WSC Grapplers Think Big; Challenge K-State Friday

No soft touch for Wayne State wrestlers in their opening match—no air, they will take on Big 8 Kansas State University at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Rice Gym. Coach Don Pate had the opportunity to schedule the K-Staters because they were coming this way on a Thanksgiving weekend trip, and Pate happily agreed to pit his Wildcats against the Kansas Wildcats—even though Wayne State students will be gone for the holiday recess.

The coach hopes for the usual strong turnout of local wrestling fans, and he points out there is no admission charge for college mat meets.

What are Wayne State's wrestling prospects? That depends on several factors: the quality of wrestlers, the quality of opposition, plus some unpredictable and intangibles.

Pate thinks he has quality in personnel, including nine lettermen and some promising newcomers. But the quality of opposition is formidable—few easy foes on the schedule but plenty of teams with notable reputations. This reflects Pate's philosophy that it is better to wrestle the tough ones and learn something while losing a few than to wrestle the easy opponents and win easily.

Among his returning veterans are four of the five who took Wayne to fourth in last year's national NAA meet: national champion Larry Michelson at 152 pounds, second-place heavyweight Tom Firestack, fourth-place 123-pounder Bill Schwarz, and 145-pounder Steve Hanson, who lost his first round in the nationals but is doing well in the pre-season practice.

Other lettermen back are Cal Johnson, 115 pounds; Dick Ferguson, 130 or 137; John Yoder, 160; Charlie Peters, 167, and Jack Vaughn, 167 or 177. Peters currently is involved with directed teaching at Wakefield and will not wrestle until second term.

Pate has high hopes for several freshmen and transfers. Among the most promising is freshman Max Branum of Park Forest, Ill., an Illinois state champion. Says Pate: "He can beat anybody on the squad up to 152 pounds, but we probably will use him at 130 or 137."

Also from Park Forest is freshman John Kleitnick, an all-stater, a likely contender at 160 or 167 pounds. In the same weight range are Pat Eisenhauer, a freshman from Denver who won a Colorado title at 154 pounds, and Jim Wesser of Harvard, Ia.

Two transfer prospects looking good in practice are Ken Robinson of Des Moines, who attended the U. S. Naval Academy two years and won a plebe letter in wrestling, and Randy Hillmer of Austin, Minn., a conference champion at Austin Junior College.

Twenty others on the unusually big squad give Pate plenty of manpower to consider, and several of them are likely to give the veterans a tussle, the coach says.

WAKEFIELD TROJANS will be under new direction when they begin their 1968-69 basketball season Friday, Dec. 6, at Winside. Guiding the new Eaton, Jensen, Preston and Robble specialists will be Dennis Crawford (center). Returning lettermen include (from left) Lyle Brown, will take Wayne to the University of Northern Iowa tournament, Dec. 7, and the Maryville, Mo., tournament the 14th. The UNI meet will attract some of the Midwest's leading mat powers.

9 Lettermen Form Core Of Wakefield BB Squad

Dennis Crawford, a Peru State College graduate, is attempting to shape the Wakefield Trojans into a winning basketball squad this year.

He said he has no idea how he will do this year or if he will be able to improve on the 1967-68 record of nine wins and nine losses. Crawford is still trying to determine who will be the starting five and where his strengths and weaknesses are. He will be better able to size up his squad after the season opener when the Trojans journey to Winside to challenge Jim Connick's Wildcats.

Crawford has nine returning lettermen which he can build this year's team around. Five of them are juniors, so Crawford will have something to look forward to if this season isn't successful. Assisting Crawford in the court duties is Stan Goodwin, a first-year teacher from Kearney State College.

After the tilt with Winside, the Trojans travel the following Friday to Wisner. The rest of their schedule: Dec. 20, at Lyons; Dec. 21, Walthill; Jan. 2-3, Homer Tournament; Jan. 10, at Oakland; Jan. 17, at Tekamah; Jan. 18, at Pender; Jan. 24, Emerson-Hubbard; Jan. 25, Scribner; Jan. 31, West Point; Feb. 1, Allen; Feb. 3-7, Stanton Tournament; Feb. 15, Pierce; Feb. 21, at Ponca.

Hix, Johnson Again In Junior Bowling

A 522 series was good enough to capture first for the team of Hix and Johnson in Saturday's Go-Go Bowling action at Melodee Lanes. Coming in second was the duo of Koeber and Yordell. Taking high game honors was Phil Koeber with a 177; taking second was Steve Johnson with a 141. Larry Creighton, a beginner bowler, rolled a 104 in his first game.

Bowling in league action a little over a week ago, Nancy Neiman started off the evening with a 122 game. She added two more games with the same score to end the night with a triplicate. The same evening Lila Kay picked up a 3-7-10 split. Both ladies were bowling in the Friday Nite Ladies league.

Two ladies in the Monday Nite Ladies picked up difficult splits. Verna Bruckner converted the 6-7-10 split and Francis Leonard converted the 1-5-10 spare.

In the Hix 'n Misses league a week ago Marjelle Beebe cleaned the alley on a 5-10 split and Florence Meyer cleaned the alley on a 4-10 split.

Wildcats' Perkins, Barry Selected 'Most Valuable'

John Perkins and Doug Barry have won two coveted honors on the Wayne State football team. The gridirers elected fullback Perkins most valuable player on offense, line backer Barry most valuable on defense.

Perkins, a junior from Sioux Rapids, Ia., led the team in rushing with 475 yards, averaging four per carry and 68 a game. He also had a rare distinction—not losing a yard all season.

In early season when a host of injuries plagued the tailbacks, Perkins provided practically all of Wayne's offense, mainly on bulldozer plunges through middle line.

Barry, a senior from Battle Creek, functioned as permanent team captain all season—a tribute to his team leadership. In the past Coach John Jermier appointed different captains each

Game Dads Report Changes, Tips

An 180-acre area adjacent to US Highway 183 about one mile south of the Elm Creek Interchange on Interstate 80 has been purchased by the Game Commission. About 47 acres of clear-water sand pits will be renovated and restocked with game fish next spring. The site is named Sandy Channel Special-Use Area.

