are continuing to come in, according to Chest Treasurer Jerry Malcom. Malcomnoted, however, that the envelopes are considerable lighter this year and the drive may fall short of its 1969 goal of $10,000.

The drive, which is expected to be complete by Saturday divides its funds between seven organizations, including the Boy and Girl Scouts, the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Florence Crittenden Home, United Service Organization and the Wayne recreation program.

Of the $10,000 goal for Wayne, 63 per cent of the money goes to organizations serving youth in the city. Thirty per cent of the money, or $3,000, is spent entirely, in the community to support the recreation program, and the remaining 33 per cent is divided between the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

Anyone who wishes to make a contribution to the Community Chest and has not been contacted is urged to contact either Jim Marsh or Mrs. Vera Hummel or mall their contribution to the Wayne Community Chest.

Ample Moisture, Late Frost Brighten Harvest Outlook

A generally good growing season plus a late freeze have resulted in good small grain harvests and a bright outlook for corn, soybean and miloylelds in Wayne and Dixon Counties. Soybean harvesting has begun in the two counties and corn harvesting is expected to begin in a week or ten days.

two counties and corn harvesting is expected to begin in a week or ten days.

Soybeans are about 75 per cent harvested in Wayne County, according to liarold Ingalls, county agent. Yields are averaging about 30 bushels per acre with yields as high as 50 bushels per acre being reported. This is a considerable increase in soybean production over the last two years. Production averaged 18 bushels per acre in 1987, and 12 bushels per acre in 1986.

Dixon County Agent Roy Stohler reported that approximately 20-25 per cent of the soybeans have been harvested in Dixon County, and although he has received no reports of yields, they are expected to be above average. Both Stohler and lngalls said that the moisture content of the crop is generally good, due to the good drying weather of late September and early October and the late freeze.

The late freeze, Wednesday night—almost two weeks later than the average freeze date of Sept. 28 - has also brightened the outlook for a good corn harvest. Ingalls reported that moisture content of corn tested in Average corn yields in the county have been quite low the last two years, averaging 32 bushels in 1967 and only 34 bushels in 1968, according to lingails.

The moisture content of corn in the Dixon County area is generally higher than in Wayne County, according to the Dixon County Agent, which will delay harvesting in the area somewhat. Corn moistures in that county have been running between 25 and 28 per cent. Yields are expected to be generally good, but higher in the northern part of Dixon County than in the southern part because total rainfall in the northern areas was higher.

Both men reported that they had received only scattered re-

Farm Classes Begin

Eleven farmers turned out Monday night for the opening class of the farm management portion of the adult farmer classes being offered again this year at Wayne High School.

The farm management section will last for two more Mondays and will then be followed by dairy production, swine production, beep production and corn production. First class in the swine area of study will be held on Nov. 10. The other areas of study will start on Dec. 1, Dec. 22 and Jan. 12.

Farmers can still enroll for any one or more of the areas of study being tanght this year by telephoning either Superintendent Francis Haum at the high school or Lee Foote at First National Bank.

with several provisions, including the possibility that the lot lines may have to be changed if the council later decides to reject the R-2 (multiple dwelling) zoning which has been planned for a portion of the subdivision. Also included was a stipulation that the width of Maple St. be widened to 60 feet and that the city engineer's plan for the intersection of Third St. and Oak Dr. be the one used if the area is developed. Council made the decision after listening for over an hour to those in favor and those against the proposed subdivision.

The major area of disagree-ment concerned the inclusion of R-2 zoning in the final plat which the council was asked to either accept or reject by Budd Bornhoft, attorney for the subdivider. Those seeking approval of the plat emphasized that there was a need for more R-2 zoning in the city in order to provide moderate income families with homes they could afford. They noted that the R-2 zoning would not lower surrounding R-1 kand values because they would, at the request of the council, include numerous restrictive covenants with their plat which would keep out almost all buildings which could otherrestrictive covenants with their plat which would keep out almost all buildings which could otherwise be built in an R-2 zone. Only things which would not be restricted from the area would be multiple family dwellings and cheaper homes (those costing "about $17,500") on smaller lots. Those opposing the subdivision pointed out that the R-2 zoning contained in it would have two results: it would lower surrounding R-1 land values and would be a step toward destroying the quiest residential area that has grown up in that area.

Irv Brandt, one of those speaking against the subdivision, noted that an R-2 zone is meant to be a buffer zone between a business district and an R-2 zone.

"Zoning is meant to protect (present land owners) as well as permit (other land owners to build)," he told the council.

