprentice barber in the shop of Ed Schanell.

The Spook Speaks

A Wayne man in an Omaha cafeteria witnessed this scene. A man and woman stood in line ahead of him. The woman remarked: "I don't know why we came here. I'm not a bit hungry." She proceeded to select a big slab of halibut french fries, a large salad, rhubarb pie, cornbread and drink. The local resident is dying to follow her in line the day she is a bit hungry.

In a Wayne cafe this centennial "special" was offered recently with little comment from those looking at menus on which it was typed: "Antique Special, Barbecue, $1.50—plus 5 cents tax—Total $2.25."

Traveling to a boys' baseball game, the Wayne residents decided to park their nice car a bit farther away from the diamond than they intended at first. So they moved it way back instead of leaving it up near the stands. The first foul ball hit landed right on the car in its new "out of range" location.

Centennial Parade Plan Set

What could be the biggest parade in Wayne County history is being planned Aug. 16 in conjunction with the county fair. The plan for the Centennial Day parade is almost complete.

Walter Sharer is in charge under joint Chamber of Commerce, Fair Board and Jaycee sponsorship. He reports the response from this area and other encouraging, although merchants and organizations are urged to plan more floats.

Plaques in the shape of Nebraska's outline will be presented to every entry in this big parade. Kurt Otto of Otto Construction has cut out the plaques from native walnut supplied by George Claycomb; Wayne Tietgen of Wayne's Body Shop has shelled the plaques; and Dale Gutshall of Dale's Jewelry has engraved the plates.

The plaques read, "Centennial Parade, 1867-1967, Wayne." They also include a gold star indicating Wayne's location in the state.

Each saddle club, float sponsor, band, buggy sponsor or other entrant in the big parade will receive one of these plaques. A free meal will be served at noon for all those in the parade.

At Babe has been helping in many ways with parade plans. He is also working on the fair itself, which will be held Aug. 10-11-12.

A kiddie parade is a separate event. Name of the sponsoring club or organization will be revealed at a later date.

WALNUT PLAQUES will be given each entry in the main parade in Wayne Aug. 11. Kurt Otto, who made the plaques in the shape of Nebraska, is shown with one. Brass plates are off the front of each.

EIGHTH GRADE GRADUATES from Wayne County posed for this picture on the steps of the Wayne Baptist Church in 1920. Each of the students had to pass a written examination in order to receive a diploma since Wayne's City School was the only one accredited by the State Department at that time. All of the students are from schools located out of Wayne.

Hobby of Bill Ihm Popular at Lincoln

Bill Ihm, husband of the former Judy Jones, Wayne, is making muzzle-loading rifles at his home in Davey near Lincoln. The Lincoln Sun reports they are popular in that area.

Ihm is an associate fisheries biologist with the Nebraska Game Commission and formerly taught in Wayne. His wife, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jones, Wayne, attends the University of Nebraska.

According to the Sun, Ihm's specialty is hand-carved copies of the early American Pennsylvania-Kentucky flintlock rifle, famous for its part in the battle of New Orleans. There are few originals around and they are expensive so Ihm's copies are popular.

Ihm says the muzzle-loaders can compete with modern firearms in accuracy. The accuracy is limited to 25 yards and with open sights can hit a three-inch target at 125 yards.

He enjoys making the hand-carved stocks and putting in breechlock modifications. He uses various woods but highly polished wavy or tiger tail maple are the most popular because this type is hard and beautiful.

Mountings are cast from sterling silver or brass to fit Ihm's specifications. He spends about six weeks completing each gun. To fire the gun, Ihm measures the exact amount of powder, pours it down the barrel, tamps it solidly, wraps a ball in a patch, tamps that down and then primes the flintlock. The flint strikes the metallock, the spark ignites the priming powder and an explosion sets off the powder, driving the ball from the rifle.

Pioneers used scraps of linen for the batches. Ihm has experimented with various materials, finding the type of patch can affect the accuracy of the shot.

Ihm uses a set of chisels that belonged to his grandfather. They are over 100 years old.

Two Mishaps During Week Cause Damage

Two accidents were investigated by the Wayne

Police Department Wednesday, July 5. Neither of the accidents caused injury, and property damage was minor.

