September Rainfall Totals Five Inches

September was a good month as far as rainfall is concerned—the immediate Wayne area recorded five inches of precipitation over the month, according to the gauge at The State National Bank.

Average rainfall for September is 2.42 inches. In September of 1967, 0.56 inches fell at the Northeast Station east of Concord.

Although no records are available, this month is probably the first month in a long time that the precipitation has been higher than average.

PP & K Contest Slated For Sunday Afternoon

Wayne's annual Pass, Punt, Pass and Kick contest is scheduled for 2:00 Sunday afternoon at the Wayne State College football field.

Sponsored by Wortman Auto Company and Wayne Lions Club, the contest is open to all area boys eight through 13 years old. First, second and third-place trophies will be awarded the three winners in each age bracket.

There is no cost for competing in the football contest and there is no physical contact. Boys eight, nine and ten will use a junior-size football and boys 11, 12 and 13 will compete with a regulation-size football.

Each boy will compete in three categories—punting, passing and kicking.

Any boys who want to do some last minute brushing up in these three areas should go to Wortman Auto Company and pick up the PP&K handbook which has tips by Bart Starr, Jim Bakken, Billy Lothridge and George Allen.

Boys must register an official entry forms at Wortman Auto Company by Saturday at 4 p.m. If they want to enter the contest Sunday.

Wendell Korth, in charge of the PP&K contest at Wortman Auto Company, said that already about 80 area youngsters have signed up for the contest.

Each first-place winner in the six age brackets in Sunday's local competition will advance to the zone competition, set for Wayne on October 20. All zone winners will then go on to District competition in Lincoln on October 26 and the winners from there, will advance to Area competition.

Recreation Teams Fight to 6-6 Ties

Down 6-0 after three quarters, the Reds put on a charge late in the fourth quarter and scored a touchdown with only two minutes left in the game to end up in a 6-6 tie with the Grays in Recreation League play Tuesday night.

Clark Clatanoff intercepted a pass from the Gray quarterback in the third quarter and ran 65 yards for a touchdown to put the Reds in front. Bill Schwartz evaded the score on a 35 yard run. Neither team succeeded in making the extra point.

Hank Overin, recreation manager, singled out two players in the game as deserving credit, Zack Harms for the Gray team and Scott Ehlers, who galloped for 45 yards, for the Red team.

In the second game, the Orange team and the White team also battled to a 6-6 tie.

The Whites scored in the opening seconds of the game when Roger Saul ran back the kick 65 yards for a touchdown. Failing to get their extra point, the Whites enjoyed a 6-0 lead for most of the game.

The Orange team finally found the scoring drought in the fourth quarter when Terry Hoffer intercepted a White pass and ran 50 yards for a touchdown. The Whites might have won the game if it weren't for a clipping penalty—Roger Saul threw to Dale Paulson for a 45 yard run into the endzone only to have the play nullified by the penalty. Outstanding players on the White team were Roger Saul and Dale Paulson. Playing well for the Orange team were Danny McCright and Ronnie Janke.

The Recreation League plays two games every Tuesday night. Games start at 6:15 and 7:15 p.m.

Hank Overin also coaches two other groups of boys, the Junior High and the flag football groups. In all, there are about 100 boys out for recreation football.

The Junior High boys have their next game with the Wayne Freshmen reserves Tuesday afternoon at 4:45 on the practice field south of the West Elementary School. The rest of their schedule includes contests with Laurel Junior High here Thursday, Oct. 17, at 4:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 4, they journey to Wall-hill for a game. Overin says they may play the Wayne Freshmen reserves again Tuesday, Oct. 29.

The youngsters out for flag football play among themselves every Saturday from 10 to noon and every Wednesday from 4 to 6 p.m.

REDS CHALLENGE THE GRAYS. Hank Overin's Recreation League teams played their second game. The Red and Gray teams battled to a series of games Tuesday night at the ball park. On this play one of the Red ball carriers scampered for several yards on a play late in the game. The Red and Gray teams battled to a 6-6 tie. In the second game, the Orange and White teams also ended up in a 6-6 tie.