Bob Killen, section chief with the Parks Division represented Nebraska at the Lewis and Clark Trail Commission meeting in Portland, Ore., Nov. 18-21.

October was another record-breaking month at the Mela Hill Tourist Welcome Station near the Gretna Interchange on Interstate 80. A total of 1,547 persons stopped there during October to ask for information, topping the October 1967 figure of 1,353. And, four states had more visitors represented than Nebraska.

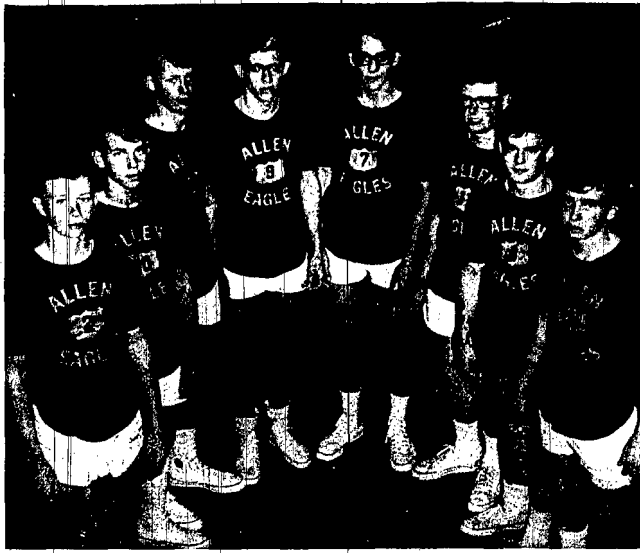

They were California, Michigan, Illinois and Iowa.

Donna Lowin, formerly stationed at Bloomfield with the Parks Division, transferred to the Law Enforcement Division. The new conservation officer has been assigned to Sheridan County and is making his home in Rushville.

Hunters who have a deer or antelope "rack" to be scored for possible state citation or national recognition can make arrangements at the Game Commission district offices in Alliance, Bassett, Norfolk, North Platte and Lincoln. A waiting period of 60 days is required for shrinkage before measuring and scoring.

Shooters Earn 27 Turkeys Sunday At Izaak Walton Final Trap Shoot

Twenty-seven turkeys were won by shooters at the Izaak Walton pre-Thanksgiving Turkey shoot Sunday at the Wayne Airport.

Howard Kimball, Allen, was top shooter with five turkeys to his credit.

Winners of turkeys in trap-shooting were Charles Thomas, John Mohr, Howard Kimball, Lee Tietgen, Dave Kudrna, Bill Wilson, Albert Anderson, Gene Johnson and K. R. Mitchell.

Kimball, Tietgen and Johnson each also won hams in other shoots.

In rifle shooting Wilson and Lloyd Russell each won two turkeys and Dave Johnson won a ham.

In still shotgun shooting, where prizes are awarded for the total number of shot holes in a circle at a prescribed range, Merton Hilton won three turkeys, and Norris Welbie and Lynn Jeffrey one each.

Archery shooting prize of a ham was won by Darrell Doecher.

Izaak Walton members sponsor a pre-Thanksgiving shoot each year as the finale of their trap-shooting season. Proceeds are used to finance club activities and improve facilities at the club's lakeside area.

Larry King was overall chairman of the shoot while Lee Tietgen ran the blue rock shoot, Paul Rockwell the rifle shoot, Ivan Beeks the still shotgun and Norris Welbie the archery.

cooking, trim off all visible fat and remove the large bones from steaks and roasts. Moisture can be added by using bacon, butter or a sauce.

Remodel Job Coming At Fish Hatchery

After more than two-thirds of a century of service, the Gretna Fish Hatchery is getting a face-lifting for some mud-lifting, to be more exact.

Built back about 1900, the hatchery has been enlarged but only routine maintenance has been necessary to keep it operating at peak efficiency. The time has now come when all-out house-cleaning is necessary. The fish ponds have silted in, ponds and dams leak water, and the elm trees have died.

About 140 American elm trees have been a problem at the Game Commission hatchery for several years, because the roots have punctured the dams and ponds. Pumps must be operated nearly around the clock to keep up with the water leakage. Since Dutch elm disease killed the trees, they will now be removed, roots and all.

After an average of 28 inches of silt and sand is dredged out of the rearing ponds, a 10-inch layer of clay will be put in as a sealer coat. The dikes will be patched and reinforced, and additional drains leading directly to the river will be installed.

While the removal of over two feet of dirt and mud from the bottom of the ponds may not seem a monumental task, it is certainly a sizable one. Many tons of earth will be involved. Just one pond on the area will account for 3,400 cubic yards. With at least 10 and maybe a dozen ponds being dredged, the dirt will pile up. Taking on such a task only every 68 years is not so bad.

VA Q & A

Q: Is there a way to check one's account under social security?

A: Yes. You can obtain a card from any social security office to send to Baltimore for a statement of your earnings. We suggest you do this every three years.

Q: Is there a minimum age at which a person can draw disability benefits?

A: A person can receive disability benefits at any age up to age 65. The only requirements are that he be disabled and that he has enough work credited under social security.

Q: I have a friend who told me that he draws a social security check of $100.00 per month even though he works fulltime on his farm and has a net profit of about $2,200.00. How can this be? I know he is not age 72.

A: When you earn over $1,680.00, one dollar is withheld from your social security check for each two dollars you earn over $1,680.00 and up to $2,880.00. Although your friend may now be receiving checks, he would not have received checks for the first three months of the year.

Veterans Administration Stressing Agricultural Training in Nebraska

A GI assistance program for agricultural workers has had very few takers in Nebraska, according to C. W. Nixon, manager, VA Regional Office, Lincoln.

Nixon said rules on institutional agricultural training for veterans have now been liberalized in hope that more eligible veterans will apply. Under a law that becomes effective Dec. 1, part-time training in a farm cooperative program now qualifies veterans for educational assistance, he said.

Under the old rules a minimum of 12 clock hours of classroom work a week was needed to qualify. Nixon expressed hope that the change will attract enough applicants to make it worthwhile for one or more schools in the state to set up agricultural classes.

