Double military funeral services are planned for Sgt. Robert Wagner, 20, and his father, Alfred J. Wagner, 49, both of Winside.

The Army Monday notified Mrs. Wagner that her son had been killed by hostile mortar fire in Vietnam May 16. Mr. Wagner died about 2 a.m. Tuesday morning at Veterans' Hospital in Omaha.

Sergeant Wagner was a 1966 graduate of Winside High School and entered the service in October, 1966. After taking his basic training courses at Fort Carson, Colo., he spent eight months in Hawaii before leaving for Vietnam Dec. 20, 1967.

His father was a veteran of World War II and was wounded by shrapnel while serving on Okinawa in 1944. He received the Purple Heart for the wounds.

Survivors include Mrs. Wagner, three daughters, Mrs. Wendell (Sharon) Libengood, Idaho; Mrs. Richard (Janet) Schmidt, Norfolk, Linda, at home, and a son, Larry, at home.

Funeral arrangements are in charge of Willse Funeral Home. Sergeant Wagner's body will be flown from Vietnam to Oakland, Calif., then on to Omaha, where father and son will be returned together for the funeral rites.

250 Hear Gov. Tiemann Monday At Town Hall Meeting in Wayne

GOVERNOR TIEMANN interrupted his meeting in Wayne Monday night to congratulate Wayne High's Class "B" baseball champions as they paraded through the streets with the trophy they had just won. Here the governor holds the trophy to the delight of Gordie Jorgensen, Ted Armbruster and Wayne Magdanz.

The pleasure of the governor. Then, he said, the members could be removed if they did not function as the governor felt they should.

If the governor is going to have the responsibility of operating the state, he said, then he also should have the authority to remove from office those commission members who do not follow his wishes.

Several of the questions concerned Wayne State College and asked why more information was not given about investigations of the school and its administration.

In reply, he repeated his answer on the lack of power of the governor over commissions, then said, "As far as Dr. Brandenburg is concerned, I think he is a pretty good kind of administrator and if he happens to fire someone because he gets out of line—that's fine. That's his job."

Trade with Japan, providing food supplies for that country, was foreseen as being an area of high potential for Nebraska. The state's recent trade mission to Japan made some excellent contacts, James Monroe, director of the department of economic development, said. He feels that Nebraska will be supplying processed foods to Japan as soon as that country lifts some of its restrictions on food imports. Monroe pointed out that Japan is not able to raise foodstuffs to feed its own people and must look abroad for added supplies.

When asked if he would seek re-election, Tiemann said he did not know at this point. But, he pointed out, it would be poor strategy to announce at this time in either case.

If he announced now that he would run again, then everything he said and did would become "political" and if he said he would not run, then he would become a lame duck and his opponents could say he had no interest because he was not planning to run, he explained.

Right in the middle of the question-answer session the Governor was interrupted by Wayne's Class "B" state champion baseball squad standing outside the door of the auditorium and calling for Governor Tiemann.

With a big smile, Tiemann asked Moderator Don Reed to find questions for other members of the staff while he went outside. See TIEMANN, page 6

Top Vote-Getters in Delegate Race Listed; Are Not Necessarily Winners

Many voters have asked how Wayne county voted on delegates to the national conventions for both major parties. These votes have not been available before, because the counting and canvassing boards had such a long, involved and complicated count to perform.

With 22 delegates at large, 22 alternates at large, plus delegates from the first district to be selected on the Democratic ballot, and 10 delegates at large, 10 alternates and delegates from the first district on the Republican ballot, the job assumes great proportions.

Nearly 75 were seeking the delegate spot on the Democratic ballot alone, as most Democratic voters will remember. On the Republican side 42 candidates sought 10 seats as delegates.

Here are the top 22 names on the Wayne county balloting for delegates at large on the Democratic ticket, along with the number of ballots cast for each:

He also is scheduled for additional lectures the following day, according to Norman Nordstrand, Wayne State ass't. dean of instruction.

