Deputy Tells of Election Law Changes

Many changes were made in laws related to elections in Nebraska by the Nebraska Legislature in its last session. Allen J. Beermann, deputy secretary of state, reports that many changes resulted from a study that showed the average vote cast in Nebraska cost $7.80 with some counties hitting $16, and one nearly $20 per vote.

three primary things were done: Elections were scheduled every two years, cutting the cost in half; runoffs or primaries for city and school elections were eliminated and caucuses were eliminated.

be reported, and they may not give to national candidates or issues. -Signers of petitions may now have names removed from initiative or referendum statements by filing an affidavit with the county clerk.

ing new election procedures, was created by some 30 persons on the study committee who put in over 700 hours in drafting the Deputy Beermann. He said the bill creates four-year terms for school, city officials and provides for joint elections on request to the county board with permission in writing. The joint effort eliminates duplication. Each subdivision shares a proportionate share of costs. A city-school election may be held either on April 7 or with the county on May 12 of this year.

Wayne Wrestlers Win Husker Tourney

Wayne High's grappling artists put their abilities to fine use Saturday to win first-place trophy in the Husker Conference wrestling tournament at Wakefield.

The Wayne team, which included seven medalists and two runners-up, racked up a total of 121 points to take first for the second time in the two-year history of the affair. Coming in second was the team from Wisner-Pilger with 72 points, followed by Tekamah-Ilerman with 60, Plainview with 50, Stanton with 44, Wakefield with 42, West Point with 20, Oakland-Craig with 17 and Neligh with three.

One of the biggest upsets of the day came when Wayne's unbeaten heavyweight, Alan Wischhof, suffered a pin at the hands of a Tekamah-Heyman grappler. Wischhof had a 17-0 record going into the tourney. He came out with one of Wayne's two second places and a 19-1 season mark. Other runner-up from Wayne was Bruce Ring in the 123-pound division.

Wrestling their way to championship honors in the tourney were the following Wayne grapplers: Mark Beiermann in the 115-pound class, Jim Meyer at 130, Tony Pflueger at 137, Rick Ginn at 145, Doug Maurer at 165, Gary Meithold at 175 and Steve Kamish at 185.

Pflueger suffered a broken nose in the tournament and will not be able to compete in the district tourney scheduled for Schuyler this Friday and Saturday. Competition will decide who replaces him.

Other champions in the tourney were Joel Pint of Stanton at 98, Kevin Thomas of Tekamah-Ilerman at 115, Mark Hoffman at 123, Butch Koehlmoos of Wisner-Pilger at 155 and Bob Schmitt of Tekamah-Ilerman in the heavyweight class.

Also winning second places in the tourney were Jack McGuire of Wisner-Pilger at 98 pounds, Dick Wiechman of Wisner-Pilger at 107, John Neuman of Tekamah-Ilerman at 115, Steve Oswald of Wakefield at 130, Frank Herbert of Plainview at 137, Bob Schellpeper of Stanton at 145, George Mawinkel of West Point at 155, Doug Pellatz of Plainview at 165, Kirk Gardner of Wakefield at 175 and Mitch Schram of Tekamah-Ilerman at 185.

Third places were won by the following wrestlers, in order of their weight classes: Tim Jensen of Plainview at 98, Dave Carlson of Wakefield, Steve Kraemer of Wakefield, Jeff Weeks of West Point, Greg Sheets of Tekamah-Ilerman, Dave Lehman of Wakefield, Doug Husselman of Plainview, Greg Blain of Stanton, Leland Carlson of Wisner-Pilger, John Stoffel of Wisner-Pilger, Niel Hood of Wisner-Pilger and Rod Bergt of Wisner-Pilger at heavyweight.

Tourney director was Lee Trullinger, wrestling coach at Wakefield.

Wakefield Kegling Tourney Scheduled

The 1970 Wakefield Women's Bowling Association handicapped tournament will be held Feb. 20, 21 and 22 at Wakefield with doubles and singles as the two events.

Only members of the Wakefield city bowling association are eligible to compete in the tournament. Deadline for entries is midnight Feb. 18. For more information contact Marla Krater or stop at the Recreation Center in Wakefield.