Qualified veterans taking full-time farm cooperative training receive $105 a month if they are single, $125 if they have one dependent, $145 with two dependents and $7 more for each additional dependent. Single part-time students—those taking six to eight hours a week—receive $50 a month and those taking three-quarters-time programs—nine to eleven hours—receive $75. Part-time students with dependents receive proportionate increases.

To be eligible for this and several other educational assistance programs, veterans must have been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable after Jan. 31, 1955, with at least 181 continuous days active military service.

The manager said that those with at least 18 months service after Jan. 31, 1955, who have satisfied their military service obligation, are entitled to 36 months of full-time VA educational assistance. The formula for computing the entitlement of others is one and a half months of assistance for each month of service, up to a maximum of 36 months.

VA assistance is extended for many types of educational programs including college, high school, cooperative training and correspondence courses, as well as for farm cooperative, flight and apprenticeship or other on-the-job training, he said.

Full information on all VA benefits may be obtained from the Lincoln Regional Office or from local county service officers. Inquiries sent by mail to the VA Regional Office should include full identifying information of the veteran including his VA claim number, if possible, Nixon said.

Area Barber at Home with Paintbrush

Bill Rieth of Concord probably feels more at home with an artist's paint brush and a palette in his hands than he does with a barber's razor or clipper. He probably should—he's been painting a lot longer than he's been cutting hair for a living.

Born in 1902 on his father's farm near Concord, Rieth started drawing and sketching when he was about 15 or 16 years old. He has continued painting as a hobby until he now has the rare ability to create calm and beautiful landscapes on canvas.

Most of his pictures are done in oil. He begins with the tubes of paint and then mixes them with a medium to thin and blend the colors. Rieth then has the better ones mounted in frames and gives them away as gifts. A few years ago at Christmas he gave one to Darrell Blatchford, owner of Tubby's Barbershop in Laurel where Rieth barbers four days a week. Blatchford later told Rieth that it was the best present he had ever received. Rieth said that Blatchford had even turned down an offer of $100 for the picture. Quite a compliment to a painter who gives his works away as gifts.

Rieth now has five of his paintings hanging on his living room wall. Three of them are winter scenes, one is a seashore and one large one entitled "Miller's Creek" is a painting of a creek near Concord. He is proudest of a winter scene depicting leafless trees, a small creek and land and buildings covered with snow. The trees are painted in such detail that the small branches can be made out. This attention to detail is lacking in many oil paintings, Rieth says. The trees alone in this one painting took several evenings of work and patience, Rieth noted.

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald, Thursday, November 28, 1968

Rieth spent most of his life farming in Dixon County, but about 13 years ago he decided he would like to try barbering for a living. He entered a school in Sioux City, graduated and has been barbering in Laurel and Concord ever since. It wasn't really such an abrupt change for him since he used to cut his dad's and brothers' hair back when neither barbers nor money were very plentiful.

Now he paints in his spare time or on his day off. Since he doesn't make a chore out of his hobby, he can only finish about one painting every month. Although almost all of his paintings are landscapes or seashores, Rieth said he plans on working with still life paintings.

Asked about his impression of the modern artists, Rieth grinned and then in the heavy German accent he still has he said, "I don't think that is painting—a line here and a line there—it just looks like a big mess to me."

"They say you're never too old to learn, and my hobby has proved that to me," he went on. "I never did realize how much work and effort went into those paintings the great artists did in the past. Now I know, I could browse through an art museum for hours just looking at the paintings. Painters who just draw a line here and a line there don't seem to put any time or work into their paintings."

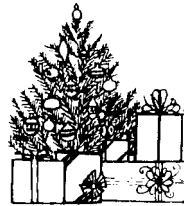

Rieth, whose father fled from Germany as a young boy because he would have been forced into military service if he had stayed in Germany, went to a country school northeast of Concord for eight years. He explained its name, Breezy Hill, this way: A group of men who had charge of the school met there one evening during a windstorm. They were trying to decide on a name for the school and because of the strong wind outside they settled on the name Breezy Hill.

His other brothers all live in Concord. Albert and Ernie have owned the filling station and garage in Concord for so long that it's something of an institution. His other brother is Fritz.

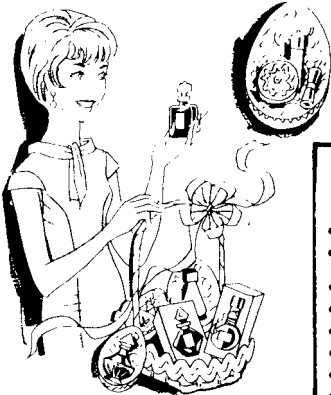

Bill and his wife, Ina, have three children. Mrs. Vaughn (Julie) Benson lives in Concord and Gene Fletcher lives in Wayne. Donna married Bob Denesia, formerly of Wayne, and now lives in Harbor City, Calif.

Home-Grown Industry Is Solution To Compensate for Ag Worker Loss

Because the exodus from farm to city is continuing in Nebraska, it is necessary that industrial development be accelerated to provide employment for displaced agricultural workers who will migrate to other states unless suitable work can be provided for them here, according to the University of Nebraska publication Business in Nebraska.

The monthly bulletin of the College of Business Administration's Bureau of Business Research notes that much of the state's historical growth, as well as the success of its recent aggressive industrial development program, is due to the creative energy of Nebraskans who are developing new industries to meet ever-changing product needs.

To illustrate its point that Nebraskans have developed their own industries through energy and ingenuity, the article points to two Grand Island firms, Big Chief of Nebraska Inc. and Delicious Foods Co.; the Rex Manufacturing Co. of Morrill; Olson Manufacturing Co. of Brule; the Larson Cement Stone Company of Omaha; Ag-Tronic Inc. of Hastings; The Safe-Play Manufacturing Co. Inc. of Sidney, and the Norfolk Rendering Works and C.T. Enterprises of Norfolk.

Business in Nebraska cites Big Chief of Nebraska Inc. as a homegrown industry that is employee-owned, with 85 per cent of the stock belonging to the workers. Virgil R. Fihusen, who believes in hiring ambitious people and letting them prosper as the company prospers, began the firm as a general construction company but switched in 1959 to the manufacture of pre-engineered buildings suitable for commercial, industrial and farm use.

