

AFS Student in Wayne; Enjoys 'I Spy,' Bowling

It may take a little time, but Eghon Guzman Montanano will probably feel right at home with the Kent Halls in Wayne. Eghon, an AFS student from Santiago, Chile, says he likes to watch "The Invaders" and "I Spy" on television.

Eghon flew to Miami from Santiago non-stop aboard a chartered jet. There were about 120 other Chilean AFS students on the plane and all were coming to the United States for a year of study on the high school level. This year there will be over 30,000 AFS students living in the United States.

From Miami Eghon flew to New York where he met with other AFS students from all over the world. They split up there and headed for their host States. Eghon took another plane and headed for St. Louis, but the plane developed some trouble and was forced to land at Pittsburg. Eghon said it was a little scary for him since his first experience with flying. He took a bus from St. Louis to Omaha.

The Kent Halls met Eghon in Omaha and brought him to Wayne about two and one half weeks ago. Eghon, although slightly built, enjoys sports. He belongs to a city soccer league in Santiago and has played basketball. Coach Hansen may try to entice Eghon to try out for the football team even though he has never played this sport. According to Kent and his son, Steve, Eghon can really kick a football. He just might be what Hansen needs to get back at West Point for running his team's perfect record last year.

Eghon also enjoys bowling. He hadn't ever seen a bowling alley before the Halls took him to Melodee Lanes. It wasn't over a day or two before he was right back there trying it again.

Wolf he has heard of and seen played, but in his country this is a sport that only the rich can afford to play and Eghon didn't seem too interested in going against what he has learned. But he may not have very much time to give to sports once school starts. He is interested in medicine and hopes some day to become a doctor. As in this country, this takes time and money in Santiago. Eghon said that the government will help a needy student with school finances if his grades are high enough. Eghon's grades are certainly not mediocre - he has maintained a grade average of 6.3 on a 7 point scale.

He has a little difficulty in understanding English when spoken to but, with a little help from his Spanish-American dictionary, he can be quite interesting. And he has a very different way of saying "yes" or "no". After living for close to a year in Wayne, he will probably be embarrassed about having once had to use the dictionary.

"Two graduations this year," Eghon said when asked about his school in Santiago. What he meant was that he left Santiago in the middle of the school year. Everything is reversed that far south of the Equator, not just the weather. His school year runs from about mid-March to mid-December. January through March is their summer time, April through June the autumn time, July through August is winter and September through December is spring.

Eghon was born on an unusual date - his birthday is Christmas eve. The Hall family hopes to have a special Christmas celebration this year.

Mrs. Hall said that Eghon knows most of the food she has served so far. He likes sweet corn, "chochlo" to Eghon. But ketchup Eghon had never seen before. It was a whole new experience to him.

Eghon's first impression of Wayne was that it was a "very rich city but very small and very beautiful," he said the people had been very friendly to him. The Halls took him to the farm of Mrs. Hall's parents and he said he liked that very much.

Eghon's father is a furniture maker. He has no plans where he works and no time card to punch, he works right in his small home. His family has no car and they get about Santiago by bus. They also lack a telephone and Eghon is having quite an experience in learning how to use one.

Winside Hot Lunch

The figures concerning the cost of the hot lunch program at Winside High School were incorrectly reported to The Wayne Herald. Single meals at the school will cost $4.40 per meal or $3.50 for a card of 10 meals. This is the same as it was last year at the school.

Lyle Grone and Doug Nelson. The tractor is the Massey-Harris Sandahl and his friends have altered by installing four exhaust stacks, one for each cylinder, along with other modifications.

J. Sandahl Wins Two Firsts, Second In Tractor Pull Events at Dixon Fair

Top winner in the tractor pull at the Dixon County fair Tuesday was 16-year-old John Sandahl, who took two firsts and a second in two weight classes.

Pulling with his own Massey-Harris four-stacker in the 6,000-pound class, John went 153 feet before the tractor bogged down, then came back later and drove his cousin's Allis-Chalmers WD to 132 feet two inches.

The cousin, Charles Morris, was too young to meet the 16-year-old minimum age. Third place in the class went to Melvin Gould with 115 feet.

Wally Bull topped the field in the 8,000-pound tractors, going 151 feet, 11 inches, before the referee blew the whistle on him. Behind him was Doug Nelson with 127 feet, five inches, and Robert Anderson at 123 feet even.

In the 10,000-pound pull Sandahl came back with a 203-foot, two-inch record in his John Deere for another first. Harold George took second with 193 feet and Red Ward was third with an effort of 192 feet four inches.

The 12,000-pound winner was Red Kvols, pulling to 173 feet nine inches, only four inches ahead of Jerry Dorcay's 173 feet five inches. John Dorcay was in third place with 170 feet two inches.

Erwin Keoppe was winner in the 15,000-pounders with a pull of 203 feet, six inches, followed by Arthur Rickett with 196 feet eight inches. In third place was Jerry Dorcay at 193 feet, one inch.

Tractors worked on a near-perfect track and under ideal conditions after committee members had dragged, watered and packed the track Monday.

Forty-one different pulls were made in Tuesday's events, though some tractors were entered in more than one weight class.

Wayne Chapman Tuesday led his Hereford steer through all the phases of judging to take top honors as grand champion of the Dixon County fair. He also showed an Angus steer to Angus Supreme honors and the reserve champion Angus.

Pushing Wayne for grand champion honors was Lou Henscher with an Angus steer which earned reserve champion placings.

Lou's purple-winning steer was champion in Angus competition followed closely by Chapman's Angus supreme.

Garry Hoerber placed his Angus heifer in the championship circle to take honors as grand champion heifer over all and reserve Angus supreme, while Kent Sackow's heifer was placed as reserve champion heifer over all and reserve champion Angus heifer.

In crossed steer competition Dale Magnuson took top place, edging out Dwight Dittorf for purple ribbon honors.

Jane Pearson showed the champion Shorthorn steer followed by Dwight Dittorf who earned reserve champion honors.

Janice Kraemer won a purple ribbon with her lightweight Hereford steer as did Albert Stark with his lightweight Angus steer.

In club groups of five the Wranglers won a blue ribbon and top honors in the Hereford division. Future Feeders won like awards in the Mixed Breeds division; Angus honors also went to the Wranglers for the group of five. In Crossbred competition Pop's Partners were first.

Breeding heifer competition saw Sharon Nobbe winning a purple ribbon for her Hereford entry and Bruce Johnson taking a purple on his Angus.

Dairy competition among 4-H members saw only one purple awarded, and that to John Warner on his Ayrshire entry.

A complete list of winners and their placings are contained elsewhere in this issue of The Wayne Herald.

Humbug Surveys Begin Monday

Jack Chace of Pilger, chairman of the Humbug Watershed, announced this week that additional informational surveys in the Humbug Watershed will be started Monday. Cross-sectional surveys at various selected stream intervals will be made to determine channel capacities.

Chace emphasized that the surveys are not locations for reservoirs or dam sites but are needed to study stream flows and other hydrologic characteristics in preparation for the location of dam sites and grade stabilization structures for grade stabilization.

The board of directors will contact landowners on whose farms surveys may be made for survey permission. The surveys will be made by survey crews of the Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Commission and turned over to the USDA Soil Conservation Service who will develop the proposed plan for the Humbug.

The Humbug, the damage it has done by erosion and the possibilities of halting the erosion was the subject of a feature story in the June 12 issue of The Wayne Herald.

Foreign Teaching Post Has Problems and Benefits

Teaching American children in foreign lands calls for some adjustments on the part of the teacher, Sandra Walker said Monday as she visited with her mother, Mrs. Julia Haas.

