

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

High Stakes in a Lethal Game

How very difficult it is for one to outgrow childhood imaginative creations! To some degree it is better that one does not, however, for to always and forever play the game of "let's pretend" will most certainly lead to accumulative disaster.

It may be observed in our country that a partial mental paralysis has slowly but surely overcome many inhabitants. Symptoms of this half-way-lit disease are easy-come, easy-go words, coloring over unpleasant facts, easy slogans and dangerous logic.

There was a time when "let's pretend" was a game for children, but now adults have re-joined them in the game with what seems to be blind optimism.

On the international scene, for instance, some pretend that communism really isn't overly bad, and that its leaders are not out to capture the world, except for those countries near Russia, Cuba and more recently the attack of Czechoslovakia.

On the State level there are adults who pretend to be honestly interested in the affairs of State. Few, however, experience personal contact with State officials.

Now, let's bring our thoughts to the County. How many County citizens take for granted that others will run the County's business? Much of the time the one reason for speaking out, if at all, is when taxes grab the throat of our pocket-books.

Have you ever asked yourself, "What kind of a County would this County be, if every resident

Let Us Not Forget

John Quincy Adams, in a letter written in 1801, said, "Our Constitution professedly rests upon the good sense and attachment of the people. This basis, weak as it may appear, has not yet been found to fail."

He was right, of course. Once again we have observed a nation endure the pangs of giving birth to a new President. Even as the format of liberty was first conceived, then given birth in the midst of autocracies' negative speculation that such a conjunction of free states could exist, so it continues proudly displaying the scars of both birth and struggle.

Now that the election is over, it would be wise to recall something Daniel Webster wrote in 1832, "as men may be protected against murder, but cannot be guarded against suicide, so government may be shielded from the assaults of external foes, but nothing can save it when it chooses to lay violent hands on itself."

May all citizens of this great nation be willing to retract those mental tentacles that would strangle a neighbor by prejudice, greed, or hate, lest we be guilty of choosing "to lay violent hands" upon ourselves.

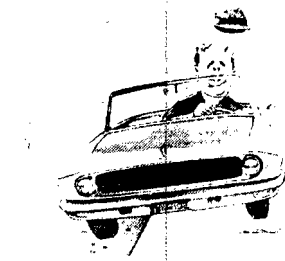

Let us continue enduring the labor pains necessary in the production of freedom's birthrights. In so doing, may we unite, with unquestionable moral solidarity, behind the new President, displaying to a disenchanted world, those

Capitol Building Culminated

Nebraskans today are fortunate in having one of the most beautiful and unique state capitol buildings in the United States, and one which is a masterpiece of architecture.

In July, 1920, Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue's tower design was chosen over those of nine other architects in the final competition program for a capitol design. One of the main elements of the competition, according to sources in the Library of the Nebraska State Historical Society, was the challenge presented to the architects to use their creative ability to the fullest extent.

The architect, born in Pomfret, Conn., on April 28, 1869, states that he felt "set free" to design and create in this competition more than ever before.

Almost entirely self-educated, he attended school only a few years. He was later tutored privately at home. Despite this lack of formal education, Goodhue was a very cultured, broadly knowledgeable man.

At the age of 15, Goodhue went to New York, where he worked for the architectural firm of Renwick, Aspinwall and Russell. In 1889, after entering several competitions for church designs, he joined the young firm of Craw & Wentworth of Boston as head draftsman.

During this period, he also designed two type faces in the Roman family: Merrymount and the familiar Cheltenham. He also designed borders, title pages, and book plates which were prized by collectors.

One of his first architectural accomplishments was the Gothic chapel at the United States Military Academy at West Point, where his great-grandfather, Colonel Thomas Grosvenor, a Revolutionary War hero, had built the first fort.

A Romanticist, Goodhue filled his earlier designs with rich, elaborate decoration and detail. His work gradually became simpler, more direct and fundamental, so that he achieved more classic forms.