Fihusen attributes the firm's success to steady development of new products to fit ever-shifting requirements of customers. Big Chief now employs 175 persons, with more added during rush periods. Three major expansions have been undertaken in recent months, including erection of an assembly plant at Fort Dodge, Ia., to provide faster service to dealers in other cornbelt states.

Bill Peterson's Delicious Foods Co. began making fresh frozen onion rings in 1962. The early operation had only three employees and now there are 160; first year sales volume was $101,000 while last year it was $2 million.

Overcoming a disastrous fire, the firm now has a modern plant on the north edge of Grand Island, stressing top quality and fast distribution. In addition, Peterson is interesting Nebraska farmers in the profitable production of onions for their own as well as his firm's benefit.

The Rex Manufacturing Company of Morrill provides seasonal employment for residents of this community of 884. The company, owned by Richard Barrett, manufactures inflatable rubber duck and goose decoys, which were the brainchild of Adam Rexius. Life-like and effective, about 2,500 decoys are sold each year in the United States and Canada.

The small metal cutting band saw which is produced by the Olson Manufacturing Company of Brule was developed and built in the farm workshop of Carleton Olson.

From this humble beginning, the operation has moved into a modern plant in Brule, where five full-time and four part-time employees turn out 90 saws per month which are suited for use by farms, shops, garages, industries and schools.

Larson Cement Stone Company of Omaha is an example of a family enterprise that has developed into an international business. Started by Swan Larson, who came here from Sweden in 1908, the firm now controlled by two grandsons continues to produce blocks but at the same time establishes cement block plants in other countries, such as one in operation now in Zaragoza, Spain.

Illustrative of the way a systematic product search for an item with growth possibilities can succeed is the Ag-Tronic Inc. manufacturing company of Hastings. Ag-Tronic produces the bright orange reflectorized triangles (SMV) that warn of slow moving vehicles ahead and the similar emblems (Detalors) that warn of danger on the highway. This industrial firm resulted from a deliberate attempt by Orin and Dale Watley to find a product with promise whose initial production cost would be within their financial capacity.

Thomas D. Barnes began the Safe-Play Manufacturing Co. Inc. in his Sidney garage in 1963. It now employs 11 full-time and five part-time workers and buys raw materials from factories throughout the nation, makes these into a variety of athletic equipment items and markets them through factory representatives and company salesmen.

Agricultural by-products are the raw material of the Norfolk Rendering Works and C.T. Enterprises, operated by Thomas and Carl Welhe. Products of the associated firms include hides, animal protein, tallow and other animal fats, meat scraps and inedible lean red meats, which are marketed in Japan and Western Europe as well as here. The business employs 23 workers full-time and provides a market for farmers and locker plants around Norfolk.

Business in Nebraska points out that for every establishment mentioned, there are dozens of others which have been turned into thriving businesses by Nebraskans who have used their creativity, initiative and business acumen.

To what extent individuals take advantage of their talents and opportunities depends on the future economic growth of the state, the report concludes.

WHS Working to Build New Band

Instrumental lessons are well underway at Winside Public schools. With over 40 students playing instruments thus far. Most of the students are renting instruments for the first three months and will then purchase the instrument. Others, however, are using school-owned horns or have found an instrument within the community to buy or use. Band director Young is at the Winside schools to give band lessons two days each week. It is the school's intention to have a full-time band instructor and build a high school band and a grade program in the near future. ...the place to save money!

Late in March of 1621 concluded a peace treaty with the Indians which was to last for fifty years.

FIRST THANKSGIVING AT PLIMOTH PLANTATION

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING celebrated at Plymouth in 1621 was a harvest festival, a gathering of family, friends and neighbors, and a time of games and feasting.

Almost half of the original 102 Pilgrims had survived the first winter. They had labored long and hard to build a village and plant crops. When their harvest was gathered, they celebrated.

In writing to a friend in England describing the First Thanksgiving, one of the Pilgrims said: "Our harvest being gotten in, our Governor Mr. Bradford sent four men on fowling, so that we might after a more special manner, rejoice together, after we had gathered the fruit of our labors. They found, on one day, killed as much fowl as, with a little help besides served the company almost a week."

"And among the rest, their Indians, amongst them, Mr. Bradford, with some ninety men, whom for three days, we entertained and feasted, they shot out and killed five deer, which they brought to the Place, and we did feed on our Governor, and upon the Captain, Miles Standish, and the rest."

In describing this Thanksgiving, which set the pattern for the traditional American celebration, other writers tell of foot racing, wrestling, swordsmanship (military drill) and pitching the bar.

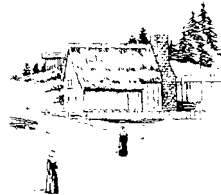

These scenes were acted out by citizens of Plymouth, Massachusetts, many of whom are descendants of those who celebrated the First Thanksgiving. Appropriately enough, the setting was at Plimoth Plantation, an outdoor museum where the first Pilgrim settlement is being re-created.

The Indians were invited to join the Pilgrims in celebrating a bountiful harvest.

When the multi-colored flint corn, which the Indians had taught the Pilgrims to plant, was harvested it had to be shelled and ground into a meal.

Although the First Thanksgiving was a harvest festival, the Pilgrims blessed their food and thanked God for a bountiful harvest.

When it was time to carve the bird, there were plenty of spectators.

Athletic events and contests of skill between Pilgrims and Indians made for another part of our Thanksgiving tradition.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers. It is the duty of an editorial writer to search all available facts before he sits down to write. From this basis the writer should be able to give a clear picture of important topics.

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

Thanksgiving, Past, Present and Future

Just one hundred years ago this Thanksgiving there was another Johnson in the White House, whose term lasted from April 15, 1865 through March 3, 1869. His name was Andrew. President Andrew Johnson had many things for which to be thankful in spite of the fact that he had never heard of television, and undoubtedly never dreamed of the jet aircraft concept, as men were not flying in powered fixed-wing aircraft until after the turn of the century.

Johnson and the nation that celebrated Thanksgiving 100 years ago could not imagine the complexity of NASA, men walking in space, nuclear weapons, intercontinental ballistic missiles or transoceanic conversation via satellite.

Thanksgiving in 1868 found no one gossiping on telephone lines because there were no telephones. April 15 was just another day on the calendar as those folk had no Federal Income Tax report to file.