Sandra has been teaching for the last two years in Abqalq (pronounced AB-CAKE) in Saudi Arabia, where the Aramco Oil company conducts schools for the children of American employees there.

The company maintains a complete school system through the ninth grade for the children, but the school board plan of the U.S. is replaced by committees made up of administrators and parents.

Sandra teaches kindergarten half a day and remedial reading the other half, for five days a week. The weekend comes on Thursday and Friday, because Friday is the holy day for the Moslems.

The Americans attend church on Friday instead of Sunday and Saturday and Sunday are regular work days. All Protestant services are inter-denominational, she said. No ministers, as such, are hired for the job, but come to work under the label of a special teacher, then perform their ministerial duties on the company property.

None of the American women are permitted to drive cars in Saudi Arabia except on company property, as women have few rights there. All Moslem women are required to be veiled and a Moslem may have as many as four wives under the current law, she said.

Justice for the natives is still meted out with a hard hand. Women are buried to their necks and stoned if they are found guilty of infidelity; men are punished by public beatings for some offenses.

Theft is still punished by amputation. On the first charge the offender loses a hand; on the second offense a hand and a foot; and suffers death if found guilty of a third offense, Sandra said, although it is questionable how a person with no hands and only one foot could manage to steal anything.

Drinking of alcoholic beverages is strictly forbidden both to Americans and the natives.

Children graduating from the company schools are well prepared for entry into U.S. high schools, boarding schools or European schools, she said.

When they reach the eighth grade they are permitted to go to the U.S. for further schooling or enroll in European schools, with the company paying transportation to and from the schools, including vacation trips.

One of the greatest difficulties facing a teacher there is keeping up with new techniques and ideas. Supplies are no problem, however. All the teacher need do is ask for them, Sandra explained.

Shopping is done in Al-Hobar, about 60 miles away. Stores are reached either by taxi, bus or by private car, but with a man driving-always.

Merchants there keep shelves pretty well stocked and offer a selection of most items available here in Wayne, but their methods of merchandising could be improved, she said, explaining that a pile of pots and pans may be displayed alongside a rack of dresses or other clothing.

One of the greatest difficulties in buying dresses, she explained, is that most dresses sold there are of French or Italian manufacture and American women experience difficulty getting proper fitting.

One of the great benefits of teaching abroad is the opportunity to travel, and Sandra was able to take several trips to visit European capitals.

On her trip home this time, she went by way of Bombay, New Delhi, Bangkok, Hong Kong and Japan to Hawaii, with stopovers in each place for sight-seeing.

While in Japan she visited with a Japanese family whose daughter was in one of Sandra's classes when she taught in Oregon five years ago. The little girl's father was a visiting professor at the University of Oregon at the time. Because they kept in touch by correspondence, the family invited Sandra to be their guest should she come to Japan-an invitation she accepted for three days.

While she was in Japan, Sandra rode the famous 125-mile per hour "Bullet Train," the world's fastest train. The whirlwind schedule of the railroad allows the electronically operated doors to open for only two minutes for loading passengers, then the doors close automatically and the train whisks away.

After leaving Tokyo, she flew to Honolulu where she and her mother spent 10 days, then returned together to California and on to Wayne.

Sandra is already on the return trip, having left Wayne Tuesday morning for New York where she will fly to London to meet state-side friends and go on to Saudi Arabia, arriving there Friday.

A trunk of gifts which she shipped ahead still had not arrived in Wayne Monday, but Sandra had brought with her a couple of items, one for her mother and one for her brother, Carl Haas.

A large brass wall hanging in Arabic tells the world "Welcome" to the home in which it hangs.

For her brother, Sandra brought a water pipe, nicknamed a "Dubbly-bubbly" by the Americans.

Kiwanis Honors Swimmers, Hear Senator Wallwey

Trophy winners in the Kiwanis swimming meet were honored as guests at Monday's meeting of the local service club. With the winners was Rich Brown, pool manager and manager of the meet for Kiwanis.

Trophy-winning guests included Sallie Steick, Norman Brown, Susan Schwartz, Nancy Watsney, Laverne Brown, Kerry and Kevin Jech, Kurt Lesh, the eighth winner was unable to be present.

State Senator Elmer Wallwey was guest speaker. He told of the growth of the number of state employees causing the need for a personnel department. The number of employees now stands at 15,000 with an additional 9,500 holding elective posts and working for the University of Nebraska.

He also explained that the department of institutions has before it a plan to alter the method of housing patients under the mental health program; to demolish much of the Beatrice home and replace it with four other institutions plus existing hospital facilities.

The average stay of a patient now is two or three months he said, as compared to 10 years only a few years ago.

The number of patients under the program soon will be down to about 750 as compared to 1,800 only a few years ago.

About $30 million will be required to build the new facilities, one of which is planned for Wayne. The Wayne facility is planned to serve from 50 to 150 children.

Sailor Sends SOS

A sailor needs some help. George Wehn, a sailor aboard the USS Bon Homme Richard, recently sent a rather unusual letter to The Wayne Herald. It appears in the Letters to the Editor column in this issue.

We are unsure about how Wehn got the address for The Wayne Herald or why he chose to write to us. He may have seen a copy of our paper, for Leon Jorgensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arland Aurich of Wayne, is also stationed aboard the USS Bon Homme Richard. Mrs. Aurich works at The Wayne Herald and her son may have spoken to him or mentioned our paper to him.

If you aren't too busy, read Wehn's letter. It's rather interesting.

Rugged Action, Lively Look Mark Grade School Footwear

STUDY COMFORT, GOOD LOOKS SET the shoe pace for grade-school boys and girls. Here, the wears oxford, combining smooth and laced leather, with striped ties, extended leather sole. He sports monk-strap in antiqued grained leather, with perforated trim.

Boy or girl, every grade school student needs the support of sturdy footwear. For growing feet require protection, comfort and durability in shoes.

To back up the rugged performance of new school shoes, designers have provided styling and trim as bright and lively as the grade schoolers themselves. Wider toe shapes and easy laces look smart as well as comfortable.

Classics such as moccasins oxfords and other tie shoes, boots and — for the girls — pumps take on freshness, thanks to details that range from brass trim and buckles to high raised tongues and lots of perforations.

Smooth, grained waxy glove, brushed and antiqued American leathers are much used in shoes for the grade school girl, with suede, aniline, embossed, lustre and patent leathers also appearing, reports Leather Industries of America.

New oxfords offer many fashion treatments — not only spectator ties but saddles, kitten, soft ribbon ties and applied oxfords. Strap-and-buckle shoes — notably, the wide brass-buckled monk-strap — fit girls' school wardrobes.

Moccasins blend well with the sporty side of back-to-school wear. Hand-sewn mocs favor the high-tongued look with a squared toeline, while others feature brass bars or studs, kitten fringe, tassels.

Call or knee-high boots for grade school girls are equipped with water-resistant finishes, and laced or zippered closings. Buckles, braid, straps or perforations trim the lower-cut boot shoes.

For dress-up, the grade schooler may wear pumps, strap sandals or slings.

SS Q & A

Q. My mother is 83 years old and can no longer care for her own personal needs. We are considering placing her in a nursing home. If the nursing home participates in the Medicare program, will Medicare help pay the bill?

A. No. From your question, it appears your mother does not need medical and professional nursing care, but merely care to meet her everyday personal needs. Medicare does not pay for this kind of care.