Allen has served with the State Department since 1945, mainly concerned with Inter-American affairs and the United Nations. He also served in Copenhagen, Denmark, Nordstrand met him there when he (Nordstrand) was director of the U. S. information agency in Denmark.

New Northeast Nebraska ETV Station Dedicated; Called Best in Nebraska

"Delighted to be here."

"Delighted to be here."

Such, in brief, were the comments expressed Tuesday at dedication ceremonies for the Nebraska Educational Television Network's newest station, KXNE-TV.

Members of the NET Commission declared they were pleased to attend the event, which formally recognized Northeast Nebraska' entry late last year into the television network. And several spokesmen for Northeast Nebraska declared equal pleasure over KXNE-TV, seventh in the network to go on the air—and two more stations yet to be built.

The dedication ceremony began at 11 a.m. at the transmitter site 13 miles west of Wayne on Highway 98, then moved to the Wayne State Student Center for lunch and further remarks.

J. Arthur Danielson, chairman of the NET Commission, presided at both events. He, like several other speakers, spoke with a smile about comments that KXNE is known as a Norfolk station, whereas Carroll and Wayne people wonder why it isn't the Carroll or Wayne station. Closer to them, isn't it?

Danielson explained that Nebraska authorities had no control over the designation. The Federal Communications Commission, he said, labeled it a Norfolk station.

Senator Elmer Wallace, representing the Legislature among speakers, diplomatically called Techniques used included graphite drawings, charcoal pencil drawings, charcoal drawings, pointillism, word designs, repetition designs, stylized animals, perspective drawings, op art and pen and ink drawings.

Phone Company Improvements Set for Laurel

Northwestern Bell Telephone Company will begin a service improvement project in Laurel next week, according to D. L. Titze, manager.

The work will involve replacement and addition of buried cables in various parts of Laurel and in the rural area. Over 20,000 feet of cable will be buried in town, and connections to homes to this cable will also be made by means of buried wire which will replace the aerial wire now going across the yards of telephone company customers. Most of the aerial cable and wire will be replaced.

Some changes are being made because of growth in the community. In other cases it is because of age and damage by weather and other odd things such as holes which have been chewed in the cable by squirrels. Cable will be placed in the rural area south of town for local service, and for future long distance cable connections.

Work in the town of Laurel will be followed by the placing of buried cable and wire in the farm area north of Laurel.

Completion of the work will depend upon factors such as weather, manpower and shipment date of cable. The work in town is expected to start on May 27, with the work in the rural area north of Laurel to begin in late June or early July. Service will be connected to the new cable progressively as the necessary final splicing operations can take place.

The highest score of 95.3% went to Bill Brown. Bill constructed a wind tunnel that showed the effects of wind erosion for the fair.

empire sheath of silk organza. The bodice of peau d'ange was fashioned with short scalloped sleeves and a portrait neckline. A camelot sleeveless coat, of organza with lace appliques, fastened at the shoulders and fell into a chapel sweep at the back.

Her bouffant veil of English illusion was held by a double organza bow trimmed with lilies of the valley. She carried a colonial style bouquet of white French daisies accented with var-ivy and white stephanotis.

Laurie Wolters, Wayne, served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Carol Wachholtz, Omaha, the bridegroom's sister, Sallie Bergt, Wayne, and Joyce Mares, Schuyler. They wore identically styled floor length, empire sheath gowns of yellow chiffon fashioned with lace bodices, bateau necklines, and short sleeves.

A PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION OF DEMOCRACY...

"OF THE PEOPLE"

Want Ads are of the people — They spring directly from the wants and needs of the community. Through their columns course the emotions, the hopes, the desires of the people. They are the very heart-beat of the people.

"BY THE PEOPLE"

Want Ads are, in the terms of the politician, "The People's Choice." Not only of their choice, but they are written by them. Want Ads are the people because in them are reflected their own needs and desires, expressed in their own words.