Parking cars was no problem as autos didn't exist. Smokers were drawing in peace because they didn't know that tobacco tar was a contributing cause to cancer. Now perhaps we can realize why tranquillizers were not needed until later!

When Andrew Johnson was President of that peaceful Thanksgiving day in 1868, there were no movies to attend, no paper back books with four letter words and most folk seldom ventured 100 miles beyond the place of their birth.

Thanksgiving 1968 finds the 20th Century beginning to pick up momentum toward rushing into the 21st Century. And we're going to accelerate beyond 18,000 miles an hour to head for a moon landing. Commercial jet aircraft are on the drawing boards that will, when built, whisk several hundred humans across the oceans at supersonic speeds. And on this Thanksgiving day we are privileged to lounge in temperature controlled rooms watching the rest of the world go by on colored video tubes. What about the future Thanksgivings?

How will things be just 100 years from today? Would you care to guess along with me? By 2068 A.D. a new born baby will have had its sex determined according to parental preference, and at the time of birth will be given an identification symbol, possibly a numerical one, which will identify him for all governmental purposes, political purposes, financial reasons, for use in all business transactions, credit accounts, licenses, communications numbers, etc. Telephones will be museum pieces replaced by sophisticated devices, given birth out of the field of lasertronics, which will be worn on the person at all times.

Our present bulky colored TV sets will be relics bringing chuckles when observed. Those marking Thanksgiving at the end of another century will likely have a home computer enabling them to watch anything they desire, at any time they wish and time in to any location, in absolute natural color. If you like astronomy you'll be able to watch outer space, via your own monitor, which is being fed a telecast of what an orbiting telescopic eye is watching.

Oh yes, all telecasts run through your home computer will be in three dimensions! There will be no need for homes having libraries as your computer can bring to you on its screen any book and any page, at your command. This fascinating device will be of great value to Johnny who is trying to comprehend celestial navigation in his math class. The lasertronic video screen will provide family home-made film fun also.

Most citizens will be speaking at least four languages in order to overcome communication barriers via satellite, and due to being able to visit friends in Europe monthly riding hypersonic commercial craft.

Andrew Johnson would not have known what you were talking about had you been able to visit with him on Thanksgiving, 1868 and you mentioned the Nebraska Highway Patrol. Likewise in 2068 A.D. how can we dream of the space patrols needed?

Let's guess that Thanksgiving 2068 A.D., human nature will have changed little, and lovers will still quarrel, nations will still fight and each teenage generation will be convinced their parents couldn't possibly understand what it is like to be young! Happy Thanksgiving! —MMW

Seize, Please, and Squeeze

Most folk are familiar with the story of a wayward son as recorded in Holy Writ. This lad seized his inheritance and ran away from home, wasted his finances in the city on his choice pleasures, and then, penniless, he was caught up in a famine. Attaching himself to a farmer friend, for whom he did the chores, he realized, while feeding the swine, that he was hungry enough to eat their manna! Then the statement, "and no man gave unto him."

Where was his farming friend? Where were all the socialistic do-gooders? Where were all the government hand-outs that could have helped this self-directed down and outer to be put back on his financial feet enabling him to run back into town and squander some more?

Imagine how fortunate this prodigal boy was that he did not live in our time. It was severe treatment, by any measure, when "no man gave unto him" but even his farming friend, but it brought the boy back to the realization that the fruits of honest work, like that of his father's servants, meant having enough to eat. Society's gift to this young man was, in this case, the fact that no man gave unto him. Through their actions they told him, "young man, do it yourself!"

Obviously the boy was not beyond the point of rehabilitation, in that he had worked before he left home, and upon running out of funds did attach himself to a friend and was doing his chores.

Had there been some government hand-out, or some poverty program to give him a guaranteed annual wage, then the question is, would the boy have ever been motivated to get back home and back to work?

On this Thanksgiving one cannot help but ponder the results if thousands of social parasites would suddenly be separated from their gravy train that uses the taxpayer's pocket as its depot. Federal income taxes removed from wages, often go into programs which many an individual, if asked, could not honestly support. Can a movement be correct collectively that is not right individually?

You work at least 8 hours a day? Ah, but when you get your pay check you discover someone else has been there to seize a part of it before you arrived? Uncle Sam "withholds" some of it. "Withhold" is a nice word for "take". Don't misunderstand, the majority of us Americans do not mind paying a fair share of tax money that is spent wisely for the growth of our country. We like good highways and well paid efficient government leaders. But when the financial wheel turns to "welfareism" there are many questions to be asked. One of them is, what would have happened to the prodigal had a government agency taken care of him on public money? However, the society within which he lived gave him nothing and he decided to go back to work!

Bureaucrats have been dawdling the bait of a guaranteed annual wage before Americans for over ten years, and haven't, as yet, enticed the majority, but if oncoming generations are deceived into thinking that you deserve to get paid for not working, then the guaranteed annual wage will likely become federal law.

Socialism is a less offensive name for communism. Note that the USSR never wore the name "United Soviet Communist Republic," but rather chose "Union of Soviet Socialist Republics". Is communism socialism? Is socialism communism? Is communism the framework for a Republic?

"Republic" means according to Webster, "a state or nation in which the supreme power rests in all the citizens entitled to vote and is exercised by representatives elected, directly or indirectly, by them and responsible to them". Is this a picture of Russian government today? Hardly.

May we Americans take heed of that element within our society which would just as soon change the USA to the "United States of Socialistic America". It's frightening to think about.

The formula seems to run something like this. First you "seize," either in inheritance, as did the prodigal, or as do the communists; then you "please" by spending riotously, and then you have one of two alternatives (1) return to work with a "squeeze" from your father's embrace, or (2) get into the socialistic "squeeze" of communist madmen who first want your country and then your life.

May our Pilgrim forefather's example remind us today that there is no formula for success like hard work. — MMW.

Capital News — Hundreds Interviewed In Study of Road Needs

LINCOLN—The Legislative Council Roads Study Committee conducted "hundreds" of interviews with citizens all across Nebraska to find out "what they wanted and how they wanted to get it."

The committee, headed by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, said this investigation showed the people "want good roads, they are willing to pay for them and they want them now."

