The second quarter was al-most a repeat of the first as Coleridge began scoring early while holding the Fagles out-side. Coleridge upped its lead to 15-7 before A1 smith talled one point on a free throw. Allen could only score four points in the second quarter while granting Coleridge 16 points. Allen's in ability to move the ball inside and Coleridge's alert defense accounted for new points made by the hosts. Coleridge's Craig Frerichs, a 6-2 senior, again accounted for most of the points scored by the visitors. ## 34 Players Signed up For City Cage League

About 34 men have said they will play in the city recreation basketball league, according to Hank Overin, one of the three men trying to get the league organized.

men trying to get the league organized. It is ald that is too many people for four teams and now they would like to make six teams out of the league. In order to do this, he said, there should be about 10 or 12 older men in the league so as to make each team weaker and more even. He said that if they can get 48 men to join the league they would be able to make up a good league. The first practice for the league will be next Wednesday evening in the city auditorium. The teams will be organized then and there will be some short scrimmages in order to see if all teams are about equal. Overin said that anyone interested in joining the league should call him. Ray Vriteks or Randy Bates before Wednesday. Those three will call all the men in the league Wednesday and tell them when the first practice seesion starts that night.

that night. (Verin said that practice sea-sions will probably be every Wednesday evening. First league action will start on Jan. 8. All this will be decided upon for sure by next week, he noted. Entry fee, which will be due Jan. 8, will be $4 if there are six teams and $5 if there are four teams.

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald, Thursday, December 12, 1968 Tests Show Beef Cattle Gain More When Fed on Low Roughage Ration

University of Nebrasks re-search has shown that minimum levels of roughage give more con-sistent performance than all-con-centrate rations, Dr. Walter Woods told livestock feeders at-tending the Nebrasks Livestock Feeders Association convention at York Wednesday. "Placing emphasis on low roughage rations for finishing cattle has increased efficiency of gain. Thus, in most cases, it gives increased economy of gain as compared to higher levels of roughage," the NI"s livestock nutritionist told feeders. "The level shown to be most consistent in rate of gain and near optimum in efficiency of feed conversion was five to 15 per cent (hay equivalent) of the total ration," Dr. Woods con-tinued.

factor in whether violent acts actually are carried out. "The most that can be said," he concluded, "is that television violence increases the probabili-ty that actual violent behavior will occur." "This information causes one to ponder the number of violent acts viewed per evening. As parents, do you know what your children match on the tube? How many schemes for their, robbery, murder, dishonesty and lying are waiched by your offspring in one wise?" Think of your child's mind as being a highly sophisticated computer cagable of being "pro-grammed" easily from outside influences. To an important extent, parents may control the "input" into their child's thinking. Would you as a parent then ask the child to read at least three murder mysteries nightly? #### TV and Your Child our Child television seven nights a week. It might be of interest to make your own score sheet some winter evening and count thei acts of violence coming into your front room via the tube. One often may hear 'you can always turn it off'. True, and you can always turn an electric or gas stove off too but that doesn't mean you can't still get burned when it is being used. Selectivity is undoutdedly the answer. Teach the small child to be selective in reading, TV viewing, movies attended and actions imitated. Remember, Dr. Bandura's statement was that children tend to imitate the aggressive conduct they see on TV 'or in real life''. That which a child observes his or her par-ents do especially in the home, carries a signifi-cant impact to the growing mind. The youth tends to believe that what he sees must be the way all people and families act and live. If the California psychologist is correct in his professional opinon, then there is the frighten-ing possibility that while we are tuoring children in the church and school to be acceptable citizens, we may be actually teaching them to be creatures of violence at home, via non-selective television viewing. The commission said the Ne-braska rules do not go as far as regulations adopted by other states. They are not expected, at least by the commissioners, to place an "undo burden" on any of the companies and, thus, result in requests for rate in-creases. Among the new regulations is a regulation that telephone companies provide for each in-corporated municipality in their service areas a lighted, prominently located public toil station (telephone booth). The booth is to be available to the public on 24-hour basis. The commission, how ever, took note of the times and in-cluded a provision for waiving this requirement if the company could prove "abusive vandalism" made the booth impractical. With the new rules, which take effect Dec. 31, companies will be required to have sufficient equipment to handle emer-gencies. Emergencies could include bower failures or operator fill-nesses. In case of power break-downs, the companies will each be prequired to have available within ay ear adequate emergen-cy electric generating facilities.