Bornhoft pointed out to the council that the only differences between the R-2 zone as the subdivider plans it and the present R-1 in that area would be that multiple family dwellings (duplexes, etc.) and less expensive homes be built there.
The plat will now have to go to the city planning commission. See KNOLLS, page 6

Is $5.

Overin said he hopes he can get about 20 more men to turn out for basketball this year. That would enable him to make up six teams with about eight players to a team. This year there will be only one league and not two as there was last season.

Cames will be played each Monday and Wednesday evening on the court in the city auditorium at 7, 8 and 9 p.m.

Overin noted that those men who played basketball last year do not have to get in touch with him unless they do not plan on playing again this year. Anybody who did not play last year should contact him as soon as possible since the first games will be played about the second week in November.

Deer Fall to Archers

Two more area archers have added their names to the growing list of hunters who have bagged deer during the present of Emerson.

Bowmen have been in the field since Sept. 20 and have already bagged more than 160 deer. The season runs through Dec. 31, with breaks Nov. 1 through 9 in the southeast and Nov. 8 through 46 in the rest of the state when firearm hunters are offold.

\ record number of archer A record number of archery deer hunters are in the field this year, according to the Game Commission, with more than 3,600 permits already sold. The previous record was set last year at 3,579. Success ratio for archers since the bow and arrow hunts began in 1955 has averaged about 20 per cent.

or must be employed in the city in order to be eligible for the league. College students are excluded from the league unless they qualify in the other ways. Overin noted that the league is being organized again this year mainly to provide competitive exercise for the young men in the city. The final scores in the games aren't going to be that important, he noted.

Waterfowl hunters today can read, hear and dream about the "good old days" when it appeared that ducks were truly unlimited. Unfortunately, those days will not return environmental or habitat requirements.

One of their most basic needs is water. The water supply and water quality, controls the vital reproduction activities. Ducks require both open water and marshes for their needing and brooding activities. To remove a marsh is to remove the ducks. It is that simple.

A question which arises naturally at this point is why can't the ducks merely go to another lake or marsh to reproduce. Only the ducks have the answer and it is negative.

An inherited response to space seems to cause them to nest only so close to another. Putting it another way, any given pond, lake or marsh will produce only so many ducks. They will not crowd up. The result is that those not finding a place to nest will not reproduce. In this manner the population is brought down to the carrying capacity of the water body.

The future of waterfowl numbers, then, is directly tied to the amount of breeding areas. The federal government has been endeavoring to purchase wet lands for waterfowl. The idea is to prevent their being drained for farming and thereby stopping further waterfowl population declines. Intil recently there has been a very active federal program in the United States Department of Agriculture to assist farmers in draining marshes for gram in the United States Department of Agriculture to assist farmers in draining marshes for farming purposes. With this program reduced, the future of waterfowl is slightly brighter but definitely not bright.

Always Tough Kearney Wayne's Next Opponent

Wayne State had its first course in the menu of football Victory last Saturday and now is preparing for the main dish—Kearney State, Saturday's 7:30 foe in Memorial Stadium, it will be the climax of Parents Day, and many players' dads are expected to be there rooting.

A win over perennally difficult Kearney would sprinkle more spice on a Wildcat grid record which, after four losses, became tastier with a 26-18 win over lastings.

Kearney brings a 4-1 mark, its last game a 49-6 trouncing of Peru State, Earlier Antelope victims were Eastern Montana, 22-17: Fort Jlayes, 28-12, and Phroute to the victory, the Wildcats displayed their strongest rushing attack of the year. And the major reason for that: Sam Singleton went back on offense after three games strictly on defense.

Coach Del Stoltenberg gambled on using Singleton both waysand the gamble paid off. Sam responded with a 184-yard rushing show, and he played most of the defensive game too. That's an uncommon feat these days for a back.

The combination of Singleton and buildozing fullback Jerry Luedtke, also a knilor, gave the Wildcats experienced power that's been lacking. Luedtke ground out 88 yards.

Experience began paying off in another way. The Cats reduced their penalties drastically, and they recovered all five fumbles after losing four the previous week.

after losing four the previous week.

The defense pirated four liastings passes. Freshman half-back Charlie Wendt intercepted two of them and ran one back 28 yards for a touchdown. He also snared the last pass of the game after time had run out, ending a liastings threat which could have scored a TD and, with a two-point conversion, tied the game. Wendt also punted an average 42.7 yards.

Ilastings gained 254 yards by the pass as Wildcat defense held the Broncos to 66 by rushing. Wayne passing yielded only 35, but the ground attack sufficed. Wayne had a big advantage in return yards, totaling 207 on kick-off, punt and interception returns to 95 by the Broncos.

