

I'M NEXT! Lynn Roggenbach is concerned with her fate as she realizes she will be next on the block at the "slave" auction Thursday night. The line of 42 slaves to be sold trails back out of range of the camera.

SOLD! Auctioneer Stan Baier started the slave auction of WHS juniors Thursday night selling Debbie Farrars twice, to the delight of a soaked audience. Baier and Evan Bennett are shown on the make-shift stage along with their first "slaves" of the night's sale.

Juniors Net $175 at Slave Auction

Wayne High juniors Thursday night raised about $175 at a "slave" auction held in the former location of Doescher Hardware. The money will be used to defray some of the expenses at the Junior-senior prom next spring. Sold were 42 students, mostly singles, although some were paired and in one case three were sold as a team. Buyers were to use the slaves' services from one-half day to a full day, depending on the agreement prior to the sale.

Site of the sale was hurriedly changed from the parking lot of the First National Bank to the indoor location when rain continued falling at sale time. Auctioneers Stan Baier and Evan Bennett conducted the sale. Buyers included mostly business men but, in one case a student who was trying to raise the bidding, but suddenly found herself the owner of three slaves for the day.

Lack A Winner, Prize Now $150

Mrs. LeRoy Peters of Emerson would have won $100 Thursday night had she been in one of the stores when her name was drawn last week.

Senator Carl Curtis Will Join Caravan

The public is invited to the free affair. No formal speeches are planned; people are merely invited to stop at the Wayne city auditorium between 8 and 9 a.m. for coffee and rolls with their Congressman, Senator, Governor and Statehouse officials.

Amendments 6 thru 10 May 'Tax' You

By Norvin Hansen
(It is often said that an informed citizenry is necessary for a strong democracy. In fact, an informed citizenry is the last hope of a strong democracy, for only by being aware of the important questions facing the nation, state and county can a citizen cast his vote intelligently. On Nov. 5 you will be asked to vote on at least 15 amendments to the Nebraska Constitution. Whether you will vote on a sixteenth amendment, that dealing with the income tax, rests with the Nebraska Supreme Court. (This is one of a series of articles which will discuss briefly and simply the amendments proposed to the constitution. The amendments will be discussed in the order they will appear on your ballot.) Proposed Amendment No. 6 would provide "that the Legislature may classify personal property, and may exempt any of such classes or all personal property from taxation." Nebraskaans still pay personal property taxes. The revenue from these taxes account for about 24 per cent of the total property taxes in the state. School districts collect about 65 per cent of their revenue from levies on personal property. About 17 per cent of the money for operation of the county government and about 15 per cent of the money for the operation of the city government comes from personal property taxes. The amendment would let the legislature decide whether to exempt any of the personal property (primarily such items as farm machinery, business inventories, utility equipment and livestock and feeds) from taxation. Adoption of the amendment would not automatically repeal any of these taxes. It would be up to the discretion of the Legislature whether to exempt any of the personal property. If it decided to do so it would have to replace the revenue lost from that tax. That revenue amounts to about $80 million. One reason we now have the sales-income tax is that the Legislature had to come up with some way to raise money lost through the repealing of taxes on household goods and intangible property and the repealing of the head and Kerr-Mills tax. The question, then, is whether the voters want to keep the present personal property tax or give the Legislature the power to decide whether to do away with any part or all of it. Those in favor of the proposed amendment point out that oftentimes businesses merely pass on their personal property tax to the customer through higher prices. Other businesses are unable to do this and therefore the tax is unfair. Others say that the taxes not only hurt businesses in the state but also tend to keep other businesses from moving into the state from other areas. Those against the proposed amendment say that if passed and if the Legislature began exempting certain personal property, the cut in local revenues, especially to schools, would be very damaging. Cities would also be left with no grounds funds to carry on their governmental operations, opponents

Kiwanian Candy Sale Aids Broberg

Ray Schreiner, Chairman of the Kiwanian's "Trick or Treat" candy sale, reports that all 156 bags of the Halloween candy have been sold. Schreiner said, "We could have sold another 100 bags." The sacked candy was sold by the Kiwanians, aided by WSC members of Epiphany, Pi Phi and Circle K organizations, with the idea of using the proceeds to aid in the costs faced by Verne Broberg who awaits a kidney transplant in the Mayo Clinic. Broberg received his Masters Degree at WSC, July 26, 1957 and is married to the former Karen Long. He suffers from chronic glomerulonephritis (inflammation of the kidneys). During the past year Broberg has been living with the aid of a mechanical kidney. It is this machine which put Verne on the rosy statistical side of the 500 human beings with kidney failure who will be allowed to live instead of being among the 4,500 doomed to die because there are not enough machines, facilities or trained personnel. Ray Schreiner expresses his appreciation for the work of those helping sell the bags of candy, and also to everyone who helped out the project by buying a bag. Results of the sale will pay $156 on Broberg's surgery.