In designing the capitol, Goodhue created a unique monument of art and for Nebraska. After serious study, meditation and reflection on the State's geography, history, and temper, he was able to design a building that is structurally simple, economical in form, yet very impressive. Ornamentation is "more in the nature of integral accent rather than of decoration," and exemplifies Goodhue's progression toward his dream of the perfectly designed building.

Counting Election Returns

It is a clumsy way of doing business to have the election boards count the returns until all the voting is done. It frequently happens that a lot of wooden heads and dead ones are on the board and these are slower than molasses in winter, so that the result cannot be told until the next day.

Town Reflected in Sky

A remarkably distinct mirage was seen Friday by the people living north of the town of Nelson. The entire town of Edgar was reflected in the sky. Edgar is about fourteen miles from where the mirage was seen.

Cudahy Case Dropped

The arrest of Thomas Costell, or Thomas Murphy, in St. Joseph, Mo., and his alleged confession of complicity in the Cudahy kidnaping was viewed with little interest by the Pinkerton agency at Chicago. Since the arrest of Callahan and the failure through lack of evidence to convict him of the crime the case has been dropped.

Boat Drawn by Kite

After several failures, says a London special, S. F. Cody on Saturday succeeded in crossing the English channel in a collapsible boat drawn by a kite. He left Calais at 11 o'clock at night and reached Dover thirteen hours later. He had some narrow escapes.

Why a Dog Turns Around

A dog turns around several times before lying down simply because his far-away progenitors did it in order to make a bed in the grass or the snow. In placing his nose on his paws he is doing what those same progenitors did to keep their nostrils protected. In the careful cleaning of her fur the modern cat imitates her remote ancestors, which were able in this way to remove odors likely to betray their presence to their enemies and to the animals they were hunting.

One of the shop and restaurant closed its doors last week on account of a lack of patronage. Several have been talking of buying out the old proprietor and renewing business.

A genuine old fashioned spelling school is to be given by some of the members of the M. E. Sunday school on Friday night, Nov. 20th, and will be conducted by Prof. Wilson, the proceeds to be used for paying of the church debt. A short program will be given, admission 10 cents each.

In The Vicinity

Bert Valentine, well known about Carroll and who served a ten days sentence in the County Jail for trifling with the patience of Carroll's marshal last spring, is reported under arrest at Niobrara on the charge of running away with a 14-year old girl named Hill of Bloomfield - Carroll Index.

Grading is proceeding at the rate of a mile a day for the proposed new electric railway from Sioux City to Homer via South Sioux City and Dakota City.

The Emerson Crescent is a new paper started last week, with L. C. Trumbauer as editor. It begins with a healthy lot of advertising and a bright, new paper, whose publisher we wish success.

Dear Editor: Wayne businessmen deserve a gold star! Thursday, Oct. 15, we, the Junior class, held a slave auction. The weather was damp, cold and generally very disagreeable.

The Junior class would like to extend their thanks to those who made our slave sale possible: KTCB, The Wayne Herald, Mrs. Fleetwood, who at the last minute donated an indoor site and the First National Bank, whose parking lot we intended to use, as well as give special salute to the businessmen and shoppers who made our slave sale a success.

Cooperates with CBS

Springbank Township in Dixon County did a little bit more than its share during the presidential election Tuesday—it helped a television network predict the winner in Nebraska.

The township was selected by Columbia Broadcasting Company to phone in the results of the presidential race as soon as its ballots were counted. Along with the results from several other polling places across Nebraska, CBS was able to predict which of the three men would get Nebraska's electoral votes.

The presidential race wasn't really in question in Nebraska, but Mrs. C. O. Wilson of Allen, judge on the election board in Springbank Township, cooperated with CBS.

At 8:25 p.m. Tuesday she called New York and reported that Nixon had received 248 votes, Humphrey 45 and Wallace 11. In doing so she had to follow a sheet which had the dialogue that was to take place between her and the person in New York printed on it. In fact, what she was to say was printed in a different color from that which the person in New York was to say. Long-distance calls cost money, you know.