When It's Time to Pack

DON'T CRAM. THERE'S A BETTER WAY TO PASS the back-to-college packing test, say students. Pack only essentials. If extras are needed later, they can be forwarded by parents or friends. And, don't take too much luggage—three pieces should be ample. Suggested here are a 24-inch pullman, a train case and a "Hangaway" that unzips to hang easily in a dorm closet.

'Wildcats eager to start practice' - WSC Grid Coach Expects Tough Season

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald, Thursday, August 22, 1968

"It looks like this year's schedule is going to be every bit as rough as last year's," John Jermier, head football coach at Wayne State College, said Tuesday.

"Last year we had the toughest schedule in WSC history when we played three teams which were ranked by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics in the top ten in the small colleges across the nation," Jermier said. He noted that Kearney looks like to be an assignment as last year. It was Kearney who captured first place honors in the Nebraska College Conference; Wayne had to settle for second place.

Jermier expects the Wildcats to be strong defensively this year, but he said this a lot of work has to be done offensively in order to utilize the returning personnel. "Right now the largest job I have is to replace quarterback Steve Gauthier and defensive ends Roger Parr and Dick Meyer. I'm also going to have to do without All-American End Dave Hross and All-Conference Tackle Darrel Fenton."

In all the clouds of doubt hanging about this year's squad, Jermier did not think he sees one thing that brightens the picture. He said that in the letters he has received from his players this summer, he has found the players eager to begin practice. "They're talking like winners and that's a very important aspect in any team," Jermier said.

Last year WSC had a record of six wins and four losses. They were defeated by Kearney, St. Cloud, Minn., William Jewell, Mo., and South Dakota University. All but South Dakota University were ranked NAAU in the top ten among the nation's small colleges.

Jermier has 25 lettermen returning this year to use as a core to build around. Area lettermen returning this year include Sam Nassif, Sioux City; Don Grubaugh, David City; Dennis Seal, Polk; Doug Radtke, Pender; Bill Mimitch, Columbus; Doug Barry, Battle Creek; Sam Oxlin and Randy Cordes, Scribner; Dwight Stewart, Lynch; and Hosco Goodpasture, Norfolk.

He also has a large group of freshmen who will be trying out for the squad. Some of the state area boys making the attempt include Doug Manske and Gordy Jorgensen, Wayne; Mick McCoy, Laurel; Don Brandt, Coleridge; Chuck Ross and Dave Meyer, West Point; Rusty Maillaird, Norfolk; Dave Meyer, Scribner; Mar-by Going, Tekamah; and Paul Skeneburg, Sioux City.

First practice session for the Wildcats will be Monday. Jermier plans three seasons a day. Practice sessions will run from 8:30 to 10 in the morning and from 1 to 2 and 3:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon.

The Wildcats open the season on their own field September 14 when they tangle with Midland at 7:30 p.m. The rest of their schedule includes contests with Moorhead, Minn., September 21, away; Missouri Southern, September 28, home; Chadron, October 5, away; Hastings, October 12, home; Kearney, October 19, away; Peru, October 26, homecoming; and St. Cloud, Minn., November 2, away.

Fisher-McNatt Win Mixed 2-Ball Action

Ten couples turned out Sunday for the mixed two-ball foursome tournament at the Wayne Country Club.

Chuck Fisher and Minnie McNatt took low score honors with a 46.

A prize also went to Elsie Zehmskamp and Fred Elders for turning in the average score of all the golfers in the contest. They shot a 51.

Area Drivers Garner More Oval Victories

Area stock car drivers brought home some more of the money from Norfolk's Riviera Raceway Sunday night.

Gene Brudigan captured first place in the A Feature and fourth in the third heat. In the C Feature Gerald Bruggeman took first place and Bob Anderson took sixth. The best Gene Wagner could do in the night's action was a third place in the B Feature.

Area drivers just about swept the A Feature at Albion's Boone County Raceway Friday night. Gerald Bruggeman captured first place honors, Gene Brudigan came in second, Harold Brudigan took fourth and Gene Wagner took fifth.

In the first heat Gene Brudigan came in first, Gerald Bruggeman placed third in the second heat. In the third heat Harold Brudigan led all other drivers and Gene Wagner placed third. Gerald Bruggeman and Gene Brudigan were the only area drivers in the money at Yanitor's Westside Raceway during racing Wednesday, August 14. Brudigan came home with a first place in the third heat and a second place in the C Feature. Bruggeman garnered two third places, in the first heat and the C Feature.

Oldtimers Challenge Wayne Town Team

A bunch of guys are going to have some sore muscles come Sunday morning.

Some oldtimers from around Wayne have challenged the Wayne town team to a seven inning tilt Saturday night at 6:30. No admission will be charged for what looks like an interesting and (puff-puff) enjoyable evening of baseball. However, a box will be available for donations. Proceeds from the ballgame will go to the support of the town team.

Hank Overlin, manager of the town team, is scheduled to coach the mound for the town team. No one knows yet who will pitch for the oldtimers.

Anyone interested in playing with the oldtimers should contact Jim Pokett. It's reported that they would like to have a couple men on the bench ready to take the place of anybody (puff-puff) not at their peak.

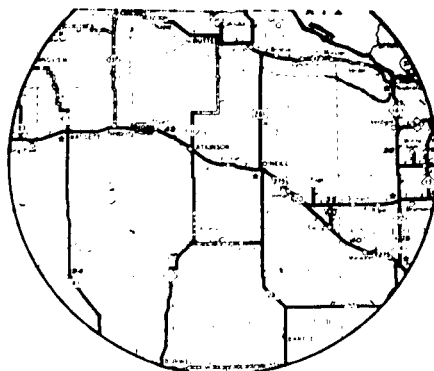

Second Hole Yields Eagles to Partners

The second hole on the Wayne Golf Course has yielded its share of birdies and eagles over the years, but Sunday morning a couple golfers overpowered the par five hole.

Playing partners in a foursome, Kenny Whorlow and Ray Murray, both of Wayne, were lying two a few yards off the green. Both had a good chance for birdies, but they didn't settle for that. Both chipped in their third shots for eagles on the hole.

It wasn't reported what the opposing team said about the feat.

For a Look at the Green Sandhills Tour North Central Part of State

By Jeanene Hickok Atkinson, Nebraska

I am North Central Nebraska - Color me green. From my rolling green crop covered hills on my Eastern Border, to my dark pine-covered bluffs along the Niobrara River, to my grass covered sandhills on my Southern and Western sides, green is my color. I am the source of the Elkhorn River - the only river in Nebraska which begins and ends within the state. I represent some of the most fertile farmlands and the most productive ranches and hay growing regions in the state of Nebraska.

Within this magic circle I boast four State Special Use Areas and Royal, is a beautiful picnicking and fishing area. This artificial lake is made by a small dam which guarantees a prime level of water. A fish hatchery and sandy beaches with gradual sloping wading areas provides the perfect spot for family entertainment.

Atkinson Lake, within one mile of Atkinson, is also formed by a small dam. This highly developed area provides the ultimate in camping and picnicking convenience. There are plenty of private campsites which extend a half mile on either side of the lake. In the picnic area playground, equipment is provided for the young, along with a beach and old-fashioned "swimmin' hole." With all this activity it is slightly surprising that Atkinson Lake also provides one of the favorite fishing areas in the county. Bullheads, Northern Pike, Catfish, Perch and Bass abound in these waters of the Elkhorn River.