Deadline for Registration

Friday is the deadline for voter registration at the county courthouse for those not already registered. Those not registered by this date will be unable to take part in the general election Nov. 5. Registration must be done in County Clerk Norris Weible's office for Wayne County residents and in County Clerk Charn Stanley's office for Dixon County residents. Registration is required only of those not already registered to vote. Voters who have already registered but who have moved from one ward or precinct to another or who have changed their names since registering must do so again in order to be able to vote in the general election. County Clerk Weible advised new residents that they can begin picking up ballots at his office so they can vote in the general election. New residents are those who have lived in Nebraska less than six months, in the county less than 40 days and in the precinct less than 10 days. They are able to vote only for their presidential and vice-presidential choices. New residents will fill out an application at the clerk's office and will complete their ballot at the same time. Other important pre-election dates include: Nov. 2—Deadline for absent voter to apply in writing to county clerk or election commissioner for absentee ballot. Nov. 4—Paraplegics or blind persons wishing a friend or relative's assistance in the voting booth must make application by 4 p.m. in person to the county clerk or election commissioner; deadline at 4 p.m. for receiving applications and delivering disabled voter's ballots; deadline at midnight for ballots of absent, sick or disabled voters to be voted.

C of C Offering Management Course

Wayne Chamber of Commerce and Small Business Administration will sponsor a Management Training Course beginning Monday, Oct. 28, according to Kent Hall, chairman of education committee. Any chamber member wishing to take the course should contact the Chamber of Commerce office. Meeting at 7 p.m. every Monday night for six weeks, the course offers instruction in six classes: Records and Credit in Profitable Management, Financing Short and Long Term Needs, Personnel Management—Developing Good Employees, Small Business Location and Layout, Effective Advertisement and Why Customers Buy. Meeting place for instruction has not been arranged, and the cost of the course has not been set. Last spring's course in management sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce was well received, according to Bernard Schulte, Chamber of Commerce manager. He said the attendance was high for the course and those taking it thought it was worth the small cost. The course will be limited to 35 people, with chamber members given first chance to enroll. Leo Wortman of Wayne, SBA advisory director, is working with the Chamber of Commerce in setting up the course.

Causes Power Outage

A one-car mishap Friday morning cut off power to patrons of Wayne County Public Power district in a small area north of Wayne. Dwayne Meier, Randolph, lost control of his southbound car about 1:30 a.m. Friday about a half mile north of the drive-in theatre on Highway 15 and hit a utility pole, breaking the line carrying power to residences and businesses in that mile and to the Dean Sorenson farm northwest of the accident site. Power District workmen had service restored in about an hour, but many alarms in the area rang an hour late next morning, causing some persons to report late for work.

Rev. Withee Ill

Rev. Jessie A. Withee, pastor of both Logan Center EUB Church and the United Methodist Church in Dixon, suffered a severe heart attack late Tuesday night and was taken by ambulance to the hospital in Osmond early Wednesday morning. Mail will reach him addressed to the hospital, room 106.