At 2:05 p.m. a car being backed out of a parking stall by George Sherry, Wayne, struck a car driven by Lawrence Williamson, Columbus. The accident occurred in the 100 block of East Second Street according to investigating Officer Vern Fairchild. The Sherry auto received $64 damages while the damage estimate on the Williamson car was $25.

The same day at 3:30 p.m. a driverless car owned by Merle Steler, Wayne, slipped out of gear, rolled out of the driveway in which it was parked, rolled down a hill and hit a house belonging to Harold Sorenson. A damage estimate has not been made according to E. L. Hailey, investigating officer.

Savidge Amusement Called Wayne Home Years Goneby

(By Tom K. McDermott)
Many Wayne citizens still remember the Walter Savidge Amusement Company of Wayne. No doubt the residents of many Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Wyoming and Kansas towns will also remember the company's route.

Walter T. Savidge (1886-1949) was born in Deloit, Nebr., and moved to Humphrey later on. As a boy, he was thrilled at the sight of tight rope walkers and different aerialists. This prompted him to try to walk the rope from his father's barn to a shed, and later from the top of a windmill to the ground, using an umbrella as a parachute, all of which resulted in bumps and bruises.

As was often the story, young Walter, at age 16, ran away from home to perform his stunts at fairs and picnics.

His first visit to Wayne was upon request of the members of the county fair board of which Frank M. Griffith belonged. While performing breathtaking feats Griffith's young daughter, Mabel, witnessed below with the frightened audience. After the performance, Walter met Miss Griffith and was both charmed and delighted with her gracious personality.

Walter Savidge left Wayne and continued to perform in many areas, but he carried the memory of Mabel Griffith with him. He formed a dramatic company with his brother, Arthur, whose stage name was Elwin Strong. After a few years, disagreements arose concerning money management, and Walter left with $500 to form the Savidge Amusement Company. He was booked at Wayne where he met Miss Griffith again, and they agreed to get married.

From that time the show grew and grew until it was well-known in the midwest and boasted of being the cleanest show in America, a title that was well-deserved. Savidge didn't allow smoking, gambling, profanity or messiness to exist or unmarried persons to join. Failure to obey meant a fine or instant dismissal.

So unique were these ideals and features, which were enforced greatly, that the Omaha World Herald said, in a full page write-up: "The crew is not made of crude fellows who 'flop' in strange places, no indeed. Savidge and his company are welcomed with open arms each year in towns that he has played before."

One of many articles concerning the company's recent performances went like this as the Bonesteel, S.D., Enterprise stated in big letters: "Walter Savidge Amusement Company, clean and worthy, drawing large crowds." Due to the unusually high standards of the company it quickly received the name of "The Sunday School Carnival". The Savidge Amusement Co. was not a small organization and business venture. It employed 125 people and owned its own 20 car train which cost over $65,000, all of which transacting was primarily done during the depression.

The company consisted of a specially-made tent that seated 1,600 people and served as the theater for the popular New York and Chicago dramatic productions. The production required eight men to operate the stage and about 15 performers plus numerous vaudeville acts between scenes.

They produced notable plays such as "Three Wise Fools", "Abie's Irish Rose", "Mother's Millions" and the very popular "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" in which Elwin Strong played the part of Dr. Jekyll in a thrilling manner. The actors were all professionals, never amateurs. The company owned its own light plant and maintained a 14-man orchestra.

Outside of the tent were the side shows and rides,

all termed as "ballyhoo". The Savidges owned an Ely wheel, or a Ferris wheel, merry-go-rounds, revolving swings and many exciting and expensive rides that were new to the public. Such oddities were the famed "Baby May", said to be the smallest fat lady as she tipped the scales at 480 pounds. Then there were the Madagascar pygmies, the armless Owens, a chap who ate with his feet, and the George Thompson family in which Mr. Thompson was the smallest at thirty-two inches.

There were many cages of wild animals. They had Ma-Ho, the man ape, trick horses, Siamese twins, snake charmers and many of the most unnatural persons and animals that Mother Nature had seemingly left untouched. Mrs. Savidge claims they were not fakes, and were actually pleasant people. It did not bother them to be on display as they felt it was their living, and they made good money.

In the winter, the show had its headquarters in Wayne. The actors left for different parts of the country and returned in the spring to rehearse in the city hall. The gayly painted red and yellow train was idle as the Savidges planned for next year's bigger and better show.

