Patefield's Cattle Named Reserve Grand Champions

Robert Patefield of Laurel showed his pen of slaughter cattle to the Reserve Grand Championship last Thursday at the Siouxland Beef Marketing Day program at the Sioux City Stockyards. The 16-year-old bested a field of 60 4-H and FFA exhibitors from eight Iowa and Nebraska counties in the live cattle competition. The three steers graded USDA Choice and were USDA yield-graded 2 by Ed Kimbrell, assistant to the chief of the USDA's standardization branch, who was the official grader in the event. The Angus cattle were fed 201 days and gained an average of 1.97 lbs. per day. The breakdown price was $25.53 per cwt. The Grand Champion pen of three was shown by Steven Perry of Aurelia, Iowa. His pen yield-graded 2 also. The individual animal in each pen was slaughtered in the Needham Packing Company plant for detailed cutout information and carcasses were viewed and show winners named Saturday afternoon. Counselor Sees Value in NYC Program

By Ken Carlson, NYC Summer Counselor

The Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC) is one of several programs administered through the five county Goldenrod Hills Community Action Council, Inc., at Walthill. Directed by O. W. Campbell, the council is a private state-chartered corporation, eligible to receive private as well as federal funds for its operation. Federal administrative agency for the NYC is the U. S. Department of Labor and primary funding is provided by means of the 1964 Economic Opportunity Act. NYC operates in a five county area - Thurston, Burt, Dakota, Wayne and Cedar. Three facets of the NYC program operate during the school year and summer, the in-school, out-of-school and summer programs. Wayne and Cedar counties are now familiar with the in-school and summer programs of NYC, as these counties have just this year come into the sphere of the Council's operations. The in-school and summer programs provide part-time work and on-the-job training for students of high school age from low-income families. The summer program continues operation of the NYC in-school program into the school vacation months. To be eligible for the in-school-summer NYC program, a youth between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one must meet the Department of Labor income guidelines and must intend to return to secondary education in the fall. The students work twenty-six hours per week for public, tax-supported agencies within their local communities. Work supervision is provided by community members such as school officials, mayors, street and park commissioners. The hourly wage for these NYC students is $1.30, the federal minimum wage for youth. The hourly wage is paid from the Council's funds and there is no charge to the local community. The out-of-school program provides the high school drop-out with a 32-hour per week employment-training supervised work program. The emphasis of the program is education. It stresses the completion of their high school education by returning to school, GED tests, or by going into vocational training in some desired field. To be eligible for participation in the program, the youth must be between sixteen to twenty-one years old, a high school drop-out who will be returning to school or a drop-out not intending to return to school but in need of useful work experiences in public agencies or private organizations. He must meet the income guidelines set forth by the Department of Labor. Primary objectives of the NYC program include encouragement of youth from low-income families to return to school, development of satisfactory work skills relative to future vocational competence and the opportunity to effectively improve their relationship with potential employers. As the NYC summer counselor for Wayne and Cedar counties, I assist these students in their summer job responsibilities and educational goals through individual and group counseling. Working directly with the student and his work supervisor, I travel to each work site in the two-county area several times weekly in an effort to be of such assistance to youth and to the communities in which they live. As a school counselor during the academic year, I would point out a professional reaction to the NYC program and its relationship to the students and communities involved. NYC, through local communities, is fighting more than financial poverty. I see in these NYC students the development and in some cases the beginnings of an attitude that gives each of us the drive to be all that we can be and allows each of us to continue in life even seeing that youths need an opportunity to be successful in order to be proud of themselves. This, to me, is the real value of the NYC program. Through the efforts of local people acting as work supervisors and interested community members and contributors of time and physical facilities by communities, I see the NYC program bringing out the finest attributes of people of northeast Nebraska. Perhaps more than anything else, community citizens are taking responsibility to eliminate more than "financial" poverty. These citizens are attempting to produce an attitude change in young people and are limited to fields of alfalfa and pasture and apparently have not damaged much corn as yet. Northeast Station scientists report that the insects live for about 10 days to two weeks in the worm stage and then evolve into the moth stage. There is little possibility of killing the insects before they hatch into the worm stage since all have probably hatched by now.

But proper use of recommended deadly chemicals will help cut down the damage the insects can do. The University of Nebraska recommends using Sevin, Malathion or chlordane to kill the insects. In laws you should use one cup of Sevin per 1,000 square feet of lawn or one cup of chlordane per 1,000 square feet of lawn. This should be applied with an attachment on a hose which delivers about 10 to 20 gallons per minute. The lawn should be freshly mowed and wet in order to achieve maximum effect from the chemicals.

About one and one-half to two pounds of Sevin should be applied on fields, according to the University. Malathion at one pound active ingredient per acre can also be applied. The University notes that Sevin is the safest of the control chemicals. All have some restrictions on use and anybody applying them should make sure they read the labels and instructions.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. David Lutt, Chadron, a son, Jay David, 7 lbs., 15 oz. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lou Lutt, Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Cunningham, Carroll.