Chest Drive Coming Soon

Plans are well underway for carrying out the 16th annual Community Chest fund drive scheduled for early November, although a specific date has not as yet been announced. Heading up the 1968 Chest drive is Darrel Fuelberth, chairman, and Ted Bahe, secretary. A goal of $8,400, some less than last year's quota, has been set. Should drive funds total more than the announced goal, the money will be distributed on a percentage basis among the benefiting organizations. A contribution to the Community Chest will help provide operating funds for Wayne Youth Activities, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Salvation Army, United Service Organization, Florence Crittenton Home, and the Administration and Advertising. Once again emphasis is concentrated on youth work, providing the summer program, recreation center, swimming, baseball, football, basketball, girl's softball, park recreation, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Explorer Scouts and Brownies. Military combat operations have demanded an increase in the number of men in Vietnam and in other theaters of conflict. This increase necessitates the expansion of USO services and entertainment programs much in demand by men in uniform. Everyone can have a part in meeting this need through Community Chest. An appreciated aspect of the Community Chest drive is that it avoids the necessity of having a multiplicity of financial drives for worthy projects. Through the Community Chest, individuals find the opportunity of considering all the needs unitedly, and then making a contribution proportionately. Johnson, G. R. Manley and Land Foot. The "house to house" method of contacting a concerned citizenry will not be used this year. Instead, the individual will be contacted through his or her place of employment. Any voluntary contribution may be given or sent to either Mrs. Cecil Wriedt or Ted Bahe. When there have never been so many who will benefit from a contribution, regardless of amount, it is hoped all residents will, after analyzing the need, be generous. Community Chest Board members are Larry DeForge, president; Norris Weible, vice president; Clarence Kuhn, Mrs. Opal Wriedt, Mrs. Madge Kemble, Dale Gutshall, and the three newly elected members, Robert

FRED HAAS, Pierce, appears to be rowing a freight barge upstream at the intersection of 7th and Main. Actually, he was one of a crew attempting to dissipate rain water Friday morning. Heavy rains during the week halted the street improvement project, delaying its completion.

Ellis and Carr also served as master and mistress of ceremonies. The king and queen from last year, Donna Peters and Jim Ellis, were on hand to crown this year's royalty. Copresenters were Richard Carr and Steve Jones. Carrying the royal flowers and princesses' crowns were Maxine Kruse and Doug Koester.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Regarding Mr. Barnes who raises winter radishes, I don't know if I ever heard of winter radishes except one Fall, in 1928 I believe. It was, I worked for a lady in Winside, Nebr. When she had to go to Excelsior Springs, Mo., for some sort of treatment, their cellar was full of all sorts of home grown vegetables.

Mrs. Carl Wolfe's husband was quite a gardener and was a shoe-maker, harness maker and repairman. He came home to dinner one day and I had found the box of winter radishes and thought they were turnips. So I got some nice veal cutlets and boiled the radishes and seasoned them just like turnips. Well, when Mrs. Wolfe got home he told her how I had fixed them and he thought he liked them better, cooked like turnips, than he liked actual turnips.

This is the first time I've heard of winter radishes since. I showed your big radish picture and what you had to say of them to Mrs. Wolfe, as she is another one of our residents at the Odd-Fellows Home.

I am glad to know there is someone else that still raises them. Thanks and please pass this recipe on to Mr. Barnes. Maybe he would like to try cooking some for a change. Sincerely, Miss Frances J. Wylie, 100F Home, Room 6, York, Nebr.

Dear Editor: As one of those distributing campaign literature for Bruce Hamilton in downtown Lincoln Saturday, I would like to say that I was appalled at the lack of information displayed by many Nebraskans. I couldn't help wondering how many of the people rushing down "O" Street, too busy to even consider the starving of Biafra, will even bother to vote.

There are some extremely important issues on the ballot this November. If anyone cannot take the time to inform himself of the choices facing him, the League of Women Voters is more than happy to provide any information desired. Also, fraternities and sororities usually provide rides to the polls for those without transportation.

Nebraskans, take notice! October 25 is the last day to register for the election. Get yourself registered, and exercise your power and privilege to vote. Susan Petthey, Lincoln.

Drouth-Hurt Crops Need Supplements

Proper supplementation is necessary to get top value from drouth damaged corn or sorghum, according to Walt Tolman, Northeast Station beef nutritionist. The same supplementation is needed whether the crop is fed as silage or is to be pastured.

Several years' analyses of NE Station corn silage have shown 1.6 to 2.7 pound of additional protein to be needed per head daily for wintering growing calves or yearlings. This protein can be supplied by five to six pounds of alfalfa hay, four to five pounds dry matter from alfalfa haylage, at least one and one-half pounds of a 40 per cent supplement, or two pounds of a 32 per cent.

Each of these supplements should also supply minerals and vitamins which the corn or sorghum plant lacks for satisfactory feed. Cattle fattening rations with silage as the roughage will also need more supplement than those in which alfalfa is fed.

Drouth damaged silage made from immature crops may be a bit higher in protein than "normal silage" Tolman says, but not enough to make much saving in protein supplement.

Drouth damaged silages are lower in energy because they lack the usual grain. The lack of grain also makes the silage lightweight and loose-packed. Many silages are wetter than usual this year, giving them less feed value per pound, all of which makes the silage lower in value on both a weight and a bulk basis.