Mrs. Savidge, who did the office work and occasional work on the midway, played the piano for the winter acts, as they tramped about doing vaudeville acts in the opera houses. In the spring it was off to the towns to start again.

"Is the train coming, is the train coming?" was the common phrase while the tiny group waited at the depots. At night, it was off to the dreary, cold hotels. "It was miserable", said Mrs. Savidge. Although Savidge did no acting, he was constantly busy both in the winter and the summer. In April they met back in Wayne.

All 125 members and 20 concession stands, numerous tents and huge equipment all seemed to fit in the 20 cars. Life was enjoyable in the train. "There were mahogany berths surrounded by long, beveled glass mirrors and silver basins in which hot and cold running water was caught."

Many of the summer's funny occurrences made the job interesting. One day an Indian chief came to see the show. As he was leaving he said to Savidge "Me bring whole family". "Sure", said the boss who quickly dismissed the thought until the chief arrived with all 200 members of his tribe.

The worst catastrophe occurred in Neligh, when the tent was demolished along with the bally-hoo as a result of high winds and rain. Mrs. Savidge rounded up 20 women attending the play at the time and gave them dry clothes in the train. It was a miracle that no one was seriously hurt, and the show soon bounced back again.

A Mr. and Mrs. Henderson worked for the company for a long time, and so did their son, famed Lyle Talbot, who went on to Hollywood after several seasons with the Savidge Amusement Company. Dick Elliot, a comedian who is well known, had his beginnings with the company too. Even Walter Savidge, Jr. who is now an Omaha realtor and grandfather, started in show business at the early age of three weeks.

When the company began to feel the effects of radio and the movies, the people lost interest in the dramatic productions. The red and yellow train stood idle on the track for a few seasons as it was sold bit by bit. Savidge, a wise and prosperous business man, sold the train and brought the amusement rides around the territory by truck. Finally, the still good size show was sold to Art Thomas as one of his three traveling units.

Mr. and Mrs. Savidge retired in 1941 after 35 years of operating a profitable organization. Savidge was stricken with Parkinson's disease and was unsuccessfully treated time and time again until his death in 1949.

Mrs. Walter Savidge lives in Wayne and is chipper and bright. She remembers the most interesting chapters of the company's life and has saved pictures and write-ups concerning it. Did she enjoy the work? No, not really. It was hectic and they were always on the go, but she says it was interesting. It was her husband's life, and though she never actually despised the whole thing she would never do it all again.

Every year visitors come to the Savidge home to gather information for write-ups on the company. Some people stop by who are writing books on the topic, others just for lengthy articles. It is amazing the number of people that stop for information so long after the show has been gone.

This was one era of Wayne's glorious past. It sent the town boys running down to the grounds to help put up the tents and possibly catch a glimpse of Baby May, or even get a free pass to the show. The Walter T. Savidge Amusement Company, with its gayly painted red and yellow train is long gone, but never forgotten.

THE SAVIDGE PLAYERS of Wayne were pictured in panoramic shot taken years ago. An article in the Omaha World-Herald included this picture. The story told about how clean the outfit was and what a family-type production was promised every place Savidge appeared. This picture was reduced to 60 per cent of its original size for use in The Herald. If it had been used full size, it would have stretched across two full pages seven inches deep. There is no identification of individuals with the picture and there is nothing to indicate what town this picture was taken in.

OLD CARS were parked all around for the performances of the Walter Savidge Players. An American Legion Hall can be seen in the left background. If the license plates were clearer, it might be possible to tell what county was involved.

MIDWAY CROWDS of another era thronged to the Walter Savidge Shows. It's hard to believe people dressed like this all the time, but this was no special "centennial" year or anything else. It's just the way people dressed. No identification is given as to what town this picture was taken in.

DRAG DAY was held regularly in Allen years ago. The farmers would drive their teams to town dragging roads as they came. When they arrived in Allen, they would drag the streets. It was a big occasion, complete with band. The Cash Store and the farm implement building burned years ago and were replaced. The bank building on the left is now Ellis Electric and the corner of Anderson's Drug can be seen on the right. Mrs. Armond Ellis found an old glass negative and had this print made from it.

