In a quiet ceremony in her home Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Alfred Wagner of Winside accepted the Bronze Star, Purple Heart and seven other medals for her son, Sergeant Robert A. Wagner, 20, who was killed in action in Vietnam in May.

Captain Jim Booth of Fort Omaha awarded the medals posthumously.

Mrs. Wagner also accepted the Combat Infantry Badge, Good Conduct Medal, Republic of Vietnam Service Ribbon, Republic of Vietnam Campaign Ribbon, Expert Badge with Rifle Bar, Marksman Badge with Machine Gun Bar and the National Defense Ribbon.

Sergeant Wagner, a 1966 graduate of Winside High School, entered the service in October, 1966. He took his basic training at Fort Carson, Colo., and spent eight months in Hawaii before leaving for Vietnam Dec. 20, 1967.

His father, who died at Veterans' Hospital in Omaha shortly after Mrs. Wagner received word of her son's death, was a Purple Heart winner in World War II for shrapnel wounds he received while serving in Okinawa in 1944.

The bronze star citation reads, "by direction of the President of the United States this bronze star medal was presented posthumously to Robert A. Wagner for distinguishing himself with outstanding meritorious service in connection with foreign operations against hostile forces in the Republic of Vietnam during a period from December 1967 to May 1968."

"Through his untiring efforts and professional ability, he consistently obtained outstanding results. He was quick to grasp the implication of a new problem, with which he was faced as a result of ever changing situations inherent in a counterinsurgency operation, and to find ways and means to solve these problems."

"The energetic application of his extensive knowledge has ma-

Purpose of the meeting is to allow the commission to consider a request of the city council for the commission to rezone an area along the north side of East Seventh from the armory east to the railroad tracks.

The area, now zoned A-1 and B-1, has been requested to be changed to B-1, a highway busness zone, by the council. The area extends 500 feet north from the highway. Site of the meeting will be at the Chamber of Commerce office in Wayne. The meeting is open to the public.

Grid Coach Talks To Kiwanis Club

WHS Football Coach Allen Hansen Monday told Wayne Kiwanis his feelings about Friday night's game with Madison and his prospects for the rest of the season.

"We expected Madison to be tougher," Hansen said, but added, "I believe our tough defense and scoring on our first play from scrimmage demoralized them."

Hansen said 90 boys, including 30 freshmen, are out for football this year.

Particularly pleasing to Hansen was the performance of two transfer students, Roger Boyce and Wayne DeTurk.

Boyce, a 180-pound center, gives Hansen a strong blocker at the position, he said and DeTurk was rated as the leading tackler last year at North Bend.

Boyce is from Smith Center, Kan.

"I'm proud of our defense this year," Hansen said.

Laurel and Scribner will be the tough teams in the conference this year, according to Hansen.

Wayne takes on Wisner gridder here Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the WSC stadium in its second game of the season.

Seventh and Main Contract OKed; Work Starts Soon

The contract for improvement of the intersection of Seventh and Main has been approved and work is expected to start soon on the project, City Clerk Dan Sherry said Tuesday.

Engineer's estimate of cost for the project is $31,800.

Included in the work will be widening and cutting back of the corners, especially on the north side of Seventh, on each side of Main.

A substantial amount will be cut off the corner where the Lil' Duffer stands and the cutback will be tapered west gradually to the sidewalk on the east side of Pearl at Seventh.

On the east side of Main the cutback will be carried to Logan street on the north side of seventh.

On all four sides of the intersection painted lane markers will be placed to give two lanes of traffic approaching the intersection, so that right turns may be made without waiting for straight ahead or left turn traffic to clear the street.

No islands are planned for the intersection. Only painted lane markers will be used.

Successful bidder on the project is Fining Ready Mix Concrete of Wayne.

Plans call for all improvement work to be done in concrete.

Corners will be cut back on all four angles of the intersection as indicated in the accompanying drawing. Shaded portions show the amount to be excavated and replaced with concrete paving and curb.

Provisions will be made in the paving for the installation of automatic traffic lights but none will be installed at this time.

Work probably will start on the project the first of the week, according to John Fining, although some incidental removals may be made yet this week.

He estimated it would take three to four weeks to complete the work if the weather permits.

"We still must talk to the operators of businesses on the corner," he explained, "but we will get that done soon."

First chore for the crew will be to remove brick paving and concrete curbing in the area.

Rain Halts Highway Work; Main Street Paving Next

Rain was welcomed by residents of Wayne county this week but it held up work on Highway 15 from Wayne south.

Project Engineer Dale Poeslman said Tuesday that had the rain held off a few more days the section of Main street in Wayne from Clark street to the new bridge would have been paved in concrete and the first lift of the blacktop on the highway south of town would be nearly to Wayne.