The Long Pine Special Use Area comes as a complete surprise to all - even to those who live within my borders. Situated in the heart of the sandhills, this pine-covered valley on the banks of Pine Creek provides a charming and delightful setting for relaxation. This area is newly developed and has many private picnicking and camping spaces nestled among the pines. The cold-swift-moving creek is

Wayne Country Club Tourney Set Sunday

The annual Club Tournament at the Wayne Golf Course will be held Sunday.

Golfers may find out today which flight they will be playing in. They were assigned flights prior to the tournament according to their handicaps.

There is no set tee-off time and golfers may make up their own foursomes.

Trophies for the championship flight and the other flights will be awarded the winners. Prizes will also be awarded second, third and fourth place finishers. Jim Christensen, club pro, said there will probably be about eight flights in the tournament.

An entry fee of $5 will be charged. The tournament is limited to club members.

Winside Girl Wins Season Finale 21-13

Winside's girls softball team, under the supervision of Dutch Holdorf, knocked off their last opponents of the year 21 to 13 Tuesday night at the Winside ball park. Their opponents were some of their mothers and other ladies from the Winside area.

About 50 people turned out to watch the girls rack up a commanding 13 to 1 lead after three innings of play. The ladies couldn't seem to connect for hits against the Weible's pitching.

Then Holdorf jerked the whole lineup and sent in a new squad. A near disastrous move. The ladies narrowed the lead to 16-5 after five innings of play. They narrowed the gap between the generations considerably but couldn't seem to overtake the youngsters. Holdorf's squad left the ball park only after giving their condolences to the losers.

Troop 221 Back From Camp-Out

Boy Scout Troop 221 spent a week camping out at Grove Lake near Royal. They left Sunday, Aug. 11 and returned Saturday.

Taking part in the camping activities were Dan Barnas, Ricky Mitchell, Gary Glass, Galon Miller and Greg Stammer. The parents of the young boys drove to Grove Lake Saturday for a picnic with the boys before bringing them home.

Jewell Schock is the scoutmaster for the boys. Driving the boys to the lake Sunday were Schock, Gene Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Verlin Glass, and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Miller. This is the longest time the boys have been on a campout. They have held overnight campouts at other times.

- BUILDING ORIENTATION - How can I use my building site to get the best appearance and take advantage of sunlight and cooling breezes and at the same time reduce my heating costs by proper room arrangement?
- PROPER INVESTMENT - How do I determine the total home investment which is economically sound for me to make?
- SIZE OF ROOMS - How do I decide whether to make my living room smaller in order to have a larger kitchen? Should I plan my laundry in the basement or on the first floor?
- PLAN TO BUDGET - How can I plan my home so that its cost will not exceed my budget?
- COST OF MATERIALS - Where can I find the cost of different materials so I can decide whether I can afford a fireplace or perhaps a second bathroom?
- NEWEST MODERN IDEAS - Where can I get exciting new and modern ideas of planning and design so that my home will not be "an old model" when it is completed?
- EXTRAS - How can I be guaranteed that there will not be any "extras" in cost after construction is started, unless I have approved them?
- QUALITY OF WORKMANSHIP - How can I be certain that all workmanship, whether concrete foundations or cabinet work in my kitchen is as it should be?
- BEST FINANCING PROGRAM - Where can I get information about all of the different kinds of mortgages and how can I determine just which type of financing is best for me?
- COMPLETE HOME BUILDING SERVICE - Where do I go to arrange all details of my home planning and building program and where do I arrange my financing?

Parents Help Do Homework By Supplying Study Space

The closed circuit television lessons and teaching machines that are becoming a reality for today's students sometimes seem like another world to their parents.

But despite the generation gap between arithmetic and new math, or geography and geopolitics, some things haven't changed. Students still do homework, and still look to their parents for help.

One of the best ways parents can help their children with homework is to make sure they have a proper place to study. An efficient study area can be created in the attic, basement, guest room, or student's bedroom. But it has certain prerequisites.

1. During study hours, the room should be off-limits to other family members. Privacy is needed for concentration.

2. The room should be suitably equipped. Essentials include a roomy desk or sturdy work table, a desk chair, an easy chair for reading, and adequate lighting.

3. Plenty of bookshelves and storage space should be provided.

Once the location of the study area is determined, its development may be simple — or, it may become a major family project.

A bedroom study area can be set up with basic homework equipment plus, perhaps, some bright new furnishings to make the room both quiet and attractive.

If the study area is to be in attic or basement, its creation might be the family's first full home improvement project. Modern building materials, from insulation and weather stripping to paneling, can help transform the appearance of the area, while shutting out noise and assuring privacy.

In any study center, a solution to problems of shelf and storage space might be perforated hardboard paneling. These panels have perforations which hold bookshelf racks and hooks from which to hang a variety of items.

Training For Teacher Is New, Too

How do teachers learn to teach?

Some go to liberal arts colleges, some to large universities, some to schools where main emphasis is in training teachers.

But wherever they go to school, they are especially trained to do their job as teachers. Today, teacher education constantly searches out new ways of teaching all subjects to all children.

One new approach to teaching teachers is the simulation technique. Films and background material create a "real" classroom, and the future teacher becomes a real teacher dealing in real problems.

The University of Tennessee has developed a packaged classroom in which students are confronted with critical teaching problems which they must handle.

Television is another important new approach in the education of teachers.

The University of South Carolina, Keene State College in New Hampshire and the University of North Dakota use closed circuit television to give student teachers a playback of their own performance in an actual classroom. The student can watch what he did, analyze and criticize.

Keene and Louisiana State University are among a group of schools with closed circuit television systems that permit students to observe real classroom situations under experienced teachers while they are actually occurring.

Approaches to practice teaching which puts student teachers in the classroom are changing too.

In a new program at the University of Virginia's School of Education, students serve as salaried interns in schools during the academic year after graduation.

Home Library For Student

Much is said today about tape recorders, language records, other modern aids to in-home study.

But what about reference books? They are still the basic requirement for home study.

A well-equipped home reference library for students might consist of:

1. A new dictionary. "New" is important, since words and word meanings change constantly.

2. A thesaurus. This useful vocabulary aid can assist the student in writing more effectively.

3. An atlas. Here, too, a recently-issued edition is useful.

4. An almanac or other annual fact book. This can help the student keep abreast of current events.

5. A modern encyclopedia. Look for a set which includes, in the purchase price of a full set, forthcoming supplements to bring the volumes continually up to date.

Area Sales Jump From Last Year

Nebraska's retail sales figures for June, 1968, reflected recovery from a slowdown in buying that took place a year ago after the state's new sales tax went into effect.

Retail sales this June in Nebraska were up 11.8 percent over the same month in 1967, while being only .2 percent better than in the previous month of May. The trend was noted in Business in Nebraska, monthly publication of the University of Nebraska College of Business Administration's Bureau of Business Research.

General business activity in the state, as indicated by bank deposits, building activity, retail sales, electricity and gas consumed, water pumped, postal receipts and newspaper advertising, also showed a healthy 14.3 percent increase over June of 1967.

The general business indicator was up in all 22 reporting cities, with Alliance recording a 37.9 percent jump. Others included: Fremont 27.0, Columbus 25.2, Kearney 24.6, Broken Bow 24.2, Falls City 18.6, Hastings 18.3, Scottsbluff 18.2, Fairbury 18.0, Lincoln 16.9, Norfolk 16.6, Grand Island 16.3, York 13.3, Omaha 12.2, Holdrege 10.1, Nebraska City 9.9, Chadron 9.3, Beatrice 9.1, South Sioux City 6.5, McCook 5.6, North Platte 3.3, and Sidney 1.3.