FOURTH OF JULY boosters were ready to leave Allen years ago. This is a picture made from a glass negative owned by Mrs. Armond Ellis. Note the gas street light. Oldtimers say the light was lowered, the flame lit and then the light was pulled back into position in the middle of the intersection. The many crossbars on the telephone pole were typical of the day. The brick building on the right is now Security State Bank. A sign on the next building indicates it was a millinery shop.

Laurel got a superb hitting performance from catcher Hart Vollers in the Junior tilt but lost 10-5. Vollers hit a home run, a double and a single to account for three of seven Laurel hits. Jerry Schroeder had a double and Dennis Eby, Nick Calcavecchia and Vernon Sarha a single apiece.

For Wayne, Larry Hix was the hitting star with a triple, a double and a single. Gordon Jorgensen had a triple, Dean Eloffson a double and Mark Johnson, Steve Kerl and Lynn Lessmann a single each for Wayne.

Homer Defeats Loop All-Stars Thursday

Homer, league leader in the Northeast Nebraska Loop the first half, defeated stars from the other league teams in a game on the

Homer diamond Thursday night. Much to the delight of the Homer fans, their favorites came through with two runs in the bottom of the ninth to win.

The stars had taken a 2-1 lead in the fifth but this was reduced to 2-1 in the seventh. Tom Sawyer came to bat, got on with an error, advanced on an error when Mort Zenor got on base and both came in when Bob Jacobsen hit a single.

Denny Bowers, Wayne, got one of the six hits for the stars. Jack Kelly had two, Bill Duggan two and Don Kelly one. Duggan had one double for the only extra-base blow.

New will be the beef cuttability judging demonstration at 6 p.m.; old will be the display and report of cattle fattening tests with different roughage levels; for hogmen will be the tilt-up hog building under construction; for the future will be talks by Dr. Frank Baker and Dr. Walter Woods from NU animal science department; a break will be coffee and doughnuts served by Northeast Livestock Feeders Association; and reward will be two trophies to winners in cuttability judging.

Beef cuttability judging is so new, plans are still being formed, according to Walt Tolman, area extensionist. Cuming County feeders are feeding demonstration lots of cuttability-graded cattle and will join the Cuming County agent and feeders association president in explaining and showing cuttability selection.

Bob Jergensen and Marshall Ivy, Omaha, will show and explain USDA live cuttability grades using experimental cattle. One lot of these cattle will be graded for cuttability in a contest open to all.

Placings will be made from carcasses in the packing plant cooler by federal graders. Trophies will go to the top two judges. Dr. Baker will discuss how cuttability selection may improve beef quality and consumer demand.

The best use of roughage, hay, silage or pasture, features the current fattening tests. One is with heifers fattened on three different levels of alfalfa hay; a steer test is on two levels of alfalfa haylage; a pasture test compares a lot of cattle on full feed or corn grazing on bromegrass pasture with some not receiving grain on pasture until summer. Dr. Woods will report on other tests on roughage use.

The new hog buildings will be shown. A hog manure disposal lagoon is complete, and Bob Fritsch, who heads the swine department, will explain experiments on swine management and housing to be conducted at Concord. With a 6 o'clock start, the field day will offer daylight to see cattle and buildings. A coffee break will be held prior to the speaking program in the Haskell Building.

LT. DONALD HUBBARD, Allen, won't have to live in quarters such as this now. He's back from Vietnam, and is to be based in the United States.

Allen Marine Officer Says Troops Justified for Vietnam Activities

First Lt. Donald Hubbard, Allen, is home from Vietnam after 13 months of service in several areas of that country. He says he wishes those who protest our armed forces serving there could spend a week or so in that country as they would learn that the United States is justified in its military action there.

Looking younger than his 25 years would indicate, Lt. Hubbard shows maturity beyond his years. Having served in combat as a forward observer and a liaison officer 11 months and then as an executive officer for an invading marine division, he knows many aspects of the Vietnamese situation.

His personal feelings are along the line that if the US does not stop the communists in Vietnam, we will have to try to stop them elsewhere. All Southeastern Asia is in the same uneasy situation, he said, and the communists have to be stopped from taking over everywhere.