"I like to see the rain," he said, "but it has slowed down our work on the highway."

Poeslman said most of the work done on Main street in Wayne will have to be done again, even though forms are laid for some of the concrete.

The new grade now is soaked with rain and holding water. This must be drained off and the roadway reworked before the concrete can be poured.

"We planned to be paving by Wednesday," Poeslman said, "but now that has all been changed. We'll just have to wait for the weather to turn dry again."

The first lift, or layer, of blacktop can be seen in the distance south of Wayne.

It still looks as though the project will be completed by Nov. 1, Poeslman said.

MUDHOLE NOW. Would have been paved this week but for rain.

Drouth Is Topic of Dixon County Group

Dixon County Extension Board met September 10 at the North-east Station in Concord with Janet Schmeckle as guest. She is a home economics trainee who is spending several weeks in this area and is a recent graduate of the University of Nebraska. Members discussed the present drought conditions that exist over much of northeast Nebraska and they agreed that farmers were wise in trying to salvage as much as they could from their corn fields by cutting the crop for silage. They noted that even in irrigated fields the ears in many cases had not filled properly.

Next meeting of the group will be October 8 at Howard Gillespie's home in Allen.

Allen Drops Wynot 21-13 In Season Opener Saturday

The Allen High Eagles swooped down and grasped a 21-13 victory over Wynot in the opening game of the 1968 season Saturday night at Hartington.

Finding plenty of protection behind a big and strong line, the Eagle ball carriers racked up over 200 yards on the ground in the first half. Allen gained 438 total yards in the game compared to Wynot's 230.

Accepting the opening kickoff from Wynot, Allen marched to the 20 yard line in their first series of plays. A personal foul penalty against Wynot gave them a first down on Wynot's 10 yard line and they were within scoring distance.

Three plays later Allen was still on the 10 and bucking a strong Wynot defense. Attempting to hit a receiver in the end zone, Allen's quarterback had his pass stolen by Wynot's Laise who moved the ball to Wynot's three yard line. Laise made a couple more yards but Wynot elected to punt out of trouble after being held for little gain by Allen's defense.

Allen needed only eight plays to score after picking off the punt on their own 47. Included in the drive was a long gain of 15 yards by halfback Larry Carr to move the ball to the 19. Quarterback Craig Schultz rolled around his left end to give Allen their first score with 26 left in the first quarter. The extra point attempt glanced off an opposing lineman's shoulder and cleared the goal posts to give Allen a 7-0 lead.

One play after the kick off, Allen recovered Wynot's fumble to take possession going into the second quarter.

Another strong drive by Allen was again stopped at Wynot's 10 when another interception proved costly. Wynot moved the ball to their 16 before being forced to kick.

Allen almost mirrored their previous touchdown drive as they moved 42 yards in ten plays to go ahead 13-0 with 3:39 left in the second quarter. Again Carr, aided by Schultz, was instrumental in gaining the needed yardage as he rolled around his right and left sides. This time the extra point failed to clear the posts.

Wynot moved the ball to Allen's 34 before an Allen defensive man intercepted a pass and gave Allen the ball on their 27. The half time gun sounded with Allen on the defense at mid field and leading 13-0.

Refreshed by the rest, Wynot needed only four plays to end their scoring drought. Wynot sent the ball carrier around the right end from the 47 and the play went all the way to make the score 13-6 with 10:11 left in the third quarter. Allen's defense was able to block the extra point try.

Giving as good as they received, Allen took the kick off and marched from their 20 to Wynot's 45 before quarterback Al Smith exploded around his right side for a 45 yard touchdown run with 6:35 left. Again Allen's extra point try failed and they led 19 to 6.

One play after Wynot received Allen's kick, quarterback Schultz intercepted a pass and Allen was on the move again. Long gains of 24 yards by Smith and 10 yards by Schultz moved them inside Wynot's 10 yard line before they gave up the ball on the five with :54 left. A fumble by Wynot on the seven gave Allen another chance but the quarter ended before they could drive into the end zone.

Allen fumbled at the opening of the last quarter but they were able to catch Wynot in the end zone to move ahead 21 to 6 with 11:24 left in the game.

Neither team could take advantage of their next series of plays until Wynot's Cook recovered an Allen fumble on Wynot's 40 with 10:45 left. Wynot only needed one pass play and four running plays to score again. The extra point with 8:33 left

RUSHING FOR MORE YARDAGE in Saturday's tilt with Wynot, Larry Carr attempts to elude one of Wynot's defensive men. Carr was second in yards gained with 109 in 21 carries. Al Smith led the team with 171 yards in 20 carries. Third was Craig Schultz with 90 yards in 15 carries.