Girl Commended For High Score

A Letter of Commendation honoring her for her high performance on the 1968 National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMQST) has been awarded to a student at Wayne High, according to Guidance Counselor Kendall M. Carlson.

The commended student is Kathleen S. Dunklau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Dunklau. Kathleen is among 39,000 students in the United States who scored in the upper 2 percent of those who will graduate from high school in 1969. The Commended students rank just below the 15,000 semifinalists announced in September by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC).

John M. Stalnaker, president of NMSC, said: "Although commended students advance no further in the Merit Scholarship competition, their outstanding record in a nationwide program deserves public recognition. Their significant academic attainment gives promise of continued success in college."

"The commended students should be encouraged to pursue their education since their intellectual talent represents an important and much needed natural resource. Our nation will benefit from their continuing educational development."

The commended students' names are reported to other scholarship-granting agencies and to the colleges they named as their first and second choices when they took the NMQST in February, 1968. The reports include home addresses, test scores and anticipated college majors and career intentions of the commended students. NMSC encourages these students to make every effort to continue their education.

County Clubs Set Achievement Day

The Council of Home Extension Clubs for Wayne County held a meeting Tuesday afternoon in the Court Room of the Wayne County courthouse. Main feature of the meeting was the planning of the program for 1969.

Among those attending were the 16 officers of the extension clubs in Wayne County. Mrs. Arnold Wittler of Holsing, chairman of the council, presided at the meeting. Myrtle Anderson and Anna Marie Krefels, area home extension agents at Concord's Northeast Station, explained the coming year's program.

Also on the agenda was the planning of the 1968 Achievement Day. The event this year will be held in St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Winside on October 15 at 1:30 p.m. In charge of the event will be Mrs. Leo Hansen of Wayne. Feature of the program will be "Hair Styling." Also taking place during the day will be the recognition of county and club officers and installation.

Swine Production Plans Available

Are you thinking of starting a swine production business, of remodeling or enlarging your present production system?

If so, you will be interested in a copy of the recently-released publication, "Swine Housing and Equipment Handbook." This book was written from information from successful producers and from research by agricultural engineers in the North Central United States.

The first few pages of the book are aimed at those beginning a swine production business and for students learning about the business. The rest of the book contains information useful to all present and future swine producers who want to plan, manage and operate their swine facility effectively.

The dimensions, recommendations and sample layouts and floor plans in the book can help a producer design and select the size, types and number of buildings and equipment needed in his swine business.

Many agricultural engineers, Extension specialists and farmers contributed the information contained in the book. They have tried to include the information that will guide producers with their most important job—thinking and planning.

Copies of "Swine Housing and Equipment Handbook," FC 64-731 are available for $1.03, which includes sales tax, from Nebraska County Extension Agents, or by writing to the Department of Agricultural Engineering, East Campus, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska 68503.

Tiemann

The governor emphasized that he wanted to bring business-like procedures into the state's government. Consequently the Department of Administrative Services was re-organized and is in charge of auditing and budgeting. The state planning agency is set up in his office and all plans of each agency are submitted to the planning office and personally reviewed by him. This process has extensively cut overlapping costs and responsibilities.

Thirty-three men making up the "Little Hoover Commission" spent 11 weeks analyzing efficiency of the state government's operations. This task force is made up of business and professional people to investigate every department of state government. This was done at no expense to the taxpayer.

Tiemann promised the Young Republicans that one of the first pieces of legislation he plans to introduce before the 1969 legislature is a fair housing bill.

The model M.P. 12-120 MULTI-POWER unit is a low cost compact power supply that utilizes the power of the generator and alternator on present day automobiles, trucks and industrial equipment to provide from 12 volts to 150 volts up to 2000 watts. It may be installed under the dash or under the hood of most any automotive vehicle, or it may be installed on tractors or any other self-powered farm or industrial equipment having a 12-volt alternator or generator.

It will charge 6, 12 or 24 volt batteries in from 6 to 18 minutes. It is an electrical system analyzer which can be used for checking defective batteries, regulators, generators, alternators, and wiring systems.