Lt. Hubbard said he had fought against two types of fighters, in the north and the south. He compared the fighting here to that of films of World War II. He has seen. The troops are well-equipped (Chinese and Russian equipment), well-trained and use basic infantry tactics with skill.

In the south, where he landed with marines he helped train on Okinawa, he found the people had not seen white men in 25 years. The foe was made up of local Viet Cong members who fight a guerilla-type war with ambushes and surprise tactics. Fighting in that area bears little resemblance to the fighting "up north."

Stationed near the DMZ as he was, the marine officer had little time off base so had few contacts with the Vietnamese people. "You just don't wander around off base in the forward areas," he said.

Vietnamese officers did work with his unit. The Allen native found them way above average in intelligence and displaying an uncanny understanding of the Americans and what they are trying to do. He said, "I wish I had the knowledge and understanding of the Vietnamese they do of the Americans."

On the other hand, he showed pity for the people of Vietnam who have known war for so long. They are caught in a vise of pressure from two sides. Some will help Americans but others will not, fearful of reprisals from the other side. Some civilians know areas that are mined but hesitate to tell where they are.

In the field the marines are eating C rations, Lt. Hubbard said. "How do you alter C rations to have something different to eat?" he asked. "On the other hand, back further they have hot chow and the food is quite good."

Lt. Hubbard was given one rest and recuperation leave of six days. He had the choice of going to Hawaii, Hong Kong, Japan, Thailand, Taipei or Singapore. He chose Hawaii. He found a different world where it was hard to believe a war was even going on. "It was just nice to get away," he remarked.

While in Vietnam he tried to visualize what life in Allen and the rest of the US was like. Now that he's home, he tries to visualize what is going on in Vietnam where he has many buddies, most of whom he is completely out of touch with.

"You don't get much news here," he revealed. The news items are brief and do not begin to tell the story. They can't show what the boys are going through and they miss the personal touch.

He knows what it is to lose buddies. Several of his best friends were killed in Vietnam during the last few months. He remembers scanning casualty lists and finding someone listed he had known as a living friend a short time earlier. "You just never quite get used to it," he said.

Lt. Hubbard was recommended for the bronze star while serving in Vietnam. The recommendation is based on his action while out with an infantry unit firing counter mortar fire. Now that he is home he will have about 10 months left in the marines and expects to be an instructor. He will go to Camp Pendleton, Calif. July 13 but has no definite assignment yet.

He is the fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Hubbard, Allen, to serve in the armed forces. He graduated from Allen High School in 1960 after participating in all sports and taking part in other activities. He attended the University of Nebraska and received a degree in pharmacy in 1965.

His wife is from Hampton. They have one daughter, Lt. and Mrs. Hubbard remember the hectic period during 1965. He graduated at NU one Saturday, a week later they were married; one week after that he reported to Quantico, Va., to start training. In between graduation, marriage and marine base he managed to take his state pharmacy board exams.

It was good preparation for all the activity he laid ahead but he's sure he'd want to go through either hectic period again. He graduated to marriage to marines to pharmacy board for one, and life in Vietnam for the other.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

It is the duty of an editorial writer to search all available facts before he sits down to write. From this basis the writer should be able to give a clear picture of important topics.

Give the Catcher a Hand

It was in the Schuyler-Wayne baseball game. The Wayne pitcher had gone most of the game doing an excellent job but was "in trouble" in the late innings.

Finally, the manager had no choice but to change pitchers. The crowd gave the Wayne hurler a round of applause as he walked off the field.

This, so far, is pretty typical. What happened next, unfortunately, is not so typical.

The Schuyler catcher came over to the Wayne bench and shook hands with the Wayne pitcher. He told him he had done a good job. People from Wayne sitting in the bleachers observed what happened and applauded again, this time for the Schuyler catcher for his sportsmanship.

At the time, Schuyler was trailing and was threatening; it would have been easier for the catcher to taunt the pitcher because he had to be replaced. Instead, he showed a maturity beyond his years

You may not agree with an editorial—but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

and in an act of appreciation for a job well-done, he walked to the opposing bench to shake hands with an opponent.

It should be more a part of the game. The fact that it was such a rare action as to merit this editorial points out the unfortunate aspect.