13. Allen moved the ball from their own 14 to Wynot's 8 in the next series of plays before having Wynot intercept a pass. Failing to make a first down, Wynot was forced to punt from their 22 on fourth down.

Holding Allen on the 40 for the next two plays, Wynot gave Allen a first down to the 25 on a personal foul with 1:28. Fired up by the foul, Wynot had pushed Allen back to the 44 when the game ended with Allen on top 21 to 13.

Looking for its second victory of the season, Allen journeys to Winside Friday night with a tilt against the Wildcats. Winside lost their opener against Emerson-Hubbard 25 to 0 Friday night.

Jr. Bowling Results

The junior bowling team of Kardell, Koerber and Johnson won once again with a score of 695. Smith, Lowe and Hall took second place with 515.

Duck Hunters' Prospects Poor

By Chuck Griffith
Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife

When the continent's wild ducks pack their suitcases and head south, the nation's duck hunters will face a season of mixed luck and disappointment.

With drought throughout the prime northern breeding grounds and duck production near the "wipe-out" mark, most waterfowlers will have to be satisfied with less than average gunning.

Hardest hit by the drought in the U. S. and Canadian prairie pothole country were the mallards, pintails, blue-winged teal, canvasback and redheads. These five species normally furnish the bulk of shooting to Central and Mississippi Flyway hunters.

Mallards, never fully recovered from their disastrous population decline of the early 1960's, fared poorly this past summer. Snowfall was nearly absent last winter in the northern prairies. Spring and summer rainfall produced a good wheat crop but no run-off to fill the sloughs and marshes needed to produce ducks.

The mallard picture was grim enough to prompt the states making up the Mississippi Flyway to ask for the most stringent restrictions on the mallard bag on record. State and federal waterfowl managers hope the resultant hunting regulations will cut the mallard kill in that flyway by two-thirds from 1967, when 1.7 million mallards were taken there.

The federal Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, charged with managing the migratory waterfowl resource on a national basis, expanded the effort to save mallards by across-the-board restrictions in all flyways.

Bag limits and season lengths were cut in the Central Flyway, too—a step which might cut the kill of mallard breeders by one-third there.

These two flyways—Central and Mississippi—host the bulk of the mallards produced in the continent's prairie pothole country where the 1967-68 drought took its heaviest toll.

Restrictions were placed on canvasback and redhead shooting in all the flyways, too.

Both these species of diving ducks also have their chief breeding grounds in the prairie provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Both species are at extremely low population levels.

SOPHOMORE END JIM FLETCHER finally broke Wayne State Wildcats' scoring drought in the third quarter against Midland when he caught this 10 yard pass from quarterback Marty Going. The score capped a 53-yard drive by the Wildcats and started them on their way to a 16-0 win over Midland in the opening game of the season.

Wayne Ices Midland 16-0; Heads North for Moorhead

On the strength of an opening game victory, Wayne State's football team goes to Moorhead State of Minnesota Saturday for what could be one of the year's stiffest tests.

One thing the Wildcat gridders can be sure of is that Moorhead players from last year remember the 1967 Wayne-Moorhead result. And who can forget that 89-yard pass play from Steve Gunther to Sam Singleton which scored the winning Wayne touchdown as time evaporated?

At halftime of that circus, Moorhead led 26-7, after getting all its points during 8 1/2 minutes of the second quarter. The final 32-27 score left the visiting Dragons shocked.

This week there should be little doubt they are breathing fire, especially after losses in their first two games, notes Wayne Coach John Jermier.

Last Saturday's 16-0 win over Midland proved to be, as a drama coach might put it, a fair dress rehearsal for the Moorhead battle. The Wildcats looked pretty tame offensively through the 0-0 first half, but dug in late in the third quarter to gain a passing touchdown after a 53-yard drive. Engineer of the drive was freshman quarterback Marty Going, subbing for injured starter Chuck Trickler. He passed the final 10 yards to sophomore end Jim Fletcher, who snared the ball from several Midland defenders in the end zone.

Senior halfback Don Grubaugh kicked the extra point. Then in the fourth quarter, Grubaugh ran a punt return 74 yards to score, picking up handy blocks on the sideline. He also kicked the point for this TD. A few minutes earlier Grubaugh came electrifying close to kicking a 48-yard field goal—long enough but a few feet wide.

A safety late in the game added two Wayne points when Midland's center pass to the punter sailed through the end zone.

Wayne lost two touchdowns by penalty, one on a 44-yard Singleton romp, the other on a Goling-to-Ed Knapp pass for five yards. Had sizzling Sammy got that 44 yards, he would have gained an even 100 for the half game he played before an injury benched him. Even so, he led Wildcat rushing with 56. Whether he will be at full strength against Moorhead was still a question at mid-week.