The MULTI-POWER is especially valuable to contractors operating in remote areas enabling mechanics and service men to service and make repairs of heavy equipment right on the spot, saving expensive down time and labor by eliminating the necessity of towing or hauling the equipment to a repair shop.

The MULTI-POWER also may be used on off shore boats for emergency power for various uses such as pumps, lighting, etc.

For the economy minded, there is a junior model of the MULTI-POWER available which provides power only for power tool operations, lighting, etc. Inquire at your local MULTI-POWER dealer about this unit also.

Want Good Service?

Mail Early, Often

Wayne Postmaster Don Wightman announced Monday that Christmas packages or letters to servicemen overseas should be in the mail as soon as possible to insure delivery by the holiday.

Mail can be sent in several manners, Wightman said, each having its own rates.

The following methods and dates have been designated for mailing Christmas parcels to members of the Armed Forces overseas:

Surface Transportation—October 14 to November 9, SAM (Space Available Parcel Airlift)—October 21 to November 23.

PAI (Parcel Airlift)—October 28 to November 30, Airmail—November 30 to December 11.

The term "Armed Forces Overseas" includes personnel of the Armed Forces, members of their families and United States civilians employed overseas who receive their mail through an APO or FPO New York, San Francisco or Seattle. Wightman stressed that mailers should not wait until the last day to mail their packages or letters because this would create a bottleneck in the local post offices. He also noted that all the mail should not be brought to the post office at one time. Mailers should send their mail early and often if they want good service, he said.

Putting-you-firsts:

(A quick tour of some of the thoughtful new features the 1969 Chevrolets offer that other cars in Chevrolet's field don't.)

Headlight washers

You push the windshield washer knob and hold it, and your headlights come clean.

Fluid is diverted to two jet nozzles at each light lens. Outer lights only on duals.

The spray removes up to 80% of accumulated dirt.

The feature is standard on 1969 Corvettes. It comes with the hidden headlights available on Camaros, Caprices and Kingswood Estate Wagons. It is available on all other models except Corvair.

Heated glass

In a moment your rear window will self-defrost.

Because we've built onto it a network of tiny ceramic strips capable of heating the entire surface.

Fog and frost disappear quickly and quietly. You just flick a switch.

The heated rear window is available on the 1969 Caprice Coupe and Impala Custom Coupe.

Pushbutton tire chains

You press a button on the instrument panel and the rear tires get a shot of "liquid tire chain."

You spin your wheels once, wait a moment, and you're off with traction you wouldn't believe possible on slick ice or packed snow.

Available on all 1969 big Chevrolets.

Steering wheel lock

When you own a car as desirable as the 1969 Chevrolet, you don't take chances.

When you leave it, you lock it. Not just the doors.

You lock the ignition, steering wheel and transmission lever, too.

Our new lock on the steering column takes care of all that.

Standard on all 1969 Chevrolets, Chevilles, Chevy Novas, Camaros and Corvettes.

Sorry, car thieves.

Power steering plus

The 1969 Caprice, Impala and Camaro are available with a new type of power steering.

Variable-ratio power steering.

What it does is give you faster steering with fewer turns of the wheel.

Variable-ratio power steering is particularly helpful in short, full turns.

And parking becomes unbelievably easy. You'll see.

Walk-in wagons

The tailgate swings open like a door on most of our 1969 station wagons.

Which in itself is no big deal.

But wait, there's more. We've built a concealed step into the rear bumper.

You simply step up, over, and in.

The way we build our wagons, you can do it without bumping your head, and without accidents.

Walk into a wagon soon at your Chevrolet dealer's.

Some Hunt Ducks All Year To Benefit the Shotgunner

By Chuck Griffith
Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife

Most waterfowl hunters who put their shotguns away for the year along in December aren't aware that the "world's biggest duck hunt" is a year-round thing. Before any hunter gets excited about joining this "hunt," let's explain that the "hunt" is work, not recreation; that the "hunters" observe and even handle the ducks and geese but don't shoot them; and that the weaponry includes cannon nets, aircraft, voice recorders and sophisticated computers...but no shotguns.