Mrs. Wilson said she had no idea why the township was selected as one of those to call in its results, but she did say the township has a record for having a large turnout during elections.

When Mrs. Wilson first received the call that the township had been selected by CBS, she thought some practical joker was having a lot of fun. But when the forms and information arrived shortly after in the mail she knew better.

Start Tech School On Cash Basis

Members of the Northeast Nebraska Vocational Technical School board, in their monthly meeting in Norfolk, favored an initial building project at Norfolk for the new school, totaling about $1 million dollars, without going into debt or issuing bonds. School administrator, F. Don Macley, proposed to conduct a 14 county survey on which to base a curriculum.

Also favored was a suggestion by Dennis L. Poeschl of Stanton, board chairman, that at least some of the most needed vocational courses be started in rented facilities as soon as possible after Jan. 1, 1969.

The board decided to proceed with the construction of the first building on a cash basis, since the bond issue for construction of the entire school building complex would require a vote of the 14 county area. It was too late to get the question on the Nov. 5 ballot.

Macley said there would be at least $1.5 million due in taxes from the counties in the district next year. He said a $1 million building could include mechanic's shops, a few classrooms and administrative offices.

VA Making Special Effort to Help

While a wide array of benefits is available to today's veteran, special assistance is provided the young veteran with a limited education who faces a bleak future.
C. W. Nixon, Manager, VA Regional Office, Lincoln, recently said that the VA no longer waits for the new Nebraska veteran to come to the agency for assistance.

Securing their names from discharge forms furnished by the Defense Department, the VA sends out letters to the veterans and follows up by making telephone calls or personal calls.

Nixon said that when the veteran comes in for guidance, the VA explains the various benefits available, including GI education benefits which give the veteran from $130 to $175 or more a month while he completes high school. The Manager emphasized that high school training under the GI Bill does not reduce eligibility for advanced educational benefits.

Provisions have been made in the GI Bill so a veteran can also attend a trade school, take correspondence courses, go to college, enroll in farm cooperative training or take on-the-job or apprentice ship training.

While these educational benefits are available to all qualified veterans who served after Jan. 31, 1955, he said that Vietnam era veterans with a limited education can get a special "transitional appointment" to work for the Federal government if they go to school at the same time.

He said government agencies are now hiring the Vietnam era veteran (who served after Aug. 4, 1964) without having him compete with others for the job. However, the veteran must have the job qualifications required, have less than one year of training beyond high school and agree to take at least the equivalent of one full year of education or their re-employment rights, of any state unemployment compensation which may be available and of veterans preference in government employment. They are also given help in finding a job.

The manager urged veterans to contact the VA Regional Office, Lincoln, or their local County Service Officer, if they want to go to school, take further training or get a job.

Wayne Men Attend Counselors' Meet

Wayne High School's guidance counselor, Kendall Carlson, and Fredrick Larson, Middle School social studies teacher, attended a Counselors' Workshop in Norfolk Thursday at the ABC Bowl.

The workshop was co-ordinated by the Guidance Service department at Nebraska University, and was one of several regional workshops to be held within the State.

Stanley Vasa, Fremont, psychologist working with Educational Service Unit II, spoke on the topic of Referral Procedures and Agencies on the morning program. Following his presentation, Harlan McCoy, director of private vocational schools in the State Department of Education, gave an address dealing with legislation restricting private out-of-state vocational schools. After the 10 a.m. coffee break, Chuck Cromer who is project co-ordinator from the research co-ordinating Unit at the University of Nebraska, informed those in attendance about employment opportunities beyond high school.

"Practical Applications of Behavior Modification" was the workshop subject presented by the University of Nebraska's Supervisor of Practicum, Steven Zifferblatt. Closing the afternoon session, William Maly, Lincoln Northeast High School's counselor concentrated his area of discussion around "Group Guidance in the School".

BUILDING FEEDLOT FENCE?