Jermier described himself as "not disappointed" with the offensive unit's work on the new slot formations, but he said it still needs polishing.

The defense, however, showed some of the stuff it was supposed to have. Result: Midland managed only nine net yards rushing, 21 passing. Even so, Defensive Coach Ralph Barclay thinks his Bandits can do better (he always thinks so).

The starting quarterback assignment against Moorhead remains in doubt. Trickler's injury may hamper him, but rookie Going proved he could compete for the No. 1 spot regardless.

Wayne Golfers Play at Oakland

Several golfers from the Wayne area took part in the Oakland Open Tournament Sunday.

Ken Dahl was in a three-way tie in the Championship flight with a score of 110 after 27 holes. He lost the first hole of a sudden-death playoff and settled for third place.

Jim Marsh won the second flight and Wayne Tietgen won the sixth flight. Les Lutt took third in the third flight and Kenny Whorlow took third in the fifth flight.

The four flyways—Atlantic, Mississippi, Central and Pacific—are management units which correspond basically to the north to south migration routes used by migrating waterfowl.

Boundaries of the flyways are political boundaries—state lines in most cases—but ducks, geese

Hoskins Drivers Grab Trophies, Honors on Ovals

Most of the dust has settled on the area stock car tracks after another season of hard driving by the racers. Racing has been completed at Norfolk's Riviera Raceway, Yankton's and other migrants don't always recognize these geographical niceties. For example, the roundabout migration of the pintail and the west to east migration of the canvasback pose special management problems.

Other problems of migration are sometimes common to the states of a particular flyway but unique only to that flyway. These include varying abundance and distribution of the most sought-after species, a variation in hunting pressure, different hunting techniques and so on.

States in the upper part of the flyways got first crack at the migrants and, being acutely aware that the breeding grounds aren't always the "horn of plenty" because of drought and drainage, are more wary of overshooting their breeding populations.

Southern states in the flyways provide the wintering grounds and host waterfowl concentrations that might stagger the northern hunter. Many of these wintering grounds are privately-owned marshes, since many could be drained and profitably farmed.

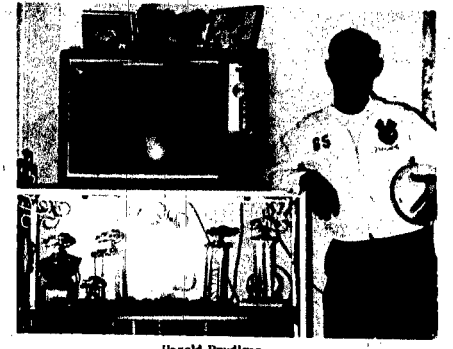

That fear has been realized only partially, despite a number of highly restrictive seasons in the past decade. The wintering grounds are disappearing but pollution and other forms of destruction have joined drainage as the major causes.

The American duck hunter, if he is past the novice stage, has seen the panorama of changing seasons, waterfowl conditions, hunting methods and regulations through the peephole of his favorite marsh, pass or pot-hole. He realizes, however reluctantly, that the good old days are gone forever.

three B Features and one C Feature. He also won 13 heat races and eight A Features.

Gene Wagner's efforts on the tracks yielded him fifth place in the Championship Race at Albion and first-place standing in total points on Albion's oval.

Harold Brudigan, brother to Gene, racked up first place wins in six heat races and two A Features during the season's action.

Vista Men Propose

Community Center

Guest speaker at the Lions Club Tuesday night were the two VISTA workers who are presently living and working in the Wayne area.

After explaining the function of VISTA and discussing the poverty conditions in the United States, the two men explained the project which is currently taking up most of their time.

The two workers, Charles Smith and Frank Rinaldo, told the group they are trying to set up a community center in Wayne. Although still in the planning stages, the center would provide a central place where functions can be held for teenagers and elderly people.

Smith and Rinaldo have been talking about this project with several people and groups and they describe the reactions they are getting as quite good. They received a favorable response from the recreation committee Monday night when they set forth the idea at that group's meeting. They also received a pledge of support from a person in Wayne who knows the needs and desires of elderly citizens.

The two workers told the group that they hope the community center in time could be a place where the elderly people in Wayne could go to spend useful and productive hours. At other times, the workers said, it could be used for a place where teenagers could gather and take part in a variety of activities.

Still looking for more support, the two workers said that their major obstacle is obtaining a building for the center. Another thing they hope will happen is that people will volunteer their time to help at the center.

The two workers plan to talk with other community groups and with people who have knowledge needed for the operation of the center in hopes to get more people actively behind the idea.