Daily gains of growing young stock may be only about two-thirds to three-fourths those on well-grained silage but this slower gain may be recovered economically in the finishing period and such silage is fully adequate when supplemented with mineral and a little protein for stock cows. If the usual winter gains are wanted, at least five or six pounds of grain should be added daily to grainless silage fed as the bulk of the ration to young growing cattle, or a short high grain feeding period may follow the "all silage" period. Some corn and sorghum was put into the silo with a high nitrate content. The ensiling process is expected to reduce this nitrate but how much is uncertain. Silages which are suspected of having a high nitrate content should be analyzed before feeding.

Feeding any high nitrate feed as only part of the ration is desirable because it will reduce the total daily nitrate consumed. High energy (fattening) rations are especially adapted to using high nitrate roughages because grain makes up a large part of the ration and the nitrate is converted to valuable protein in such a ration if it is properly balanced with protein, minerals and vitamins.

Veterans Administration Attempting To Increase Educational Assistance

While a wide array of benefits is available to today's veteran, special assistance is provided the young veteran with a limited education who faces a bleak future.

C. W. Nixon, manager, VA Regional Office, Lincoln, said last week the VA no longer waits for the new Nebraska veteran to come to the agency for assistance. In an effort to be as helpful as possible, he said the VA now attempts to "seek out each educationally disadvantaged veteran."

Securing their names from discharge forms furnished by the Defense Department, the VA sends out letters to the new veterans and follows up by making telephone calls or personal calls. Nixon said that when the veteran comes in for guidance, the VA explains the various benefits available, including GI education benefits which give the veteran from $130 to $175 or more a month while he completes high school. The Manager emphasized that high school training under the GI Bill does not reduce eligibility for advanced educational benefits.

Provisions have been made in the GI Bill so a veteran can also attend a trade school, take correspondence courses, go to college, enroll in farm cooperative training or take on-the-job or apprenticeship training. While these educational benefits are available to all qualified veterans who served after Jan. 31, 1955, he said that Vietnam era veterans with a limited education can get a special "transitional appointment" to work for the Federal government if they go to schools at the same time. He said government agencies are now hiring the Vietnam era veteran (who served after Aug. 4, 1964) without having him compete with others for the job. However, the veteran must: Have the job qualifications required, have less than one year of training beyond high school and agree to take at least the equivalent of one full year of education or training leading at least to a high school diploma or its equivalent.

The veteran can take this training under the GI Bill and be paid a VA educational assistance allowance in addition to his government salary. Nixon said that since all veterans do not want to take further training, they are informed of their re-employment rights, of any state unemployment compensation which may be available and of veterans preference in government employment. They are also given help in finding a job.

The Manager urged veterans to contact the VA Regional Office in Lincoln or their local County Service Officer if they want to go to school, take further training or get a job.

Ornamental Turns 'Outlaw' in State

An ornamental plant which has turned "outlaw" has suddenly loomed as a serious economic threat to hundreds of acres of pasture and range land in Nebraska.

This development was revealed this week by University of Nebraska Extension weed specialist, Dr. Laren Robison.

Common mullein, a member of the snapdragon family which has escaped and turned weed, "for some unknown reason suddenly has infested wide areas of pasture land in the state," Dr. Robison said.

Mullein often is part of the commonly occurring vegetation in pasture and ranges and usually is not a problem, he commented. But the sudden appearance of "a miniature forest" of the unwanted plants has caused concern among farmers and ranchers regarding effective controls. Dr. Robison outlined the development and rise to hazardous status of the Mullein in Nebraska as follows:

It appears to have been originally introduced in the United States from Europe and/or Asia as an ornamental plant. It later escaped and has since become a weed in fields and waste places in most of North America.

Mullein is a biennial plant reproduced by seeds. The plant forms a basal rosette of very fuzzy leaves the first year from which, in the second year, a tall, coarse, fuzzy stem arises. It grows as tall as five feet-plus. The leaves are very woolly appearing, the coating of hair is thicker than the main body of the leaf and the hairs are soft and pliable. The flowers are yellow and occur the second year on a fuzzy terminal spike. Mullein blooms from late June to September and seeds from August to October.

It is well distributed throughout Nebraska. The population of mullein plants in pastures the second year after a dense infestation has occurred has been reduced considerably. Apparently a combination of environmental factors is necessary to trigger germination and establishment and this does not occur consistently.