12 Wayne Grapplers Heading for District

An even dozen wrestlers from Wayne—probably the same ones who saw action in the Husker Conference tournament over the weekend—will get their last chance to stretch out their wrestling season this Friday and Saturday. The event: district wrestling tourney, prelude to the state tourney.

Wayne, winners of that Husker affair, will compete in the district at Schuyler this weekend.

and, according to Coach Don Koenig, the wrestlers are going to have no easy road to travel if they want berths in the state tournament. Competing at Schuyler in the district will be wrestlers from three of the four teams which have handed Wayne dual defeats this season—Blair, Albion and Schuyler. O'Neill, only other team to whip the local grapplers this season, will not compete in that district.

Other teams which will see action include Wahoo, Wisner-Pilger, two Omaha schools and Tekamah-Ilerman. Fourteen schools will send teams to the two-day event.

Should any Wayne matmen win trips to the state—three of them did so last season—they would face another two-day test in Lincoln the following Friday and Saturday, Feb. 20 and 21.

Wrestlers will have to go up against opponents three or four times each day in the district tourney. They can suffer one defeat and still make it to the state tourney, for first, second and third places earn trips to Lincoln.

Following is the list of the wrestlers who will probably travel to Schuyler, their weight class and their record this season:

Alan Wischhof, heavyweight, 19-1; Steve Kamish, 185, 11-3; Gary Meithold, 175, 7-4; Doug Maurer, 165, 14-4; Glen Teeter, 155, 3-3; Rick Ginn, 145, 8-5;

Bears Romp to 16th Win

Brothers George and Jim Schroeder teamed up to join Steve Erwin in leading the Laurel Bears to their 16th victory Saturday night, an 81-57 decision over Elkhorn Valley.

The three cagears, who represent the three upper classes at the high school, pumped in 64 of Laurel's points in the contest. Sophomore George hit 22, junior Steve had 23 and senior Jim had 19. Also getting into double figures in the action was senior Rod Erwin, cousin to that junior.

Elkhorn Valley, which failed to keep up with the hosts until the second half when the reserves started seeing action for Laurel, stayed in the game largely because of the numerous fouls Laurel committed. Those fouls—which gave Elkhorn Valley 21 points in 33 attempts—were the most Laurel has committed this season. The Bears usually average around 17 or 18 fouls, very seldom jump into the 20's.

Laurel	26	21	16	18	81
Elkhorn Val.	10	14	16	17	57

Still third in the Omaha World-Herald's Class B list, the Bears have four regular season games left this year. Winning of those games, getting into the Husker Conference playoff and getting by the first round of the district tourney would give them at least as good a record as the 21-1 mark of last season.

Next tests for the undefeated team—only one of two undefeateds on that top 10 list—are at Plainview Friday night and at Crofton Saturday. A week from Friday, Feb. 20, the Bears play host to Pierce, Plainview and Pierce are the two teams Laurel will have to beat in order to get into that Husker playoff again this season.

The Bears jumped to a quick lead over the visiting Elkhorn Valley quintet when they pumped in 10 of 19 shots in the first period, giving them a 26-10 advantage going into the second period. Leading 47-24 at intermission, Laurel upped its lead to as much as 33 points in the fourth quarter after matching the visitors with 16 points in the third stanza.

Leading rebounder for the action was Steve Erwin. This week's "Amp of the Week," he pulled down 20 caroms, nearly half of Laurel's 44 for the night. George Schroeder had 10 retrieves.

High for the losers were Boyd Batenhorst with 20 counters and Larry Werner with 17.

Also scoring for Laurel were Paul McCoy with five and Steve Smith with two.

The Bears hit 36 of 66 field goals for a 48 per cent accuracy; Elkhorn Valley managed to sink only 18 of 50 for 36 per cent. At the charity stripe, Laurel hit 61 per cent (17 of 28), Elkhorn Valley 64 per cent (21 of 33).

Girls-Cage Scores

Midwestern College of Denison, Iowa, handed the Wayne girls basketball team a 77-42 loss in a game played in Iowa last week. Against Pershing, Wayne came off the court with a 60-18 win.