Dairy Expert Says Farmers Must Change Dairy Feed

"The shortage of good quality hay and the abundance of silage this winter is going to mean changing grain mixtures for dairy cows this winter," according to Don J. Kubik, extension dairy specialist at the Northeast Station, Concord.

"In order to get maximum economic production from dairy cows this winter farmers must supplement the roughage they have available adequately. They must not assume a normal vitamin or mineral content of the roughages. They need to supplement these for insurance sake," Kubik noted.

"Add 20 pound high phosphorus mineral salt to each ton of grain mixture," Kubik states. For insurance sake this year it might also be well to add enough Vitamin A to furnish 25,000 I.U. per cow per day," Kubik adds.

"Protein supplementation is going to be more important this year as farmers feed more non-legume roughage," Kubik warns.

At the bottom of this story is a table showing Kubik's recommendations for protein content of grain rations when feeding various roughage combinations.

In addition to providing a properly balanced grain ration, it is important to feed adequate grain to each cow every day. For a copy of recommended grain allowances write to Kubik at the NE Station.

All of the above recommendations are also sound for feeds containing higher than normal levels of nitrate.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give your own thoughts to the subject, discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

$600 Deduction

Uncle Sam's allowance of $600 for a standard income tax deduction for a taxpayer's dependent came under scrutiny recently when a Congressman from California looked at some other figures the government spends on individuals.

The Congressman found that Uncle Sam pays $800 per year to recipients of aid to dependent children, spends about $3,200 annually to maintain a federal prison inmate and provides $11,000 per year to train a Job Corps youngster.

What the Congressman found is that while some programs of government are in a constant state of revision, others are just as constantly stagnant.

The $600 figure was set many years ago when $600 would do quite a bit toward housing, clothing and feeding a child. Now it won't even buy his car, not to mention the other necessities of food and shelter.

Uncle Sam, however, realizes that it does cost more to live, to rear children and support other dependents, too. He proves this regularly with periodic pay raises granted to government employees. Probably the main reason the $600 figure has stood as a standard tax deduction for dependents is that not enough taxpayers organize and complain in a group about the lack of attention to their needs.

Tell It Like It Is

In recent weeks it seems to have become fashionable to "tell it like it is."

We hear this phrase constantly from both sides in the presidential campaign, delivered with emphasis and the apparent conviction that it is a new idea.

However the semantics mean different things to different sides, and "telling it like it is" often brings up completely opposing points of view.

In our lexicon "telling it like it is" simply means telling the truth. If this suddenly has become fashionable perhaps it will mean the closing of the credibility gap used so often in Washington by Presidents and their cabinet officers.

If it means this, then we are all for it for telling the truth has never been out of style.

Hossack to Leave Roads Post Chores November 1

LINCOLN—The man who has steered Nebraska's highway program the past nine years will leave state government Nov. 1.

John Hossack, 57, a State Roads Department employee since he took a job as a construction gang rodmaster 35 years ago, offered his resignation as State Engineer to Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann "because much of the old challenge is gone."

During his tenure as chief of the highway program, Hossack faced a series of challenges. All but 24 miles of the Interstate Highway, which now nearly spans the state, was built under his direction. When he took over in 1960, there was 2,992 miles of gravel in the state highway system. That total has been reduced to about 970 miles.

Hossack also oversaw the construction of the $2 million Highway Department headquarters building south of Lincoln near the State Penitentiary.

The State Engineer was not the only member of the governor's official family involved in a series of recent personnel changes.

Tiemann promoted Larry C. Johns, 58, from director of the Motor Vehicles Department to administrative assistant in the governor's office. This filled the vacancy left at the first of the month by the resignation of Dr. Clayton Yentzer.

Replacing Johns in the Motor Vehicles post was Emmett Dennis, 35, who was moved from his slot as director of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Dennis is believed to be the first Negro ever to serve as a department head in Nebraska and the first in the nation to head a state motor vehicles agency.

The Dennis and Johns selections were made by the governor. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission chose Reid E. Devoe of Lincoln to succeed Dennis.

Douglas Bereuter, director of the Division of State and Urban Affairs in the Economic Development Department, was also given a new assignment.

He was moved to the governor's office to lay the groundwork for a proposed Office of State Planning.

In announcing that change, Tiemann said several agencies—especially the Highway Department and Soil and Water Conservation Commission—have been developing state plans.

"This type of constructive planning within departments," he said, "must and will continue. But that planning needs to be coordinated in order to eliminate possible duplication and to develop an overall comprehensive state planning program by which priorities for allocation of resources can be established."

Bereuter defined comprehensive state planning as a policy development process. He said the objective is "to enunciate the unstated goals of state government and assist the governor, the legislature and administrative personnel to focus on those areas where goals and systems of priorities are completely lacking or in conflict."