The "world's biggest duck hunt" never ends. It spans the continent from coast to coast and from the Arctic tundra to the Banana Republics. It is conducted by hundreds of highly trained professional waterfowl managers from three nations. On its success hinges the future of North America's waterfowl resource and the sport of waterfowling.

By any standard, the effort to keep tabs on the continent's migratory waterfowl populations ranks as the most intensive and comprehensive wildlife survey in the world.

Many hunters are only vaguely aware of the effort that goes into collecting information needed to manage the ducks and geese they hunt each fall. There are five separate but related waterfowl surveys making up the "hunt" but the annual breeding ground surveys attract the most interest.

The bulk of North America's game ducks are produced in the prairie-pothole section of the U. S. and Canada. Below the border, the best portions lie in western Minnesota, the Dakotas and parts of Nebraska and eastern Montana. North of the border, the rolling wheatlands of southern Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba comprise the prime duck producing area.

Certainly other parts of the two nations produce ducks, but none are as productive when conditions are right as the pothole-studded moraine of the high plains.

The prime duck production region covers about 3 million square miles. In years good for ducks—wet ones—some 6 million small, marshy ponds dot this expanse. With favorable weather and ample breeding stock, they shuck out broods of young ducks in prodigious numbers. By contrast, years such as 1968—when only 1.7 million ponds had water in May and only 9 million existed by July—duck production drops sharply.

As winter wanes and the wild ducks and geese heed their age-old instincts and head north to their traditional breeding grounds, the Big Duck Hunt starts.

Pilot-observer teams of the U. S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife begin their annual migration north, too, often arriving on the nesting grounds ahead of the ducks. By late May, these teams have started their aerial transect flights covering an 80,000 mile route. They criss-cross the duck factory at an altitude of 100 feet, counting and recording the number, sex and species of breeding ducks on the potholes. They also record the number and quality of ponds.

Low-level flying can be hazardous, but such flights are necessary to count and identify accurately the various kinds of ducks. The team counts ducks for a distance of 220 yards on either side of the aircraft for a total transect width of one-fourth mile.

These observations are summarized according to the kinds and numbers of ducks and water areas per square mile, and then expanded by the total number of square miles in the habitat sampled.

The May-June counts measure the distribution and size of the duck breeding population. They also evaluate water conditions which affect the quality and quantity of the production habitat.

The same flights are repeated in July but this time, broods of young ducks are recorded as one measure of probable nesting success. Drakes or pairs still lingering on potholes at this time are also counted—as an indication of a late nesting effort. Habitat is evaluated once again to forecast its ability to hold up during the brood-rearing period.

Small single-engine planes offer good ground visibility and are used to fly transects in the prairie states and the southern parts of the provinces. Transects also are flown in the central and northern portions of the prairie provinces—the bush and parklands—and up into the muskeg and tundra of the Northwest Territories, the Yukon and Alaska. Much of the latter lies north of the Arctic Circle.

Twin-engine amphibians and sturdy "bush" planes with floats are used in these northern regions. Survey teams operating there often depend upon gas caches brought in during the winter and stored in Eskimo and Indian villages.

In the early years of the breeding ground surveys, Bureau

1968-69 Pheasant and Quail Seasons

WHEN NOVEMBER COMES. For the first time, Nebraska will have a split opening date for pheasant and quail. The entire state except for the southeast corner will open Nov. 2 for both ringnecks and bobwhites. Shooting in the south-east area, bounded on the north by Highway 34 and on the west by U.S. Highway 81, will start the southeast corner will open Nov. 9, with both areas closing Jan. 19, 1969.

waterfowl managers tried to hire Canadian bush pilots for the flights. They were refused because of the hazard connected with ground-lugging hops in remote areas. The federal agency then trained its own pilots for this work. Many of the present survey pilots are veterans of nearly 20 years of this flying.

Crews of Bureau waterfowl specialists also move into the transect areas to conduct ground "beat-outs." This involves moving on foot and by boat through representative marsh areas on the transect routes to count and identify every duck present. The ground and air counts are then compared to provide a visibility correction factor needed to make the aerial counts as accurate as possible.