Friday and Saturday the Wayne team travels to South Dakota to take on the Augustana College team and South Dakota State University at Brookings. Sunday they will be playing another home game, this one against Kearney State, unless they take part in the tournament at Omaha Sunday night.

Tracy Peterson hit nearly half of Wayne's points in that defeat to Midwestern. She came up with 20 points, followed by Sue Gatewood with 11. Gatewood and Karen Hadenfeldt led the action under the boards.

In the other contest, Paula Messerschmidt hit 22 points for top scoring honors for the local team. Gatewood and Kathy Erickson led the action under the boards in that contest.

Methods of handling all game after the kill are similar. Whether a deer or a pheasant, the quarry should be properly bled, dressed and cooled as soon as possible.

Place in Omaha Meet

High jumper Terry Wegner of Battle Creek earned a second place tie for Wayne State in the Omaha Federation indoor track meet Monday. His jump of 6-2 rated the placing, and he came close at 6-4, the height that won first.

None of the five other Wayne entries placed in the big meet which attracted several hundred performers. Paul Eaton of Wakefield toured the two-mile in 10:05.6, finishing seventh. Coach Tom Bryant rated Eaton's time good considering lack of outdoor running opportunity in recent weeks.

Gary Day of Flint, Mich., ran a 4:35 mile in the prelims, good enough to qualify for the finals, but he slipped to 4:38 then—also a good early-season time without practice, Bryant said.

Taxpayers' Errors Delaying Refunds Early Federal income Tax returns indicate that many taxpayers are making errors in claiming adjustments to their income which may delay their refunds. Richard P. Vinal, district director of the Internal Revenue Service for Nebraska, said this week.

The term "adjustments" on the tax form refers only to sick pay, moving expenses, employee business expenses and payments to self-employment retirement plans. The total of these items is entered on Line 15B of the Form 1040, Vinal said.

Some taxpayers are incorrectly reporting on Line 15B the total of their itemized deductions, such as interest expense, state and local taxes, contributions and medical or miscellaneous expenses. These deductions should be computed and entered on the appropriate schedules as provided in the instructions.

Vinal also said that taxpayers are making mistakes by including as adjustments the exemption allowances for themselves, husbands or wives, children or other dependents. For taxpayers who use the tax table to compute

To avoid errors in claiming adjustments, Vinal suggested that taxpayers read the instructions carefully and make sure they have attached the proper supporting documents.

He also noted that all federal income tax returns from Wayne area taxpayers should be mailed to the IRS Service Center in Kansas City, Mo.

An envelope addressed to the center has been included in all tax packages for the convenience of Nebraska taxpayers.

Checks or money orders in payment of the tax should be made payable to: "Internal Revenue Service," he added.

Conservation Districts In Area Offer Help In Halting Pollution

The local soil and water conservation district in northeast Nebraska has expanded their services to include pollution abatement from feedlots, according to Don Baede of the Soil Conservation Service, office in Wakefield.

To help control pollution of streams and ground water, the state legislature recently passed a law requiring operators to register their feedlots if they have in confinement at any one time more than 300 feeder or fat cattle, 100 beef cows, 500 swine, 2,000 sheep, 3,000 turkeys or 10,000 chickens, ducks or geese. Feedlots of smaller size must also be registered if they are located within 500 feet of any watercourse or if there is a potential of water pollution.

Upon request of the farmer or feedlot operator, the Soil Conservation Service will make a preliminary topographic survey of the feedlot and surrounding area and with the help of the county Extension Service design a proper system for livestock waste disposal. Baede pointed out. The plan is then presented to the operator. Upon his approval, construction can then be started.

If financial help is needed to complete the project, the farmer may request cost-sharing from his county ASC office. Cost-sharing ratios will usually cover 65 to 75 per cent of the actual cost.
In Barrow, Alaska, northernmost town in the United States, the winter temperature may "soar" to minus 30 degrees F. on the shortest day of the year, National Geographic says.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and grow serious thoughts to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

School Board Stumbles

The Pierce school board made what we feel was a diplomatic blunder recently when it voted to go into secret session to discuss the contracts of the three administrators of the school system. And it compounded that blunder when it decided to keep from the public the amount of the contracts which it finally decided to offer those three administrators.