To the credit of Manager Hank Overin, it should be pointed out that he sends his boys to the opposing bench to shake hands after every game, win or lose. It has been fairly easy to do because Wayne has a tradition of winning and it's always easier to be good sports when you're winning than it is when you're losing.

It is to be hoped Wayne boys will learn the lesson that Schuyler catcher has learned. To him, a game is a game, and honest effort is honest effort. A job well-done deserves praise.

His action merited applause. It also merits repeating. It should become so commonplace it no longer rates special mention.—CEG.

Places to Avoid

Recent visitors in Wayne were taken on a "grand tour" of the city. They were carefully shielded from certain detracting "scenic" sights (and "sights" is the right word).

It really shouldn't be necessary to plan a trip to avoid some areas. There are no "slums" as such but there are some eyesores that are allowed to exist.

Apparently there is no law to keep people from piling in more junk once a junk area has been started. For those people living in mobile homes the view to the north in one section must be particularly disturbing, however.

Vacant lots exist and the owners cannot be expected to build on them just to remove them from the category of vacant. However, the lots need not be allowed to grow up in weeds. Chances are, a good mowing might even improve their value enough so someone might consider buying one or more.

Wayne State has a nice campus but how do you avoid that "alley" that is used as a street? Is it jointly owned by the city and college? It has been particularly bad in wet weather. Try to avoid it and you miss some of the highlights of what truly is one of the Midwest's most beautiful campuses.

It's a shame there are a few places to avoid, because in general Wayne is a nice city. Drive anywhere and you can point with pride.

Some of these conditions existed several years ago. The point is: Will they exist several years from now?

The answer is one that involves individual responsibility and pride, not just municipal law.—CEG.

A New School 'Course'

It is gratifying to know the schools in Wayne are getting in a supply of five government publications to be made available to pupils this coming school year. While the pamphlets may not be used for a specific class, they could be a course in themselves if the young people will just heed the word.

The pamphlets are for grade school, middle school, high school, teacher and parental use. They are concerned with a topic that is covered at levels all can understand and are all on one subject—the effects of smoking.

One fact pointed out is that adults warn youngsters against smoking and yet the adults smoke. One pamphlet says these adults started smoking before the dangers of tobacco were fully known. Now they find it next to impossible to quit. They're hooked.

Another pamphlet is entitled: "You Can Quit Smoking." It is directed at the young who think smoking is a sign of maturity and it emphasizes the fact that while older people are hooked, the young are not and can find it easier to quit now than to try in a few years. Several ways of quitting are offered, all written in teenage language to get the point across.

There is one big pamphlet on facts for teenagers. Another is for parents and helps both the non-smoker parent and the smoking parent get the point across that it just isn't worth it to start, and if someone has already started it is easier to quit while young than in later years.

In case you would like a set of these pamphlets, they are available. They make interesting reading for all ages. They can be purchased for 65 cents for the set of five by writing: U.S. Government Printing Office, Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C. 20402. Ask for the anti-smoking kit.

Of course, maybe you just don't care. If you don't, then it's a good thing the school does care. Someone has to care enough to give their very best, but if it were given both at home and at school there would be a chance that a few could be saved from the destructive nicotine habit.

If even one is saved from health-destroying, the effort is worthwhile. It can't hurt to make the effort. The Wayne school system deserves a lot of credit for considering the effort part of its educational assignment. A little responsibility should also be assumed by the parents—you, that is.—CEG.

Poorly-Drawn Conclusion

Bill Cox, writing in the Pierce County Leader, Pierce, takes Wayne to task because one week this city turned down a bond issue for a fire station and a few weeks later announced plans for a new club house and addition of nine holes at the Wayne Country Club.

Now Editor Cox is one of the sharpest journalists in Northeast Nebraska and each week he draws some conclusions which are well thought out. There has to be a slip somewhere with the best of men, however, and this time his conclusion is poorly drawn.

The fire station issue was put to the voters, everyone of age owning property in Wayne. They made the decision by a narrow margin, rejecting a new fire hall at the present time.

On the other hand, the matter of a new club house and nine more holes on the golf course was a matter left up to members of the Wayne Country Club. Instead of several thousand voting, less than 200 voted, indicating the eligibility to vote was greatly restricted.

The fire hall would have provided for general obligation bonds to be paid off by all taxpayers. The country club expansion will be paid for by the members themselves. The general public has nothing to do with it.

