At the recent conference for the Nebraska Association for the Gifted, William Vassar, consul-tant for the State of Connecticut Department of Education, spoke of the need for programs for ac-ademically talented children and for better state-level financing for such programs. Programs for the gifted call for different teaching strategies to provide for their needs ac-cording to Vassar. He spoke of the need to develop productive thinking and self-evaluation on the part of all students, but es-pecially the bright students. Vas-sar noted that one of the greatest needs is to have a teacher who is not threatened by the children as they develop creative, divergent patterns of thinking. Unless such funds were released, both schools faced the necessity of borrowing momey for operational expenses which would involve interest payment -as well. Hearing on the petition was held before District Judge-Merritt C. Warren, January 23. Af the January hearing, 55 per cent of the money which had been thed up by the lawsuit, was re-leased so the schools could con-tinue educating the high school from outside the district. A hearing was set for Febr. 4 to decide the real question in-volved in the lawsuit - whether the school districts have a right to set the free high tuition level at or above the level of the per pupil cost for the previous year -bid in decision was reached. Judge Warren ruled Thursday in favor of Wayne County Board of Equalization and intervening school districts. The court found than either the 1969 Wayne Coun-ty Non-resident High School Tui-tion levy of 10,98 mills nor any portion is unlawful or for an un-necessary purpose, or is in ex-cess of the requirements of the applicable tuition level at the twite in level of the applicable tuition level as of the applicable tuiton interventing school districts.