A person who devoted his life to keeping the public informed through his newspapers commented on this tendency of public officials. He noted that there has been much more harm done by public officials attempting to keep the public in the dark about their spending habits than has ever been done by those seeking to keep the public informed about how the officials make use of that money.

Want Bus Service in Wayne?

A person who is concerned about the recent halting of bus service to Wayne noted that the people in the city could make an attempt to get service to the city by writing a bus line in Omaha.

and numerous people who are suffering because of lack of that service.

Parking at the Courthouse

One of the problems faced by an affluent society is finding enough space in which to put and park the abundance of "stuff." In this instance, the stuff is the automobile and where to park it when doing business at the Wayne County courthouse is the problem.

Judge, youngsters or groups taking a tour of the county museum; school personnel going into the superintendent's office; or those coming to the courthouse to take the drivers examination.

Two Nice Words

We aren't talking about "thank you" this time, although those two words certainly are nice. We're talking about "full service."

Out of Old

Plains Freight in 1865 A diary kept by William Dunn, a Nebraska freighter in the last half of the 19th Century, provides a description of frontier commerce and local reactions to national events. The Journal, deposited in the Archives of the Nebraska State Historical Society, describes the trip made by the Ingham and Christy train in the spring of 1865. The train was attracted to Denver from Nebraska City by the high prices to be gained for its meat cargo. The present-day reader might well be surprised by the undertaking of such an expedition in February, and, as Dunn pointed out, the only advantage was that the meat could be carried fresh. The travails of the journey were experienced immediately: The first two days out from Nebraska City the rain-produced mud froze, imprisoning the wagon wheels which had to be chopped out of the frozen ground. The weather along with the men's spirits worsened, as Dunn records: "Mon., Feb. 23—"Rain all Sunday night. A miserable day. Four men got to playing poker. They were drunk and quarrelsome, drew revolvers and flourished them, and two fought." "Sun., Feb. 26—"Hard time crossing river this morning. One

Be a Volunteer Scout Leader

Nobdy has got more out of Scouting than the men who earned the Eagle Badge. But when you think about it, nobdy owes more to Scouting, either. An Eagle Scout will tell you how important Scouting was in shaping his confidence and his character. If you earned the Eagle Badge, we want you back in Scouting—as a volunteer leader. Nobdy is better equipped to lead boys to manhood. America's manpower begins with BOY POWER and nothing builds BOY POWER like the Scouts. We'll help you.

Varner praised Hobson for the job he did. "He worked a small scale miracle," Varner said. "It's tough enough to be chancellor—but to be an acting chancellor, that's really tough."

Varner came to Nebraska at Rochester, Mich., a Detroit suburb where he was chancellor of Oakland University.

Capital News — Uncle Sam Tells Nebraska To Halt Big Mo Pollution

LINCOLN — Nebraska and four of her sister states in the Missouri River valley are going to face Uncle Sam shoulder to shoulder on the issue of sewage treatment.

They are going to have a meeting this week in Omaha to try to establish common objectives in face of federal demands for tougher-than-ever water quality standards in the river.

The meeting was called by the Nebraska Water Pollution Control Council. "The Nebraskans have invited representatives of the water pollution agencies in South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri to join them."

The water quality standards for the Missouri established by Nebraska call for secondary treatment of sewage by municipalities and industries which dump their wastes into the river.

That level of treatment is designed to remove about 85 percent of the pollution from sewage—and all of the solid wastes.

The federal government now is hitting—strongly—that it will require secondary treatment, plus chlorination. The chlorination process would disinfect the water.

T. A. Filipp, chief of the Nebraska environmental health office, said the state isn't opposed to fighting pollution in the river. But he said he isn't convinced chlorination should be required yet.

He said it would cost a total of about $50 million to build the treatment and chlorination facilities for all the Nebraska cities and industries which discharge waste into the river.

Nebraska wants to see if the officials from the other states feel the same way. There are strong indications they do.

Nebraska—and the other states—are under pressure from Washington to submit a timetable showing when they expect to have all the treatment facilities operating. Nebraska's timetable was due Dec. 31, 1969.

Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann sought a one-year extension, but it was denied by Interior Department officials. The question now is what to do. The Water Pollution Control Council says it will know better what to do after it talks the situation over with the other states facing the same federal pressure.

Public Demands Services
A state senator says the increased taxes resulting from action by the 1969 legislature are tough to take, but he says it really isn't fair to blame either the governor or the lawmakers.

"It is true the new state budget is much higher than before," he said, "but there is a good reason why. The reason why the legislature voted the increase was because the people seemed to want it that way."

Schreurs said the legislators reacted to pleas from "many good people" who asked them "to do something for the retarded; to enact a homestead exemption law; to ease the squeeze on counties which were near their mill levy limit; to do something about better roads, schools, university,

Academy Switch Predicted
Gov. Tiemann says the 1971 Legislature will be asked to put the newly created state law enforcement training center under the supervision of the state crime commission.

He says he thinks the lawmakers will do it.

When the training academy first was proposed by Tiemann to the 1969 Legislature, the crime commission was to operate it. But the senators accepted an amendment by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff to have the

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

Mom, scene: The exchange building cafeteria at a public central yards. Time: Monday, 7:30 a.m. Chicago had come on stronger than Wyatt Earp on the preceding Friday—all classes, all weights getting the spotlight treatment of fifty to a flat dollar higher. Today was a 'must'... A catch-up market.

The count posted at 6:30 showed 6,742 slaughterers, 1,119 feeders and 7,891 hogs. The wind raw, straight from Santa Claus.

This morning the table hopping was more active than a Bohemian polka at midnight. Packer buyers, order buyers, commission men asked only one question, "How does it look?" Buyers would say "Maybe a quarter... but, Buddy, leave me a look-see."

Coffee was 15¢—the 10¢ kind. Refills 15¢—the free kind. Breakfast was cafeteria style, shared communal-like on bare coffee-stained hard-top tables. Kidding, cajoling and insults were thrown fast and often. Front tables displaying the strongest language, personal insinuations and active badgering proved most popular. At back tables sat quieter thick-handed feeders and heavy footed truckers... all garbed in quilted coveralls and heavy coats.

Buyers pulsed the market searching for tips, listening for voice inflections, asking questions. Whose cattle were in? How long fed? What color? What time loaded, the weight, the finish? Who looked in the country? Commission men sat non-committal.

About 8:15 the buyers and salesmen vanish, leaving farmers and retired kibitzers. Then came the second shift—either of white shirt or wool skirt. The bankers, USDA or exchange

Pollution Confab Set for Lincoln

Pollution potential of feedlot wastes, waste management and feedlot design will be studied during a conference on the design for the management of livestock wastes scheduled for Lincoln Feb. 26 at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

The conference is sponsored jointly by the Agricultural Engineering Department of the University of Nebraska, the Professional Engineers of Nebraska and the Nebraska Section of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

Growing interest in controlling pollution and the likely changes in livestock production facilities during the next few years sparked development of the conference aimed at consulting engineers and Soil Conservation Service engineers who will be concerned with planning waste management facilities and by livestock producers and county ex-tenstion agents. Discussion will be designed to provide regulatory information and concepts of basic design and layout.

Highlighting the meeting will be a presentation on the current feedlot situation by Deon Axthelm, University of Nebraska, Extension Water Resources Specialist, and William B. Krejci, Fairmont, feeder and chairman of the Livestock Feedlot Pollution Control Council. Axthelm will speak on feedlot development; Krejci will present the feeder's problem.

Regulatory aspects of waste management will be covered by Carl C. Chloupek, area representative of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration for the U. S. Department of the Interior and by T. A. Filippi, executive secretary of the Nebraska Pollution Control Council.

Other speakers from the NU Agricultural Engineering Department, the State Health Department and the USDA and Federal Water Pollution Control Council, will speak on current waste management research programs, current waste management research programs, current data for feedlot design and planning, characteristics of feedlot runoff, pollution potential from feedlot wastes, facility design alternatives, guides for feedlot waste management, the role of SCS in design of facilities and cost sharing of waste management control facilities.

Conference sessions are open to the public and advance registration forms are available from E. A. Olson of the Agricultural Engineering Department at the University of Nebraska.