In its report to the Legislative Council, the committee made a series of recommendations it said would accomplish what the citizens were demanding.

Those recommendations, if implemented by the 1969 Legislature, would result in basic changes in Nebraska's traditional road-building system.

The Warner Committee's proposals were based on the suggestions included in three reports submitted by hired consultants who studied the state's road needs, financing and management.

The committee took these consultant reports across the state in a series of hearings. Then, the senators refined the consultants' recommendations and prepared its report to the Legislative Council.

The report called for legislation requiring a classification of every street and highway in the state on the basis of its function.

A new agency which would be known as the Bureau of Public Roads Classification and Standards would supervise this project. The bureau would also establish standards for the construction of the various classes of roads.

The bureau would have eight members. Two would represent the State Department of Roads. Two would be county officials and two more would be from city government. The other two would be lay representatives chosen from different areas of the state.

The State Highway Commission, which the consultants urged under the Warner Committee's proposals. The commission would be the final authority in the event of disputes over classification. The bureau would settle its own controversies over standards.

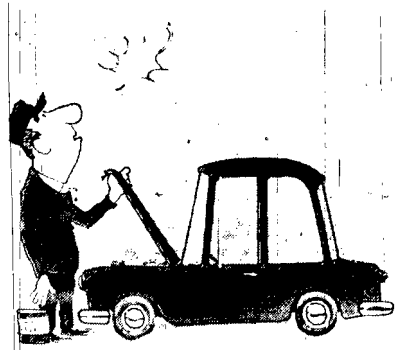

Each level of government—the cities, the counties and the state—would be required, under the committee's recommendation, to prepare a six-year road and street construction program. This would be updated each year.

In addition, annual programs listing specific projects expected to be undertaken would be filed with the state. The Highway Commission would decide if these annual plans are compatible with the six-year goals.

Until the six-year and annual plans are filed, the governmental subdivision could not receive its financial assistance from the state, according to the committee's recommendation.

The Warner Committee also urged professional engineering assistance at the local level and suggested state aid incentives to encourage cities and counties to hire qualified personnel.

The committee said those cities and counties which cannot afford professional help independently should be encouraged to join together and hire someone to serve two or more subdivisions.

In another effort to make sure professional engineering was available to the subdivisions, the committee recommended that the state license county highway supervisors and city street superintendents. Boards of examiners for each would be established to test candidates.

The committee said all the planning and organizing should be done before additional financing is made available. This should be accomplished, the report said, by 1970.

At that time, the financing recommendations would come into effect. They include:

- Raising the gas tax by a penny and the diesel fuel tax two cents.
- Boosting car registrations to $15 and hiking farm truck registration fees by $10. Local truck registrations would be increased 25 per cent.
- Transferring $3.5 million from the general fund to the highway cash fund, as the "non-users" share of the road program.
- Issuing $15 million in revenue bonds under a constitutional amendment adopted this fall by the voters. Another bond issue should be authorized for 1971, the committee said.

According to the committee's estimates, this should make a total of about $105 million available for the highway cash fund during 1970. The present "hodge-podge" of formulas for distribution of road money to cities and counties should be wiped out, the committee said, and sub-

What Kind of Cattle

Here are some remarks gleaned from a talk given by a successful western Nebraska rancher and purebred breeder at a recent cattlemen's meeting. "The most important points I look for in selecting cattle are rate of gain, feed conversion efficiency and cutability."

"An example of the spread in rate of gain comes from two of our bulls in the Nebraska beef cattle improvement test at Ogallala. Both were sired by the same bull and weaning weights were within five pounds. Daily gain on test for the low gaining bull was 2.39 pounds per day or 335 pounds for the 140 day test period. The high gain bull gained 3.32 pounds per day for a total of 465 pounds. The cost per pound of gain on the low gaining bull was 26 cents while the cost on the high gaining bull was 18 cents per pound. On every test I have seen the ones with the highest rate of gain had the Northeast Nebraska farmers will need to decide on Dec. 12 whether they are dairymen or beef cattle producers. Why? On that day special information meetings are scheduled at some distance apart.

super and the chance of getting something free was too much for us so we drove to Wayne, a trip of 150 miles and our first.

We found real hospitality and found too that we knew more people than we realized.

The folks of Wayne and community must have really worked long and hard to put on such a well managed program and delicious meal.

Here at Atsworth, NFO was organized only last winter, and we wouldn't feel it a lost cause as far as we are concerned if we gained nothing more than the friends we've gained through being a part of NFO.

We wish to thank every one for the wonderful evening and opportunity of hearing and meeting so many good people.

Hearing and meeting Oren Lee Saly was also a highlight in the evening.

Thanks again.

Club Calf Search Important Project For 4-H Youngsters

The search for that "special" club calf to feed for the county fair is an important step to most 4-H beef showmen.

In the American tradition of competition, most 4-H'ers want "nothing but the best" when they pick out a calf which they know will vie with other calves for awards in a show arena some months hence, a University of Nebraska livestock specialist points out. But selecting a suitable feeder calf does not ensure the success of a 4-H market beef project, says Dave Williams. A calf may have inherited the ability to gain efficiently and develop into a prize winner—but it will not meet this potential unless it receives proper feed and care, Williams stresses.

Club members should select their project calves with a specific show or marketing date in mind. Once this has been decided upon, the calves should be fed according to a systematic plan that will allow them to develop into profitable market steers or heifers of acceptable weight, finish and grade, the University of Nebraska livestock expert advises. A 4-H market steer should weigh 950 to 1,100 pounds, carry about 4 to 6 inches of finish and grade choice when shown and sold. A market heifer will finish at a lighter weight than a steer of the same age, and should weigh 850 to 1,000 pounds.

Here are Williams' recommendations on feeding and finishing programs—

A calf's ration—its daily diet—should contain only clean, high quality ingredients that a calf

CARROLL PARENT-TEACHER Conferences were held Thursday and Friday, Mrs. Lynn Burns, at left, teacher of grades three and four, confers with Mrs. Marvin Isom, Carroll, concerning daughter Joni, 9, in the fourth grade. Mr. and Mrs. Isom farm and have two other youngsters, Jodi, 6, in the first grade, and Jane, 4, at home.

will want to eat. Home grown or locally produced feeds should be used when available to help reduce the feed bill. Salt, minerals and clean water should be available to the calf at all times.