"FOR THE PEOPLE"

In the Want Ads the small individual has an equal voice — the smallest Want Ad is assured a chance to accomplish its purpose — size is unimportant. The People's needs and desires are the guiding impulse to the Want Ad success.

Tiemann

He also expressed his opposition to compulsory redistricting of schools. He said he believes they will redistrict voluntarily when the time is right.

The governor drew a laugh from the audience after Warren Fairchild was asked about a plan to divert Missouri river water to the western end of the state then south to Texas for irrigation purposes.

Fairchild pointed out that the plan would take too much water away from the river to permit barge traffic and that the planners now have determined that the river could not supply enough water for the original plan.

Tiemann then took the floor to announce, "Someone will have to do a lot of convincing before I'll vote Nebraska water to irrigate LBJ's ranch."

Nearly 250 persons attended the meeting. They were able to submit any question they wished, in written form. A screening committee of Arnold Marr, Willis Johnson and Ivan Beeks picked up the queries, held out duplicates, and passed them on to the moderator.

 Shrewd?  Safe?  Patriotic?  Exclusive?

You're right if you checked all four boxes. Freedom Shares are a shrewd investment because they pay 4.74% when held to maturity. They mature in just four-and-a-half years, and are redeemable after one year.

There is no safer investment because Freedom Shares are backed by The United States of America.

Exclusive? Absolutely. Not everyone can buy new Freedom Shares. You have to belong to the Bond-a-Month or Payroll Savings Plan. Freedom Shares are a bonus opportunity for these regular Bond buyers.

Five Haystacks Burn Friday on Noe Farm

Fire destroyed five hay stacks on the Robert Noe farm Friday evening, despite efforts of Dixon and Concord fire departments. A barn and corn crib near the burning stacks were saved, however.

Noe was grinding feed near the hay when he noticed a small blaze in one stack. While he was getting water to extinguish the blaze, it spread and was out of control by the time firemen arrived.

A night long vigil by friends and relatives was maintained in case the winds should blow sparks onto nearby buildings.

PROFIT LEADER AMONG HIGH ENERGY FINISHING PROGRAMS

Kent NRB — No Roughage Beef — is leading the march to high energy finishing. Feeders on the program report four major areas where NRB outperforms conventional (limited roughage) finishing methods.

- FASTER FINISHING
Tests show daily gains ranging from 2.5 to 4 pounds per day, with most herds near the 3 pound level or higher. This means less time needed to get cattle to market weight.
- BETTER CONVERSIONS
Feed efficiencies as low as 6 lbs. of feed for every pound of gain have been reported. The conversion rate depends on the weight of the cattle when they go on NRB, heavier cattle would have a higher figure.
- LABOR SAVINGS
Complete ration contains only grain and pelleted NRB supplement. It augers well, and is easily handled in mixer wagons. The shorter time cattle are on feed saves labor too.
- HIGH PROFITABILITY
In addition to savings made possible by a shorter feeding period, and better feed conversion, your cattle will stay healthy and grade well, helping you to more profits at market time.

Feedlot comparisons prove NRB efficiency

In a commercial feedlot, Kent NRB was compared with a leading competitor (which uses ground corncobs for roughage) in high energy feeding and the following results were obtained:

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

It is the duty of an editorial writer to search all available facts before he sits down to write. From this basis the writer should be able to give a clear picture of important topics.

You may not agree with an editorial—but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

The Turning Point

Seniors at Winsted, Allen and Wayne this week and next get the usual story. They have been—or will be—told how they have reached the threshold or turning point, how they must work and what lies behind it as compared to what lies ahead.

In an uncertain world, there is really nothing what lies ahead. It may look dark for the future and turn out bright; it may look rosy and turn out gray. The seniors today turn the corner into an unknown life, one not exactly the same as any other seniors have ever faced.