WSC Student Gets Institute Scholarship

A Wayne State College Junior, Rollin Smith of Atkinson, was one of 30 community leaders to be provided scholarships to attend the annual Mid-Winter Institute for Nebraska Rural Youth (RY) at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln. The Institute was scheduled for last Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The scholarships, one of which also went to Robert Mittelstaedt of Pierce, covered all or part of the lodging and meals for the recipients.

Nebraska Rural Youth is a young adult activity of the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service for persons between the ages of 17-30 who are interested in leadership, education and community service.

Conference participants heard such speakers as John Hlavacek, KMTV (Omaha) world news analyst; Dr. Gaylen Dodge, executive director of the Nebraska Human Resources Research Foundation; Bruce Hulen, president of Rural Youth for the United States and Roger Beverage of the University of Nebraska College of Law.

Program activities included a welcome by Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, tours of specified Lancaster County businesses, learnshops and discussions and dancing both evenings.

Dixon County Agent Says Many Reasons For 'Downed' Plants

Lodging isn't always due to potassium shortages, so take a closer look at 'downed' plants, recommends Dixon County Agent Roy Stohler.

Remember that narrow rows and high plant populations can mean spindly plants that lodge easier, cautions Stohler.

When examining areas of downed plants, first determine what type of lodging took place. Is it stalk breakage or root lodging or a combination of the two?

If root lodging is the problem, Stohler advises to look for poor root development due to insect damage, disease or weed spray damage. If these don't explain the situation, check soil compaction, soil acidity, nutrient imbalance and mechanical damage such as cultivator blight and root pruning. If stalk breakage seems to be the problem, split the stalk and look for evidence of diseased tissue or insect damage, says Stohler.

Stohler also notes that high yielding crops often lodge more easily than low yielding varieties. With heavy ears, the chances of stalk breakage in strong winds and root lodging in wet soils are increased.

To reduce lodging losses this year Stohler offers the following tips: (1) use lodging resistant varieties; (2) use a soil test and follow its recommendations; (3) avoid soil compaction through minimum tillage; (4) drain wet areas; and (5) harvest early.

Agricultural agents from western Nebraska got a first-hand look at the communications system used at the Northeast Station near Concord Thursday. The system has several uses, among them permitting a dozen county agents in northeast Nebraska to contact the specialists at the Station anytime farmers have questions they are unable to answer themselves. From left: Chet Walters, district supervisor of county agents at the Scottsbluff Station; Don Miller, Box Butte County agent; Don Kubik, dairy specialist at the Northeast Station; Ray Sall, Deuel County agent, and John Lambert, Dawes County agent. Walters was the agricultural agent in Wayne County in the early 1940's. He left here in 1942 to enter the service.

ASC Measuring Offer May Save Money

Measurement service should be requested now for farms which will be signed up in the wheat or feed grain programs, according to Harry Heinemann, chairman of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee. "If they get their requests in now," he said, "farmers have much better assurance of getting measurement service at a time when it will do them the most good. The service may well save expenses for farmers."

Measurement service is offered by the county ASC office to farm program participants as a sure way to know they are in compliance with acreage requirements of farm programs.

When a farmer participates in the wheat or feed grain program, he certifies to the precise acreage he has in these crops and the acreage he has diverted from these crops. He must also be certain that he has enough additional acres in conserving use to meet his conserving base requirement. Errors in certification can result in reduction or loss of payments.

When a farmer obtains measurement service from the county ASCS office—at a charge which covers only the cost of the service—he is guaranteed he will be in compliance with the acreage requirements if he stays within the measured and staked acreage.

NE Station Slates Agronomy Meetings

Two additional dates have been set for agronomy meetings at the Northeast Station near Concord. These meetings, sponsored by the Dixon County Extension Service, are open to all interested persons. Both meetings will start at 1:30 p.m.

On Thursday, Feb. 19, Russell Moomaw and George Rehm, area Extension agronomists from the Northeast Station, will be on the program. Moomaw will be discussing weed control methods and problem weeds and utilization of cultural, mechanical and chemical weed control methods for corn and soybeans. Rehm will discuss cultural practices for corn and soybeans, including row spacing and plant populations. On Thursday, Feb. 26, Rehm will again appear on the program. At this meeting he will be discussing fertilizer needs of corn and soybeans, including timing, placement methods and rates of application.