The Business in Nebraska report indicated that hard goods sales, which had slumped sharply after the sales tax became Nebraska's May, 1968, dollar volume of business was 6.3 percent above May, 1967, and for the same period the physical volume increased 4.3 percent but both were below the national level of increase.

Annually Now, Three Million Teens Become Car Drivers

Three million new youthful automobile drivers — a proportionate number of them right here at home — are added annually to the hordes of people driving millions of cars on streets and highways of this nation, according to the American Automobile Association.

They are the teen-agers who come of age to qualify for driver's licenses. Many may be able to induce parents to help them acquire brand new cars of their own. Many manage to buy, with their after-school-hours earnings, a used car.

Still more youngsters manage to acquire motorcycles or scooters to get about on. Others, especially the younger ones, pedal about on bicycles.

The ever increasing freedom of movement of young people operating mechanically powered vehicles is adding greatly to the problem of traffic safety for them, their school companions and the public at large.

All this accounts for the spread of driver education in high schools where the principles of motor vehicle safety are instilled in these usually exuberant youngsters. But this is not enough in the opinion of most authorities.

Parents, too, must enter the scene to further caution these youngsters and to discreetly make their own independent checks of the mechanical condition of the cars their youngsters drive.

This concern is doubly important if the car is old or remodeled as is often the case with a teen-ager's first car. Young drivers are always concerned about the appearance of their cars but beneath shiny surfaces, danger can lurk in the form of worn brakes or loose steering parts.

Car care is as vital to the new driver's safety as is knowledge of the principles of safe driving.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

You may not agree with an editorial but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

Let's Start Now

Present plans of the state of Nebraska department of Institutions calls for Wayne to be the site of a home to educate and train 150 mentally retarded children.

Senator Elmer Hallway of Emerson made this announcement in remarks to the Wayne Kiwanis club Monday. Among reasons Wayne was chosen for the site was the fact that a college is here and college personnel could be used to help train and educate the mentally retarded.

Facilities and staff for 150 youngsters would constitute a considerable expenditure in Wayne... and provide us with another "industry."

However, now that the announcement is made, efforts should be started to learn how much land will be needed, what amount of facilities will be specified, where the state would prefer to locate it with respect to Wayne and the college.

It is not too early to learn all these things and keep the sales pitch going to keep Wayne foremost in the minds of planners and site selectors.

We should learn who are the people to see about these bits of vital information and provide them with every fact they want and any others which will help our cause.

If we never let them forget us, they won't.

The facility is scheduled to be in operation by 1980, only 11 years away at the most. The way time flies in current times, that is like only the

Capital News Federal Requirements Cut State's Highway Program

LINCOLN — State Engineer John W. Hossack reports the Nebraska highway department program will have to be cut 15 to 20 percent between now and next year.

The reduction will result from increased anticipated construction costs and new federal safety standards.

Projects affected by the cutback will be included in the 1969-71 roadbuilding program, Hossack said. "They will be deferred, not forgotten."

Hossack said construction costs on primary and secondary roads are running $4.3 million above expected levels so far this biennium.

To date we have let 48 percent of the work scheduled, but only completed 56 percent of the work available," he said. "This compares with about 50 percent of the scheduled time elapsed."

Hossack said the highway development programs calls for the improvement of 264 miles of highway between now and next June 30. But, he added, the $27.3 million budgeted for the work will fall short of meeting the actual construction costs.

"It is probably safe to assume that to complete all of the work scheduled we will need at least $9 million more than presently available, even if all federal fund cutbacks are released," Hossack said. "This means that the letting of at least that much scheduled work will have to be deferred until the next biennium."

Additionally, the state engineer said, about $4 million in interstate work must be delayed. Improvement of 72 miles costing an estimated $55 million had been planned for the 1967-69 period.

Hossack said the financial dilemma is a case of construction costs going up while available funds remain the same.

"Safety standards required by federal legislation have increased the cost of construction greatly," he said. "These standards provide that heavily traveled routes must be constructed with a 30-foot 'clear' zone next to the paving. This means no obstructions such as trees, bridge abutments, lighting standards, or signposts within 30 feet of the pavement edge unless adequately protected with guard rail."

Moreover, Hossack said, "there is every indication that construction prices will continue to increase. This means that it will continue to require more funds year by year to provide the same amount of improvement."

Hossack said the future outlook regarding the availability of federal funds for highway work is not bright. He said part of the $6 billion budget cutback ordered by Congress is sure to filter down to the states.

"There is no information yet as to how much of this cutback will affect Nebraska but we are not optimistic," he said. "It is this type of uncertainty in highway financing that makes it most difficult to schedule improvements with any degree of day after tomorrow. Three such institutions are scheduled to be built in Eastern Nebraska. But the fact that one is now scheduled for Wayne is no guarantee that those plans will not be changed. It takes only the scratch of a pen and another town will have the facility.

Even though we have a state college here and could and should use teachers from Wayne State College to help teach the mentally retarded, a more aggressive town with the right sales pitch could get the site changed.

We should do everything possible to keep Wayne as our first choice for the school, and start doing them now.

This does not mean that only a handful of persons from Wayne need go to Lincoln to see the right man. It means that each and every one of us should be selling Wayne, selling WSC, selling this corner of the state.

Not many can say they have not poor-mouthed Wayne on some occasions. And there are others who make a practice of knocking the town at every opportunity. While most of us know them and take their remarks for what they are worth, a stranger rarely knows whether it is talking to a knowledgeable person or a local sorehead.

It behooves us all, therefore, to start to think, talk and act in a positive manner. By 1980 it may have paid great dividends.

roads," the commission said. "A lack of control at the present time prevents follow up of funds allocated to the county and city governments."

The major Aeronautics Department recommendation called for creation of a state aircraft pool, with the aeronautics agency in charge of all state-owned planes.

Presently the department controls only two planes. Various state agencies have their own craft and pilots. The commission said this is unwieldy and costly.

Consolidation of the Motor Vehicles Department, Highway Patrol and Accident Records Bureau into a new state department of public safety has been recommended by Nebraska's "Little Hoover" Commission.

The commission, a businessmen's group appointed by Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann, said the reorganization would eliminate duplication within the agencies and save taxpayer dollars.

The new department would be headed by a director appointed by the governor with the consent of the legislature. There would be separate divisions for law enforcement and record-keeping.

Presently the Highway Patrol and Accident Records Bureau are under the State Roads Department. The commission said this arrangement does not lend itself to efficient governmental operation as neither agency has much to do with highway construction.

"For greater efficiency, all functions relating to motor vehicle registration, control and safety records be combined into one department," the commission said.

Requirements for the public safety director should be set by law to assure "competent professional leadership" in the new department, the study unit added.

Tiemann announced last January that he would sponsor legislation in the 1969 session of the Unicameral to merge the three agencies so the commission's proposal came as no real surprise.

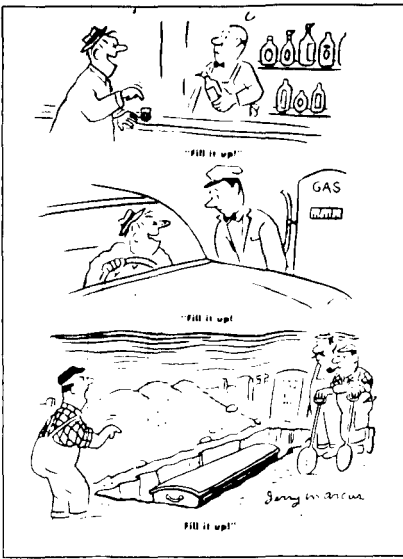

Likewise there was nothing revealing in the recommendation that an electronic data processing system be established for all drivers licenses, registrations, motor vehicle titles and financial responsibility records.