Soon they will go away. They will be exposed to all sorts of forces the folks at home never even suspected existed and hence they did not warn them of these pressures.

The seniors of today are going out in a day when the young are led to believe that what the "old folks" preach is strictly out and they should go live their own lives their own ways and to heck with what it was like in days gone by, 10, 20, 30 or more years ago.

They have seen on TV how LSD is recommended by some for all. Free love is advocated. Work for individual achievement is "out" and the communal society is "in" according to some.

What is going to surprise some parents is that they have not tried to discourage their young from thinking this way. Under the guise of freedom for all the "rights" of the individuals, they have neglected the "obligations" which are often more important than individual rights.

As a result, the daughters may wind up rejecting any further recommendations from home. The sons may feel they are finally free from parental control and suggestions so they will do as they darn well please.

Happily, the majority will go along in the accepted pattern, succeeding in life, contributing to the general good and becoming missionaries of hope in a discouraged world. They may not attract as much attention, as those who wander away from the paths worn deep by predecessors but in the long run they will be the ones who achieve, contribute and serve.

Good luck, seniors—you'll need it. You are the hope of the world in many ways, but although the world you face is not like that faced by many of us as we graduated, you will encounter some of the same problems, the same temptations and the same discouragements most of us have faced. You can overcome. You can succeed. You can excel. It may be more difficult than ever to do so, but it can be done. You have faced other obstacles—don't let a little thing like "life beyond high school" discourage you now.—CEG.

Where Do They Turn?

While city officials and policemen in the larger cities are preparing for a long, hot summer of rioting, they are also taking a dim view of the increasingly frequent sales of pistols and revolvers—most of which are going into the homes of private citizens who fear for their life and property and feel that police will be unable to cope with rioting once it breaks out.

Officials fear, and perhaps justly, that the increased number of guns in private homes will lead to more shootings and deaths.

However, no one can argue with the premise that a citizen has the right to protect himself, his family and property.

When the police are unable to do this job of protection of the private citizen, he has little choice but to do the job himself, no matter how poorly.

In many of the towns, police are conducting schools to teach little old ladies how to handle guns they have purchased in local stores. In other towns members of gun clubs and shooters' clubs are serving as instructors.

These women are serious students. As one of them expressed it recently, "If the police can't do it, I will!"

At the same time, the Senate is debating a bill to limit the sale and regulate ownership of guns. Just how the bill will eventually be written is unknown at this time, but there is little doubt that some type gun control bill will be passed this summer.

The rush to purchase guns, however, has come since it has become increasingly evident that the police in big cities are completely unable to cope with riots of any size.

Many of the rioters are rioting for fun and personal gain, not for their—or anyone else's—civil rights.

When they start to burn, loot or attack, they respect no one, especially law officers, and the private citizen has no place to turn for protection except himself.

In all this talk of riots, no one—it seems—has come up with a workable manner in which the private citizen may request, and receive, police protection. It just isn't there.

It seems a shame that the greatest, richest and most powerful nation in the world can be held by a handful of pillagers, arsonists and rioters, and the private citizen must arm himself for his own protection.—WWR.

Too Much Fried Chicken

The poor people's march on Washington—now in progress from many points of the compass—has evoked many varied responses, from contemptuous comment to the utmost sympathy.

As viewers of the television tube can attest, it is a most unusual "march" in many aspects. The people are transported from town to town by commercial buses, paid for by volunteer contributions along the line of march. At each stop a few more marchers are added to the group, so as the buses near Washington, the number of marchers becomes greater.

At each overnight stop, local volunteers provide housing and meals for the ever-increasing numbers—and no doubt serve up the very best menu they can afford.

One complaint, however, seems to be almost universal with the marchers. They are getting tired of fried chicken!

Each town wants to send the marchers on their way to Washington with fond memories of the meal they were served....so...fried chicken.

Seems ironic that people—no doubt mostly very poor people—should be overfed on what we used to consider quite a delicacy. And all this while they are trying to do something to improve the lot of the poor.—WWR.