3 Wakefield Students At Speech Institute

club Saturday during the annual social studies and discussion institute in Lincoln.

The three students, two of which will represent the Wakefield school in the conference and district speech contests coming up early next year, had to discuss a topic selected for them and then had their discussions criticized by speech inthem and then had their discus-sions criticized by speech in-structors. Farlier in the day the students attending the institute heard two professors discuss their topic and watched a demon-stration discussion.

other city agencies, including the street and light departments, and some ambulance calls.

Future plans call for the moving of the fire phone from the city light plant to the police department. This will increase the efficiency of the fire department also, as they previously were forced to radio the light plant if additional equipment was needed at the scene of a fire. Occasionally there was no one near the light plant radioat the time the call was placed, and valuable time was lost.

Another attraction of the new dispatching service aids police forces of communities in the area surrounding Wayne. Some of these departments radiosare not powerful enough to transmit to Norfolk for additional help or emergency calls, and the new system will enable them to use the Wayne station as a relay in radioing more distant points.

According to Francis Ilaun, superintendent of the Wayne City Schools, the chlef difference between a Class A and AA rating is one of self-evaluation, involving a one-year study of educational philosophies; school curriculum, and goals, submitted in a written report to the school accreditation committee. The Wayne school system has made the one-year study and is currently compling a report of the self-evaluation.

In addition, the school will be visited in January by a 28-member team composed of state deber team composed of state department and selected area school personnel which will make a recommendation to the school accreditation committee. The accreditation committee will then rule on Wayne's application in their annual meeting next spring. to get the job done, the city will do it for them and send them the tab.

City Attorney John Addison emphasized to the council that the city can legally do this because present building codes demand that any new homes built in the city have to have sidewalks.

And the council lasto gave authority to Vern Schulz, streets commissioner, to begin fixing broken or sunken sidewalks which pose a hazard to the people using them. Addison told the council that the city can be held legally responsible if anybody is injured because of hazardous sidewalks.

The city will take on the responsibility of fixing the sidewalks—a square block at a time—because no property owner could afford to hipe a contractor to fix one or two broken squares of sidewalk. However, home owners will be given the chance to get the side walks fixed by themselves.

In other business the council:

—Moved closer to obtaining a comprehensive liability plan for the city, something sorely lacking at the present time, according to the city attorney.

—Authorized Sid Magdanz, representative of the city's engineering firm, to get in touch with the state about the possibility of installing overhead signs at the intersection of Seventh and Main Sts. The present yellow pads which guide drivers to the different lanes at the intersection are coming loose, a council member noted, and something should be done before winter sets in.

to start thinking about that relative or friend who will be serving his country during that holiday. You can possibly make his holiday a little happier by sending us his address so we can include it with the list we will print early in November. The list will be very handy for those people who would like to send a card or present to some of those servicemen. Addresses have a habit of getting lost and the coming list will—make it easy for our readers to find, the address of that man or woman they know in the armed forces.

Just jot down on a postcard the complete name and address of that person you know in the service. Send the postcard to Christmas List, The Wayne Herald, Wayne. Be sure to make soure your writing is legible and that the spelling is correct.

Deadline for accepting addresses for the list is Nov, 6.

Dangerous Time of the Year

All drivers in the area should be especially careful this time of the year because of the large number of trucks and tractors using the roads now that the fall harvest begins to get into roads now that the fall harvest begins to get into full swing.

Too often we hear complaints from the person who lives in town about those darn farmers who think they own the roads and won't go out of their way to let some of the traffic get by them. Too often those complaints are justfied. Likewise, farmers often complain about the city driver who is in such a hurry to get to where he's going that he acts like the road belongs to just him when he gets slowed by a farmer pulling grain to town. Too often those complaints are justfied.

Both the rural and the city driver should remember that the road belongs to neither completely. It is there for the use of all drivers.

Farmers pulling a load of grain to town should keep a sharp eye on the traffic behind them. With just a little thought and consideration they could often avoid those long lines of cars and traffic stacking up behind them. Pulling off on the shoulder

City drivers can also take steps which will make the roads safer this time of the year. First, they should anticipate that just over that next hill may be a farmer pulling onto the road with a load of grain. If a person anticipates something like that he is much more likely to react quickly enough to avoid an accident. Second, they should realize that a farmer must get his produce to the city as quickly as possible and to do that he must often use the state highways.

We urge caution when driving on the roads this time of the year. Too many families in the area have been touched by the death or serious injury of a relative in a traffic accident. Some simple care could avoid another death or accident on the highways in the Wayne area.—NLH.