But there were some suggestions changes not heretofore mentioned, included were issuance of motor vehicle license plates on a three instead of two-year basis, and elimination of the motor vehicles department's accountant and financial responsibility fieldman. The commission estimated these actions would save $34,200 a year in tax funds.

The commission also released its study findings on the Roads and Aeronautics Departments.

The Roads Department survey generally embraced management changes proposed earlier by out-of-state consultants that conducted a two-year study of the highway agency. This included establishment of controls to monitor the expenditure of state money on roads built by the counties and cities.

"Legislation should be sought immediately which would provide a method of safeguarding funds allocated to cities and counties for maintaining and constructing useful, but carcass information on a full brother or sister is only about one-fourth as valuable as equally accurate information on the individual in question.

When feed efficiency information is not available remember that rate of gain is a good indicator of feed efficiency. Fast gaining hogs are also the most efficient converters of feed.

How much improvement the bear makes in a specific year will depend basically on the present level of performance in the herd, and the amount of hybrid vigor expressed in the cross.

Northeast Extension Notes by Myrtle Anderson

Much of upholstered furniture is bought on faith—faith in the reliability of the facts presented in advertising and stated by the merchant. An informed consumer can fortify that faith.

He needs to know what constitutes quality in the covering, fillings, framework, springs and cushions. Knowing facts about the upholstery coverings alone is a valuable asset. Hangtags on upholstery do not always list content of fiber.

How the upholsterer wears, cleans and retains its beauty depends upon the nature of the material used and its tailoring. Nylon fabrics take a lot of abrasion, clean well and remain attractive longer than rayon or blends. Vinyl plastics with fabric backing are more expensive than unbacked vinyl plastics but wear better under strain. Leather is long wearing but is expensive and does require good care to keep its appearance.

Tailoring techniques to consider are those used in applying the covering to the frame work. It should be cut "on grain-line" and fastened accordingly to the frame. Observe the cording or welting used. The more expensive has covering of the cord cut on the bias which prevents puckering on turns.

VA Q & A

Q. What facts are considered by the local board in determining a registrant's classification?
A. Classification is determined solely on the basis of the official forms of the Selective Service System and such other written information as may be contained in a registrant's file. Oral information should be summarized in writing and placed in the registrant's file.

Q. I want my attorney to go with me when I have my personal appearance before the local board. Must I file his name with the local board clerk in advance?
A. It is not permissible for him to go with you in that Selective Service regulations provide that no registrant may be represented before the local board by anyone acting as attorney or legal counsel.

First Week of Field Training Ends

Training is well under way for members of the 1st Battalion, 134th Infantry (Mechanized), Nebraska Army National Guard.

The battalion, with units from Wayne, O'Neill, Omaha, Wahoo, Norfolk and Columbus, departed early Aug. 10, making the 450-mile trip in a two-day truck convoy.

Since their arrival, the training schedule has kept this mechanized infantry battalion on the move. The Battalion Executive Officer, Major Joseph H. Baumbert of Columbus said, "We train from dawn to dusk—and then some."

After a tactical move to the field training area, the battalion established its bivouac area and prepared for formal training which began Tuesday. They converged on various weapons ranges to fire the 50-caliber machine gun and M1 millimeter mortar. Afternoon found them in platoon exercises with armored personnel carriers.

After supper, the men prepared for night patrolling problems. Training will progress from platoon and company training to a complete battalion tactical field training exercise.

The field training ended Friday when the battalion moved back to the permanent camp area for the weekend. The second week will find them engaged in more of the same training on a decentralized schedule.

The battalion is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel George Talmadge of Omaha.

NU Staffers Warn On Elm Treatment

"Caution: Beetles and root grafts may be hazardous to your elm tree's health."
 Dutch Elm disease, like cancer, has no known cure. Prevention of the disease is the only successful "control" method known. All "portions" reportedly having the ability to cure the disease have been unsuccessful when subjected to scientific experimentation.
 These comments and others, represent the position taken by 10 University of Nebraska scientists from Plant Pathology, Horticulture and Forestry, and Entomology departments, plus Lincoln and Omaha city foresters.

Interest in the disease in Nebraska began in 1958, two years before the first reported case occurred in Douglas County. Since that time these scientists and foresters have contributed a combined 75 years study to the disease and its control.
 This 75-year combined experience with the Nebraska elm problem, has been devoted to many areas of study including observation, analysis, experiments, corrective and preventive measures, diagnosis, and public information.
 Their conclusion: "The final decision for action rests with each individual community." In other words, "going dutch—each community must pay its own way and decide what it will do to cope with the disease. Whether to follow a preventive program or a replacement program is a decision reached after careful consideration of many factors," according to the specialists.

 In a recent Extension circular on the disease they reported that it is caused by a fungus introduced into the United States from Europe about 37 years ago, and which has spread across the Atlantic seaboard westward into Nebraska, northward into Canada and southward to Dixie land states.
 This fungus, scientifically named Ceratocystis ulmi, is most commonly carried from diseased to healthy trees by the smaller European Elm Bark Beetle. In areas where trees are close to each other it may be passed from tree to tree by root grafts.
 The fungus grows abundantly in the beetle galleries under the bark and when the beetle emerges it carries the fungus spores to neighboring healthy trees. This transmission occurs as the beetle feeds on the small twigs and tender crotches of the healthy trees.
 According to the specialists, all species of elm can be infected by the fungus. However, the American elm is far more susceptible than Siberian and Chinese elms.
 It is important to catch the trees in the early stages of infection. This can be done by carefully observing the tree and watching for one or more branches whose leaves begin to wilt and turn yellow. The best time to observe this is in the early to mid-summer months. When these signs are visible, you should make a cross cut with a knife on a small, wilted limb. In the cross cut section you will see a circle of dots or a dark ring in the wood beneath the bark. When the bark is peeled away, brown streaks are seen in the current season's sapwood. At this point, one may be highly suspicious of Dutch Elm disease—but not positive. Isolation into pure culture and identification of the fungus must be made before a positive diagnosis can be determined.
 Although the fungus doesn't kill the tree immediately it is good practice to remove the tree as soon as possible. However, if adjacent elms are located closely to the diseased tree, it is advisable to treat a narrow band of soil between the infected tree and its neighbors with Vapam. This will prevent root graft transmission of the fungus. The soil treatment should be made immediately upon diagnosis and the diseased tree removed 2-3 weeks later.
 The important thing for the public to remember is that there is no known cure once the tree is infected. Only preventive measures can stop the spread of the fungus to other trees, and the infected tree will ultimately die and have to be removed.
 If Nebraska communities wish to save their elm trees, a complete three step preventive plan must be followed.
 1) Sanitation, or the removal of dead or dying elm wood in healthy trees is a must. The burning of this wood destroys beetles and beetle breeding areas. In addition, elm logs recently cut for firewood must be removed and burned. Finally, standing but dead elms must be removed and destroyed.
 2) Apply a spray of Methoxychlor or DDT. This spray kills the bark beetles and it should be applied each year during the dormant season. Methoxychlor is as effective as DDT when used after Feb. 1, and is less harmful to birds and other wildlife.
 3) Use a soil fumigant between infected trees and healthy ones. This prevents the spread of the fungus through root grafts. Vapam is the most common fumigant used.
 "To be successful, all of these steps must be followed," the specialists report.
 "Although communities following a complete program of disease prevention have maintained annual disease losses below two per cent, most towns feel it is advisable to start a replacement program also. Under this program, it is recommended that adapted varieties be used and that solid plantings to one tree species be avoided."