Glamorous work? Try mucking your way through a dense marsh in searing July heat with clouds of mosquitoes overhead, feeling your chest waders rubbing away your hide. Glamorous? You bet!

The Federal Bureau also has veteran biologists scattered throughout the breeding range conducting long-term intensive studies in key production areas. Some of these studies are aimed at learning more about species in short supply such as the canvasback and redhead. All provide more insight into the relationship between habitat conditions and duck production. Skilled waterfowl biologists from other agencies and organizations work closely with Bureau personnel in the overall effort. These men come from the Canadian Wildlife Service, Ducks Unlimited, the Canadian provinces and the Flyway Councils. Much of the total program would not be possible without the contributions of these veteran scientists and observers.

The continent's wild ducks, which have numbered as high as 130 million (in wet 1956) and as low as 75 million (in dry 1962) will have been under close scrutiny for months before they are seen by the American hunter.

By that time, waterfowl specialists and statisticians will have fed volumes of data through sophisticated computers to determine what kind of a duck crop has been produced.

Many long hours will have been spent in conferences between the waterfowl managers and conservation agency administrators before the regulations reach final form. All aspects of the waterfowl picture, including hunter behavior, will have been studied closely.

The data will also show how much of this fall duck flight may be safely harvested by Canadian, American and Latin American hunters. This information will have been translated into hunting regulations which will put 10 to 20 million ducks in the hunters' collective bag.

The breeding grounds survey is only one of five surveys which waterfowl managers use to transform wild ducks into recreation for millions of North Americans. The other four surveys will be discussed in the next of this series of articles.

A weasel seems to be completely fearless and will not hesitate to attack a creature 30 times his size.

Probably the fastest moving creature is the spine-tailed swift, which has been timed at flying speeds upwards of 200 miles per hour.

WRECKAGE. Farm wagons, tires, fender and tractor, with truck out of sight down the hill.

No One Hurt in Saturday Morning Accident on 35

Wreckage was strewn along Highway 35 Saturday morning following a collision between a horse van and a farm tractor examination but was immediately released. State Trooper Tom Nichols said both the truck and farm tractor were west bound about two miles west of Wayne when the mishap occurred. As Trooper Nichols explained it the driver of the truck pulled out to pass the farm tractor, saw an oncoming car and tried to pull back into his own lane, colliding with the tractor and wagons. The wagons were torn loose from the tractor and capsized in the ditch, the right rear fender and wheel were torn off the tractor and the tractor came to rest, right side up, on the shoulder of the road. The van continued down the road and came to a stop in the ditch, showing damage to the right front portion of cab and fender. The van, driven by John O'cott, was owned by the Harbaugh company of Grand Island. The van and both wagons were empty at the time of the accident. "The amazing thing to me about this accident," Trooper Nichols said, "was that no one was hurt."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

It is the duty of an editorial writer to search all available facts before he sits down to write. From this basis the writer should be able to give a clear picture of important topics.

All for One?

Eighteen candles on a birthday cake of any American male means having to register for the draft. Americans assume that any 18-year-old lad should believe his country to be the greatest in the world and worth defending to the point of sacrificing his own life. He is expected to also understand that he is blessed by American freedom because his peers have previously paid for its cost on many a front line. During those 18 years of maturing he is expected to grasp the esprit de corps of his beloved country as demonstrated in the cry "One for all and all for one!"

Your 18-year-old understands "one for all" to mean he has an individual responsibility militarily to assist in the protection of all Americans. "All for one" means that his countrymen will support and back him throughout every encounter experienced as he confronts the enemy.

Each man on board the Pueblo had reason to believe he was doing a job for his country. Each man aboard ship was serving as "one for all". The crew rightfully assumed their countrymen supported them with the old "all for one" spirit. Such belief gave them courage to take risks for that which they considered essentially right.

Now, months since their ship was seized by an ideological opponent of Uncle Sam, the Pueblo men have found out! The sailors have found out that though they were carrying out orders, acting in behalf of every American citizen, there are times when "all are for one". In fact, not all Americans are willing to stand up for an entire boatload of their sons! Some are willing to stand up, however, and their cry is being heard across the land.