Capital News McCook JC Wants Merger With a Two-Year School

LINCOLN—Three candidates, two of them from outside Nebraska, have applied to succeed Mel. O. Steen as State Game Commission Director June 30 when his six-year term expires.

They were identified as:

—Lloyd Vance 57, head of the commission's game division. He has served with the commission for 30 years and sought the director's job in 1956 when Steen was selected.

—Dr. Doug Gilbert, 42, presently on leave of absence from Colorado State College to teach position at New York State College of Agriculture at Grinnell. He has worked for the Colorado Fish and Game Commission and is the author of the book "Public Relations in Natural Resources Management."

—James B. (Ted) Shields, 42, chief investigator for the Fish and Wildlife Section of the Public Land Law Review Commission, which is conducted by Colorado State University. He is a former chief of the South Dakota Game Management Division and served as director of the Minnesota Conservation Department.

Meanwhile, Steen reports he would not refuse to serve another year if the commission decided to offer him an annual contract as proposed by Chairman Martin Gable of Scottsbluff.

But he said he is not promoting this idea and his present plans are to retire this summer.

For the first time, Steen indicated a preference as to his successor. He said Willard Barbee, 53, assistant director, is "better qualified than any other candidate."

Barbee, who has been associated with Steen for 28 years, said he has made no formal application for the job yet.

However, Barbee was expected to become an applicant if the commission decides to let Steen retire and hire a replacement.

Gable said he would recommend Barbee if Steen does not stay on. "But I'm still hopeful we can get Mel to remain for another year," he said. "We need him."

Steen, 71, joined the commission 12 years ago, coming here from the Missouri Game, Forestation and Parks Department.

State law requires retirement at age 68 unless the agency involved waives the provision. It would take a majority vote of the commission to retain Steen.

McCook Junior College
Officials of McCook Junior College have asked the University of Nebraska Board of Regents to consider a merger with the two-year school.

However, an attorney for the university, Warren C. Johnson of Lincoln, said there is no present legal authority for N. U. to assume control of the junior college.

Johnson said a 1965 law designed to permit the university to take over junior colleges by mutual consent is not broad enough to cover an affiliation with McCook.

McCook College President Al Kuper said a consolidation is needed to permit the junior college to grow and provide greater educational services to residents of southwest Nebraska.

"This would be of mutual benefit to the institutions," he said.

McCook College is supported principally by student tuition and local property taxes. There is also a limited amount of state financial assistance.

"Under the present tax setup it is not possible to expand the college," even though more students would like to attend, McCook School Board President John L. Batty said.

It was agreed that legal experts from both schools would draft a tentative legislative proposal for submission to the 1969 Unicameral.

Water Problems Continue
The State Water Pollution Control Council and the U.S. Interior Department remain at odds over a proposed water quality standard affecting interstate streams.

The Federal Government insists the state require secondary treatment of waste dumped into the Missouri River and other waterways.

The council contends the requirement is unrealistic and would create a hardship on small communities. It has estimated the cost of the standard would run beyond $200 million.

Failure to comply with the federal requirement could result in loss of matching money for sewage plant construction projects or a lawsuit forcing the state to adopt the regulation.

Sales Tax Receipts Grow
Nebraska's 2.5-cent sales tax yielded $6,156,382 during March, the second highest monthly total since the levy went into effect last June.

The record collection was recorded last December when Christmas shoppers boosted the total to $6,700,121.

Flatlands Should Get People
The flatlands of Nebraska, with their rich underground water supply, should be encouraged for population growth rather than the rolling valleys of Southern California where water is fast becoming scarce, a national water expert suggests.

Harvey O. Banks of San Francisco, Calif., a consultant to the states of Texas and New York on water problems, made the comment in a conversation address at the University of Nebraska.

