Warn Drivers, Kids On Fogger Dangers

City foggers soon will be working in Wayne streets and alleys, Street Commissioner Vern Shultz said Wednesday, and warned that children and drivers should be especially careful when the unit is operating. Heavy smoke emitted from the machine obscures vision of motorists and pedestrians alike and extreme care should be exercised when moving through a fogged area, Schultz said. Local builders appeared to pro-test the change, saying they had operated under existing law and felt subsequent construction should be done the same way. Friday's meeting is slated for 7 p.m. in the Chamber of Com-merce offices. An additional danger spot is next to the vehicle where hot fumes are exhausted. Children are tempted to run into the fog behind the vehicle and could be burned by the hot gases. The foggers are run, not on a schedule, to eliminate mosquitoes in the residential districts.

Summer Program Starts Monday

The annual summer recreation program held each year at Bressler park for children starting kindergarten through the eighth grade will start with registration June 17 at 10 a.m. at the park. These children participate in craft making, playing games and listening to records and stories. There will be two three-week sessions this year. Sessions run from 9:30 to 11:30 Monday through Friday. Teachers for this year include Jeanne Karel, Marcia Ehlers, Marty Wills, Mary Eillis, Sue Ehlers and Lynda Schneider. Mrs. Mike Karel and Mrs. Al Ehlers are co-chairmen.

Two Mishaps on Highway 15 Detour Are Caused by Soft Road Shoulders

A truck and a car were in the ditch on opposite sides of the road near the Claires Vogel farm on the Highway 15 detour southeast of Wayne Monday, both victims of separate mishaps.

Truckdriver Dwayne D. Moritz said he was meeting a car on the narrow portion of the roadway and as he pulled to the side to allow the car to pass, the soft shoulder of the road gave way, pulling the wheels of the truck farther into the ditch and causing it to overturn on its side.

Before the wrecker could arrive on the scene a similar mis-hap occurred involving Mrs. Terry 'Karel, Mrs. Karel was northbound and the truck was southbound. No one was injured in either vehicle.

Mrs. Karel's auto, however, did not overturn. It became high-centered on the edge of the road way and was pulled out. The roadway also showed evi-dence of at least two other ve-hicles suffering similar fates.

The truck, owned by Soo Land Wholesale of Sioux City, was loaded with a cargo of 5,000 pounds of groceries which had to be transferred to another truck before being righted.

In neither case did the other before being righted.

In neither case did the other

Top U.S. Scout Praises Work of M - A Council

Scout leaders of the Mid-America Council heard the chief scott executive of the Boy Scotts of America outline growth goals in scouting Saturday at Omales. Alden G. Berber, the nation's top man in Scouting, spoke twice at the council's annual commis-sioner conference, attended by about 150 men. Representing the bewis and Clark District, which covers five counties in Northeast Nebraska, were Glen Downer, district executive; Dick Manley, scoutinssiger of Troop 174, both istrict executive; Dick Manley, scoutmasser of Troop 174, both of Wayne, and Merle Yelkin, district roundtable commissioner, of West Point.

Barber explained the BSA goals in a new development plan calls Boy Power 75. Chief among the goals is to increase boy membership by 1976 so that one boy of every three nationally is enrolled in Scouting. Currently membership is about 25 per cent of all boys of Scouting age, 8 to 18.

membership is about 25 per cent of all boys of Scotting age, 8 to 18 This is not just a numbers game," Barber said, "but numbers and quality. We intend to raise not only the number of boys in Scotting but the quality of Scotting's program."

Barber explained the significance of the growth plan's name this way: It relates the ideas of boy and power, the boy and man for any and power, the boy and man of 1976 will commemorate the two-hundredth anniversary of American's independence.

The chiefscout executive spoke eloquently of the value of Scotting which, he noted, has changed its techniques but not list basic ideals since the 1910 founding of the Boy Scotts of America. Jarber praised the Mid-American Council for its growth toward a 1972 goal of serving laif of all boys in the 37-county area. In fact, he said, the Mid-American stands in a class by itself for setting and reaching goals. "When 1976 arrives, you will already have passed the national goals four years earlier," Barber said in tribute.