TRY CARHART'S 4" x 4" 6-GAUGE WELDED MESH FOR A PERMANENT INSTALLATION

THIS GALVANIZED WIRE FENCING IS AVAILABLE IN 150-FT. ROLLS THAT ARE 5 FEET HIGH

- Advantages of this type feedlot fence:
- ★ Gauged size of wire to withstand normal feedlot requirements.
 - ★ Height to suit even the largest feeder stock.
 - ★ Minimum amounts of posts and dimension for reinforcing.
 - ★ Less fence-building time.

Hints on Feedlot Planning

- DRAINAGE — Manure tends to collect around the edges of feedlots and block drainage. In order to assure efficient drainage and good animal health, a slope of 1 ft. to 2 ft. per 100 feet is recommended.
- EROSION — Avoid locations with steep slope of the ground (more than 4 feet per 100 feet) unless you expect to pave your feedlot.
- AREA — Space needed depends on climate and your feeding system. However, 65-square feet per mature beef animal is about the minimum total area, including shed space and open lot.
- RAISED FENCE PANELS — A space of 6" between ground level and the bottom of feedlot fences is recommended for cattle. For hogs, go down to 2". This reduces the build-up of mud and manure against the fence and improves drainage.

WE CLOSE AT 4:00 P. M. SATURDAYS

I wish to thank SWAY for the $10 check sent to me. It was greatly appreciated. I have finished basic training at Fort Lewis and am now taking a course of fuel and electrical repair at Aberdeen Proving grounds in Aberdeen, Md.

The course consists of working with carburetors and the entire electrical system of a vehicle. The course covers a period of 12 weeks.

If any Wayne news comes about, I would like to hear of it since I don't hear much of Wayne's news way out here in Maryland. Again I wish to express my appreciation for the gift. It will be used in a wise way.

My address is: Pvt. Rodney L. Reez, RH 68054368, Co. "C", 2nd Bn., Sch. Bde., Class 33, 5th Platoon, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Md. 21005.

KENT's new beefed up starting programs combat shipping stresses--start beef healthy

Weaning, round-up, sorting, vaccination and shipping stresses may cause a calf's rumen to stop functioning. Animals go off feed, get sick, take a long time to recover. They need your help for a fast start... more help than rest and water only will provide. Choose the Kent Starting Program that best meets your feeding situation.

One of three new, beefed up starting programs from KENT is tailor made to start your beef calves on the road to a fast, profitable finish! All three provide 350 mg of antibiotics per head per day to help control shipping fever and respiratory infections better than ever before.

- KENT SUPER A-D primer (Supplement) is a super fortified starting supplement that provides the kind of help calves and yearlings need. In addition to antibiotics, Super A-D Primer is fortified with 100,000 units of Vitamin A and 50,000 units of Vitamin D per pound, plus phosphorus and other essential minerals. Just mix it with grain or hand feed SUPER A-D Primer for 14-30 days, depending on age.
- KENT Cattle-n Calf Starter (Semi-Complete Feed) provides everything but the hay, and is now beefed up with extra antibiotics and essential vitamins and minerals to help fight off the respiratory infections commonly resulting from shipping stresses. Fed free choice with 5 lbs. of hay per head per day, calves pass the stress period without setback, are ready to go on full feed in just 28 days.
- KENT E-Z Starter (Complete Feed) pelleted, bulky high-fiber, complete starting ration with high levels of antibiotics and Vitamins A and D. In just 14 days, the calf rumen is working normally, stress problems are under control. Recommended for any yearlings scheduled for a high-energy finishing program such as the KENT NRB (No-roughage beef) Program.

When you receive your feeder cattle, choose the right, beefed up Kent starting ration to put them on the road to profit quickly. We have free literature on all three methods: SUPER A-D Primer, Cattle-n Calf Starter and E-Z Starter. Find out how each of these starters can work into KENT's new Precision/Net Energy Beef programs that help you set your daily gain goals and make them.