 "Nebraska now has a total of 64 counties reporting diseased trees," says Dr. David Wysock, Extension plant pathologist and spokesman of the Nebraska program. "We suspect diseased trees are in adjacent counties but positive cases have not yet been obtained in culture," he added.
 In Nebraska, Brown, Cedar, Knox and Sherman Counties have been added to the blacklist so far this year.
 He explained that the states' heaviest mortality rate occurs in a band extending across the southeastern part of the state. Some communities in this area have a mortality rate as high as 40 per cent.
 "Although a cure for diseased trees would be a life saver for the elm tree, Nebraskans must not wait for this miracle to happen. They must act now according to the community's available finances and do what they can to prevent certain declination of the American elm," Wysock said.

Dixon County Plans Appreciation Dinner

Members of the Dixon County Extension Board and 4-H Council met jointly at the Northeast Station at Concord Tuesday evening. Plans were made to sponsor an appreciation dinner for businessmen in the county who have contributed to the success of the 4-H program. The dinner will be held at the Northeast Station the first week in October.

The 4-H Council elected the following officers: Ross Armstrong, Ponca, chairman; Willis Kahl, Wakefield, vice-chairman; and Mrs. Norman Anderson, Concord, secretary.

County Agent Howard Gillaspie announced that there are 24 4-H clubs in the county with a total membership of 333 young people.

Returns from NYC

Phyllis Prince, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Prince, of Winside, returned home Tuesday from Lincoln, where she attended the Nebraska Youth Conference, August 11, 12 and 13. Miss Prince received an invitation in July from the Governor's office, to be a delegate to the conference at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, sponsored by the Nebraska Council of Youth. Workshops and panel discussions were held on education, discrimination and government.

4-H Home Ec Coeds Offered Scholarships

Six $800 scholarships will be awarded this fall to 4-H coeds who plan to major in home economics.

These scholarships are part of the College Scholarship Fund set up by the Cooperative Extension Service and administered by the National 4-H Service Committee.

The home economics grants are for current or former 4-H members who will be enrolled in their junior year of college in the fall of 1968. Candidates submit their applications through the state 4-H Club office.

Scholastic and 4-H records will be judged in Chicago the first part of November, and winners will be announced during the National 4-H Congress held there, December 1-5.

Donors of two scholarships each are The S&H Foundation, Inc., The West Bend Company and Sunbeam Corporation.

BRIDGE WORKERS were getting ready to pour concrete Tuesday, August 13, when this picture was taken at the site of the new bridge just south of Wayne. Pours were made on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in order to complete the task.

About 222 feet long and 50 feet wide, the deck required just over 400 yards of concrete, more than enough to fill a room 35 feet square and eight feet tall.

The whole bridge will have approximately 577 yards of concrete in it when finished. The odd-looking machine in the middle of the picture is an electric troweling machine. It moves forward on rollers as the large trowel sweeps back and forth smoothing the concrete. Little hand finishing is required.

VA Q & A

Q. I am now 27 years old and earlier had my liability extended to age 35. Is there any chance of my being inducted into the Armed Forces?

A. If more personnel are needed, you might be called for induction. At the present time, with the exception of physicians and those who have been declared delinquent, only those who have been declared delinquent, only those registrants who have not attained their 26th birthday are being ordered to report for induction.

Q. My local board has refused to classify me into a deferred class. Can I request a deferment from the State Director of Selective Service?

A. You may request it, but he has not authority to grant a deferment. The State Director can appeal a classification, request reconsideration of a classification, or postpone an induction, but he cannot defer you. Only the local and appeal boards have the authority to classify.

Q. If I qualify for disability payments, will this reduce the amount of social security I can draw when I reach age 65?

A. No. In all probability it would increase the amount you can receive at age 65. If you have further questions contact your social security representative.

School Bus Safety Rules Urged for Kids, Parents

What is probably the state's largest transportation system will begin operation in the next few days, when the familiar yellow school buses begin rolling down highways and country roads.

Jerry McCall, Director of School Transportation with the State Department of Education, said approximately 2,100 school transportation vehicles, including small station-wagon type units, will carry about 60,000 pupils to school each morning and home each night.

The estimated number of students is based on actual count in previous years, projected against anticipated enrollments this fall, he said. A total of 472 school systems in the state have from one to 26 school buses of various types, McCall noted.

During the 1965-66 school year, Nebraska students will travel about 20 million miles by bus, including both daily conveyance to and from school and activity trips, the state official said.

Nebraska taxpayers will spend about 5 million dollars on transportation service to and from school during the coming school year, McCall said. This estimate is based on $4.8 million spent during 1965-67.

While the school bus system is perhaps the largest in the state, it also is the safest type of transportation available, McCall said. He cited National Safety Council figures for 1966 which show school buses have a lower fatality rate per 100 million passenger miles traveled than any other form of regular scheduled transportation or private cars. "It is 62.5 times safer to ride in a school bus than in a private passenger car," McCall said, referring to the same national study.

However, he warned that the cooperation and understanding of all parties—other motorists on the road, parents of school students and the students who are bus riders—is imperative if the state's most precious commodity, its children, are to be delivered safely to their destinations day after day. Prerequisites are safe vehicles and equipment and trained, knowledgeable and courteous drivers, McCall added.

Drivers, especially in areas being served by school buses for the first time, are urged to begin making adjustments before school actually begins by approaching all rural intersections with caution, and prepare to stop when a school bus stops to pick up or discharge a child.

He reminded that cars, both following and approaching a school bus, must come to a complete stop when the standard stop sign is out on the side of the bus. State law requires all cars to stop in this situation. Flashing lights at the top of the bus, both front and back, will warn other vehicles of an impending stop, followed by the stop sign swinging out from the left side of the bus.

In addition to these precautions, Mr. McCall listed these following rules for all bus riders to ensure their own safety as well as that of their fellow riders:

1. Previous to loading (on the road or at school).

a. Be on time at the designated school bus stop.

b. Stay off the road at all times while waiting for the bus.

c. Walk until the bus comes to a complete stop before attempting to enter.

d. Be careful in approaching bus stops.

e. Bus riders are not permitted to move toward the bus at the school loading zone until the buses have been brought to a complete stop.

ii. While on the bus.

a. Keep hands and heads inside the bus at all times.

b. Assist in keeping the bus safe and sanitary at all times.

c. Remember that loud talking and laughing or unnecessary confusion diverts the driver's attention and may result in a serious accident.

d. Treat bus equipment as you would valuable furniture in your own home. Damage to seats, etc., must be paid for by the offender.

e. Bus riders should never tamper with the bus or any of its equipment.

f. Leave no books, lunches or other articles on the bus.

g. Keep books, packages, coats and all other objects out of the aisle.

h. Help look after the safety and comfort of small children.

i. Bus riders are not permitted to leave their seats while the bus is in motion.

j. Bus riders are expected to be courteous to fellow pupils, the bus driver and the patrol officers.

k. No horse-play will be permitted around or on the school bus.

l. Absolute quiet will be demanded when approaching a railroad crossing stop.

m. In case of a road emergency students are to remain in the bus.

n. Remain seated until the bus stops to unload.

III. After leaving the bus.

a. Cross the road, when necessary, after getting off the bus (at least ten feet in front of the bus) but only after the bus driver has signaled and you have looked both directions for approaching traffic.

b. Be alert to the danger signal from the bus driver.

c. The bus driver will not discharge students at places other than the regular bus stop at the home or at school unless by proper authorization from parents or school officials.