What would be your redection to this headthe "Farm Chemicals to be Banned?"

To be sure, there are many people who advocate this, How about banning autos, tractors and power machinery? Both modern machines and many farm chemicals are extremely dangerous if mishandled, Banning either would seriously cripple agricultural production.

As the number of agricultural production items are multiplied we are inclined to become complacent about their use. The insecticides are probably the most dangerous of these items. A recent local incident reported involved the aerial application of Endrin to control cutworms in corn. This was done on a windy day, the drift from which was alleged to have made a farm child ill and contributed to the death of a young calf.

alleged to have made a farm child ill and contributed to the death of a young calf.

Findrin is the most toxic of the chlorinated hydorcarbon insecticides. It is recommended to be used only by trained and responsible commercial operators. Federal and state laws establish certain tolerances for insecticides in most foods and livestock feeds. Tolerances are expressed in parts per million, and range from zero to several parts per million. The tolerances for insecticides have been set to provide a wide margin of safety for humans and animals. There has not been a clinically documented case of poisoning following the correct use of insecticides on food crops, and we must strive to maintain this record. control structures built at the 'fall' line to control back-cutting.
The difference between the two structures is small, but the grade land from the farmer. Also, they empty their backwater more quickly than do the floodwater detention type.

backwater of floodwater detention dams.

The Humbug project is still in the planning stages. A survey is now being conducted by the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, and the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission to determine what structures are necessary to control flooding.

The plan should be completed in about two years, Phillips said, and it will then be either approved or rejected by the board of directors of the Humbug Conservancy District.

Once the survey is completed and approved, construction can begin. Although it is difficult to say when the project can be completed, Phillips noted, construction is usually finished within 10 years. Construction time depends on the complexity of projects and the amount of federal funds available to states. District officials and Phillips stressed that farmers in the watershed should begin conservation projects now because federal funds for building the grade control structures can be allocated only after 75 per cent of an area draining into a site is under conservation. Several types of conservation.

an area draining into a site is under conservation.

Several types of conservation are recommended to the farmer, officials noted, depending on the type of land being eroded.

Officials recommend that farmers use terracing on cropland to halt erosion. Tree planting is another method that can be used. Field windbreaks can be used to control erosion on sandy soil and should be located every 300 or 400 feet. Farmstead windbreaks are used for protection of buildings and livestock. Where grassland is being eroded, officials stress that proper management, including care not to overgraze, is the key to stopping erosion.

Ensement and rights of way for construction projects are furnished by the farmer, but officials doubted if farmers would be unwilling to furnish these since the construction projects are great assets to the land and the backwater does not cover very much land.

are great assets to the land and the backwater does not cover very much land.
However, the board of directors of the district, composed of three people from Stanton County and two people from Wayne County, can assess a levy of up to two mills in the boundaries) of the watershed in order to raise money for the purchase of easement and rights of way from farmers who do not want to furnish the land.
Those desiring more information about the progress of the watershed project or about the proper method of conservation on their land should contact Gene Phillips, Stanton County Soil Conservation District, or Arnold Marr, Wayne County Soil Conservation District, or Arnold Marr, Wayne County Soil Conservation District, or Arnold Marr, Wayne County Soil Conservation District,

ATLY OWNED AND OPERATED SU

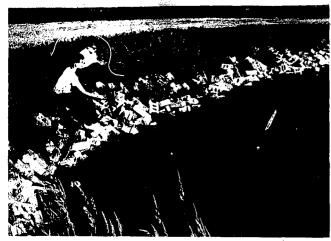

The editorial department of a weekly ospaper is an important department. Nor-newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

It is the duty of an editorial writer to warch all available facts before he sits down to write. From this basis the writer should be able to give a clear picture of important topics.

You may not agree with an editorial -- but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

Summertime

When we start thinking about an editorial on children and summer, we, of course, explored many ideas. Foremost in our planning was a discourse on the many days of fun ahead for school children, now freed from the responsibility of studies for three months during the most pleasant time of the year.