In those areas where the problem still exists or is just getting started, several herbicides can be used effectively. Dicamba (Banvel D) applied at one fourth to one half pounds per acre, Silvex (Kuron) at one to two pounds per acre or 2,4-D at one to two pounds per acre will give control.

Application must be made early while the plants are in the most rosette stage. Spring is probably the best time to apply chemicals since fall and spring rosettes can be sprayed at the same time as well as several other annual weeds. Scattered plants may be spaded out and controlled effectively. Mowing as a control measure may actually increase the problem unless done very late since buds on the stem below the cut may be activated and several new shoots arise where only one existed before.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I'd like to express my appreciation for the $10 SWAY check which I received the past week. Since entering the service I have met many young men who come from a less patriotic background, so the thought behind your gift is much more meaningful to me than the money itself.

At the present time I have completed two weeks of basic training here at Ft. Lewis, so actually the surface has barely been scratched in terms of my total obligation. The training is strenuous but not extremely rough except that it's as wet here now as it was dry back home this summer.

Again, thanks for the gift. Sincerely, Lauren R. Boeckenhauer.

Dear Editor:

I wish to express my sincere gratitude for the SWAY check sent me. It is nice to know that there is an interest in servicemen.

I will graduate from boot camp Oct. 18 and then will be going to school for awhile before I get my first duty station.

Thanks again for the money as it always comes in handy. SR Ronald H. Asmus.

Dear Editor:

My sincere thanks to SWAY for the $10 received while I was in basic training some time ago. It was really appreciated and is nice that Wayne has a way to show their appreciation to the men who are serving their country.

I am home on my first leave since leaving in May and have been in three camps, Fort Lewis, Wash., Fort Dix, New Jersey, and Fort Bliss, Texas, where I just completed schooling as a Redeye gunner. I report to Fort Benning, Ga. on Oct. 19th. Thanks again. Sincerely, Pvt. Glenn G. Granquist.

Dear Editor:

Thank you very much for the $10 that I received as a SWAY winner. The money was much appreciated and needed.

I began my year as a fourth classman on Aug. 16, following eight weeks of basic training in the Cadet Area and in the field with the beginning academics. Academics at USAFA are difficult and challenging.

I begin my day at 5:30 a.m. and have classes from 7:20 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. After classes we either have drill or intramural athletic competition. After the evening meal we are to study from 7:15 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. and taps are at 10:45 p.m. Because of the rapid pace, time seems to pass quickly. Everyone here is very much looking forward to our first leave at Christmas.

As fourth classmen, we are allowed few privileges and eagerly look forward to next year when we will be upperclassmen.

One of the biggest causes for excitement here is our football team which beat Navy 26-20. Thanks to that victory, fourth classmen were allowed to be "at rest" for a week.

This is an exciting and rewarding experience and I wouldn't trade it for anything.

Thank you again for your generous gift. Sincerely, C/4c R.

posed the board goes against the "one man - one vote" idea, they argue.

This proposed amendment is particularly important to people in Omaha. The people in District II (Omaha, Sarpy and Washington Counties) do not now have an equal voice with the other districts. Redistricting the state every ten years, proponents argue, would do away with these inequalities.

Opinion: Voters should approve the proposed amendment. Each member on the Board of Regents, quite logically, should represent approximately the same number of people. The University of Nebraska requires huge amounts of money to operate (last week the Board of Regents approved an operational budget request of approximately $175 million), and therefore a district with 140,000 people should not have a voice equal to a district with 387,000 people.

"Constitutional amendment to permit the Legislature to authorize lotteries, raffles and gift enterprises which are intended solely as business promotions or the proceeds of which are to be used solely for charitable or community betterment purposes without profit to the promoter thereof." That is Proposed Amendment No. 8.

Our original Constitution prohibited legislative authorization of any games of chance. This has been amended three times: Parliament betting on licensed horse races, bingo playing by non-profit organizations and games of chance where a person is not forced to pay money for a chance are now permitted. This amendment would allow the Legislature to determine which types of raffles, games of chance or lotteries would be allowed. The Legislature would be permitted to authorize these only if solely business promotions or if the funds were to be used for charitable purposes or community betterment.

Proponents of the proposed amendment argue that this would provide many non-profit organizations another way of raising funds. It would also help clear up the confusion concerning many national promotions where Nebraskans have been excluded because of their questionable nature, proponents argue. They note that the amendment does not give the Legislature the right to authorize a state-operated lottery.