County Agent's Column

by Harold Ingalls

Farm Federation

The following is taken from the editorial page of the National Livestock Producer. Surprisingly this message for farmers would come from a nun in a Catholic College. It has been said before, but why no one pays heed is a sad commentary on farmer intelligence.

The best hope for agriculture is the County Federation, asserts Sister M. Thomas More of Holy Family College. In a speech bristling with criticism of the status quo at the National Institute of Animal Agriculture last April, Sister More urged farmers to get off their duffs and get organized at the county level.

Farmers are organized to death really, but they have no organization. There are about 400 farm organizations, 150 commodity groups, 160 non-farmer groups who live off agriculture, and of course, the Big Four—Grange, Union, Bureau and NFO, (in order of origin).

With all these organizations, farmers have no bargaining power because they have no machinery to effect it. Farmers must consolidate their forces. "To judge from the current record of most farm organizations," says Sister More, "farmers can't compel concessions from their own memberships much less from other segments of the economy."

Farmers will have to invent the structure that will do the job for them—stop looking at labor for the cue. Bargaining on the factory market is not the same as bargaining on the goods and services market. Farmers are businessmen, dealing with suppliers on one hand, with consumers on the other. They are not employees dealing with management.

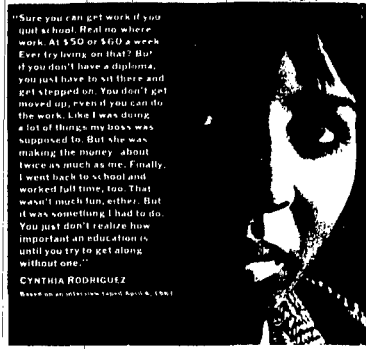

The process of federation should start at the bottom, the county level. This will be your salvation. Don't wait for signals from the top. Such a miracle will never come for two reasons: (1) The fellow holding four acres doesn't want a re-deal; and (2) present farm leaders, at state and national levels, have so maligned and abused each other in public and in private for so long that to expect these people to sit around a table and negotiate differences is just asking too much. Nobody can eat that much crow.

Let's face the moment of truth in this business. The real reason for the failure of farm policy to date is: Farmers are not conceiving it together; farmers are not proposing it together; farmers are not promoting it together.

Schuyler Testing Station The Eastern Nebraska Beef Cattle Testing Station at Schuyler will begin its fifth year of testing on October 25 and a record number of entries is anticipated. The Station conducts a central bull testing program to provide a testing place with like conditions for breeders to compare their bull's performance with those of other breeders. A feedlot and carcass evaluation program for steers provides rate of gain and

The Hoover Commission also urged the State Personnel Department to hurry with its development of wage and salary systems and to hire the work done by a consulting firm if necessary.

If you think staying in school is tough, listen to someone who quit.

"Sure you can get work if you quit school. Read no where work. At $50 or $60 a week. Every thing on that? But if you don't have a diploma, you just have to sit there and get stepped on. You don't get moved up, you don't get into the work. Like I was doing a lot of things my boss was supposed to. But she was making the money about twice as much as me. Finally, I went back to school and worked full time, too. That meant more than getting that it was something I had to do. You just don't realize how important an education is until you try to get along without one."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor: We enjoyed so much reading in The Wayne Herald about the whereabouts and progress of John Anderson, an old friend and classmate that we thought others might find it interesting to learn the same information about us.

Ronald Fisher recently accepted a position with the classified division of the Los Angeles

City Board of Education as a Journeyman Sheet Metal Worker. From 113 taking the examination only Mr. Fisher and another scored high enough to pass the test.

Mr. Fisher has been attending night school for the past 3 years in order to attain this position.

The Fishers live in Cudahy, Calif. and are active in church, school and YMCA activities.

Ronald Fisher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fisher of Concord. Mrs. Fisher is the daughter of Mrs. Grace Dawson of Wayne. They have 4 children, Cyndee, Daniel, Kurt and Tracy.

This is just a little about ourselves if you decide to use this information for your paper we would appreciate it.

Thank you for such an informative paper. It's interesting to read about the folks we grew up with and learn what they are doing now.

Sincerely yours, (Mrs. Ronald R. Fisher, 4514 1/2 Santa Ana St., Cudahy, Calif. 90201).

Steam Show Visitors Step Into Past

A crowd of about 1,000 people journeyed from 1968 to the early 1900's Saturday and Sunday when they attended the fifth annual Eastern Nebraska Steam Threshing Show on the Ray Magnuson farm southeast of Allen.

The large crowd, about the same as last year's, saw numerous steam-operated machines which had their heyday the first part of the century.