At both of these meetings the agronomists will be presenting information obtained from research work at the Northeast Station and other research stations throughout the state.

Family Farms Hold

The stronghold of family farming is found in the upper Midwest. Family owned and operated farms in this area account for not only the bulk of farm numbers but by far the biggest portion of farm sales. Family farms are most numerous in areas where mechanization of farm production is highly developed.

In 1964 there were 385,000 more family operated farms with sales in excess of $10,000 than there were in 1949. These adequate farms accounted for 46 per cent of total products sold in 1964, 21 per cent in 1949.

During the same period, the share of total marketings (35 per cent) made by larger than family farms did not change.

Fractional Assessments

It frequently comes as a big surprise to the happy new homeowner to discover that his $30,000 real estate investment is valued at only $15,000 or less for tax purposes.

Yet when the tax bill comes—based on lower assessment—Mr. Property Owner rarely complains about the undervaluation.

After all, he may reason, he's better off than he would be if he were paying taxes based on a $30,000 valuation.

But the appearance of saving may be deceiving. Assuming all the property in his community is assessed on the same basis, Mr. Property Owner would pay out no more if taxed on full market value since the tax rate would probably be reduced proportionally.

Fractional assessment of real estate property is contrary to law in many areas, but the courts often uphold such undervaluation on the grounds that it is not unfair as long as all properties are assessed at the same percentage of their value. And tax assessors generally agree that fractional assessments lessen complaints from taxpayers.

Thus, one million parcels of real estate sold in 1966 were assessed at an average of 21 per cent of their market value. This fractional assessment ranged from 4.6 per cent of the market value in South Carolina to 77.5

per cent in Alaska. That same year more than 60 per cent of all locally assessed real estate was non-farm residential property assessed at $236 billion for tax purposes. And farm real estate was assessed at $43 billion.

The tax situation is further complicated by lack of comparable market values on which to base the assessments. Some classes of property, such as residential property, enter the market quite often. Others, such as industrial or commercial property, do not.

Bromegrass Pasture Shows Profit With Addition of Nitrogen Fertilizer

One pound of nitrogen fertilizer applied to bromegrass pasture returned one pound of beef. These are the results from a two-year pasture grazing study conducted by the Northeast Station at Concord.

Agronomist Russell Moomaw and Beef Specialist Walt Tolman coordinated the research at the Warren Patefield farm in Cedar County. The research covered 1968 and 1969, nearly opposite years as far as bromegrass pasture production was concerned. Precipitation in 1968 was about four inches less than normal during the time bromegrass pasture usually produced forage. In 1969, rainfall was near normal during the same period. The subsoil in 1969 was also filled to capacity from winter snow.

Unfertilized bromegrass pasture over these two years produced an average of 61 pounds of beef per acre. When a $20 per acre pasture charge is placed against the land, dollars were actually lost where fertilizer was not used.

The addition of 60 pounds of nitrogen per year boosted beef yields to 139 pounds of beef per acre. Now the bromegrass pasture became profitable, yielding about $8.75 per acre net return above fertilizer and land costs.

Previous research at the Northeast Station has demonstrated that bromegrass pasture responds profitably to additions of nitrogen fertilizer. Adding 40 pounds nitrogen per acre on bromegrass resulted in a profit-parable market values on which to base the assessments. Some classes of property, such as residential property, enter the market quite often. Others, such as industrial or commercial property, do not.

Quality. Protein content of the grass will be increased about two per cent where 60 pounds of nitrogen is applied.

Bromegrass pastures improve with repeated fertilization. The full benefit from fertilization is not reached the first year, but during the years following fertilizer use.

Weed control will also be necessary to attain full production potential from bromegrass pasture. Overgrazing should be avoided. It may also be necessary to remove cattle from bromegrass pasture when summer dormancy occurs.

This was the case during the 1968 experiment when the beef animals were removed in early July due to drought.

Patefield furnished the yearling steers used in the pasture study. Cooperation of the fertilizer industry was secured in furnishing fertilizer materials and grant funds.