Tiemann Options: Politics, Banking, Career in Theater

LINCOLN - If Governor Nor-T. Tiemann decides against bert T. Tiemann deeldes against continuing his political career, he could go back to his bank in Wausa. Or, he could move into some other business venture. Or, he could consider the theater. That's not too likely, but the Nebraska chief executive did get a taste of theatrics last week.

The talent scout was pretty Julie Sommars of Fremont, Miss Sommars plays Dan Dailey's daughter in the new television series, "The Governor and J. J."

Miss Sommars' father, L. F. Sommars, and three brothers live in Omaha.
Getting back to Tiemann's future, he continues to be silent about a 1970 election campaign. Most political observers at the statehouse, however, are convinced he will seek another four-year lease on the governor's mansion.

mansion.

They point to the new series of town hall meetings he launched this week as one clue. The schedule continues almost until the May primary election.

The 25 town hall meetings will take him throughout the state and give him an opportunity to speak before many voters. Meanwhile, the first candidate

There is a possibility Denney could face opposition in the GOP primary from Tiemann's executive counsel, Robert E. Barnett. Barnett isn't saying anything, except to admit that he is considering the race.

As an Omahan, Everroad would face second district Rep. Glenn Cunningham if he decides to go for a congressional seat. Douglas County Board member John McCollister and State Sens. George Syas of Omaha and Orval A. Keyes of Papillion, all Republicans, also have shown increst in Cunningham's seat.

The secretary of state's office last week released voter registration statistics which show the Republicans continue to dominate Nebrasaka's election rolls.

A check with all 93 counties, showed that as of Oct. 5, there were 344,392 Republicans and 298,569 Democrats registered. With independents and members of the American Party included, 664,962 Nebraskans were listed as qualified electors.

The GOP holds 51.7 per cent of the registrations, while the Democrats have 44.9 per cent.

The GOP holds 51.7 per cent of the registrations, while the Democrats have 44.9 per cent. Three per cent are independents and the remainder, 1,497, are lined up with the American Party. Only in 11 counties is there a Democratic majority. By far the largest margin in the Democrats' favor is in Douglas County, but the Republicans appeared to be closing the gap a little there. In a comparison with registration totals for Nov. 5, 1968, the date of the last general election, the Republicans have added 2,682 voters and the Democrats have lost 1,108.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom County

This leathery-faced cowboy with the traditional 10-gallon Seven X Beaver lat, smooth fitting Pendleton shirt, was in Chicago, in "Big C," for an annual fraternity-like cattle association convention. Hundreds of these faculous brand owners had transcended the nation. Our here was from Texas.

Ole Tex - usually a big flamboyant spender - was tired of $.40 for the hotel coffee, and $2.25 for ham and two five-cent eggs. Plus an expected tip to an inexcusably impolite waltress. Then that thirty-eight dollar dinner-cocktail party hurt his pride too. True, he has sold over eight lumdred calves this, year at 360 lb, but the drought had sapped the mother cows, the bables weighed only 325 lbs., and production costs exceeded $120.00 per head. So he was ready to compromise.

In length, as soft and pliable as Silly Putty.

The meat did not cut, it splintered. It cracked. Ole Tex was afraid to bite down hard, dental plates are particularly expensive in Amarillo. He placed each meat chunk on his tongue and waited for it to dissolve. Lemon drop candy would have been faster. The girl-waitress came over showing a big-tip-in-mind smile. Thow's the steak, Mr. Cartwright?"

"Mam, I've eaten more tender cedar-broke Angora Coats with LBJ. I thought you Illinois people were cattle feeders, no wonder the terminal markets are dying."

Tex left, still hungry, but at least the toothpick had a mint flavor. The waitress picked up the dishes, and a steak less than half eaten, walked into the kitchen. She hollered over the ex-Navy cook third class from Temessee:

"He, Joe, that big oilman left a 10c tip, and only took three bites of his steak, want the rest in a sack for your huntin' dogs."

"Don't you dare, Vanessa — my dogs don't eat no import junk—that's just for bargain hunters!"

plea was expressed re-by Rollin Schnieder, Excently by Rollin Schmleder, Extension safety specialist at the University of Nebrasia.

Schnleder noted that many children are injured each year as a result of being caught in grain augers or elevators. Most of these accidents happen on the farmstead. In fact, one-fourth of all the elevator accidents happen to children under age 10, Schnleder said.