The ration should be a simple one that contains the fewest number of ingredients that will adequately meet the goals set forth for the calf being fed. This rule applies to all market calves—including those being fed for show. Some 4-H'ers have been led to believe that a show calf should be fed a complex ration. Complex rations are not only unnecessary but are often expensive and difficult to balance.

The feeding program for any calf should be divided into two phases: growing and finishing. During the fall and winter, a calf should grow in size by developing skeleton and muscle but put on very little fat. This requires a high protein roughage and a limited amount of grain, or a low protein roughage, balanced with a protein supplement and a limited amount of grain. A growing ration developed within these broad guidelines will enable an average feeder steer to gain about 1.4 pounds per day and a growthy steer about 1.5 pounds. Heifer calves of comparable gaining abilities should average about 1.2 and 1.3 pounds respectively.

The following are a variety of growing rations. The club member should choose a ration which best fits his home situation:

Ration 1: Corn silage-free choice, 40 per cent protein supplement-1½ pounds, Rolled corn or milo-1 pound.

Ration 2: Sorghum silage-free choice, 40 per cent protein supplement-1½ pounds, Rolled corn or milo-2 pounds.

Ration 3: Alfalfa silage-free choice, Rolled corn or milo-4 pounds.

Ration 4: Alfalfa hay-free choice, Rolled corn or milo-4 pounds.

Ration 5: Early cut prairie hay-free choice, 40 per cent protein supplement-1½ pounds, Rolled corn or milo-4 pounds.

Ration 6: Early cut brome grass hay-free choice, 40 per cent protein supplement-1½ pounds, Rolled corn or milo, 4 pounds.

Each calf should receive 10,000 units of supplemental vitamin A per day while on a growing ration. It may be included in a protein supplement or mixed and fed with grain. A reminder—the calf should have access to salt, a mineral mixture and clean water at all times.

If the protein supplement being used contains less than 40 per cent protein, substitute one of the following:

30 per cent protein supplement—two pounds per day; 32 per cent protein supplement—two pounds per day; 35 per cent protein supplement—1-3/4 pounds per day.

During the last phase of the feeding period, the calf should be fed a high energy ration. Such a ration contains not only the balance of nutrients necessary for continued normal growth, but also extra energy for the calf to fatten properly. Whenever possible, the finishing ration should make maximum use of good quality grain and roughage (hay or silage) produced on the club member's farm or in his community. A calf being finished on a finishing ration will consume about two pounds of concentrate per day for each 100 pounds of body weight, plus a limited amount of roughage. The concentrate includes grain or commercial fattening mixture and a protein supplement, if needed.

The kind and amount of roughage being fed will determine if protein supplement is needed. It also will govern how much is needed. Corn and milo, the main grains used in Nebraska fattening rations, are usually low in protein. Therefore, they must be supplemented unless the ration contains five pounds or more of high quality alfalfa hay (or equivalent). A complete guide for 4-H'ers to use in determining the supplemental protein needs of beef finishing rations is found in lesson 7 in the 4-H Beginning Beef Manual, available through County Extension offices. Club members are advised to select the proper amount of supplement indicated in the guide. Feeding less than the amount needed will result in slower gains while more than the recommended allowance will increase the cost per pound of gain.

During the finishing phase, the calf should have free access to salt, minerals and clean water and the daily vitamin A allowance should be increased to 20,000 units. Extra vitamin A is needed because the calf is larger.

The following is an example of a balanced finishing ration for an 800-pound steer: Rolled corn, 15 pounds; 40 per cent soybean oil meal (with 30,000 IU Vit. A per pound of supplement), 3/4 pound; leafy alfalfa hay, 2 pounds; salt 1 mineral mixture, free choice.

Adequate knowledge and faithful execution of all principles involved in the three steps to the beef show ring—selection of the proper calf, an appropriate feeding program, and a systematic training and handling program—are necessary if the calf is to be in the winner's circle, Williams emphasizes. And a step-up along the way in carrying out any of the major steps from the initial decision to feed a calf to the time the finished animal is led into the show ring can make the judge, exhibitor and parents see red—a red ribbon instead of a blue or possible purple, he warned. "A calf may have genetic traits which could earn it a purple ribbon award. But these superior qualities may not be developed if the feeding program features an imbalance of nutrients, poor timing in feeding, growing and finishing rations, or handling procedures which cancel out the benefits of an otherwise adequate feeding program," Williams says.

One of the main objectives of the project is to teach 4-H members basic fundamentals of selecting, buying, feeding and selling market beef on a practical basis. Each club member is urged to keep this objective in mind as he plans his market beef project. The adoption of a sound and sensible feeding and handling program is a prerequisite to project success, Williams concludes.

Don Carlson Named Champ Corn Grower

Don Carlson of Walsley has been named champion corn grower in Wayne County by Wilson Hybrids, Inc., of Harlan, Ia., sponsors of the contest. Over 100 area farmers participated in the contest this year.

Denny Stamp, sales manager of the company, said Carlson used Wilson's W-275 seed and produced 180.0 bushels per acre. All yields were adjusted to a uniform yield based on No. 2 corn. Other top yields in the county were Richard Wert of Wayne, 100 bushels.

Carlson is to be awarded the 1968 county certificate in a dinner to be held in December.

A PEACOCK belonging to Joe Keagle, Wakefield, has just turned away from the reflective glass of the Wakefield Community hospital's front door, appearing disappointed in not being able to get in. His peahen friend was just out of the picture to the left. The three-year-old peafowls have made their nest at the Keagles for a year. It was thought there might be some babies last summer but a dog, frightened by a firecracker, broke the eggs. The birds like to eat bread as well as anything and will not be mature until they are four years old. Spring is the mating season and it is then that the peacock most often struts, spreading his beautiful tailfeathers.

Stalk Rot Costs Nebraska Farmers Nearly $33 Million in 1968 Season

Stalk rot, currently the most serious and widespread disease complex of field corn in Nebraska and other Corn Belt states, cost Nebraska farmers nearly $33 million dollars this season.