Certified Crop Varieties For '70 Now Released

The list of certified crop varieties for Nebraska in 1970 has been released by the University of Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station. Crop varietal committees have reviewed the list of crop varieties suggested for planting this year and have added a few new ones and dropped some others, according to Duane Foote, secretary of the Nebraska Grain Improvement Association.

A number of criteria are used for dropping varieties from the list, Foote explained. One consideration is its performance in relation to other varieties. The acreage and amount of certified seed available of a particular crop are also taken into account.

A circular for general distribution will be available soon which lists all varieties suggested for production in 1970, he continued. During the time the publication is in process, county Extension agents will have information available on the changes being made.

Foote listed the following changes in designated varieties, by crop:

Corn — The variety Garry will no longer appear on the list.

Soybeans — Lindarin 63 will be removed. Grain Sorghum — RS 671 will be suggested for the longer growing season areas of the East Central, Central and Southwest cropping districts.

A new grain sorghum hybrid, RS 690, will be added to the list. A full-season hybrid that is about one to two days later in maturity and about two inches shorter in plant height than RS 671. This grain is light yellow-orange in color. Test weights are equal to RS 671. Stalk strength of the hybrid is excellent. Yields have been good in its area of adaptation. It is adapted to the Southeast and South Central cropping districts and the southern portion of the East Central, Central and southwest cropping districts.

Forage Sorghum — WB 07 F will no longer be suggested for production.

Alfalfa — Kanza will be added to the list. Kanza was developed and released by the Kansas State University Experiment Station and USDA. It is resistant to pea aphid, spotted alfalfa aphid and bacterial wilt. Its winterhardiness is similar to Burton and Cody. You can expect Kanza to be similar to Dawson in providing long-lived, highly productive stands.

Grasses — State Intermediate Wheatgrass will be added to the list. Nebr. 50 and Amur will be removed. State Intermediate Wheatgrass is a cool-season grass variety with 1969 establishment for utilization as a forage crop. It may be used in pure stands or in mixtures with other tall grasses such as smooth bromegrass or wheatgrass and alfalfa for cool-season pasture or for hay. This variety has the potential of high seed yields for both forage and seed. This variety is a replacement for Nebr. 50 Intermediate Wheatgrass, seed of which is no longer available.

Rye — Elk will be replaced on the list by Pearl. Pearl Rye is a moderately late maturing rye variety with a good yield record in Nebraska. It is a more winter-hardy than Von Lochow. Pearl is medium in height and has fairly good straw.

Spring Wheat — Waldron was added. A hard spring wheat developed by the North Dakota Experiment Station and USDA. It is a hardheaded variety but may have a trace of awned plants. It usually develops a purple stem by harvest time. Waldron is earlier, stronger strawed and higher yielding than Cris. It is resistant to the prevalent races of leaf and stem rust. The milling and baking qualities of Waldron are satisfactory.

Corn — Nebr. 711 and Nebr. 720 are new hybrids to be added to the list. Nebraska 711 is a single cross hybrid that has equalled or surpassed Nebr. 698 in yield under irrigation and lower moisture at the 711 in the 1968 Nebraska Corn Performance tests. It yielded exceptionally well at five of six experimental locations, one of which had drought stress until late July. Performance in 1969 was also good. Nebr. 711 does not appear to be resistant to stalk rot. It has a moderate level of resistance in the last half of 1969 compared to the same period in 1968. The Saturday morning business session was highlighted with an address by Robert W. Bird, vice-president, who explained that the newly organized subsidiary of White Motor Corporation will market two separate lines of equipment: White-Oliver and White-Minneapolis-Moline.

Admission $1.50

An accident in the 500-block on East Sixth Street around 1 a.m. Saturday involved a total of four vehicles. James Schults was eastbound on Sixth in a 1969 Camaro and was in collision with a parked 1959 Chevrolet. The Chevrolet, owned by Kenneth Roland, was pushed backward into a 1965 Buick also owned by Roland. The Buick then hit a 1964 Chevrolet owned by Wilma Woehler. There was extensive damage to all the cars except for the Woehler auto which received only minor dents. Wayne police investigated.