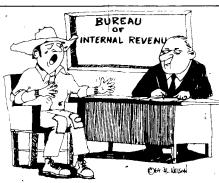

"A majority of the accidents happen when dab brings a load of grain home to put in storage. The little children are happy to see him and try to be with him while he is unloading grain. Dad's interest in unloading the grain may come first before the safety of the child," Schnleder noted.

Factors in addition to the hazards of, the elevator are noise, slippery footing, loose clothing and open power shafts are major causes of falls since most elevators are poorly protected or have no protection at all. Schnleder concluded that "the farm wife can be the key in doing away with this type of accident. She can do this by keeping the children in the yard when power ed equipment is being operated."

Today's farmer needs more than good crop and livestock know-how.

Money management, always considered vital in the farm busi-considered vital in the farm business structure, is taking on new dimensions, a c c or d ing to an article in a recent issue of the New Holland News. So important is this new management concept that John Hopkin, professor of agricultural finance at University of Illinois, thinks today's dynamic young commercial farmer can restructure his whole profit picture.

Hopkin points out that only farmers practicing good farm management can take advantage of the money management con-ept. Capital investment in farms Capital Investment in farms continues to rise, according to llopkins. He said it increased eight times in the past 30 years. And the value of productive farm assets is up 450% since 1950. An economist from Michigan State University puts the money management picture another way. John Brake says that with farm size increasing and farm numsize increasing and farm our John Brake says that with farm size increasing and farm numbers shr linking, the need for additional capital may mean three times as much dett per farm. However, this figure doesn't alarm Brake because present debts are only 30 per cent of assets. And he says they will only rise to 39 per cent of assets by 1980.

One answer to the problem is in the works in California.
A. D. Reed of the University of California, says rented land is the basis for many of our agricultural industries. The owner rents the land to an expert in a specialty crop field, rather than try to compete himself. This method has two advantages. It frees has two advantages. It frees capital normally invested in land, to be invested in working capital. And, according to USDA studies, farmers can probably make a higher return on their capital if they have it invested in working capital rather than in land.

Clarke-McNary Trees Again Available

Once again trees and shrubs are available, to Nebraska farmers and ranchers through the Clarke-McNary Tree Distribution Program.

This program, which began in the state in 1926, offers Nebraskans an opportunity to obtain suitable planting stock for the development of wind breaks, woodlots, wildlife habital, Christmas tree and other conservation plantings.

From a token distribution of some 30,000 trees the first year, the program has grown to an annual distribution of over two million. During the time Extension foresters at the University of Nebraska have been distribution ave been planted in the state.

The trees for the most part have been locally grown, with the evergreens coming from Bessey Nursery at l'alsey and the broadleaf stock from commercial nurseries in eastern Nebraska.

For the 44-year history of the program, 64 per cent of the trees distributed were evergreen species, with eastern red cedar by far the most oppular species available. During the past 10 years, the percentage of evergreens has risen to over 80 per cent, assuring a longer lasting and more effective wind barrier. The use of evergreens makes the plantings more attractive and also very effective as wildlife habitat.

For the 1970 planting season, both bare-root and potted transplants are available. The advantage of potted stock lies in displanting more attractive and also very effective as wildlife habitat.

Lodging facilities at all Ne-braska state parks will close Sept. 15, but cabins at Chadron, Fort Robinson and Ponca state parks will re-open for the big-game and fall turkey seasons. Camping areas remain open year-round, but some utilities and services may be discontinued because of weather conditions or lack of demand late in the season.

'Treat Lawns Now; Fewer Weeds Later

Treat for dandellons and other weeds in October and you'll have a better appearing lawn in the spring, according to Roy Stobler, Dton County agricultural agent. Stobler asys that this is the best month to treat lawns for broadleaf weed, chickweed, hendit, shepherd's purse and many other weeds that make fall growth will respond readily to modern weed control chemicals. The familiar 2,4-D, silvex and dicamba (Nanvel D) are the active ingredients in most present-day lawn herbicides. Stobler notes that combinations of two herbicides control more weeds than a single product, but if dandellons and field bindweed are the main problems, the old reliable 2,4-D will do the job.

Directions should be followed closely when using any of the herbicides. Also, they should be applied on a day when there is little or no wind any of the herbicides. Also, they should be applied on a day when there is little or no wind and the air temperature is 70 to 80 degrees. Make certain the spray is kept off trees, shrubs and flowers in the area, Stohler warns.

Weeds that are growing well because of favorable moisture, fertility and temperatures are the ones easiest to kill.

Eranular forms of weed killer combinations are also effective, Make sure the plants are wet anddon't apply water for 24 hours after using granules, he notes.

"Those who treat for weeds in October swear by it," says the agent.