This estimate by University of Nebraska Extension Plant Pathologist Dr. David S. Wysong was based on measurements of yield losses attributed to stalk rot in 15 Nebraska counties, and projected against the state's total acreage and anticipated average yield.

Stalk rot causes infected plants to die prematurely and softens stalk tissues, which allows the weakened stalk to bend or break, especially as the corn nears maturity. Further losses, beyond yields reduced by effects of the disease itself, come from difficulty in harvesting the down corn and decline of quality of ears in contact with the moist soil, and loss of fallen ears not recovered during harvest.

The statewide yield loss charged to stalk rot this season is estimated at 9.46 per cent or 29,359,288 bushels, Wysong said, with the range of loss in fields studied ranging from 15.4 to 51.3 per cent. Yield losses, calculated on an individual plant basis in sample fields, were arrived at by comparing the difference in shelled grain weight between diseased plants and adjacent, healthy plants in relation to disease incidence per field, the NU plant disease specialist continued.

The 9.46 per cent loss figure is "conservative," in Wysong's opinion, because it represents only the yield reduction occurring on diseased corn still standing when inspected during the study. Additional losses would be expected to occur from lodged plants, ear and cob rots, poor ear fill and harvesting problems, he pointed out.

Based on current seven-year corn production averages, Nebraska farmers would have realized an increase of 6.3

DO-SI-DO. High school and Middle school students dancing in open house Tuesday night. Square danced in the high school gymnasium during the evening.

bushels per acre yield, valued at $32,983,000, in the absence of stalk rot.

Sampling included both irrigated and dryland corn from five of the state's eight crop reporting districts, representing 88 per cent of the state's corn production.

Occurrence of diseased-standing plants in fields surveyed ranged from three to 89 per cent, Wysong stated, with a mean of 25.9 per cent. When fields within crop reporting districts were combined, the mean incidence of stalk rot ranged from 13.67 in the southeast district to 36.12 in the southern district. Yield losses per field ranged from 4.98 per cent in the southeast to 14.83 per cent in the northeast district and 14.98 per cent in the southern district.

Against the backdrop of a much higher incidence of stalk rot this year, the per cent yield loss per field was not as great in the southeast district, because average production per farm and mean yield per acre over a seven-year period (1960 to 1967), is less than in other cropping districts.

Average corn production per farm in the southeast during the period has been 3,521 bushels based on a mean yield of 60.7 bushels per acre, while production per farm has averaged 5,752 bushels in the southern district and the mean yield per acre 74.7 bushels during the same period.

The mean yield per acre (actual harvested corn statistics) for the past years by cropping district, compared to the potential mean yield per acre this year if stalk rot was eliminated, were compared as follows:

Actual harvest (7-year mean yield per acre): South, 74.7; Northeast, 52.4; Central, 66.1; Southeast, 66.0; East, 69.7.

Potential harvest (estimated) mean yield per acre: South, 87.9; Northeast, 62.7; Central, 72.8; Southeast, 69.7; East, 63.9.

Again referring to the per-farm averages from 1960 through 1967, Wysong estimated that if the burden of corn stalk rot were lifted, potential corn production would increase in each cropping district, ranging from 185 bushels per farm (3.2 bushels per acre increase) in the southeastern area, to 1,013 bushels per farm (13.2 bushels per acre increase) in the southern crop reporting district.

which could be turned to other types of production—if losses from stalk rot were eliminated," Dr. Wysong noted.

To achieve relief from stalk rot, for which there is at present no positive cure through chemical or biological means, will be a costly and perhaps lengthy process, depending on intensive research, Dr. Wysong predicted.

At present, it is known that some varieties are more resistant to stalk rot, or have a greater tolerance because of bred-in sturdiness of stalks. However, the effect of interaction of many factors such as plant populations, amount of irrigation, water and time of irrigation, fertilizers and tillage practices on stalk rot incidence need much additional study, the NU plant disease specialist said.

It is known that crop rotation can help minimize stalk rot in a given field, but the advent of "continuous corn" has ruled out this practice in many areas of Nebraska, he said.

Further basic research into the characteristics of the fungi involved, the interaction between host and pathogen when infection occurs, and the nature of the disease development is needed before truly effective control methods may be devised.

HEADED GRAND ISLAND WAY These nine students and their teachers took off Thursday morning for Grand Island and the Nebraska Music Educators Convention. The students were to participate with others from across the state in clinic groups directed by nationally known people. The clinic included work in band, orchestra and choir areas. Climaxing the three-day con-

1968 Wool Program

Wool growers were reminded today that the 1968 marketing year under the wool and mohair program ends Dec. 31.

John H. Mohr, chairman, agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee, explained that this means that payments for the current 1968 year will depend on completing all details of marketing either wool, mohair or lambs by that date. Marketings completed after Dec. 31, 1968, will become marketings in the 1969 marketing year, and thus not eligible for payments until early 1970.

Applications for 1968 marketing year payments under the National Wool Act may be filed with the county ASCS office at any time, and the chairman advised that this be done as soon as possible. Incentive payments under the wool program are based on the average national price for marketings during the whole year, and this can be determined more exactly if reports on marketings are complete. ASCS therefore is urging that all 1968-year applications be filed before Jan. 31, 1969.

Payments for the 1968 marketing year will likely begin in April of next year.

During 1967, an estimated 195,822 persons visited Arbor Lodge State Historical Park.

Wayne Co. Bested in WSC Enrollment

Douglas County leads all Nebraska counties in the number of students, 245, enrolled at Wayne State College this fall. Wayne County, always the biggest contributor of students at WSC, dropped to second place for the first time, with 227.

Douglas also leads in the rate of gain—more than a seven-fold increase since 1958 when the county had 34 students at Wayne State.

With Sarpy County's 40 and Washington's 37 added to the Douglas number, the Omaha area's 322 represents more than one-tenth of the 3,068 enrollment.

Madison County, including Norfolk, ranks third with 186 students; Dodge County, with Fremont, 149; Cedar County, 119; Knox, 107; Cuming, 103; Burt, 98; Dixon, 95; Dakota and Platte, each 90, rounding out the top 11 among 64 Nebraska counties with students at Wayne. Other counties with sizable