Why doesn't Uncle Sam get tough? Why hasn't the great American Eagle ruffled a few feathers? Are we abandoning the rich heritage of "All for one and one for all"? Men are willing to fight for their country immediately after blowing out an 18-candle cake. Shouldn't the nation, in return, be ready at all moments to fight for her men?

Assume the U. S. had a President who would warn the Koreans that the Pueblo plus her crew are to be released by nightfall, unharmed, would you guess that 90 per cent of the citizenry would support him with "or else"? This kind of demand is exactly what Russia would have insisted upon

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

had the U. S. seized a communist ship. Regardless of ideology, isn't it really the only kind of demand that strength can make without losing face? International opinion knows that to do nothing is weakness. U. S. leaders have decided to talk it over. Meanwhile our "one for all" men are sleeping in enemy beds.

Mr. President, let's insist upon the return of the Pueblo and that crew of homesick Americans. They must understand that it is still "One for all and all for one"! If necessary, let's go in and get those sons, husbands, sweethearts and fathers. Once our military men see that this nation will not fight for them, not only will the lights have gone out on their 18-candle cake, but the lights will have dimmed across this mighty nation, snuffed out by moral surrender. — MMW.

Tele --- What?

Most of the new fall programs telecast by the three major networks have made their debut. Just how many of these televentures will successfully endure the myriad of telehazards throughout the season remains to be seen.

Telefection continues to devour more time than telefactuality. Biased political slanting of the news helps to demonstrate that point. Possibly such televalentism doesn't really cause a lot of harm, providing citizens are made aware of the temptations confronting TV newsmen to create their own televisions.

Ardent video viewers who get a genuine bang from their telefection eruptions may very well decide toward the season's end to award network newsmen specific recognition for being more than a little televiewitish with televiewence.

Televaudville is great for entertainment, quite often televiewing the viewer into peals of laughter. This, however, shouldn't happen when a serious politician has had no humorous script-writers on the payroll!

Walking through televalley at this point in the fall season obviously hasn't made us much of a televiewist. So, before becoming overly televiewomous about the existing televiewism, we'll become televiewant and take leave of the subject. Meanwhile, let's all settle back into the easy chair and continue with the usual televiewishin'. — MMW.

also have potential.

Among those, he said, were corridors along U. S. 20 west from South Sioux City and north along U. S. 81 from Madison to Yankton. Still another possibility, he said, would be a north-south route along U. S. 83 from Valentine through North Platte to McCook and the Kansas border.

The Lincoln group's suggestion, because it spans 40 years and would not be completed until early in the 21st century, was much more elaborate.

It envisioned many of the roads Gillen suggested, plus a route through Chadron to Bridgeport, a Sandhills highway from St. Paul west to North Platte, a corridor southwest from Hastings to the Nebraska-Kansas-Colorado corner and an expressway from Valentine to Norfolk.

Seacrest said the only way to get popular backing—and therefore the political muscle to get the plan adopted—was to include roads which would eventually improve highway travel in all areas of the state.

Money Would Come From

All the talk about vast improvements in the state's highway system prompted the State Highway Advisory Commission to consider how Nebraska's share of the costs would be raised.

For the first time, the commission said publicly it would back bond financing of a long-range improvement program.

But the commission said five other revenue sources should be tapped first. The commissioners suggested increases in the gasoline and diesel fuel taxes and the automobile and truck registration fees.

Furthermore, they said, sales tax revenue from the sale of motor vehicles and accessories and motel services should be dedicated to highway purposes.

If that is not enough, they said, bonds might have to be sold to provide the rest.

Toadstool Problems

Toadstools, mushrooms and puffballs are considered an annoyance when they appear in the lawn. While some are simply foul smelling, others are also poisonous and a menace to children and pets.

If the fruiting structures for the various kinds of fungi grow in a circle or an arc the condition caused is known as "fairy ring." These fungi are actually harmless to grass but so unsightly and they appear repeatedly.

Mushrooms that grow individually or in clumps usually develop from buried organic matter such as pieces of construction lumber, logs or tree roots and stumps.