Editor Cox said the situation was one of the most "difficult to understand" actions in this area. It is no more difficult to understand than if Pierce were to turn down a new fire hall to be paid for by taxes and then the members of a private organization (Elks, Moose, Masons, Knights of Columbus, etc.) were to vote to build a new lodge hall.

There is a government loan involved at the WCC. However, local public funds are not involved. The relationship between a fire hall and a clubhouse at a golf course is so distant the comparison is illogical.

On taking another look, it is possible the Pierce editor might not find the action so difficult to understand after all.—CEG.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I want to thank SWAY for the check that was sent to me. It came all right and I had very little trouble cashing it; even though I'm out in the middle of the jungle.

I am stationed in Thailand, about 150 miles north-east of Bangkok. Our unit, the 538th Engineer battalion (construction), is working on a 85 mile stretch of highway that will connect two of the major highways in Thailand.

On the day that the check arrived I was just getting ready to celebrate my promotion to Specialist E-4. Your check came in very handy, and was deeply appreciated not only by me, but by 20 other guys as well.

Again I want to thank you, not only for the check, but for what you are doing for all of the servicemen from Wayne County.

Sincerely yours, Sp-4 Francis J. Hamer, jr., US 56426269, Hq. 538th Engr. Bat. (Construction) APO San Francisco, Calif. 96233).

Tornadoes of the Past

Spring and summer months bring occasional tornadoes to Nebraska and our neighboring states. These intense and awesome storms have occurred throughout the history of the plains. The Nebraska State Historical Society library and archives contain many accounts of individual storms and their destruction.

The book The Buffalo Hunters by Mari Sandoz contains a Sioux Indian account of a tornado which struck a herd of buffalo near the "bend" of the Arkansas River. The buffalo sensed the impending storm and after restlessly milling about, they stampeded. The funnel dropped into the herd and left a long row of dead and broken animals on the prairie, some piled on the top of others. The awed Sioux did not touch the animals whose bones were finally gathered and sold by white men.

An early account of a Nebraska storm which was probably as a tornado appears in the records of Fort Atkinson. On July 3, 1825 a storm struck the post and destroyed the saw mill. It was estimated that needed repair to the mill would cost $3,000. This may have been the first of the many thousands of dollars of property damage by tornadoes in the Nebraska region.

In 1866 a tornado destroyed property in the territorial town of Brownville. On July 5, 1871 a Merrick County tornado swept across the town of Lone Tree, later known as Central City. The E. Phelps family consisting of the father and four children were swept up from the supper meal and hurled some eighty feet into the air. The body of the father was found hanging in a cottonwood tree.

The Campbell Press of May 29, 1903 told of a twister which had struck in that vicinity. A Sunday afternoon family gathering

Wayne Herald—July 11, 1907

The woman who said, "Happiness consists of a home of your own and a nice big good natured and affectionate husband," should come to Hoskins and convince our old maid of its truth. Then the old batches such as Phillips, Maas, Kaulen and Swanson would either have to get married or get out. (Hoskins Headlight).

The election board has decided to hold future elections at Altona for Plum Creek precinct. The elections have been held at District 34 known as the Chichester school house but the school board there has decided to charge $8 for use of the school for election purposes so the change was made.

The benefit and value of the Normal College to Wayne is recognized the year around but during the summer sessions it appears more apparent than at other seasons. At present there is upward of a thousand teachers in attendance at the school. They are recruited from the ranks of the sober minded and represent nearly a hundred counties and several states. The larger per cent of them are lady teachers, who have had from one to several years experience.

Winside is entitled to the banner for the biggest celebration on the Fourth. She entertained the largest, happiest crowd of gaily dressed people that ever assembled within her gates. They gathered from the four corners of the county, and in numbers it reached the 5000 mark, easily. Wayne honored her enterprising neighbor by sending over half her population, for it utilized all the vehicles in the city and two trains to take them there. The day was a sizzler, the hottest ever, and the refreshment vendors certainly did a thriving business. The Wayne band, arrayed in laundried white, had music going all the time, and it gained the boys the applause of the multitude. The street parade was several blocks long and a creditable surprise, indeed. The beautiful floats and decorated carriages were heartily cheered, while the calthumpians provoked a deal of fun. It was a dandy parade.