IV. Extra-curricular trips.

a. The above rules and regulations will apply to all trips under school sponsorship.

b. Pupils will respect the wishes of a competent chaperon appointed by the school.

It is suggested that riders be ready for the bus at least five minutes before the time the bus usually calls for them. They should not stand in the traffic lanes while waiting for a bus. They are also reminded that profane or abusive language while riding the bus will deny them the right to ride the bus.

Drouths Frequent in Dixon County

It may be very dry in many areas around Wayne, but the dry conditions cannot equal the most severe drouth ever recorded in Dixon County.

According to information recorded by C. F. Putman, John McKinley and S. P. Baltzley, there was a period of over 15 months, from the late fall of 1863 to the spring of 1865, when not a drop of moisture of any kind fell in most of the county.

THE WAYNE HERALD

32nd Year - No. 37 Wayne, Nebraska 68787, Thursday, August 22, 1968 Section 4 - Pages 1 to 6

The heat was extreme, the ground baked to the hardness of a brick, springs and creaks dried up and there were no crops raised anywhere in the county. There was no grass for livestock except for a little in the Logan slough. Corn and wheat that had been planted in the spring stayed in the ground all year without germinating.

This period was a difficult one for the pioneers. Even wild game was scarce because of the lack of food. A few deer, rabbits, squirrel, quail, prairie chicken, ducks, geese and fur bearing animals were found along the larger streams and the Missouri River. These were hunted and trapped by the pioneers for their meat and skins.

Some of the older residents may have heard their parents or grandparents talk about the drouths of 1894-95, 1910 or 1926. There are also accounts of severe drouths in 1926, 1934, 1936, 1946 and 1956.

Nominee Slates Being Prepared For ASC Election

ASC community committees should always be the farmers who can best represent their neighbors, according to John H. Mohr, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County committee. Slates of nominees for membership on ASC community committees now are being established at the county ASCS office. The community committee elections will be held the third week in September.

"The committee system is the backbone of the farm programs," the chairman declared. "Its responsibilities include the conservation of natural resources on farms, the stabilization of agricultural commodities, and price-support activities which protect and improve farm income. We need the best possible cross-section of farmers to insure effective administration of the various measures."

Farmers who are eligible to vote in the community committee elections also have the right to nominate by petition candidates for committee membership. A candidate can be any farmer who is eligible and who has indicated that he is willing to serve. Such petitions, each one nominating one farmer and signed by six or more eligible voters, may be filed at the county office any time before August 23, 1968. Eligible voters may sign as many petitions as they wish. Additional nominations may be made by the incumbent ASC community and county committees. The nominating procedure seeks to insure fair and impartial elections by reducing vote splintering of minority group candidates.

Educators Focus Attention On a Longer School Year

"We're wasting one-fourth of every passing school year, and billions of dollars worth of school buildings that stand idle all summer."

This statement comes from National School Calendar Study, Minneapolis, Minn. "I love school — but not 11 months of it."

This statement comes from an eight-year-old third grader.

Both statements concern the question of year-round schools, a question which, despite the third-grader's reluctance, is getting increasing attention from educators.

So-called year-round schools — or at any rate 11-month or extended school years — are being advanced by education experts for a number of reasons.

They see the longer school year as a method of eliminating one of education's most nagging problems — the amount of "forgetting" that takes place over the summer as students put aside study habits and lessons learned for three months of play and sometimes boredom.

They point out that year-round schools could be a solution to expensive construction costs, with savings accomplished by getting greater use out of school plants.

They stress that year-round schools could enable students to graduate a year or more ahead of time.

While some children may, on the one hand, automatically object to the idea of a longer school year, their own demands, on the other hand, are cited against this objection. Their growing knowledge and sophistication and their eagerness for faster progress toward college and career goals call for an answer.

America runs one of the shortest school years in the world, and many critics say this is a leftover from the days of a primarily agricultural economy when children were needed to haul in the crops.

The U.S. average is 180 days.

In the Soviet Union it is 230 days. In Denmark, Germany and China, 230 to 240 days; Japan, 210; Austria, 240; Czechoslovakia, 240;

Netherlands, 240; France, 184 (they take off on Thursday, but attend school on Saturday); Norway, 228; Poland, 220; Rumania, 210; Sweden, 214; India, 200.

Questions remain to be answered and problems solved before year-round school becomes a reality. Meanwhile, experiments with a longer school year are being undertaken in a number of communities.

Some early experiments show that students on the longer calendar made greater academic gains than those on the conventional calendar. And low-ability students made the greatest headway of all.

Two Florida schools, Nova High School at Fort Lauderdale and the University School at Tallahassee, are running on a "trimmer system" in which the school year runs for eleven months and is split into three terms.

Houston, Tex., is taking a close look at the idea, and the California state senate has asked a study committee to report on the feasibility of putting all public schools in that state on a year-round calendar.

Newark, N. J., ran some of its schools on a four-quarter basis for 20 years as part of a long-term experiment. It was found that they graduated 22 per cent more of their students than conventional schools, and held onto many slower students who would have been dropouts in regular schools.

Rochester, Minn., found that extensive summer sessions which offered year-round employment opportunities attracted "a more competent teacher in the classroom." Offered a choice, 91 per cent of Rochester's teachers chose a year-round over a 9-month contract.

With all the pros and cons, discussion and testing of the longer school year goes forward from many viewpoints, throughout the country.

LEARNING RUSSIAN

Students are learning the Russian language in one third of U. S. schools systems with enrollments of over 12,000, reports the National Educational Association.

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald, Thursday, August 22, 1968

UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF TEACHERS all over the country, more and more students are taking part in a new kind of march on Washington. They visit the nation's Capitol for living lessons in government and history. Such trips, once reserved for high schoolers, now are often made by grade school groups.

THOUGHTFUL APPROACH of high schoolers to their studies is reflected in good grooming. Girls often choose separates combinations, such as the shirt, skirt and jacket shown.

Now There's a New Image of Teacher

Teacher Her image has changed through the years.

She's a person, with a personality of her own, not a stereotype. Or, he's a person — for one change is that more men are embarking on careers in education by becoming teachers at the elementary as well as the high school level.

Yesterday's proverb said, "Those who can, do, those who can't, teach."

Today more and more young people who select teaching as a career do so because they feel it offers opportunity for involvement, opportunity to act for change and growth.

"Those who will do more, teach," today's proverb might read.

That new kind of person, the teacher, is both more versatile in the wide range of things he does with and for his students and more specialized in particular fields concerned with educational innovations — such as ways to use automated learning.

Helping to program a computer might be part of teacher's job today — and so might the development and testing of new methods for teaching old familiar subjects such as math and reading.

This calls forth another aspect of teacher's personality. He's a student, too, continually learning and growing.

Because teacher is a person, statistics can't describe him, but they do give some clues.

Here, according to the National Education Association, is a statistical picture of teacher today.

The average teacher is on the sunny side of 40 — 39 1/2 years of age, to be exact.

Thirty-one per cent of all classroom teachers are men.

Number of men teachers in secondary schools is 88.9 per cent higher than 10 years ago, in elementary schools, the gain is 50.4 per cent.

Teacher has a bachelor's degree — 91 per cent of all teachers have — and probably is working toward a master's.

Teacher's salary prospects have grown considerably brighter in the past 20 years, but his take-home pay is less than that in other occupations with similar preparation requirements.

More than two million Americans now are school teachers or hold other instructional positions in the public schools. Approximately one person in 100 is on a public school instructional staff.