Those against the proposal say this merely enforces the idea of getting something for nothing

Forty-one northeast Nebraskans, including Mrs. Fred Dale and Mrs. Beryl Harvey of Wayne, went on the recent ninth United Nations tour directed by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Roof of Belton. Conducted for the Nebraska Methodist Conference Board of Christian Social Concerns, the tour of northeast United States lasted 17 days and included tours of Expo '68 in Montreal, New York City and Washington, D. C. The group also made a special tour of the White House and Capitol, visited the Voice of America at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and were invited to the office of Cabinet Member Wilbur Cohen for a seminar on social security. Part of the group posed with Congressman Robert Demmy outside the Capitol.

tends to make people more prone to spend much of their money on gambling.

Opinion: Vote for this proposed amendment. If passed this amendment would not alter drastically the constitutional stand on games of chance; it merely explains more clearly what can and cannot be allowed. It would also provide non-profit organizations with an easy and apparently popular means of raising money.

If Proposed Amendment No. 9 were passed it would permit the Legislature to "provide by law for the establishment of a Board of Parole and provide the qualifications of the members thereof; and to provide that the power to pardon shall rest with the Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State, sitting as a board."

This proposed amendment would merely make two boards where one now exists. It would take the responsibility of parole out of the hands of the Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State and put it into the hands of a separate board more qualified to decide parole questions. It would also take the power of pardon out of the hands of the Governor and put it into the hands of a board composed of the same three state officials.

The proposal has the backing of Governor Tiemann, Attorney General Meyer and Secretary of State Marsh. They feel they are not qualified and do not have time to decide parole questions. They, and other proponents of the measure, argue that only persons trained in penology should decide parole questions.

Opponents are concerned about the cost of establishing a separate Board of Parole, composed, presumably, of salaried members. Proponents argue that the cost of the board would be about nine or ten times less than the cost of keeping a person in prison. The national average, according to the Omaha World-Herald, for keeping a person in prison for one year is about $2,000 and about $250 to $300 for parole expenses.

Opinion: The proposed amendment should be adopted. The question of whether a person should remain in prison or should be paroled is important enough to deserve proper attention - a full-time board could make sure it received just that. Also, the cost of the board would probably be much smaller than the costs of keeping a person confined.

Proposed Amendment No. 10 is probably the most difficult to understand and the most technical one on the ballot. Since the proposal is so technical no opinion will be offered.

It reads: "Constitutional amendment to provide that the Legislature may, by special law, create public corporations which are or have been organized wholly or in part for the purposes of the generation, transmission, or sale, or any combination thereof, of electricity."

The following arguments for and against the amendment are taken from a pamphlet produced by the University of Nebraska, Extension Service, and authored by Jack D. Timmons, extension economist:

"The proponents of the proposal contend that the present provision is restrictive and prevents the Legislature from solving the public power problems of the state. This is an unnecessary restriction in Nebraska which is totally public power. Its supporters further state that the amendment would not discriminate among public power districts and would not be special legislation except to the extent that it applies only to public power corporations. They said that the public power problems of the state are unique and the Legislature must have the authority to deal with them.

"Opponents of the measure contend that it is special legislation. They contend that the corporation set up under the 1965 legislation places too much authority under one board, and they expect this to be re-established if the amendment is approved. They also felt that this would establish a dangerous precedent for establishing special corporations and that it is neither desirable or necessary for solving public power problems. They further said that the amendment as submitted to the voters is misleading since it only says 'create' while the actual wording in the amended section of the Constitution would also allow extension, change or amendment of such corporation."

60,000 SPF Hogs Up-Breed Stock

More than 50,000 head of swine have been accredited in the first 10 years of the Nebraska Specific Pathogen-Free (SPF) program, and it is estimated that 10,000 additional animals will meet health and performance standards for accreditation in 1968.

This word comes from Richard Coupe, SPF coordinator in the Department of Veterinary Science at the University of Nebraska.

they were satisfied with performance of SPF stock as a positive influence on swine production.

"The survey also showed that Nebraska swine producers realize that herds free of chronic disease will give better performance than conventional pigs when both are under the same conditions of management," Coupe pointed out.