About fifteen or twenty of the "youths" of town witnessed the adjustment of a matter-of "personal honor" between a town and College boy sometime during Sunday evening. The encounter took place in one of the pastures to the north of the city limits, and we understand the town boy got the most satisfaction and was confined to his home for several days.

Among the numbers scheduled for the Wayne Chautauque Assembly July 24 to August 2 are: The Killies Band of Belleville, Canada; United States Senator, Hon. Ben Tillman, South Carolina; Dr. John P. D. John, ex-president of DuPauw University; Dr. D. F. Fox, Chicago, a masterpiece of eloquence; A. W. Hawks, humorist and poet; Col. H. W. J. Ham, George humorist; Hon. G. A. Gearhardt of Buffalo, N. Y., speaking on "Coming Man"; Dr. Thomas McClary, who has the humor of Artemus Ward combined with the rare oratory and learning of Wendell Phillips; Elliott Boyd, lecturer; Lucia Edgar Follansbee, humorist, educator and preacher; Frank H. Gamel, illustrated lecturer on "The American Boy—His Franks, Parls and Possibilities"; Spillman Riggs, humorist and character delineator; Prof. J. Lorenzo Swickey, art lecturer and orator; artist; Marvin Williams, man of education and culture; Ritchie, magnificent Ritz-Nebraska Combination, piano, violin and vocal music plus readings; H. H. Monroe, Moving Picture Company, a list of artists well known in the Lyceum world; Carter's Original Virginia Warblers, company of singers; Royal Male and Trombone Quartette, young men fresh from college halls; Midland Concert Company, soprano, violin, reader and accompanist; and Agnes Alexander, soloist. Adult seats tickets are $2, single admission 25 cents children, season $1, single 15 cents. Tents furnished at cost to all patrons who wish to camp. Beautiful shade, pure water, splendid grass and grounds lighted by electricity. Rent a tent and take your vacation at home. Prices of tents from $2.50 to $10 for ten days.

Early Monday morning as the train pulled in at the depot a young lady of about seventeen or eighteen summers was put off because she had no ticket. She gave the name of Forbe Brown and claimed to be from six miles south of Stuart. Miss Brown being a timid country girl who had never traveled much, boarded the train at Stuart and gave the ticket to the conductor, who was to turn it over to Adair, which he failed to do. The girl boarded the train for Emerson at Norfolk, and when Adair found she had no ticket he put her off here. The people here learned of her condition and soon raised the wherewith to purchase a ticket and the next train took her along on her journey rejoicing. (Hoskins Headlight).

At Albion Friday night, the feature from the previous Friday was run with Gene Wagner winning. Wagner also won the B Feature and Gene Brudigan won the trophy dash. Harold Brudigan's car left the track and hit a tree and Gene Brudigan's car developed engine trouble and was forced out of some competition.

Sunday night at Norfolk, Gerald Bruggeman's second place finish in the championship race was the best of any Hoskins driver. Gene Wagner finished third and Gene Brudigan fourth in the same race.

Main Street Look at Carroll Gets Change

Main Street in Carroll is to get some improvements. Two major building projects are underway or scheduled in downtown Carroll.

One moving rapidly toward completion is a new blue and white service station for Swanson Oil Co. It will take the place of a building that was put up about 47 years ago.

Harold Loberg is putting up the building just north of the old Bailey Oil Co. station formerly operated by Claude Bailey and now operated by Clair Swanson. The old building was put up by Han Thomas around 1920.

Another improvement is in the former Case Implement building. Kavanaugh Feed and Trucking will remodel the long-abandoned building to provide larger facilities.

Concord Council Having Problems

The village council at Concord is having problems. Two deal with water in one way or another.

One problem involves the water tower. It has sprung another leak, this time higher up than a previous leak. An expert was called in Friday night to meet with the council and discuss a solution.

Water is indirectly responsible for the other problem bothering the council and other residents. The water standing around has bred mosquitoes and spraying has been ordered.

Permission has been received from the state to spray for mosquitoes. The job will be done when conditions are favorable, dry weather, little breeze, etc. Kluthe Spraying Service, Elgin, will spray Concord. Women's Welfare Club will pay for the project and will accept donations to help cover the costs.