He urged Nebraska to become

Carelessness and inattention are prime causes of motor vehicle accidents.

more aggressive in promoting its water resources. He said this would help expand the state's industrial base.

"You have the available water supply—if you use it wisely—to better accommodate the country's population growth," Banks said.

Banks said all states should develop long-range water plans. He said this would require the expenditure of additional funds.

"States will be required to pick up a bigger tab than in the past," he said.

Republicans Outnumber
Final statewide registration figures show there are 637,719 eligible voters in Nebraska, with 51.5 percent listed as Republicans and 48.5 as Democrats. Another 2.5 percent are independents and .3 percent align with George C. Wallace's American Party.

The breakdown: Republican, 329,014; Democrat, 291,752; independent, 16,306; and American, 647.

This is the first year statewide voter registration has been required in Nebraska.

Corn in the Supermarket

As if you haven't already noted the amazing variety of corn and corn products from supermarket shelves, it should be noted that corn makes an important indirect contribution to the food industry.

Since corn is used for animal feeding more than any other single crop, those pork chops, bacon slices, eggs, chicken breasts, beefsteaks and even the Christmas turkey came from corn-fed chickens, beef cattle, hogs and poultry. And dairy cows, fed on corn, supply a whole range of milk products from buttermilk to cheese.

In addition to the corn grown and used on the farm as feed, corn refiners manufacture feeds with varying protein content from the gluten in the corn kernel. Corn gluten feed and gluten meal and corn germ meal are important ingredients in these manufactured feeds which produce high-quality table meats and poultry and dairy products.

There is an entire chapter yet to be written on the many uses of corn. Let us consider as one example how corn helps the supermarket do business.

First, there's the store building itself. In casting metal parts for the structure, corn starch or dextrins may have been used to hold together the sand cores in precise and intricate casting molds that produce the cavities in cast metal products of iron and steel. And starch is used in the manufacture of plywood and gypsum board, as well as insulating materials.

Next, the complex parts for much of the machinery in planes, trains and trucks that move the food to the supermarket were constructed thanks to corn. Many airplane parts for example, are cast.

Cardboard and paper are sized and coated with corn starch; so the huge boxes in which the food

Counting calories? Don't forget to also "count" the nutritive value in the foods you eat. Those foods you allow yourself should contain more than "food energy." They should be packed with vitamins, minerals and proteins needed to build your body and to help keep you in good health throughout your diet—and afterwards, too.

If you're eating less, and concentrating on nutritional values, you probably are more concerned than ever about the eating quality of foods. Let's take a look at a few foods that supply valuable amounts of nutrients and are relatively low in calories and see how to get the best eating quality.

Eggs are a dependable source of protein, iron, vitamin A and riboflavin—and they're one of the few foods that contain natural vitamin D. Despite its high nutritive value, a large egg has only 80 calories, about 60 of which come from the yolk.

Nearly everyone enjoys fresh fruit and most fresh, raw, un-sweetened fruits have fewer than 100 calories per serving. Sweetened fruits and those canned in heavy syrup are higher in calories. Citrus fruits, including grapefruit, are rich in vitamin C.

Another product which weight-writers can use to their advantage is instant nonfat dry milk. An eight-ounce glass of reconstituted nonfat dry milk contains only 90 calories—but half that of whole milk. And, it provides almost as much nutritive value. If you want, you corn starch and other pills on the shelves. Sorbitol (A derivative of dextrose) alone or in combination with liquid glucose forms the major part of the liquid vehicle in cough syrups. Foot powders, antiperspirants and disinfecting agents contain corn starch.

Cosmetics, too, claim products from corn; starch may be an ingredient in shaving creams, toothpaste, hand lotion and facial creams. Soap may have syrup, dextrin and crude corn oil, depending on the formula.

We would need much more space to list all the uses of corn in the supermarket—and in other areas as diverse as dynamite for construction blasting and crayons for children to draw with. The list presented here is already a long one; it seems very likely that corn puts the "super" in supermarket.