Wood was cut on a 1/3 scale model of a 1919 six horsepower Fairbanks-Morse Model Z Engine built from scratch by Paul Jacobson of Le Mars. It took him about one year's spare time to build the engine.

Ellis Johnson of Wakefield displayed two scale steamers built by a boy about 17 or 18 years old. One cost him $900 and was a 1/3 scale Buffalo-Pitts steamer. The other, a two inch scale Case Steamer, cost him about $650. Both were made by a Minneapolis high school student and Johnson said they took him about three years to complete. Johnson was unable to even estimate how many man hours must have gone into their construction.

Two of Ray Magnuson's machines drew curious glances from the younger spectators. He displayed his 28 horsepower 1921 Minneapolis steamer and his 15 horsepower 1912 Case steamer. Both are coal burners. He also had his 20 horsepower straw burning Huber powering a saw.

Two men, Clair Chism of Lincoln and Emil Noaha of Wahoo, brought several model engines to display during the show. They included a scale model of Magnuson's straw burning Huber and a 5 horsepower Case team engine. All required painstaking work to build to the correct dimensions.

Also included in the show were several antique cars, including a 1928 Model A Ford and a 1924 Dodge. Both were in near production-line condition.

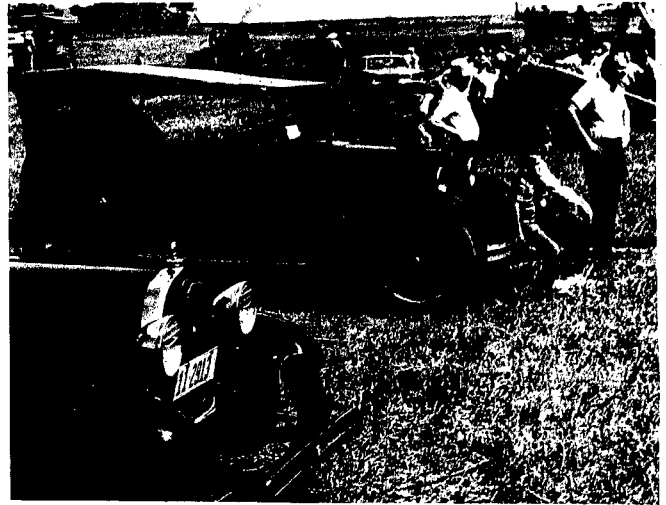

One of the big attractions of the show was the steam threshing. The older spectators watched reminiscently as the steam engine was jockeyed into position and the belt connected to the steam engine and the thrasher. Youngsters looked a bit amazed at the amount of work needed to thresh the grain.

Ray Magnuson, one of the two sponsors of the show, said about 750 or 800 people turned out for the show Sunday, several hundred more than were there Saturday.

The person who came the longest distance to display a machine at the show was Ed Boldenski of West Concord, Minn. Also displaying machines were men from Schuyler, Sioux Falls and Lincoln. About 10 men brought over 30 machines to the show.

The other sponsor of the Eastern Nebraska Steam Show was Carl Frerichs of Allen. Magnuson said that Louie Rohan of Newcastle and many neighbors and friends did a lot of work to make the show possible.

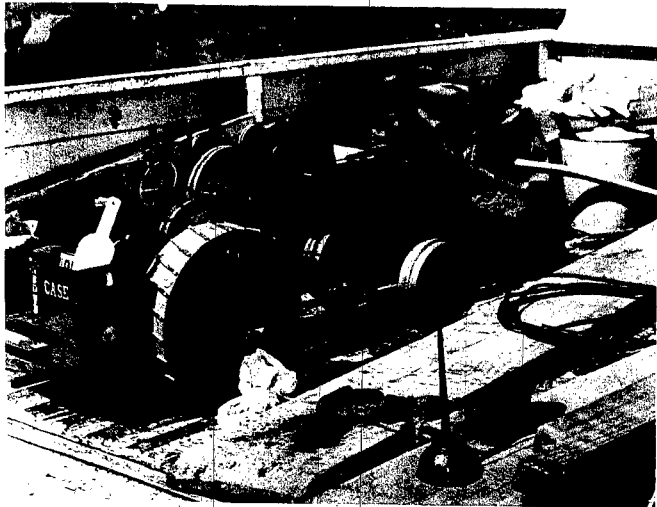

A similar show is scheduled for September 28-29 at the Hill Mayberry farm east of Niobrara. The twelfth annual Northeast Nebraska Threshers Reunion will include a parade of steam engines, a saw mill in operation and grain threshing. Two features of the show will be plowing with a steam engine on an eight-bottom plow and hand-fed horse-powered threshing.