ONLY MINOR INJURIES were sustained by drivers and occupants in two separate accidents Wednesday. About three o'clock in the afternoon Tresia Allen, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Allen of Wayne, lost control of a car she was driving south on a dirt road three miles west and about one-half north of Wayne. The car flew off the road with the front end pointing north just north of a narrow bridge and creek. The rear of the automobile, owned by William Lueders of Wayne, struck several small trees, spinning the car around so it ended on its right side pointing southwest. Passengers George Fitch, 14, and Chris Lueders, 16, sustained bruises and small cuts as did the driver. About 6:40 Wednesday night a "dune buggy" driven by Miles Rohan of Maskell, a Wayne State College student, was struck by a car driven by Kenneth Jorgensen, 16, Wayne, when Rohan attempted to make a U-turn one mile north of Wayne. Rohan was attempting to return to Wayne and Jorgensen was driving north. Jorgensen tried to miss the vehicle by veering left but struck the car on the right front fender, flipping it half-way around. Rohan was slightly injured and was taken by the ambulance to the Wayne hospital. His passenger, Marilyn Sedivy of Ewing, received minor cuts and bruises. Jorgensen was not hurt.

Historical Scotts Bluff Has Seen Much

Historic Scotts Bluff has been viewed in awe by millions who have passed north, south, east or west, but the real thrill comes only to those who turn into the Scotts Bluff Museum and follow the paved trail to the top of the bluff. The historic bluff was named for Hiram Scott, an enterprising young fur trader who became critically ill on an expedition in 1828, and was abandoned in the vicinity of the bluff to die. His remains were discovered and identified the following year.

Standing as a sentry over the Upper North Platte Valley, the majestic Scotts Bluff has been an outstanding landmark since our present civilization started the great westward movement. It is all that it has viewed were recorded, and much of it has been, the record would reveal such events as the passing of the Mormon "Handcart" Expedition, the cavalcade of the "Forty-Niners" and the lone riders of the Pony Express. It would also tell of the tragedy and desolation adequately handle the runoff, including runoff after heavy rains," he said. "...we are aware that corrective and possibly additional measures are necessary to properly handle the drainage at this location. Our engineers have started to make some surveys and secure data on the high water to determine the most efficient and economical measures necessary to properly handle the drainage," Nuernberger concluded. O. W. Johnson, deputy state engineer, explains, "The drainage survey information should indicate whether changes to provide more channel carrying capacity, additional drainage structure at a location some distance from the bridge, or a combination of these measures, will be the most feasible."

Vandalism and Wrecks Increase Police Activity

Vandalism, anonymous phone calls, missing persons, accidents, loud parties, a fight and thieves fill the Wayne police blotter for the past ten days. Police were notified July 16 that a fire truck, large enough for a child to ride, had been stolen from the yard at 1208 Main Street. A Wayne resident told police July 17 that when her husband is away working at night someone calls her between 10:45 p.m. and 1 a.m. but when she answers all she hears is heavy breathing. Wayne police have notified telephone authorities. Two elderly residents have wandered away from the local nursing home. One of them left home July 13 and was located later. The other person wandered off July 19 and was located on South Main Street. Racing cars near Twelfth and Douglas between 1:15 a.m. and 1:45 a.m. July 18 caused a resident to advise police of the nuisance. A 1963 Chevrolet driven by Ben Ahlvers was eastbound in the 100 block on West Third Street and stopped for a traffic light. A 1960 Ford driven by Christian Baier backed from a parking stall on the north side of the street and collided with the Ahlvers' vehicle, according to the police file. Sunday, a resident told police that some boys were noisy while visiting on Pearl Street in the 400 block. Officers advised the youth to go home as it was late. Also July 20, the police department was informed of a noisy party in the 600 block on East Fifth Street. Officers checked out the complaint and the renter of a house wanted an individual to leave the house but he had refused. Police sent him home. A fight east of town by the railroad tracks was reported around 4:15 a.m. Sunday but as police approached the parties left. Vandals overturned a pop machine in the 900 block on Main around 2:15 a.m. Sunday. An eyewitness told police the boys involved appeared unable to open the pop case so turned it over. Monday a 1965 Chevrolet driven by Geo. L. O'Carra, Laurel, was backing from the second parking stall west of Third and Main Street on the north side. A 1965 Chrysler driven by A. G. Sydow, Wayne, was northbound on Main, according to police, and turned left onto West Third, colliding with the O'Carra vehicle. Police were notified Tuesday that a local resident had lost his car's registration certificate. Officers warned a resident Tuesday in the 1000 block on Walnut about burning trash before legal hours for burning. Verlin Glass was northbound on Lincoln Street Wednesday when in collision with a parked auto in the 700 block. Randall Nordstrom of Tekamah owned the 1968 Plymouth which was hit. Glass told officers the accident occurred as he was meeting an oncoming vehicle. Wing muscles of some female mosquitoes equal 35 per cent of their total body weight.