They usually develop following prolonged wet weather, and normally disappear as soon as the soil begins to dry out or when the grass is mowed.

The fungi are difficult to control unless all of the wood or organic matter is either removed or consumed. For control, you should dig up the wood or other matter upon which they are feeding, and if that isn't practical, drench the soil with a fungicide.

To drench the soil use an iron rod, a pipe or a spading fork and punch holes six to eight inches apart and about eight inches deep within and surrounding the area. This treatment is an attempt to eliminate the fungus mycelium from which the fungi grow. If hours. Nylon proved to be the most abrasive resistant of all carpet fibers. The best wearing carpets are those with dense, closely packed fibers on the surface.

Wool, polyester, acrylic or polypropylene carpets are very abrasion resistant if the fiber is at least 25 ounces per square yard. Nylon carpets require 20 ounces per square yard.

Tests for color stability to sunlight and atmospheric fumes were made. Usually the dyes used were resistant to fading, but some bright cool colors fade more than others. Turquoise and greens, especially in some man-made fibers were apt to fade.

Tests on cleanability showed that color fastness to wet cleaning was excellent, but that spills must be removed immediately if the stain removal is to be effective.

State Group Pitching For North-South Route

LINCOLN—There is an argument which goes this way:

After Nebraskans become accustomed to driving on the Interstate Highway, they will not be satisfied with roads of lower standards.

There is little chance additional interstate mileage will be authorized by Congress, although several groups in Nebraska are still pitching hard for approval of a north-south route.

The most likely next step will be a network of expressway routes connecting the state's population centers and feeding the Interstate.

Two proposals for expressway systems—one a 40-year program carrying a price tag of about $1 billion—have recently been unveiled.

The State Department of Roads drafted one proposal at the request of the Highway Advisory Commission. As outlined by Planning Chief Bruce Gillen, this 20-year plan for about 800 miles of super road is designed to serve only as a launching pad for discussion, not the department's final word on the subject.

The other plan was prepared by the Lincoln Metropolitan Transit Council, an organization of Capital City civic groups. It suggested a 40-year plan with expressways to be constructed in five phases.

The Lincoln group's proposal was described as "an idea to suggest how the state might start to plan."

Gillen said the Highway Department's proposal "was prepared using available information since time did not permit study of the magnitude and complexity required to warrant a system."

Both Gillen and Joe R. Seacrest, who was the spokesman for the Lincoln group, emphasized that the important thing now was to begin the planning process so Nebraska will be ready to enter the post-Interstate era with a good idea of what it wants to do.

Officials of the Federal Bureau of Roads have said Congress expects a full-fledged report by January of 1970 on the nation's road priorities. They said states which have done the most advance planning were likely to receive the most favorable treatment in Washington.

The Lincoln group noted that five of Nebraska's neighbors have already formulated plans for an expressway system. Seacrest said experience with the Interstate shows that planning for a major construction project requires at least six years.

"Unpreparedness disadvantaged Nebraska on the initial Interstate," he said, pointing out that this is one of only three states which have a single Interstate route.

"Unpreparedness must not disadvantage Nebraska on future interstate and state expressway development, or Nebraska's economic and traffic development will be disadvantaged."

After outlining the general corridors which should be considered in the original expressway package, Gillen said, "there should be detailed studies of traffic, economic development, cost effectiveness and land use before final route locations are established."

Another consideration—an important one since Federal aid is involved—is correlation with planning by adjoining states, Gillen said.

Gillen's plan includes an option in Western Nebraska. He suggests a route from the Wyoming border through Scottsbluff to Bridgeport. From Bridgeport the proposed expressway could either continue down the North Platte River Valley through Oshkosh to Ogallala or veer straight south to Sidney.

Gillen also proposed a swing starting at Hastings and going north to Grand Island, then cutting northeast to Columbus, heading straight east to Fremont and dropping southeast to Omaha.

Another route begins at the Kansas border and follows U.S. 81 north through Hebron, York and Columbus to Madison where it would slice northeast to South Sioux City.

Still another route starts at Beatrice and goes through Lincoln and Fremont enroute to South Sioux City. He also proposed routes which connect Nebraska City with Lincoln, Omaha and the Kansas border.