RESTORED TO ALMOST PRODUCTION-LINE CONDITION were these two old cars on display at the steam show. At left is a 1928 Model A Ford owned by Lester Williams of Sioux City. Paul Sweeney of Sioux City probably didn't know his gleaming 1924 Dodge would be used as a snafu by a couple boys somewhat in the dark about the whole affair.

NOW, THAT'S AN OLD-TIME THRESHING BEE! Except for the newer vehicles, this could be easily mistaken for a picture from a paper printed half a century ago. As one spectator at the threshing show remarked: "It's too bad time couldn't have stopped 50 years ago."

ELLIS JOHNSON of Wakefield had to leave this model steam engine in the back of his pickup Saturday because he couldn't keep both of his models running at the same time. This model of a Case steamer was made by a high school student in 1964 and Johnson paid $650 for it. The youth certainly didn't build this model to make money — the hours necessary to complete such a model would probably be staggering.

extra force to break it. There is nothing extraordinary about this. For ages the prairies have been pebbled by the elements and trodden by millions of buffalo and other wild animals, until the natural rich soil became as compact as a floor. When rains fall on soil of this character, the greater part runs off into the creeks and rivers and is soon on its way to the Gulf. Observe now the change which cultivation makes. After the soil is broken, the rain as it falls is absorbed and retained to be given off by evaporation or to produce springs. This, of course, must give increased moisture and rainfall."

Rainfall Follows After Plowing

Dr. Samuel Aughey, professor of natural science and a member of the first faculty of Nebraska University in 1871, advocated the theory that rainfall follows the plow. He wrote a book titled Sketches of Physical Geography and Geology of Nebraska. His theory about plowing and moisture are explained in the following passage from his book. "Anyone who examines a piece of raw prairie closely must observe how compact it is. Everyone who opens up a new farm soon finds that it requires an

Fungus May Hurt Area Corn Crop; Expert Advises Four Precautions

"There is every possibility that farmers may experience a high level of stalk rot this year."

This warning to area farmers comes from Dr. David S. Wysong, extension plant pathologist at the University of Nebraska Department of Plant Pathology.

Because of a severe infestation of corn stalk rot this fall in many fields throughout Nebraska, farmers should harvest corn as soon as possible after kernel moisture content is acceptable.

"This fungus disease developed early this season and is already prevalent in many fields," Wysong said. Based on samples submitted by county agents, and observations in the field, it may become increasingly severe before the normal October harvest, Wysong added.

The fungus organism itself is generally present in most cornfields each year, Wysong said, but a combination of conditions this season has favored the development of the disease.

These factors include extreme weather conditions before tasseling, followed by abundant moisture during the past three weeks.

Cultural practices which are necessary for high corn yields also contribute to the high incidence of cornstalk rot, Wysong commented. The disease is generally more severe in irrigated corn than in dry-land corn, and is stepped up under high rates of nitrogen fertilization. A plant population of more than 16,000 plants per acre also usually leads to increased stalk rot, he said.

The fungus disrupts normal plant processes, resulting in poorly filled ears, lack of kernel development at the ear tips, and premature death of infected plants. In its severe stages, the stalk loses strength and the corn plant breaks and goes down.

"Actual grain weight may be reduced by five to 20 percent in standing corn at harvest. Of greater importance is the high percentage of broken plants, and in some fields more than half of the ears may be on the ground, beyond the reach of mechanical harvesters," Wysong stated.

Underlining the status of corn stalk rot as a serious crop disease in Nebraska are estimates that it costs Nebraska farmers $10 to $30 million annually, the plant disease specialist said.

Researchers have been unable to determine exactly how or when the fungus enters the plant, although it usually is not noticeable until late in the growing season. There are no known methods to completely control stalk rot, but several precautionary measures may help alleviate losses another year, Wysong said. Some of these possibilities need to be noted when seed corn for the 1969 crop season is purchased this winter, he added. He listed these four guidelines:

Do not use excessive amounts of nitrogen, and make sure potassium levels are adequate. Use a balanced fertilizer program based upon soil sample analysis.

Plant hybrids that utilize the full growing season.

Use hybrids that show resistance to Northern Leaf Blight

Feed Drying-Handling-Storage Center

A new plan for a grain feed handling and drying center is of interest to farmers, elevator operators, and grain storage dealers. This type of facility is designed for an expanding operation in handling, drying and storing dry grain.

Alternate storage layouts are shown for grain capacities of 12,000 to 40,000 bushels. Pertinent details on arrangement of bins, lengths of elevator legs, and grain distribution legs are included for each layout. Two locations for a grain dryer are also shown.

The plan can be seen at County

Extension Agents offices or a copy can be obtained by writing Agricultural Engineering Extension, College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebr. 68503. Ask for Plan 73292 and send $2.05 (includes sales tax), with your request.