Then we ran across this scene at the Izaak Walton Lake Sunday afternoon, which says it much better than we can, for nothing seems to represent the lazy days of summer quite as well as a couple of boys watching their bobbers in a pond harboring sunfish and maybe a big old bass or two.

Brian Hedrick, left, and Paul Mallette, ple evidence that it is "summertime and

Accident Coming Up

Wayne county is about to have another serious highway accident. Perhaps we should say a detour accident, for there is where it is most likely to Mappen.

We were called out Monday to make photos of a truck overturned in the ditch along the Highway 15 detour one mile east and one mile south of Wayne.

By the time we arrived at the scene an auto also was in the ditch. While we were busy making the pictures, we noticed evidence of at least two more vehicles running off the road, all within a tenth of a mile.

on the road had been softened by Shoulders on the road had been softened by recent rains, probably a contributing factor. However, the road is narrow at that point, measuring only 18 feet of usable roadway drop off sharply, along with being soft. When cars and trucks pull to the side of the road to meet on-coming vehicles the trouble starts. Right wheels hit the soft dirt, the roadway caves away and the car or truck is in the ditch.

Luckily, no one has been hurt so far. We have a long time to use the detour, however, according to statements of State Engineer John Hossack.

Work on the highway is scheduled for completion late this fall and that means several more months of travel on the detour, with several more rains to soften the roadway and shoulders.

Would it be asking the state too much to en those shoulders a counte more feet? Would widen those shoulders a couple more feet? Would it be a sking too much to erect warning signs up the hill south of this particular stretch, telling drivers that a narrower, more dangerous portion is just ahead? Would it be asking too much to warn truck drivers that portions of the road are too narrow for passing? We think not. Especially if such action will prevent serious injury or save a life.

Because it serves as a state highway traffic on this road consists of cars, straight trucks, semis and even trucks pulling the so-called wide loads, all in addition to the usual farm traffic.

Surely the situation can be remedied to a ree. We realize that it is difficult to prevent all accidents, but we think some of the accidents need not happen.

Some work on widening the detour and strategically placed warning signs would be a hard in order to receive as scholarship when you graduate. Don't take any extra hours as this doesn't make any difference in the end. You don't even have to be an honor student in prder to receive a scholarship. It will help if you go out for all sports and cheerleading. Be a good friend of all your teachers because, you see, they are the ones who decide who gets these scholarships. And parents, please don't push your children to work hard to reach the top as sometimes this can only lead to disappointment. Sometimes the valedictorian and salutatorian are not given any special honors other than to have their name mentioned. This is the way it seemed to be done at Wayne High this year. So, students, I can only wish you luck.

Whereas, The Flag should always be regarded with reverence by all Americans; and Whereas, The display of a Flag of presentable appearance is an expression of sincere loyalty and dedicated patriotism; and Whereas, Americans everywhere should take time to renew and revitalize their faith in what our Flag symbolizes, and to increase their innowledge of its history and their awareness that "Freedom is Not Free," and
Whereas, Many Americans need to obtain Flags and the equipment necessary for the display of the living symbol of the Nation before their homes and places of business on Flag Day, June 14, and other appropriate occasions; now THEREFORE, I, Carl W. Scheel, County Commander, Wayne County, State of Nebraska, do hereby proclaim the period of June 12 through June 15, 1963, as a time for "NEW GLORY FOR OLD GLORY," and further commend to the residents of Wayne County, to pledge to display the FLAG of our Country before their homes or places of business on Flag Day, June 14, and other appropriate occasions.

Knowing what to do when a tornado is approaching can save a person's life, says Elvin Schultz, Extension civil defense specialist at the University of Nebrasia. He said a few elementary tornado safety rules include the following:

tornado safety rules include the following:

—When time permits, go to a tornado cellar, cave or underground excavation which should have an air outlet to help equalize the air pressure.

It should be kept fit for use, free from water, gas or debris and should be equipped with a pick and shovel. There is no universal protection against tornadoes except underground excavation.