"Any of the individual segments could conceivably be warranted for four-lane expressway construction in a 20-year program," he said. "However, it is highly improbable that all could be. In some instances, two or more segments would have to be combined."

He said the corridors he suggested should be considered, but other routes he did not include

It's What's Under the Hood That Counts . . .

You may be impressed by the outward appearance of a car, but what counts is under the hood - performance, economical operation, durability.

It's the same with a life insurance policy. Its real worth includes much more than the amount written on the face of the policy. Low cost, greater returns to beneficiaries, and liberal policy features are some of the many "under the hood" values you will find in a Connecticut Mutual life insurance policy.

Fall Vacation Trip Needs Safety Rules

Fall vacation trips are becoming increasingly popular, according to Harry Porter, Jr., manager of the National Safety Council's Traffic Department, and he reminds motorists that the same common-sense rules apply, whatever the season. Here are his suggestions for a safe, carefree trip this fall, or any time of the year:

Get enough sleep before starting. Don't drive like a "dope."

Plan your trip for a reasonable number of hours of driving each day; no more than two hours at a stretch per person.

Leave an itinerary with someone you can depend on to reach you in case of an emergency. Turn off faucets, lights and gas appliances at home. Connect a timer to turn on lights automatically. It's a good insurance in evening hours. Homeowners should also notify their local police department.

Stop newspaper and milk deliveries and make arrangements for your mail.

Have your car checked by a competent mechanic, paying special attention to brakes, tires and lights.

Replace or refill streaking windshield wiper blades.

If you have diabetes or other medical problems that could require prompt recognition, carry necessary identification.

Study a map so that you can anticipate route changes, intersections and interchanges before you get to them.

Keep pace with traffic. Signal for turns and lane changes well in advance.

Get plenty of sleep and rest before starting out again. Remember, driving can be enjoyable!

Four additional cases of hog cholera have been diagnosed and confirmed since Thursday, Sept. 19, according to an announcement made last week by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture.

Three cases were in the York area where previous infection existed; the other case was near Superior where one previous case had been diagnosed. Total cases of hog cholera in these two areas now number thirteen. These outbreaks have occurred following a period of four months in which no hog cholera was diagnosed in Nebraska.

Information gathered by the Animal Health Division of the United States Department of Agriculture and the Nebraska Bureau of Animal Industry indicates that hog cholera probably existed in the York area in the early part of August. The disease went unreported and undiagnosed until the first week of September.

Of the eleven cases of cholera near York, eight are confined to an area approximately two miles square. The other three of Nebraska, an agent of the Animal Health Division of the United States Department of Agriculture and by the owner.

Swine owners can best help themselves and their industry and suffer less economic loss by prompt reporting of any sick swine to their local veterinarian, the Animal Health Division or the Bureau of Animal Industry. These reports will be followed up by an immediate investigation and an inventory of the swine on the premise where the sickness is reported.

Swine owners should prohibit promiscuous traffic in their hog lots and stay out of the hog lots of other swine owners or places where swine are concentrated. Herd additions should be made only under the supervision of a practicing veterinarian.

The outlook for controlling and eliminating this outbreak is very good, according to the N.D.A. Reporting of death losses and sickness in swine in the areas concerned has been excellent. It appears at this time that the control measures now in use will rapidly eliminate this outbreak, the N.D.A. said.

Specialists to Inform Farmers

Four area meetings have been scheduled this month by the NE Experimental Station, Concord, discussing the topic, "Feeding Drought Damaged Forages." Some of the major questions to be answered are: "What is the feeding value of drought forages?" "What is the nitrate content going to be?" "How should I feed this forage?" and "How should I supplement this forage?"

Dor J. Kubik, Extension Dairy Specialist, and Walt Tolman, Area Beef Specialist, University of Nebraska NE Station will answer these questions for beef and dairy producers on Oct. 3 at Bloomfield; Oct. 9 at the NE Station's auditorium; Oct. 10 at Plainview and Oct. 16 in Coleridge. All four meetings begin at 8 p.m.