Coupe reminded producers that now is the time to plan for breeding stock needs of swine herds for 1969. "Whether pigs are needed for replacement of herds or replacement stock, the Nebraska SPF Swine Accrediting Agency has a good supply of performance tested, Virus Pig Pneumonia (VPP) and Atrophic Rhinitis (AR)-free Nebraska SPF Accredited breeding stock," he said.

Details can be obtained by contacting Coupe, c/o 101 Veterinary Science Dept., East Campus, University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

Child Psychology Adult Education Class Offered

A class in adult education will be offered in three two-hour sessions starting Oct. 29, on the subject: "Conflict: Parent and Child". WIS Supt. Francis Iman announced this week.

The class will be taught by Dr. Paul Bancroft, a pediatrician who has served as chief of the medical staff of Bryan Memorial hospital and as a member of the state hospital in Lincoln, dealer with children. Presently he is on the staff of the University of Nebraska student health center.

A brochure describing the course says, "Conflict: Parent and Child? One of the most crucial aspects of parenthood is understanding the child's development - his needs and desires - the social and emotional pressures put on him."

Clauses will be from 7:30-9:30 p.m., Oct. 29, Nov. 12-19 at the high school. Cost will be $10 per student.

LOOK FAMILIAR? Perhaps not, but it is an old view over new paving, the Highway 15 improvement project as seen from the new bridge at the south edge of Wayne. One view looks north into town, the other south. Highway department engineers still expect to have the work completed by Nov. 1. Some shoulder work remains to be completed along the portion of the road south of town and expansion joints remain to be cut into the new concrete paving from the bridge north to Clark street.

Wars, including the Korean conflict and the Vietnam era, who die of causes not related to their service. Eligibility and the amount of pension are determined by the survivor's income.

Compensation, on the other hand, is paid to the survivors of veterans who die of service-connected causes, and income of the survivor has no bearing on eligibility for amount paid, Nixon said. Remarriage of the widow receiving compensation makes her ineligible, but as in the case of pensions, the mother's remarriage does not affect the eligibility of her children.

Full details are available at the VA Regional Office, Lindome, or by visiting Wayne County Service Officer, Chris Barholz. All applications should be accompanied by full identifying information on the veteran including, if possible and DD-214, a VA claim number or insurance number, Nixon said.

If you are disabled and will be unable to go to the polls on November 5, you can apply for a disabled voter's ballot at the County Clerk's office. You can apply for the ballot starting Oct. 26.

Take the guesswork out of beef feeding with

KENT PRECISION NET ENERGY

New KENT Beef Feeding Program Allows You to Predict Exact Rate of Gain and Production Cost

Agricultural university announcements of Net Energy present a highly complex picture of this new concept. Reducing it to its simplest terms, however, Net Energy is the amount of nutrients remaining for maintenance and weight gain after losses from urine, feces, heat and gases are subtracted. Kent nutrition scientists have combined the Net Energy Concept with Kent Precision Programs and produced workable feeding tables which you can use to maximize your feeding operation.

Now you can calculate the exact amount of supplement, corn and roughage needed to give you a specific rate of gain and figure your cost almost to the penny. This gives you greater control than ever before possible.

If you want to finish your cattle on a corn and legume hay ration, just find the weight of your steers on the proper table, such as the example shown. It will tell you exactly how much supplement, corn and hay to feed for your desired rate of gain. No longer do you routinely feed two lbs. of supplement per head per day from start to finish. Why carry potential profits out in your spreader? Use Kent's new Precision/Net Energy programs to feed beef just what it takes to make your market weight on the market date! See us soon for a free copy of the new Kent Precision/Net Energy Program.

Deceased Vets' Children May Get Pensions

Children of deceased service men may be eligible for Veterans Administration pensions even though their mothers are not. This reminder was made today by C. W. Nixon, manager of the VA regional office, Lincoln. "This situation occurs under two sets of circumstances," he said. "First, the unmarried widow may be ineligible because her income exceeds limits set by law. Second, when a widow receiving a pension for herself and her children remarries, she loses her personal eligibility for a pension based on her veteran husband's death."

Minor children, however, may continue to receive pension payments in either case, even though they live with their mother. Their personal eligibility is limited only by their mother's income, Nixon said.

If a child's income is greater than $1,800 per year, no pension will be paid, but the child's own earnings are not counted. The VA manager stressed that a widow's personal eligibility should not prevent her making application to any Veterans Administration office.

"Unless an application is made, we have no way of knowing about children who might be eligible," he said.

Pensions may be paid to certain survivors of veterans of all
